UNIVERSITY OF LONDON LIBRARY

THIS BOOK IS NOT TO BE PHOTOCOPIED

University of London

606034

REPORTS

FROM

COMMISSIONERS:

TWENTY-FOUR VOLUMES.

—(15.)—

ELECTIONS (TOTNES BOROUGH).

Session

5 February — 21 August 1867.

VOL. XXIX.

1867.

REPORTS FROM COMMISSIONERS:

1867.

TWENTY-FOUR VOLUMES:—CONTENTS OF THE FIFTEENTH VOLUME.

N. B.—THE Figures at the beginning of the line, correspond with the N° at the foot of each Report; and the Figures at the end of the line, refer to the MS. Paging of the Volumes arranged for The House of Commons.

ELECTIONS (TOTNES BOROUGH).

[3776.] REPORT of the COMMISSIONERS appointed to inquire into the existence of CORRUPT PRACTICES at the LAST ELECTION, and on former similar occasions, for the BOROUGH of TOTNES; together with the MINUTES of EVIDENCE and APPENDIX - - p. 1

REPORT

OF

THE COMMISSIONERS

APPOINTED TO INQUIRE INTO

The Existence of Corrupt Practices at the last Election, and on former similar Occasions,

FOR

THE BOROUGH OF TOTNES;

TOGETHER WITH

THE MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

AND APPENDIX.

Presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

LONDON:
PRINTED BY GEORGE EDWARD EYRE AND WILLIAM SPOTTISWOODE, PRINTERS TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.
FOR HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE.

1867.

16851.

CONTENTS.

	Page
COMMISSION	iii
REPORT	v
SCHEDULES	xvii
ALPHABETICAL INDEX TO WITNESSES	xxi
EVIDENCE	1
APPENDIX	1032

COMMISSION

TO INQUIRE INTO

THE EXISTENCE OF CORRUPT PRACTICES AT THE LAST ELECTION, AND ON FORMER SIMILAR OCCASIONS, FOR THE BOROUGH OF TOTNES.

VICTORIA R.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith.

To Our trusty and well-beloved Montague Bere, Esquire, Francis Davy Longe, Esquire, and Charles Edward Coleridge, Esquire, greeting:

Whereas the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled, have by a joint Address humbly represented unto Us that a Select Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to try a Petition complaining of an undue Election and Return for the Borough of Totnes, have reported to the House that it has been distinctly stated by some Witnesses, and the general tenor of the evidence given leads the Committee to believe, that a system of gross corruption prevailed at the last Election for the Borough of Totnes, and also on former similar occasions, and that there is reason to believe that corrupt practices have extensively prevailed in the said Borough, and have humbly prayed that We will be graciously pleased to cause inquiry to be made, pursuant to the provisions of the Act of Parliament passed in the Sixteenth Year of Our Reign, intituled "An Act to provide for more "effectual Inquiry into the Existence of Corrupt Practices at Elections for Members to "serve in Parliament," by the appointment of you, the said Montague Bere, Francis Davy Longe, and Charles Edward Coleridge, as Commissioners for the purposes of making inquiry into the existence of such corrupt practices:

Know ye, that We, in compliance with the Prayer of the said joint Address, have authorized and appointed, and do by these Presents in pursuance of the powers vested in Us by the said Act, authorize and appoint you, the said Montague Bere, Francis Davy Longe, and Charles Edward Coleridge, to be Commissioners for the purpose of making inquiry under the said Act into the existence of such corrupt practices in the said joint Address referred to.

Given at Our Court at Saint James's, the Sixteenth day of June One thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, in the Twenty-ninth Year of Our Reign.

By Her Majesty's Command,

G. GREY.

REPORT.

TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

We, the Commissioners appointed under Your Majesty's Royal Sign Manual to inquire into the existence of corrupt practices at the last election for the borough of Totnes, and also on former similar occasions, having carried out, as far as circumstances would permit, the inquiry which we were commanded to make, humbly submit this our Report to Your Majesty.

Considerable difficulties met us at the outset of our inquiry in consequence of the change made in the law by the Statute 26 & 27 Vict. c. 29. By that Act the power given to the Commissioners to refuse certificates of indemnity is restricted to the instances in which witnesses have refused to answer a question actually put to them, whereas under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 57. those persons only were entitled to certificates who answered the questions to the satisfaction of the Commissioners. Many of the witnesses to whom under the earlier Act we should have refused certificates are entitled to claim them under the present.

We had to deal at Totnes with every possible variety of falsehood and prevarication. Wilful perjury was confessedly committed on the examinations before us in several instances; contradictory statements on oath were continually made, and few witnesses without the pressure of cross-examination showed any disposition to tell the whole truth. In consequence of such reticence our inquiry was much prolonged, yet, after all, we cannot pretend to have discovered all the facts connected with the elections that have taken place in the borough.

Totnes is an ancient borough, having received by a charter of A.D. 1259 the privilege of returning two burgesses to Parliament. It was a town that never had any great or special trade, and since the stoppage of the manufacture of serge about A.D. 1835, when it suffered in common with the rest of South Devon, its inhabitants have consisted principally of small shopkeepers and persons engaged in agricultural pursuits. At the elections that took place during the years immediately preceding the passing of the Reform Bill little political feeling prevailed, the choice of representatives then depending on certain resident families engaged in trade or business who had influence in the borough. The constituency was at this time confined to freemen presided over by a mayor and 14 masters-councillors. The freemen were elected by the mayor and masters-councillors, who were themselves elected by the resident freemen (commorantes in villâ), while the Members of Parliament were chosen by the freemen whose names were on the roll, whether resident or non-resident.

At the time of the Reform Bill the boundaries of the borough, which had been the same as those of the manor of Great Totnes, were much enlarged, and those that were substituted, though drawn irregularly and from no fixed centre, took in that portion of the adjacent country on which most houses had been built. This portion contained the manor of Little Totnes, and also the manor of Bridgetown, which was divided from the town proper of Totnes by the river Dart. The owner of both these manors was the then Duke of Somerset, who thus for the first time acquired weight in the political affairs of the borough.

The area of the borough was by these means increased from about 60 acres to about 1,300 acres. The number of inhabitants in A.D. 1831, in the old borough, was 3,442. There were only 277 voters on the register for 1832, of whom 42 were freemen, 19 voted on qualifications for Bridgetown, and 156 on qualifications in Totnes parish. According to the census of 1861 the population of the present Parliamentary borough was 3,993, and the voters on the register of 1864 were 421; of these 6 were freemen, 85 voters for Bridgetown, and 330 voters for the parish of Totnes. Between 1832 and 1864 few new houses, however, had been built within the limit of the borough.

The parties acting in political matters in Totnes since the Reform Bill were three,—1st, that which attached itself to the Somerset influence; 2nd, independent Liberals who were opposed to any such influence; and, 3rd, the Conservatives.

In order to trace the political history of the borough we inquired into the general character of the elections from the Reform Bill until 1857. The earlier elections of 1832, 1834, and 1835 were admitted to have been conducted without any attempt at bribery on either side. The election of 1834, when Lord Seymour was for the first time returned, was a contest for the independence of the borough, 73 ultra Liberals supporting a candidate of their own. In the year 1837 suspicion of treating by the opening of the public houses first attached to the Conservative party. The open and determined purchase of votes did not begin until the election of 1839, when Mr. Blount on the Liberal and Mr. Baldwin on the Conservative side polled an equal number of votes, 142. All the impartial witnesses who remembered that election traced the subsequent corruption of the borough to it as the fountain head. The election was declared void upon a technical objection as to the validity of the notice by the decision of a Committee of the House of Commons. Mr. Blount did not again solicit the suffrages of the constituency; but in 1840 Mr. Baldwin again stood, and having been elected by a majority of seven over Mr. Guy Gisborne, continued to be member for Totnes till the year 1852, in conjunction with the present Duke of Somerset, then Lord Seymour. Mr. Baldwin came in without a contest in 1841, defeated Mr. Sampson Ricardo in 1847 by three votes, but was defeated himself in 1852 by 13 votes in favour of Mr. Mills.

Mr. Baldwin's uncontested return in 1841 was the result of an agreement between certain members of the two political parties, whereby the Somerset party undertook to support a Conservative candidate against the candidate brought forward by the independent Liberals, provided that the Conservatives would take care to secure Lord Seymour's seat. In the words of the Duke of Somerset, "The agreement was to the effect that if I "could find 12, not more than 14 persons, on my side who were willing to vote for the "Tories, they would give me 40 votes." The arrangement, in spite of strong dissatisfaction on the part of the independent Liberals, was acted upon in the elections of 1841 and 1847, at which latter election,—but for its existence and the interference of Mr. Michelmore, the Duke's agent,—Mr. Ricardo, an Independent Liberal, would have been returned. It seems to have been given up at the election of 1852.

Mr. Baldwin had been one of the members for Totnes before the Reform Bill, was well known to the constituency, and had bought the Gerston estate situated within the borough. He spent very large sums of money in his various contests, but we could not discover with any accuracy their amount. At these elections there is no doubt that no Conservative could have been elected for Totnes without bribery, and that no independent Liberal could be secure of the second seat without having recourse to the same means; while the witnesses on both sides admitted that there was no need for the Somerset candidate to spend any money illegally, and stated their belief that up to 1855 no money had ever been so spent.

In 1855 the then Duke of Somerset died, and Lord Seymour's succession to the peerage creating a vacancy in the borough, the Earl of Gifford as the ducal representative was elected without a contest. We had no proof of any corrupt practices having prevailed at this uncontested election; we have not, therefore, inquired into the details of preceding elections except where they throw light on the conduct of persons concerned in the elections of 1857, 1859, 1862, 1863, and 1865. After the election of the Earl of Gifford the disunion that up to that time had existed in the Liberal party became less, the two sections were brought nearer together, and agreed to work in concert for the furtherance of the Liberal cause. No unity in money arrangements existed, but the exercise of the Somerset interest in favour of the independent Liberal was clearly thought an equivalent for money to be spent by the latter. Although during the life of the Earl of Gifford money was not required to secure his seat, yet throughout the time that he represented Totnes considerable sums were spent in bribery on behalf of the independent Liberal candidate, and on the Earl of Gifford's death had to be further expended in order to protect the Somerset member who had hitherto been considered safe.

At the elections from 1857 to 1863 inclusive, the voters registered were of three descriptions,—

1. Freemen, who every year became fewer in number.
2. Householders occupying houses or premises of the actual value of 10*l.*
3. Persons qualified to vote on the occupation of land on which buildings stood.

The freemen, as far as we could judge from the character of those who voted at the election of 1865, were persons in a good position in the town. The second class was composed of the tradesmen and small shopkeepers resident in the town, with a few occupiers of 10*l.* houses who earned their livelihood as artisans or labourers. The majority of this class, if not themselves the tempters or bound to vote in any particular manner by allegiance to a landlord, were open to be bribed. The third class consisted principally of farmers and other persons who occupied the pasture lands within the borough. They were for the most part admitted to their holdings on the understanding that they should vote for the Liberal interest.

The power of creating votes was largely increased by the quantity of meadow land brought within the limits of the borough at the Reform Bill. Sheds of a better and more expensive character than had hitherto existed were erected on the different fields, and a manufactured 10*l.* qualification for "buildings with land" was thus obtained. This system of creating qualifications, though adopted by both sides, has added a larger number of votes to the Liberal interest, and is now only available to any extent to that party.

These were the only qualifications of voters until 1863, when a new method of manufacturing votes on altogether fictitious occupations sprang up. The plan had been in use in the neighbouring borough of Ashburton, and having been found to answer there was quickly transferred to Totnes. It cannot be better illustrated than by the following example:—Six persons of Liberal politics living at Dartmouth had their names placed on the rate book for the parish of Berry as the occupiers of some fields rented and occupied by the landlady of the Seymour Hotel. A resident in Totnes, the Liberal registration agent, was named manager, who prepared from time to time an account, in which were set out the earnings from the fields by the depasturing of cattle, horses, &c. thereon. As a matter of fact all the cattle and horses were the property of the landlady, and the six voters never even went there themselves, or placed any animals of their own upon the land. On the annual settlement of the accounts a dinner was given; after which dinner some one of the party was accustomed to go and cut a cabbage growing in a piece of garden, which forms a portion of the property, as an assertion of the joint occupation of the six voters. This system of manufacturing votes was tried by both parties, and by both parties successfully, until the over-anxiety of the Conservative party to fabricate votes in the end led to their own discomfiture. A company was formed, the object of which was to induce the surrounding clergy of Conservative politics to allow themselves to be made voters in the way above mentioned; but as they did not substantiate upon oath the qualification set up on their behalf, their names were struck off the list by the revising barrister. A subsequent and more extensive attempt was made by the Liberals in 1865 to register 46 voters whose qualifications were to be derived from the land at Gerston, a property which some years previously had passed into the Duke of Somerset's hands. A company was formed to work the land, a Mr. Elias Forde being the nominal tenant, who was guaranteed from loss by the sitting members. Owing, however, to a decision of the Court of Common Pleas this company has ceased to exist.

Such has been the character of the constituency in respect of qualification of voters; and we found that its morality in point of bribery had been such as might be expected. The evidence showed that not only the poorer voters, but many of the most influential persons in the town were willing either to receive bribes themselves, or to aid the interest of their party by offering bribes to others, or to throw every possible obstacle in the way of the discovery of bribery. We were told by a voter, Mr. John Yabbicom, who had been for nearly 30 years connected with banks at Totnes, that for the last 14 years he had, in opposition to his ordinary practice, purposely omitted to take the numbers of notes paid out of or into his bank at the time of an election, in order to prevent the notes being traced should it turn out that they had been used for the purposes of bribery.

We could not determine whether bribery at municipal preceded or followed that at parliamentary elections; but we found that as the practice increased at the latter, so the sums paid for votes at the former increased also. No municipal contest for some years back had taken place without sums of money having been illegally distributed, and the corruption proved to exist among the parliamentary voters extended also to those on the burgess roll. These corrupt practices were not checked by our inquiry, inasmuch as during the sitting of the Commission at Totnes a municipal election occurred, at which bribery is said to have prevailed.

While we were sitting John Heath, who had been the principal briber on the Conservative side since 1857, who, when examined as a witness before us, gave evidence the falsehood of which he afterwards admitted, who was accused by two witnesses of subornation of perjury, and who was under the imputation of being, with others, unable to account for the distribution of over 1,200*l.*, was not only re-elected a member of the town council, but was during the next week offered the mayoralty of the town.

Another obstacle met us in the death or absence of many of those whose testimony was necessary to clear up the dealings at different elections. Mr. Windeatt, one of the two legal advisers of the Liberal party, had died in December 1865; the other, Mr. Brooking Cuming, had become so weakened by a paralytic stroke that our examination of him even at his own house would, in the opinion of medical men, have endangered his life. Mr. Thomas Michelmore, for many years the agent of the Duke of Somerset, and the manager of the ducal party in the borough, had also died. Mr. William Webber, who had taken an important part in monetary transactions, was dead also since 1865. N. J. Hill, a clerk of Mr. Cuming, and J. P. Searle, an active agent of the Liberals, had gone to America. The first three of these, in conjunction with Mr. Chaster, were the leading members of the Liberal party, and combined among themselves the Somerset and the independent interest; their absence, therefore, deprived us of the best sources of information with regard to their own party. Again, when we came to investigate the amounts of money spent on former occasions, we found that Mr. Dunn, the Conservative candidate in 1859, Mr. Mills and the Earl of Gifford, the Liberal members elected in 1857 and 1859, were dead, while Mr. Dent, and his financial agent, Mr. Mitchell, who had to do with the elections of 1862 and 1863, were in China, and could not be examined.

The leading persons on the Conservative side in 1857, the first election to which we propose to refer in any detail, were Mr. Bryett, Mr. T. C. Kellock, and Mr. Edmonds, practising attornies in Totnes, and Mr. Bentall, Mr. Bastard, Mr. Gill, resident merchant traders. The independent Liberals were managed by Mr. Windeatt, Mr. Cuming, and Mr. Charles Michelmore, all attornies, with Mr. Chaster, a tanner, Mr. T. Holman, a brewer, and others to assist in council, while the Somerset influence was directed by Mr. Thomas Michelmore, the Duke's steward.

At the general election in March 1857 thesitting members, the Earl of Gifford and Mr. Mills, were opposed by Mr. Mackenzie, an East India merchant, who had been down in 1855 to see what chance of success he might reasonably expect in the borough, and also by a Mr. Gregory. Money was illegally spent at this election by Mr. Mills. Little if any was so spent by the Conservatives, though a sum of 200*l.* sent down to Mr. Bentall by Mr. Mackenzie was never accounted for, and was transmitted in an indirect way at Mr. Bentall's request. Mr. Mackenzie informed us that he had always objected to bribery, and believed that none had taken place on his side. This belief is confirmed by Mr. Mackenzie's position on the poll, fewer votes having been recorded for him than for any Conservative candidate before or since. Any money that was spent unlawfully was no doubt distributed by the hands of non-residents whose names we could not procure, and without whom it was impossible, except by the confession of individual voters, to trace the several sums given; the list of persons acting as bribers and receiving bribes in 1857 is in consequence small, only eight admitting the receipt of bribes. It is, however, right to observe that the confusion in the minds of witnesses, who had received bribes almost as long as they could remember, was often so great that they seemed utterly unable to separate the events of one election from another.

The election took place on March 28, 1857, and resulted in the election of Mills and Gifford; the numbers being—Gifford 171, Mills 150, Mackenzie 118, Gregory 57.

At the next general election, in 1859, the sitting members were opposed by a Mr. Dunn as the Conservative candidate. This gentleman was a member of the firm of Brown, Dunn, Salmon, & Co., Australian merchants, and was supposed to have made a considerable fortune in one of the colonies. He was introduced to a deputation from Totnes, who had come up in search of a candidate, by Mr. Philip Rose, of the firm of Baxter, Rose, and Norton, who acted then as the general manager of the Conservative electioneering interest. Mr. Dunn went down to Totnes accompanied by his wife and brother-in-law, Captain Phipps, and by his solicitor, Mr. Cameron. 800*l.* was taken by Mr. Dunn in the first instance to Totnes. On more money being wanted, Mr. Cameron came up to London, and having procured a further sum of 1,200*l.*, paid it by cheques into the bank of Watts and Co. at Teignmouth, whence it was drawn as was required; whether anything more than the 2,000*l.* was spent we cannot discover. The portion used for bribery was principally distributed by a stranger of the name of Higgins, and some of it passed through the hands of another stranger called Snell. Both these distributors appear to have gone to the houses of the voters and to have paid the bribes themselves, not trusting entirely to persons of Totnes as their agents in the matter. What amount of money was spent, on the Liberal side, or how it was distributed, we are left to conjecture. There was an universal belief that bribery on their part was very prevalent at this election. The polling took place on April 30, 1859, and resulted in the return of the Earl of Gifford and Mr. Mills, the numbers respectively being as follows:—Gifford, 180; Mills, 152; Dunn, 135. We find that out of the 284 electors who voted at that election at least 58 were bribed, and at least 34 persons assisted in the corruption of the townsfolk by offering or administering bribes.

In 1861 Mr. Colleton Rennie, a Conservative, introduced to the constituency by one of the neighbouring landowners, took steps to obtain one seat from the Liberals for himself. He came and stayed for some time in or near Totnes, and held meetings, at which he suggested that the Liberal influence should be attacked at the municipal elections. He further retained an agent, gave some land, which he had taken, for the purpose of manufacturing Conservative votes, and subscribed 150*l.* for the expense of registration. There is no doubt but that this money was in some part applied to the purchase of votes at the municipal elections. Mr. Rennie continued to take a direct interest in the borough for some time, but finding that his efforts to secure the seat would involve the outlay of a sum of 4,000*l.*, which was 2,000*l.* more than he was prepared to find, withdrew.

Towards the end of 1862, the Earl of Gifford being supposed to be at the point of death, arrangements were made on both sides for a contest. It seems to have been well recognized by both sections of the Liberal party that the Earl of Gifford was to be considered the Somerset and Mr. Mills the independent member, and that each vacancy was to be filled up on that understanding. Accordingly Mr. Alfred Seymour, a distant relative of the Duke, and now sitting member for Totnes, was mentioned by his Grace to the Liberal party, and accepted by them as the Somerset candidate. Meanwhile Mr. John Pender, a rich Manchester merchant, had been feeling his way with the view of becoming a future independent candidate. The sudden death of Mr. Mills in December 1862 changed the aspect of affairs. Mr. Alfred Seymour happening to be in the neighbourhood at the time came down at once to Totnes; Mr. MacDougall, a friend of Mr. Pender, came also by the same train. After a consultation of the Liberal party at the Seymour Hotel, Mr. A. Seymour was informed that this particular vacancy being created by the death of the independent member, the independent party preferred Mr. Pender to himself. He therefore left Totnes immediately. A deputation came up to London, had an interview with Mr. Pender, and learning that his political views coincided with their own, accepted him as their candidate, and gave him to understand that he would also have the Duke's interest. Before they returned to Totnes it was agreed that a sum of 1,200*l.* would be necessary for the election. Mr. Pender, "knowing perfectly well," as he said, "that it must go in bribery," but believing that "bribery had become part of the consti-"tutional system," undertook to supply it. Preparations for a contest had been also made by the Conservative party. A Mr. Mitchell, whose name has been mentioned above, had come to Totnes in September, and mentioned to the leading members of the Conservative party the wish of Mr. John Dent, a wealthy China merchant, to contest the borough on their behalf. A communication was made accordingly to Mr. Dent, and he consented to stand. As soon as it was ascertained by the Liberal party that he really intended to offer himself as a candidate, it became necessary that the money already promised by Mr. Pender should be actually brought to Totnes. Accordingly Mr. Jack, an accountant in Mr. Pender's employment, was sent from Totnes to London, where he arranged with a Mr. Wilkinson to pay the sum of 1,200*l.* to some attornies of the name of Green and Allin, who were to remit it to Mr. William Webber, a draper and a magistrate of the borough, while Mr. Jack himself took 200*l.* back with him to Totnes. The 1,200*l.* was remitted to Mr. Webber, and eventually came into the hands of Mr. Windeatt and Mr. Cuming. In consequence of Mr. Webber's and Mr. Windeatt's death and Mr. Cuming's disability, to which we have previously referred, we could not directly trace its passage.

Great expectations had been excited in Totnes by the antagonism of these two very wealthy merchants, and the requirements of the voters in consequence became very large. No sums, so far as we could discover, were actually distributed before the election, but in many instances promises were made which no doubt would have been fulfilled if there had been a contest. That money was liberally expended after the election is certain. Mr. Dent, however, found that he could not carry the election, and at midnight on the day of nomination, after a fruitless attempt to get Mr. Pender to pay 2,000*l.* for his withdrawal, and the Liberal party to consent to his being returned without opposition on the next vacancy, he resigned. The disappointment occasioned by his withdrawal was intense, the picture of that disappointment as drawn by the witnesses graphic,—women coming down with baskets to the Conservative hotel to carry away the sovereigns that were to be distributed, and loudly lamenting their misfortune when it was announced that there was to be no contest. The poll was, however, opened on the following day, when five votes were recorded for Mr. Dent, and 171 for Mr. Pender.

Mr. Pender supplied the sum of 1,400*l.* for this election with a full knowledge that such a sum could not, even in the event of a contest, be legally expended. Mr. Dent and Mr. Mitchell also brought with them a very large sum, amounting, at least to 3,000*l.* 1,000*l.* of this money was actually taken back to London by a Mr. Helms and paid back to Mr. Dent's agent.

After his election Mr. Pender, thinking that his expenses had been small, offered to, give the sum of 1,000*l.* to aid the charities of the town, and certainly himself expected that this sum would come out of the 1,200*l.* held by Mr. Cuming. No account was however, rendered of the expenditure of this money, and on Mr. MacDougall, in March 1863, demanding, on the part of Mr. Pender, an account from Mr. Cuming, he was astonished to find that the whole of the sum of 1,200*l.* had been expended, or at all events was not forthcoming, and that not even the hotel bills or the election auditor's account had been paid out of it. 289*l.* of the 1,200*l.* was transferred to the account of Messrs. Thos. Michelmore and Son, and was placed to an account for registration expenses which they then opened with Mr. Alfred Seymour. The rest of the 1,200*l.* went in gifts to Liberal voters, or remained in the hands of the distributors, Mr. Windeatt and Mr. Cuming. No doubt this money was distributed among the Liberal party with the direct purpose of securing votes against the vacancy which the state of the Earl of Gifford's health showed to be imminent; Mr. Alfred Seymour thus derived advantage from the expenditure of Mr. Pender's money.

The Earl of Gifford died in January 1863, and immediately Mr. Alfred Seymour and Mr. Dent presented themselves as candidates. Mr. Seymour sent to Totnes the sum of 1,000*l.*, which was paid into the account of the Messrs. Michelmore with the National Provincial Bank.

We cannot accurately discover the amount brought down upon this occasion by Mr. Dent or his adviser, Mr. Mitchell. The only way by which the Conservative candidate could win the election was by the purchase of a number of votes in Bridgetown, tenants of small holdings under the Duke, who might, by the temptation of very large sums, be induced to brave the penalty of certain eviction from their holdings. Fifteen of these people were thus bought at prices varying from 60*l.* to 150*l.* a head, but they were not enough to turn the scale in Mr. Dent's favour.

The 1,000*l.* despatched to Totnes by Mr. Seymour, and the lingering influence of Mr. Pender's money was, however, not thought sufficient to secure the seat for the Liberals, and it was intimated some days before the election to Mr. Henry Danby Seymour, the present member for Poole, who had come to assist his brother, that a further sum of 500*l.* would be needed. Mr. Danby Seymour did not feel inclined to advance the amount himself, and Mr. Alfred Seymour was of course to be kept in ignorance. Mr. Danby Seymour came up to town, and having an impression on his mind of the existence of a fund out of which the demands of Liberal candidates might be supplied, went to Mr. Drake, of the firm of Bircham, Dalrymple, & Drake, who was the agent for the Liberal party in London. Mr. Drake, at the request of Mr. Danby Seymour, advanced the 500*l.* as a loan upon the written guarantee of an I. O. U. given him by Mr. Danby Seymour; who seems however to have regarded the I. O. U. merely as a receipt, and not to have expected to be called upon himself to repay it. Mr. Drake stated before us that he advanced the money on his own account, but from press of business for three whole years forgot to ask for the return of it. "I saw," said Mr. Drake on his examination, "that Mr. Alfred Seymour had given his evidence, and then "it occurred to me that there was 500*l.* that I had lent to Mr. Danby Seymour." The 500*l.* was not repaid until the 23rd of October 1866, and then by Mr. Alfred Seymour without interest.

This additional 500*l.* was sent down in the same way as the 1,200*l.* at Mr. Pender's election, and was paid into Messrs. Michelmore's account. It was clearly proved that a large portion of the 1,500*l.* which thus found its way into the borough was used for the purposes of bribery, that Mr. Alfred Seymour knew that the 1,000*l.* provided by him was more than would be required for the legal expenses of the election, and that Mr. H. Danby Seymour was also aware of the purpose to which the 500*l.* brought by him would be applied. 285*l.* was passed by Mr. A. Seymour in his subsequent account with Mr. Michelmore under the head of "Amount paid sundry parties." This sum in reality was spent in bribery, and Mr. Seymour paid the item not knowing what it was, and making no inquiries.

We have no direct evidence of the total sum of money illegally furnished by Mr. Dent, but we have proof that over 2,600*l* was directly spent by him in bribery, and that both Mr. Dent and Mr. Mitchell were cognizant of the way in which the money was being employed.

The poll took place on January 21st, 1863, and Mr. Seymour was elected by a majority of eight, the narrowest majority by which a ducal candidate ever was returned. At this election 95 voters were bribed and 54 persons acted as bribers.

Immediately after the election notices to quit were served on almost all the Somerset tenants who had voted against Mr. Seymour, and they were eventually turned out, care being taken by the other party to find other houses and fields for them within the borough. This refuge was easily found, Mr. Dent having become the tenant of land the property of Mr. Phillips, of Broomborough, which could be applied to providing for those who were turned out. These evictions were brought to the knowledge of the Duke of Somerset, who, informed by his agent (himself guilty of bribery at the same election) that the evicted tenants were turned out because they had received bribes, made no further inquiries.

It was after this election that Mr. Pender asked Mr. Cuming for accounts of his money, and sent down Mr. MacDougall to inquire. Mr. MacDougall was met by Mr. Cuming with this observation, "Mr. Mills would never have asked any questions," and could get no account, though he was directly told that he could be shown the list of improper recipients, if he would not reveal its existence or contents to Mr. Pender. This conditional offer Mr. MacDougall declined.

Altogether Mr. Pender spent in consequence of his unopposed election 2,296*l.*, as he did not withdraw from his offer of 1,000*l.* for the charities of the town.

Until the end of 1863 the expenses of registration, as far as one Liberal member was concerned, had been paid by the late Duke of Somerset and by the present Duke. The accounts of these expenses were produced before us, and contained items applicable to and fairly to be included in such an account. At the end of this year, 1863, the Duke, having become the Lord-Lieutenant of Devonshire, determined, as he told us, to withdraw from any interference in the political affairs of the borough, because he did not wish to be mixed up with local disputes and questions. This determination he communicated to Mr. Michelmore, by whom it was represented to the independent Liberal party. From that time it seems to have been considered a settled thing that the choice of candidates was to be made without consultation with the Duke. The trouble of approving of candidates and the payment of 40*l.* a year to the registration seem to be all that the Duke really gave up, as the Somerset influence, in the absence of any specific directions by the Duke to his agent, was still exercised in the same way and manner as it had been of old. The registration expenses however were not to be under the same regulations as heretofore, and consequently we find Mr. Pender and Mr. Seymour each paying a sum of 250*l.* a year, nominally for the expenses of registration, but in reality for the charges entailed by illegal payments made by Mr. Michelmore. The accounts of these expenses were nominally kept by Mr. Chaster, to whom payments were made by Mr. Pender on his own behalf, and by Mr. Michelmore on behalf of Mr Seymour. In these accounts there was no mention of the illegal items alluded to; but in an account headed registration expenses, kept in Messrs. Michelmore's ledger, we find the following entries, which are certainly unconnected with the proper business of registration.

	£	s.	d.
J. Searle, for a year's rent, to prevent the Tories getting it	10	10	0
William Tozer, a loan	20	0	0
J. O. Tope, repairs at Diptford Cottage	0	10	0
Bindon, gift in sickness	0	5	0
John Amory, rent due	11	19	5
William Sloggett, cash	6	0	0
Robert Lake	20	0	0

It appeared that this voter, Robert Lake, had represented to Mr. Pender the fact of his having been offered money by the Conservatives in the election of 1862; that, according to Mr. Jeffery Michelmore's evidence (doubted, but only faintly contradicted by Mr. Pender), Mr. Pender had intimated a wish that Lake should be taken care of. In consequence of that wish when Lake came to pay his rent to the Duke and wanted a sum of 20*l.* to enable him to make it up, Mr. J. Michelmore presented him with a cheque for 20*l.* and charged it in the account for registration expenses.

As the direct interference of the Duke of Somerset with the political affairs of Totnes was supposed to cease with the year 1863, it may not be an unfit place to describe the influence possessed by him, or exercised by his agents, in the borough. The whole of the Somerset property within the borough has been worked for the manufacture of votes by the addition of buildings to land. The tenants admitted to the holdings (all of which are tenancies from year to year) have been admitted by the Duke's agent on the understanding, express or implied, that they were to vote at election times for the Somerset member at all events. This manufacturing of votes and this understanding with the tenants was known to and approved by the present Duke of Somerset. In his system of dealing with these persons the Duke's agent has had continually in view the strengthening of the political power of his employer. It does not appear that the Duke inquired into the manner in which his agents were using their influence over the ducal tenantry. Bribery at Totnes began in a successful attempt on the part of the Conservatives to counteract by the purchase of votes the territorial influence of the Somerset party, and was kept alive by a series of similar attempts, which proved unsuccessful.

The dealing with the registration matters on the Conservative side was somewhat odd, as Mr. Rennie, though no longer a candidate for the representation, himself paid the registration expenses for the year 1863, while a prospective candidate, Mr. Macleay, paid those for 1864, which amounted to the large sum of 336*l.*

A regular agreement was made at the end of 1863 between the sitting members to subscribe each 1,000*l.* for the next election, Mr. Pender to be preferred to Mr. Seymour in the event of but one seat being within the reach of the Liberals, in which case two-thirds of the cost of the election were to be paid by Mr. Pender.

The Conservative party were not idle in the interval between the election of 1863 and the general election of 1865, but were constantly looking for fit persons to contest the borough on their behalf. Mr. Potter, the then chairman of the Great Western Railway, was applied to, but was deterred by the expenses he was informed he must necessarily incur; other candidates were sought, but unsuccessfully, and the general election of 1865 became imminent without any candidate having pledged himself to fight the Conservative battle.

Mr. Pender and Mr. Alfred Seymour being the sitting members, and intending to offer themselves for re-election, Conservative candidates must be found if those gentlemen were to be opposed. Without Conservative candidates no money would, at the coming election, be distributed at Totnes, and it became an absolute necessity for the Conservative party in the borough to find men ready and willing to come forward. Eligibility in the eyes of many of the Conservatives of Totnes meant plenty of money, and men with money were therefore sought for. Such, however, was the "expensive reputation" of the borough, that few persons could be discovered who would come down on the visionary chance of ousting the sitting members. Every gentleman proposed, even Mr. Macleay, who had already spent some money to assist the Conservative party in the registration courts, agreed with his legal adviser in demanding a requisition signed by voters, in numbers sufficient to carry the election, before he would offer himself. Accordingly a Mr. Robert Harris, who was then acting as a collector of rents for Mr. Rennie, and as the registration agent for the Conservative party, took upon himself the burden of getting up this requisition. A paper was drawn up and addressed to Mr. Macleay, asking him to become a candidate for the borough. The signatures of 168 voters were obtained to it by Mr. Harris, in many instances upon the suggestion that it was a requisition to Mr. Dent. Where Mr. Harris met with hesitation he intimated that the signer did not thereby pledge himself to vote for the invited candidate, but that if there were no contest then there would be no money spent. Mr. Macleay, looking at the borough through the clear-seeing eyes of his agent, Mr. Henry Smith, declined to contest its representation. The Conservatives, thus balked, were obliged to look about for another champion. Mr. Potter was again tried, but he would still have nothing to do with Totnes. In such a difficulty recourse was had to Mr. Spofforth, a partner in the firm of Messrs. Baxter, Rose, Norton, and Co., who informed us that he had had the management of the Conservative electioneering interest since 1853, and that all matters connected with the candidature and the management of seats were left to him. Mr. Spofforth was to look out for a candidate; and having promised to find one "of the commercial spirit they required," he discovered Mr. Kennard. This expression "commercial spirit" was explained by Mr. Spofforth in his evidence before us as applying to candidates engaged in trade or business. As, however, Totnes possessed no trade except that of the purchase and sale of votes, we have no doubt but that the true interpretation, and the one intended to be put on these words, was scarcely as harmless as that now suggested by him. This is the more probable as it is clear from his own letters and his own conversation that he was well aware before this of the corruption existing in the borough. Mr. Kennard visited Totnes, but after a conversation with Mr. Pender, with whom he was acquainted previously, he gave up all thought of standing. About this time Colonel Dawkins, for reasons which will be found in his evidence, was anxious to obtain a seat in Parliament. He consulted his solicitors, Messrs. Smith and Guscotte, of Essex Street, Strand, and then with Mr. Smith called on Mr. Spofforth, who having no other candidate for Totnes, and finding the Colonel ready to spend 2,000*l.*, agreed to recommend him for the borough. Mr. Spofforth accordingly introduced Colonel Dawkins to Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Harris as a fit candidate, mentioning also the Colonel's willingness to spend 2,000*l.* On examination before us Mr. Spofforth declared his belief that 2,000*l.* might be legally spent in Totnes. Colonel Dawkins therefore went down to Totnes on June 28, bringing with him to assist in the election Mr. Smith, his solicitor. The Colonel engaged as his local agents Mr. T. C. Kellock and Mr. T. H. Edmonds, who had been commonly employed as the Conservative legal advisers. No money appears to have been taken down at this time, but after a short stay at Totnes Mr. Smith went up to London, and returned with 1,500 sovereigns for the purposes of the election; this sum he made over to Mr. Edmonds, who arranged for its distribution. It was however soon gone, and Mr. Smith having a power to supply money up to 5,000*l.*, drew two cheques, each for 1,000*l.*, which he presented to Mr. Edmonds. A subsequent cheque for 500*l.* was also used; these sums, together with sundry other payments, make up the sum of 4,559*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* spent by Colonel Dawkins on his election. We find that a sum of over 3,700*l.* passed into the hands of persons engaged in directly bribing voters, and that 2,450*l.* has been accounted for as thus distributed, while of the remainder no account has been given to us. The persons who ought to give such account are Mr. Edmonds, Mr. J. Heath, and their inferior agents. It was alleged before us by John Heath, and considerable time was taken up in searching into the truth of the allegation, that this money had been in truth placed in the hands of an unknown stranger, and that he must account for the deficiency, but after considering all the evidence taken before us, the contradictory statements made, and the falsehoods told by John Heath and other of the witnesses, who swore to the existence of such a stranger, and the final avowal of two of these witnesses that they had invented the story of being paid by a stranger at John Heath's instigation, we much doubt whether there was any such person as the stranger at all, or if there were, whether had he been called he could have accounted for all the deficient money.

A second Conservative candidate was found in the person of Commander Pim, R.N., who was introduced to the constituency through Mr. C. Wescombe, the editor of a newspaper at Exeter. Warned in the strongest terms by Mr. Spofforth of the corruption of Totnes, he offered himself on purity principles. Although he did not rigidly adhere to those principles, inasmuch as he was privy to and ready to profit by the large illegal expenditure of the other Conservative candidate, he did not spend much money, a sum of 350*l.* including the whole of his expenditure.

There is no doubt that Colonel Dawkins was fully aware of the way in which his money was being spent, and that Mr. Smith, who originally brought down the gold and afterwards gave cheques for the amount required from time to time, well knew of the bribery that was being carried on. These cheques were handed by Mr. Edmonds to Mr. Thomas Creaser Kellock, an attorney, and at the time of our examination mayor of Totnes, who cashed one of 1,000*l.* at Torquay after banking hours, and another for the same amount at Totnes through the agency of Captain King, also after the bank was closed. The purpose for which this money was required was perfectly well known to the three persons employed in the transaction. In both instances Mr. Kellock gave his written guarantee to the bank as a security for the money obtained on Mr. Smith's cheques.

As soon as the Liberals became aware that an opposition was really intended money was needed for the contest. 2,000*l.* having been agreed upon in 1863, that sum had to be brought down to Totnes. Thereupon Mr. Chaster, a magistrate of the borough, of whom we have spoken above, after pressure by Mr. Pender, agreed to transmit certain securities to Mr. Pender's private secretary, Mr. Salmon, in London, who was directed to turn them into money, and to bring the money by train to Exeter. Mr. Chaster went to Exeter, met Mr. Salmon, received the 2,000*l.* in notes, brought it to Totnes, and handed the whole over to Mr. Windeatt. He afterwards, at Mr. Windeatt's request, changed 1,000*l.* or 2,000*l.* worth of notes into gold at the National Provincial bank, and gave the gold to Mr. Windeatt.

This money passed, by Mr. Windeatt's agency, into the hands of Mr. Thomas Holman and others, and was by them distributed among different voters in sums varying from 20*l.* to 100*l.* We were enabled to trace the payments of bribes to Liberal voters amounting altogether to 1,375*l.*; 290*l.* out of the 2,000*l.* was made over to Mr. Chaster for the purposes of the registration; but in consequence of Mr. Windeatt's death we cannot account for the expenditure of the remaining 335*l.*, which no doubt was either spent in bribery or remained in Mr. Windeatt's hands. Mr. Seymour advanced a further sum of 500*l.* towards the expenses of the election, and of that sum we find that about 150*l.* was spent in bribery through the agency of Mr. Jefferoy Michelmore, now the steward of the Duke of Somerset. Of this 500*l.* Mr. Seymour never received any account, and acquiesced in not receiving any, in view of the threatened petition.

The election took place on July 12, 1865, and at the close of the poll the numbers were, Pender, 210; Seymour, 204; Dawkins, 162; Pim, 147; this majority for the Liberal candidates clearly demonstrating that on the register of voters settled in October 1864 no Conservative candidate had even a faint chance of success, and that the gentlemen who stood in the interest of that party were brought down for the one purpose of spending money in order to fill the pockets of the various classes of voters and other persons whose interest in an election was of a pecuniary nature.

The expenses of this election, as returned by the agents for election expenses, were as follows:—

	£	s.	d.		£	s.	d.
Pender - -	172	11	7	Seymour - -	117	18	4
Dawkins - -	279	7	6	Pim - - - -	216	10	6

It appears, however, that the provisions of 26 Vict. c. 29. were disobeyed in the most flagrant manner with respect to the accounts of all the candidates. Besides the hotel bills mentioned in the published accounts of Mr. Pender and Mr. Seymour, the further sum of 266*l.* for hotel expenses was paid by them to the landlady of the "Seymour" Hotel. The hotel bills sent in to Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim by the landlord of the "Seven Stars," amounting respectively to 176*l.* 3*s.* and 110*l.* 3*s.*, were paid in full by their agents for election expenses. No such payments, however, figure in the published accounts, but in their stead items amounting to 77*l.* 12*s.* and 44*l.* 14*s.* "for carriage hire "and committee rooms" were substituted, at the suggestion it appears of Mr. Presswell, the town clerk.

Open house was kept at this as at former elections, both on and before the polling day, at both hotels,—by the Liberals at the "Seymour Arms," and by the Conservatives at the "Seven Stars,"—at the expense of the four candidates. A petition was threatened on the declaration of the poll, and as it was feared that the treating which had gone on at the "Seymour Arms" might vitiate the election of the Liberal members, it was thought well so to arrange the accounts kept in the books of the hotel as to present the appearance of entries having been made to each person of the refreshments supplied to him, although these refreshments had originally been charged to one account, headed "Pender and Seymour." Accordingly a Mr. Cross destroyed two pages in the day book containing the account, and substituted other pages containing the same items, but charged to different individuals. Mr. Samuel Parnell, since that time appointed postmaster at Totnes, performed a similar operation upon the hotel ledger. These acts were done to prevent an objection to the return on account of treating from being available in case of a petition.

Mr. Pender having been unseated for attempting to bribe Robert Harris by the promise of a situation, we felt bound to inquire into the facts of that case, and having had the advantage of hearing Mr. Pender's evidence, an advantage denied to the Committee of the House of Commons, we are satisfied that Mr. Pender did not attempt to obtain Harris's vote by the offer of a situation. The length and character of the conversation with Harris, admitted by Mr. Pender, may have produced upon Harris's mind the impression that a situation might, after the election, be procured for him; but still we are clearly of opinion that Mr. Pender, by such a hint, if made, had no intention or expectation of influencing Harris's vote. From Harris's conduct before and after the election, especially from his asking Mr. Pender for the situation after voting against him, we doubt whether Harris ever did have the belief that Mr. Pender in any way attempted to procure his vote.

We think it right to notice specially the following transaction. The Rev. W. H. James, a clergyman of the Church of England, who had never voted in an election at Totnes, having borrowed some money from Mr. Edmonds, the Conservative attorney, on a note of hand and the deposit of some scrip six months before, received a communication from Mr. Edmonds very early on the morning of the election, requesting him as a favour "of the most deeply personal kind" not to vote against Colonel Dawkins. With this letter Mr. James and his wife hastened down to Mr. Pender, who sympathized with them in their indignation at Mr. Edmonds, and promised Mr. James the money, 233*l.*, on the understanding it was not to be used unless Mr. Edmonds pressed for it. On receipt of this promise Mr. James voted for Pender and Seymour. The money was paid over to him on the same morning by Mr. Pender himself. Although he had a balance of 1,873*l.* in one bank at Totnes and of 500*l.* in the other, Mr. Pender did not draw this money by his own cheque. Mr. John Bowden, a warm supporter of the Liberal party and a merchant of the place, drew a cheque of his own on the Devon and Cornwall bank, receiving in lieu thereof a cheque on the Manchester and Salford bank of a Mr. Heald, who was at Totnes as Mr. Pender's confidential friend, and paid the money so procured to Mr. Pender. No security, not even the transfer of the note of hand originally handed to Mr. Edmonds, was ever given for that money by Mr. James; a transfer of the scrip was mentioned, but the scrip in reality was never transferred. Whatever Mr. Pender's impression of the transaction may now be, we cannot come to any but one conclusion, namely, that by the advance of this money he retained Mr. James's vote for the Liberal party.* Mr. Edmonds called up the money due to him on the 18th of the same month (about a week after the election), and received it from Mr. James upon the 24th.

At this election 92 persons were bribed and 66 acted as bribers. Of those bribed the majority in this as in former elections were voters who looked on an election as a certain time for getting money, and whose expectations were duly rewarded, although there was no doubt of the side on which they would vote; such men went in the borough by the name of "matter-of-course" men. A smaller number of voters allowed their votes to depend on the superiority of the temptation offered, and some few were able to obtain donations from both sides.

Of the 364 voters who voted at this election, 182 were implicated in bribery committed either then or at former elections; 95 voted on wholly fictitious or on manufactured "building with land" qualifications, 26 of the latter class having been already counted by us in the former. Of the remaining 133 many were bound to vote with their landlords, employers, or customers, and very few can be considered as bonâ fide independent voters.

Between December 1862 and August 1865 we have ascertained that 15,737*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.* had been paid in Totnes solely on account of matters connected with or resulting from elections, such as charities, expenses of registration and at hotels, fees to agents, bribery, &c. These payments were made by or on behalf of the sitting members, and by persons who were or were thinking of becoming candidates. 6,000*l.* at least must be added as supplied by Mr. Dent. So that in less than three years more than 21,000*l.* has been brought, on account of its representation, into Totnes, and has been distributed among its inhabitants, the greater portion for illegal objects.

A petition was presented against the return of the Liberal members and resulted in the unseating of Mr. Pender. We heard evidence on the question whether a compromise of that petition had been corruptly proposed or not, but could not discover that any definite offer of settlement had been made or listened to. One matter which occurred during the progress of the petition we think it right to state. Mr. Percy Salmon, a gentleman before mentioned, knowing many of Mr. Pender's electioneering secrets, was in danger of being subpœnaed by the petitioners; he was desirous not to be mixed up in the proceedings, and a suggestion was made to him by Mr. Drake that he should leave England in order to avoid the service of the subpœna; a suggestion with which, under the cover of weak health, he complied.

We think it right to report to Your Majesty that the following witnesses made statements on oath before us the falsehood of which was afterwards either acknowledged by themselves or made plain to us in the course of the subsequent enquiry. John Heath, sen., George Griffis, Thomas Blank, Henry Crawford, Richard Norrish, Thomas Gillham, William Satchwell, Robert Harris, Jubal Bartlett, Nicholas Manning, John S. Screach, jun., and Frederick Evens. Thomas Jacob Searle confessed himself guilty of subornation of perjury in trying to prevent witnesses from telling the truth before us; and John Heath, sen., was accused by two witnesses, and Samuel Parnell was also accused, of the same offence. We have not made out any schedule of persons treating or having been treated at the different elections into which we have inquired, because such a schedule would probably have contained the names of by far the greater part of the voters in the borough, and a large portion of those who had no votes.

We have also to report that one of the witnesses, John Sloggett Jenkins, having admitted to us that after the service of our summons upon him he had deliberately destroyed all the letters written to him by Mr. Pender, was fined by us 20*l.*, which sum has since been paid into Your Majesty's Court of Exchequer.

It remains now for us humbly to submit to Your Majesty the following conclusions:—

1. We find that at every election for the borough of Totnes since and including the election of 1857, corrupt practices have extensively prevailed.
2. We find, in respect of the election of 1857, that Thomas Mills was privy and consenting to the corrupt practices that prevailed at that election.
3. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule A. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of acts of bribery in respect of the votes of other persons.
4. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule B. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of bribery in respect of their own votes.

* Since the above portion of our Report was written we have received communications from Mr. James and Mr. Pender to the effect that this money has been repaid with interest on the 3rd of January instant.

5. We find, in respect of the election of 1859, that John Dunn and Thomas Mills were privy and assenting to the corrupt practices that prevailed at that election.
6. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule C. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of acts of bribery in respect of the votes of other persons.
7. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule D. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of bribery in respect of their own votes.
8. We find, in respect of the election of 1862, that John Pender and John Dent were privy and assenting to the corrupt practices that prevailed at that election.
9. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule E. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of acts of bribery in respect of the votes of other persons.
10. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule F. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of bribery in respect of their own votes.
11. We find, in respect of the election of 1863, that Alfred Seymour, M.P., and John Dent were privy and assenting to the corrupt practices that prevailed at that election.
12. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule G. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of acts of bribery in respect of the votes of other persons.
13. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule H. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of bribery in respect of their own votes.
14. We find, in respect of the election of 1865, that John Pender, Alfred Seymour, M.P., William Gregory Dawkins, and Bedford Pim were privy and assenting to the corrupt practices that prevailed at that election.
15. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule I. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of acts of bribery in respect of the votes of other persons.
16. We find, in respect of the said election, that the persons named in Schedule K. to this our Report annexed committed corrupt practices and were guilty of bribery in respect of their own votes.

We subjoin a full statement of the evidence which has been taken before us, and which we beg leave to lay before Your Majesty.

All which we submit to Your Majesty's gracious consideration.

MONTAGUE BERE.
FRANCIS DAVY LONGE.
CHARLES EDWARD COLERIDGE.

January 29, 1867.

SCHEDULES.

1857.

SCHEDULE A.

Bribers.

Cuming, Francis Brooking.
Ford, George.
Holman, Thomas.
Light, John, jun.
Michelmore, Charles Frederick.
Mills, Thomas.
Newton, John.
Parnell, Samuel.
Webber, Charles.
Windeatt, William Fabyn.

SCHEDULE B.

Bribees.

Crawford, Henry.
Gillham, John.
Hilley, Samuel.
Light, John.
Pearce, John.
Satchwell, William.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Shinner, William.

1859.

SCHEDULE C.

Bribers.

Baker, Edward.
Birch, —.
Bourne, Robert.
Bryett, Theodore.
Cameron, Dugald.
Coombes, Daniel.
Cuming, Francis Brooking.
Donnall, George Saule.
Dunn, John.
Edmonds, Thomas Hunt.
Evens, Evan.
Evens, George.
Evens, Frederick.
Harris, Robert.
Heath, John.
Heath, John, jun.
Higgins, —.
Hill, N. T.
Holman, Thomas.
Matthews, Richard.
Michelmore, Charles Frederick.
Michelmore, Sophia.
Michelmore, Jeffery.
Michelmore, Thomas.
Mills, Thomas.
Paige, Robert.
Parnell, Samuel.
Sawdye, W. H.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Shinner, Edward.
Snell, G. W.
Windeatt, William Fabyan.
Woodley, Edward.
Worthy, Thomas.

SCHEDULE D.

Bribees.

Allen, William.
Barter, James.
Bearne, John.
Blackler, Thomas.
Blank, Thomas.
Browne, John.
Clarke, James.
Corney, John.
Crocker, Reuben.
Dean, James.
Diggins, John.
Earle, Robert.
Elford, John.
Ellis, William.
Endle, John.
Farley, William.
Farley, William, jun.
Gillham, John.
Godfrey, John.
Goodman, Samuel.
Harris, John.
Hilley, Samuel.
Hill, S., Jun.
Huxham, John.
Knapman, William.
Light, John.
Light, John, jun.
Lombardini, Thomas.
Maddick, James.
Mitchell, Thomas.
Mingo, George.
Mogridge, Robert.
Morgan, Robert.
Norrish, Nicholas.
Pearce, John.
Pengilley, Richard.
Perrott, John.
Phillips, John Jerman.
Pyle, John.
Rogers, Thomas E.
Satchwell, William.
Screach, J. S.
Searle, John Parnell.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Sercombe, George.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Shinner, William.
Shinner, Edward.
Southwood, John.
Stoyle, William.
Tarring, Richard Parnell.
Tope, Henry.
Turpin, Edward Randle.
Venning, Arthur.
Willcocks, William.
Willis, Edward.
Willis, Thomas.
Willis, William.

1862.

Schedule E.

Bribers.

Adams, William.
Baker, Edward.
Callard, T. Pedrick.
Cross, Richard.
Cuming, Francis Brooking.
Dennis, Thomas.
Dent, John.
Edmonds, Thomas Hunt.
Elliott, John.
Evens, Evan.
Evens, Frederick John.
Evens, George.
Godfrey, William.
Harris, Robert.
Heath, John.
Heath, John, jun.
Holman, Thomas.
Kinsman, Amelia.
Michelmore, Charles Frederick.
Michelmore, Jeffery.
Michelmore, Thomas.
Mitchell, John.
Mitchell, William Henry.
Niner, Philip Kelland.
Parnell, Samuel.
Pender, John.
Perrott, William.
Prout, James B.
Screach, John Sandford, jun.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Searle, John Parnell.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Webber, William.
Webber, Mrs.
Windeatt, William Fabyan.
Willis, William John.
Woodley, Edward.
Worthy, Thomas.

Schedule F.

Bribees.

Briggs, John.
Clarke, James.
Coombes, Francis.
Crook, William.
Crawford, Henry.
Dean, James.
Diggins, John.
Drew, John.
Earle, William.
Edmonds, James.
Ellis, William.
Evens, Frederick John.
Farleigh, James P.
Ford, William.
Gillham, John.
Gillham, Thomas.
Godfrey, John.
Harris, Robert.
Hilley, Samuel.
Hill, Samuel, jun.
Kinsman, Thomas, jun.
Lake, Robert.
Light, John.
Mogridge, Robert.
Mugford, Thomas.
Nickells, John.
Pack, Thomas.
Pearce, John.
Pengilley, Richard.
Penny, George.
Pitts, Charles.
Raymond, James.
Satchwell, William.
Saunders, Samuel.
Searle, Thomas, sen.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Sloggett, William.
Smaridge, Robert.
Stoyle, William.
Tope, Richard.
Turpin, Edward Randle.
Veasey, John Randle.
Venning, Arthur.
Willis, Edward.
Westaway, John.

1863.

Schedule G.

Bribers.

Allin, T. C.
Bennett, Joseph.
Bennett, Mrs. Joseph,
Bourne, Robert.
Cross, Richard.
Cuming, Francis B.
Dent, John.
Earle, Nicholas.
Edmonds, Thomas H.
Elliott, John.
Evens, Frederick John.
Evens, George.
Gill, Arthur.
Harris, Robert.
Heard, Samuel.
Heath, George.
Heath, John.
Heath, John, jun.
Helms, Henry.
Hill, Nicholas.
Holman, Thomas.
Knapman, John.
Light, John, jun.
Martin, Henry.
Matcham, Thomas.
Michelmore, Charles Frederick.
Michelmore, Jeffery.
Michelmore, Sophia.
Michelmore, Thomas.
Mitchell, George R.
Mitchell, William Henry.
Narramore, William Daniel.
Nichols, Samuel.
Norrish, Richard.
Parnell, John.
Parnell, Samuel.
Perrott, William.
Prout, James B.
Screach, John Sandford, jun.
Searle, John Parnell.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Searle, Thomas (of Torquay).
Seymour, Alfred, M.P.
Seymour, Henry Danby, M.P.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Stillman, George.
Tozer, Stephen.
Tucker, John.
Webber, William.
Webber, Mrs. William.
Willis, William John.
Windeatt, William Fabyan.
Woodley, Edward.
Worthy, Thomas.

Schedule H.

Bribees.

Allen, William.
Angel, Edward.
Barter, James.
Bartlett, Jubal.
Bennett, Joseph.
Blackler, Thomas.
Blank, Thomas.
Bowden, Richard.
Briggs, John.
Byne, William.
Chapple, John F.
Clarke, James.

Schedule H.—continued.

Crawford, Henry.
Dean, James.
Diggins, John.
Dufort, Louis.
Earle, William.
Edmonds, James.
Elford, John.
Ellis, William.
Evens, Frederick.
Evens, George.
Farleigh, James.
Farley, John.
Farley, William.
Farley, William, jun.
Fitzpatrick, James.
Ford, William.
Gillham, John.
Godfrey, John.
Goodman, Samuel.
Griffis, George.
Hannaford, Joseph.
Hannaford, William.
Harris, Robert.
Hill, Samuel.
Hill, Samuel, jun.
Hilley, Samuel.
James, William E.
Kinsman, Thomas, jun.
Lake, Robert.
Light, John.
Lombardini, Thomas.
Lorimer, Robert.
Manning, David.
Marks, William.
Mitchell, William.
Mitchell, Thomas.
Mogridge, Robert.
Morgan, Robert.
Nickells, John.
Norrish, Nicholas.
Page, Thomas.
Pack, Thomas.
Pearce, John.
Pengilley, Richard.
Pengilley, William.
Penny, George.
Phillips, John Jerman.
Pitts, Charles.
Putt, John.
Raymond, James.
Reeve, William.
Rolstone, Samuel.
Sampson, John.
Satchwell, William.
Saunders, Samuel.
Sawdye, William Henry.
Searle, John Parnell.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Searle, Thomar, sen.
Sercombe, George.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Shinner, Edward.
Shinner, William.
Sims, Samuel.
Sloggett, William, jun.
Smaridge, Robert.
Smith, Thomas.
Stone, George Robins.
Stoyle, William.
Tapper, Henry.
Tarring, Richard P.
Tilley, Richard.
Tope, Richard.
Tucker, John.
Tucker, John Thomas.
Turpin, Edward R.
Venning, Arthur.
Warren, James.
Westaway, John.
Williams, John.
Willis, Edward.
Willis, William John.
Woodley, Edward.

1865.

Schedule I.

Bribers.

Barnes, Ann.
Bartlett, Richard.
Bowden, Richard.
Chaster, John Webber.
Cuming, Francis B.
Daw, Charles James.
Dawkins, Col., William Gregory.
Edmonds, Thomas H.
Elliott, John.
Evans, Evan.
Evens, Frederick.
Evens, George.
Farley, William.
Fitze, George.
Fowle, George W.
Gillham, Mrs.
Godfrey, John.
Hare, Frederick.
Harris, Robert.
Harris, Richard.
Harvey, —
Hamlyn, John.
Heard, Samuel.
Heath, George.
Heath, John.
Heath, John, jun.
Heath, James.
Holman, Thomas.
King, John, Capt.
Kellock, Thomas Creaser.
Lind, Charles Henry.
Lizard, Edwin.
Lombardini, Jane.
Lorimer, Robert.
Marshall, Thomas.
Matcham, James.
Michelmore, Charles Frederick.
Michelmore, Henry.
Michelmore, Jeffery.
Michelmore, Thomas.
Michelmore, Sophia.
Mitchell, George R.
Narramore, William D.
Niner, Philip Kelland.
Parnell, John.
Parnell, Samuel.
Parrott, George.
Pack, John.
Pender, John.
Pengilley, George.
Pengilley, Charles B.
Pim, Bedford, Capt.
Saunders, Samuel.
Screach, J. Sandford.
Screach, J. Sandford, jun.
Searle, Thomas Jacob.
Seymour, Alfred, M.P.
Smith, Frederick.
Stone, George R.
Stoyle, George.
Tozer, Philip.
Turpin, George.
Willis, William John.
Windeatt, William Fabyan.
Worthy, Thomas.
Yabbicom, John.

Schedule K.

Bribees.

Angel, Edward.
Allen, William.
Allery, William.
Baker, Edward.
Barker, Joseph.
Bartlett, Jubal.
Blank, Thomas.
Bowden, Richard.
Browse, Nicholas.
Clarke, James.
Chapple, John F.
Coombes, Francis.
Crawford, Henry.
Dean, John.
Dennis, Thomas.
Diggins, John.
Drew, John.
Edmonds, James.
Endle, John.
Evens, Frederick.
Farley, John.
Foote, William.
Fowle, George West.
Gillham, John.
Gillham, Thomas.
Green, John Fox.
Griffis, George.
Godfrey, John.
Goodridge, William Henry.
Hannaford, Joseph.
Harris, Richard.
Heard, Samuel.
Hill, Samuel.
Hill, Samuel, jun.
Hilley, Samuel.
Jackson, Robert.
James, William Henry, Rev.
Johns, William Henry.
Kellow, William.
Lampen, Thomas, sen.
Light, John.
Lombardini, Thomas.
Lorimer, Robert.
Manning, David.
Marks, William.
Marks, Joseph.
Matcham, James.
Matcham, Thomas.
Mitchell, William.
Mogridge, Robert.
Mugford, Thomas.

Schedule K.—continued.

Nickells, John.
Norrish, Richard.
Pack, Thomas.
Pengilley, William.
Pengilley, Richard.
Perring, Thomas Shapter.
Phillips, John Jerman.
Pitts, Charles.
Please, George.
Potter, Thomas.
Putt, John.
Raymond, James.
Reeve, Samuel.
Reeve, William.
Richards, Henry.
Rogers, Thomas E.
Rolstone, Samuel.
Satchwell, William.
Saunders, Samuel.
Searle, John Parnell.
Searle, Thomas, sen.
Shillabeer, Samuel.
Shinner, Edward.
Shinner, William.
Sloggett, William.
Smaridge, Robert.
Smith, Thomas.
Stoyle, William.
Tapper, Henry.
Tarring, Richard P.
Tope, John Henry.
Tozer, John.
Tozer, Philip.
Tucker, William Henry.
Turpin, Edward R.
Vallance, William.
Venning, Arthur.
Watson, John.
Willis, Edward.
Wright, John.
Willis, William John.

SYNOPSIS OF THE PARLIAMENTARY REGISTER FROM 1832 TO 1865 INCLUDED.

Year.	Freemen.	Bridge Town.	Totnes Parish.	Total.
1832	42	19	156	217
1833	40	39	198	277
1834	39	39	181	259
1835	38	48	200	286
1836	36	50	233	319
1837	34	55	218	307
1838	32	54	226	312
1839	30	66	245	341
1840	30	66	295	391
1841	30	102	334	466
1842	29	100	295	424
1843	29	101	283	413
1844	23	102	286	411
1845	22	89	265	376
1846	23	97	258	378
1847	22	88	267	377
1848	22	90	259	371
1849	20	88	254	362
1850	19	85	260	364
1851	20	76	241	337
1852	19	71	224	314
1853	17	78	235	330
1854	17	72	236	325
1855	17	72	226	315
1856	16	68	231	315
1857	16	75	243	334
1858	14	75	252	341
1859	8	69	238	315
1860	8	75	248	331
1861	8	73	265	346
1862	7	82	268	357
1863	7	74	282	363
1864	6	85	330	421
1865	6*	90	299	395

* One died since the revision.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX TO WITNESSES.

PAGE

A.

Ackrell, John - - - 485
Adams, William - - - 684
Allery, William - - - 354
Allin, Thomas Charles - - 994
Andrews, Richard - 557, 665
Angel, Edward - - - 880
Angel, John - - - 939
Angel, Marcus - - - 936
Angel, Thomas - - - 926
Ashford, Henry - - - 915

B.

Baker, Edward - 349, 396, 940
Barker, Joseph - - - 355
Barnes, Anne - - - 941
Barrett, Samuel - - - 892
Barter, William - - - 908
Barter, James - - - 532
Bartlett, Edwin - - - 407
Bartlett, Henry 469, 565, 574, 659, 692
Bartlett, Jubal - - 469, 948
Bartlett, Richard - - - 749
Barton, William - - - 1006
Bastard, W. J. W. - 42, 64
Bearne, John - - - 459
Beazley, Sarah - - - 771
Beer, George - - - 384
Bennett, Joseph - - - 889
Bennett, Mrs. - - - 881
Bentall, William - - - 31
Blackler, Thomas - 411, 660
Blank, Thomas - 397, 430, 471
Blight, David - - - 484
Blount, William - - - 991
Bourne, Robert - - - 805
Bovey, William - - - 377
Bowden, Frederick - - 863
Bowden, John - - 634, 768
Bowden, Richard - - 367
Briggs, John - - 486, 740
Brimicombe, John - - 923
Brown, Samuel - 254, 255, 294, 324
Browse, George - - - 897
Browse, Nicholas - - 891
Bryett, Theodore - 561, 932, 935, 940
Burt, Charles - - - 1022
Butland, Gilbert Richard - 875
Byne, William 350, 427, 454, 476, 658

C.

Callard, John P. 527, 535, 809, 828, 893.
Cameron, Dugald E. - 1010, 1031
Chamings, James - - 873
Chapple, John F. - 367, 942
Chaster, John W. 585, 591, 615, 723, 747, 748, 749, 756, 800, 855, 964
Clark, James - - 273, 971
Cole, George - - - 467
Cole, Henry T. - - - 191
Cole, James - - - 890
Cole, William - - - 493
Condy, Philip - - 22, 38
Coombes, Daniel - - - 562
Coombes, Francis - - 489
Corney, John - - 542, 690
Coulton, William - 908, 965
Crawford, Henry 402, 455, 456, 473, 526
Crawford, Sarah - - - 476

PAGE

Crocker, John - - - 482
Crocker, John - - - 501
Crook, John - - - 881
Crook, William - - - 896
Cross, Richard - - 803, 807
Cuming, Samuel - - - 900
Cuming, Samuel, jun. - - 900

D.

Dart, Philip - - - 914
Dart, William - - - 911
Daw, Charles James 310, 315, 327, 331
Dawkins, Colonel - 212, 226
Dennis, Thomas - - - 401
Dent, William - - - 979
Derry, John - - - 761
Diggins, John - - 359, 660
Diggins, John, Mrs. - - 366
Distin, Andrew S. - - 463
Drake, William Richard 999, 1013, 1021, 1022
Drew, John - - - 857
Durant, Richard - - - 965

E.

Earle, Nicholas - - - 550
Earle, Robert - - - 839
Earle, Robert C. - - - 907
Earle, William - - - 510
Eastman, Henry - - - 898
Edmonds, James - - 427, 458, 589
Edmonds, Thomas H. 228, 267, 275, 290, 298, 304, 434, 436, 519, 665, 680, 769, 781, 947, 956, 958
Elford, John - - 466, 468
Elliott, John - - - 840
Ellis, William - - 507, 516
Endle, John - - - 893
Endle, John - - 922, 937
Evens, Evan - 460, 813, 935
Evens, Frederick John 161, 316, 324, 328, 939, 959
Evens, George - - - 345

F.

Fairweather, Joseph - - 884
Farleigh, James - - - 829
Farley, Eliza - - - 563
Farley, John - - - 561
Farley, William - - - 864
Farley, William, jun. 511, 516, 539, 660
Ferris, Joseph - - - 1028
Field, George - - - 869
Field, John - - - 1005
Finch, Arthur E. - - - 988
Fitze, George - - 834, 836
Fitzpatrick, James - 514, 562
Fogwill, J. Reed - - - 853
Fogwill, Helen - - - 671
Foote, Anne - - - 364
Foote, William - - - 363
Ford, William - - - 826
Foster, Henry - - - 920
Fowle, G. West - - - 648
Fowle, Mrs. - - - 655
Fox, Lane, Captain - - 975
Fox, Mark - - - 936

PAGE

G.

Gidley, Nicholas - - - 886
Gilbert, William - - - 618
Gillham, John - - - 949
Gillham, Mrs. - - - 949
Gillham, John, jun. - - 882
Gillham, Thomas 365, 943, 957, 958
Godfrey, John - - 371, 942
Godfrey, William, jun. - - 860
Goodman, Samuel - - 559
Goodridge, James L. - - 903
Goodridge, Thomas - - 925
Goodridge, William Henry - 925
Green, John Fox - 832, 835
Griffis, George - 407, 423, 478
Griffis, Mrs. - - - 960
Guppy, William - - - 906
Guscotte, John - 246, 255, 315, 998

H.

Hains, John - - - 908
Hamlyn, John - - - 875
Hamlyn, William - 963, 965
Hannaford, Joseph - - 372
Hannaford, Theodore - - 945
Hannaford, William - - 553
Hannaford, William - - 960
Hare, Frederick - - - 921
Harris, Elizabeth - - 730
Harris, Richard - - - 859
Harris, Robert 64, 191, 516, 667, 724, 970
Harris, William - - - 910
Heald, Nicholas - - - 729
Heard, Samuel - 281, 941, 948, 959
Heath, Christiana - - 264
Heath, George - - - 241
Heath, James - - - 413
Heath, John 177, 194, 327, 329, 331, 661, 728, 730, 761, 781, 951, 955, 956
Heath, John, jun. - - 438
Heath, Samuel - - - 913
Helms, Henry - - - 284
Henson, Peter R. - - 972
Hill, Samuel - - 763, 942
Hill, Samuel, jun. - - 765
Hilley, Samuel - 424, 944, 959
Hilley, Mrs. - - - 954
Hodder, Henry - - - 831
Hodge, William - - - 871
Hole, William - - - 995
Holman, Thomas - - 622
Honeywill, Sarah - 736, 740
Honeywill, Mrs. - - - 739
Hoppin, Richard - - - 895
Hoskings, William - - 892
Huxham, Samuel - - 39

J.

Jack, James - - 704, 727
Jackson, Robert - - - 902
James, Jane - - - 645
James, Maria - - - 827
James, William Edward - 804, 814
James, William Henry, Rev. 637, 639
Jenkins, J. Sloggett 816, 819, 821, 836
Johns, William Henry - - 373
Jordain, J. Edwin - - 854

PAGE

K.

Kellock, Frederick - 341, 769
Kellock, T. C. 297, 299, 316, 332, 345, 385, 391, 436, 970, 971
Kellock, William - - 421
Kellow, William - - - 379
King, John, Captain - - 369
Kinsman, Mary - - - 489
Kinsman, Susan - - - 495
Kinsman, Thomas - - 487
Kinsman, Thomas, jun. - - 488
Knapman, John - - - 946
Knapman, William - 527
Knapman, William - 911, 924

L.

Lake, Robert - - - 533
Lampen, Thomas - - 400
Lampen, Thomas, jun. - - 430
Lane, Samuel - - - 915
Light, John - - - 528
Light, John, jun. - - 531
Lind, Charles H. 306, 314, 316, 331
Lizard, Edward T. - - 897
Lloyd, J. Earle - - - 432
Lombardini, Jane - - 359
Lombardini, Thomas - - 358
Lorimer, Margaret - 671, 675
Lorimer, Robert - - 673, 676

M.

McDougall, Alexander - 745, 748, 749
Mackenzie, James T. - - 1024
Manning, David - - - 583
Manning, Nicholas 546, 578, 580, 658
Marks, George - - - 887
Marks, John - - - 904
Marks, William - - - 536
Marshall, Thomas 418, 432, 436
Martin, Henry - - - 540
Mason, Charles George - - 886
Matcham, James - 777, 781
Matcham, Thomas - 776, 781
Maye, Jeffery - - - 887
Michelmore, Charles F. 566, 732, 737, 775, 826
Michelmore, Henry - 844, 852
Michelmore, Jeffery 565, 638, 783, 968
Michelmore, John - - 924
Michelmore, Sophia - - 743
Mills, J. R., M.P. - - 1014
Mitchell, George 49, 551, 958, 969, 970
Mitchell, George - - - 452
Mitchell, G. R. - - - 917
Mitchell, James - - - 869
Mitchell, John - - - 868
Mitchell, Thomas - - 537
Mitchell, William - - 376
Morgan, Robert - - - 899
Mugford, Thomas - - 425

N.

Narramore, W. D. 218, 235, 328, 513, 728, 730
Neck, John - - - 896
Newland, John - - - 775
Nichols, Samuel - - 500, 503
Nickells, John - - 374, 941
Nickells, Sarah A. - - 944
Niner, Arthur - - - 513
Niner, Philip K. - - - 947
Norrish, Nicholas - - 515
Norrish, Richard 409, 574, 941, 943, 957

O.

Oldrey, William - - - 576
Oldrey, William Henry - - 1009
Osborne, William - - 939
Ough, William - - - 910
Owen, Thomas E 6 8, 660, 761, 907

PAGE

P.

Pack, James - - - 843
Pack, John - - 393, 402
Pack, Thomas - - - 831
Paddon, James - - - 871
Page, Robert - - - 509
Paige, William - - - 918
Parnell, John - 523, 526, 549, 730
Parnell, Samuel - - 686, 692
Parrott, George - - - 870
Pearce, H. D. - 380, 391, 647
Pearce, John - - 483, 549
Pearce, John - - - 765
Pearce, Sarah - - - 556
Pender, James - - - 405
Pender, John 698, 704, 718, 724, 728, 741, 748, 765, 1016, 1022
Pengilley, Charles B. - - 817
Pengilley, George - - 815
Pengilley, Richard - - 767
Pengilley, William - - 481
Penny, George - - 430, 517
Perring, Thomas S. - - 914
Perring, Mrs. - - - 918
Perrott, John - - 567, 838
Perrott, William - - - 893
Phillips, Anne - - - 964
Phillips, John J. - - 432, 958
Pim, Bedford, Captain 139, 666, 668
Pitts, Charles - 437, 443, 726, 941
Please, George - - 434, 943
Pomeroy, Maria - 258, 327, 329
Potter, Thomas - 780, 781, 782
Potter, Mrs. - - - 782
Powning, James, Rev. - 552, 576
Presswell, George - 2, 392, 774
Prout, Mary A. - - - 265
Prout, James B. - 824, 829, 870
Pulling, William - - - 889
Punchard, John - - - 877
Putt, F. G. - - - 878
Putt, John - - - 731
Pyle, John - - - 435

R.

Raymond, James - 443, 941
Raymond, Maria - - 944
Rees, James - - 466, 821
Reeves, Samuel - - 519, 765
Reeves, William - - - 478
Rennie, C. G. C. - - - 1007
Richards, Edmund - - 665
Richards, Henry - - - 779
Roberts, George - - - 895
Roberts, T. A. - - - 892
Rogers, T. E. - - - 943
Ruby, Henry Sarjant - - 873
Ryder, Robert - - - 861
Ryder, Robert, jun. - - 862

S.

Salmon, Percy H. - - 1015
Sampson, John - - - 464
Satchwell, Anne - - - 773
Satchwell, William 496, 513, 957
Satchwell, Mrs. - - - 503
Saunders, Samuel - 450, 664
Sawdye, Edward - - - 844
Sawdye, William Henry - 823, 872
Sawyer, William - - - 885
Screach, J. S. - - - 569
Screach, J. S., jun. 148, 305, 316, 323, 326, 328, 463, 950
Seaman, Henry - - - 446
Searle, Thomas - - - 526
Searle, Thomas, sen. - - 837
Searle, Thomas Jacob 472, 654, 681
Sercombe, George - - 539
Seymour, Alfred, M.P. 751, 757, 761, 763, 1021, 1022, 1024
Seymour, H. D., M.P. 973, 1022, 1024
Sharpham, Samuel - - 891
Sharpham, S. P. - - 884
Shillabeer, Samuel - - 444
Shinner, Edward - - - 448

PAGE

Shinner, William - - 445
Shute, John, jun. - - 59
Sims, Samuel - - - 464
Smale, William - - - 495
Smaridge, Robert - - 421
Smith, Frederick - 218, 228, 233, 317, 327, 328, 329, 331, 996, 998
Smith, Henry - - - 1003
Smith, Jane - - - 522
Smith, Thomas - - - 517
Snell, George W. - - 1029
Somerset, Duke of - - 926
Southwood, John - 880, 965
Spofforth, M. - - - 979
Stanning, John - - - 550
Stanning, Richard - - 923
Stephens, John - - - 921
Stone, George R. 244, 513, 539, 945
Stoyle, George - - - 904
Stoyle, William - - 353, 943

T.

Tarring, Richard - - - 859
Thomas, Frederick - - 717
Thomas, R., Mrs. - - 888
Tilley, Richard - - - 451
Toms, Henry - - - 505
Toope, W. T. O. - - - 906
Tope, John Henry - - 453
Tope, Richard - - - 458
Tozer, John - - - 362
Tozer, Philip - - - 938
Tozer, Stephen - - - 506
Tucker, Edmund - - 431
Tucker, John - - - 882
Tucker, John - - - 946
Tucker, John T. - - - 839
Tucker, Robert - 484, 724, 865
Tucker, William Henry - - 874
Turpin, Edward R. - - 452
Turpin, George - - - 957

V.

Vallance, William - - 449
Veasey, John R. - - - 850
Veasey, William - - - 905
Veitch, James R., Captain - 989
Venn, John - - - 855
Venning, Arthur - - 470, 940

W.

Watson, John 453, 566, 775, 776, 944
Watson, Richard H. - 575, 951
Waymouth, F. T. - - 920
Webber, Mrs. - - - 822
Weekes, Elizabeth - - 772
Welsh, Thomas - - - 456
Wescomb, Charles - - 1019
Westaway, Eliza - - - 509
Westaway, John - - - 506
Wherry, James - - - 447
Wilkinson, Robert - - 996
Willcocks, James - - 912
Willcocks, William - - 911
Williams, Major - 966, 970, 971
Willis, Edward - - - 883
Willis, Thomas - - - 470
Willis, William - - - 535
Willis, William John 326, 329, 356, 744
Willis, William John - - 352
Windeatt, Thomas W. - 725, 728
Woodley, Edward - - 395
Woodley, William - - 920
Worthy, Thomas - - 690
Wright, John - - - 652

Y.

Yabbicom, John 297, 304, 579, 580, 585, 613, 656, 954

Z.

Zwinger, James - - - 2

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

MONTAGUE BERE, Esq., FRANCIS DAVY LONGE, Esq.,

AND

CHARLES EDWARD COLERIDGE, Esq.,

COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED TO INQUIRE

INTO

THE EXISTENCE OF BRIBERY AT THE LAST ELECTION OF MEMBERS TO SERVE IN PARLIAMENT FOR THE BOROUGH OF TOTNES, AND ON FORMER SIMILAR OCCASIONS.

At the Town Hall, Totnes.

CHARLES BOWEN, Esq. Secretary.

FIRST DAY.

Thursday, 23rd August 1866.

OPENING STATEMENT OF THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER, MONTAGUE BERE, Esq.

(The Chief Commissioner.) I have no doubt that all whom I address on the present occasion are aware, either from actual observation or current rumour, of the reason why we three gentlemen are met to-day; and in order that the reason for our meeting and the powers that we, as Commissioners, possess should be stated by some one possessing authority I will shortly give the reasons why we are here and shortly tell you what are the powers we possess.

It will be remembered that in the summer of last year there was a general election throughout England, and of course you had to elect two members for this borough. That election was contested and the two members John Pender and Alfred Seymour were returned. A petition was presented against that return on the ground of bribery and undue influence, and a Committee of the House of Commons sat to inquire into the allegations of the petition, and on the 22nd of March they came to four resolutions, of which the two following are important:—"That it has been "distinctly stated by some witnesses, and the general "tenor of the evidence given leads the Committee to "believe, that a system of gross corruption prevailed "at the last election for the borough of Totnes and "also on former similar occasions." 4th. "That "there is reason to believe that corrupt practices have "extensively prevailed in the said borough."

On the return of the Report to the House of Commons it was agreed that an address should be sent to the House of Lords in which the House of Lords were requested to join requesting Her Majesty to appoint a Commission by Act of Parliament to inquire into the elections at which corrupt practices were alleged to have existed, and with regard to which elections the Committee of the House of Commons had pronounced in their opinion that such corrupt practices had existed. That address was presented, and we three Commissioners are present to-day, having been appointed, under the Royal Sign Manual, as Commissioners to investigate the matter. We have power under the Act of Parliament which creates us to summon before us any persons whom we may think in our judgment able to give us any information whatsoever upon the subject matter of inquiry, and the words are as large as they well can be. We are authorized to inquire, by all such lawful means as to us shall appear best, with the view to the discovery of the truth. We shall inquire into the manner in which the election, in relation to which the House of Commons have reported, was conducted, and also go back to former elections until we find one election at which no corrupt practice prevailed. With regard to witnesses (and I wish those who are here to understand it) summonses left at the last well known place of residence is as good a service upon them as if presented to them personally, and if they disobey that summons and do not appear before us to answer all questions we shall put to them and give all the information upon the matter into which we have been selected to inquire, we can by putting certain powers in force compel their presence here, so that it would be of no use (and I wish those who hear me to understand it), it would be simply delay with regard to the inquiry to attempt to leave the town of Totnes and go elsewhere. We have the power of adjourning for a certain time ourselves, and power by the consent of the Secretary of State to adjourn for an unlimited period ; so that if any person thinks by going away he will put an end to, or hinder for a lengthened period, this inquiry, I beg leave to inform him that he is very much mistaken. When the witnesses are called they will be examined on oath and any untrue answer made by them will subject them to the pains and penalties of perjury, and any refusal to answer will prevent our doing that, which if they do give proper answers we shall have the power and the inclination, to give a certificate to prevent any consequences which they might be subject to from the statements they might make with regard to their own conduct in this transaction, and if a person shall refuse to answer questions we have power to compel him, and I wish those present to understand that that power will be exercised to the fullest extent, if it be necessary. There have been a large number of summonses issued, and it was necessary that all people if possible who might be concerned should know that this inquiry was to take place from day to day, and witnesses will learn on the previous day who are required for the next day. At the end certificates will be issued to those who have properly given their answers. The police are bound to assist us here and throughout the county if we desire them.

FIRST DAY.

Opening Statement.

23 Aug. 1866.

There will be no witnesses examined to-day. When this inquiry was fixed for this particular day we were not informed that the County Court would sit here to-day. By the kindness of the authorities the County Court has been postponed for half an hour that the Commission might be formally opened and that I should make this preliminary statement. We shall now adjourn to the "Seymour Arms" and we shall commence the examination at 11 o'clock to-morrow, when the witnesses will please to attend.

SECOND DAY.

Friday, 24th August 1866.

THE COMMISSION WAS OPENED ON THE PREVIOUS DAY.

The Shorthand Writers sworn were,—JOSEPH NELSON CHERER, JOHN SIMPSON, WILLIAM AISH DAVIS, THOMAS STAYT, and HENRY GREGORY.

SECOND DAY.

Mr. J. Zwinger.

24 Aug. 1866.

MR. JAMES ZWINGER sworn and examined.

1. (Mr. Bere.) Are you one of the clerks of the Crown Office ?—I am.

2. Do you produce the poll books for the elections that have taken place in the borough of Totnes since 1847 ?—I do.

3. Is there anything else you produce ?—Nothing. I have got a list of them ; I had better hand them in.

4. Is it since 1847 that the poll books have been in your custody ?—Since 1844.

5. Can you give me the Act of Parliament ?—The 6th Victoria, chapter 18, section 93.

6. That Act, I believe, gave the custody of the poll books to the Clerk of the Crown ?—Yes.

7. You produce the poll books since that period ?—Yes.

8. Will you hand them in ?—Yes. (The books were handed in.)

Mr. G. Presswell.

MR. GEORGE PRESSWELL sworn and examined.

9. (Mr. Bere.) Are you town clerk at Totnes ?—Yes.

10. How long have you been in that position ?—About 28 or 29 years.

11. Have you been a solicitor practising in this borough for a considerable period ?—Yes.

12. How long ?—Upwards of 30 years.

13. Were you in practice before the Reform Bill ?—No.

14. Did you know the borough before the Reform Bill ?—Yes ; about 40 years.

15. At the time of the passing of the Reform Bill, can you tell us what the state of the borough was as to the voters ?—Yes : freemen about 70. Many of the freemen resided in different counties ; they were not all resident here.

16. Were those the only voters for the borough ?—Yes.

17. Had you any personal knowledge of any of the elections that took place before the Reform Bill ?—Yes ; two or three.

18. What elections were those ?—I must have the books to show it. (After referring.) The election when Mr. Courtenay, Lord Barnard, and Mr. Charles Barry Baldwin were the candidates.

19. What were their politics ?—They were all, what shall I call them ? Tories. At the present time Conservatives.

20. When was that election ?—On the 12th of June 1826.

21. Who were returned at that election ?—Mr. Courtenay and Lord Barnard.

22. Give us the numbers ?—Mr. Courtenay, 42 Lord Barnard, 37 ; and Mr. Baldwin, 21.

23. Were you yourself professionally concerned in that election ?—No.

24. Do you know whether any bribery took place at that election or not, from what you have heard ?—I believe not. At that time I was clerk. I served my clerkship with one of the aldermen of the borough, Mr. Taunton.

25. Was he Mr. Baldwin's agent ?—Yes.

26. Have you any means of knowing whether bribery was resorted to on Mr. Baldwin's behalf at that election ?—I was not a member of the corporation, and it was a close corporation. It consisted of three or four families and personal friends.

27. Will you give us the names of the three or four families ?—Farwell, Bentall, and Marshall, and Mr. Taunton, Mr. Toms, and other gentlemen. They formed a sort of third party. There were three parties at that time.

28. Tories, Whigs, and what ?—There was no difference in their politics ; it was a question of power in the borough at that time.

29. What was the next election after 1826 with which you were acquainted?—The next election was when Mr. Courtenay took office. It was the 9th of June 1828.

30. What was the next election?—The next was in July 1830.

31. Was that a contested election?—Yes.

32. Who were the candidates?—Mr. Courtenay, Mr. Baldwin, and the Earl of Darlington. I may say that Lord Darlington was the same gentleman who was before Lord Barnard.

33. Who were successful in that case?—Mr. Courtenay and Mr. Baldwin.

34. What were the numbers?—Mr. Courtenay, 59; Mr. Baldwin, 46; and Lord Darlington, 28.

35. Had you anything to do with that election?—No.

36. Were you in the town at the time?—I was.

37. Can you account, either by your own opinion or from any information you received, the reason why, between 1826 and 1830, there was such a change in the numbers which Lord Darlington and Mr. Baldwin polled?—There was some unpleasantness between, I believe, the Farwell party, the Bentall party, the Marshall party, and some third or independent party, because not connected by family; and Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Courtenay were returned in consequence of this.

38. At that time, who were the persons who had influence in the borough as landowners?—I think at that time a gentleman called Wise had landed property here; tithes, and some lands. I am speaking of the old borough now.

39. Yes, confine yourself to that. Had the Duke of Somerset any property here at that time?—I believe I may say he had not.

40. Had the Duke of Cleveland?—No. The Duke of Cleveland had large properties in this neighbourhood, and, I think, in Somersetshire, and, I think, in Cornwall also. And Mr. Farwell, one of the Farwell family, was the solicitor. He was my predecessor.

41. Was Mr. George Farwell town clerk?—Yes.

42. Was he the agent of the Duke of Cleveland here?—Yes.

43. By whom was Mr. Wise's influence represented? By Bentalls?—No; he did not take part in the politics of the borough. He was one of the banking firm in Newton Abbot, and also in this town; but he resided at Newton Abbot.

44. Had you any reason to believe that bribery prevailed at the election in July 1830?—I have no reason to believe it.

45. You never heard of it?—No.

46. What was the next election?—The next was on the Reform Bill.

47. Was that under the old borough?—No; the next was the new.

48. Can you tell us what the voters of the old borough were before the passing of the Reform Bill?—Yes, I can. Perhaps I should say that it was not necessary that freemen should reside in the borough. They might reside anywhere they liked. Very often some were abroad, or in distant counties, and their friends took care to have them here. I have two maps showing the extent of the old borough.

49. Was the old borough all on the west side of the river; or was there any portion on the other side?—No.

50. This side of the river?—Yes.

51. Was the whole of the town of Totnes, as it at present exists, included in the old borough?—No, not all.

52. Can you give us any boundaries at all? Was the river one of the boundaries of the borough?—Yes.

53. The old borough?—To a certain extent; the borough commencing at the bridge. I should say that the present bridge is a modern one. The old one extended to here (describing on the plan). This line shows it. A line drawn on the west side of the mill race to the Polling Green, and from the Polling Green along the west southern end of the Town Marsh to a bound stone near Snail Mill by the pathway leading to Lake Garden through the house in the tan yard, on by the lower side of a field some time since thrown into a lawn belonging to the Highfield House where Mr. Kellock lives, then on to the bound stone opposite Quaker's Yard, then through the lower corner of the field behind the bound stone, on to the cistern trough in Cistern Street, then down through the property called Mount Pleasant, down across the Plymouth Road, where there is, I believe, now a bound stone. That is on the western side of the town, then towards Malt Mill and down on the north side by Whitley Brook. That brook runs to the Town Mill, the flour mill, and follows the course of the mill race easterly to under the first arch of old Totnes bridge.

54. What was the area comprised within those boundaries?—I should think about 60 acres.

55. What was the population of the old borough at that time?—That I cannot tell.

56. Near about?—Between three and four thousand.

57. At the time of the passing of the Reform Bill what alterations were made in the borough?—The whole of the parish of Totnes and the manor of Bridgetown which lies on the other side are within the borough. That shows the line of the land on the east side of the town (referring), The large map which I have behind is the tithe map of the parish of Totnes.

58. Who was the owner of the manor of Bridgetown at the time of the passing of the Reform Bill?—The late Duke of Somerset.

59. Had you anything to do with the settling of the boundaries of the new borough?—No.

60. Do you know what professional men were consulted upon the matter here?—No, I do not.

61. How far from the borough of Totness is the extreme point of old Bridgetown?—From the bridge at Totnes, nearly a mile. The milestone is a little beyond the furthest point to the eastward.

62. How much larger were the boundaries made by the making of the parish of Totnes a borough?—On that side or altogether?

63. On that side?—235 acres.

64. Does that include the 50 acres of the old borough, or exclusive?—Exclusive.

65. What was the area of the manor of Bridgetown?—I think I have said 235 acres.

66. I ask you the parish of Totnes only?—I thought you spoke of the other side.

67. No. I understand the manor of Bridgetown to be 235 acres?—Yes.

68. What is the size of the parish of Totnes altogether, including 50 or 60 acres of the old borough?—That would make up nearly 1,100 acres.

69. The parish of Totnes alone?—Yes.

70. To whom principally did the part of the parish of Totnes that was added belong, at the time it was so added?—Mr. Dacres Adams, and Mr. Wise, whose name I mentioned before, had many fields of land in Totnes parish at the time, and a gentleman called Bartlett.

71. Who was the principal landowner in the parish when the land was added?—I think Mr. Dacres Adams was the owner of the largest.

72. He was a Conservative was he not?—Yes.

73. And the Duke of Somerset a Liberal?—Yes.

74. What is the parish adjacent to the parish of Totnes on the north side?—Dartington.

75. How far is it from the parish of Dartington to the centre of Totnes, from the commencement of Dartington?—About 400 or 500 yards at the end of this land (referring to map).

76. If a circle were taken from the centre of the town of Totnes of a mile radius that would have included a large portion of the parish of Dartington, would it not?—It would.

77. Was Mr. Champernowne the owner of that?—Yes.

78. He was a Tory I believe?—Yes. But at that time I think Mr. Champernowne was a minor.

79. Can you tell us what quantity of population

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

was added by the extension of the borough ?—790 supposed to be, about that number. Perhaps I may say I have taken the census from 1860 and I think the population may be said to be about the same.

80. Of that 790 how many were inhabitants of Bridgetown ?—I am speaking of that.

81. Do you mean that 790 were added by Bridgetown only ?—That is the number I believe.

82. 790, not only in Bridgetown but the added parts of the parish of Totnes ?—I cannot answer that question. The added part of the borough of Totnes included suburbs round the houses outlying on the west, south, and Peter's Quay, and on the Plymouth Road.

83. How many persons should you say lived in the houses that were added ?—100 or 200.

84. There were 790 in the manor of Bridgetown only ?—I believe so.

85. (Mr Longe.) What is the most populous part of Totnes added ? On the other side of the stream you speak of ?—No, the western end.

86. Outside which boundary ?—Outside the western boundary there were not many.

87. (Mr. Coleridge.) I did not quite understand your answer. You told us Bridgetown was 235 acres added, 50 acres in the old borough, and then with what was added from the parish of Totnes would bring it up to 1,100 acres. Is the whole area 1,100 acres including Bridgetown, or only Totnes without Bridgetown ?—The whole area would bring it up to something like 1,500 acres.

88. How many voters in Bridgetown were added ? —At what time ?

89. At the time of the Reform Bill ?—19 the first year.

90. How many were added by taking in the parish in addition to the old borough, exclusive of Bridgetown ?—156.

91. How many voters were there before in the old borough ?—73 freemen.

92. How many were added exclusive of Bridgetown ?—156, and 42 freemen in different parts.

93. And 19 in Bridgetown ; bringing it up to something like 200 ?—217.

94. (Mr. Bere.) 156 voters, including householders, within the old borough ?—Yes.

95. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was the old borough identical in its boundaries with the municipal borough ?—The municipal borough you cannot say was created at that time.

96. Is the municipal borough at the present time identical in boundaries with the old borough ?—Now it is co-extensive with the parish of Totnes and the manor of Bridgetown.

97. The voters in Bridgetown voted at the municipal election here ?—Yes, it is co-extensive with the manor of Bridgetown and Totnes.

98. (Mr. Longe.) The municipal and parliamentary are the same ?—Yes.

99. (Mr. Coleridge.) In 1826 when Mr. Courtenay and Mr. Baldwin stood, what were Mr. Courtenay's politics ?—One of the old school ; a Tory.

100. Were they all three Tories ?—Yes.

101. After 1826 when was the first Liberal returned for the borough ?—After the Reform Bill, upon the Reform Bill.

102. (Mr. Longe.) Did you say 42 freemen were added with the Reform Bill ?—There were 42 registered ; perhaps some of them had died.

103. There were only 42 at the time of the Reform Bill ?—Yes.

104. There having been 70 at the election before ? —I guessed them at 70. There were gentlemen admitted to the freedom who never came to vote. When I said 70 I guessed them at 70. I find on the first registration after the Reform Bill there were only 42.

105. Were the boundaries of the municipal borough and the old borough identical ; I do not mean the present municipal borough, but the municipal borough before the passing of the Municipal Corporation Act ? —I may say there was no limit. Allow me to explain. I stated just now the limits as near as I could of the old borough ; that was called the Manor of Great Totnes. Householders at that time were not allowed to vote. The freemen were created by the mayor, masters, and councillors, sometimes called mayor and aldermen, but the title on the books is mayor and burgesses. They were distinguished.

106. (Mr. Bere.) They are masters and councillors ?—Yes.

107. How were they elected ?—They were elected by freemen as well as I recollect.

108. And did the election of mayor take place every year ?—Yes.

109. And the masters ?—No.

110. Were the masters elected for life ?—Yes.

111. How many were there ?—I think 14.

112. How many councillors ?—There were no councillors ; that was a title not known here.

113. But there were masters, mayor, and burgesses ? —The mayor and burgesses. The masters were sometimes called aldermen.

114. The persons who elected the freemen were the mayor and masters only ?—Yes.

115. How were the freemen elected ?—By the mayor and masters.

116. Was any public notice given when they were elected ?—Yes ; the town clerk issued a warrant and the meeting would be held in this hall and the freemen would be elected by a majority of the masters and councillors. Every mayor it was understood had the right of nominating a friend as a freeman.

117. Might he name any resident or non-resident ? —Yes.

118. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there any limit to the number of freemen ?—No.

119. Unlimited ?—Yes ; it depended on the gentlemen who had power at the time in the corporation. They extended the number and elected their friends according to their strength in the council as far as they could agree.

120. (Mr. Longe.) Was there any particular qualification ?—No.

121. (Mr. Coleridge.) How was it done ; how often ?—It depended on who had the power at the time.

122. Did it require any notice ?—No.

123. Supposing there was a dissolution of Parliament, could they make a batch of freemen before the election ?—If they chose to do so.

124. Was it a habit to do so ?—No, they were jealous of each other ; there were three parties.

125. If they could have pulled together they would have swamped any election ?—Yes, certainly.

126. (Mr. Bere.) Do I understand you that there was no difference of politics, properly so called, between the three parties ; they were all Tories ?—I think I may say so, till perhaps latterly, there was a party called an independent party, and in making friends to strengthen their party they tried to get some freemen on the other side to go with them. They talked all sorts of things at the time and they kept as close as possible.

127. (Mr. Longe.) There was no Liberal party in the corporation ?—No ; there was a party called the independent party, and there was the Bentall party, and the Marshall party, I think.

128. (Mr. Coleridge.) How many freemen are there at the present time ?—Five.

129. How do you account for their having dropped to that number ?—The passing of the Reform Bill put a stop to all this.

130. Those that existed were on the register at the time of the passing of the Reform Bill ?—Yes.

131. They will gradually die out ?—Yes.

132. There is no succession ?—No.

133. (Mr. Bere.) Are you one ?—Yes.

134. There is no power of making freemen at all now ?—No.

135. Besides yourselves, give us the names of the other freemen ?—William Bentall.

136. What is he ?—A merchant.

137. Does he vote as freeman or householder?—As freeman.

138. Who else?—William Kellock, surgeon.

139. Does he vote as freeman or householder?—As freeman.

140. What is his qualification on the register?—He is also on the register as householder.

141. Do the freemen vote as freemen?—I may say we do; but we may go into either booth.

142. Who is the other?—George Presswell, myself, Mr. Sumpter in the navy, and Thomas Hore Taylor.

143. What is he?—No occupation; a gentleman.

144. Who was the returning officer before the Reform Bill?—Col. Farwell.

145. In what capacity was he returning officer?—As mayor of the borough.

146. The mayor of the borough was the returning officer?—Yes.

147. He is also now?—Yes.

148. Have you the register of voters after the Reform Bill?—Yes.

149. There were 42 freemen then left?—42 registered. There were more no doubt, but they did not send in any claim. If a gentleman had been on the register, or any freeman living at that time, they could have come within 10 miles of this borough and claimed to be on the register.

150. Seven, is not it?—Yes, seven, I made a mistake.

151. When was the first election after the Reform Bill?—The 4th December 1832.

152. Who were the candidates?—James Cornish, junior, Esq.

153. What were his politics?—Liberal; a Reformer; and Mr. Jasper Parrott.

154. He was a Liberal, was he not?—Yes; and the Earl of Boringdon.

155. He was a Conservative?—Yes.

156. Will you give us the numbers?—Mr. Cornish polled 127; Mr. Jasper Parrott 127; and Lord Boringdon 66.

157. According to that statement all the constituency did not vote then?—They did not.

158. Were you personally concerned in the election, as the agent of any one of the candidates?—No.

159. Did you assist in canvassing for any of them?—No.

160. At that election have you reason to believe that bribery prevailed?—Not the least.

161. At that time who were the predominant party in the corporation—the Liberals? I suppose there had become a Liberal party and a Tory party?—It was difficult to say at that time. Many gentlemen who had not moral courage before, at that time came out; many who before had run with the other party.

162. There was a great change?—There was a change altogether in the times and everything, and gentlemen who had an opportunity of recording their votes, naturally felt that they should support the men who had assisted in advocating the extension of the franchise.

163. Can you inform us whether there was a majority in the corporation at that time of Liberals?—Oh no, the other way.

164. A majority of Conservatives?—Yes.

165. Although there was a majority of Liberal voters, there was a majority of Conservatives in the council?—Yes. You should recollect that the Municipal Act had not passed then; there was no council till 1835.

166. Of the 66 who voted for Lord Boringdon, were the voters of the old borough freemen principally?—Some of them. I had the pleasure of recording my vote for Lord Boringdon.

167. You were yourself a freeman?—Yes, I was the last elected.

168. Can you tell how many freemen voted for Lord Boringdon?—No; I have not the poll book to refer to.

169. Who has the custody of the poll book?—I do not know. I do not think it exists. I have no recollection of ever having seen it.

170. Were not the poll books in your custody before they were transferred to the custody of the clerk of the Crown, as town clerk?—I cannot say it was. I have no recollection of ever having seen it.

171. Have you any of the poll books previous to 1847?—I do not know whether I have or not.

172. Will you be kind enough to look, and if you have, let us have them?—Yes.

173. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did the Bridgetown voters vote at that election of 1832; did any of those vote for Lord Boringdon?—I cannot say; I was not mixed up with taking the poll, I merely recorded my vote.

174. (Mr. Bere.) You were not town clerk?—No.

175. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is Bridgetown the Duke of Somerset's property?—Yes.

176. Did you hear how they went?—I expect a good many went for Lord Boringdon, but I cannot speak positively.

177. Do you know what proportion at all of the 19?—I have not the least idea.

178. (Mr. Longe.) Do you know whether any of the freemen voted for the Liberals?—I voted for Mr. Parrott; I was personally acquainted with him. There were three candidates.

179. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who were the members at the time of the Reform Bill?—Mr. Courtenay and Mr. Baldwin.

180. Did they vote against the bill?—Yes, I have no doubt they did.

181. (Mr. Bere.) I will ask a question upon that, was there any reason that you heard or knew of, why Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Courtenay did not present themselves as candidates after the Reform Bill?—They would not have got any support beyond their old friends.

182. They voted against the bill, and were not very popular with the newly created voters?—No.

183. Now give us the next election?—The 9th February 1834.

184. What were the number of voters upon the register?—259.

185. How made up?—Freemen, 39; voters in the manor of Bridgetown, 39; the parish of Totnes, 181.

186. How had the voters in Bridgetown risen from 19 to 39 in two years?—The Duke of Somerset, having the manor, all the land except two or three fields, which he subsequently purchased, naturally took an interest in his property, and encouraged the creation of votes, the same as any other gentleman would.

187. Were those votes created by the building of substantial houses, or the erection of buildings merely upon land?—I do not think buildings had commenced on that side at that time.

188. Do you mean houses?—No, not by the duke. There were three builders here who took leases for 60 years. There are two or three double villas on the south-west side built soon after or about that time, I cannot tell exactly.

189. Who were the builders?—Mr. Ponsford at that time.

190. Is he alive?—No.

191. Who else?—Mr. Rouswell.

192. Is he alive?—No.

193. Anybody else?—I am speaking of about that time.

194. I mean that time?—Since then there is a row of houses called Seymour Place, but I cannot remember who built them, I think Mr. Reeves.

195. Is he alive?—No.

196. Were Mr. Ponsford, Mr. Rouswell, and Mr. Reeves all Liberals?—I believe they were.

197. Three freemen had died since the former register?—Yes, probably died. They might have gone to reside at a great distance, and been objected to perhaps in the registration.

198. Have you got the actual number of voters

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

there, or does your list have the same names twice over on the register, on several qualifications?—I have not examined the register so far back as to be able to say anything about it, but at the present time there are double entries.

199. Can you say, with regard to yourself, at the time you were a freeman, were you also on the register as a householder?—I believe I was on the register as a householder.

200. The number 259 would include your name twice over?—Yes.

201. The same with a great many other freemen?—Yes.

202. Can you tell at all how many resident freemen there were at that time, in 1834, who would be revised in the year 1833, the registration on which this election must have taken place. The freemen on the list having a double qualification. It would be only the resident freemen who would have a double qualification?—Do you want the names?

203. No.—32 out of 39.

204. Have you got the Bridgetown register here?—Yes.

205. Where these 32 voters (referring to register) as householders principally within the parish of Totnes?—Yes.

206. What was the qualification of those voters for the manor of Bridgetown, was it that of 10*l.* householders, or were there some 40*s.* freeholders?—No 40*s.* freeholders.

207. Were they all 10*l.* householders?—The register for Bridgetown that year does not set out the nature of the qualification. In my predecessor's time I believe they were all householders. There may have been one or two not, I cannot speak positively, but I believe all householders.

208. Now then, will you give us the candidates, the politics, and the number of votes that were polled at that election of February the 9th, 1834? It was a dissolution of Parliament in 1834, was it not?—No. Mr. Cornish accepted the Chiltern Hundreds, and then my Lord Seymour, the present Duke of Somerset, was a candidate, and Mr. Mayne, a gentleman of the western circuit.

209. What were their politics?—Lord Seymour a Liberal, and Mr. Mayne was said to be a Radical at that time.

210. What were the numbers polled?—Lord Seymour polled 153, and Mr. Mayne polled 73.

211. Do you know whether Lord Seymour had then just come of age?—He must have been of age some years, because, if I recollect rightly, his lordship sat for Oakhampton.

212. Before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

213. You have told us in 1832 some of the Bridgetown voters voted for Lord Boringdon?—I believe so.

214. Were they voters under the Duke of Somerset?—Most of them.

215. Did you hear any reason why these Bridgetown voters voted for Lord Boringdon, whether Lord Seymour used his influence for Lord Boringdon?—I cannot give an answer either way.

216. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who was supposed to have Lord Seymour's influence at that time? Was not it a matter pretty patent in the borough in 1832?—We did not hear anything of his lordship at that time.

217. Who had the Bridgetown influence in 1832?—I cannot answer that question; there were but 19 voters in 1832.

218. (Mr. Bere.) Who was steward to the Duke of Somerset in 1832 and agent?—Mr. Thomas Michelmore, lately deceased.

219. Who were agents for Mr. Cornish and Mr. Parrott?—Mr. Charles Michelmore; he died some years ago.

220. Was he the brother of Mr. Thomas Michelmore?—Cousin.

221. Were they in partnership?—No. Mr. Thomas Michelmore was not a solicitor, he was a land agent.

222. Who was the agent for the others?—Mr. Charles Edwards and the late Mr. Windeatt.

223. Had Mr. Parrott a solicitor?—The late Mr. Charles Michelmore and Mr. Windeatt. There were three solicitors, and they pulled together in the matter.

224. Were they related or connected with Mr. Thomas Michelmore?—Mr. Charles Michelmore was a cousin.

225. I suppose Mr. Thomas Michelmore and Mr. Charles Edwards were not related?—Mr. Thomas Michelmore and Mr. Charles were cousins.

226. Who was Lord Boringdon's agent?—I think Mr. George Farwell.

227. He was town clerk at the time?—Yes.

228. Did Mr. Thomas Michelmore take any part in Lord Boringdon's election, either for him or against him?—I think he did, but I cannot speak positively.

229. Was there any bribery at the election in February 1834, when Mr. Mayne and Lord Seymour were candidates?—No. Lord Seymour was supported by the principal part of the town; parties on both sides of the question supported him.

230. Who were the persons who voted for Mr. Mayne; the freemen?—Very few freemen. Amongst the 73 voters, or, as they called themselves, the "Seventy-third," there were some parties who advocated the charter, extreme Liberals.

231. Did they live in any particular part of the town, or scattered about?—They lived in various parts.

232. Did they go by any particular name?—They afterwards called themselves "the Seventy-third."

233. Who was their principal leader?—My friend, the late Mr. Windeatt.

234. He was one of the "Seventy-third?"—Yes.

235. Was he "Colonel?"—No; but there was a gentleman whom we called "Admiral" (Mr. Cuming), one of the "Seventy-third."

236. Was Mr. Windeatt Mr. Mayne's agent?—Mr. Windeatt was a very able, active man, and he acted in the election for Mr. Mayne. But I can hardly say that Mr. Mayne had any agents; he spent very little money at all amongst his agents. But I cannot say; I was not mixed up with it.

237. Who was Lord Seymour's agent?—Mr. Thomas Michelmore; he always took the responsibility, and he had legal assistance at the time.

238. And also Mr. Charles Michelmore?—No. Mr. Charles Michelmore afterwards supported and became an active man of Mr. Baldwin's, because Mr. Baldwin came again after that.

239. Who was Lord Seymour's agent at the time, his professional adviser?—There was no solicitor retained, but he was assisted in the registration by Mr. Taunton and one or two gentlemen also.

240. Are any of those gentlemen alive now?—Neither of them. Mr. Taunton and Mr. Windeatt assisted after a time. I may say that I assisted Mr. Thomas Michelmore gratuitously. I never accepted any fee from Lord Seymour for looking over the register for a few hours.

241. What are your politics?—It is very difficult to say. I supported the Conservative members, but I supported Lord Seymour from the time he came till he left.

242. But he was not a Conservative?—No, but he was a safe man.

243. That is all we have to ask you about the election of 1834, unless there is anything you can tell us more with regard to that?—No, I think not; it is a long time ago.

244. Give us the next election, the general election in the first place?—December 1834.

245. That was a general election?—Yes, and the candidates were——

246. Before you go into the candidates, what was the state of the register between 1833 and 1834?—I gave you the numbers just now.

247. That was the register of 1833, which affected the election of 1834. I want the register of 1834, on which the election of December was conducted?—Freemen, 39.

248. Still the same number of freemen?—Yes.

249. You gave us 39 before?—In 1833 it was 40.

250. Give us the figures on the register of 1833, when Lord Seymour and Mr. Mayne were the candidates?—Freemen, 40; Bridgetown parish, 39; Totnes parish, 198; total, 277.

251. Now give us 1834?—Freemen, 39; Bridgetown, 39; Totnes parish, 181.

252. Making 259?—Yes.

253. Out of that 259 there were 32 double voters; that is to say, 32 of those voters had two qualifications?—Yes; I made it that number by referring to the list.

254. Now give us the candidates, their politics, and the numbers they polled in December, 1834?—Mr. Jasper Parrott and Lord Seymour were the candidates.

255. Only those two?—Yes.

256. There was no opposition?—No.

257. And being no opposition, I suppose there was no bribery?—No.

258. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have there been any unopposed elections since that?—I think Lord Seymour has taken office on one or two occasions, but there was no opposition.

259. (Mr. Bere.) What was the next election?—April 1835. Lord Seymour became one of the Commissioners for the collection of the Exchequer, and he came down for re-election, but there was no opposition.

260. What was he, a Lord of the Treasury?—Yes.

261. Give us the next?—July 1837.

262. That was a general election?—Yes.

263. Was there a contest then?—Yes.

264. Who were the candidates?—Lord Seymour, Liberal, Mr. Parrott, and Sir Geo. P. Adams.

265. What was the number of voters on the register of 1836?—Freemen, 36; Bridgetown voters, 54; Totness parish, 233.

266. Total 319?—Yes.

267. How many of those had two qualifications?—I cannot answer that question, my attention has not been called to it.

268. You can answer me this question. Had any of those 32 freemen who had a double qualification in 1833 died or ceased to be resident?—Some had died, no doubt.

269. How many? What I want to know is, there were 36 freemen in 1833 and 32 who had double votes, twice entered on the register?—Yes.

270. How many of those 32 were still alive in 1836, as they would be, in all probability, on the register for the same double qualification?—I should say 29.

271. How had the voters increased in Bridgetown and in Totnes during those three years?—Under what circumstances?

272. Under what circumstances; for instance, there were 11 fresh voters in Bridgetown, how had they been created, as far as your memory goes?—I cannot tell you, but there was a little more interest in property to create what votes they could.

273. Had those builders whose names you gave us continued to build on the Bridgetown property?—No.

274. Then had 11 fresh houses been added?—I cannot say that they had. Perhaps some buildings had been added to the land, or something in that way.

275. Not fresh houses; it was not the erection of new houses, but the adding of buildings to land?—No, there were no new houses built. I think I may say, except a terrace called Seymour Terrace; about four or five or six new houses there, I believe, have been built within the last three or four years.

276. Do you know whether these 50 voters lived in the manor of Bridgetown?—They all lived within the manor of Bridgetown except one, a gentleman who had some buildings, I think, with land for his qualification, Mr. William Paige, the gentleman sitting here. Part of the boundary went through a farm yard, and I expect his qualification was made up of buildings and some land within the borough.

277. How do you account for that increase of voters in the parish of Totnes, who increased from 181 to 233 in the three years?—I expect that parties gave their attention to the registration to see what could be got upon the register as qualifications.

278. Did you act professionally at that election as agent for any of the candidates?—No, I never accepted a retainer, I have always refused it.

279. Who did? Was Mr. Thomas Michelmore still alive at that time?—At the time of the general election?

280. The general election of 1837?—I wish to correct what I have said about it. Yes, he was alive. Mr. Thomas Michelmore died within the last twelve months. At that general election Mr. Thomas Michelmore acted for Lord Seymour, and I took an active part for Mr. Parrott also.

281. Were you a paid agent for Mr. Parrott?—No. I never accepted of a retainer from any person.

282. Then who was for General Adams?—Mr. George Farwell.

283. Assisted by anybody at present alive?—No, not professionally, that I recollect; by many friends in the town and neighbourhood, of course they assisted, but I cannot recollect any person.

284. Now, what were the numbers polled on that occasion?—Lord Seymour, 192; Mr. Parrott, 159; and General Adams, 121.

285. Was General Adams a Conservative?—Yes.

286. Was he living at Bowden then?—Yes, which was the property of his brother, Mr. Dacres Adams.

287. Now, as far as that election is concerned, did you hear whether bribery prevailed or not?—I believe not.

288. Do you know on your own part what money was spent by Mr. Parrott?—Yes, I do, something about.

289. Just tell us?—I paid the bills for it, and my impression always has been that the expenses did not amount altogether to 80*l.*, paying everything.

290. Do you know what Lord Seymour spent at all about?—No.

291. I do not mean from your own actual knowledge, but did you ever hear at all any rumours of what he did spend at that election?—No; but if not out of order I will say that I do not think he spent a shilling beyond what was necessary and legal.

292. Have you the poll book of that election?—Of the year 1836?

293. The year 1837 it would be, the poll books?—I do not know that I have.

294. Can you tell how the Bridgetown voters voted, and did they vote for Mr. Parrott all of them?—I expect a great many of them; yes, I have no doubt they did. Lord Seymour was, I mean to say, always supported by a great portion of the Conservative party also.

295. Were you at that time a Conservative or Liberal?—I told you that I voted for Lord Seymour and Mr. Parrott.

296. Those were both Liberals, were not they?—Yes.

297. You were coming round?—Yes, I will tell you under what circumstances by and bye with pleasure, if you wish to know.

298. Was there an inducement held out to you to change?—No, Sir, not the least. I had thought of it for some time, for some years, and when they were getting up a party to turn Lord Derby out in 1859, I said, "If our men vote against him I won't support "them." I thought they were going on at that time all right, Lord Derby and his party, and that was my reason.

299. You do not know whether Lord Seymour spent any money, and Mr. Parrott spent 80*l.* Do you know whether General Adams spent any?—I have no reason to think that he did spend more than was necessary.

300. When was the next election?—The 18th July,

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

1839, the writ was issued. Mr. Parrott accepted the Chiltern Hundreds and retired.

301. Mr. Parrott lived close by, did not he?—Yes, in the adjoining parish of Harberton.

302. What was he?—He was a country gentleman in the Commission of the Peace.

303. Had he a large property in the neighbourhood?—He had a very good estate at Harberton.

304. He accepted the Chiltern Hundreds, and there was an election on the 18th July, 1839?—Yes.

305. On what register did that election take place; was it the register of 1838?—That would be on the register of 1838.

306. Will you give us the numbers on the register?—Freemen, 32, Bridgetown, 54, and Totnes parish, 226.

307. 312 altogether?—Yes.

308. You see from 1836 to 1838 Totnes had decreased by seven votes. Do you know who those voters were?—No.

309. Had there been any contest in the registration courts at this time?—Yes; sometimes they have gone on here for three or four or five days.

310. Was it a political contest between Conservatives and Liberals as to who had votes?—Yes.

311. Who appeared for the Liberals on these occasions?—Mr. Windeatt.

312. Did you ever appear?—No, I have never attended, beyond delivering my vote. I have nothing to do with the register.

313. At that time, 1838, were you town clerk?—I was elected town clerk in that year.

314. May, 1838?—Yes.

315. Who used to appear as agent for the Conservatives?—I was about to answer further your question. Mr. Windeatt and Mr. Tucker, of Ashburton, I think, and Mr. Caunter, of Ashburton, on the part of Lord Seymour here, and some one else.

316. Do you know how those gentlemen were paid?—No, except by the candidates, or by the members for the time being most likely.

317. Did they appear jointly for both the Liberals, or did one appear for Lord Seymour and the other for Mr. Parrott?—They professed to have a separate interest, but in fact they always voted together and worked together.

318. Those are the gentlemen who appeared on behalf of the Liberals?—Yes.

319. Is Mr. Caunter alive?—Yes.

320. Who appeared on behalf of the Conservatives?—I cannot tell for the time if Mr. Arthur Abbott was in the town at that time. I do not recollect; I think he was in the town.

321. You think he appeared for the Conservatives?—He was retained and came down.

322. Was he not assisted by any solicitor resident in the town?—I think at that time Mr. Charles Edwards assisted on the Conservative side.

323. You said that Mr. Charles Michelmore changed. Did he change at that time and become a Conservative?—I think I may say he was always Conservative.

324. Always?—Yes; in fact, he supported Mr. Cornish and Mr. Parrott, because perhaps he felt he ought to have been admitted into the corporation, he was in fact, that was at a very late period, but in fact he was a Conservative.

325. Did Mr. Charles Michelmore appear at the registration in support of the Conservatives?—No.

326. He is dead is he not?—Yes.

327. Who were the candidates at that election of July 1839?—Mr. William Blount and Mr. Charles Barry Baldwin.

328. Was it an unopposed election?—No.

329. What were the numbers?—They polled 142 each.

330. There was a double return?—Yes.

331. There was a scrutiny in consequence of that before the House of Commons?—Yes.

332. Who was ultimately declared elected?—It was declared a void election.

333. On what ground?—The question I think was upon the insufficiency of the notice of the election. It was the practice at that election throughout the boroughs, and had been the practice previously, as I have been informed, to give four days, three days notice, one inclusive and the other exclusive. An objection was taken before the committee and it was contended by Mr. Baldwin's agent that there ought to have been three days clear notice.

334. And I believe that objection was upheld?—It was. Then I recollect talking to Mr. Campbell, who was at that time attorney-general, and Lord Seymour, and we talked about the notice, and Mr. Campbell said that he considered the notice was good, and I think he introduced a short Bill, in which you will find two sections to prevent any question hereafter, to settle it that three clear days notice should be given. You will find that short Act in before you.

335. Who is Mr. Blount?—Mr. Blount was a gentleman who had been called to the bar in early days.

336. Was he a stranger to Totnes?—No, he married a sister of the present Duke of Somerset.

337. He was a Liberal?—Yes.

338. And Mr. Barry Baldwin was a Conservative?—Yes.

339. At that election were you concerned for either of the candidates?—No.

340. Is there any gentleman now alive who was concerned for either of them?—I do not think there is.

341. Did Mr. Tucker of Ashburton come over to the election?—I have very little doubt that Mr. Tucker was over, but I cannot say positively.

342. At that election have you any reason to believe that there was any bribery?—I believe there was a great deal.

343. Do you know who was Mr. Blount's agent before the committee, and Mr. Baldwin's agent, the country agent first?—I think Mr. Coppock was the name.

344. Who was the country agent assisting him, Mr. Tucker?—He might have assisted, but I think Mr. Windeatt was.

345. And of Mr. Baldwin?—I think Mr. Charles Edwards was the actual agent here. Mr. George Farwell took an interest in it.

346. Do you know who the London agent was?—No, I do not.

347. Now do you know what sum of money was spent at that election by either candidate?—I have heard that Mr. Blount spent from 1,500*l.* to 2,000*l.*

348. And Mr. Baldwin?—I never heard, but I supposed that there was a great deal of money spent.

349. What do you mean by a great deal, 2000*l.*?—I dare say it was more. It might be more or less.

350. Is Mr. Baldwin alive?—No, dead.

351. Mr. Blount I believe is alive?—I do not know, I have not heard of Mr. Blount for some years. He was a very lively man, and I hope he is.

352. Did you vote at that election?—I did.

353. Whom did you vote for?—Mr. Blount.

354. He was a Liberal?—Yes.

355. How was that money spent. Was it spent in treating, or in individual bribery?—I suppose in treating and bribery also.

356. Did you hear how much they got a head for their votes at that election. It was a new thing to Totnes then?—The commencement of the campaign. I have heard various sums, I heard at one time, I am pretty confident at that election, but I heard that there was a club at a house in town, the "King William," and I think I heard that there were seven persons, and they took up 800*l.* for their votes.

357. Where was this club held?—I heard that they met at the "King William."

358. Where is that?—That is at the entrance to the road to the station from the town.

359. Do you know who the seven were?—No. I heard that there was a shoemaker called Screach, was one of them.

360. That was the old Mr. Screach?—Yes.

361. Anybody else?—No, only from hearsay.

362. Hearsay will be enough for our purpose?—I have no recollection.

363. (Mr. Longe.) Who did the seven vote for?—They were bought up by Mr. Baldwin.

364. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you a copy of the petition in the matter of this election before the committee?—No, I had nothing to do with it.

365. Do you know whether there was any allegation of bribery in the petition?—I do not know; I never saw the petition.

366. Were you in the committee room at all during the hearing of the petition?—I was requested to keep out of the committee room.

367. You were up in London?—I was.

368. Do you know when you were up whether there were witnesses there as to bribery. Was there any inquiry as to bribery?—I do not know. I cannot say. There were many persons up, overseers and other persons.

369. But what sort of persons. Were there any voters up besides yourself?—There were several.

370. By this time you know pretty well the class of witnesses who are called up on an election petition; were there any of that class?—I cannot tell.

371. Was Mr. Screach there?—I do not know that he was.

372. Was the landlord of the "King William" there?—No, I have no recollection of seeing him.

373. (Mr. Bere.) I dare say you know the witnesses who were up before the committee this year. Were there any of the same persons who were up in 1839?—Well, I do not know who were the witnesses up this year.

374. Mr. Narramore?—He might have been born then.

375. Mr. Theodore Bryett?—No, he was not here at that time.

376. Mr. John Godfrey?—What is he?

377. I do not think he reveals his occupation. Mr. William Henry Phillips Bovey?—No; he has only been in the town three or four years.

378. Mr. Henry Jardine Presswell, who is he?—That is a son of mine in Calcutta.

379. Mr. Thomas Dennis?—I do not know.

380. Mr. Robert Harris?—No, he is a new man.

381. He was not up there then?—No.

382. Mr. Samuel Heard?—I expect he is a young man.

383. Mr. William Reeve?—What, the carpenter, I do not expect he was born at that time. The names you mention are young men.

384. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do not you know whether it was merely on the point of the notice, or whether they went into the general merits of the scrutiny?—I never saw the petition. I have no recollection of the contents of the petition. I kept out of the matter as well as I could.

385. And you never heard whether the petition contained any of those allegations now referred to?—No.

386. I suppose Mr. Tucker will be able to tell us about that?—Very likely, because Mr. Tucker received retainers from parties and attended the registrations.

387. Can you tell us of anybody else who would be likely to tell us the contents of that petition, any person likely to give us the information we want about the nature of that petition?—I think Mr. Joe Parkes, he is dead. Mr. Wyatt.

388. Was Mr. Wyatt his clerk at that time?—I think he was his clerk at that time.

389. (Mr. Longe.) Was Mr. Cuming here?—What year?

390. 1839 we are talking of?—No.

391. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you say there were surveyors and that sort of witnesses up. What surveyor was there?—I do not think there was any surveyor there.

392. I thought I understood you to say there were surveyors and that sort of witnesses up on the petition in 1839?—No.

393. Can you recollect any witness except yourself who went up on the petition of 1839?—I really cannot at present; there were overseers at the time; there was a man called Williams an overseer.

394. Is he alive?—No, dead.

395. Is there anyone alive you can recollect?—Mr. Condy.

396. Mr. Blount was the general agent of the Duke of Somerset, was not he down here at that time?—He did attend to some of the late duke's property.

397. He was his agent up to the time of the late duke's death was not he?—Yes, I think he was.

398. Was he jointly agent with Mr. Festing?—I cannot understand.

399. Mr. Festing is one of the duke's agents?—Yes, he is the principal man.

400. Was not he the successor of Mr. Blount when there was some disagreement?—He might have been. I did not here of Mr. Festing's name till there was a dispute, after that, there was a question about a chapel being built on the other side, and a question about the consecration of it.

401. At this election was Mr. Blount the agent of the Duke of Somerset?—I think he had withdrawn shortly before that.

402. Had he the duke's interest at this election?—I always thought that very doubtful, I do not think that the present duke approved of his coming there, there was something wrong somewhere.

403. Was that after Mr. Blount's marriage to the duke's sister?—Yes, because I thought if he had had the duke's interest heartily he would have been returned.

404. (Mr. Bere.) What was the next election, this was declared void and what happened?—The writ was issued in April 1840.

405. Who were the candidates then?—Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Thomas Guy Gisborne.

406. Had the register changed or would his be on the register of 1839?—The 1839 register.

407. What would that be?—Freemen 30.

408. Bridgetown?—66.

409. And Totnes?—245.

410. Now what were the 12 votes that had been gained in Bridgetown between 1838 and 1839, do you remember?—No, but I expect from some management the number of voters had increased.

411. Was it a management by means of land and buildings added to it?—Yes.

412. We have heard that certain companies were established in Totnes. Were those established in 1840?—No.

413. A new land and building society?—No.

414. (Mr. Coleridge.) Were there 66 10*l.* houses at this time at Totnes without the addition of land?—No.

415. How many were there?—I can tell by looking at the register.

416. Never mind the names, tell us the number of people who actually voted on the rental of 10*l.* houses in Bridgetown, houses not houses or buildings and land?—41 houses.

417. 41 houses?—Houses and land.

418. Are there 41 10*l.* houses there?—Yes, that is what I am speaking of.

419. And the others would be land and buildings?—Yes.

420. (Mr. Bere.) Do you at all remember when the first vote was registered in Bridgetown for land and buildings only?—No, but I can turn to the register and give some information about it.

421. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had the houses of those 41 voters who voted on houses all sprung up since the Reform Bill in Bridgetown?—No.

422. Had the rent increased?—I mentioned just now I think about the two or three builders who had run up houses, Mr .Ponsford, Mr. Rouswell, and Mr. Reeves.

423. Had they all been building since the Reform Bill 10*l.* houses on which these voters vote since 1840?

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

—No, I expect that by some management a house which had let for 5*l*., 6*l*., or 7*l*., either by having something added to it or having it valued, or getting at it in some way for the purpose of the election, houses not considered worth 10*l*. year at a certain time, that is before the register, became of importance and the rent was raised.

424. They raised the rent for some occupation, do you know how it was made up?—Perhaps they had some garden or land to it.

425. Then you tell us that 41 people voted on 10*l*. houses, that is merely colorably 10*l*. and not the real value of the structure?—I do not say that they are colorable.

426. Many of them not being worth 10*l*. before you say were made up by adding something?—That is the only way I can account for it.

427. Then in reality they are not 10*l*. houses on which many of these votes were?—I cannot say that.

428. You say they were not worth it before?—That is the only way I can account.

429. I do not ask you to state a fact, but only to account for it?—Yes, I believe it was the case with the higher part of Bridgetown that a small orchard would be added to a house.

430. No rent would be paid on the orchard but on the house?—On both, 5*l*. or 6*l*. a piece, the orchard would be let to the same tenant and then make it 10*l*.

431. By increasing the accommodation to the tenants and not by new houses the votes would be obtained?—Just so.

432. (Mr. Bere.) How many houses were there in Bridgetown before the Reform Bill?—I cannot answer that question.

433. Can you give us an idea of how many?—No, but if you are acquainted with Bridgetown, bearing in mind that the terrace on the left is a modern building and on the site of some old cottages, and then behind the Seymour Hotel there are two or three double villas which are modern buildings, and a terrace of small houses called Seymour Terrace up the town.

434. We will get the information some other way.—But taking that you can form a view of what is the old part.

435. Mr. Baldwin was a Conservative and Mr. Guy Gisborne was a Liberal.—Yes.

436. And what number of votes did they respectively poll?—Mr. Baldwin polled 158 and Mr. Gisborne 151.

437. Had Mr. Gisborne the Duke of Somerset's support?—I believe he had to a great extent.

438. Who acted as the agents?—I think Mr. Edwards and Mr. Farwell and others for Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Windeatt.

439. Mr. Tucker for Mr. Guy Gisborne?—Yes.

440. For whom did you yourself vote?—I voted for Mr. Gisborne.

441. At that election have you reason to believe that bribery prevailed?—I believe that bribery did prevail.

442. To what extent?—I can hardly tell, I heard something to the effect that Mr. Gisborne had spent something like 1,200*l*.

443. He was not connected with Totnes in any way?—No.

444. He was the first stranger was not he?—He was a young man the son of Mr. Thomas Gisborne.

445. The member for Derby?—Yes.

446. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there a petition for that election?—No.

447. (Mr. Bere.) How much did Mr. Baldwin spend?—I have no idea at all, a great deal of money.

448. As much as he had spent at the election before?—That I cannot tell.

449. Did you hear how much he had spent?—No.

450. You heard merely that a good deal of money had been spent?—Yes.

451. And spent in the same way by the bribery of individual voters?—Yes, spent in bribery.

452. Did you hear the names of any persons who were reported to have been bribed at that election who are alive now?—Well, I cannot say that I can answer that question.

453. Perhaps you will give them to us privately if we want them?—If you ask me you will understand that I do not care for any man. I will answer any question.

454. What was the next election?—The next is the 1st July 1841.

455. Who were the candidates then?—Again Lord Seymour and Mr. Baldwin.

456. That was an uncontested election?—There were two candidates besides.

457. Who were they?—The Honorable Edward Petre and Mr. Teed, a barrister.

458. Was Mr. Petre a Liberal?—Yes.

459. And Mr. Teed was a Conservative?—I think he was.

460. What was the register then in the year 1840,—it would be?—Freemen, 30; Bridgetown, 66; Totnes parish, 295.

461. There is an increase of 50 in Totnes parish in a year, how do you account for that?—I think about that time, or shortly before, Mr. Baldwin purchased an estate called Gerston about from 120 to 130 acres, and some building took place for the purpose of making votes in land.

462. Mr. Baldwin had taken a leaf out of the Bridgetown books?—No, I do not think so, he had that property before.

463. I mean he adopted the same system which had been adopted in Bridgetown; adding buildings to land to get the qualification was adopted on this estate of Gerston?—Undoubtedly.

464. Were all those 50 created in that way or most of them?—I will turn to the register, I find buildings to the number of 33 in that year.

465. Can you say were all those on the Gerston property?—I should say that some of them had been got up before.

466. How many?—I cannot tell you, I dare say on Mr. Adams's Bowden property he might have got up some buildings, I cannot tell.

467. Then what was the result of that election?—Then Mr. Petre and Mr. Teed resigned, they withdrew and Lord Seymour and Mr. Baldwin were returned.

468. When did Mr. Petre and Mr. Teed retire?—I think it must have been a day or two before the election.

469. (Mr. Coleridge.) Before the nomination?—Yes.

470. (Mr. Bere.) Had they been down for some time before?—Yes.

471. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had they been canvassing?—Mr. Petre was down and brought his solicitor, Mr. White.

472. (Mr. Bere.) What Mr. White was that?—I cannot say. He was a very respectable man, he was solicitor to Prince Albert.

473. White and Broughton was the firm, solicitors to William the Fourth?—It was said that he was solicitor to the Prince at that time, I do not know anything more of him. By Mr. White's advice he retired from that contest.

474. Who was with Mr. Teed?—Mr. Edwards and Mr. Farwell I suppose were employed.

475. Did Mr. Teed go out canvassing with Mr. Farwell?—I cannot answer that question.

476. Had they joint committee rooms?—I do not know, for I did not know Mr. Teed.

477. Had they joint handbills?—Yes.

478. "Vote for Baldwin and Teed," "Vote for "Seymour and Petre"?—There were handbills of addresses.

479. There were placards put up about the walls at the time of the election?—I have no recollection.

480. Do not you remember them?—I no not.

481. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had Lord Seymour and Mr. Petre joint committee rooms?—Oh, no. Lord Seymour always kept free and was perfectly independent, and his election was always safe.

482. (Mr. Bere.) Who was concerned for Mr. Petre here besides Mr. White, who was his legal adviser?—Mr. Windeatt.

483. Mr. Windeatt was also acting for Lord Seymour, was not he?—I cannot say that he was at that time.

484. Was Mr. Thomas Michelmore acting for Lord Seymour then?—Yes.

485. Did Mr. Petre canvass, and did you see him canvassing?—Yes. He did not move about much himself, for what I recollect of him he was a stout heavy man and did not canvass much.

486. Did he canvass you?—No. I do not know that I ever spoke a word to him.

487. Did you promise Mr. White your vote for Mr. Petre?—No.

488. Were you canvassed by anybody?—I do not recollect that I was. It was generally understood that it was not necessary to come to me.

489. Did you know, either from your own knowledge or hearsay, what made Mr. Petre and Mr. Teed retire?—I believe the voters would not promise; they looked out a great deal for money.

490. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was any money spent before they retired, do you know?—I cannot answer that question.

491. Was not there a general report?—No; I do not think so, I have not heard any.

492. (Mr. Bere.) Have you heard whether any of the voters had asked for payment for their votes before the retirement took place?—I believe from what I heard that a number of them stood out for money.

493. Will you give us the names of any persons who stood out at that time?—I heard of a man named Rogers.

494. Is he living or dead?—He is dead.

495. Will you give us the name of some man who is alive?—I heard of an old man who is living called Lampen.

496. (Mr. Longe.) What is he?—He is a basket maker, a very old man.

497. Where does he live?—He lives in Victoria Street, near Warland.

498. Do you know his Christian name?—He is called Thomas; I am not certain.

499. About what number of voters do you suppose stood out for money?—I cannot tell, I heard of some.

500. What number should you think?—30 or 40; I cannot tell.

501. That was the general feeling that they would not promise, and they stood out for it?—Yes.

502. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know how much they stood out for, each?—No.

503. Did they care how little they were paid?—I think they required a great deal.

504. Had they got up to 100*l.* a piece?—I do not know anything about them. I was not mixed up with them.

505. Can you give us the name of any other man living besides Lampen?—No, I cannot. I think the man Rogers asked me whether Mr. Petre was going to leave or not.

506. They began to get frightened, did they?—Not frightened, but I recollect my reply, "Who the "devil should stand for here and pay such a lot of "gluttons?"

507. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had their gluttony increased then?—It was notorious that year that they had stood out for their money.

508. Had they any gluttony at the "King William?"—That I do not know.

509. (Mr. Bere.) You have no doubt that there were a number stood out?—Not the least in the world.

510. And it was in consequence of their standing out for money that Mr. Petre and Mr. Teed resigned?—I believe as far as Mr. Petre is concerned. I never said Mr. Teed. I do not know him personally.

511. Had Mr. Baldwin spent any money before Mr. Petre retired?—I do not know.

512. How long had they been canvassing?—I cannot answer that question.

513. Had they had committee rooms opened, and public houses opened for some time?—I do not know those places.

514. You walk along the streets and know what is going on at an election time?—I understand there were committee rooms here and there.

515. And you see that there was a great deal of money spent in the borough before these two candidates retired, for some reason or other?—I believe so.

516. Was that done by Mr. Baldwin?—By all of them.

517. Lord Seymour included?—No, I said just now I do not think he ever spent a shilling beyond the legitimate expenses.

518. (Mr. Coleridge.) That is an opinion you have never changed in?—Certainly.

519. (Mr. Longe.) The landlord of the King William, was he a man who belonged to the club?—I think he was.

520. Was he head of the club?—I think the house was kept at that time by Gillhan.

521. Is he alive?—Yes, he was some time ago.

522. (Mr. Bere.) What is his christian name?—Samuel, I think.

523. Has he retired from the "King William" now, or is he still there?—He is living with his son at the Dartmouth Inn.

524. Where is that?—You know the square called the Plains; just a little to the right of that, the south-west corner.

525. Will you give us the next election?—That would be the general election, in July 1847.

526. What was the state of the register in 1846; who were the candidates first at that time?—Lord Seymour, Mr. Baldwin, and Mr. Samson Ricardo.

527. Was Mr. Samson Ricardo a Liberal?—Yes, he was.

528. What was the state of the register first?—Freemen, 23; Bridgetown, 97; Totnes parish, 258.

529. Had the same tactics been pursued in Bridgetown in 1841 to 1846 that there had been between 1839 to 1840?—Yes, in Bridgetown and Totnes also.

530. Bridgetown had increased, and Totnes had decreased?—Well, there is a difference of seven, but I cannot account for it.

531. It is more than that. It is 258 against 295?—Yes it is. I cannot tell why the numbers might have been cut down in the registration.

532. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know whether there has been much migration from the Totnes side over to the Bridgetown side, whether many of the inhabitants of Totnes have gone over to live at Bridgetown?—No.

533. I mean, have they kept pretty distinct the two populations?—They have. You very seldom hear of a Totnes man coming to Bridgetown to live.

534. Or of a Bridgetown man coming to Totnes to live?—Very seldom.

535. In fact they keep themselves distinct?—They do; you find some obliged to leave Bridgetown and come to Totnes to live.

536. Yes, but as a rule they keep their own distance?—Yes.

537. Now, what was the state of the poll at that election?—Lord Seymour, 280; Mr. Baldwin, 154; and Mr. Samson Ricardo, 151.

538. Give me the names of the agents?—Mr. Thomas Michelmore, who was the land agent, and it is very likely Mr. Condy.

539. Mr. Thomas Michelmore was for Lord Seymour?—Yes.

540. Who was for Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Edwards again?—Yes.

541. Who succeeded Mr. Edwards in his business here?—Mr. Bryett. They were partners for a time.

542. Was Mr. Bryett a partner of Mr. Edwards in 1847?—It was 1847 or 1848 that Mr. Bryett came here.

543. Did anybody come down for Mr. Samson

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

Ricardo, or who was his agent here?—I do not at this moment recollect that he brought any person with him, or that he had any solicitor. I do not recollect, but Mr. Windeatt and Mr. Cuming, I think, Mr. Francis Brooking Cuming.

544. Is he the coroner?—Yes. He was then a young man, and Mr. Tucker was over.

545. At that election did bribery take place from what you heard?—No doubt about it.

546. Did you ever hear what sums were spent by either side?—I cannot say that I recollect anything about the sums.

547. I do not want the actual pounds, shillings, and pence?—I cannot tell.

548. Was it something like the same sort of sums that had been spent at the other elections?—Yes. I am inclined to think it was more.

549. Had the price got higher then?—I should think they were either higher or there were more.

550. There were not so many voters?—Perhaps more who expected to be paid than before.

551. Did you vote for Lord Seymour and Mr. Ricardo then?—Yes, I did.

552. Was Mr. Ricardo supposed to be a more advanced Liberal than Lord Seymour. I see some people plumped for him then?—For Mr. Ricardo?

553. For Mr. Ricardo?—Yes; that was some remains of the old Seventy-Third.

554. Did you know Peter Gillard and Nicholas Gidley?—Yes; Gillard, he is dead.

555. Is Gidley dead?—No, he is alive, a very infirm old man.

556. He was one of the Seventy-Third?—Yes.

557. Did the Admiral vote?—I have no doubt he did.

558. What was his name?—At this election?

559. Yes?—I do not know.

560. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you take any part in this election?—No.

561. On either side?—I recorded my vote.

562. That was all?—Yes.

563. Do you recollect that the bribery oath was tendered on behalf of Mr. Baldwin to a voter at that election, a voter named William Calendar, a shoemaker?—I recollect the name very well.

564. Is he alive?—No, dead.

565. Do you recollect the bribery oath being tendered to and taken by him?—No; for this reason, I have always refused to take a part or have anything to do with the poll.

566. But you may have heard of it. I see it is the only case all through of the bribery oath being tendered. Was not that talked about?—May I trouble you to repeat the question?

567. Whether you do not recollect it being talked about that William Calendar had tendered to him and that he had taken the bribery oath?—I cannot say I do.

568. You do not recollect then that any bribery oath was tendered to any elector at that election?—I cannot speak of that election in particular, but I think the oath was administered to some persons at some elections.

569. But you do not recollect that particular one?—No.

570. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember who was the mayor that year, the returning officer?—Mr. John Derry.

571. Is he alive?—Yes.

572. Have you any recollection of who was presiding in the booth; who was principal poll clerk?—No.

573. You said you had no doubt that bribery took place in the election of 1847, when Messrs. Baldwin and Ricardo contested the borough?—Yes.

574. Did you hear or know what sum was spent on either side on that occasion?—No; but I understood that money had been spent and my impression was that more had been spent at that election than at the previous one.

575. Was Mr. Baldwin at all connected with the borough?—In this way only, that he was the owner of a large estate at Gerston.

576. Upon his first introduction to you, before he bought Gerston, had he anything to do with the borough at all?—Yes, he had represented the borough many years previously to that under the old system; you will find that is so.

577. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know anything of the circumstances under which Mr. Ricardo came down to Totnes?—No.

578. Do not you know what brought him down here?—I suppose that he came down to get elected if he could, and that he was in fact sought out, or that he sought out the borough, just as gentlemen usually do when they want to get into Parliament.

578. Did he come down here under the auspices of Lord Seymour?—No, quite the other way; and if there had not been something wrong, he would have been returned.

580. May I ask you what you mean by "something wrong"?—I understood that there was a coalition on the part of the friends of Lord Seymour with the friends of Mr. Baldwin, and that there was a written understanding drawn up in writing signed by three or four friends of Lord Seymour and by three or four friends of Mr. Baldwin; I recollect that I once saw that memorandum.

581. Do you know what was the effect of that memorandum?—The effect of that memorandum was that they would support each others interests; it was only some four or five lines; I know it was shown to me.

582. That they would mutually support one another; was that it?—Yes.

583. And there were a great number of votes split on that occasion in furtherance of that agreement?—Yes.

584. There was a sort of mutuality between Gerston and Bridgetown?—Yes.

585. So that the care taken in the manipulation of one helped to assist the other?—Yes, I believe that was so.

586. Did you yourself support Lord Seymour at that time?—I supported Lord Seymour and Mr. Ricardo.

587. Then you in fact went for both the Liberals?—Yes, I voted for them.

588. Upon that occasion Lord Seymour and Mr. Ricardo were of the same opinion, or of the same politics, but were opposing each other; how was that?—As I think I said before, there was something wrong, or Mr. Ricardo would have been returned for the borough. It turned out afterwards that there had been a previous understanding between the friends of Lord Seymour and the friends of Mr. Baldwin that they would both act together.

589. But then Mr. Ricardo knew nothing of this and came down under the impression that those who voted for Lord Seymour would vote for him?—Just so.

590. And then he was what is vulgarly called put in the hole?—Yes.

591. And paid handsomely for it no doubt?—I dare say he spent a great deal of money.

592. Do you know how much money Mr. Ricardo spent?—I do not know, it was a larger sum than had been expended on previous occasions.

593. As much as 2,000*l.* was it?—I dare say it was.

594. And what did Lord Seymour spend on that occasion?—I do not know that he spent a shilling.

595. Then Lord Seymour enjoyed the advantage of Mr. Ricardo spending his money and was returned while Mr. Ricardo was turned out?—No, Lord Seymour had then considerable support from the Conservatives. There were a number who split for Lord Seymour who would have supported Mr. Baldwin. I believe Mr. Baldwin spent money on that occasion as well as Mr. Ricardo.

596. Supposing that two Liberals were to stand for the borough and to spend no money, according to you the Liberals would stand no chance of being returned but Lord Seymour's seat would always be safe; is that your opinion. What did you mean by saying that if something had not gone wrong Mr. Ricardo would have been returned?—If the friends of Lord Seymour and the friends of Mr. Baldwin had not come to an agreement; there was a coalition between them.

597. You have called them "the friends" of Lord Seymour and "the friends" of Mr. Baldwin, can you give us the names of any of the persons who were parties to this memorandum on either side, take those on behalf of Lord Seymour first?—Mr. Thomas Michelmore who is dead.

598. And his son also?—His son was no party to that. There was another son, but he is quite a young man.

599. Can you give us the names of any others who were parties to that memorandum?—Mr. Cull was a party to that agreement, on behalf of Mr. Baldwin.

600. Is he now dead?—I believe so; he was a gentleman connected with Plymouth, I think.

601. Are those the only two names you can remember to that memorandum?—I think there were three or four on each side, but I cannot recollect the names.

602. (Mr. Bere.) Was Mr. Farwell's name to it?—That I cannot say.

603. Did Mr. Farwell split his vote?—That I do not know.

604. And Mr. Windeatt was acting for Mr. Ricardo?—Yes.

605. And he did not know of it?—No, none of us knew of it. I think I have stated that I voted for Mr. Ricardo and towards the close of the poll it was understood that there were some two or three votes which could be brought forward for Mr. Ricardo, but the late Mr. Michelmore said it was of no use doing so as there were some two or three which he had ready to go against us, and therefore it would be of no use. As I have stated there was a coalition between the friends of Lord Seymour and the friends of Mr. Baldwin.

606. But Lord Seymour's friends did not let Mr. Ricardo know of this in time to save his expenses?—It was not known to any of us.

607. Was Lord Seymour down here himself at that time?—It is very likely that he was; I do not know that he was.

608. Was the name of Mr. Bentall to that memorandum?—I do not know; I do not recollect.

609. Was the name of Mr. Gill to it?—I should say not; he was not a man in that position.

610. Was the name of Mr. Rouswell attached to it?—No.

611. Or that of Mr. Tracy?—Yes; his was one of the names; it was Mr. Tracy who showed me the paper. I dare say his name was there.

612. (Mr. Coleridge.) On whose behalf should you say that Mr. Tracy's name was there?—He was a Conservative in politics, but he rented land under the late duke for many years; he was a very respectable man, who had saved money on the estate.

613. And being a Conservative in politics, but renting land under the duke, he was what may have been considered a convenient go-between to carry out this very extraordinary arrangement?—Yes; it was in his own house that I saw it. I happened to be there upon private business, and he or his daughter showed it to me.

614. Is Miss Tracy now alive?—Yes, I think she is; and I think she is very likely to have the paper. She lives, I believe, somewhere near Torquay.

615. Her father is dead, I suppose?—Yes; he died many years ago.

616. (Mr. Longe.) You mentioned the name of Nicholas Gidley. Do you know where he lives?—He lives in Totnes; he is a very old man, and very infirm indeed.

617. Do you know the street in which he lives?—In Fore Street; he is well known by every one. He is a very nervous old man.

618. (Mr. Coleridge.) How long did this concord between the Liberal and the Conservative parties continue?—A short time; I have no idea at this moment when it dropped. I cannot tell you.

619. Under those peculiar circumstances did Mr. Ricardo petition?—No; I never heard of such a thing.

620. There was no scrutiny, or anything of that sort?—No; some of the parties were very angry. Mr. Ricardo's friends were very angry, and our friend Mr. Tucker was exceedingly angry. There were a good many of the Seventy-Third there whom I spoke of just now, and they pelted Lord Seymour with cabbage stumps, or something of that kind; they were very angry at Mr. Ricardo being defeated.

621. After all the money which he had spent in the town?—Yes; after the close of the poll.

622. There would be a natural sympathy with the man who had spent so large a sum of money?—Yes; I suppose so.

623. (Mr. Bere.) They thought the man who had preserved the borough from starvation was worthy of their gratitude?—I should think so.

624. You do not know how it was that Mr. Ricardo came down here at all?—I do not know.

625. Was he sent down here by the Reform Club, do you know?—No; those who were then most active in politics would know. They either sought him out, or it was done through some solicitors or other persons who might be looking out for a candidate.

626. They might have gone to the Reform Club, and have asked who would like to come down and stand for Totnes, and might have been told that Mr. Ricardo would come, and he was a man who would spend a great deal of money?—That is as likely as anything.

627. Now July 8th, 1852, was the next election. Who were the candidates then?—In March 1850 was the next election.

628. That was not contested?—No; Lord Seymour was then appointed the Chief Commissioner of the Woods and Forests; there was no opposition.

629. The next election was July 8th, 1852; what was done then. Who were the candidates?—Lord Seymour and Mr. Thomas Mills.

630. What had become of Mr. Baldwin?—He comes next; Mr. Baldwin.

631. Mr. Mills was a Liberal?—Yes.

632. What was the register in 1851?—Freemen, 20; Bridgetown, 76; Totnes parish, 241.

633. How do you account for the decrease in Bridgetown and Totnes since 1846, five years?—I cannot account for it.

634. The peculiar creation of voters had not gone on in either place during that period?—They had been doing their best, I suppose.

635. Were the houses unlet in any number then?—No; by and bye you will find there is a change of ownership in the lands.

636. Had any of those lands changed owners except the Gerston property since the time of the Reform Bill to any extent; the Bowden property is still in the same hands?—Yes; I think so. I cannot tell you the date when the Duke of Somerset bought Mr. Wise's property, the tithes, and some lands. I do not recollect when that transaction took place.

637. Was that before the year 1851?—Yes; it was long before that.

638. Will you give us the numbers on that occasion?—Lord Seymour, 263; Mills, 154; Baldwin, 141.

639. I suppose then that the memorandum had ceased to produce any effect?—Yes; I think so. It was thought worthless then; it was gone altogether.

640. And the two Liberals were returned?—Yes.

641. Who was Mr. Mills?—He was a private gentleman living in Hertfordshire.

642. Having no connection with Totnes whatever?—No, none.

643. And had he been sought for in the same way

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

that Mr. Ricardo was sought for and found?—I believe he had.

644. Did he spend as much money as Mr. Ricardo had spent, or more?—I cannot tell; I have heard that he spent a great deal of money.

645. You have heard that there was a good deal of bribery at that election?—I have no doubt of it; I have heard so.

646. You mean individual bribery?—Yes.

647. Did you ever hear what the price was then?—I once heard of almost a fabulous price.

648. Prices which they might have asked. Do you know what they got?—I do not know; I have heard of 30*l.*, 50*l.*, 60*l.*, 70*l.*, and 80*l.* at least.

649. Do you remember the names of any persons who were said to have been bribed at that election?—I do not recollect any one.

650. Do you remember the names of any persons who voted for Lord Seymour and Mr. Baldwin in 1847 who voted for Lord Seymour and Mr. Mills in 1852?—I do not remember any.

651. How did you vote yourself?—I voted for Lord Seymour and Mr. Mills.

652. Were they the same solicitors or the same persons who were employed as agents?—Mr. Thomas Michelmore always represented Lord Seymour up to the time of his death.

653. And Mr. Mills was represented by Mr. Windeatt?—Yes; and Mr. Cuming and Mr. Tucker.

654. And Mr. Charles Edwards for Mr. Baldwin?—Yes; I think so.

655. And Mr. Farwell?—I believe so.

656. You took no part in it yourself at all?—No.

657. How did the Seventy-Third behave on that occasion?—They all dropped in then for Mr. Mills and they became reconciled to Lord Seymour, many of them; they went for Lord Seymour and Mills.

658. What was Mr. Mills, was he a banker?—I do not know whether he was engaged at any time as a banker. I think he had some connexion with the bank, or his brother had; Mr. Remington Mills was his brother.

659. Had he and Lord Seymour a joint committee room?—I cannot answer that question. I do not believe that Lord Seymour ever mixed up his committee with any one as regards its being a joint concern, or a joint committee room.

660. Cannot you tell us who formed Lord Seymour's committee in 1852?—I cannot recollect now.

661. Cannot you give us the names of any of the committee?—I think Captain Boardman proposed Lord Seymour.

662. Do you know who seconded him?—I cannot recollect; there are many persons here who were very active in all these matters.

663. Was Mr. Cuming on Lord Seymour's committee?—No; I do not know that he was. I cannot say.

664. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are you sure that Mr. Cary did not propose him?—Yes; Mr. Cary proposed him very often.

665. (Mr. Bere.) You mean the late Mr. Cary, of Follaton?—Yes; now I think of it I am reminded that Mr. Cary, I may say, always proposed Lord Seymour.

666. Was he not generally on his committee as well?—I do not know anything about the committee.

667. Had Mr. Mills any committee?—I do not know.

668. Cannot you give us the name of a single person who was on Mr. Mills's committee, or on Lord Seymour's committee?—I cannot say that they had committees.

669. Cannot you say who was the chairman of Mr. Mills's committee?—I do not know.

670. Was Mr. Condy on Mr. Mills's committee?—I cannot tell; he is a very likely gentleman to have been there. If he were on the committee I am sure he will say that he never saw me in the committee room.

671. Mr. Searle, was he on the committee of Lord Seymour or Mr. Mills?—I do not expect that he was; he is a very old gentleman.

672. He was not so old at that period?—He was not a likely man.

673. Mr. Thomas Michelmore the land agent?—He was the standing agent who managed matters for Lord Seymour.

674. Can you at all tell us what quantity of money was spent at that election?—No.

675. Nor who were then bribed?—No.

676. Nor who offered the bribe?—No.

677. But there were bribes offered and taken you have no doubt?—Not the least doubt.

678. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did Mr. Baldwin go on spending money at every election?—I dare say he did; at the last it was very low water with him.

679. Were there any subscriptions got up to assist him in his election?—I never heard of any.

680. (Mr. Longe.) How is it that you are so confident about this?—One does hear of these things. I have heard it stated that a great deal of money was spent, and when I have so heard it I have believed it, and have drawn my own conclusions that it was very probable.

681. (Mr. Coleridge.) You would not have believed it if they had said it about Lord Seymour? If the same thing had been said with regard to Lord Seymour you would not have believed it because you heard that it was going about?—No, I would not.

682. (Mr. Longe.) You heard it in conversation, I suppose in private society?—Yes, and in the open street. You cannot meet anyone in the street here without hearing of it from Monday morning till Saturday night.

683. But it must come from some one's mouth?—Yes; people will be talking of the news of the day in a small town like this, and no one man can meet another without hearing a vast deal about politics, and so on, even to quarrelling.

684. It is not a mere general matter; there must be something particular about it?—That does not follow. A person may say one man has spent a thousand pounds or two, and you believe it at the time.

685. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose a large sum of money spent to the extent of several thousand pounds unlooses a great many tongues, does it not?—No doubt of it.

686. And opens a great many public houses?—No doubt. I do not spend my evenings out.

687. But you would meet the people who had been there when they were in a humour to talk about it, and every one would have something to say about what was going on?—Yes, about the streets, and even in a railway carriage.

688. And no one would seem to be in the least ashamed of it?—I am sorry to say that they have got into such a state that many of them are not in the least ashamed of it.

689. And therefore it is that they speak out the more openly?—I never accepted a retainer, neither have I canvassed or taken the poll at the election. I have kept out of it as well as I can.

690. Did you ever hear from any individual person in 1852 that he was either offered or had accepted a bribe? I will not ask you their names?—No.

691. What you have heard has been mere general report?—From mere general report.

692. (Mr. Longe.) What sort of persons were those whom you got this general report from; who would be the persons with whom you were in conversation when you heard this?—I might have heard it from neighbours, or I might have heard it from men who were in my employ when they were at work.

693. Cannot you specify some particular person who may have spoken to you on the subject?—Not at this moment.

694. If there was a great deal of money spent at the election you would remember it?—I can only say that I have heard it.

695. (Mr. Bere.) As to the other elections, was there one between 1852 and 1857?—In October, 1855, the late Duke of Somerset died, and the present duke went up to the House of Lords.

696. What happened then?—Then Earl Gifford came down as a candidate, and he was elected without opposition. There were two other candidates, the Honorable Mr. Buller and Mr. Mackenzie.

697. Mr. Buller was a Conservative, Lord Churston's eldest son?—Yes.

698. Who was Mr. Mackenzie?—He was a merchant in London.

699. What was he in politics?—A Conservative.

700. And Lord Gifford was a Liberal?—Yes.

701. How long before the day of nomination did Mr. Buller and Mr. Mackenzie retire?—I cannot recollect; I should say not above a day or two.

702. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did they go to the poll?—Neither of them; there was no opposition.

703. (Mr. Bere.) Who was Lord Gifford's agent, Mr. Windeatt?—No, Mr. Michelmore.

704. Then I suppose Lord Gifford had all the interest of the Duke of Somerset?—Yes.

705. And Mr. Thomas Michelmore managed the business for him?—Yes.

706. Before the election was there any threat of an opposition?—Yes.

707. Were they not both of them over here canvassing?—Yes, I believe so.

708. I mean Mr. Buller and Mr. Mackenzie?—Yes.

709. For how long?—Probably for ten days.

710. Mr. Buller's father lives at no great distance from Totnes?—Yes.

711. Mr. Mackenzie had no connexion with Totnes?—None whatever.

712. Was Mr. Mackenzie said to be a rich person?—I did not understand that he was very rich.

713. Who was Mr. Mackenzie's agent?—Mr. Charles Edwards, I think, was acting as his agent.

714. Had Mr. Buller and Mr. Mackenzie a joint committee room?—I cannot tell you; they frequented the same house, the "Stars."

715. I suppose Mr. John Heath would be likely to be a member of their committee?—I do not know, you might ask him.

716. (Mr. Coleridge.) As I understand you, there was only one seat vacant?—Only one.

717. And they were opposing one another up to a certain pitch?—It would seem so.

718. Did one retire before the other, or did they both retire together?—I cannot answer that question; they both retired before the polling day.

719. Do not you know that Mr. Buller issued an address, and then went away, leaving Mr. Mackenzie to contest the borough?—That might have been the case; I did not speak to either of them.

720. By whom was Mr. Mackenzie brought down here?—I cannot say. I suppose he was sought for, the same as the other men had been.

721. Had Mr. Barry Baldwin sent him down here?—That I do not know.

722. Had he the Gerston influence?—No.

723. (Mr. Longe.) By whom do you say he was sought for?—By the party men, perhaps by the solicitors.

724. You mean the people of the town, I suppose?—Yes.

725. (Mr. Bere.) Did a deputation go up from here to the Carlton Club to get a candidate?—I do not know that.

726. Did you hear that anyone went up?—I cannot say either way.

727. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know whether the Carlton Club candidate was Mr. Buller or Mr. Mackenzie?—I do not know that either was their candidate.

728. (Mr. Bere.) Did Mr. Mackenzie retire in consequence of its being found that he would have to pay too much money for the seat?—That I do not know.

729. Did you hear whether that was the reason?—I did not.

730. That the people who had stood out in 1841 would stand out again in 1855, or some of them?—There was no chance for a man who was standing against Lord Gifford, who was a good man, and who had come down in the duke's interest.

731. You did not hear a report that the men had been standing out for money?—Not at that time.

732. How many people are there in the town of Totnes, who, according to your idea, would take a bribe?—I cannot say.

733. Or how many would not?—No.

734. Would the majority have taken a bribe at that time?—I should say not; I should hope not. I do not know that of my own knowledge, but from those who have contested the borough.

735. From common rumour, how many should you suppose in Totnes would be likely to be influenced by money?—It is not in my power to answer that question. I cannot tell you.

736. (Mr. Coleridge.) It would be what may be called an unknown quantity?—I do not think that they know that themselves.

737. (Mr. Bere.) You mean not until the bribe is offered?—Yes; and after that you could not depend upon them.

738. (Mr. Longe.) In the election you have just spoken of they had no chance against Lord Gifford?—No, none.

739. But a requisition was signed to Mr. Mackenzie by persons in the town?—I cannot say that there was a requisition. I said he might have been sought after the same as the other men had been.

740. Do you know the names of the persons in that interest who might have sent for him?—I do not. I suppose that Mr. Edwards and other active men of that time might have done it.

741. Mr. Edwards was his agent?—I do not know that; he was on that side of the question. Those who are on that side meet and associate with those who are of the same colour, therefore I suppose they would meet together. I cannot say.

742. (Mr. Bere.) There was no election between 1855 and March 1857?—I believe not; there was a general election then.

743. Who were the candidates then?—Lord Gifford, Thomas Mills, J. T. Mackenzie, John Gregory.

744. What were Mr. Gregory's politics?—I think he was a Conservative.

745. Where did he come from?—From London, I think.

746. Was he a Carlton Club man?—I think I heard that he was an army agent.

747. Was he a candidate from the Carlton Club?—I do not know.

748. Had he and Mr. Mackenzie a joint committee room?—I do not know; they stopped at the same house, the "Stars."

749. Did they issue a joint address?—Not a joint one.

750. Did they canvass together?—I do not know. I never saw them together.

751. Who were the agents for these various people?—For Lord Gifford, Mr. Michelmore and Mr. Cuming.

752. And Mr. Tucker?—Yes. I think he was over at that election.

753. And for Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Edwards?—Mr. Gregory and Mr. Mackenzie it is very likely had one person as agent, as they had one house.

754. Are you quite right about Mr. Edwards; he must have been dead I should have thought?—I cannot tell you when he died.

755. Cannot you remember whether in 1857 Mr. Edwards was the agent?—He might have been; I should say it is very likely.

756. Mr. Kellock, was he one of the agents?—It is very likely.

757. And Mr. Bryett, has he ever taken any part in the elections?—I do not think he took such an active part as some others.

758. Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edwards were the agents for the Conservative candidate in 1857?—I believe they were; I should have mentioned Mr. Kellock before but it did not occur to me.

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

759. What was the state of the register in 1857?—Freemen, 16; Bridgetown, 68; Totnes parish, 231.

760. Making a total of 315?—Yes.

761. What were the numbers; how did they vote?—Lord Gifford polled 171, Mr. Mills 150, Mr. Mackenzie 118, and Mr. Gregory 57.

762. At that election have you reason to believe that bribery prevailed?—No, I cannot say that it did either way. I do not think so.

763. Had you anything to do with that election at all?—Nothing.

764. Had Mr. Mackenzie spent any money in the town between October 1855 and March 1857?—Not to my knowledge.

765. In subscriptions to charities, or things of that sort?—I have no recollection of it; he might have done so.

766. Mr. Gregory had never been seen in Totnes you say when he came down there on this occasion?—I had never heard of him before myself.

767. You heard no other rumours as to the election of 1857?—I cannot say I did.

768. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose you had as much opportunity of hearing as any other what was going on?—Yes.

769. Do you mean that a sudden purity had come over the borough of Totnes in 1857?—I do not.

770. You do not know of any bribery?—No.

771. Do you say you believe there was no bribery?—I have no recollection.

772. Do you go as far as to say you believe the borough had become suddenly pure?—There might have been a great deal of bribery, I do not know.

773. You do not go further than to say you have not heard of it?—I should have a very different opinion.

774. You cannot associate four candidates at Totnes with a pure election?—No, I cannot.

775. (Mr. Longe.) You remember the conversation with regard to bribery at the 1855 election; you remember that better?—One hears of bribery at every election.

776. You draw a vast distinction between these two elections?—I was asked what I thought; and I look to the list and I see a certain number only polled; I cannot fancy the number, it is only a guess number, I cannot tell any particulars. It is not like the former elections between Baldwin and Blount, and Gisborne and Baldwin. Everybody believes—no doubt about it—that there was bribery. I was not mixed up in these matters. That is my impression, I cannot say there was bribery at that election spoken of. I cannot conceive of an election taking place here between four candidates without spending money in bribery.

777. (Mr. Coleridge.) The next election was April 1859. Can you give us the names of the candidates then?—Gifford, Mills, and John Dunn. Gifford polled 180, Mills 152, and Dunn 135.

778. Mr. Dunn was a Conservative?—Yes.

779. Where did he come from?—I understand he came from London.

780. It would appear in the same manner as Mackenzie and Gregory?—I have no doubt.

781. Was he a man of reputed wealth?—It was said he had a good deal of money, and that he came from Australia.

782. What is the register for 1858?—Freemen in 1858, 14; Bridgetown, 75; Totnes, 252.

783. Did they have the same agents as appeared on former occasions?—I believe so.

784. Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds, were they agents for Mr. Dunn?—I believe they were.

785. Did you hear more rumours about bribery at this election than you had heard at the election of 1857?—Yes.

786. Of whom did you hear bribery alleged?—In a general way.

787. Mills and Dunn?—Yes, it was those two.

788. Did you hear what they spent?—No.

789. Was it more or less than had been spent before?—I cannot tell, a good deal was spent.

790. Was it the same sort of figure?—A great deal was spent.

791. Was it 2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.* on each side?—I dare say so.

792. On individual voters?—Perhaps more.

793. How did the Seventy-Third behave on that occasion?—I do not know. I do not go into the registration courts, and I cannot tell how they came out on the day of election.

794. How did the Bridgetown people vote?—They voted in Lord Seymour's interest, the duke's interest.

795. Did they split for Mills?—Yes, mostly.

796. Did any split for Gifford and Dunn?—Yes.

797. A good many?—Yes, very likely. I cannot tell their names; they are registered closely, and I cannot answer it.

798. Should you be very much surprised to hear that many had plumped for Dunn?—Not at all, I plumped for him.

799. You gave up your opinion on that occasion?—Not exactly.

800. You went the whole vote for Dunn upon that occasion?—Yes.

801. You did not like Lord Gifford?—I did not like him because he voted against Lord Derby, as I told Mr. Mills.

802. As a general rule you expect the Bridgetown people to go with what you call the Seymour interest?—Yes.

803. Do you know George Sercombe, an innkeeper of Bridgetown?—I have heard of the same name.

804. He voted for Dunn?—I do not know.

805. Do you know William Paige, a land agent?—Yes.

806. He did the same?—I do not know.

807. Do you know William Gillard, a surgeon at Bridgetown?—Yes.

808. He preferred Dunn?—Yes.

809. Was he a tenant of the duke's?—He was always on that side for many years; he was a medical man.

810. You have been a Conservative ever since 1859?—Yes, I voted that way to please myself you will understand.

811. Do you say there was much money going at that election of 1859?—I have no doubt of it.

812. On both sides?—Except Earl Gifford.

813. Speaking of the successor to Lord Seymour, he has all his interest, and does not require any extraneous aid?—No.

814. The second therefore you never considered in the same way as Lord Seymour's candidate, but one that should be left to the tender mercies of the town?—Yes.

815. Do you know at all what Mr. Dunn spent?—No.

816. Did you hear of any people convinced in the same way as you were convinced by Mr. Dunn?—Some did come and vote, but they had not moral courage to acknowledge it.

817. You were not surprised to find that want of moral courage?—I do not wish to be understood in that sense.

818. Do you think there are in the borough of Totnes any voters who take money on one side, and vote on the other?—I have heard of all sorts of things.

819. I suppose you have heard of taking money on both sides, and splitting their votes?—I have heard of all sorts of things.

820. (Mr. Bere.) Was there any election between the 30th April 1859 and December 10th 1862?—Mr. Mills died.

821. Who came down then?—Mr. John Pender and Mr. John Dent.

822. Will you give us the register of 1861 and 1862?—Seven, Freeman; 82, Bridgetown; parish of Totness, 268.

823. Can you tell me, had any of these land societies started at that time?—I do not think they had.

824. Was there not what is called the Gurston Building Society?—No.

825. You remember there was a great discussion before the revising barrister with regard to a certain number of voters, some in Bridgetown, and some in Totnes?—Yes.

826. Was the name of the company of voters whose votes were objected to in the parish of Totnes, the Gurston Land Company?—I can tell by looking at the Rules of Court.

827. You do not read the registration cases after they are decided?—Yes, in the court above. I have got them all here. I have the original rules.

828. Can you tell from that when they came into being?—Yes. Do you wish me to refer to the rules.

829. I only want to know the date when they were established, whether before 1862 or not?—I have the Order of Court in Michaelmas Term, 29th Vict.

830. That would not do; that is 1865?—About the names of the companies.

831. I wanted to know when they were established, when they began to have an effect upon the registration, can you tell, were these societies established before the registration of 1862 or not?—I cannot answer the question, they might have been formed.

832. Were they not in operation and getting votes before 1862?—I do not think they were, but I cannot answer positively.

833. Do you know who was Mr. Pender's agent. Mr. Windeatt?—Mr. Windeatt and Mr. Cuming.

834. Did Mr. Tucker make his appearance on the scene?—I think he was here, but he was an invalid for some time.

835. He has got a son, does that son live here?—Yes.

836. Now Mr. Dent's agent, who was he?—Mr. Kellock.

837. And Mr. Edmunds?—Yes, they were.

838. Mr. Dent went to the poll did he?—Yes, and polled 5.

839. How many did Mr. Pender poll?—171.

840. (Mr. Coleridge.) Five was all Mr. Pender left him?—I was one of the five certainly, I generally polled early. I was one of the five, and after I had returned from the poll, and was walking home I was told there was to be no contest, Mr. Dent would not go to the poll.

841. Did you have anything to do with Mr. Dent's election yourself?—No.

842. You had not been on the committee?—No.

843. Who were his committee upon that occasion? Do you remember, did you volunteer?—No, I saw him at the "Stars."

844. You went down to see him?—On the first morning he was going out canvassing I told him I was very glad to see him, and that he should have my vote.

845. How did you know him, he was a stranger to Totnes?—Everybody knew he was there.

846. Did everybody know where he had come from, from China?—Yes.

847. With a considerable quantity of money?—Yes.

848. And Mr. Pender from Manchester, with an equal sum or larger?—It was said that Mr. Pender paid income tax on 100,000*l.* a year.

849. How much did Mr. Dent pay?—And that Mr. Dent paid on a larger sum.

850. You never had two such candidates in the town?—We never had two such heavy guns.

851. (Mr. Bere.) Who was in the borough first, Manchester or China?—Mr. Pender came first.

852. Did a good deal of money fly about on the occasion?—Yes.

853. Did you hear what sum Mr. Pender spent?—No.

854. Did Mr. Dent ever communicate to you why he did not go to the poll?—I saw him once, and I told him that I had the pleasure of voting for him.

855. That you had voted for him?—Yes.

856. You proposed him did you not?—Oh no, I do not take such an active part as that.

857. Do you know from common report, what you heard?—I heard before that time there were so many gluttons. I do not know what they wanted in the shape of money.

858. You could not tell what shot they put in the heavy guns?—No.

859. (Mr. Coleridge.) You knew Mr. Pender had been connected with the Whitworth ordnance?—I recollect there was a question asked on the hustings about it.

860. (Mr. Bere.) As far as you know there was a good deal of money went about at that time?—I have heard of it.

861. Have you heard of any particular people who were attracted by the metal?—I cannot answer that question.

862. (Mr. Longe.) How long was Mr. Dent down before the election?—I think he was rather late in the field.

863. (Mr. Coleridge.) Were there many strangers about at the election whom you did not know before?—I cannot answer that.

864. Did you see many strange faces besides those of the two candidates?—I cannot recollect any in particular.

865. Did you see any stranger with Mr. Pender?—There was a Mr. Mitchell.

866. Who is he?—A gentleman who had been in China.

867. Has he gone back to China as well as Mr. Dent?—I do not know why he should have gone back to China.

868. (Mr. Bere.) Were there any strangers about with Mr. Pender?—I heard there was a Mr. McDougall, an eminent chemist.

869. Who else?—Mr. Moore.

870. Was there a Mr. Salmon?—I do not recollect.

871. Mr. Jack?—I have heard of such a name as that.

872. Was there any London solicitor down with him do you know?—With Mr. Pender?

873. Yes.—I do not know that.

874. Was there with Mr. Dent?—I do not know.

875. Was Mr. Dent at the "Seven Stars" and Mr. Pender at the "Seymour Arms"?—Yes.

876. Was Mr. Harrington at the "Seymour Arms" at that time?—Yes.

877. He is dead?—Yes.

878. (Mr. Longe.) This was a sudden election in 1862, the parties had not made any preparations beforehand?—That I cannot tell you, but I recollect Mr. Dent was late.

879. There was no requisition to Mr. Dent, he came into the town quite suddenly?—I do not know.

880. (Mr. Bere.) Were you consulted before Mr. Dent came down?—I do not think so.

881. Was he found in the same manner?—I dare say he was.

882. (Mr. Coleridge.) I think you told me you did not know any people who actually received money at that election?—I said so.

883. Do you know any people who gave money or distributed it?—I do not.

884. Have you heard any names; first of all, as to Mr. Pender, who have you heard was the distributor of Mr. Pender's liberality?—In what way.

885. Who have you heard of as dispensing it?—As charity.

886. Call it what you like, getting rid of Mr. Pender's money in the borough of Totnes. Who have you heard of as his agent, give us the names that you know of?—I cannot at this moment recollect.

887. Try and name some gentleman who assisted Mr. Pender?—If you give me some names I will say yes or no.

888. Was Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore one?—I do not know.

889. Mr. Charles Pengilly?—I have no acquaintance with either.

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

4 Aug 1866.

890. Did you ever hear that he had anything to do with spending Mr. Pender's money at the election of 1862?—Mr. Windeatt was concerned professionally for Mr. Pender, but I do not know that Mr. Windeatt had the distribution of any money whatever.

891. Mr. Chaster?—No.

892. Mr. Cuming?—I have heard nothing of him, he acted professionally.

893. You have no doubt Mr. Pender spent a large sum of money?—No doubt.

894. You do not believe he went about personally to do it himself somebody must have assisted him, there is no doubt about that?—I suppose if money had been spent it would have been spent by parties for him.

895. Have you not heard who some of those parties were?—I cannot say that I have. I do not say I should be justified in naming any person.

896. Was Mr. Jenkins one?—I have heard he was a friend of Mr. Pender.

897. Is he a resident in this place?—I am not on very intimate terms with Mr. Jenkins.

898. Is he a resident in this place?—Yes.

899. When did Mr. Pender of your knowledge first show his face in Totnes?—I do not know.

900. Had he been down long before this election in 1862?—He was here before Mr. Dent.

901. Only a week before the election?—Not so much.

902. What is Mr. Jenkins?—He has no particular occupation; he was I think the editor of a paper in Calcutta.

903. He was a stranger to the borough?—Oh, no.

904. How long has he lived here?—He might have been here three or four years.

905. He was only a friend of Mr. Pender for the election?—He was a supporter of Mr. Pender.

906. Nothing more than that?—No.

907. Have you heard who assisted Mr. Dent in distributing his money?—I cannot say that I have.

908. Have you heard no names mentioned in connexion with him in 1862, when, as you tell us there was a large sum of money spent on both sides?—I have said that I believe there was.

909. Have you any knowledge of any persons who you believe assisted Mr. Dent to get rid of his money?—If I were to name any persons I should not be justified without I had some fact to go upon. I might go round and point to many in this hall.

910. Did you hear of the name of Helms mentioned in connexion with Mr. Dent in the election of 1862?—Yes.

911. Did you see him down there with him?—He lived here in Totnes.

912. Was his name Henry Helms?—I think it was.

913. Do you know what has become of him?—I have not seen him some time.

914. Did he actually assist Mr. Dent in the election?—I believe he did, I understood he had been in Mr. Dent's service.

915. (Mr. Bere.) How was he in Mr. Dent's service if he was living in Totnes?—In China he had been in the service of the firm, and he had made sufficient money whilst he was in the service of the firm, and that enabled him to live here in independent circumstances.

916. Was he a native of Totnes?—In the adjoining parish.

917. How long had he been living in Totnes before Mr. Dent came down?—I cannot answer that question, I think he might have been here six, seven, or eight years. He had purchased a house in the Plymouth road.

918. He is not here now?—I do not know, I have not seen him.

919. (Mr. Coleridge.) John Heath was a great supporter of Mr. Dent was he?—Yes.

920. Did you hear of his assisting Mr. Dent to dispense this money?—No.

921. Nothing at all?—I have not heard that he dispensed it.

922. Do you know of Captain King?—Yes.

923. Who does he support?—He is a friend of Mr. Dent.

924. Did he go round canvassing?—Yes. I think I did see him.

925. (Mr. Bere.) Then comes the election of January 21st, 1863, Mr. Alfred Seymour and Mr. Dent were the candidates?—In January 1863 Lord Gifford died.

926. And on his death Mr. Alfred Seymour and Mr. Dent were the candidates were they not?—Alfred Seymour and Dent.

927. And Alfred Seymour had the Somerset influence?—I believe he had.

928. What did he poll on that occasion?—Seymour, 165; Dent, 157.

929. Who were Mr. Seymour's agents then; that was the time when people had regular election agents and their names were published in the newspapers?—I can produce those papers.

930. Who were the regularly appointed election agents?—Robert Coard Tucker.

931. For Alfred Seymour?—For Pender.

932. Was that the election of 1863?—This is the election of 1865.

933. I was asking about the election of 1863, and as to the regularly appointed agents under the Act of Parliament for election expenses?—I must make a search for those papers.

934. Will you let me have them to-morrow?—Yes. I searched for the files till very late last night, previous to that I had written a letter to Mr. Francis, who was the auditor under the Act of Parliament. I was reminded that it was likely he had got the papers and I wrote him a letter.

935. Was Mr. Francis the auditor in 1862?—The election auditor at that election.

936. 1862–63?—Yes.

937. Who was the election auditor in 1858?—Mr. Francis.

938. Had he always been election auditor?—Yes.

939. Was he Mr. Francis of Newton?—Yes, I could not find the accounts for those two elections 1862-63, and I thought that he might have them; under those circumstances I wrote him a letter, and he telegraphed to me "I have the accounts."

940. At the election between Mr. Seymour and Mr. Dent when they were candidates can you tell us who were their agents?—No.

941. Can you let us know to-morrow?—Yes.

942. At that election did a good deal of money pass and fly about?—No doubt of it.

943. Who spent the money upon that occasion, did they both spend money, as far as you have heard?—I have no doubt about it.

944. Did you vote for Dent?—I did.

945. Can you form any idea of the relative quantity of money spent, when you consider the former elections?—I can form an idea.

946. More or less?—I should think a great deal.

947. 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.*?—I should not feel surprised if it should appear that such a sum had been expended, but I do not know.

948. Did you hear the names of any persons who had been engaged in giving or offering money or receiving?—No, I cannot answer that. I was certainly aware there were a number of active men always seen on each side, and they knew something about it.

949. Can you form an idea of how many were bribed at the election of 1863?—I cannot; it was a great number.

950. Did you hear of any particular way in which it was done, any story as to how it was done?—No. I have heard of a man being followed up by the parties on one side to-night and to-morrow night by the other side.

951. Visited at their houses?—Yes.

952. You have heard of the man in the moon at a good many places, did he make his appearance at this election?—They were not so far off here as in some other places.

953. It was done in a more open way?—Yes.

954. As far as you know there was no man in the moon or secret agent of that kind in 1863?—No.

955. In 1865 you were not content with a man in the moon, but you had more, had you not, one on each side?—Is that last year?

956. Yes.—I know scarcely anything about last year; very little about it indeed.

957. Is that all that you know about the election of 1863?—Not exactly, I am bound to say.

958. Will you tell us?—I would rather be excused at present from saying much, unless you put to me any question.

959. As you have admitted, you do know something more, we shall be glad to hear what you do know, as it is important to hear?—I understood that there was a great deal of money spent on both sides.

960. That we have already learned from you, what else do you know? a good deal more you know about the 1863 election?—I do know something of a certain case.

961. What is that?—That I would be excused from saying anything about; let it stand over.

962. We must hear about it.—There was a lady in the case, therefore I do not like to do it.

963. That is what we expected; we were prepared to know about it. You can give it us. I will not ask you for the name of the lady, at least the circumstances without names first of all?—It was a sort of practical joke, and it might get me into an unpleasant position, which I do not wish to be in.

964. We will not have the name mentioned, I must ask you, I am afraid?—I understood that a friend of mine who voted on the other side, the Liberal side, expressed a wish that he would rather have nothing to do with the election, and would like to have some employment, and I said I dared say we could find a case for him.

965. Did you find a case for him?—Yes.

966. What was that?—To see a patient at a distance.

967. He was a surgeon then? did he go to see the patient?—I have no doubt about it.

968. Was there a patient?—No, there was not. The party was rather feverish and felt unpleasant, and we thought we would prescribe for him.

969. Did you bleed him?—No, I did not.

970. He went away and found no patient?—Found no patient.

971. When he came back the poll was closed?—Yes.

972. Is that the only occurrence?—That is the only one. It was a practical joke that one does not like to make enemies about.

973. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was it not something more than a practical joke; if there had been a majority of one it would have been more than a joke?—Yes, it would have been.

974. (Mr. Bere.) Is that all you know about 1862?—Yes, it is.

975. Now about 1865, give us the register of 1864?—Freeman, 6; Bridgetown, 85; Totnes parish, 330.

976. Now the societies begin to tell?—The companies.

977. Can you give us the names of the companies, and when they were established; we should like to have the list which probably you will be kind enough to make out?—This is the register. I should say I can only give information from the book, I do not know the parties.

978. What is the book?—The register book.

979. The register of voters?—Yes.

980. You cannot tell from that when the company was established?—I cannot.

981. One company was in existence before the register of 1864, but a larger company has been established since the register of 1864?—It might be so, but when I say I do not know, I have sat in the registration court 20 years, and I do not know how they come up, or the grounds upon which they seek to establish their votes.

982. Perhaps you have heard this at the register of 1864; the company, whose votes were objected to at the registration of 1865, was not in existence, do you know that the company creating votes had their votes in large numbers objected to in 1865; a case was sent to the superior court and the court decided in one case in favour of the votes and in another case against the votes?—Yes, by the original rules.

983. Give me the candidates and the poll-book of 1865?—Mr. Pender, Mr. Seymour, Col. Dawkins, and Mr. Pim.

984. What are the numbers?—Pender, 210; Seymour, 214; Dawkins, 162; Pim, 147.

985. There is no difference made in the manner of conducting the election of 1865 and the way in which previous elections had been conducted, as far as bribery was concerned, except that a good deal of money was spent?—It was fought with money in the usual way.

986. Do you know whom the money was supplied by?—No.

987. Did you hear?—No, I did not.

988. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did Mr. Alfred Seymour spend any money?—I do not think that he did.

989. He had the Seymour influence?—Yes.

990. He succeeded?—I do not suppose he spent a shilling.

991. (Mr. Bere.) Give us the agents at this election?—The agents were R. C. Tucker for Mr. Pender, for Seymour Mr. Henry Michelmore, but he did not act; the agent said you are to let Mr. Thomas Michelmore's son do it, that is Mr. Henry; for Colonel Dawkins Mr. William Hannaford.

992. Was Mr. Kellock an agent?—For Captain Pim, Mr. William Hamlyn.

993. What were the sums returned to you?—Mr. Pender returned at 172*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.*

994. Mr. Seymour?—117*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*

995. Colonel Dawkins?—279*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*

996. Captain Pim?—216*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*

997. Have you got the items of those?—Yes.

998. Will you hand them in to the short-hand writer?—Yes.

(The witness handed in the document, which was as follows:)

Borough of Totnes.

Abstract of the account of all the election expenses incurred by or on behalf of each candidate, and paid as appears by the statements and vouchers delivered to me upon the election of two members to serve in Parliament for the borough, on the 12th day of July, 1865, published pursuant to the Act of Parliament, of the 26th of Victoria, cap. 29th:—

John Pender, Esq.,

Proportion of returning officer's expenses	16	17	5
Advocates' fees	21	0	0
Poll and committee clerks	4	4	0
Messengers	15	11	6
Advertising	45	9	9
Printing and stationery	23	13	7
Carriage hire	26	5	4
Cleaning the Guildhall and posting bills	2	4	0
Ringers	6	16	0
Agent for election expenses, fee for journeys, expenses, &c.	10	10	0
	£172	11	7

Robert C. Tucker,
Agent for election expenses on behalf of the said John Pender.

Alfred Seymour, Esq.,

Proportion of returning officer's expenses	16	17	5
Advocates' fees	11	10	0
Poll clerks	4	4	0
Messengers	8	1	0
Advertising	27	6	7
Printing and stationery	22	6	9
Carriage hire	20	4	10
Cleaning the Guildhall and posting bills	2	2	0
Agent for election expenses fee	5	5	0
	£117	18	4

SECOND DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

24 Aug. 1866.

The agent for election expenses, acting on behalf of Mr. Seymour, has not delivered to me "a detailed statement," nor any statement "signed," as required by the said Act.

Lieutenant-Colonel Dawkins.

Proportion of returning officer's expenses	15	4	10
Professional assistance	50	0	0
Committee rooms, &c.	31	10	0
Horse and carriage hire	46	2	0
Advertising, telegrams, and messengers	61	14	8
Reporting	4	4	0
Printing and stationery	30	7	6
Bill-poster	0	17	6
Poll and committee clerks	14	10	0
Messengers	3	13	6
Cleaning the Guildhall	1	3	6
Agent for election expenses fee	20	0	0
	£279	7	6

William Hannaford,
Agent for election expenses for Lieut.-Col. Dawkins.

Captain Pim, R.N., C.B.

Proportion of returning officer's expenses	15	4	10
Professional assistance	50	0	0
Committee rooms	16	16	0
Advertising	29	17	0
Printing and stationery	25	15	6
Poll and committee clerks	14	10	0
Messengers	2	2	0
Telegrams, porterage, &c.	16	14	0
Horse and carriage hire	27	18	0
Cleaning the Guildhall	1	3	6
Posting bills	0	14	0
Ringers	3	3	0
Agent for election expenses fee	12	12	6
	£216	10	6

Mr. Hamlyn,
Agent for election expenses for Captain Pim.

Given under my hand the 21st day of September, 1865.
John F. P. Phillips, Returning Officer.

999. You voted for Dawkins and Pender ?—Yes.

1000. (Mr. Longe.) There was another somewhat larger account for Col. Dawkins and Capt. Pim ?—No.

1001. Do you remember a requisition being sent up to Mr. Kennard ?—I have heard of it.

1002. (Mr. Bere.) You have not seen it ?—No.

1003. Mr. Kennard had no connexion with the borough ?—No.

1004. Nor had Col. Dawkins or Capt. Pim ?—No.

1005. You had heard nothing of them ?—No. I am not in the cabinet of party politics.

1006. (Mr. Coleridge.) Whom did you consider the Conservative cabinet ?—I do not know.

1007. Was Mr. Bastard one ?—I believe him to have been one.

1008. And Mr. Bentall ?—Yes.

1009. Mr. Evan Evens ?—I do not know, he might be.

1010. Mr. Gill ? — He used to be on the committee.

1011. Mr. John Heath ?—Yes.

1012. And a very active one ?—Yes.

1013. Mr. Kellock ?—Yes.

1014. He is a very active one too ?—He is.

1015. John Maye ?—I do not know.

1016. Mr. Nicholas Manning ?—I do not know.

1017. Who is Manning, tell us something about him ?—A retired farmer, one of the churchwardens, he stands about six feet three or four.

1018. He has taken to electioneering since he retired from farming ?—Most other men do, a man when he retires must have something to do with politics.

1019. That is the way he gets rid of his superabundant energy I suppose. Then there is John Heath, we have heard that he is a very energetic man ; and Mr. Oldrey, was he one of the Conservative party ?—Yes, he votes on that side.

1020. John Packe, is he on that side ?—Yes.

1021. Mr. John Willis ? — Yes, he votes on the Conservative side.

1022. Mr. A. S. Distin ?—Yes.

1023. Mr. E. D. Tucker ?—Yes.

1024. Mr. T. E. Owen ?—I do not think he was on the committee ; he is a man in full practice as a surgeon.

1025. He is generally on the Conservative committee ?—I do not know that he was on the committee.

1026. Then there is another, Mr. Frederick Kellock ?—He sometimes supports that party.

1027. (Mr. Bere.) Had the Liberals a committee ?—I do not know ; I did not trouble myself about that.

1028. Are you a member of the council ?—No, I am the town clerk.

1029. What number are there in the council ?—16.

1030. How many aldermen ?—Four.

1031. And twelve councillors ?—Yes.

1032. Are they elected in the usual way ?—By the burgesses.

1033. What are the majority of the council, Conservative or Liberal ?—Conservative now.

1034. How long has that been the case ?—Three or four years ; four or five years.

1035. You have had a good deal of experience in elections ; in your judgment has any bribery taken place in regard to those elections ?—No doubt there has.

1036. (Mr. Longe.) What is the price for a vote ?—I cannot say the price.

1037. Is it 5*s.* or 10*s.* ?—I have heard various prices.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

THIRD DAY.

THIRD DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

25 Aug. 1866.

Saturday, 25th August 1866.

Mr. George Presswell recalled and further examined.

1038. (Mr. Bere.) When we adjourned yesterday, you promised to bring the accounts of the agents of the expenses of the different elections. Have you got them here ?—I have.

1039. October 1855 will be the first. Who was Lord Gifford's agent for the election expenses then ?—I cannot inform you ; there was no opposition, and hardly any expenses incurred.

1040 March 30, 1857. Give us the agents of that —Lord Gifford, Thomas William Gray, of Exeter.

1041. He is an attorney at Exeter ?—Yes. For Mr. Mills, Mr. Robert Coard Tucker, solicitor of Ashburton ; for Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. George Farwell, solicitor, since dead ; for Mr. Gregory, Mr. George Farwell, the same.

1042. Now, in 1859 ?—For Earl Gifford, Thomas William Gray, of Exeter ; for Mr. Mills, Robert Coard Tucker, of Ashburton ; for Mr. Dunn, Mr. William Hannaford, of Totnes.

1043. In 1862 ?—For Mr. Pender, Robert Coard

Tucker, of Ashburton; for Mr. Dent, Mr. William Hannaford, whose name I have mentioned.

1044. In 1863?—For Mr. Seymour, Mr. Henry Michelmore, solicitor, Newton Abbot; for Mr. Dent, Mr. Hannaford, of Totnes.

1045. For Earl Gifford the same?—No; Earl Gifford died.

1046. Now we have them down to the next election, I think?—Yes.

1047. (Mr. Coleridge.) Bribery was supposed to exist at the election of 1859?—Yes, I believe it did.

1048. (Mr. Bere.) You were telling us yesterday that, at present, there was a Conservative majority in the municipal corporation of this borough?—Yes.

1049. And that majority began three or four years ago?—Yes.

1050. At the same time Liberal members have been returned for the borough?—Yes.

1051. What, in your opinion, is the reason of the difference, the Conservatives having the power in the town council, and the Liberals having the power in the borough proper?—The cause of it, or the difference?

1052. The cause of it?—I believe partly because the rates have been watched and attended, and the register has been worked.

1053. Which register do you mean?—The register of burgesses; the householders under the Municipal Act.

1054. The householders who are rated?—Yes.

1055. Do you mean there has been more care taken by the Conservatives with regard to the burgess roll than with regard to the register of voters?—No; they have been both, if I may say so, worked, but closer attention on the rating. When a man dwelt in a tenement, if his name has been properly entered in the rate book, he would be entitled to have his name continued on the book; but if he neglected his name, or the rates were not paid, or the requirements of the Act of Parliament were not complied with, he would be expunged.

1056. Can you tell me what number of electors are on the burgess roll?—I can, but I cannot at this moment.

1057. It is larger than the number on the register for the members?—I think it is; but I can get them in 10 minutes.

1058. Will you give us some information about the trade of Totnes? What was the trade when you first knew the town?—Much the same as at present. I should say at that time there was some business done in the serge trade.

1059. When did that serge trade leave Totnes? Did it remain at Totnes longer than other towns of Devonshire?—No, it ran out, I think, something like 10 years after.

1060. After what?—After I came here.

1061. That would be about 1833 or 1834?—1834.

1062. And from that time has Totnes had any special trade?—No.

1063. What is the occupation of the people principally who live in Totnes now?—There are about seven solicitors, about the same number, six or seven medical men, about six or seven clergymen, some gentlemen not having duties at present.

1064. You mean clergymen of the Church of England?—Yes, the Church of England; then there are dissenting ministers. There are small dissenting places of worship.

1065. What does the bulk of the population get their living from?—Shopkeepers principally.

1066. Agricultural labourers are there here?—There are some.

1067. I suppose they live in Bridgetown?—No; different parts of the town. Some are employed by the inhabitants, some in the adjoining seats to work there, and also on the other side of the bridge.

1068. There is no export or import trade here?—Yes; we have two coal merchants, at least two corn merchants, and there is a large trade done by these two merchants.

1069. What are their names?—Bowden and Company.

1070. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is there no timber trade here?—A small retail trade.

1071. Shipped down the Dart?—Yes.

1072. (Mr. Bere.) There is Bowden and Company; what is the other name?—Stranger and Company. They are both large cyder merchants and corn merchants; and there are, I think, four or five other cyder merchants. There is a great quantity of cyder made in this neighbourhood and sent away from this county.

1073. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are many people employed in the salmon fishery here?—There are a few. There are one or two boats only; one boat I think; perhaps three or four hands.

1074. (Mr. Bere.) I did not ask you yesterday (about the first question, probably, which I ought to have put), how long has Totnes possessed the privilege of returning members to Parliament?—I think it was incorporated in King John's reign. It is a very old borough.

1075. 1259, I am told. Do you know whether that was the date?—I cannot answer the question.

1076. Were the freemen constituted by charter?—Yes.

1077. Is the charter in existence?—I cannot say; I think it might be found. Whether the charter is about I do not know. I do not recollect having seen it. It was, I think, some 50 or 60 years before I knew anything of the borough that something happened to the archives in the church. It was by a thunderbolt or something, and the documents, some way or another, got into different hands. I heard a gentleman tell me once, Mr. Francis Bentall, a son of one of the Bentalls whose family I spoke of, he told me some years ago that he had more documents relating to the borough than we had in the council chamber; so I concluded that by some means he had got them.

1078. Have you seen a copy of the charter yourself?—I have no recollection of it.

1079. You do not know what the franchise was that was given by the charter?—Only from hearsay.

1080. (Mr. Coleridge.) You said in the beginning of your examination yesterday that the boundaries, as increased after the Reform Bill, of this borough were not such as they would have been if you had taken a circle round the town fairly?—No, they were not.

1081. Was any remonstrance made as to the boundaries they would have taken in, supposing the line was made fairly, any remonstrance made, or feeling expressed, about this taking in of Bridgetown?—I heard there was dissatisfaction, but I know nothing of it myself.

1082. You do not know whether any remonstrance was made at the time?—I do not believe any active steps were taken.

1083. No agitation in the borough about it?—I heard it spoken of at the time. It was remarked that the then Duke of Somerset had taken care to get included the extent of territory on that side of the water which he possessed; and that on the other side, below here, all the country was left excluded.

1084. Was the whole of the property of the Duke of Somerset, immediately near Totnes, included in the borough, or has he any property adjoining to Bridgetown not included in the borough?—No; the manor of Bridgetown is the only part of his estate included. He has very extensive lands in the parish beyond the boundaries of the manor.

1085. The manor of Bridgetown was taken in its integrity and added to the borough?—Yes.

1086. How much of Bridgetown would have been taken, supposing there was a radius taken fairly round; how much of the portion already taken, supposing a proper part of Dartington had been taken with it?—Where would you take the central point?

1087. From this hall, where we stand; suppose a fair circle had been drawn?—They could hardly have done it nearer, except with a pair of compasses, than they have done. For it commences from the Race Marsh and away to Seymour's Hutch; that is in the turn of the river opposite to the north-east, and it extends up to Harberton and goes to the top of the hill and comes round to the river, not a perfect semi-circle.

THIRD DAY.

Mr. G. Presswell.

25 Aug. 1866.

1088. Does that circle take in the whole of Bridgetown?—Yes.

1089. Would it take in any portion not taken into the borough?—No.

1090. (Mr. Bere.) You told me the parish of Dartington is within 400 yards of this hall?—Yes.

1091. Then if a mile circle had been drawn you must have taken in half a mile of Dartington?—More, three-quarters, I think.

1092. If you had taken this town hall as a centre, and described a circle of a mile, would you have taken in the whole of the manor of Bridgetown to begin with?—No, it would have been more than a mile from this spot.

1093. You would not have taken in the whole of the manor of Bridgetown?—No.

1094. You would have taken in a large portion of Dartington not within the borough now?—Nearly a mile.

1095. And as to Harberton?—One mile would hardly reach that.

1096. Any other parish besides the parish of Dartington?—It would take in Little Hempston parish.

1097. You have got the burgess roll now?—Yes.

1098. Tell me the number of the electors?—The last election 479.

1099. That is a good deal earlier than your list; 421 is your last list. Can you tell me how many of the 421 on the parliamentary roll who vote for the borough of Totnes are included in the 479 who are on the burgess roll?—No; a great many are not on the burgess roll; they are gentlemen farmers living in the neighbourhood.

1100. And do not come within your municipal boundary?—They do not.

1101. Can you tell me what proportion of the 479 on the burgess roll are voters on the parliamentary roll?—I cannot.

1102. Can you give me, in your opinion, what the cause is for the difference in the state of parties in the council and the state of parties in the borough?—In the borough the burgess roll is made up by the householders, large and small. If a man has a small tenement to himself, if it is only a place for which he pays 3*l.*, and he can say he is a householder in the sense of the Act of Parliament, and if he pays his rates and taxes, he has a right to be on the list, but a great number of them are not on the parliamentary roll. Then as to the parliamentary roll there are, I can hardly say, but perhaps about 100 or more on the parliamentary roll who have nothing whatever in the town.

1103. (Mr. Longe.) There would be a great many in Bridgetown not burgesses?—Yes.

1104. And in the parish of Totnes also?—Yes.

1105. Would the burgess roll include what you call the working class as distinguished from the trades class?—Yes, a great many.

1106. The parliamentary list, would that include the working class?—Not so many.

1107. Would it any?—Yes.

1108. They would come under the denomination of working men as distinguished from tradesmen?—Yes, there are many small tradesmen.

1109. A man would go in society as a working man and not as a tradesman?—Yes.

1110. Not agricultural work?—Perhaps gardeners, carpenters, masons, and probably the better class of labourers.

1111. (Mr. Bere.) In your opinion what politics prevail among the householders who have a smaller holding than 10*l.* holding. Are the majority Conservative or Liberal?—I cannot form an opinion upon it. I do not come to the registration courts, and I do not canvass the electors, therefore I cannot give that information that a great many persons in the town who take an interest in the canvass or attend the courts can give.

1112. The constituency from which the Corporation are elected is a different constituency from that from which members of parliament are elected?—To a great extent.

1113. (Mr. Longe.) There are burgesses in Bridgetown?—Yes.

(Mr. Bere.) We are much obliged to you for the information you have given us, and the manner in which you have given it.

Mr. P. Condy.

Mr. Philip Condy sworn and examined.

1114. (Mr. Bere.) What are you?—A brewer.

1115. Living at Totnes?—Yes.

1116. How long have you been living in Totnes?—Since 1836.

1117. Did you come to reside in Totnes then?—Yes.

1118. As a brewer?—As an innkeeper first.

1119. What inn did you keep?—The "Lion" inn.

1120. Have you taken considerable interest in the politics of this borough since you came to reside here?—Yes, I may say I have; not very much at the very first, but I have taken an interest in them.

1121. On what side have you taken an interest?—On the Liberal side.

1122. In July, 1837, I believe, was the first election that took place after you came?—Yes.

1123. Did you take an active part in that election?—No.

1124. That was when Lord Seymour, Mr. Parrott, and General Adams were candidates?—I suppose I voted at that, but that is all I know about the matter.

1125. Did you hear any gossip at that election, any rumour about bribery having prevailed then?—I attended one or two meetings to which the candidates invited the electors after their canvass from time to time.

1126. I mean with regard to this election of 1837?—Yes; I went on two or three different occasions during that election, and I heard nothing about bribery then with one exception,—I recollect a man getting on a stool and telling the meeting that he had been offered 10*l.* for a horse and cart. That is all I heard of anything like bribery in Totnes. It was a man called Bartlett; he has been dead now many years.

1127. Did he mention the name of the person by whom the offer was made?—I do not think he did; if so I have forgotten it.

1128. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was his christian name?—I forget.

1129. Was he offered the bribe by the Liberals or the Conservatives?—I suppose by the Conservatives because it was a Liberal meeting.

1130. Was he the only person who had been tempted at that time as far as you know?—He was the only person I ever heard of who was tempted at that time.

1131. (Mr. Longe.) Whereabouts is the "Lion" inn?—It is at the top of the town near the old castle.

1132. (Mr. Bere.) Now the next election was the 28th July, 1839, when Mr. Blount and Mr. Barry Baldwin were candidates. You remember that election?—Yes.

1133. Did you take an interest in that on Mr. Blount's part?—Not much. I was an overseer when the list was made, and I had to go to London as an overseer on the scrutiny which was talked about.

1134. Do you remember the election?—Yes, I do.

1135. Were there rumours of bribery at that election?—I believe there were no rumours of bribery at that election, but there was a great deal of treating.

1136. Was your house one of the places which was open?—No, the old assembly rooms were taken for the purpose of a meeting on behalf of Mr. Blount, and the different landlords were to supply the parties.

1137. Who were paid by Mr. Blount afterwards?—I presume so.

1138. What landlord was there besides you?—The first was the landlord, I recollect, of the Kingsbridge inn, whose name was Penny. I do not know whether he is alive now.

1139. (Mr. Longe.) Who paid you yourself?—I do not recollect; I was paid by the committee.

1140. How much?—I was paid the very last meeting the day of the election, and I provided about 3 cwt. of dressed meat for refreshments.

1141. How much were you paid?—My bill amounted to about 50*l.*, and I believe the rest amounted to 50*l.* in the long run generally.

1142. 50*l.* each?—Yes.

1143. Each day?—Yes; each landlord.

1144. Did a landlord supply more than one day?—No, I think not.

1145. Did Mr. Blount's agent pay you for that?—Yes.

1146. Was that Mr. Windeatt or Mr. Tucker, do you remember?—I suppose it was Mr. Windeatt; he was the principal agent.

1147. Used you to get paid cheques or cash?—I do not recollect at all.

1148. Had you an account at the bank then?—No.

1149. You do not remember how you were paid at that election?—No.

1150. You, as an overseer, went up on the scrutiny?—Yes.

1151. Do you remember whether the petition contained an allegation of bribery and treating?—I heard you ask the question yesterday, and from my recollection of it I thought the petition did contain that, but that was withdrawn mutually.

1152. Was there a double return made at that election?—Yes.

1153. Who petitioned, Mr. Baldwin or Mr. Blount?—I think Mr. Baldwin. I presume both did, I am not certain.

1154. It did contain allegations of bribery and treating, but those were withdrawn?—Yes. The principal thing relied on was the scrutiny of the voters.

1155. But no scrutiny did take place actually?—No.

1156. There was a preliminary objection which was considered fatal to the election?—Yes.

1157. (Mr. Longe.) Why were the allegations withdrawn, do you know?—No.

1158. You do not know that?—No, I was not in the secret.

1159. (Mr. Bere.) Had Mr. Blount a committee then?—I do not know.

1160. You were not a member of it?—No.

1161. I suppose you have been a member of the Liberal committee since that time?—No, I have not. I have been asked to meetings when they have consulted as to, for instance, whether we should have Mr. Pender or anyone else; when a candidate has been talked of.

1162. When Mr. Pender was mentioned to the Liberals, were other gentlemen mentioned too?—Oh, yes.

1163. Can you give us their names?—I do not know whether I can tell the whole of them, but I was invited to a meeting, I think at Mr. Windeatt's office, where he had something to communicate to us, and that was a day or two after Mr. Mills died, and this communication was to the effect that some gentleman had waited on Mr. Windeatt to say that a friend of his would be a very excellent man for Totnes; he was a Manchester man, and was desirous of getting into Parliament. There were seven or eight at that committee, and the Duke of Somerset's steward, Mr. Michelmore, was there, Mr. Cuming, Mr. Chaster, Mr. Holman; I forget any more. A few of the friends of the Liberals were called together and the question discussed.

1164. You say that other gentlemen were suggested, do you remember the names of the other gentlemen?—We had a meeting the next day, and I think by that time we had seven candidates.

1165. All equally good men?—Mr. Seymour came down in the meantime, and there was a Major Lyon I think, and Mr. Probyn, I think, came from Devizes; and there was a gentleman stopping at the "Seymour," and some gentleman who came from Plymouth; I do not know who he was, but we had pretty nearly decided on having Mr. Pender at that time.

1166. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you recollect the nomination at this election when there was a double return?—Yes.

1167. Do you recollect in whose favour the show of hands was?—No. I should rather think for the Liberals; at that time they were very strong in the borough.

1168. At what time were the allegations of bribery withdrawn? Was it before the objection was taken in the committee room or afterwards?—Before, I believe.

1169. Had notice been given of the objection beforehand?—No. I was not a committee man.

1170. Did you know that a formal objection was going to be taken to the return for the borough before you actually heard of it in the House of Commons?—I do not think I did. I heard of it casually somewhere, it might be going up to London.

1171. Did you hear the opinion of the late Lord Campbell that it was a bad return?—I heard that for the first time yesterday in this room.

1172. You did not know it before?—No.

1173. You say there was bribery going on on both sides on that occasion?—It was said so.

1174. I suppose the reason of the allegations of bribery being withdrawn was that one side could not stand any cleaner than the other?—I daresay.

1175. Was that your opinion?—Yes, perhaps it was. I did not know there was much bribery. I did not hear of it at the time. I have since.

1176. Can you suggest any other reason for withdrawing the allegations from the petition except that?—No.

1177. (Mr. Bere.) Did not you hear that Mr. Baldwin had spent nearly 2,000*l.* at that election, and that Mr. Blount had spent 1,500*l.* or 2,000*l.*?—No, I did not know what they had spent.

1178. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you recollect what the allegations of bribery were?—I never saw them. I did not take any particular interest. I was going up as overseer.

1179. (Mr. Longe.) You did not know anything about the club at the "King William?"—No.

1180. (Mr. Bere.) In 1840 did you take any interest in the election when Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Guy Gisborne stood?—That was the election subsequent to the scrutiny. I voted. I do not think I took much interest in that.

1181. Was your house open then?—No; I do not think there was anything like a meeting at my house, from my recollection. I do not know.

1182. Do you not know that at that election there was a good deal of bribery?—I daresay there was.

1183. You do not know personally yourself?—No.

1184. Did you hear of it at the time?—Common talk.

1185. Have you any doubt that a great deal of money was spent at that election?—No, I have no doubt of it.

1186. (Mr. Longe.) Where was Mr. Baldwin living at the time of that election?—At Torquay, I believe; I do not know whether he was or not; he did live at Torquay afterwards.

1187. Was he much in the town?—During the time of the election.

1188. But before that?—Yes, he had before that, because he purchased the Gerston estate and they were laying it out.

THIRD DAY.

Mr. P. Condy.

25 Aug. 1866.

1189. And then came that election?—Yes.

1190. (Mr. Bere.) Who is the owner of the Gerston estate now?—The Duke of Somerset, I believe.

1191. When did the duke buy that?—About four years ago, I should think.

1192. A good deal of money having been spent in 1839 and 1840, do you remember the election of July 1841, when Lord Seymour and Mr. Baldwin were returned unopposed?—Yes, I do. That was when Mr. Petre was here.

1193. Where did Mr. Petre stay?—At the "Sey-"mour," I believe.

1194. And Mr. Teed, was he here on the Conservative side?—Yes.

1195. They were here a day or two before the nomination?—Yes.

1196. Did Mr. Petre canvass you?—Yes; I believe Mr. Petre was at my house at a meeting one evening.

1197. What meeting was that? How long before the nomination?—Two or three days before the nomination.

1198. What passed at that meeting about the election?—I was the waiter at that time; at least I was attending to the waiting.

1199. You were in and out of the room?—I was in and out of the room, and heard nothing but the speeches. It was a general meeting, and anybody who was there would come in. Mr. Petre made a speech and then went away.

1200. Were you on Mr. Petre's committee?—No.

1201. Who was?—I do not know. One active man was Mr. Webber, and Mr. Windeatt perhaps.

1202. Was Mr. Windeatt there?—I do not know.

1203. Do not you recollect seeing him there?—No. Probably he might be there.

1204. How many men were there?—50 or 60.

1205. Have you a large room in your inn?—Tolerably large; it is my bedroom now.

1206. They met there?—Yes.

1207. And then Mr. Petre spoke, did he?—Yes.

1208. Was it to announce his retirement?—No.

1209. Did he express hopes then that he would succeed?—Yes. I recollect being at one meeting at the assembly rooms, where he made a speech also.

1210. How many days before the election was the meeting at your house?—I do not know. Two or three, I should think.

1211. But he retired before the nomination, did not he?—Yes, I presume the day before.

1212. When did you first hear that he was going to retire, and from whom?—I do not know from whom.

1213. Did you hear from himself?—No; he was gone, I think, the first I heard of his having retired.

1214. Did you hear that Mr. Teed retired because the Conservatives wanted too much for their votes, or what was the reason?—I do not know that I heard any reason, but perhaps I can give you some information on that. Lord Seymour called on me; and by the bye I had been told before by a member of Lord Seymour's committee that he thought our committee, as I call myself one of the Totnes Liberal committee, had not treated them fairly, as they had asked Lord Seymour's committee to assist them with funds, and they had no objection to do so, but they said, provided Lord Seymour and Mr. Petre could not both be carried, Lord Seymour thought he should have the priority, and I confessI thought so too, and I mentioned it to one or two of my friends when they came in next day for a glass of ale, and we were all of that opinion, and we took upon ourselves to go to Mr. Petre and tell him that we thought so.

1215. Then Lord Seymour had a committee?—Yes.

1216. And where did the committee sit; the "Sey-"mour Arms?"—Yes, I suppose so; it was Bridgetown.

1217. Was Mr. Thomas Michelmore a member of that committee?—Yes.

1218. And Mr. Holman?—Yes. The present Mr. Holman's father told me this.

1219. He was a member of Lord Seymour's committee?—Yes.

1220. Did those committee men act also for Mr. Petre?—No.

1221. You were on his committee?—No.

1222. You were on the committee of the Liberals?—No, I was not on any committee at all. We took it into our heads to go to Mr. Cuming, who was a leading man on Mr. Petre's side, to give us his promise.

1223. Was Mr. Petre a candidate of the "Seventy-"third?"—The "Seventy-third" was broken up at that time.

1224. Many of them were Conservatives at that time, were not they? Did not the remains of the "Seventy-third" constitute the nucleus of the Conservative party of Totnes?—No. Several were; they were broken up.

1225. Were they not distinct from Lord Seymour's party, the Liberal party?—No; they were very much of the same sentiment, and were wishing to act together, but they each had a separate committee.

1226. How many electors were there of what we call the Liberal section?—I do not know.

1227. You can tell us about?—About 320.

1228. I mean altogether, the gentlemen who acted with you all together?—Do you mean the committee?

1229. What you call the Liberal Association?—No. We were about in proportion, I should say, of 4 to 1 of what you would call the Seymour party properly.

1230. As many as 4 to 1?—I believe there were.

1231. In Totnes?—Yes.

1232. At that time if Lord Seymour and Mr. Petre had gone to the poll, would the chances have been that Mr. Petre would have been elected?—It was thought so.

1233. Was that opinion arrived at because Mr. Petre was spending money, and Lord Seymour was not?—No, I think not. I think for some cause or another Lord Seymour was unpopular, and got very few promises in Totnes at that time. I do not know why.

1234. Did Lord Seymour canvass you?—Yes, he stayed a quarter of an hour to explain this very point, about the promise that I was telling you of, he understanding that he should have the priority if the two were not returned.

1235. Between whom was the understanding?—It was an understanding that he wished to be come to. He wished an understanding should be come to, that, being a Liberal Association and his committee, he should have the priority of Liberal voters if Mr. Petre and he should not both be elected; and he said, "If I ask my friends to support Mr. Petre, I think I "am entitled to priority. If not, I shall ask my "friends to take care of themselves." I thought that very reasonable, because Mr. Petre was a new candidate.

1236. (Mr. Longe.) Was there some fear as to the Liberals splitting their votes?—Mr. Baldwin stood strong then, and either Mr. Seymour or Mr. Petre would have gone to the wall.

1237. We have been told that Lord Seymour always set his face against spending money, and you said you did not know the cause of his unpopularity at this time; was it that he did not spend money?—No; because he did not go heartily with the Liberal party of Totnes, professing Liberal principles, as they thought he should do more heartily than he did, to return two members. I do not mean with regard to bribery.

1238. (Mr. Longe.) I suppose the Liberal party had been weakened by the influence of Mr. Baldwin?—Yes, certainly. Just about that time, I think, a great effort was made to improve the position of the Conservative party here. A great many tradesmen who had been Liberal, and some whose names I have read of in the account of the reform holiday, and who wrote mottoes over their doors, had great influence round about the town, which was used to promote Conservative interests.

1239. (Mr. Coleridge.) At this 1841 election did

Mr. Baldwin spend as much as he had before ?—I am sure I do not know.

1240. Was it the general report that money was going the same as it had gone previously ?—I have heard such things as saying that Mr. Baldwin had not spent less than 2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.*

1241. That was in 1841 ?—Yes.

1242. Did Mr. Teed spend any money, or come in under Mr. Baldwin's wing ?—I think he came under Mr. Baldwin's wing. Some time before that four bullocks were brought into the town and given away, and they were called Baldwin and Teed's treat.

1243. Do you know who supplied the bullocks ?—No.

1244. You do not know who paid for them ?—No. I recollect seeing them going through the town with blue ribbons.

1245. Do you know of any money being spent ?—No, I do not know of anyone who has been paid, and I may say that I always took great care not to know it.

1246. When this report was going about that Mr. Baldwin had spent 2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.*, was it necessary for the Liberal party to counteract that influence ?—Yes.

1247. And you have heard some say they did counteract that influence ?—Not at that time.

1248. You took care not to ; but shortly afterwards, I suppose ?—Mr. Petre retired from the contest.

1249. Was no money spent before he retired ?—I do not know.

1250. You do not know whether any money was spent on the Liberal side ?—No.

1251. Only on the Conservative ?—I do not know on the Conservative ; I am giving impartial evidence. I do not know that there was.

1252. As far as you know, you heard Mr. Baldwin had spent money ?—Yes.

1253. (Mr. Bere.) Did you hear that 30 or 40 men were standing out for sums for their votes ?—I do not recollect that I did at that election.

1254. (Mr. Longe.) You say the Conservatives were very active, was that in Mr. Baldwin's interest personally, or was it politically ?—I think it was politically.

1255. A matter of political principles ?—Yes.

1256. Who were these Conservatives ; do you know any of the leading men who brought about this change ?—I mean the country gentry, and people of the town and neighbourhood generally. I do not know whom to name as taking more interest than any other. Mr. Bentall was one, and Mr. Adams another, the Conservative gentlemen of the town generally ; they were trying to promote their interests, as we were ours.

1257. (Mr. Longe.) That was the principal moving cause of the rise of the Conservative power ?—Yes, I think so. I think at the time Mr. Baldwin came into the borough there was a very great difference, bribery was never thought of. After Mr. Baldwin came here, Mr. Parrott, who was comparatively a poor man, and saw an expensive system was coming about, retired.

1258. He retired ?—To let in Mr. Blount to fight the battle with Mr. Baldwin ; he did not wait for the general election.

1259. Did Mr. Baldwin exercise any influence in any other way than direct bribery ? As a landlord did he ?—I do not think he did. I think there were efforts to make votes from the Gerston estate. While I was overseer I recollect that there was a batch of nine voters on one property, property rated at 90*l.*, buildings thrown in to a farm yard ; but one had not paid his rates, and another said, " You must go to the " agent, Tom Welch," and so on, so that the revising barrister said he would cut them off.

1260. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there any paying up of rates shortly before the election ?—I dare say that has been done.

1261. Do you know it has been done, you have been overseer ?—I have heard it spoken of.

1262. Have you never known it to be done once since you were overseer ?—When I was overseer there was not so much going on as in the early part of political things.

1263. Do you recollect being extraordinarily fortunate in collecting rates shortly before an election ?—No, and I will tell you why. When I was overseer there was a new valuation of the parish going on, and four of us overseers had to pledge our own credit to the bank to draw as much as 500*l.* to pay the calls of the union, before we could get hold of the rate book to collect.

1264. So that you took very good care to get the rates ?—Yes ; at the end of the year we had nothing to do but to collect.

1265. Then there were about four rates in arrear ?—No, three, about.

1266. As I understand, it was your interest, as being made personally liable, made you use extra exertions to get the money ?—No, why I mentioned it was to show that I had no reason for recollecting people coming to pay up the rates.

1267. But you believe it has been done since ?—Yes, I think it has.

1268. Openly done in the vestry ?—Yes, I think it has.

1269. (Mr. Bere.) Was there any person politically interested with Mr. Baldwin as representing him at the time that you remember, and if so, who. You say he was not living here ?—I should say that Mr. Edwards was transacting his business at that time.

1270. Do you remember the election of 1847, when Lord Seymour, Mr. Baldwin, and Mr. Ricardo were the candidates ?—Yes.

1271. Mr. Ricardo was unknown in Totnes, and came down from London ?—Yes.

1272. Did he come down as the candidate of the Liberal association ?—I do not know how he came down.

1273. You knew nothing about his coming here ?—No.

1274. Who were the principal people on the Liberal side at that time ?—Much about the same, Mr. Cuming, Mr. Windeatt, Mr. Holman, and Mr. Trehayne, who lived in the town at that time, and Mr. Ferris.

1275. Did Lord Seymour bring Mr. Ricardo down, or was he brought down as an independent candidate ?—I believe he was an independent candidate.

1276. Do you know that he had an independent committee ?—Yes.

1277. Did he at all canvass with Lord Seymour ?—I do not think he did.

1278. At that election did you hear a good deal about bribery ?—Just the same as the year before.

1279. Did you hear that Mr. Ricardo had spent all the money on one side, and Mr. Baldwin on the other ?—The bribery was between those two.

1280. Did you hear what sum was spent ?—No.

1281. Did you hear of the understanding which had been come to between the Seymour party and the Baldwin party ?—I have heard it alleged many times, but I never believed it did occur until Mr. Presswell said so yesterday, and that he had seen the document.

1282. Do you believe if it had not been for that, Mr. Ricardo would have been seated as the member ?—When Mr. Teed went away, Lord Seymour had had some promises, and he said, " I shall canvass the " Conservatives for the second vote." I am afraid I am thinking of Mr. Petre's time.

1283. Do you know whether the Liberal association were then going to split their votes for Seymour and Ricardo ?—I do not know ; there was a strong feeling with some.

1284. You yourself split your vote for Seymour and Ricardo ?—Yes.

1285. Did you know Mr. Trehayne ?—He was one of the committee.

1286. On Mr. Ricardo's committee ?—Yes.

1287. Mr. Satchell ?—No.

1288. Mr. Green ?—No.

THIRD DAY.
Mr. P. Condy.
25 Aug. 1866.

1289. Were those three gentlemen members of the Liberal association?—I do not know that there was a Liberal association.

1290. Or whatsoever name you may choose to call it?—They were Liberal voters.

1291. Was Henry Scrivener another?—I do not recollect his name.

1292. Mr. Samuel Hill?—He has usually voted with the Seymour interest.

1293. Mr. John Payne?—I do not know; he is dead now.

1294. The understanding which Lord Seymour managed to obtain in the election of 1841 was not adhered to in 1847, by the Liberals who voted for Mr. Ricardo also giving a vote for Lord Seymour, all of them?—Not all of them.

1295. Then Lord Seymour canvassed the Conservatives to get their second vote?—Yes.

1296. Lord Seymour made this arrangement on the understanding with the Conservative party that he was to get the second vote?—I do not know whether he canvassed the Conservatives then or not; he was always considered to be perfectly safe.

1297. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there not an understanding that Lord Seymour was to back up the other Liberal candidate as far as he could?—We thought he ought as he belonged to the Liberal party, and many of the voters were then earnest reformers.

1298. Do you know any instances of the Seymour influence being used to induce persons to vote against the other Liberal candidate?—No.

1299. You never heard of any active influence being used on behalf of Mr. Baldwin?—No.

1300. The memorandum we have been speaking of referred to 1847, then certain votes were given for Mr. Baldwin which otherwise would have been given for Mr. Ricardo?—Just so.

1301. What sum did you hear that Mr. Ricardo had spent at that election?—I do not know.

1302. Was it a good deal of money?—Yes, the election was carried on much in the same way as others.

1303. Do you know who managed it for Mr. Ricardo?—No.

1304. Had he any solicitor down here from London?—That I do not know.

1305. Did he stay at the "Seymour Arms"?—Yes.

1306. Did he canvass with Lord Seymour?—I think not.

1307. (Mr. Bere.) You remember Mr. Mills being introduced to the borough?—Yes.

1308. He was a stranger to Totnes, brought down in the same way as Mr. Ricardo?—Yes.

1309. He came down and spent money here?—Yes. I think there were two or three gentlemen went up to London and saw Mr. Mills, whether at the Reform Club or not I do not know.

1310. Who were those gentlemen?—I think I heard that Mr. Charles Webber went, I do not remember any one else.

1311. But you must have known them?—I do not recollect them now. I really do not know whether Mr. Ferris went up; he took a very active part in that election.

1312. Is he alive?—I presume so; he lives in London, he has left here some 10 or 12 years.

1313. So far as you know a deputation went here to the Reform Club?—They went up to see him; whether it was at the Reform Club or not I do not know.

1314. Did he stay at the "Seymour Arms?"—Yes.

1315. Did he have a separate committee from Lord Seymour's?—Yes.

1316. He was returned?—Yes.

1317. (Mr. Longe.) That was a great event in the town?—Yes.

1318. Do you not remember the sum that was then spent?—I dare say there was a good deal of money spent. I know nothing about the sum.

1319. Do you know the "King William?"—No.

1320. Were there other public houses?—No.

1321. (Mr. Coleridge.) That was the first time that two Liberals had been returned for Totnes?—Yes; after Mr. Baldwin came.

1322. I suppose Mr. Baldwin in the meantime had bought the Gerston estate?—Before he came.

1323. In spite of that he was turned out?—Yes.

1324. How do you account for that?—Opinions change; Mr. Baldwin's popularity was waning at that time.

1325. (Mr. Bere.) All his money was gone, was it not?—I do not know.

1326. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do not you think there must have been some operations on Mr. Mills' part to make him, a perfect stranger, turn out an old friend like Mr. Baldwin?—I can answer for myself, that I should have voted for the stranger instead of Mr. Baldwin, the one being a Liberal, the other a Tory; on that principle a number of Liberals voted.

1327. You are not a case in point; you were always Liberal. Can you understand those who had formerly voted for Mr. Baldwin suddenly turning round and voting for Mr. Mills?—I cannot, unless they were bought.

1328. It was a monetary influence?—Perhaps so.

1329. At first you thought that Liberal opinions were gaining ground in Totnes; that is not your deliberate opinion?—It might be so. At that time free trade principles were prevailing very much, and the Liberal feeling amongst independent people was running in that direction.

1330. Do you think that was sufficient without their being bought?—No, I do not.

1331. You thought you were treated a little hard by the Seymour party?—We thought so at one time.

1332. You agree with the others, I suppose, that Lord Seymour never spent any money at all?—I do not believe he did.

1333. (Mr. Bere.) At the election in 1852, did you hear that a large sum of money was found for Mr. Mills?—No; I know nothing about the monetary affairs at all.

1334. Did you not hear that he himself had not found the money; but that some gentlemen in the town of Totnes had found it for him?—I never heard that.

1335. When Lord Seymour became the Duke of Somerset Lord Gifford was elected without opposition?—Yes.

1336. Did Mr. Baldwin spend any money at the last election?—I dare say they did both.

1337. Did you hear whether the prices had gone up?—I do not think I did.

1338. What is the largest sum you have ever heard paid for a vote in Totnes?—I do not know that I have ever heard anything more than rumour.

1339. What rumour?—I have heard people talk of 40*l.* and 50*l.*, and so on; I cannot speak of anything within my own knowledge.

1340. (Mr. Coleridge.) You stand high in the corruption market?—Yes.

1341. They do not think of taking 2*l.* or 3*l.*?—No.

1342. (Mr. Bere.) In 1855 Mr. Mackenzie came down as a candidate, but he did not go to the poll?—No.

1343. Did you hear that that was because too much money was wanted?—No.

1344. Do you know anything of that election?—It is within my knowledge that there was a better understanding at that time between the Seymour interest and the Liberal interest in Totnes; and from the state of the register I do not believe that Mr. Mackenzie had the slightest chance against a man like Lord Gifford, who was a very promising man.

1345. How was he known in Totnes?—He was recommended by the Seymour interest.

1346. He was a greater favourite than Lord Seymour?—The people liked him very well when he was here; but we saw little of him, for he was ill a great part of the time.

1347. Did he do anything for the town?—I did not hear that he did.

1348. Not beyond the ordinary subscriptions to charities, and so on?—I do not know.

1349. What influence had Lord Seymour in particular?—I suppose from the duke's owning so much land round the neighbourhood. Before the votes were made I think the duke's interest in Totnes was not so great, to have an influence on the tradespeople, as was the Conservative interest.

1350. Now that the duke has the Gerston and Bridgetown properties he has got it all?—Not all.

1351. But it gives a greater preponderance to that side?—Yes; I do not know that there is any one there who would support Mr. Baldwin now that the vote making has dropped for a time.

1352. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know a Mr. Samuel Huxham?—Yes.

1353. He is the son of the rector?—He lives at the rectory.

1354. In 1852, do not you know that Mr. Huxham, the father of this gentleman, Mr. Charles Webber, and Mr. Joseph Ferris advanced several thousands of pounds to Mr. Mills to prosecute the election?—Now you have mentioned it, I have heard something of the reverend gentleman having been answerable for some money, but not to that extent.

1355. Do you know what sum they were answerable for?—No, I do not.

1356. What became of the money?—I dare say it was spent for the purposes of the election. I have no doubt about that.

1357. (Mr. Bere.) Was your house open in 1852?—No.

1358. Were the assembly rooms used as a place of meeting?—Yes.

1359. Did the landlords send the refreshments there?—None were sent there; I think that system has been dropped.

1360. They prefer the actual coin now?—Yes.

1361. When did the system of making votes begin at Totnes?—It began about 1838 or 1839.

1362. Where did it begin; on the Bridgetown estate?—I do not recollect; I think there must have been one or two in Gerston before.

1363. That is on the Totnes side?—Yes; whether there were on the Bridgetown side or not I do not know.

1364. Between 1832 and 1833 the voters in Bridgetown increased from 19 to 39. You did not know of that?—No.

1365. There was a very great increase in Bridgetown between 1841 and 1847; there being only 66 in 1841, in 1847 there were 97. The system had began to work in Bridgetown pretty strong at that time?—I dare say it had.

1366. You know it had?—Yes, I do. Perhaps the register was better looked after, and votes might have been added in that way. I dare say voters were being put on then wherever they could put them on.

1367. By taking a piece of land, or letting a farm out, say, of the value of 50*l.* a year, a person put certain buildings on it and got five people as tenants, each of the men getting a vote?—I do not think there was any instance of anything like a company until within the last few years. There was a large field, part of the marsh ground in Bridgetown parish which lets for 30*l.*; at one time there were three votes upon it; I believe now there are only two.

1368. What were the buildings put upon it?—Only a shed for cattle to go in.

1369. That was the common way in which votes were manufactured?—Yes.

1370. (Mr. Coleridge.) How many of those 90 voters would have a house worth 10*l.* a year?—Perhaps 30.

1371. Were there as many as 30 houses worth 10*l.* a year?—From 20 to 30. You can judge for yourselves if you look through the town. Bridgetown is the same now as it was then, with the exception of five new villas, which have been put up by the building society.

1372. You include those in the 10*l.* houses?—Yes; otherwise Bridgetown is the same now as it was 30 years ago.

1373. (Mr. Bere.) The great increase in Totnes was between 1840 and 1841; was that done in the same way?—I really do not know; I dare say it was done pretty well in the same way. There is a good deal of difference from one register to another as to whether it has been well worked or not. Sometimes it is neglected, sometimes it is not.

1374. Was that not done on the Gerston estate?—I dare say it was.

1375. My impression is that the votes were put on in 1840 and struck off the register in 1846, because they were not good votes?—Not because they were not good votes. The property might have changed hands, and the proper thing to be done as to the register might not have been attended to.

1376. Or the buildings might have been let down?—Yes.

1377. (Mr. Coleridge.) There was a wholesale massacre of the innocents at one time, was there not; a great many of them went away?—I do not know about that.

1378. How were the votes made on the Gerston property; in the same way, by dividing a field, or how?—Yes, they were.

1379. Tell us what you know about that, and why the votes were made there?—I believe during most of the period in Mr. Baldwin's time they were made in twos and threes. Since the duke has had it, it has been let in the same way until within the last two or three years, when they have been put into a company.

1380. After Mr. Baldwin's time that system was put in force at Bridgetown?—Yes; he was the first that I recollect who put nine on. They were fields on the Gerston estate, with a large building in the yard, which was let for 90*l.* or 95*l.* a year.

1381. Was it worth 90*l.* a year?—I presume so.

1382. He had nine votes there?—Yes.

1383. Where there had been but one vote before he got nine?—I do not know that there was any vote there before.

1384. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember young Mr. Durant's vote being struck off?—I do not recollect being present.

1385. The election of 1857 was when Mr. Mackenzie came down?—Yes.

1386. And Mr. Gregory; they were the Conservative candidates?—Yes.

1387. Was there a good deal of money flying about then?—I do not think there was; I should not have thought so until I heard what came out yesterday, that any money at all had been spent at that election. The state of the poll was such that Mr. Mackenzie had no hope of being returned, and there was no occasion for money to have been spent.

1388. Was there any splitting of the Conservative votes with the Seymour interest?—I do not know how they polled.

1389. The numbers show 180 as against 57 for Mr. Gregory?—Mr. Gregory was put up for the purpose of taking some second votes which would have gone the other way.

1390. Did not Mr. Mills spend a great deal of money at that election?—I do not think so, there was no necessity for it.

1391. You were on his committee?—No.

1392. Where they the same gentlemen whom you mentioned before?—Yes, much about the same; they generally managed the election.

1393. In the election of 1847, when Mr. Ricardo was beaten, do you remember how the poll stood at 3 o'clock on the polling day?—Just before the close of the poll it stood within five I think.

1394. Was Mr. Baldwin two a head?—Mr. Baldwin was three a head at the close of the poll.

1395. Had the constituency been so carefully worked up that there were only five left to vote?—

THIRD DAY.
Mr. P. Condy.
25 Aug. 1866.

I was told that there were two who could have polled but they could not get them up in time for the election.

1396. Were not the five, Callender, the two Underhills, George Field, and Richard Cross?—As to the Underhills they were the parties spoken of by Mr. Presswell as having been compromised in the registration court.

1397. Had Cross and Field been voters in the Liberal interest up to that time?—Yes always.

1398. Did you not know of the transaction as to the Underhills, and Cross and Field?—Not until the other day.

1399. Did they not come to you at Fogwell's?—I never saw them there. I was told of it; they came in here in the morning to vote and Mr. Michelmore said they must not poll; if they did he had others who should vote against them.

1400. That was Cross and Field?—Yes.

1401. Were you not at Fogwell's house that day?—I might have been.

1402. Were you not on the committee?—I was not; I went with a carriage to meet a gentleman who had been sent for from London to come down by the express train, that was the most active thing I did.

1403. Who was that gentleman?—He was a Mr. Sampson who had gone away from here and lived in the neighbourhood of London. A person had been sent up to try and get him to come down and vote. That person had 5*l.* given to him to pay his expenses down, and the gentleman had promised to meet him at the railway station and come down by the express train; the gentleman did not come, but I do not think the man ever returned the 5*l.* I went with a carriage to meet him but he did not come.

1404. These five men whom I have just spoken of were Liberals were they not?—Yes.

1405. The two Underhills and Callender?—I do not think Callender was a Liberal; I do not recollect; he was formerly a Tory, I think; he has been dead now some time.

1406. Do you know a man named Thomas Stone?—Yes, I know his name.

1407. Do you remember his coming to Fogwell's to the committee-room on that day?—I did not see him.

1408. Are you quite certain of that?—I was very little in the room, I took no particularly active part.

1409. Did you not hear a proposal made that Callender and the two Underhill's should vote for Mr. Ricardo at half-past 3 o'clock on that day?—No, I do not believe that I did; I have no recollection of it.

1410. And that the reason why Callender was going to vote for Mr. Ricardo was that although he was a Tory he was to have 100*l.* for doing so?—No I did not.

1411. You did not hear the question asked whether Mr. Michelmore would not make Cross and Field vote for Mr. Baldwin?—I did not.

1412. (Mr. Coleridge.) You do not recollect Lord Seymour or his agent canvassing for Mr. Baldwin?—No, I do not believe that they ever did.

1413. Do you know Mr. John Perrott?—I do.

1414. In 1847 did Lord Seymour and his agents call on him and canvass him on behalf of Mr. Baldwin?—I do not know that they did.

1415. Have you ever heard of that?—I do not know that I have.

1416. You had better think of it, and see whether you cannot remember it; was there no scandal then current about the town regarding it; was it not said that it was a very strange thing that Lord Seymour and his agents should go about the town canvassing on the Conservative side?—I am sure I do not know. I think I remember something being said about Mr. Perrott's not voting.

1417. What was it that you then heard; will you tell us what you heard about Mr Perrott's not going to vote?—I heard that Mr. Perrott was not going to vote.

1418. Do you not know whether that was after the visit of Lord Seymour and his agents?—I do not know that of my own knowledge.

1419. Was he in the habit of voting do you know?—Yes, he was.

1420. How did he vote?—He voted for the Liberals.

1421. Did he vote in 1847, do you know?—I really do not know that, there was something said about his not voting.

1422. Was there not something else said about it at the time?—Not that I remember.

1423. There must have been something else said; you must have heard some reasons given?—I do not recollect what were the rumours of the day or what were the reasons that were assigned.

1424. If you recollect the fact at all, cannot you remember what it was that was said, there must have been something given as a reason for it?—I do not recollect the reasons that were given. You will easily be able to get at that.

1425. Do you know is Mr. John Perrott still alive?—Yes.

1426. In 1847 when Perrott was not going to vote do you not know that he eventually plumped for Lord Seymour?—I have forgotten it if I did know it.

1427. You do not know that instead of splitting his vote between Ricardo and Seymour or between Seymour and Baldwin he plumped for Lord Seymour?—From your mentioning it there may be something about it; but I really had quite forgotten it.

1428. Do you not recollect hearing Lord Seymour or his agents pressing him to vote for Baldwin, and he said he could not vote for Baldwin he had promised Ricardo, but he threw over Ricardo and voted for Seymour?—I do not recollect.

1429. Do you recollect some influence having induced him to throw over Ricardo and plump for Lord Seymour?—I did hear something of it.

1430. Did you hear what the influence was?—I did not.

1431. (Mr. Bere.) Mr. Mills came over those two times and then Mr. Dunn appears as a Conservative on the scene, did he spend a good deal of money in 1859?—I dare say he did.

1432. Mr. Mills, did he?—I dare say so.

1433. Do you know what the price was then?—No. There were no plumpers I believe.

1434. You did not hear anything of it?—No, nor do I personally know of it.

1435. I will ask this general question with regard to recent elections, the elections of 1862, 1863, and 1865 in all of which Mr. Pender has been a candidate, and twice Mr. Dent thas been a candidate, and at the last election on the Conservative side, and at the last election Col. Dawkins and Mr. Pender; from what you have heard have not very large sums of money been spent on both sides?—I believe there has from what I have heard.

1436. Have there not been a number of men whose voting is always uncertain, who have been influenced by the offer of bribes?—From what I have seen of the parliamentary proceedings I am led to believe so to a far greater extent than what I thought before.

1437. What number before this election of 1865?—I do not know of any number in particular. I know the number mentioned 50 to 75 is very much exaggerated.

1438. You do not think that now that is under the mark?—No, that is outside the mark now.

1439. What sort of class of men were they who took the bribes?—I know more from the report than I know else.

1440. You know from what you have heard what class of men they were, small shopkeepers and that class?—Yes, I think so, in many instances.

1441. In almost all instances were they not?—Yes I think so.

1442. (Mr. Coleridge.) You yourself have canvassed the borough more than once?—Once for a municipal election, my own election for town councillor.

1443. (Mr. Bere.) You are a town councillor?—Yes.

1444. Did you find money expected for that too?—No, though I believe of late years something of that sort has crept in. 14 years ago I was elected and I found a custom for every labouring man to have half-a-crown for his day's work, and to spend something for a breakfast.

1445. What is the custom?—The year before last when I was a candidate also, I was told as much as 1*l.* a man was paid, that is 4*l.* for the four on one side was paid. I have reason to believe that a great deal of money was spent on one side. I did not take the trouble to canvass. I was particularly requested to take up a question in the town council on behalf of some water works that we had erected. I was told it was unnecessary to canvass having been in the council so long I had not reason to be afraid of not being elected.

1446. Do you consider that the corruption of Totnes originated in the municipal elections or in the elections to return members to Parliament, which do you believe was the origin of it?—They were pretty much simultaneous.

1447. We know that bribery had begun in 1839 for members of Parliament, and yet you say there was no bribery at municipal elections except this one three years ago, or except the half-crown a day?—Except the half-crown a day.

1448. Do you know when the bribery originally commenced in the municipal elections three or four years ago?—Within the last seven years.

1449. You say the bribery for members for Parliament commenced at the municipal elections?—I was alluding to the half-crown and the breakfast.

1450. It is both sides that bribed equally at the municipal elections?—I believe, lately, bribery has been far more on the Conservative side; I have every reason to believe it.

1451. Was that the reason of the majority of Conservatives in the council?—Yes, that is one. The principal is this, when soliciting in the committee room, and the list of polling came, many voted for the last four Conservatives who would have voted for me if it had not been for peculiar circumstances and influence and the advantage of this money.

1452. They believed you would be short coming?—They would have had nothing from me.

1453. If you had treated them as the other side they would have voted for you?—If there had not been any bribery at all, 20 or 30 would have voted for me.

1454. Do you know any of the voters, who voted at the municipal election against you as a Conservative member, who voted in the Parliamentary election for the Liberals?—No, not as a body, I do not suppose there were.

1455. You think they go pretty well together in municipal matters and political?—Yes.

1456. Is it your opinion, generally then, that the corruption of Totnes commenced as long as you have known it?—When I told you I heard of a man being offered a horse and cart, that was in 1837; that was the first thing I ever heard.

1457. To what cause do you attribute Totnes suddenly becoming corrupt?—I believe the principal thing that gave an impetus to it was when Mr. Baldwin came down here and bought an estate, and I think there was a reading room opened for whist parties, originally called Crockford's; at that time the political meetings were at the inn and were called Punch's meetings, and people began to think there was going to be a lot of money.

1458. You attribute the corruption of Totnes in the beginning to Mr. Baldwin?—I think that was it.

1459. And then continued on by both parties successively since?—Yes.

1460. Successfully?—And successfully.

1461. Have you any notion within 10,000*l.*, how much money has been given for corruption in Totnes within the last 15 years?—No, I cannot say.

1462. Think it over, and find how much Totnes benefited by having the privilege of returning two members to Parliament?—I have always argued that Totnes would be better without it.

1463. How much money do you think has gone to the good in the last 15 years owing to this privilege?—A couple of thousand pounds on an average of four elections.

1464. Do you say 10,000*l.* or 15,000*l.* is all the that benefit Totnes has got from this privilege within the last 15 years?—I do not know.

1465. Suppose I said 100,000*l.* within the last 15 years?—I do not know.

1466. Do you think 50,000*l.*?—I should think 50,000*l.* would be the outside of it.

1467. (Mr. Bere.) What do you think the effect has been of the Duke of Somerset having a large landed property outside of Totnes, and having Bridgetown, and being able by means of that to create votes, do you think that has been the cause of the party against whom he was acting having had recourse to bribery in order to maintain their position in the town?—No, I should not think that, I think the Duke of Somerset, as far as I am individually concerned, has been acceptable to the voters.

1468. I do not mean that, but the fact of a person who was a Liberal being able to command a very large quantity of Liberal votes, would that, in your judgment, render it necessary for the parties opposed to him to resort to unjustifiable means to get votes?—Perhaps it was so; but I think in two or three elections they have been resorted to in an unjustifiable way, because, seeing the majority at the last election the Tories were not justified in bringing two forward.

1469. Not to benefit the town of Totnes?—I should have been uncommonly glad if they had not.

1470. You would like to see Totnes disfranchised?—I should like to see it purer than it is.

1471. Do you know the expression "following "in the chains?"—That is meant to allude to the Duke of Somerset's influence, that he drives his tenants to the poll. I believe there is a great deal of bosh about it. I believe no great number have been turned out.

1472. Who is the Duke of Somerset's steward at the present time?—I believe Mr. Jeffery Michelmore; his father is dead.

1473. Mr. Jeffery Michelmore?—Yes.

1474. Mr. Tom Michelmore?—Was the steward.

1475. After the election did any who voted against the duke's influence not get turned out?—I have heard Mr. Jeffery Michelmore say that, "No tenant "who sold his vote for money shall remain on our "property."

1476. That is the purity principle?—Yes.

1477. (Mr. Coleridge.) If they voted on the Conservative side without receiving money, did they stay in?—Yes.

1478. Do you believe that?—I do not.

1479. You really consider that Mr. Michelmore must have an extensive knowledge of all those bribed and will be able to tell everything?—Put the question again.

1480. Mr. Michelmore says, if he knows they receive money for their votes he turns them out?—Yes.

1481. He must know them then?—If he has reason to believe.

1482. (Mr. Longe.) That would be conclusive evidence, any tenant voting for a Conservative would be conclusive evidence that he had been influenced?—Yes, if he had not been on that side before.

1483. I suppose by parity of reasoning anybody who voted on the Conservative side who had voted for you at the former election must have been bribed?—Yes.

1484. Do you know there have been many cases where tenants have been given notice to quit after an election?—Yes.

1485. You say it would be so thoroughly known

THIRD DAY.

Mr. P. Condy.

25 Aug. 1866.

that any tenant who gave a vote against the party would be bribed?—Yes.

1486. That would be sufficient evidence for Mr. Michelmore to act upon?—He would act upon his own judgment.

1487. That would be the natural consequence, that any tenant of the duke's voting for the other party would be supposed to be bribed?—There have been many voters living on the duke's property who have voted for the Conservatives who have never been molested. Capt. Rogers has lived in the duke's house and others.

1488. Give us a name or two?—Capt. Rogers, he was one.

1489. Was he a tenant of a Bridgetown house before the passing of the Reform Bill?—No.

1490. (Mr. Bere.) Do you suppose that Mr. Michelmore exercised the power of turning them out on suspecting them to be influenced by money. Do you think the duke ever knew anything about it?—I do not suppose he did.

1491. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know of the names of the different people who have been turned out by Mr. Michelmore since the last election, or since the election of 1863?—If you have any there that you can read I will tell you yes or no.

1492. Mr. John Tucker?—No, I do not recollect.

1493. Mr. Briggs, he was turned out?—Yes.

1494. William Harris?—I do not know him.

1495. Was he turned out?—I do not know.

1496. William Hannaford?—I do not know William Hannaford.

1497. Thomas Mitchell?—Yes.

1498. John Benwell?—It must have been a meadow taken from him.

1499. William Ellis?—Yes.

1500. James or John Willis?—I do not recollect.

1501. William Willis?—Yes.

1502. William Byne?—Yes.

1503. Robert Lake?—Yes.

1504. Did he vote against the duke?—I believe he did.

1505. And upon the assumption that he voted against the duke Mr. Michelmore conceived that he was bribed?—Yes.

1506. Those were all turned out?—Yes.

1507. Does the same system go on on the Gerston property?—I do not know.

1508. Then Mr. Baldwin has been mentioned, used he to turn out anybody on the Gerston property who voted against him?—I do not know.

1509. Mr. Turpin, was he one of those turned out of doors?—Yes.

1510. And Thomas Blackler?—I do not know.

1511. Robert Lake, was he turned out by the duke?—I do not know.

1512. Lewis John Oldreive, has he been turned out by the duke?—I do not know that he rented anything of the duke.

1513. William John Wakeham Bastard?—He lives in his own house.

1514. William Ash of Bridgetown, do you know anything about him?—His house is not the duke's house.

1515. May I take it as far as you know that several who voted against the duke in 1863 were turned out of their houses?—If they were supposed to have sold their votes for money.

1516. Is it not the fact that every single man who voted for Mr. Dent for 1863 (the Bridgetown electors) who was a tenant of the duke's, was turned out of his house?—I do not know a man. Captain Rogers was in the duke's house at the time.

1517. (Mr. Longe.) Were there no other persons of any position amongst these men?—I do not recollect, at the time.

1518. (Mr. Bere.) I have got the names of all who voted; George Griffis does he live in a house of his own?—He did live in a house of the duke's.

1519. Is he turned out of the land too?—I do not know. I suppose so.

1520. George Robins Stone, has he been turned out?—I do not know that he was in the duke's house.

1521. Was he in a house of his own?—I do not know who the house belonged to.

1522. Is there anything else you would like to tell us with regard to the borough?—No, I do not know that there is. On the note, I was invited to give any information I could about the municipal elections.

1523. What in your judgment has been the reason of the change in the municipal elections from the Liberals having the majority to the Conservatives having it?—I believe for the last seven or eight years the Liberal registration has been very much neglected; on the Conservative side the rating has been watched; people have been put on the rate and they have been kept on the rate in the registration court, and the majority was got in that way.

1524. Have you been present at a municipal registration?—Sometimes I have been, not much.

1525. Who did attend to it for the Liberals?—Mr. Brooking Cuming; then it was neglected, and Mr. Windeatt did it afterwards.

1526. Of late years has it been paid for by Mr. Pender?—I do not know.

1527. You have not heard of it?—No.

1528. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose this might have taken place. You do not suppose the Liberal registration has been neglected as regards the parliamentary return?—I do not think it has.

1529. How do you account for the Liberals neglecting one and not the other?—Mr. Cuming has been blamed by one party for having neglected it, and he has expressed himself that the list had gone back very much.

1530. Who has attended to it on the part of the parliamentary revision before the revising barrister?—Generally they have had an attorney from Plymouth.

1531. Who is that?—Mr. Edmonds; Mr. Beer and Mr. John Daw on the other side.

1532. He did not attend the municipal registration?—Two or three years ago I recollect his being there once.

1533. Did Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Beer attend at all at the municipal registration?—Two or three years ago; it was one year I do not know which.

1534. I do not suppose you neglected it?—It is only a day. The working it throughout the year is the thing. I was about to say with regard to those elections if I may throw out an idea some gentleman may take it up with regard to an alteration in the mode of voting. It is worth while to consider whether the principle adopted in the elections for guardians should not be pursued.

1535. What is the Conservative majority of the council at present?—We are only two out of 16. I recollect since we have been in the council we had one Conservative.

1536. (Mr. Longe.) In the good old times?—We did the best we could, for we made him mayor twice following.

1537. (Mr. Bere.) In your judgment has the influence of those 14 years been produced by fair means or improper means?—I think to a great extent by improper means. When Mr. Rennie came here as a candidate he laid it down that in order to win boroughs for the Conservative side you must go forward and win the municipal elections; and I believe that up to this time his advice has been well acted up to.

1538. (Mr. Coleridge.) It has not had an effect as regards the parliamentary elections yet?—No.

1539. (Mr. Bere.) It raised the demand?—What for?

1540. By the liberal stimulus given to the municipal elections it has increased the desire on the part of the voters at parliamentary elections?—No doubt it has.

Mr. WILLIAM BENTALL sworn and examined.

1541. (Mr. Bere.) What are you?—I am a wine and spirit merchant and a cider merchant.

1542. You have lived in Totnes many years?—All my life.

1543. And you know the condition of the borough since 1810?—I was a boy in 1810, but I remember a circumstance which occurred in 1810.

1544. With regard to the election?—With regard to the parliamentary representation on the 21st of September 1810, which was the mayor choosing day; the representative then who was considered the representative for the town died, that was Mr. William Adams of Bowden, it was reported in the hall that he was dead, that I remember.

1545. At that time were the freemen the only voters for the borough?—They were the only voters. I will endeavour to explain to you what was the nature of the charter under which we acted: it was a charter of Queen Elizabeth, and the corporation consisted of a mayor who was one of the masters and councillors; the masters were not separate from the councillors, but they were called masters and councillors. There were 14 masters and councillors, or aldermen as they were generally called, and an unlimited number of freemen. The freemen were elected by the mayor and masters and councillors and they had the power to elect as many as they pleased; and originally the masters and councillors were elected by the resident freemen, not as Mr. Presswell said by the freemen common, but only by what are called commorantes in villâ, and whenever a vacancy took place it rested with the mayor and the aldermen and resident burgesses and they elected another, but I must also say that the aldermen themselves having been elected to their seats did not lose their burgesships but still voted as burgesses.

1546. When a freeman was nominated and made by the mayor, and masters, and councillors, did it require a majority only in the council and the corporation, or was it a certain number of votes to be obtained for the man to be elected?—No, there were 14 aldermen; a court must consist of eight, a majority, and it could not be formed without eight being present as a majority of the whole body, and then the majority of the whole body being present, the majority of those present could elect a burgess; but I must also say you asked Mr. Presswell a question yesterday, whether it would be possible for the mayor and the majority of the aldermen to elect any number of freemen; they could do so, but those freemen would not vote for members of Parliament till they had been elected at least one year.

1547. Was that expressly mentioned in the charter?—I do not think it was expressly mentioned in the charter, but I believe there was a special Act of Parliament to prevent the making of faggot votes, and that affected not only the persons who were elected to the franchise, but also persons who purchased their franchise in the other boroughs where the qualification depended on tenure or freehold property, and so forth; and I believe a 40*s.* freeholder could not vote for members of Parliamemt (before the Reform Act) unless he were a holder for 12 months, or unless he inherited it from another person.

1548. Supposing that before the election of an alderman one was proposed as a fit person to become an alderman, was it possible for the majority of the aldermen present at a court to nominate a sufficient number of freemen to turn the election towards that person whom the majority wished to have in the court?—I do not know whether it was or not. That Act, I believe, was a special Act as regards members of Parliament; I never knew it acted on.

1549. You never knew it acted on?—I never knew it acted on.

1550. You know of elections from 1810 to the time of the passing of the Reform Bill; have you no reason to believe there was any bribery that took place at any of those elections?—I never heard of any. Some persons brought a charge against one gentleman who was a retired paymaster in the army, and who was very poor and had a very large family, and there was a subscription made amongst the other persons in the town to give him so much a year, but it was by no means considered as a bribe for his vote or anything of the sort, but it was thrown out whenever he did vote, "Yes, you are bribed," and so forth. That is the only instance I ever heard of.

1551. Who was that?—He was a Mr. Moore.

1552. As far as I understand Mr. Presswell, and I do not know whether you agree with him or not, there was no political contest, all the candidates were the same way of thinking?—Generally speaking;—I do not mean to say they always voted in Parliament in the same way, but it was quite as likely that a person who had Tory feelings would support the Whigs, and the Whigs would support the Tories in this town. Party feeling did not run high at all; it was who should return their members, and it went a great deal in that way.

1553. We have heard that there were three parties in the corporation?—The fact was this; that before the year 1812 the Duchess of Bolton, through her agent here, had been in the habit of returning one member. The last member so returned by her interest was Mr. Benjamin Hall, the father of the present Lord Llanover, and he continued to represent Totnes till 1802, when I must say that after the death of Mr. Adams, as soon as Parliament met and the writ was issued, Mr. Courtenay was elected without opposition. He was the brother-in-law of Mr. Adams, of Bowden, and there was not the slightest opposition; but at the general election of 1812, the Bolton interest nominated Mr. Anderton as a candidate; another party in the town composed of the Taylor family, and one or two others, proposed a Capt. Seymour; I do not know that he was any connexion of the present member, he was a captain in the navy; Mr. Courtenay was also a member, and Mr. Wise who held the property the Duke of Somerset now holds, or a great deal of the manor of Little Totnes and the tithes great and small, and a good deal of land, was another candidate; and Mr. Courtenay and Mr. Wise were elected and the Bolton candidate was thrown out and also Captain Seymour, who was at the bottom of the poll.

1554. The three parties, at that time, were—the party representing the Bolton interest, the party at the head of whom was the Taylor family, and the party at the head of whom was Mr. Adams?—Yes.

1555. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was the Bolton interest?—The last Duchess of Bolton had part of Little Hempson and a good deal in the neighbourhood, and her steward was formerly Mr. Lane, and afterwards Mr. Farwell. The Duke of Bolton had then two daughters, one of whom married the first Marquis, afterwards Duke of Cleveland, formerly Earl of Darlington. At her death the property was divided between her eldest son then Lord Barnard and Lady Sandwich.

1556. He is the Lord Barnard of whom Mr. Presswell spoke yesterday who stood twice for Totnes?—Yes; and he afterwards succeeded his father as Duke of Cleveland.

1557. We have heard of late years very little of the Cleveland property at all?—After the year 1812, shortly after the Duchess of Bolton died and the Farwell interest having lost the election, there appeared an end of their interest here; but still they had considerable influence in the borough, and some little time afterwards they put forward one who was also a friend of my family and of the Marshalls, and who was a man very well known in the political world, Mr. William Holmes, a whipper-in in the House of Commons; he remained here some time, and when the Farwells brought forward her brother-in-law, Mr. Dent and he continued member for Totnes.

THIRD DAY.

Mr. W. Bentall.

25 Aug. 1866.

1558. (Mr. Bere.) The party to which you and the family of the Marshalls belonged, was that the Adams party?—Yes.

1559. Either of those two parties by joining together could always return its member at pleasure?—Yes; in 1812 they did not.

1560. That is, the Bolton interest and the Farwell interest was defeated?—Yes.

1561. Did you find the same influence prevailed in the corporation as prevailed in the Parliamentary elections in the borough at the same time?—Certainly.

1562. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did the Duke of Somerset acquire the Bridgetown property?—It has been in the Seymour family for a great number of years.

1563. More than this century?—Oh dear, yes, very much.

1564. It was sold by the Pomeroys to the Seymours?—I really cannot pretend to say anything about that. The Pomeroys were attainted. I am not sure about it; but I must also mention what I do not think you seem to be aware of; that the property which Mr. Wise had in this parish of Totnes, which was sold to the Duke of Somerset, I believe was sold before the Reform Act, and the Duke of Somerset had not only the Bridgetown property but a great deal of property in Totnes, upon which he began to make votes by erecting linnies, and it is not only Bridgetown that gives him influence in the borough, but also this side of the river. He bought the castle first of all and the property connected with it.

1565. He could not make many votes out of that?—He could make some. He bought the Wise property and the rectory house where Mr. Huxham lives, and several fields there; he bought a great many fields in other parts of the parish that belonged to Mr. Wise. He bought the property called the Inglewood property and several fields, that gives him many votes.

1566. Votes which he has created?—Which he has created.

1567. By building on the land?—Yes; and other property besides, one from a Mr. Tooke, and another from Mr. Searle, and of many parties he has purchased in order to get as much land as he could in the parish; Mr. Presswell omitted to mention there are several other properties besides the Bowden property that are not all in the parish of Totnes, a great deal of it is in the parish of Ashburton and several others; one is Mr. Cary's property, and one, Broomborough, which formerly belonged to Mr. Rudd.

1568. Who is the owner of Broomborough?—Mr. Phillips.

1569. Who was the owner of it from the passing of the Reform Bill?—Mr. Rudd.

1570. At the time of the passing of the Reform Bill, do you remember the Boundary Commissioners coming down?—Yes.

1571. Did they come down to settle and examine the boundaries?—I do not think they troubled themselves much about the boundaries. There was a good deal of jobbing about the Boundary Act. I mention that with regard to this borough, but I know of several others precisely in the same way.

1572. At the time of the passing of the Reform Bill what in your judgment was the interest used to have the boundaries settled as they afterwards existed?—I cannot tell that, that was settled in London.

1573. But it was not settled by taking any centre and drawing a certain line at a fixed radius round it?—No; if you look out of this window straight down, you will see the property belonging to the Champernowne family, close under the windows here, which is not in the borough, and then, if you look over that, you will see on the other side of the river a number of small linnies built upon property that is in the borough, that is in another hundred.

1574. Suppose you are taking a radius of a mile from this place,—that portion of the parish of Dartington would have been included?—Yes; and a great deal of Little Hempson.

1575. Mr. Champernowne's was the manor?—Yes.

1576. Can you form any judgment as to the number of votes which would have been given by drawing a line in that way I have described in the parish of Dartington and Little Hempson?—It depends on whether the owners of the property acted in the same way as the Duke of Somerset did.

1577. The owners of the property might have created as many votes as they liked?—I cannot say so much.

1578. In proportion?—They would have been able to create a great many, but, still, consider that the Dartington property was not then belonging to the Champernownes, it belonged to the Duke of Somerset.

1579. Did it belong to the duke at the time of the Reform Bill?—I cannot say.

1580. Little Hempson, who does that belong to?—To the Duke of Cleveland, the late Lord Barnard, who was the member for Totnes, and at one time was opposed to his father in politics. His father was a Whig and his price for assisting the passing of the Reform Bill was a Marquisate and afterwards a Dukedom.

1581. Lord Barnard was a Conservative?—Yes; he had been member for Saltash, but he supported the Reform Act in the House of Lords though it disfranchised several of his own places in Cornwall, Camelford and Saltash.

1582. At the time the boundaries were fixed was there any agitation?—No; the Reform Act was carried by such a majority that Lord Grey's Government did just what they pleased.

1583. It was long after the registrations?—The only alteration was this, that in the first Bill they passed Totnes in Schedule A, but, upon the representations made, there were some commissioners who came down with regard to the taking of the boundaries, and they took not only the population but also the number of houses at a certain rental, and also the amount of assessed taxes which were paid by the inhabitants, and taking them and also the number of inhabitants which were added to the borough by including Bridgetown, in the borough, they raised the whole average above some other boroughs which were previously placed in Schedule B.

1584. You said Schedule A, do you mean that or Schedule B?—No, Schedule B, it was to have one member taken from it.

1585. At that time was there any resident population on the Dartington portion of the parish?—Not much.

1586. Were there a good many houses at Bridgetown at that time?—Yes.

1587. It was a large village?—There were many of the houses much smaller than many houses that have been built since.

1588. There was a population of 790 at Bridgetown and there were a good many houses?—Yes.

1589. It was not the only large village in the neighbourhood near to Totnes that could have been included in it, lying within a radius of a mile?—No.

1590. If you had taken a radius of a mile it would have had a smaller population within it than it ultimately could have got?—Oh no; a radius of a mile would have taken in Bridgetown.

1591. Would it have left out any of the parish of Totnes?—I do not think it would have left out a single dwelling house.

1592. If they had taken a radius of a mile in that way they would have got a larger population than by the arrangement they seem to have adopted; they would have included in that area a larger population than they ultimately did?—Yes.

1593. A great part of the manor of Bridgetown that was brought in had very few houses upon it?—Beyond the town of Bridgetown there are scarcely any, it is all fields.

1594. Do you remember the election since the Reform Bill, I believe the first election at which Cornish and Parrott were elected was a singularly pure one?—I would correct something Mr. Presswell said yesterday upon that point. He said that Lord Boringdon was a Conservative. He was not a Conservative, but he was brought forward by the Duke of Somerset's agent, Mr. Blount, who canvassed for him.

1595. At that time was Mr. Blount the agent for the property here?—He was agent for the property in Totnes, and Mr. Michelmore was agent for the property in Bridgetown.

1596. That was the Mr. Blount who afterwards got in?—Yes; who married Lady Charlotte Seymour.

1597 Was Mr. Festing also agent for the Duke of Somerset?—I do not know.

1598. Mr. Blount had nothing to do with the property?—No; I believe it gave great offence to the duke and Lady Charlotte, and there was a coolness between him and the family, but I may also say I believe the reason Lord Seymour did not come forward was this, he was very unpopular at the time in the town, inasmuch as he opposed the Reform Bill when member for Okehampton.

1599. Okehampton is in Schedule A?—Yes; Lord Barnard was brought forward as a warming pan for him.

1600. (Mr. Longe.) Lord Barnard is a Conservative, I understand?—No, after he succeeded to the title of Lord Moray he was a member of the Whig administration.

1601. (Mr. Bere.) Then as to the election of 1837, the election at which Sir George Adams was a candidate?—I was the person who, it was said, offered the horse and cart.

1602. Sir George Adams, it was said?—No, it was I; I will tell you the whole of the facts. I canvassed without Sir George Adams, and called on a man of the name of John Hannaford, he was not at home, and we asked for his vote; his wife said he should come down and see me, and accordingly in the course of the evening he came down to see me. He began talking and said I wanted to see him; I began to suspect that he was sent down as a trap to me, and I believe he was, and I determined to let him go on a little and tickle him; I found he was acting as a carter for somebody, and had a very great inclination. I said I suppose you would like to drive a horse and cart, that is the thing that you mean; well he did, he said; I let him go on as far as I possibly could; I said, "I can say nothing about it, but you had better think a little of it"; he went on the strength of that and told the party that I had offered him a horse and cart, and they believed it, at least I suppose so, for I heard a great deal of it. I distinctly denied it to the chairman afterwards, and I deny it now.

1603. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had money been going on the other side?—No, Sir, there never was anything of the sort.

1604. I mean on the Liberal side?—No.

1605. On either side?—I never heard of any bribery or anything of the sort at the time.

1606. When do you put the commencement of bribery in Totnes?—I think that the first bribery to any extent, I do not know the extent of it, nor do I know of any of it, but from what I have heard I should think that the first time bribery took place was when Mr. Baldwin first contested the borough.

1607. Then both parties seem to be agreed that Mr. Baldwin is the origin of all the evil?—I think he was perfectly met by the other party.

1608. But he began it?—No, I do not know that he began it. The first time he was a candidate both parties bribed. No doubt about it; that is my belief.

1609. Who was the candidate who was against him?—My memory does not serve me there.

1610. Mr. Blount was in the Seymour interest which had always been able to return a member without any agency before?—Mr. Blount was the first person who contested the election with Mr. Baldwin; it was a single election.

1611. I suppose that Mr. Blount at that time had the Seymour interest?—He was not, I think, quite friendly with the Seymours.

1612. Not at that time?—No, I am not quite sure if he is still, and I do not think he was on very good terms with the Duke of Somerset's agent, for he interfered much more than Mr. Michelmore liked, and he had not so much influence as he thought he had; but I know that he exerted that interest very much, and I saw him drive one man to the poll.

1613. (Mr. Bere.) Did he send a good many more by the tempting bait of his golden magnet?—I cannot say whether he did or not. I had nothing to do with him.

1614. Was it not the fact that at that time Lord Seymour's tenants were left to do pretty much as they liked till it was found necessary to buy them on the one side or the other?—No, I believe the Seymour tenants were obliged to vote as Mr. Blount and Mr. Michelmore chose to let them.

1615. Do I understand you to say that Mr. Michelmore was not friendly with Mr. Blount?—No, perhaps not.

1616. Do you mean the tenants voted for Mr. Blount?—I do not know that they did, but they were as much afraid of Mr. Blount as of him.

1617. Since that period in respect to what Mr. Presswell has said, is there any reason to differ from him as to the extent which bribery has been carried on in the borough of Totnes?—I really know nothing about the extent to which it has been carried on.

1618. You never offered any?—No, I never did offer any; the only person that I ever canvassed or that I have ever had any reason to know received a bribe was an old man who used to work for me and Mr. Cuming, and while he worked for Mr. Cuming he used to give one vote to Mr. Cuming's friend and one vote to my friend, but it was not for years after all this took place that I learned he had been in the habit of taking a douceur from each party.

1619. Did you ever learn what the amount of the douceur was?—No.

1620. You have no reason to doubt that there has been a great deal of money spent?—I believe there has, I only know it from general hearsay.

1621. That is pretty consistent with regard to the fact that large sums of money have been spent?—I have every reason to believe it. I do not think so much would have been said about it without there was some truth in it.

1622. And Lord Seymour's influence has been increased by the purchases the Duke of Somerset has made?—It has been increased.

1623. That peculiar mode of creating votes, once began, it continued, and it has been continued up to this time?—I cannot say. The Duke of Somerset never attempted to make any before the Reform Bill.

1624. Mr. Blount was opposed in the municipal elections, and could not get a freeman nominated?—He had no influence, he had very little to say to the town; he seldom came here except for a very short time. The late duke spent very little money in the town, and more than that he had little or no influence with the persons who had power in the borough; the property gave none.

1625. The property gave no power in the borough?—No.

1626. How soon after the passing of the Reform Bill did the manufacture of votes begin?—I cannot tell; people began to feel their way, they began to read the Reform Bill and to see how the different feelings of the different classes were, and they found out that ever so small a building with land would give a vote, and they began to divide, and so forth.

1627. Can you form any idea at the present time what number of voters are voters on fictitious qualifications compared with those who vote for houses that they live in?—Now?

1628. Yes?—I really know so little of the register that I can hardly give an answer, but from what little I do know I think half of the present persons on the register are made voters in that manner, which I never considered was contemplated by the framers of the Act.

THIRD DAY.
Mr. W. Bentall.
25 Aug. 1866.

1629. (Mr. Longe.) Was the duke much in the town?—Very seldom.

1630. How is the town advantaged by him at all?—He bought a large house and gave it as a reading-room, and then he gives tickets to any person who chooses to go there and attend the reading-room. He has instituted a mechanics' institute.

1631. (Mr. Bere.) Free trade in thought?—Yes; there is another thing, talking about free trade it was said by Mr. Presswell yesterday that Peregrine Courtenay may be called a Tory of the old school, so far from being that he was a most decided free trader in corn; he also supported the Roman Catholic Relief Bill, and he was a follower of Canning and Huskisson, and not what we may call an old Tory.

1632. How long have you been a member of the corporation, since the Municipal Corporation Act?—I was elected the day after I was of age.

1633. That is of the old corporation?—Yes.

1634. Have you been a member ever since?—No. I was elected a freeman in January 1824, and I continued to be first freeman, and then alderman of the old corporation till the Municipal Corporation Act came into force. Since that I have been four times elected councillor and once alderman, and I am now an alderman.

1635. How many times have you been mayor?—Only once.

1636. (Mr. Coleridge.) How often can you be mayor?—As often as the council choose to elect me, but I believe you cannot be compelled to serve more than once.

1637. (Mr. Bere.) Unless there is nobody else?—Yes, I do not know that that is the case, but I have heard so.

1638. It is not until within the last three or four years that the Conservatives have had a majority?—Yes, they had.

1639. How long have they had a majority?—They had it many years ago, and lost it again.

1640. When was that, during Mr. Baldwin's time?—I will tell you in a moment. In the year 1848, Mr. George Farwell was elected mayor.

1641. What was the state of the party in the council then?—I can hardly tell. There was a majority on the Conservative side, or he would not have been elected.

1642. Mr. Condy said although there were 15 Liberals to one Conservative, they used their privilege by making the one Conservative mayor twice in succession; therefore it does not follow that because Mr. Farwell was made mayor that there was a majority of Conservatives?—But there was.

1643. (Mr. Coleridge.) When you were elected mayor the majority was on the other side?—I was elected unanimously.

1644. But there was a majority on the other side?—No.

1645. Not a majority of Liberals?—No, I think not.

1646. Just think a moment. What were the component parts of the council?—I cannot recollect. I recollect things better that occurred a longer time ago.

1647. Mr. Presswell had the same failing?—We recollect things that happened in our youth better than things that happened lately.

1648. (Mr. Bere.) You have heard the account that Mr. Condy gave of the reasons for the change in the constituent parts of the council?—I did not quite agree with what Mr. Condy said.

1649. Tell us in what you differ?—What did he say?

1650. He said he believed the introduction of the Conservative element, in its present great extent, into the council was owing to improper means?—I do not believe it. I believe it is owing to a general feeling among the lower classes who have votes for the council but not for the members of Parliament, that they had excluded men who had a fair right to represent them in the borough.

1651. Do you attribute to the different constituencies any improper influence?—I think there was a great deal of alteration in consequence of the manufacture of votes for the parliamentary election which had disqualified men for the municipal. They had thrown two or three tenures into one to make a parliamentary vote, and by that means disqualified some of the municipal ones.

1652. (Mr. Coleridge.) Then what we have heard is contrary to the fact, that they had split up one vote into a great many?—That is upon the tenure of land. A man renting one field of 30*l.* or 40*l.* a year, had it split up into three to make three parliamentary votes, but I am speaking now of the municipal voters where there was a household tenure, where three persons rented parts of a small house which gave a household tenure, they threw the whole into one, and made the others lodgers, and by that means gave a parliamentary vote, whereas they disqualified two for the municipal.

1653. (Mr. Bere.) Still your burgess roll contains many more names than the parliamentary roll?—Because a household tenure of 40*s.* a year will give a vote. If a man rents the smallest cottage in the world provided it is a house which he can call a house, it gives him a municipal vote.

1654. The class of electors that are let in to vote at the municipal elections are less accessible to the influence of a bribe than those for the parliamentary election?—I do not know that. I should think they are more. The lower the grade the more open they are to a bribe I should say.

1655. Have you found that bribery has been exercised at the municipal elections?—I do not know that it has. I have no reason to say it has.

1656. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you anything to attribute to the Conservative influence becoming stronger in the lower orders?—I think they have become more Conservative.

1657. You think they are becoming more Conservative?—Yes.

1658. Whether in principle or from thinking that certain respectable people in the town ought to be elected?—Both.

1659. Do you mean from the personal influence that some people have got, or do you think the political feeling of the people is that way?—I think it is the general feeling, and the show of hands at all the recent elections have been given in favour of the Conservatives.

1660. You only mean elections for this borough?—Yes.

1661. They have all been in favour of the Conservatives?—At all the recent elections the show of hands was in favour of the Conservatives.

1662. You mean the voters in the borough with a parliamentary qualification are more Conservative than they were?—Yes; and more than that, although the show of hands has been mostly by persons in the town, a number of persons have been brought from a distance who have been the tenants of the Duke of Somerset and his agents, not only his tenants but Mr. Michelmore's tenants have been brought into the town (some of them Conservative, but still the majority have been of what is called the Liberal party), to vote and make a great show.

1663. Do you consider the poor class of people who have now the franchise are more Conservative than they were?—Yes.

1664. You think the lowering of the franchise would be rather a gain to the Conservatives?—Yes, if you lower the franchise the Conservatives would gain.

1665. Then you assume that the Conservatives (following out what you say) must have the most money, because you say you think the poor people are more likely to be bribed, and your hypothesis must be that the Conservatives should have the most money ?—I believe independently of that the feeling of the lower classes is more Conservative.

1666. (Mr. Longe.) Is there any spirit of opposition against the influence of the duke ?—Everybody kicks against compulsion.

1667. (Mr. Bere.) What is compulsion ?—If you were to ask me, I do not pretend to know, but I believe many of the duke's tenants have been Tories till they became the duke's tenants. I mean Conservatives.

1668. (Mr. Longe.) What is your hypothesis as to how that is brought about. The duke himself is never here except at elections ?—I heard that the late Mr. Thomas Michelmore said if he lost the last election, it was as good as his place.

1669. (Mr. Coleridge.) That may have made him more zealous ?—Yes.

1670. (Mr. Bere.) And he may have resorted to things that the duke would not have allowed ?—I do not know.

1671. (Mr. Coleridge.) There is no suspicion of his bribing ?—No, I believe not. When the Duke of Somerset was Lord Seymour, he came to a person who worked very hard in the Conservative interest. There was a fear of his being thrown out. There was a split between him and the Liberal party in this town, and there was a fear of his being turned out altogether, and he came to us and said it was a great pity there should be anything like corruption in the borough, and he would be very glad if things could be arranged.

1672. Was that in 1847 ?—I cannot tell.

1673. About? Try and fasten your mind to it. Was it at the time that a certain arrangement was come to? Was it at the time that Samson Ricardo stood ?—I cannot say the year ; but it was at the time that the arrangement was come to between the Seymour interest and the Conservative interest, of which Mr. Thomas Tracy held the memorandum.

1674. (Mr. Bere.) Were you a party to the memorandum ?—No, I never saw it I heard of it, but I was no party to it. I always kept aloof from those things ; but this I can say, something occurred shortly after that when Mr. Buller came to canvass some of the electors. There was an offer communicated to many of the Conservative party, among the rest to Jeffery Edwards who was a strong Conservative and a cousin of Charles Edwards, and also a relation of Mr. Mitchelmore. We had an offer from the Liberal party of Totnes, that if we would oppose the re-election of Lord Seymour, who was then I believe about to take office, we should be allowed to return Mr. Buller for the time, and at the next general election we might throw over Mr. Baldwin or Mr. Buller, whichever we pleased, and we should return a Liberal whom they should nominate, for they were then opposed to the Seymour interest.

1675. (Mr. Coleridge.) Were you to have the return of one Conservative ?—We had the option of Mr. Baldwin or any one, and they would join us in electing Mr. Buller if we would join in turning out Lord Seymour, and they at the next general election were to return one with us, and we were to throw over either Mr. Buller or Mr. Baldwin as we chose ; and they would return a Liberal and a man of our choice to the exclusion of the Seymour interest altogether.

1676. Is Mr. Edwards alive ?—No.

1677. (Mr. Bere.) What became of the offer ?—I will tell you why I objected to it. I told Lord Seymour when he first canvassed me, I was enough of a Tory to consider that the heir to a Peerage was a very proper man to serve his apprenticeship in the House of Commons, and as long as I had a vote for two members for Totnes and the Duke of Somerset did not interfere with the second member, but allowed the town to return one keeping his own interest aloof, I would support him, or a member of his family as the other candidate. And, therefore, I told Lord Seymour that I would not be a party to any such arrangement, inasmuch as an arrangement had been made between Lord Seymour and the Conservative party, which Mr. Tracy had.

1678. (Mr. Coleridge.) Your objection to Lord Seymour's influence was lest he should interfere in favour of another Liberal candidate ?—Yes.

1679. You had no objection to his interfering with a Conservative candidate ?—I asked him to be neutral. We did not ask him to do anything more than let us fight our own battle without his men at all. Let us fight our opponents the ultra Liberal party, and we were ready to do so.

1680. Did you ever know any instance, as we have heard, in which Lord Seymour personally or by his agents, had canvassed in favour of the Conservative party ?—I never heard of it.

1681. You never knew, by Mr. Michelmore, of his having asked for votes to be split between him and a Conservative ?—No.

1682. You do not believe that story about Ricardo ?—The first time I heard of it was in this hall. As for believing it, I may believe it as much as you believe it. I never heard of it.

1683. It has not been common rumour ?—I never heard of such a thing.

1684. You never heard it thrown in Lord Seymour's teeth about his being lukewarm as to a second Liberal member ?—I think he acted up to the arrangement between the Conservatives and himself, which Mr. Tracy held. But now I must come to what I was saying about Mr. Jeffery Edwards. When the Liberal party found they could do nothing with us, they then went to the Seymour party.

1685. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell us at all the terms of the arrangement. Was it an arrangement not to go beyond the one election, or a general arrangement for the peace of the borough in future ?—I never saw the document, nor knew the terms of it ; but the Duke of Somerset said to Samuel Hannaford in the Devon and Cornwall Bank—

1686. Is Mr. Hannaford alive ?—No ; he was a hard workman of the Conservative party, and the present Duke of Somerset said to Samuel Hannaford, "I consider it to be the basis of a future arrangement." But nothing was said in my presence, nor do I know who were the parties to the arrangement, nor the exact terms ; but the arrangement was in Mr. Tracy's hands.

1687. What was he ?—He was a respectable old gentleman, and had been a large tenant of the Duke of Somerset, and a strong Conservative in politics, but having a feeling of regard for the Seymour family was thought to be a proper person to hold this document.

1688. If that document is in existence, then it is probable Mrs. Tracy has it ?— Yes ; but I heard within these last three or four days, that she is very ill and probably not likely to recover.

1689. Was Jeffery Edwards a representative of the strong Liberal party ?—No ; he was a Conservative.

1690. Some one had come to him ?—Yes ; he said some one had come to him and given us an opportunity between the coming election and the general election of returning two members if we would join them in opposing the Seymour interest altogether.

1691. If the voters of different politics in the town had put their influence together they could have outweighed the influence of the Seymour interest in Totnes and Bridgetown altogether ?—Yes.

1692. What number of voters belonged to the Liberal party ?—I cannot say.

1693. Fifty or sixty ?—More than that ; but you must recollect at that time it was different.

1694. Is there a Liberal party and a Seymour party now ?—Yes, a strong one.

1695. Who represented that ?—There are two principal workmen ; one of them has died, and one has had an illness (Mr. Cuming), and he is not able to take an active part ; but there are other men of great respectability and position in the town.

1696. Who are they ?—Mr. Hodgson.

1697. Mr. Condy for another ?—Yes.

1698. Who else ?—Mr. Webber.

THIRD DAY.
Mr. W. Bentall.
25 Aug. 1866.

1699. Mr. Charles Webber is alive?—Yes, he resides near the town. I saw him here this morning; and there is another active man whose principles I know are decidedly on that side of the question, but he is a tenant of the Duke of Somerset, that is Mr. Holman. And Mr. Chaster.

1700. Mr. Chaster and Mr. Holman are supporters of the Seymour interest?—Not except in politics. He is a tenant of the duke; and if he should give his vote to the duke it is upon his private opinion of the matter.

1701. (Mr. Coleridge.) There was an arrangement, as, with other great men, that the duke should have one seat, and the other should be left free?—Yes, that was my wish.

1702. (Mr. Longe.) Mr. Michelmore, you say, stated that it would be worth his place?—I do not know that he said so, but I have heard it said so. It was at the time when I took no active part. I happened to be returning officer at the time. I merely heard of it afterwards. It ran very close between Mr. Dent and Mr. Seymour, who was the Duke of Somerset's nominee.

1703. In 1863?—Yes; and I heard it was said by Tom Michelmore very late in the day. He was in a terrible fidget about it; that it was as much as his place was worth to lose the election. Whether he did say so or not I cannot say.

1704. That seemed to show the duke took a great deal of interest in it?—Yes.

1705. Have you had any particular case within your knowledge showing in what way the duke's influence as landlord was ever brought to bear?—I had very little to do with it.

1706. You used strong words; you said there were parties opposed to compulsion. Is that the general notion?—Yes, it is the notion that the duke's tenants are obliged to vote as he wishes.

1707. What is your own view? Some landlords are indifferent?—I know some of the Duke of Somerset's tenants have been Conservatives till they came to take the Duke of Somerset's property, and I have heard they have expressed feelings that although they voted one way they thought another.

1708. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you heard that a large portion have been evicted because they took bribes?—I think you will find before the commission is over that a great many have been evicted who are incapable of taking bribes, and never did take bribes.

1709. (Mr. Bere.) Give me the name?—Mr. William Kellock, the surgeon, the father of our present mayor.

1710. Has he been evicted?—Yes.

1711. Where does he live?—Totnes.

1712. Let us have all those you can recollect?—John Heath. I do not know all of them.

1713. Mr. Heath is something more than an ordinary voter; he is an active man in the Conservative interest?—Yes. He has not always been so, but I believe he has been a person to stand out for his feelings, and he may have gone a little more that way.

1714. Was he a Liberal once?—Yes.

1715. When was he converted?—I do not know. His father and family were Conservatives, but he was at one time a Liberal.

1716. How long did that Liberality continue?—I do not know.

1717. (Mr. Coleridge.) How long a Liberal phase had he in his existence?—I believe as long as his father-in-law lived, but I cannot tell.

1718. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell us anyone else, any other names?—There were several others, but I forget now who they were.

1719. Does Mr. Michelmore do what he likes with regard to those things, without the interference of the duke?—I do not know whether there is any power or not behind the scenes; I cannot tell, but he appears to do what he likes here.

1720. Did you here of any instance, when the Gerston property was in Mr. Baldwin's hands, of the same course being taken, that of evicting persons?—They only put persons in that they could depend on.

1721. They used the same means, but more discreetly than the Duke of Somerset?—Yes; Mr. Baldwin bought the property on purpose to make votes of it.

1722. Since the purchase of the property, has there been any change in the tenants?—One of the tenants, always on the Conservative side, the moment the duke bought it, turned over to the Liberals.

1723. What is his name?—Robert Earle.

1724. Is Mr. Michelmore agent for others?—I think for Lord Cranstoun and Sir Lydston Newman, but perhaps I may be wrong.

1725. Do you know of Mr. Michelmore letting farms to tenants, to those people who are supporters of the duke?—No; but he deals with tenants over whom he has control.

1726. Have Lord Cranstoun and Lord Macclesfield property in the borough?—Lord Macclesfield certainly has not; whether Lord Cranstoun has or not I do not know.

1727. Has Sir Lydston Newman any?—No, I do not think he has.

1728. Were you personally acquainted with Mr. Dunn and Mr. Dent?—I have had transactions with Mr. Dent, but I did not know him personally.

1729. As a China merchant?—Yes.

1730. Before he came here?—Yes, many years ago. That was in 1839 and 1840.

1731. You have had a great deal to do with the Conservative elections in the borough?—I have had a great deal to do with the Conservative interest, but not with the elections.

1732. When a candidate was wanted, were not you applied to to recommend one?—No; sometimes was introduced to them and asked the politics, and so forth, but never went into detail.

1733. When Mr. Dent came down here, were you consulted about his being brought down?—I was introduced to his friend Mr. Mitchell some little time before he was a candidate.

1734. Was Mr. Mills in a failing state of health for some time?—I never heard so.

1735. Was his death sudden, or had preparations been made in case of a vacancy?—There had been preparations made in case of a vacancy, but not for his death. It was expected that the vacancy would be by Lord Gifford.

1739. Was it in consequence of the vacancy that Mr. Dent was proposed as a candidate?—I dare say it was. I know I was sent for. No, I do not think I was sent for. I believe I happened to be going into the "Stars," when I met Mr. Heath, the landlord, and he introduced me to Mr. Mitchell as the friend of Mr. John Dent, who was coming here as a candidate.

1737. Before that you did not know Mr. Mitchell?—No.

1738. Knew nothing about his coming here?—No. When he mentioned John Dent, of the firm of Dent & Company, I knew who he was.

1739. Is that Dent, MacKillop, and Company?—No; Dent & Company. I happened to know something of the firm of MacKillop & Dent. The house of MacKillop were connected, so far as the Calcutta business was concerned, but I do not think MacKillop had anything to do with China.

1740. (Mr. Bere.) Had you heard anything of Mr. Dunn before he came here?—No; I thought it was rather an ominous name; it was Dunn, Brown, and Company.

1741. Did you look for anybody?—I never did.

1742. You were not consulted in the selection of the candidates yourself?—No. I must say this, having known Mr. Baldwin on the old corporation as a freeman of the borough, I met him on the road in a carriage and he hailed me. He spoke of Totnes, and said he was thinking of coming forward himself as a candidate.

1743. He had been a member before the Reform Bill?—Yes; and he asked me whether I thought he had any chance, and I told him I heard that a property in the town was likely to be sold, Gerston, and I thought if he were in a condition to buy Gerston and improve it by making votes upon it he might have a very fair chance. He came and consulted me and asked me whom he should speak with. I said, "You "had better speak to Mr. Charles Michelmore, the "brother-in-law of the present owner," and he accordingly came to Totnes, went to Mr. Farwell, who was his solicitor, and they and Mr. Michelmore arranged the matters for the purchase of Gerston, and he came forward.

1744. What was Mr. Baldwin?—He was a barrister and an agent in Paris (he spent a good deal of time in Paris), for the French refugees in the time of the French war.

1745. (Mr. Coleridge.) He was a man of some age?—Yes.

1746. (Mr. Bere.) Was he a man of means?—Yes, he had a good property in Ireland, and at one time he was strongly urged to become a candidate for King's County in Ireland.

1747. He spent a good deal of money here, and troubled himself a good deal with Totnes?—Yes; but Gerston was not his own, it was bought with his wife's money.

1748. Do you happen to know where Mr. Mitchell is now, whether he is in India or China?—I do not know, but I heard he was in China, he and Mr. Dent.

1749. Was Mr. Farwell the legal adviser of the Conservative party till the time of his death?—He was a strong Conservative. But I do not think they depended much upon his advice; he was not a working man.

1750. Mr. Charles Edwards was?—Charles Michelmore and Charles Edwards. After Mr. Baldwin purchased the Gerston estate Charles Michelmore joined the Conservative party heartily.

1751. He had been a Liberal before?—He was never a Liberal. You might call him a Liberal because he was a liberal man, but had Conservative views, with the exception that he was opposed to the old family government of the borough, but after he had introduced his friends, Mr. Parrott and Mr. Cornish, he and Mr. Parrott quarrelled, and he joined the Conservatives.

1752. Mr. Charles Edwards and Mr. Charles Michelmore were the legal advisers of the Conservatives?—Yes.

1753. Are they both dead?—Yes.

1754. Who succeeded them?—Mr. Thomas Kellock succeeded Mr. Charles Michelmore. Mr. Charles Michelmore took Mr. Presswell into partnership not long before his death, and at his death his son Charles Frederick Michelmore succeeded him. They were in partnership a short time, but soon dissolved, and now they are quite distinct, but both solicitors.

1755. Mr. Kellock is one of the legal advisers of the Conservatives; is not Mr. Edmonds another?—Yes; Mr. Edmonds served his apprenticeship with Mr. Charles Michelmore.

1756. Did they represent the Conservatives in the registration courts?—We generally had Mr. Daw and Mr. Beer.

1757. That is before the barrister. The municipal registration was Mr. Edmonds?—I have never interfered with the municipal registration except when I was mayor.

1758. Who appeared before you?—Mr. Edmonds, of Plymouth.

1759. On the Liberal side?—On the Liberal side, and Mr. Beer on the Conservative.

1760. Then were not they assisted by a resident solicitor?—I think not; I am not quite sure. They must have been assisted both of them by the persons who gave them their briefs.

1761. Do you know who those were on either side?—I suppose Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edwards, but there were other working men on our side and others on the Liberal side.

1762. (Mr. Longe.) You never took any part in the original invitation to the candidates on the Conservative side; the introduction to the Conservative candidate?—Never. The only one I ever had anything to do with was Mr. Baldwin.

1763. You had not any connexion of that kind with any of the later ones?—No.

1764. Do you know with whom, as a general rule, they originated. It is generally originated in the town, is not it?—I do not know anyone in the town more than another. It was through Mr. Rennie, son of Sir John Rennie, that persons have been introduced.

1765. Are you at all aware, in mentioning it to any gentleman, what information was generally given?—No.

1766. Is he generally told how much it would cost him?—I do not think anybody would know about that.

1767. (Mr. Bere.) Do any of the candidates ask you what it would cost?—I know when Mr. Mackenzie came down he wanted to know what it would cost him, and we told him we could not say.

1768. (Mr. Coleridge.) You never stood yourself for the borough?—Oh, dear no.

1769. (Mr. Longe.) You remember some of these occasions when you heard of persons coming down, surely you must have heard some idea thrown out as to the probable cost?—They asked me as to the usual amount. This Mr. Mackenzie who has been spoken about, he was introduced by Mr. Malins, who made a long speech in this hall in his favour.

1770. Mr. Malins, the Queen's Counsel?—Yes.

1771. (Mr. Coleridge.) Has he been mixed up with elections here?—No, scarcely at all, and we found that Mr. Mackenzie, though he talked very strong Conservatism to us, went among the opposite party and talked Ultra-radicalism with them, and many of our side when they found this put home questions to him, and told him that they would not support him at all, and the consequence was that he made a very poor figure on the poll.

1772. Had Mr. Malins ever been asked to stand as a candidate for Totnes?—I do not know that he has.

1773. Probably he knew too much about it?—I do not know anything about what he knew. I know this, when he was down here on a visit, I showed him a book which I had then but which I have lost since, I am sorry to say, containing many maps of the different boroughs, and telling him that the Boundary Act was the greatest job I ever heard of in my life that was passed through Parliament in the time of Lord Grey's administration, by which all the Whig landowners had their property included to the exclusion of the Conservatives of that day.

1774. (Mr. Longe.) Totnes has never recovered since?—No, nor Dartmouth either; yes, Dartmouth has, because the person whose property was affected has turned round, and turned the scale the other way.

1775. (Mr. Bere.) Do you think, in a contest, from the opposition of the town interest to the country interest, independently of politics at all, if the Duke of Somerset were Conservative would the town be Conservative?—No doubt of that if he were Conservative, and if there were two members they would both be Conservative.

1776. You think they would be?—No doubt.

1777. If the same tactics were used?—Of the three interests in the town, the duke's interest, the Liberal interest in the town, and the Conservative interest in the town, the Conservative is very nearly equal to the other two.

1778. That is not my question. Suppose the duke's interest, being now Liberal, was Conservative, would not many of the people who are Conservatives be Liberals from pure opposition to the duke's interest?—No.

1779. Has not his interest more to do with their political feeling than their own deliberate conviction?—I do not know; I cannot tell. There are many people, certainly. One man who is dead said that nothing on earth could induce him to vote for THIRD DAY. Mr. W. Bentall. 25 Aug. 1866.

Lord Seymour. That was when Lord Seymour was a candidate; he is not a Conservative.

1780. Is there anything else you would be glad to tell us?—No.

1781. Have I called attention to all you wish to say?—No, I think not. I have made some memoranda from which I wish to correct, perhaps I should say amplify, what Mr. Presswell said yesterday; I do not know that I have anything else.

1782. (Mr. Coleridge.) I should ask you this, after what you have heard from Mr. Condy, do you still maintain that there has been no bribery whatever on the Conservative side in the municipal elections the lastt en years?—I am not aware of any.

1783. You do not know of any at all?—No, I am not aware of any.

1784. I do not want your own knowledge, but whether you have heard generally?—I think it is probable there may have been; but I think I should have been called on if there had been.

1785. You paid the ordinary half-crown and breakfast, and all that?—I have been called on occasionally to pay some money for expenses, but that sum has always been very small.

1786. It is a great many years since you were first elected?—Yes.

1787. What sum of money used you to be called upon in those days to pay now and then, yearly, we will say?—I do not think I was called upon to pay much, only a few shillings.

1788. I will put it in another way. What is the amount you have been called upon to pay within the last five years? Has it increased?—No, I do not think it has.

1789. Or within the last ten years as against the ten before?—I was not in the council so many years ago.

1790. Have you been in the council the last six years?—Yes.

1791. What was the largest sum of money you have paid?—Never more than 5*l.*, that included everything.

1792. Have you paid that every year?—No, I do not think I have paid altogether for my expenses, taking the whole of it from the first to the last, 15*l.*

1793. (Mr. Bere.) Do you think that the corrupt taint that has been proved to have affected parliamentary elections here has not got into municipal elections?—I think not. I do not mean that small sums may not have been paid for a man's labour and so forth; but I do not think there has been that bribery which Mr. Condy alluded to.

1794. Do you think then that some, who ask for a large sum for their votes in case of a member of Parliament, at municipal elections require nothing at all?—Yes, I should think so.

1795. How do you account for that? Is it because they have been paid so much on the other?—I do not know.

1796. The political effect is the same; the municipal election is taken into consideration in the parliamentary?—No, I cannot tell.

1797. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you ever heard of anyone being paid a large sum?—I never knew a single soul who took a farthing.

1798. Or paid it?—No.

1799. On either side of politics?—No.

1800. (Mr. Bere.) Are the people of Totnes pretty well to do in the world? I do not mean the small shopkeepers, but the upper class of people?—Those who are in business and trade are pretty comfortably off. There are many who have private fortunes of their own.

1801. Have you ever known an instance, on either the Conservative or the Liberal side, where a subscription has been got up to defray the expenses of candidates, where a subscription has been asked for in order to carry on a contest for a parliamentary election?—There may have been.

1802. Did you ever pay a single sixpence yourself towards an election?—Not towards an election, certainly.

1803. A parliamentary election, I mean?—No, not towards a parliamentary election; towards a registration.

1804. You have paid for that?—I have paid a share when there was no Conservative candidate in the field. I have subscribed something towards defraying the expenses of the registration, nothing more.

1805. Did you ever subscribe anything towards the election itself?—No.

Mr. P. Condy.

Mr. Philip Condy, recalled.

1806. (Mr. Bere.) In 1863 were you not cognizant of some money having been spent by Mr. Alfred Seymour?—In 1863?

1807. Yes?—No.

1808. In the contest with Mr. Dent?—No.

1809. Did Mr. Alfred Seymour obtain a sum of money from the Devon and Cornwall bank that year?—Not that I know anything at all about.

1810. Did not you become guarantee for that?—No, not for his election.

1811. Did he obtain a sum of money from the Devon and Cornwall bank, never mind what for?—I do not know that he did.

1812. Did you and Mr. Thomas Michelmore give a guarantee to the bank for any sum of money at that time?—I never gave a guarantee.

1813. Did you ever hear that anybody else had given one?—No.

1814. A guarantee for any sum of money in 1863?—No.

1815. Now, Mr. Condy!—Not to my recollection. I will tell you one thing I do recollect, which is perhaps the thing you are alluding to, or may have led to it, that before the contest commenced there were some outstanding debts, all our municipal bills, and I was asked if I would advance some money, and I did, and they gave me a note of hand for it, and I was paid afterwards.

1816. What amount was that?—40*l.* or 50*l.* It had been running three or four years; that was when our party was put to heavy expenses.

1817. (Mr. Coleridge.) There was no bribery on your side?—There was none that I knew of or had to do with.

1818. How was this money spent that you advanced?—For these breakfasts that I told you of. Whether there was any bribery in it or not, done by any agent, I do not know.

1819. How many breakfasts?—I do not know.

1820. One election?—Yes, one election.

1821. 50*l.* for a breakfast?—No, it was some running bills besides.

1822. (Mr. Bere.) That is money you advanced on your own account?—Yes.

1823. Where did you get that from? From the Devon and Cornwall Bank?—I do not bank at the Devon and Cornwall Bank.

1824. Then you did not get it from there?—If I gave a cheque, it was upon the National Provincial.

1825. Where did you get it from?—It might have been money that I had in the house.

1826. You must know whence you got the money?—I do not know if I had any in the house. I usually go to the bank once a week.

1827. Have you ever given a guarantee or any security to the Devon and Cornwall Bank for any sum of money?—No.

1828. Never?—Never that I believe.

1829. Have you ever promised by word of mouth to become security for any sum of money to the Devon and Cornwall Bank?—No, not to my recollection.

1830. You must recollect that; it is not an everyday affair, the giving of a promise of that kind?—No,

I do not recollect giving a promise. Do you mean to the bank or anyone in the bank ?

1831. To the bank, the manager, or anyone for the bank.—No, I do not recollect it. I am not evading the question or fencing with it.

1832. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever lend any money to Mr. Alfred Seymour ?—No.

1833. Did you ever advance him any ?—No.

1834. (Mr. Bere.) Did you ever know the Devon and Cornwall Bank to advance money to Mr. Alfred Seymour ?—No. I beg to say that during Mr. Alfred Seymour's candidature I was never on any committee when that was done.

1835. You know a great deal can be done without being on a committee ?—Yes, so it can, but I know nothing about it.

1836. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had you ever any dealings with the Devon and Cornwall Bank in the way of business ?—No, only as connected with an annuity society.

1837. And they banked with the Devon and Cornwall Bank ?—Yes.

1838. Did that society ever advance any money to Mr. Alfred Seymour ?—No.

1839. What sort of account has this annuity society kept at the Devon and Cornwall Bank ?—Perhaps at that time we had a little running account, but now that we have a little extra money we put it out at interest.

1840. What amount had you at that time ?—I really do not know, but I can tell you in five minutes.

1841. No, about will do ?—40*l.* or 50*l.* it might have been. What was the date of the election ?

1842. January 20th, 1863.—That might have been just about the time that we got the interest from the people.

1843. And that might be money you paid into the Devon and Cornwall Bank ?—Yes.

1844. Were these running accounts that you paid off paid shortly before the election for the borough ?—I believe it was before Mr. Pender came.

1845. (Mr. Bere.) Was that before Mr. Mills died ?—No.

1846. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was the reason for paying them this, that there were several people dissatisfied that there had been these things outstanding ?—Yes.

1847. And they were probably voters ?—Some of them.

1848. Can you tell us who the persons were among whom that was distributed ?—One bill was John Sandford Screach's.

1849. What did Mr. Screach have ?—I do not know how much we owed him. I do not know the proportions of the bill.

1850. What had Mr. Screach been doing ?—He had provided a breakfast during election time. I never went into one of these houses.

1851. Is Mr. Screach opposed to you in politics ?—He had been with us up to that time.

1852. When did the conversion of Mr. Screach take place ?—I recollect him calling one day and saying, "I have never been paid my election bill, and if "it is not paid before another election comes I will "not vote for you any more."

1853. (Mr. Bere.) How much did you pay him ?—I do not know. I advanced the money but the bills never came to me.

1854. Whom did you give the money to ?—I gave the money to Mr. Cuming.

1855. Who besides Mr. Screach was paid any money ?—I dare say there was some due to the "New Inn," Mr. Gillham.

1856. Which way does Mr. Gillham vote ?—Our way.

1857. Mr. Screach is one of the converted men of Totnes ?—Yes.

1858. Mr. Gillham is not one of the converted men ?—No he is not.

1859. Who else ?—There were others who were creditors, where they had had breakfast.

1860. Mr. Screach and Mr. Gillham I suppose had voted for the Liberal party at the last municipal election before you paid this bill ?—Yes. There was a breakfast at their houses.

1861. And you anticipated that they would vote again for the parliamentary election ?—Yes.

1862. And if it had not come on I suppose there would not have been that press to advance the money ?—No, perhaps not.

1863. Who paid you ? — Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore about two months afterwards.

Mr. Samuel Huxham sworn and examined.

Mr. S. Huxham.

1864. (Mr. Bere.) What are you ?—A wholesale grocer.

1865. How long have you lived in Totnes ?—All my life time.

1866. I must ask you how long that has been ?—40 years.

1867. I suppose you can speak to the political feeling and events of the borough for the last 30 years at any rate ?—I do not know anything about an election till Mr. Mills came ?

1868. Did he come as a friend of yours ?—No.

1869. You voted on the other side then ?—No, as a Liberal. In fact that was the first election that I was at home.

1870. You were away from Totnes ?—Yes.

1871. Mr. Mills came first of all in 1852, did not he ?—About that time as near as I can remember.

1872. Where did Mr. Mills come from ?—From Hertfordshire.

1873. How was it that he came to the borough ?—I cannot tell.

1874. Did not you form one of a deputation to invite him to it ?—No.

1875. Did not you know anything of him personally till he came ?—Not in the least.

1876. Were you on his committee ?—No.

1877. Were you on the Seymour committee ?—No, I was never on any committee at an election.

1878. You were never on any election committee at all ?—Never.

1879. Did you take considerable interest in Mr. Mills election ?—I never took any part in any election.

1880. You never canvassed in any shape or way, did you ?—No.

1881. Do you know whether your father took an interest ?—He was a warm politician.

1882. Did Mr. Mills spend a good deal of money in Totnes ?—He did.

1883. Did you hear about how the money was spent ?—Never.

1884. Do you know where he got that money from ?—I suppose it was his own.

1885. Are you certain about that ?—I have no doubt about it.

1886. Did you ever hear that your father advanced him money ?—Yes.

1887. How much did he advance him ?—I cannot tell.

1888. 100*l.* ?—I cannot tell you the amount.

1889. Several thousands ?—No, several hundreds I should think.

1890. Did Mr. Charles Webber and Mr. Joseph Ferris advance several hundreds too ?—I cannot tell.

1891. You know your father did ?—Certainly.

1892. Was he repaid ?—Yes, I believe so ; I have no doubt about it.

1893. Is your father dead ? — Yes, he is dead. Since the matter was mentioned I have made inquiries and looked into the accounts and cannot find it.

1894. You do not know from these accounts that the money was repaid ?—I have no doubt about it at all.

THIRD DAY.

Mr. S. Huxham.

25 Aug. 1866.

1895. Do you know whether that money was used for the purpose of influencing the election ?—It was spent for that ; there is no doubt about that.

1896. You have no doubt in the world about it ?—Not the least.

1897. Did you yourself vote for Seymour and Mills? —Yes.

1898. What was the next election you took an interest in ?—Every election after that I voted.

1899. Did you do more than vote ?—No.

1900. Did you ever accompany the Liberal candidates as a canvasser ?—Never.

1901. Did you go with them from time to time to give them the benefit of your advice ?—No.

1902. You did not take any very great interest in it ? —I am no electioneerer ; I support the party by my vote, but I could not go canvassing or anything of that sort.

1903. Why would you not ?—Because I do not like it. I do not think it necessary ; it is not my forte. I could not go amongst people asking them to vote. I do not think there is anyone in Totnes who will lay it to my charge that I have ever asked them for their vote in any shape or fashion.

1904. Were you ever a member of the council ?—No, I was not ; my father was.

1905. How do you account for the preponderance of Conservative politics in the council and of Liberal politics in the borough ?—Only that it is done in the same manner as all elections are carried on in Totnes, by money ; there is no doubt of that. I do not believe that amongst the burgesses there is any kind of feeling one way or the other, but that it is he who will give the most who gets elected ; there can be no doubt of that.

1906. Does the same thing prevail with regard to those who are on the parliamentary roll ?—Yes ; there can be no doubt of that. At the time of the last election my father was taken ill, the expenses that came in were rather heavy and I had to pay them ; I am alluding to the municipal election.

1907. What were the expenses ?—The expenses were between 40*l.* and 50*l.* ; he was only one of the four.

1908. I suppose Totnes is divided into wards, is it not ?—No, they all vote at one place, they are all in one ward.

1909. So that you have to use your influence upon the whole 479 ?—Yes, there are four candidates. I have no doubt that most of them are much alike, and that they have had a little assistance from the member into the bargain. I have had to pay my father's share, which has been between 40*l.* and 50*l.*

1910. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know how comes it that the Conservatives have managed to manipulate the elections so much better than the Liberals ?—I really cannot give any reason for it. It is all a matter of pounds, shillings, and pence in regard to the municipal elections as well as the others.

1911. Are you able to give any solution of it ?—Not the slightest.

1912. I suppose the Liberals devote their energies more to politics ?—There are plenty of politics on both sides.

1913. (Mr. Bere.) The Liberal candidate, having been successful, has had to pay as much as he would be inclined to pay in reference to the municipal matters ?—In the time of Mr. Mills he was very liberal with his money, whether with regard to political registration or any other matters.

1914. He would always let you have as much as you wanted ?—I do not say that he would let us have as much as we wanted ; he was a very rich man ; but if he had let us have as much as we wanted he would soon have been a very poor man.

1915. (Mr. Coleridge.) As much as you wanted would be, as was said yesterday, an unknown quantity ?—Yes.

1916. (Mr. Bere.) Were you ever consulted by the Liberal party as to whom they should have for a candidate ?—Yes, I was asked to become one of a deputation to wait upon Mr. Pender, but I declined.

1917. Was his name mentioned here originally, or do you know did it come from the Reform Club ?—I think it came from the Reform Club.

1918. It did not come from Lord Seymour, did it ? —No.

1919. Do you know who was Lord Gifford's agent. Was it Mr. Windeatt ?—It was Mr. Michelmore, the same person who had managed for Lord Seymour before.

1920. At the time that Mr. Pender came to Totnes as a candidate Lord Gifford was in a dying state, was he not ?—I believe he was.

1921. Had you not heard Mr. Pender's name from Lord Gifford's agent ?—No.

1922. Are you quite certain of that ?—Yes, I am quite certain of that. When the telegram came informing us that one of our members was dead we did not believe it was Mr. Mills, we thought most likely it was Lord Gifford.

1923. But was there not an election expected ? It was known that Lord Gifford was in a very weak state and was likely to die ?—There was no one fixed upon.

1924. Were their names canvassed ?—Mr. Pender's name was not mentioned to me. I was one of the first who was consulted, but that was not until after Mr. Mills' death.

1925. Who mentioned it to you, do you remember ? —It was mentionedto me first on the bridge by one or two parties who had come from the "Seymour Arms" Hotel.

1926. Did Mr. Thomas Michelmore mention it to you ?—No. I think it was Mr. Cuming who mentioned it to me, and asked me if I would go to London with them. He had been agent for Mr. Mills and Mr. Pender when he came in first.

1927. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you go to London with the deputation ?—No, I did not.

1928. You were not one of the committee ?—No, I never was a member of any committee.

1929. Were you at all surprised at the revelations which came out before the Committee of the House of Commons ?—Not at all.

1930. (Mr. Longe.) Do you remember the first election of Mr. Mills ?—Yes, when the money was advanced, that was the first election at which I ever voted at all.

1931. I suppose they spent money as well on the other side ?—There can be no question that they spent money on both sides, the rumour was that it made Mr. Baldwin a poor man. I am alluding to the last time that he came here.

1932. You took no part at all in the last election, except as regards voting ?—That is all.

1933. Did you hear that there was a good deal of bribery taking place ?—I had nothing to do with the last election, I was not at home at the time of the nomination.

1934. Have you any acquaintance with what has been done in the way of creating votes which has been adopted here by the Duke of Somerset ?—I believe it has been done on both sides.

1935. But the duke has got the monopoly now ?—No, there is the Broomborough estate. I believe there were 28 votes upon that at one time. The Conservative party said that the votes were bad and withdrew their own, and objected to the Liberals. That was on the occasion of the last registration. The revising barrister allowed those of the company, but struck off the other voters, and the Court of Common Pleas reversed both decisions.

1936. (Mr. Coleridge.) At Lord Seymour's election in 1863 do you recollect a guarantee being given for a sum of money to the National Provincial Bank ?—Not a penny in any way. I never heard of such a thing.

1937. Or that it advanced any money to them at that election or at any other ?—No.

1938. Was there not one of the elections at which you refused to vote for Mr. Mills ?—No.

1939. When you had had some quarrel ?—No. I always voted for him, probably you might allude to Mr. Pender's election.

1940. Tell us what was that ?—I told Mr. Pender that I did not care about supporting him if Mr. Cuming was his agent, as I thought Mr. Cuming had treated us shabbily.

1941. And you declined to support Mr. Pender ?—I did not, I told him that I should not take any part in his election.

1942. Did you vote for him ?—No.

1943. Then did you vote at all ?—No.

1944. Was there any guarantee given to any bank at all ?—I never heard of any guarantee of any sort, or of any money transaction except the money which my father advanced. I never advanced any, and have never been answerable for any.

1945. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell me at what time of the election of 1852 this money was advanced by your father ?—It was before the polling-day.

1946. Can you tell us when it was advanced ?—No.

1947. Would not the bank be able to tell ?—It was not done through a bank.

1948. Then where was the money got from ?—It was taken in the ordinary course of business.

1949. You would not keep so large a sum of money as that in the house ?—We might have taken it on two or three occasions.

1950. Was it paid to Mr. Mills personally ?—No. I cannot tell you to whom it was paid, it was paid to one of his agents. I did not see the transaction, but I know that it took place, it is a long time ago.

1951. Did you ever hear your father say why he lent Mr. Mills the money ?—I suppose as a friend.

1952. But if he were a rich man he might have got the money from London ?—It might have been done to avoid future proceedings, so that Mr. Mills might come out of the matter with clean hands. I believe that is generally done so in most places.

1953. You will not say that it was done late on the polling day ?—It was some days before the election. The precise time I cannot tell you.

1954. Is there anything else that you would wish to tell us as regards that election ?—No.

1955. Either with regard to the history of the borough or in reference to what has been done at other elections ?—I have never taken any active part in the proceedings myself.

1956. Is any of the feeling that exists in the town and borough of Totnes occasioned by the fact of the country interest being opposed to the interest of the town ?—Both parties have used the country interest, the one as well as the other.

1957. I suppose that the Duke of Somerset has influenced more votes than anyone else ?—No, he does not. The people on his property are quite independent of the duke. If a man lives on one of his farms every one knows that he is almost dependent on his landlord. The duke's property has been let out to persons who may have built 10*l.* houses on it, or by means of the enjoyment of a field have done so, but he has no influence in the world with them beyond the fact that they use his land.

1958. Still he exercises a peculiar sort of influence if it is only by way of warning ?—Some of the tenants at Bridgetown it is said were warned out of their houses at the last election, but they were very few. All his land is let to first-class people, over whom he would have no more power than he would have over you.

1959. Who are these first-class people ?—Mr. Hamlyn of Buckfastleigh, and people of that class, respectable farmers, not tenants of the duke's.

1960. Would they do this out of love to the cause or love to the duke ?—Love to the duke would not influence them.

1961. In Fore Street in this town has not the duke some property ?—Very little. I do not know that he has any.

1962. That is where the principal shops are ?—Yes. I know of very few, if any, that he has in Totnes. In Bridgetown he owns a great many houses, but he he has very few houses in Totnes.

1963. (Mr. Coleridge.) When you say the duke does not influence more votes than any other person, has he not greater influence than anyone else ?—Over the individuals who vote for his property he has no influence. The duke's property is used to create a certain number of votes, but over the men who vote in respect of that property he has no influence.

1964. Then he has created the votes without knowing how they would be used ?—It would be most decidedly known that the parties are Liberals.

1965. Then we will not say the duke by name, but we will take it that Mr. Michelmore has more influence over them than anyone else ?—No, he has none.

1966. Then you think this is absolutely a pure borough ?—No, I do not, but no one can influence the duke's tenants ; the larger portion of them are independent men who are living in the neighbourhood, some farm their own estates, others are merchants.

1967. How many voters should you say are tenants of the duke ?—I should say a hundred.

1968. Is there a single person in Bridgetown who is not a tenant of the duke's ?—There are many houses in Bridgetown which do not belong to the duke.

1969. How many of this hundred on the occasion of the last election voted against the duke's candidate without being evicted ?—I cannot tell you the number.

1970. Were there twenty ?—I cannot tell.

1971. Where there ten ?—I have not the slightest idea.

1972. Were there more than five who voted against the duke who were not evicted from their holdings ?—It is a matter of opinion, and as was said by Mr. Condy, they evicted none except they thought they had been bribed.

1973. Were there five out of the hundred who voted against the duke at the last election without being turned out ?—It is impossible for me to say.

1974. Do you still adhere to your opinion that the duke influences no votes ?—If the duke has a hundred tenants on his land it is fifty to one but that 99 would vote for the Liberal party without being asked.

1975. But when Mr. Michelmore creates a vote does he not know how the person will vote ?—Yes ; he puts him in there because he is a Liberal.

1976. According to your opinion, the property influences the vote qua the land ; but neither the duke nor Mr. Michelmore has any influence ?—Not after the vote is made. They create the vote, but after it is created they have no influence.

1977. (Mr. Bere.) They will not make a man a voter who is not upon their side ?—No ; but over this class of people the duke has no influence whatever.

1978. Suppose that the Duke of Somerset were to-morrow to turn Conservative, would those men vote against him ?—Every one of them.

1979. Then would not every one of them be turned out ?—No doubt. The property no doubt makes the vote, but the duke has no control over the voters after they are made.

1980. (Mr. Longe.) Has not the duke some property in Totnes ?—He has the castle, but that is used merely as pleasure grounds.

1981. Has not the duke any houses in the streets of the town ?—Very few.

1982. He has the Gerston estate ?—That is only a farmhouse.

1983. (Mr. Coleridge.) That is a place where they made nine votes out of it ?—I believe they made 40 votes out of it, which were allowed by the revising barrister and afterwards struck out by the Court of of Common Pleas. I doubt whether there are any votes there since the company failed to establish the franchise.

1984. When did the duke buy this property, do you know ?—Some four or five years ago.

1985. And there have been no voters for Gerston

THIRD DAY.
Mr. S. Huxham.
25 Aug. 1866.

since?—There have been voters for Gerston, not for the company.

1986. (Mr. Bere.) Is there any land which the Conservatives have got hold of upon the same terms?—They have the Broomborough estate, which belonged to Mr. Phillips; they put upon it, I believe, 28 votes.

1987. Is that land still available?—Mr. Phillips is dead; I cannot say whether his widow will do the same as her husband.

1988. He was a strong partisan, I think?—Yes.

1989. (Mr. Coleridge.) From your knowledge of the borough is there any probability of their being able to create any more votes at Bridgetown?—I expect that there have been as many put on there as can be.

1990. Is Gerston property now pretty well used up?—Yes; everything there has been made the most of, there can be no doubt of that, by both sides.

1991. (Mr. Longe.) You have heard the expression made use of, "following the chains?"—Yes. These men are put on to vote as Liberals, and they do so vote. If the duke were to change his views, they would have notice to quit.

Adjourned to Monday next, at half-past 11.

FOURTH DAY.

FOURTH DAY.

Monday, 27th August 1866.

Mr. W. J. W. Bastard.
27 Aug. 1866.

Mr. William John Wakeham Bastard sworn and examined.

1992. (Mr. Bere.) What are you?—A gentleman. I have no particular business.

1993. Have you been in any particular business in the course of your life?—Yes; I have been occupied some part of my life in farming pursuits; but I have never done much.

1994. Has that farm been carried on in Totnes?—No.

1995. When did you first come to reside in Totnes?—I think 19 years ago.

1996. That is in 1847?—Yes.

1997. Did you come before or after the election of 1847?—After. I had nothing to do with the election of 1847.

1998. Have you lived at Bridgetown ever since?—Yes.

1999. In a house of your own, or belonging to the Duke of Somerset?—Of my own.

2000. A freehold house, or leasehold?—Freehold.

2001. You have taken considerable interest, I believe, in elections that have taken place in this borough?—I do not know about very much interest.

2002. Both with regard to the corporation and for members of Parliament?—I have had something to do with the municipal part, but not the parliamentary.

2003. Are you a member of the corporation?—Yes.

2004. How long have you been so?—I have been twice elected as councillor.

2005. And alderman?—I am alderman now.

2006. Were you twice before councillor?—Twice councillor in the first instance. They have taken me from councillor and made me an alderman.

2007. What are your politics?—Conservative.

2008. When were you first elected as councillor?—I think in the year 1851. I would not be positive to the date; but I think it was.

2009. Were you opposed?—No.

2010. There was no occasion for spending money at that time?—No.

2011. When were you next made a councillor?—Three years come now.

2012. 1863?—Yes.

2013. Had money become pretty plentiful in Totnes then?—Yes; it came to be showered down pretty thickly.

2014. Were you opposed?—Yes.

2015. Four on each side?—Yes.

2016. What did it cost you?—Between 50*l.* and 60*l.* that election.

2017. Did the other three on your side pay an equal sum?—I understood so.

2018. How was that 50*l.* or 60*l.* spent?—I can hardly give you the account; but I suppose the greater part to the voters.

2019. To whom did you pay it?—I paid 25*l.* to Mr. George Heath. Then I think he came to my house afterwards for some more money; the day was going on, and I think I gave him 20*l.* more, if I recollect rightly.

2020. Were the Conservatives behind when he came for the 20*l.*?—I do not know what state the poll was in.

2021. You did not inquire?—No.

2022. Who is George Heath?—He is the son of Mr. Heath of the "Seven Stars."

2023. You were successful?—Very successful.

2024. Were all the other three Conservative candidates successful?—Yes.

2025. (Mr. Coleridge.) What did it cost for the others? Did you subscribe something every year towards a fund for those elections?—No.

2026. You have not paid any other subscription?—No.

2027. Is that the first time you have paid money?—No, I have paid more than that; but I have been up two or three times.

2028. When did you pay more?—I never paid so much.

2029. How much have you paid since your elections?—I must have paid first and last, not only at elections, but at the registration, not less than 100*l.*

2030. Do you include the election of 1863?—Yes.

2031. (Mr. Bere.) Do not you believe that a portion of that was spent in direct bribery?—Paid to persons for voting, some portion of it; I do not know to what extent; I leave that to others.

2032. (Mr. Coleridge.) A little stuck to intermediate hands, perhaps?—I do not know.

2033. That is the common way, that the middle man does not part with all he gets?—I cannot answer.

2034. You do not think he works out of mere love, without getting anything for it?—I cannot say.

2035. Was Mr. George Heath a particular friend of yours?—No, not a particular friend.

2036. Was his father?—No, only as a man of Conservative principles.

2037. It is not likely that Mr. Heath would do this out of love and affection for you?—Not more than for another person, I am not aware.

2038. (Mr. Longe.) What number of votes do you suppose 25*l.* bought?—That is more than I can tell.

2039. Would it be 1*l.* or 2*l.* a vote?—I cannot tell. I mean to tell you what I know, and I hope you will not ask me to tell what I do not know. But you have not asked me what made up the 50*l.* or 60*l.* I have given you 25*l.* and 20*l.* As I understood afterwards those accounts, whatever they might have been, were made up by some party and put into a certain person's hand to audit.

2040. Who was that certain person?—Mr. William Hannaford.

2041. Is he alive?—Yes; I saw him a few days ago. Afterwards I was called on to pay a portion of the balance of that account. And that made up 15*l.* or 20*l.* more.

2042. That made up 50*l.* or 60*l.*?—Yes.

2043. Did you see the accounts?—I cast my eye over a portion, and I saw sums as high as 3*l.* I do not recollect higher than that.

2044. Was it an account for all the four candidates together?—Yes.

2045. Did you see any as high as 4*l.*?—I do not recollect seeing any higher than 3*l.*

2046. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you recollect anyone who had as much as 3*l.*?—I cannot say.

2047. Was it put down as something paid to a voter or for something he had done for services?—I think only put down so and so, so much money.

2048. Not services?—I do not think it was.

2049. (Mr. Longe.) According to that there were about 20 or 30 men would vote for you?—Do you mean for me or the party?

2050. It would be for the party?—A larger number would get money than that, because no one would come unless they were paid. I will give you an instance. At the death of one of our members, to fill up the vacancy an election was declared; I think there were half a dozen candidates, and when we came to the election what was the consequence? Most of them had got one vote each, one two votes, and the one elected had got about four score. Had there been money passing they would have been there by hundreds; they will not come unless there is money in the market.

2051. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose there is not much difference in point of wealth between the Conservatives and Liberals?—That is a particular question.

2052. How do you account for the Conservatives having a majority in the municipal elections and not for a long time having had a parliamentary one?—It may be accounted for in two ways. I suppose in the first instance the Liberals have got a good flourishing tree to go to, and when they want a good supply they go and shake the tree and get the supply, and that assists them to do what they please. We, on the other side, had no such person to go to, and till we put our fingers in our own pockets to fight the battle with them we could do nothing. When we did that we found ourselves a match; and I believe, rather, that the feeling of the lower classes is much more in our favor than the other side.

2053. Do you agree with the gentleman on Saturday who said that the lowering of the franchise would be a Conservative measure in the borough of Totnes. I think Mr. Bentall said on Saturday that the lower class of voters, lower than the parliamentary voters, were more Conservative than those who had votes for a member of Parliament, so that the lowering of the franchise would be a Conservative rather than a Liberal measure?—I agree with that. I do not think that the lowering of the franchise would preponderate against us.

2054. Do you think the class of persons who have not parliamentary votes are more Conservative than those who have it?—I believe we are, chiefly speaking, Conservative people. I believe the majority are Conservative in the borough.

2055. You have not returned a member of Parliament for some time?—We are swamped by the outlying districts.

2056. You are speaking of the town proper now as being Conservative?—Yes.

2057. How do you account for this tree that can be shaken in parliamentary contests and cannot be shaken in municipal contests?—They do shake the tree for municipal purposes as well. I have often heard say so much money has been sent down.

2058. How is it they do not return Liberal councillors?—Because the poor people are more Conservative, and if they can get a pound on our side they would rather take it than double on the other.

2059. Give an equal sum and the Conservatives would preponderate rather than the Liberals?—Yes.

2060. (Mr. Bere.) Do you mean that the Conservatives have never distributed money to the Conservatives at elections?—I believe they get money.

2061. Did not Dunn, Dent, and Mackenzie send money?—I am not aware that they did.

2062. Were they not asked?—They were not members, they were only candidates.

2063. How much did Col. Dawkins spend on the municipal election of 1865?—I know nothing about that.

2064. Have you not heard something about what he spent?—I heard he spent a great deal of money.

2065. I mean for the election of councillors last year?—I do not know anything about it.

2066. Have not you heard he spent a great deal of money at the council election?—I know nothing about it.

2067. He was a tree that was shaken by the Conservatives?—If he was that kind of tree I ought to have had some portion of it.

2068. You did not happen to get any?—Not a farthing.

2069. You were not in a position to get it; if he spent money you would not get it to recoup you?—I did not expect it.

2070. In 1864 it was a strong contest?—Yes.

2071. Colonel Dawkins was unknown I believe then?—Yes.

2072. (Mr. Longe.) You said hardly any would vote at the municipal elections unless bribed?—I believe that to be the case.

2073. Do you speak of the upper class tradesmen of the town?—No.

2074. What do they do?—If they felt inclined to vote they would.

2075. When you say "none" what class do you mean?—I do not say none.

2076. You used a general expression?—I said at the last election when a single individual was to be returned, there were many who had one vote, one two votes and one about four score. If money was in the market and distributed they would be there by hundreds. They would come if there was money. They would not come else, poor men.

2077. (Mr. Coleridge.) Of the 479 voters for the council election how many are working men as distinguished from shopkeepers?—I am not prepared to answer that question.

2078. About one half?—I should think there are, but I am not prepared to answer that question.

2079. (Mr. Bere.) You were not acquainted with Totnes before money began to be spent?—I cannot go back.

2080. Not further than 1847?—No.

2081. Is that all you wish to say about the municipal election?—I do not think I can give any further information.

2082. If you will give us all the information you can we shall be glad?—I do not wish to keep anything back.

2083. If you spent money they would spend it?—They have spent it, otherwise they would not come forward; we could do nothing without it.

2084. Did you ever know an instance in which a voter asked more than you would give and said he could get it the other side?—I never canvassed for a vote.

2085. When Mr. George Heath came to you for the 25*l.* did he say he could get a vote if he had the money, that there were two or three standing out?—No.

2086. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who was the Conservative manager or agent?—I think Mr. Edmonds must have had more to do with it than any other person.

2087. And Mr. George Heath?—And Mr. Edmonds.

2089 In your election were Mr. Edmonds and Mr.

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. W. J. W. Bastard.

27 Aug. 1866.

George Heath the leading parties?—I do not know whether Mr. Edmonds was then.

2089. Can you mention anybody but Mr. George Heath who canvassed?—They employed who they liked.

2090. All your communications were with Mr. George Heath?—I put the money into his hands. I had nothing to do with the persons who managed it. They got my money.

2091. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell me when Mr. Rennie came as a candidate?—I cannot recollect.

2092. Were you present when he made that speech at the "Seven Stars" when he recommended the Conservatives to try and gain the seats?—I was at a meeting but I have no recollection of what he said.

2093. Can you remember how long ago it was?—I cannot remember the date, I forget.

2094. When the accounts were audited at your municipal election you saw the names of the persons who had received money?—I saw the names of many.

2095. Did you see the names of persons who you were surprised to hear had taken sums?—I might, but, if I did, I do not recollect.

2096. No friends of your own; persons living in Fore Street?—I do not recollect.

2097. You do not remember anyone in a position that you were rather astonished to find took a bribe?—I do not recollect.

2098. You do not know who took 3*l.*, you mentioned one case of 3*l.* was he a substantial man, who took that?—No, I think not; I think one man that got that was called Jones.

2099. I was asking more for the class; are you speaking of working men or were they 10*l.* householders?—No; I think not, not those that took 3*l.*

2100. But some that took bribes might be 10*l.* householders?—I am not prepared to say either way.

2101. I think you must know?—I could not say. If I could I would. I would not hesitate a moment if I could tell.

2102. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you say that the corruption of the municipal elections was preceded by the parliamentary or the other way. When did it begin?—When I was first elected there was no opposition, I think in 1851, and then I was three years out and came up again.

2103. After having been personally concerned, did you hear whether there was corruption going on at the municipal elections during the three years you were out?—All I have heard at the municipal elections was, that they had to treat the voters with a breakfast and half-a-crown, and so on, and I believe that was the way the thing began.

2104. When was the first time you heard actually of money being paid to the voters at municipal elections?—I have been up twice, and no money passed.

2105. When was the last time you were up and no money passed?—I think in 1854.

2106. Do you know of any money passing before 1863, when you told us of it?—Yes.

2107. (Mr. Longe.) In these accounts that you saw, what number of names were down?—I should think some scores. I do not know.

2108. Some hundreds?—There was a large number. I cannot tell how many. I did not go into particulars, and I hear very little about it.

2109. Were there 100?—I do not know. No, not that number.

2110. (Mr. Bere.) Some must have taken small sums if there were over 100?—I paid my money, and thought no more about it. It all passed into other people's hands.

2111. Have you taken a great deal of interest in the parliamentary elections?—Nothing in particular.

2112. On the committees of Conservative candidates?—Yes, as they call it.

2113. Whose committee were you on. Were you on Col. Dawkin's at the last election?—No, I do not know about being a committee man at the election. I remember being selected as one of three to go to Col. Dawkins when he first made his appearance.

2114. Who selected you?—By what was termed the self-elected committee.

2115. Who were the self-elected committee?—Mr. Edmonds, Mr. Kellock, and Mr. Heath.

2116. John Heath or George?—John Heath. Mr. Phillips, Mr. Willis, and Sparke Distin.

2117. Were there printed lists of the committee circulated about?—No.

2118. Who were the two others who went beside you?—Mr. Bentall and Mr. Gill.

2119. How had you heard of Col. Dawkins?—I never heard of him till he made his appearance.

2120. Had he been here before you went up?—Yes; till he came down I heard nothing of him.

2121. He was down here?—Yes, we were requested to go and see him, and we formed a committee to go and see him.

2122. Where was he at?—The "Seven Stars."

2123. Where was the committee held?—At the "Seven Stars."

2124. You walked across from one room to another?—We were downstairs and went up and saw him. The question was, whether we could recommend him as a candidate.

2125. What was the qualification for a candidate?—A straightforward honest sort of man.

2126. Who spent a great deal of money?—I did not ask him to spend money.

2127. You had no objection to a man like Col. Dawkins?—No.

2128. Did he ask you what it would cost?—No.

2129. Did you ask him whether he was prepared with plenty of money?—No.

2130. Did anyone in your presence?—No.

2131. Did anything pass about money?—He pretty well understood it could not be done without money.

2132. How was that understanding arrived at?—I think I told him myself that money would be required, but I never said to what extent.

2133. Did he not ask you to what extent?—No.

2134. Did you say a great deal?—I said a great deal would be required.

2135. What estimate did you form of the probable expense?—I never thought of that.

2136. Supposing Col. Dawkins said, "Now you "must tell me what sum," what estimate would you have formed of the price of the borough?—I did not say anything.

2137. Supposing he had asked you what amount, what did you think would be required?—3,000*l.* or 4,000*l.* at least, I should have thought.

2138. (Mr. Longe.) You remember the occurrence of your speaking to Colonel Dawkins?—Yes.

2139. Do not you remember the remark he made when you said that?—No.

2140. Did he nod as if he knew it, or had heard it before?—I do not think he made any answer to it.

2141. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose you knew that an election was coming on before Colonel Dawkins came down. Everybody knew that?—Yes.

2142. And you were anxious as a member of the Conservative party to have a Conservative member?—Yes.

2143. Did not it ever occur to you to get up a requisition to a Conservative gentleman in the neighbourhood, or did you leave him to come at haphazard?—There was no requisition to him.

2144. Did the Conservative party take no steps to get a member?—There was a requisition got up to invite Mr. Dent the second time.

2145. But the first time. I mean to say when Colonel Dawkins came down had the Conservative party endeavoured to get any candidate of their own?—I think there was a requisition to some gentleman, I do not know now.

2146. Is it usual in this borough to leave it to chance for anybody to come down, and then to go and see him?—Not exactly so, because there would be an application made to the Carlton Club.

2147. Who made the application to the Carlton Club?—I had nothing to do with that.

2148. As a Conservative in the borough did it never occur to you to inquire about that?—I dare say our solicitor did that.

2149. Did he do that without any instructions from you, or any meeting with you previously?—Probably not. That might be discussed and decided at one of our meetings. Perhaps Mr. Edmonds might have been the man at the time.

2150. Prior to Colonel Dawkins' coming down what discussion had taken place as to getting a Conservative member for the borough?—I know an application was made to the Carlton Club. Mr. Edmonds I think made an application there on behalf of the Conservative party.

2151. How did he make that, by letter?—By letter I suppose.

2152. Did you instruct him to write a letter to the Carlton Club and ask for a candidate?—He was requested to look out for a candidate in that way.

2153. Did you see the letter that he wrote to the Carlton Club?—Never.

2154. (Mr. Bere.) Did he go up to London?—He might have gone up.

2155. Did not he?—I believe he did on one occasion.

2156. Do not you know that he went up to the Carlton Club and got Colonel Dawkins to come down?—No, I do not believe that.

2157. How did Colonel Dawkins come?—I do not think we knew of his coming down, or anything of the sort.

2158. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is Colonel Dawkins connected with this place in any way?—No.

2159. Or with the neighbourhood or county. Is he a Devonshire man?—I believe a perfect stranger.

2160. Mr. Edmonds having been instructed to go to the Carlton Club to get a member, Colonel Dawkins came down, and Mr. Edmonds knew nothing about it?—I believe so.

2161. Who did Mr. Edmonds expect to get in answer to his application?—I do not think that at that time that he expected anyone.

2162. Do you mean that he had given up the idea of contesting the borough?—I do not think that any one was likely to come down at that time.

2163. How long before the election was it?—Not long before the election.

2164. How long?—Not a fortnight I should think.

2165. When did you get hold of Captain Pim?—He came after, merely a few days before the election.

2166. How did you get him? After you had got Colonel Dawkins, was there any meeting at which it said it was necessary to have another Conservative?—Some one went to London then for the purpose of getting a second candidate.

2167. Who was the someone?—I do not know whether it was John Heath or no; I think it was John Heath; I am not certain.

2168. You think it was Heath?—Yes; but I will not be certain, though.

2169. And so you met with Mr. Pim?—As far as I know, and he came down as a sort of stalking horse as it were.

2170. Did you go yourself up to London about this election?—I did not.

2171. After you had got Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim down, had they joint committee rooms?—I do not know anything at all about a joint committee room, or a committee room at all. I was not one of their committee.

2172. I thought you were one of the committee of three?—That was in the first place, merely to see Col. Dawkins, and see whether we could recommend him to our party, and that we did do, and there was an end of it.

2173. Did Mr. Bentall and Mr. Gill act as members of his committee?—I do not think they were at all at the committee.

2174. (Mr. Bere.) There was a committee room at which those interested in the Conservative candidate attended from time to time. There was a room—we will not call it a committee room if you object to the word—and did not you attend there on the day of the election to see how things were going on?—No; I did not take any interest in it at all.

2175. Were not you there from time to time as the returns of the poll were sent in just as any other person might go in?—I might see how the poll stood.

2176. When there was a discussion about a particular voter or class of voters, did you give your opinion as to how they were to be got?—No.

2177. (Mr. Longe.) As I understand, you belong to a class; you do not initiate or have anything to do with bringing down these members?—No.

2178. You represent the Conservative party, whose opinion is asked by those who do?—They might on that particular occasion have asked whether I approved of such and such a man.

2179. Were you asked at all about Mr. Kennard?—I had quite forgotten the name of the man until I heard it mentioned here.

2180. Was not a requisition signed and sent to Mr. Kennard before Col. Dawkins was thought of?—Yes.

2181. Did you sign that requisition?—I dare say I did; I had forgotten him altogether.

2182. (Mr. Coleridge.) How long was that requisition signed before Col. Dawkins came down?—Some time.

2183. A week?—More than that. I do not recollect when Mr. Kennard did come down, or about it at all.

2184. (Mr. Bere.) How did you hear of Mr. Kennard; was that through the Carlton Club?—I really cannot tell you.

2185. Mr. Kennard is a banker, is not he?—I think he had something to do with a bank; a manager, or something or other.

2186. (Mr. Longe.) Do you remember the laying of the foundation stone of the school, when Mr. Pender laid the foundation stone?—Yes, I do; but I was not there.

2187. That was only shortly previous to the election, was it?—That was not long since.

2188. Was it a few weeks before the election; how long was the occasion when this stone was laid previous to the election?—The stone must have been laid since the election.

2189. (Mr. Bere.) Had you anything to do with the elections of 1862 and 1863, when Mr. Dent was a candidate?—I voted for Mr. Dent.

2190. Were you on Mr. Dent's committee?—I have told you I had nothing to do with that sort of thing you allude to.

2191. Had you been one of the men who found out Mr. Dent?—No, I did not find him out.

2192. Did he find you out?—That is more like it; but I should tell you, in the first place, that we had a man here named Mitchell.

2193. Was he a great friend of Mr. Dent's?—I believe so.

2194. Is he a native a Totnes?—No, he is a perfect stranger to me.

2195. How was it that he came down here?—Whether he came for the purpose of looking about the borough I cannot say.

2196. Did he stay some time making friends here?—He was here a day or two. I do not know more than that.

2197. Did he call on you?—No; but we went and saw him at the "Seven Stars."

2198. You went and saw Mr. Mitchell?—Yes; we went and saw Mr. Mitchell, and then he made known what his intentions were, his business.

2199. What did he say his business was?—That if he could see his way clear he had a gentleman whom he would bring down and recommend as a candidate.

2200. Did he tell you who he was then?—Yes.

2201. And that he was a very rich and wealthy man?—I dare say he might.

2202. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he ask what it would cost to fight the borough?—I think not.

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. W. J. W. Bastard.

27 Aug. 1866.

2203. Did not he ask that question?—No.

2204. I suppose he got the information that a very large sum of money would be required?—I cannot say.

2205. (Mr. Bere.) Do you recollect Mr. Dunn?—Yes; I recollect Mr. Dunn well.

2206. Did you go to him?—No.

2207. Did not you know him till he came down?—No.

2208. (Mr. Longe.) What sum of money do you think Mr. Dent spent here; 10,000*l.* or 15,000*l.*?—I do not think he spent either one sum or the other. I have no doubt that he spent a very great deal of money.

2209. Would 15,000*l.* cover it?—I should hope so.

2210. As far as you know or believe?—I cannot suppose that he spent so large a sum as that, and I do not know.

2211. From what you have heard can you not guess?—No; I was not privy at all to those money transactions with the members.

2212. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did there appear to be any material increase in the prosperity of the place after Mr. Dent's visit?—Totnes appeared just as dull as ever. I did not notice that it made any difference.

2213. Did the public houses seem as dull as ever?—The public houses are always alive.

2214. After one of those visits of Mr. Dent did they seem more alive than before?—I am not aware of any change.

2215. You never saw the effects of all this money that was spent?—No, I never saw the slightest effect from it. Perhaps they got their bills paid up; very likely. I am not in that position to know, therefore I cannot answer about that. I dare say there were many bills lying back in all parts of the town, and I dare say that those shopkeepers got the benefit of it.

2216. Therefore it is a benefit also to those who do not receive bribes, because they get paid their outstanding accounts; in fact, the demoralisation does not end with the people who are paid the money?—No; if they pay their bills the money does not appear to be floating about.

2217. So everybody, more or less, is benefited by these periodical visits?—Yes.

2218. (Mr. Longe.) I believe you live in Bridgetown?—I do.

2219. Would you find any difficulty in getting any holding from the duke?—I should think so. I do not think they would accommodate me with an inch.

2220. They would not let you anything?—I never tried them, and do not mean to.

2221. Suppose that you did by chance get any holding under the duke, on what terms do you suppose you would be able to get it?—I dare say I might get a holding in this way, purchase a lease and build on it; but I would not have it if I could get it.

2222. If you wanted to change your house, and there was a house vacant on the duke's estate, would you go to Mr. Michelmore?—No.

2223. If you took that course, do you think that, taking part as you do now as a Conservative, he would let you have it if you did not change your side?—I would not live under the duke if it was to cost me the altering of my principles.

2224. You believe if you did take a house from the duke?—I do not think I should be permitted to have one.

2225. If you were allowed one, what would be the terms on which you would be allowed to hold; would your political principles be made a point in the matter?—It might be tried. I cannot say. But if it was tried it would be soon found out what I thought about it.

2226. (Mr. Coleridge.) It comes to this, that it is an absolute impossibility to get any holding under the duke?—That is what I believe.

2227. As long as you hold your opinions and honestly act on them you could not get a holding under the duke?—Yes.

2228. Do you recollect Mr. Baldwin having the Gurston property?—Yes.

2229. Did the same thing happen there. If you had been a good stannch Liberal you would not have got a holding under Mr. Baldwin?—Yes.

2230. Six of one and half a dozen of the other?—Pretty much alike.

2231. Now the duke has both Gurston and Bridgetown it is all one?—Yes.

2232. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember anyone being turned out for voting against him?—I heard some few were turned out.

2233. Did you ever hear of the case in 1852 of William Knapman, a tenant of the duke's?—I do not recollect the name.

2234. Living in Bridgetown?—There have been people living in Bridgetown of the name of Knapman, but I do not remember the man of that name.

2235. Do you know Knapman?—There was a man called Knapman who voted for Gifford and Dunn, and he was told that it was part of his duty to vote for both the Liberal candidates and not one only, and was consequently turned out.

2236. Do you know when this memorandum, which we have heard, was entered into—when Mr. Ricardo was candidate?—I have heard a memorandum was entered into, but it was before I was in the borough.

2237. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you by any chance seen that memorandum since?—No; I do not know anything at all about it.

2238. Do you recollect the double return of Blount and Baldwin?—I do; but I had nothing whatever to do with it.

2239. Do you know how it was that Mr. Blount did not come forward with Mr. Ricardo?—Mr. Blount did not come a second time.

2240. Do you know how it was?—No; but so it was. He did not come a second time, I recollect. I was not living in the borough then.

2241. (Mr. Bere.) Do you of your own knowledge know of any person being bribed at the last election of 1865?—Parliamentary electors?

2242. Yes?—No; but I know this, that I was requested, together with Mr. Bryett, to go to a certain person to ask him for his vote on behalf of Mr. Dent.

2243. Who requested you?—Mr. Dent's party.

2244. That was in 1863, when Dent and Seymour were candidates?—Yes.

2245. And you and Mr. Bryett were requested to go to a particular person?—Yes.

2246. Who was that?—A man called Pengilley.

2247. Was it Charles, John, or William?—Richard I think he is called.

2248. What were you to do?—Merely to solicit him to give Mr. Dent his vote.

2249. Did you go?—Yes, and Mr. Bryett together.

2250. What sort of solicitation did you proffer?—Merely asked him to give Mr. Dent a vote, and he did not seem to speak out very readily, and I said, "Well now, you will do me a great favor if you give "Mr. Dent a vote. I do not ask you for both, only "one."

2251. There was only one to be given?—Yes, but still he did not answer; at last he intimated whether we would give money, and I said, "I wish you good "morning. I am not prepared to give money. I "merely asked the favour of the vote."

2252. What is Mr. Pengilley?—A broker.

2253. (Mr. Longe.) Which way did he vote afterwards?—I think for Mr. Dent.

2254. There was somebody more accommodating than you were about money?—I do not know about that; whether he got the money I cannot answer that.

2255. Have you any doubt that he got the money?—He would not vote for Mr. Dent without the money. I do not think he would vote for anyone without money, I do not care who the person was.

2256. You have no doubt that he got the money?—I dare say he had. He voted; therefore you may depend he got the money.

2257. Who sent you to Mr. Pengilley? You said "Mr. Dent's party"?—I do not connect anyone in particular with that requisition by Dent's party.

2258. Was it by the attorney?—Very likely.

2259. Who would that be? Mr. Edmonds?—Most likely, if anyone, if it was by the attorney at all.

2260. Why were you sent to Pengilley? Was he a tenant of yours?—No.

2261. Did he work for you?—No.

2262. What was the reason?—There are some reasons that we do not like known to the world.

2263. That is what we must have?—Well, the man owed me money; I had a mortgage on his property.

2264. And you, they thought, the most natural person to go to him?—Yes.

2265. (Mr. Bere.) Have you got the mortgage still?—No; I have been paid.

2266. How long after the election of 1863?—It was not paid in consequence of that.

2267. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was the amount of the mortgage?—350*l.*, if I recollect.

2268. When was it paid?—I cannot bear in mind.

2269. Was it paid two years ago, or three years ago?—Two years ago, I think.

2270. Was not it paid very shortly after the election?—That I cannot tell. It had nothing at all to do with the election or anything of the sort.

2271. Was not it paid just after the election?—I cannot tell that at all. It might, or it might not be. It had nothing to do with it at any rate whatever.

2272. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who paid you?—A man from Exeter came down and took up the mortgage, and it was transferred to some person at Exeter.

2273. Who was the man?—A solicitor from Exeter.

2274. What was his name?—I do not recollect.

2775. Try?—I do not know, indeed.

2276. Was it Mr. John Daw?—No.

2277. Have you a copy of the transfer of the mortgage?—No.

2278. You gave a receipt for the money, I suppose?—I gave a receipt on the transfer, and took the money; that is all I know about it. I was not satisfied with the mortgage. I did not like the building.

2279. Can you find out the solicitor's name from Exeter?—I do not recollect at all.

2280. How did it occur? Did you give notice for the mortgage to be paid off?—Yes, I did. I gave notice.

2281. How long after the election?—I do not know; it has no bearing on the point whatever.

2282. Was it within a month after the election that you gave notice?—I do not think anything like that.

2283. What made you give notice?—I did not like the property.

2284. Who acted as the solicitor in the matter?—Mr. Bryett was mine on that occasion, 2285. Who acted for Mr. Pengilley?—I do not know.

2286. Who acted for him when the mortgage was first created?—I think Mr. Bryett was the man.

2287. Did he act for both parties?—I believe he did on that occasion.

2288. On this occasion that you gave notice, did you do it, or Mr. Bryett?—I gave it myself.

2289. In writing?—Yes.

2290. Did Pengilley make any application to you on that notice being given?—No.

2291. Did anything occur between you and Pengilley between the time of your giving him notice and the gentleman from Exeter coming down?—No, not at all. I waited for him to pay me off.

2292. Did not you hear anything good, bad, or indifferent about it before the gentleman came?—No.

2293. Did not Pengilley come to ask for time?—No.

2294. Did not you ever have an interview with Mr. Pengilley between the time of giving him notice and the time the gentleman came from Exeter?—I daresay I did see him once or twice.

2295. What occurred between you about the mortgage on those occasions?—Nothing more than that I gave notice that he was to pay the money, and then he found some person in Exeter to whom it was transferred.

2296. Did he tell you about his getting somebody at Exeter?—No.

2297. Did he tell you where he was going to get the money?—He told me he should raise it to pay it off.

2298. Did he tell you through whom he expected to raise it?—No, he only came upon the point about making the transfer, and then the person he applied to to raise this money, some person at Exeter, took it up.

2299. You have no notion who that person was?—No.

2300. Have you many mortgages?—To be candid, I have.

2301. And amongst all those mortgages you cannot recollect this transfer or the name of the transferee?—No, I cannot.

2302. You had to execute a transfer. Did not you take the trouble to read that over before it was executed?—I dare say I did.

2303. Can you not give us any idea who the person was whom the transfer was made to, or the name of the solicitor who came down about it?—I do not recollect the names.

2304. Have you any notion who was the person to whom the transfer was made?—I think it was transferred to some lady or other.

2305. Was her name Mitchell?—No.

2306. Or Dent?—Oh, no.

2307. You think it was some lady. Can you not give us more than that?—No, I cannot.

2308. (Mr. Bere.) How much interest was in arrear when you went to Richard Pengilley?—There was not much; he paid his interest very well.

2309. Did you not in the course of your conversation with Mr. Pengilley about the vote, mention that you held the mortgage?—No, I never influenced him in that way. People may do as they like for me.

2310. (Mr. Coleridge.) How came you to lend him the money originally; you say you did not like the building; did you lend on them before they were put up?—No, they were very old buildings. I was recommended in the first place by my attorney Mr. Bryett; he said there was a mortgage if I liked to take it off.

2311. What was the value of the property as against the 350*l.* lent? What did Mr. Bryett tell you was the value?—He thought it was a very good mortgage, worth a considerable deal more than that.

2312. How long had the mortgage been in existence at the time it was paid off?—Some years.

2313. How many, about three?—I could not say.

2314. Was it 10 or two?—Two, but I do not think 10; I cannot say.

2315. What was the change that took place in it that made you wish to have it paid off?—I was not satisfied with the buildings.

2316. But you held them several years, at all events say five. You had been satisfied that time and what was the cause of dissatisfaction?—I had previously spoken to him about paying me some portion of the money; I said it was, but I do not know whether it was 350*l.* or 325*l.*

2317. It was because you were dissatisfied with the buildings, was it?—Yes; because if he had reduced the debt I should have been better satisfied.

2318. You wanted the same security?—I had no objection to keep it if he would reduce the debt, but instead of that he did not do so, and I gave him notice to pay it off.

2319. How did that gentleman from Exeter, who came to pay it off, communicate it to you. Did he

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. W. J. W. Bastard.

27 Aug. 1866.

write and say ?—He wrote to Mr. Bryett about the thing.

2320. Did he come, or communicate by writing. Did not anybody write saying, "I am coming down "about that matter of Pengilley's mortgage to you "soon ?"—I dare say I might have received one letter.

2321. Do you think that letter came from the solicitor of whom you have been speaking ?—I do not think he was a solicitor at all ; he was only a mere clerk.

2322. You think that letter came from the office of the solicitor ?—Yes, if it came from him at all.

2323. Did you yourself read the letter ?—Yes, I have no doubt I did.

2324. Do you recollect the signature to it ?—No, I do not.

2325. Was it a name which you knew tolerably well ?—I did not know it at all.

2326. But I want to know whose name it was ?—I cannot tell you that.

2327. Do you know Exeter at all ?—Pretty well; it may be not so well as others who are here.

2328. If I were to read to you the names of all the solicitors in Exeter, would you be able to tell who it was ?—I might or I might not ; perhaps I might.

2329. Was it Mr. Thomas William Gray ?—It was not.

2330. You paid Mr. John Heath some money during the election ; was that by a cheque or in cash ?—In cash.

2331. Did you ever give him a cheque for expenses at Mr. Mills' election ?—Never.

2332. Did you ever give him a cheque for 100*l.* ?—Never.

2333. For that purpose ?—I never gave him such a sum of money for that or for any other purpose.

2334. Was the mortgage that you have spoken of paid off by cheque or in cash ?—That was paid by a cheque.

2335. Do you know by whom it was signed ?—It was signed perhaps by the solicitor who brought it down.

2336. Was it paid into your account at your bank ?—I think I received it and paid it into my bankers.

2337. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who are your bankers ?—The National Provincial.

2338. I dare say they can let us have the name of the gentleman who paid you the money ?—Whoever you may get it from it has nothing whatever to do with the election.

2339. You say that you never paid Mr. Heath 100*l.* for anything ?—Never in my life. I never had any transactions with Mr. Heath in reference to any sum of money ; it is ridiculous.

2340. Do you know Mr. Kellock, a surgeon ?—Yes.

2341. Is he living in Bridgetown ?—No ; he lives in Totnes.

2342. But did he not live in Bridgetown ?—No, never.

2343. Did you ever hear of his being evicted, or of his having had notice to quit ?—No.

2344. If so, it must have had reference to some field or other ; you never heard of it ?—No.

2345. (Mr. Bere.) Were you sent to anyone in the election of 1865, when Colonel Dawkins stood, to ask them for their votes in the same way that you had been sent to Pengilley ?—No, never ; he is the only person that I ever asked.

2346. The National Provincial Bank in this town are your bankers ?—Yes.

2347. Do you not think that you could remember the name of the solicitor in Exeter who paid you this money ?—No, I do not think I could ; in fact, if I were to stay here all day I do not think I could recollect. You should be pleased to remember that I am now getting well advanced in years, and one's recollection is not so sharp as in one's younger days.

2348. (Mr. Coleridge.) You think the cheque was signed by the solicitor, not signed by Pengilley himself ?—It was not signed by Pengilley.

2349. Perhaps you might be able to get us the name by asking the manager of the bank to refer to his books at about the date when the cheque was paid in by you ?—I do not know that you will be able to get it.

2350. If you could do that for us you would save us a great deal of trouble ?—You are very welcome to make any inquiry after any cheques of mine that you please. All that I can say is, that I am quite independent of any person in Totnes. I am by no means afraid of your asking any questions about myself.

2351. Have you any solicitor of your own in Exeter ?—No.

2352. Was it Mr. Barnes who came here on that occasion ?—No.

2353. Mr. Henry Downe Barton ?—I think not.

2354. William Marks Benison ?—I don't think it was him.

2355. William Richard Bishop, was that the name ?—No.

2356. Thomas Julius Bremridge ?—No.

2357. William Buckingham ?—No, I think not.

2358. Arthur Burch, was that the name ?—No ; I don't think it was.

2359. Robert Taylor Campion ?—No.

2360. Edmund Hornblower Clarke ?—No.

2361. Henry Cole ?—No.

2362. James Commin ?—No.

2363. William Richard Crabbe ?—No.

2364. John Daw ?—No.

2365. Arthur Cranch Drake ?—No.

2366. Charles Henry Drake ?—I believe not.

2367. Richard Eales ?—No.

2368. Thomas Charles Drake ?—No.

2369. Thomas Floud ?—No.

2370. Edwin Force ?—I believe not.

2371. Henry Ford ?—No ; I cannot recollect the name.

2372. James Walter Friend ?—No.

2373. Merlin Fryer ?—No.

2374. John Geare ?—No.

2375. John Gidley ?—No, I think not.

2376. Thomas Gray ?—No.

2377. Thomas William Hartnoll ?—No, I think not.

2378. Robert William Head ?—I believe not.

2379. George Hirtzell ?—No.

2380. Henry Wilcocks Hooper ?—No, I think not.

2381. William Huggins ?—No.

2382. Henry Mountrich James ?—No.

2383. Winslow Jones ?—No.

2384. John Laidman ?—No.

2385. William Lambert ?—No.

2386. William Dennis Moore ?—I think not.

2387. Joseph Mountford ?—No.

2388. Edmund William Paul ?—No.

2389. John William Petherick ?—No.

2390. James Pitts ?—I believe not.

2391. John Pope ?—No.

2392. Edward Hunt Roberts ?—No.

2393. Walter Goddard Rogers ?—No.

2394. Frederick Sanders ?—No.

2395. Kingsland Snelgrove ?—No.

2396. George Ferris Sobey ?—No.

2397. John Hull Terrell ?—No.

2398. John Toby ?—No.

2399. James Toy ?—No.

2400. George Frederick Truscott ?—No.

2401. Charles Henry Turner ?—No.

2402. Frances Eugenis Scoble Willisford ?—No.

2403. Robert Wreford ?—Is that all you have got ?

2404. Yes. Is it not one of those ?—I cannot pick out the man from amongst all of them.

2405. (Mr. Bere.) Are you sure that it was not Mr. Bishop ?—I do not think it was Mr. Bishop.

2406. Or Mr. Pitts ?—I really cannot pick out the man amongst them; there are too many by a great number in the list which you have read; but I can promise you one thing, that it had nothing whatever to do with the election.

2407. But you did not know you said who the lady was; you cannot tell that?—No; but I can say that it had nothing at all to do with the election.

2408. But suppose that Mr. Dent had paid the money?—He never paid the money.

2409. But suppose that he had paid the money for Pengilley through the solicitor at Exeter in reference to this mortgage, would not that have had something to do with the election?—There was nothing of the kind; Mr. Dent had nothing to do with it; it had no reference whatever to the election, as I said before.

Mr. George Mitchell sworn and examined.

2410. (Mr. Coleridge.) What are you?—A currier.

2411. Belonging to this town?—Yes. I am a native of Totnes; I was born in Bridgetown.

2412. How long have you been a voter of this town?—I came to reside in Totnes in 1831, and have resided there ever since.

2413. Have you been a voter since then?—Not since then; I have been a voter since 1841 or 1842.

2414. What is the qualification for which you vote?—For a house in Fore Street.

2415. When was the first election at which you voted?—I think Mr. Ricardo was the first person for whom I voted.

2416. You did not vote on the occasion of there being a double return?—No; I was not an elector at that time.

2417. Shortly after that you became an elector?—I bought some premises in Totnes in 1838, and came to reside here in October 1838.

2418. What are you in politics?—I dissent from Whigs and Tories very much.

2419. Are you one of the ultras?—I am called George Mitchell the Chartist.

2420. And you have always held the same views?—I have.

2421. And you have always voted for the Liberal candidates, though they have not gone quite so far as you wished?—I have always voted for the Liberals; I could not make up my mind to vote for a Tory.

2422. Did you plump for Mr. Ricardo?—I did.

2423. But he was not an ultra?—No; but he seemed to me to be the man who was nearer to my views than the others.

2424. He went a good way beyond the Whigs?—Not a very great way.

2425. Was he not in favour of the ballot?—He was not hearty in the cause; you cannot get a man to be so; they do not like honesty, I think.

2426. But he was in favour of the ballot when he represented Windsor?—He might have been so then; it might have suited his convenience.

2427. Can you tell us anything with regard to bribery at that election; did the Conservatives bribe?—I think I can tell you something. I heard that there was a good deal of bribery at that election.

2428. Can you tell us whether there were a large number of persons bribed on behalf of the Conservatives?—The impression on my mind is that there were.

2429. What amount of money do you think was spent at that election on the Conservative side?—I cannot tell you the amount of money that was spent.

2430. What was the price of votes at that election; how did it range?—I have heard that at that election the votes ranged from 40*l.* to 50*l.* and 60*l.* on the Conservative side.

2431. How many votes on the Conservative side were bought at that price, ranging between 40*l.* and 60*l.*?—I cannot say the number exactly. If you will allow me I will give you my opinion that, at that election, if the electors had been left to themselves there would have been a majority on the Liberal side.

2432. It was a very hard run election, was it not? It was a very hard run. They say that Mr. Ricardo was run so close by a great deal of bribery.

2433. Was there not also bribery going on upon Mr. Ricardo's side?—I do not know about that.

2434. Did you never hear of any?—I do not know of any; I have heard rumours of such things. I do not say there was; I only say that I do not know.

2435. You do not know anything about the Conservatives; you have only heard it; you have also equally heard that there was bribery on Mr. Ricardo's side?—I have heard that there was, and I will give you my reasons why I do not believe it.

2436. Your means of knowledge are the same on the one side as on the other?—As regards politics the one is just the same as the other.

2437. As far as your means of knowledge go your knowledge of bribery on Mr. Ricardo's side was the same as it was on the Conservative side, only from hearsay?—Only from hearsay both of them.

2438. You heard there was bribery on Mr. Ricardo's side, but you did not believe it?—I have no knowledge of any such thing, but I will give you an instance which will exonerate Mr. Ricardo from going very deep into the bribery. It was the first time I had exercised my franchise. I had found before that there was great bribery and corruption going on in the town, and I thought the town had got into a most awfully demoralized state, which was owing to the two elections of Dent and Baldwin and Gisborne and Baldwin.

2439. There had been bribery at each of those?—Yes; there had been an extensive system of bribery carried on at both of those elections. When we came to Mr. Ricardo's election I went to the nomination, and after that I spoke to several friends of mine who were of my way of thinking, and I said I should like to put a question or two to Mr. Ricardo; we met at a certain place that afternoon, I dare say as many as twenty of us.

2440. Were you and they a remnant of the Seventy-third?—This was the first vote I had had; they had nothing to do with the Seventy-third. We met in the afternoon and came to an understanding that we would vote for Mr. Ricardo, provided he answered certain questions to our satisfaction. I was deputed to ask him those questions. In the evening there was a meeting of Mr. Ricardo's supporters, and I and my friends went down.

2441. Did he answer your questions satisfactorily?—Yes. Would you like to know the questions I put to him; I have nothing to keep back?

2442. It is not very material that we should have the questions; you were going to tell us how this affected the matter of bribery?—The first question I put to Mr. Ricardo was, "Will you promise that you "will not bribe any elector at this election?" He promised that he would not do so. The next question was, "Will you promise that you will not ask for a "place for any elector or for his friends?" He promised that he would not. We were satisfied with Mr. Ricardo's answers. The next day there was a tight run going on in the morning.

2443. Did you and all your friends plump for Mr. Ricardo, or only give him one vote?—I cannot say whether they plumped for Mr. Ricardo, or split their votes between Ricardo and Seymour.

2444. (Mr. Longe.) When was this meeting?—On the evening of the nomination day. The next day our party had agreed to go together, and not vote until late in the afternoon. I think there were 25 of us, and no person knew what we were going to do.

2445. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had Lord Seymour canvassed you?—Yes.

2446. What did you say to him?—I told him I would not promise him, I never promised anyone.

2447. Did you tell him why?—I had not much conversation with him, his politics did not suit me.

2448. Did Lord Seymour and Mr. Ricardo canvass together?—No.

2449. Who brought Mr. Ricardo down here?—That I cannot say.

2450. Did Mr. Baldwin canvass you?—Yes; I promised him I would not vote for him.

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. G. Mitchell.

27 Aug. 1866.

2451. You refused him?—Yes. Up to 2 o'clock the Tories were going a-head, my plan was this, I advised those I was working with to wait till 2 o'clock or 3 o'clock, and then go and surprise them. We went to the Tory house and were mixed up with them; my plan was to go and take possession of the booth and poll. Instead of that they wearied the men and were anxious to get us down, and I could not keep the men back.

2452. Had your friends who were with you been in the habit of voting for the Conservatives?—There were a good many new voters.

2453. There were some old ones too?—There were some who had voted before.

2454. For the Conservatives?—I do not know that.

2455. If they were known as Liberals was there no suspicion of your being at the Conservative house?—They did not think we were going to vote at all, seeing us there so unconcerned.

2456. Was there not a dead set made against you, were you left as a dirty lot with whom no one cared to have any dealings with?—I cannot say that; these men coincided with my views, they stuck to me and I stuck to them.

2457. Were you not in the end surprised to find that Mr. Ricardo was beaten?—It was their fault in forcing us to go down so soon as we did; then they were scouring the place to get other voters up.

2458. You knew of the memorandum that was entered into between Mr. Baldwin and Lord Seymour?—I have heard the story, and I have heard where it is.

2459. With Miss Tracy?—No, it is not with Miss Tracy; I believe Mr. Mudge holds the document now.

2460. He is Mr. Tracy's brother-in-law?—I cannot answer that; it is Mr. Mudge of Blagdon, about two miles from here.

2461. When did you hear of this memorandum having been given?—I heard of this compact having been entered into at the time of the election when Mr. Baldwin was here. I was about stating just now that I wished to try and exonerate Mr. Ricardo from any extensive bribery if I could. There were as many as 25 of our party who went down and polled for Mr. Ricardo one after the other; we then had a majority of one or two, and I can answer for it that there was no bribery amongst those 25 men.

2462. That is as far as you can say?—Yes; there was no such thing as money regarding them; we did it to try and break up the system of bribery that was then going on.

2463. Do you believe that money was spent by Mr. Ricardo in bribing voters at that election?—I cannot say of my own knowledge. I have no doubt in my own mind that he spent some money, but not so extensively as I heard it reported.

2464. Do you know at all what that election is said to have cost him?—No I do not.

2465. When was the next time that you voted?—The next time I voted was at Mr. Mills' election.

2466. May I take it generally that up to the last election you have voted at every election for the Liberals?—Yes.

2467. Have you ever voted for Lord Seymour?—Never.

2468. You never split your votes with the Conservatives?—No.

2469. At the last election did you vote for Pender and Seymour?—I did.

2470. Or for Pender alone?—I voted for both.

2471. Were you at all active in looking about for a Liberal candidate at that time?—No; I never interfered.

2472. When did you know of their coming down?—When they came to Totnes, that was the first thing I knew of it; when they came down here first in 1863.

2473. Did Mr. Pender and Lord Seymour come down here in 1864 or 1865?—Yes.

2474. And Colonel Dawkins and Capt. Pim on the other side?—Yes.

2475. When did you before the last election in 1865 see Mr. Pender?—When he first came down here.

2476. How long was that before the election?—It was not long.

2477. Then did he come and canvass you?—Yes.

2478. Was that with Lord Seymour or was he by himself?—He was by himself.

2479. Was there not some one else with him?—There might been some one else with him.

2480. Who was it?—I think Mr. Windeatt; when he came to canvass me he never used to come inside my shop.

2481. When did Mr. Seymour come to canvass you?—Before the election.

2482. After Mr. Pender?—After Mr. Pender.

2483. You promised him also?—I did not promise either.

2484. You did not promise Mr. Pender?—I never promised anybody in my life. I did not promise him.

2485. You promised Mr. Ricardo?—I did not promise him. If he had answered the questions, we would have voted for him.

2486. What did you say to Mr. Pender?—I asked him questions about his politics, and he answered them in a satisfactory manner as far as he could as a Whig. I cannot expect more from him.

2487. You got as much as you expected?—I got out of him what I could.

2488. What did you get out of Mr. Seymour?—As far as I could in a satisfactory manner, as far as it went.

2489. Mr. Pender went for the ballot did he not?—If the majority of the constituents would wish it he would.

2490. What did Mr. Pender do?—He went the same; he was a very good member.

2491. You have known a good deal about a single election of Mr. Pender?—Oh, yes.

2492. You knew he was a liberal-handed man, and likely to make a good member for Totnes?—I understood he was a very good man and likely to do good for the country.

2493. You heard a good deal of money had been going on his side at the previous election of 1863?—There was no contest.

2494. Mr. Pender has been elected three times?—No, twice only.

2495. Did you put any questions to Mr. Pender about bribery, the same as you put to Mr. Ricardo?—Not of late years; it is of no use to talk about putting such questions as that.

2496. What is the reason?—I believe Mr. Pender had a majority in his favour of 25 to 26 men, a dead poll was made up as I was told, not that I had any trouble to make up the poll. I am certain there must be a great deal of money spent to win the election; that Mr. Pender did.

2497. Colonel Dawkins went to the poll?—He did.

2498. Did Captain Pim?—And Captain Pim.

2499. Did they spend any money at the election?—If they did it was very foolish.

2500. Their money had no chance?—They must have been self-sure.

2501. Do you know of any instance of money spent on behalf of the Conservatives amongst the voters?—Not to my personal knowledge.

2502. Do you know of anybody who was bribed?—I have heard of people being accused of it, and I should think nothing but right; I should be told of it.

2503. First of all, give us the names of persons who were bribed on the Conservative side on behalf of Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim?—The first was one of the parties who showed the money he asked and got.

2504. Who was it?—William Foote was the man's name who showed the money.

2505. How much did he show ?—A person told me it was above 100*l*., but I could not tell.

2506. Who was the person who told you?—I heard a woman talk of it.

2507. Who was the woman ? — Her name is Stephens.

2508. What is her christian name ?— She is not the only one.

2509. Finish with her first, was she a married woman ?—A married woman.

2510. Where does she live ?—At the top of the town.

2511. Is she alive now ?—She was last Monday.

2512. What is her husband's christian name ? — I do not know.

2513. What is he ?—I think he is a carpenter.

2514. Who else told you about Foote ?— I can hardly tell, so many told me ; I cannot single out anyone.

2515. Did you also hear who had given it to Foote ?—No, I cannot say that I heard it.

2516. Did you hear who he got the money from ? —I may have heard it. I do not wish to say what I cannot substantiate.

2517. You heard he had shown the money about, but you did not hear where he said that he had got it ?—No.

2518. How do you know that he got it from the Conservative side ?—He did not make any to-do or talk to any person about it.

2519. Can you recollect any other who was a friend of Foote ?—No, I cannot say a single person.

2520. You would not say that you have not heard of it ?—It may have happened in the way of talking about it at the dinner table.

2521. Who else have you heard of being bribed at the last election by the Conservative party, keep to that at present ?—I cannot.

2522. That is the very thing we want you to tell us ?—I cannot be implicated in anything myself, I can assure you.

2523. Can you recollect anybody else ?—Yes.

2524. Who ?—Mogridge.

2525. What did he get ?—I do not know that.

2526. Who did you hear he was bribed by ?—If I was to say all I heard——

2527. That is what we want to know ?—I cannot tell.

2528. Did you hear that Mogridge was bribed, and did you hear who by ?—It was said by Mr. John Heath.

2529. Did you hear what Mr. John Heath gave him ?—I cannot say.

2530. Now get on to the next ?—I should not fancy Col. Dawkins bribed a great many in my own opinion ; if he did he was a very foolish man.

2531. How many did you hear there were bribed on the Conservative side ?—It is not often they get many to vote for them unless they do bribe.

2532. Did they get money to vote for him ?—He must have bribed some, a good many, or else they would not have voted for him. You must recollect that Totnes is a Liberal borough.

2533. Did you hear of any peculiar conversions on that occasion, of Liberals before they voted Conservative then ?—Not at the election. I do not know of any at the election.

2534. You say very few Conservatives voted, 162 voted for Colonel Dawkins, do you know out of those whether anybody else was bribed of those who voted with Mogridge and Foote, it is not so long ago ?—No ; I hear of these things, and they pass my memory, when you bring up people's names.

2535. One election is confused with another ?— Yes it is. I do not know anything of my own knowledge.

2536. Try, that is the only way to get at it ?—It is a difficult way to get at it.

2537. Can you give us the names of any people who were reputed to have been bribing ?—Mr. Heath, his son George, and James.

2538. Who else ? — We know John Sandford Screach.

2539. Who else ?—We have heard Mr. Evens's name mentioned as well.

2540. Who is he ?—A saddler in the town, and a very active man.

2541. Any solicitor in the town, did you hear of ? —Mr. Edmonds was very busy, whether he did night-work or not I do not know.

2542. Can you tell an instance ?—I heard of the case of a man being solicited to vote for the Conservatives, and he was offered a large sum of money.

2543. Who was that ?—A man of the name of Crawford.

2544. Who by ?—By Mr. Parnell, I think. If those men are innocent they ought to have a chance of coming here to vindicate their character.

2545. What is his christian name ?—I do not know his christian name ; Parnell the gardener.

2546. How did Crawford vote ?—For Pender and Seymour.

2547. Did you hear what he was offered ?—He was offered by Parnell 50*l*. or 60*l*.

2548. Was that to vote for Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim, or only Colonel Dawkins ?—It was to vote on the Conservative side.

2549. Any other instances do you know ?—Yes. Mr. Parnell was offered by Mr. Bryett a gift, I was told ; that is my information.

2550. And Crawford could not be tempted ?—He would not take the money, or be tempted by it.

2551. You do not know whether he was tempted on the other side, do you ; you can hardly conceive such a thing ?—I do not think he was, if I am to believe the man's word.

2552. Whom else do you know who was tempted by the Conservative side ?—John Light was pursued by them.

2553. Whom by ?—By John Sandford Screach.

2554. What did he offer him ?—I have been told he put money on the table amounting to near about 50*l*.

2555. That seems to have been about the price ?— It was sifted out over at Bovey ; the man went away.

2556. (Mr. Bere.) He would not be tempted ?—He was not.

2557. You cannot fancy he was tempted by the other side ?—He did not vote.

2558. He voted for Pender and Seymour ?—Oh, yes, he did.

2559. What makes you think he did not vote ?— Because I thought he was over at Bovey.

2560. He was not over at Bovey ?—Not at the election, but he was there before.

2561. If he voted for Pender and Seymour, he must have been brought over by Mr. Pender to vote ? —He might have taken himself over.

2562. Having been offered 50*l*. for Colonel Dawkins, you believe he came over without any inducement of that kind and voted for Seymour and Pender ? —I cannot say.

2563. What have you heard was offered on behalf of the other side ?—I never heard of any.

2564. If they did not get any offer there may have been an actual gift ?—I never heard of anything of the sort.

2565. What is he ?—He is a man that lives upon his income, he has now a small income ; he does nothing ; I do not think he does ; he has been a sort of a schoolmaster.

2566. Of whom else have you heard? Are you quite sure of this ; before you speak of John Light, was it at the last election of 1865 and not at the election of 1863 ?—At the last election, I am certain in my own mind.

2567. Did you hear of his having been offered something at the election of 1863 ?—Yes, he was then.

2568. What was it ?—I cannot say.

2569. Whom was he offered it by then ?—I cannot recollect that.

2570. What was he offered ?—I cannot tell that.

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. G. Mitchell.

27 Aug. 1866.

2571. On which side?—I heard he was offered by the Tories; what, I cannot say.

2572. At that election he did not vote?—Was it at that election he did not vote?

2573. Yes?—I may make a mistake. I wish to tell you all.

2574. Can you think of anybody else?—Sometimes I could think of a good many.

2575. Think of as many as you can, Robert Lorimer?—I never heard of his being bribed.

2576. Do you know whether he voted at Mr. Dent's election?—He did not vote at Mr. Dent's election.

2577. Do you know why?—No.

2578. You did not hear of any money then?—I do not know that Mr. Lorimer had money, I cannot fancy it myself.

2579. What is Mr. Lorimer?—He is a Scotchman, a traveller, or packman.

2580. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you hear of Mr. Edward Tucker having been mixed up in bribery at the last election?—Mr. Edmund Tucker.

2581. Was it he that offered it to Crawford? Tell us a little more; when was Edmund Tucker supposed to have offered money to Crawford, before or after Parnell had tried?—I think it was before Parnell.

2582. Is there any connexion between Edmund Tucker and Parnell?—Not that I know, except that they are two Tories; they stick together like leeches.

2583. What was the connexion between Tucker and Crawford; did Crawford work at Tucker's?—I do not know; he makes himself busy at the elections.

2594. What is he?—A grocer and tallow chandler; a very busy man at Totnes when an election comes on.

2585. (Mr. Longe.) Had he a new carriage about the town at the last election?—No.

2586. Did he have an old one done up?—No.

2587. Do you recollect the election before 1863?—I recollect hearing of such things, not the last election.

2588. That was the election at which he did not vote; at that time what did you hear about the horse and cart?—You have got in the old times when Mr. Bentall offered a horse and cart to John Bartlett; now it is carriages.

2589. Have you seen the carriage?—I have seen the carriage which Mr. Crawford owns; but I do not know how he got it.

2590. You have heard the story about it?—I have heard it.

2591. (Mr. Coleridge.) What is it?—A carriage people ride in; that he lets out to hire, and would be most happy to let it to you.

2592. Do you know George Evens?—Yes.

2593. What is he?—That is very difficult to tell. I cannot answer that. First he was going to be a currier, next he was going to be a cabinetmaker.

2594. What is he?—Now I understand he is working a new trade.

2595. What is the new trade?—To stitch boots and shoes by machinery.

2596. Is he a voter?—Not at present.

2597. Was he at the last election?—Not at the last election.

2598. Was he at the 1863 election?—I should think he was.

2599. What have you heard of him about the elections?—A very busy man, going to offer all sorts of things; whether they let him have much money I cannot say.

2600. Was he going about offering money or receiving money?—I have heard he had received money, and has had money in his pocket to treat other electors.

2601. First of all, whom has he received money from; the Tories?—From the committee.

2602. From whom have you heard he had got money?—I do not know whether he had a sum of money put in his hands. I cannot say that.

2603. To whom have you heard he has offered money?—I do not know whom he offered money to I cannot recollect.

2604. What have they said about his treating?—I have heard of him about treating.

2605. Where have you seen him?—In a public house when the election is going on.

2606. Where?—It is of no use to tell you where; I have seen him at so many.

2607. All Tory houses?—Yes, all Tory houses.

2608. Pretty general?—Yes.

2609. What do you call treating?—I have not been present when it has been done.

2610. Was he active at the last election of 1865, though he had not a vote?—I did not think him a very active man.

2611. Did you hear of his having any money at the last election?—I should think not.

2612. Do you know George Heath?—Yes, of course I do.

2613. That is, the son of John Heath?—Yes.

2614. Tell us what you know of George Heath's proceedings at the last election?—He was very busy at the last election. I have seen him very busy talking to the electors from time to time. I have been told he had large sums of money.

2615. What amount, 1,000*l.*?—I cannot say the amount.

2616. Whom have you heard that he tampered with?—A large number.

2617. You cannot give me a single name connected with George Heath?—I do not know that I can. I will tell you what I can.

2618. There are a good many Heaths, but George we have at present to do with?—Yes, there are a good many Heaths. I think his brother John is the most active man about it.

2619. You think you can tell us nothing about George?—I cannot say anything in particular.

2620. Do you know a man of the name of Helms?—Yes.

2621. What is he?—A retired man living on his means.

2622. What did you hear about him at the last election?—He was not here at the election.

2623. What did he do at Mr. Dent's election?—What did he do?

2624. Yes?—I cannot say what he did more than voting. He was a friend of Mr. Dent's, and Mr. Dent was a friend of his.

2625. Was he the agent of Mr. Dent?—An agent in election matters?

2626. Yes?—I do not know.

2627. (Mr. Longe.) As to the party you spoke of in the first election, the 25 you mentioned, the party hung together?—

2628. What position were they in the town, the 25?—Small tradesmen generally.

2629. Are they still holding together: is it still a party at all?—There is no party in it; they merely go together.

2630. You were advanced Liberals?—A great many of them are dead, and some of them have left the town.

2631. Have you any party at all succeeding to it; have they kept up any party character?—No, I have never joined any party; not to join them.

2632. At this last election were there not some few of you holding extreme views?—No.

2633. Acting together?—Not connected together.

2634. There is no Radical party?—There is not, and has not been for many years.

2635. You are the only representative?—I think there are one or two of us who are staunch.

2636. (Mr. Coleridge.) What has become of the 25?—Dead, and left the place.

2637. Changed their opinions?—No, not changed their opinions.

2638. Do you not recollect that those who have changed their opinions have got more Conservative as times have gone on?—I cannot say.

2639. Do you recollect anyone who has come ound to the other way of thinking owing to his emptation ?—I cannot think of one.

2640. You have not ?—I am satisfied with myself.

2641. Do you know John Diggins ?—Yes, I know Diggins.

2642. What is he ?—Clerk to Mr. Edmonds.

2643. For Mr. Edmonds the lawyer ?—Yes.

2644. The gentleman who is active on the Conservative side ?—Yes.

2645. What do you know about him ? What did he do at the last election ? Did you hear of his having money or spending money ?—Yes, I have heard of it ; it has gone from me now.

2646. Mr. Cuming, junior ; do you know him ?—Yes.

2647. What did he do ; which side is he ?—He votes on the Liberal side.

2648. Mr. J. Cuming, junior ?—Mr. S. Cuming, junior.

2649. Which side did he vote ?—On the Liberal side.

2650. Do you know any Cuming, junior, on the Conservative side ?—No.

2651. Do you know Mr. William Oldrey ?—Yes.

2652. What side is he ?—The Tory side.

2653. Can you tell us anything about him at the last election ?—No, I cannot tell anything about him. I know of his being a partisan.

2654. You do know more than that ?—No.

2655. William Earle ; do you know anything about him ?—I know the man.

2656. He is rather notorious, is he not ?—From what I have heard.

2657. What have you heard about him ?—At the last election I cannot say I heard much about him.

2658. What did you hear ?—I have heard of a direction given for a certain work to be done the night before the election, and he left it to the next day.

2659. What election was that in ?—Mr. Pender's first election.

2660. Who got in ?—He did not vote at all. He said it was not worth $2\frac{1}{2}d.$ the whole bundle and the lot of them, for he could not get anything. He said he would go and have half a pint of beer, smoke his pipe, and go home.

2661. He is not in now ?—No.

2662. Did he ever get any money from Mr. Dent ?—I should think so, but I cannot say. I do not fancy that he would vote without. The old man ought to be ashamed of himself, like many others.

2663. He did not vote at all ?—Not at that election.

2664. Did he vote at the last election ?—I cannot say.

2665. How did he vote ?—For Dawkins I should say. I never heard of him voting for the Liberals unless they gave him money.

2666. It follows he would be bribed at the last election ?—I cannot fancy he would without.

2667. Do you know James Powning ?—Powning a reverend gentleman.

2668. Do you know of a lodge-keeper being taken away—a man of the name of Hannaford ?—Yes.

2669. Did you hear of Mr. Powning being mixed up with that ?—I have heard he was privy to it.

2670. What ?—Preaching how they should get him away ; he was not the person who went away.

2671. Who was the person ?—It was a person of the name of Gill who decoyed him over, under the pretence of going shooting.

2672. Where did he take him to ?—Took him somewhere down the other side.

2673. Made him drunk first ?—Made him drunk first and kept him till too late to vote and brought him home stupid.

2674. Did he vote ?—They took him to the poll and he tendered his vote and they were ashamed to take it.

2675. He voted for Colonel Dawkins ?—For Colonel Dawkins, and a disgraceful scene it was.

2676. You are a purity man ?—I will stand before the town with any man charged.

2677. Do you know Richard Michelmore ?—That is a young man.

2678. I am asking you ?—Oh, yes, I know him.

2679. What do you know about him ?—Know nothing about him.

2680. Did you hear about the lame duck party ?—They were very busy about. I know nothing more than that.

2681. Do you know Marcus Angel ?—Yes.

2682. Thomas Welch ?—Yes.

2683. And Bartlett the painter, were they all of the party ?—Bartlett the painter ; I do not understand what you mean by that.

2864. Have you heard about various people, old and decrepid people and others got rid of on the evening of the election, are they called the lame ducks ?—They are the lame ducks.

2685. Those are the men who had something to do with them ?—Yes.

2686. They are the wings of the lame ducks ?—Yes, or the legs, or something.

2687. These four names I mentioned, Richard Michelmore, Marcus Angel, Thomas Welch, and Bartlett who were in it ?—Yes.

2688. Were the others helping and assisting the lame ducks into the asylum at Dent's election ?—No, I do not know that they were.

2689. Who was decoyed away at Mr. Dent's election ?—William Reeves, and Samuel Saunders.

2690. Who took William Reeves away ?—He went away together, he stood in favour of the goose party.

2691. What is the goose party ?—They had a goose roasted and took it away with them.

2692. Had they no ducks to help them ?—I suppose the ducks went with them.

2693. Who were they ?—Three of them went away.

2694. Was Mr. Michelmore one of them ?—I cannot say, I think three of them went away. How they were got away I cannot say, or what was the cause of their going away. It was naturally suspected there was something in the wind.

2695. Do you know Richard Bartlett of Torquay, a cabinet maker ?—Richard Bartlett of Torquay a cabinet maker, Bennett you mean, John Bennett.

2696. Had he anything to do with the lame ducks ?—Not that I was told.

2697. Do you know Gilbert of North Huish ?—Yes.

2698. What is he ?—He is now living with his daughter and not doing anything.

2699. Is he a voter ?—He was at the last election.

2700. How did he vote ?—He voted for Dawkins and Pim.

2701. Did you hear of his having money ?—I should fancy I have, he was a very active man in former times.

2702. Tell us something about him ?—He has been a very active man for some years.

2703. What has he done ?—I have know him from my childhood, and I have known most of his goings on.

2704. Was he employed on the Conservative side ?—He was here and active for them.

2705. Do you know anything of him at the last election ?—I know nothing about what he did at the last election. He told me he was ashamed of himself for coming up here and being beaten in the way he was. He says they ought not to have gone to the poll.

2706. Do you think he got something for his vote ?—I should fancy he would not come up here without having something. He has been always steeped deep in election bribery.

2707. Give us some facts ?—Go back to the election between Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Gisborne.

2708. That is too far back ; he was mixed up in that ?—Yes, deeply mixed up in it, I recollect many times of his going to the bank in the night to draw money as he had not enough to buy the election.

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. G. Mitchell.

27 Aug. 1866.

2709. Tell me about a man called Stone ?—A shoemaker in this place.

2710. What did he do ?—He is a lawyer for the Tory party.

2711. Is he one of those we call Screach's lieutenants ?—He goes by the name of the Skeleton of the Saltash Bridge.

2712. What is the meaning of that ?—He is a very thin man, tall and very thin.

2713. Foote ?—Another lieutenant of Screach's. He never took an active part ; he is a labouring man in the town.

2714. He is not a lieutenant of Screach's ?—No, the man is without a party.

2715. Has he got anything to do with Screach beyond being bought ?—I do not know that Screach bought him.

2716. Do you know a man called Nicholas Manning ?—Yes, they call him two yards of bad stuff ; he is a tall man.

2717. A tall man ?—A man about 6 foot 3.

2718. Is he all bad altogether ?—I do not know.

2719. What did he do ?—A very active man on the committee.

2720. Cannot you tell us anything about him ; you must know something about these things ?—I have heard that Mr. Manning has sometimes asked for some remuneration for what he was worth for having tenants to vote.

2721. For having tenants?—To support the Tory side.

2722. At the last election did you hear what he asked ?—I cannot say I have heard, he asked a pretty good sum.

2723. Was it for his own vote or the vote of his tenants together ?—It was simply remuneration for his having tenants to support the party.

2724. How many tenants has he got ?—Three.

2725. How do they vote, the tenants, did you hear ?—They make their own bargain for their particular sums.

2726. What are those tenants' names ?—There was one of the name of Pitts ; William Farley and John Briggs are his tenants now. Before that John Veasey was a tenant. I cannot say whether he makes more votes than that.

2727. How did the three vote at the last election ?—Wm. Farley voted for Dawkins and Pender.

2728. He was open to conviction on both sides ?—I cannot say.

2729. How did Pitts vote ?—For the Conservatives.

2730. What did he get for his vote ?—I cannot say.

2731. What did you hear ?—That he said he would take as much as he could.

2732. How much did Farley get from Dawkins ?—I cannot say.

2733. Who paid best, Dawkins or Pender ?—

2734. Do you know that he voted for Pender ?—I cannot say.

2735. Do you know he offered his vote for 200*l.* ?—You make a mistake.

2736. Now as to the third tenant, how did he vote ?—He had left the party at the time.

2737. How did the six foot of bad stuff vote himself ?—Do not raise him too much.

2738. Then the two yards, how did he vote ?—He voted for the Conservatives.

2739. What have you heard he got for it ?—I never heard anything that way.

2740. How did you hear about his having asked for something for having tenants, whom did he ask ?—I was told that by some of our party.

2741. Can you recollect any of the committee who was present ?—No, I fancy I heard John Heath complaining that Manning ventured to ask.

2742. John Heath thought he ought to have him altogether for nothing ?—I cannot say.

2743. Did he complain about his wanting something for himself, and something for his tenants too ?—John Heath takes care of himself.

2744. Did John Heath complain that the tenants wanted something as well as Manning ?—The tenants were made a separate bargain.

2745. Do you known Coulton, what is he ?—A gentleman.

2746. Had he anything to do at the last election ?—He was here.

2747. Do you known anything particular about him ?—No.

2748. Captain King ?—He was very busy at one election.

2749. Dent's election ?—Yes.

2750. What did he do ?—I cannot tell what he did.

2751. Did he manage for Mr. Dent ?—I think he was a managing man for Mr. Dent ; he was a managing man for him in China.

2752. He is away in China ?—I have not heard of his going away.

2753. Mr. Bryett, what is he ?—An attorney of this town.

2754. He is a Conservative is he ?—Yes.

2755. Was he active at Dent's election ?—I apprehend he was.

2756. At the last election ?—At the last election, though not exactly in going about himself, sending others about.

2757. Now Mr. Willis junior ?—Is it William or Samuel, which do you mean ?

2758. Samuel is of the lame duck party ?—He was very active, William Willis and Samuel both.

2759. Can you tell us any particulars about that ?—He was going about very active and I heard he was offering money.

2760. Did you hear whom he was offering money to ?—Yes.

2761. Do you know of John Godfrey ?—If he was not paid it was very curious for him, as I know his principles, he was not Tory.

2762. How did he vote at Dent's election ?—For the Tories.

2763. Dunn's election ?—Yes he did vote at that election ; he voted with the Liberal party then.

2764. When was he first converted ?—I should fancy in Dunn's time.

2765. Has he stuck to the Conservative party since ?—Yes.

2766. What is he ?—A tailor.

2767. Now W. H. Philip Bovey ?—I know him.

2768. What did he do at the election ?—I was told he was looking out for a sum of money.

2769. Tell us some particulars about him ?—I have heard Bovey was looking out for money, and Mr. Edmonds was mixed up with him much.

2770. Did Bovey want money for himself or to distribute amongst others ?—None for himself.

2771. Did you hear what he got ?—He got out-done.

2772. Did you hear what he was offered by Mr. Pender's people ?—No.

2773. Thomas Dennis ?—He voted for the Tories.

2774. Had he any inducement to vote for the Tories ?—I do not know.

2775. What is he ?—He keeps carriages that he lends out to hire, and also is a party in the fishery.

2776. Did the Tory party hire carriages from him ?—I do not know whether they monopolized the whole of them.

2777. Do you know whether he got anything for his own vote ?—I suspect he had.

2778. James Edmonds ?—I know him.

2779. What is he ?—A carman.

2780. Did he vote last time ?—Yes.

2781. How ?—For Pender and Seymour.

2782. Pender and Seymour, did he ?—I fancy so.

2783. Did he vote for the Conservatives before that ?—I am not aware of it.

2784. Did you hear of somebody trying to get hold of him, somebody of the Conservative party ?—Yes.

2785. Who was it ?—John Sandford Screach.

2786. What did he give him ?—He offered him a sum.

2787. Joseph Hannaford?—Yes.

2788. Did he get anything at the last election?—If we believe John Sandford Screach, he did.

2789. There was Nickells the blacksmith?—Yes.

2790. Did he have anything?—He must have had.

2791. Now can you say anything about the bribery on the side of the Conservatives at the last election?—I cannot more than what I have told you about Foote.

2792. Now are you going to tell anything about bribery on your own side?—Do not call it my side.

2793. The Liberal side?—You do not often meet with people so far advanced as I am in politics. I see you forget.

2794. Now you are going to tell us something about the Liberal party; you know that Mr. Pender spent a large sum of money?—At the last election if Mr. Pender spent any money he was very foolish.

2795. Do you think he did spend it?—I do not know of my own knowledge. I know if he did he was very foolish; he had a dead poll made up of 26.

2796. Perhaps he had more money than he wanted?—No.

2797. What did he do with it?—I do not know.

2798. I suppose you know that both parties in Totnes agree that they will have nothing to do with men that have not money?—I believe it has been of late years useless to contest this borough without money.

2799. Except it was Lord Seymour?—I do not believe he ever offered anything.

2800. Give us some little information with regard to what sum Mr. Pender spent; what sum do you think he spent?—I cannot say; I never heard any sum at all.

2801. Did you ever hear any sum like 3,000*l.*?—I never heard it.

2802. 4,000*l.*?—No.

2803. A smaller sum?—I never heard any mentioned.

2804. Have you ever heard he spent a good deal of money?—I have heard some parties say he spent money.

2805. You say if there had been no bribery he would have won easily?—Yes; so you would at any time in Totnes if there was no bribery.

2806. If there had been no bribery do you not think there was an inducement for him?—I should fancy he was willing to keep his own money.

2807. Have you heard that 25 or 30 men promised to vote for the Conservatives and ultimately voted for Pender and Seymour at the last election?—I never heard that.

2808. Several split?—I never heard that.

2809. Did you ever hear of any single man in Totnes who promised and then split?—I have heard that.

2810. Who was that?—Mr. Byne; he voted for Pender and Seymour.

2811. Did you hear that he promised to vote for Dawkins and Pender?—I heard he was going to vote for him.

2812. Is that William Byne who lives in Fore street?—Yes.

2813. Whom did you hear he promised?—I heard he promised to vote for the Conservatives.

2814. Was there any particular person to whom he gave his promise?—I think George Heath. I heard he was the man that went to him.

2815. Did you hear that George Heath offered him any inducement to vote for the Conservatives?—I rather think it was,—I recollect,—before that, I am speaking of.

2816. He was not a voter in 1863?—Not Byne?

2817. Yes, William Byne?—He voted right then. I think George Heath is the man that got him.

2818. At the last election he promised George Heath to vote for Dawkins and Pender and voted for Seymour and Pender?—Yes.

2819. At the time before he voted for Dent?—I believe that is the man.

2820. Did you hear what was the inducement in 1863 for him to vote?—I have heard many.

2821. What was the size of the inducement?—I should think about 50*l.* I am not speaking from my own knowledge, I can believe the parties said, that if he was turned out on that ground he should have other grounds.

2822. Was he a tenant of the Duke of Somerset?—Yes.

2823. Was he turned out?—Yes, he was.

2824. In 1865 did you hear what was the size of the inducement that George Heath promised Byne?—I said just now I was wrong in the election.

2825. You do not know about 1865?—I believe I am right; go back to 1863.

2826. In 1863 George Heath went to him and William Byne did vote for Dent?—Yes.

2827. I asked the name of some person of whom you heard that he promised to vote for the Conservatives and did not keep his promise; then you give me the name of William Byne, and he voted for Pender and Seymour in 1865?—I made a mistake in the name.

2828. Do you know William Byne at all?—Yes he is next door neighbour to me.

2829. Did you ever talk with him about politics?—No.

2830. He is not an advanced Liberal?—No; I do not talk much to those men who sell themselves.

2831. Do you think he always sells himself?—I do not know that ever he had the chance before that election.

2832. When he gets the chance he sells himself?—Yes, I judge so.

2833. Have you heard that there was a requisition sent to Mr. Kennard?—I have heard.

2834. Who is S. Hill, jr.?—A mason of this town.

2835. Do you know that he voted for Seymour and Pender?—Yes.

2836. John Wright?—Yes.

2837. He voted for Seymour and Pender?—A plumper for Pender.

2838. William Pengilley, he voted for Pender and Seymour?—Yes.

2839. William Byne and Thomas Blank the same?—Yes.

2840. And John Green?—Yes.

2841. Thomas Matcham?—Yes.

2842. And Thomas Matcham, junior?—Yes.

2843. Do you know that all these had signed a requisition to Mr. Kennard?—No. I am not aware who signed it.

2844. If there were persons who signed a requisition to Mr. Kennard do not you think there must have been some inducement to make them vote for Pender and Seymour?—If I recollect rightly they were told they were not bound by signing that. I believe that was the case.

2845. Who told them that?—Mr. Robert Harris.

2846. When they signed that requisition?—Yes; he told them they were not bound by that.

2847. Did not you hear that the words were these, they were not bound to vote for Mr. Kennard without further consideration?—They were at liberty to do as they liked afterwards.

2848. Without the "further consideration"?—I cannot say.

2849. Do not you believe that all these men received a consideration from Mr. Pender's party?—I cannot say.

2850. Forming your own judgment?—My own judgment is, they must have received money for their votes. I do not disguise anything. I do not wish to shield the Liberal party.

2851. About your own friends you say there were 25 men who kept together as advanced Liberals. Are there any left besides yourself?—I have not left.

2852. Are there any remaining in the borough of Totnes besides yourself?—There are a few; many have died and many have left.

2853. Was Screach one of them?—No.

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. G. Mitchell.

27 Aug. 1866.

2854. The old gentleman ?—No.

2855. Tell me if you can remember one or two ?—I can tell you one, Penny Sharpham.

2856. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was not Mr. Thomas Holman one of your class ?—I think so.

2857. (Mr. Bere.) Is Mr. Samuel Penny Sharpham one of your body still ?—We have no association.

2858. What has become of them ?—Some dead ; some left the place. I cannot say who is left now.

2859. George Roberts ?—George Roberts was not of the party.

2860. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was not he a Chartist ?—Yes ; but this was not a Chartist association I am speaking of.

2861. (Mr. Bere.) I want to know what had become of the 25 independent men ?—One Strivelling and Mr. Saunders the hairdresser died, but I cannot brush my memory up now.

2862. (Mr. Coleridge.) Were any of the Seventy-third left amongst those 25 ?—The Seventy-third was broken up then.

2863. Were there any remnants ?—No.

2864. (Mr. Bere.) Did the admiral belong to your party ?—No ; he knew nothing of it. They were young voters mostly. They had just come into the franchise, and thought it was a shameful thing to see the borough demoralized in the way it had been and they were determined to make a stand and try to break it down, and it was very near done but they would not leave us alone.

2865. Do you vote for other elections besides parliamentary ?—Always.

2866. Have you been ever offered money for your vote for the council ?—Who dare do it to me ?

2867. You have never been offered ?—If you had come and offered it to me I should say Go out of my house.

2868. You have not been offered ; have you heard of anybody having been offered money at the municipal elections ?—Plenty.

2869. More or fewer than for the parliamentary ?—I should say more.

2870. On both sides ?—I have heard of bribery on both sides, but the greatest amounts on the Tory side. The Whigs could not come up to them. They tried it on.

2871. (Mr. Coleridge.) Not even Mr. Pender ?—No they gave it up. They saw it was most demoralizing. The fact is, in election times, it is dangerous to walk about in Totnes.

2872. (Mr. Bere.) Why ?—They get them into houses and give them drink what they call "all nations," and they go out and knock people down.

2873. What is "all nations ?"—It is a peculiar mixture which maddens them, and they would as soon knock one person down as another.

2874. Can you give us the receipt ?—No, but if I am informed rightly, Mr. John Heath can, and his son.

2875. It is a peculiar seductive and intoxicating drink ?—Yes, it appears so, they come out in an intoxicated state.

2876. Is "all nations" supplied to both sides ?—No.

2877. It is a Conservative drink, what is the Liberal drink ?—They used to have their beer and baccy meetings.

2878. Is that all ?—One glass of grog.

2879. Only one ?—Sometimes two, but I never attend meetings in that way. I never mixed with them in their carrying on of their system.

2880. Had they no peculiar compound like "all nations" ?—I never heard anything except beer and baccy.

2881. What were the colours in the elections in former days ?—I have not seen any colours lately.

2882. But before ?—Blue the Tory side ; I used to fancy it was a Liberal colour away from Totnes.

2883. What also ?—Purple and orange ; the Liberal colour was brown, I think that is in Mills time.

2884. What did it come to afterwards ?—Chocolate.

2885. Did it never get a little golden ?—I have no doubt it did.

2886. (Mr. Longe.) Has Mr. Pender in some cases got situations for the sons of gentlemen ?—I have heard that Mr. Pender has given recommendations.

2887. That has been the means through which they got situations ?—They got them to learn a business.

2888. Can you tell me any cases of that kind ?—I believe Mr. Pender gave a recommendation to Mr. Cuming's son William and got him to Mr. Whitworth's factory at Manchester.

2889. (Mr. Coleridge.) Of which Mr. Pender is chairman ?—One of the directors.

2890. (Mr. Longe.) When did Mr. Pender give him that ?—It must have been in 1863. He went away in 1862. The election was in December 1862 I think.

2891. And Mr. Robert Earle's son ?—Yes, he also gave a recommendation for him.

2892. Who is Mr. Earle ?—A farmer.

2893. What politics is Mr. Robert Earle ?—He has before now voted on the Tory side before Mr. Pender came here, but I believe he was rather sick of them he did not care to be in such company.

2894. Is that after the 1863 election ?—After the 1862 election, he gave a recommendation to Mr. Robert Earle's son to get into Mr. Whitworth's factory and there he served his time. But I should say Mr. Cuming had to pay very dear for his son's learning ; I believe Mr. Pender never advanced a farthing towards the education of these sons in his business.

2895. Has Mr. Cuming always been a Liberal ?—Yes, and he wanted his son to be in the business, and I believe he spent 800*l.* on the son.

2896. Mr. Cuming has always been a Liberal ?—Yes, and I do not think he ever looked for a bribe in his life, nor Mr. Earle.

2897. Mr. Sharpham, do you know of Mr. Pender giving an appointment to him ?—I do not know anything about the appointment.

2898. Mr. Endle ; do you know of Mr. Pender getting an appointment for him ?—I recollect that Mr. Endle's son is a clerk in Manchester, whether through Mr. Pender or not I do not know.

2899. You know he is a clerk ?—Yes, he is a clerk in Manchester.

2900. You do not know with what firm ?—No.

2901. Is Mr. Endle alive ?—He is dead.

2902. What politics was Mr. Endle ?—Always on the Liberal side.

2903. Mr. Evan Evens ?—He stole a march on the Liberals. The Conservatives are generally up to that if there is anything to be got from it.

2904. What is Mr. Evan Evens ?—His son got a recommendation from the Duke of Somerset with a promise to vote next time, I suppose.

2905. What is Evens ?—An out and out Tory.

2906. When was the appointment got for his son ?—Four or five years ago.

2907. (Mr. Coleridge.) Ever since you have been a voter and known the borough of Totnes have you considered it corrupt ?—I believe the borough of Totnes at the first election in 1832 was a pure borough.

2908. Was 1837 ?—I believe the next election was pure, but from the time Mr. Baldwin came to this borough there was always a majority of Liberal electors in the borough, from the passing of the Reform Bill up to the present time, I believe.

2909. How do you account if that is so, for the hard runs there have been, and when we find the Duke of Somerset made something like 90 votes. If the borough was Liberal at the time of the Reform Bill and there were 90 votes added on the Liberal side how do you account for the close runs ?—If I had the documents that some people have, I think I could show you how it is they have drawn them away from the Liberals by bribery and corruption. It was going on to such an extent that they got respectable independent men to take their land and counteract this evil system.

2910. The Gerston property which the Tories had and which now the Duke of Somerset has got, that has gone with Bridgetown?—Gone with Bridgetown. They voted on the same side, the Gerston men on the estate were independent men.

2911. But they always supported Liberal candidates?—As long as the duke was a candidate.

2912. And now support his nominee Mr. Seymour?—If he suits their politics.

2913. As long as he is a Liberal?—They support the Liberal interest. They are not to be influenced by anyone. It is not like the system the Tories carried on, of putting on every little boy on it.

2914. I suppose as a Chartist, you wish everyone of 21 to have a vote?—Yes; but I do not like to buy them to vote.

2915. You were saying, if you had the documents, what documents?—The polls they have made up from time to time to show the majority they have got, giving them every doubtful vote, and where they have been bought away.

2916. Who made up the polls?—Mr. Thomas Holman, Mr. Condy, Mr. Winsor, and others.

2917. And they have got them?—Yes, I should think so.

2918. Who is likely to produce them?—I think Mr. Condy, that is my opinion.

2919. Taking it for a moment that you are correct that the Conservative party have pursued this course, have not the Liberals pursued the same course for a great many years?—They have both resorted to the system, no doubt about it.

2920. (Mr. Longe.) The property had been made use of to counteract the power of money?—Yes.

2921. You put it that way?—Yes, and I am now happy to say it would do away with it. If they were to issue a writ for this borough at this time you would not hear of any person being purchased.

2922. (Mr. Coleridge.) Why do you say that?—Because there is a majority to support the Liberal candidates, and there would be no chance for the Tories.

2923. You think no Tory would be likely to come forward?—It is hard to say; we have supposed several times they would never venture again.

2924. If the state of things existed which you say does, would not it make the bribery more on the Conservative side?—They cannot buy enough.

2925. There are not enough liable to conversion?—No. I am happy to say there are 150 straightforward men who will vote against any offer.

2926. You can tell us this as well as anyone. How many voters who are nominally Liberal could be bought, if there was a Conservative candidate, the Liberals to spend none, and the Conservatives to spend all, could not they buy their way?—I do not think they could, I think we have a majority.

2927. Do you mean to put it thus, that if the Liberals spent no money, and the Tories spent all, they could not carry it?—I do not think they could carry it.

2928. (Mr. Bere.) How many people in Totnes are accessible to a bribe?—William Gilbert told me at the last election his opinion was that there were 70 on the Tory side, and about 50 on the Liberal. I told him I did not believe it. I believe there are 120 on the Tory side, and I do not think the Liberal side has anything like 50. I do not think there is, but I do not want to come here and praise the Liberal party up, I mean to tell you my honest conviction.

2929. You and Mr. Gilbert agree about the number, but you do not agree in the way they are distributed?—No, it is not giving the numbers enough on the Tory side. It is a well known fact that there are above 100.

2930. Above 100 to the Tories and an indefinite number to the Liberals; what do you say?—I cannot believe there is 50; not 30.

2931. 20?—I do not think there are 20 that you could buy.

2932. Could they buy 10?—I cannot tell.

2933. You think they might?—They might; but I cannot tell.

2934. We will leave them at 10, and then Mr. Gilbert agrees within 10 as to numbers; but you say they are all Tories, and he says 70 Tories and 50 Liberals?—Mr. Gilbert says 70 Tories and 50 Liberals.

2935. You say 100 Tories and only 10 Liberals. There is a difference of 10 between you; but you differ as to the way they are to be apportioned?—Yes. There are about 120 Tories.

2936. They were once Liberals and have now become Tories?—I do not know whether he meant it. That is the way I took it; he may make what he likes of it.

2937. From what you know of the borough of Totnes, how much money do you think has been spent by both sides since 1839 in bribery or for election purposes?—I have heard that Mr. Baldwin spent about 4,000*l.* at one election. I have no doubt that he spent 40,000*l.* altogether.

2938. Would you say it is nearer 70,000*l.*?—I cannot say; but I should not be surprised at anything he spent. They milked him as dry as they could.

2939. Have you heard that he said he had spent 72,000*l.* and would not spend any more?—I cannot say that he did that; but I heard that he spent all he could.

2940. How much did Mr. Mills spend?—I cannot say.

2941. 8,000*l.* or 10,000*l.*?—Not so much.

2942. Put it down at 7,000*l.*?—I think not so much.

2943. 5,000*l.*?—No, I think not.

2944. A great deal?—4,000*l.* would be a great deal.

2945. Mr. Pender, what have you heard he spent?—I never heard the sum.

2946. It is so much they do not like to say?—I cannot say if Mr. Pender spent a large sum. He was a very foolish man if he did. He had no occasion.

2947. Has it been less than 1,500*l.*?—I should think so.

2948. (Mr. Coleridge.) Should you be surprised to hear that in 1862 he spent 3,000*l.*?—How could he do it. There was no contest; you make a mistake.

2949. I do not mean at the election, but before the next?—I do not know.

2950. Do you mean he might have spent much less at the last election?—I should say he had no occasion to spend much.

2951. Should you say he spent 3,000*l.*?—I think not.

2952. 2,000*l.*?—I could not say.

2953. If he gave anybody 2,000*l.*, you think a great deal must have stuck to the fingers through which it passed?—I think those who pass it may stick to a great deal.

2954. You do not think 2,000*l.* was distributed fairly among the voters?—No; I never heard of it.

2955. Do you think 100,000*l.* has been spent since 1839?—I cannot say, but I should not be surprised if I was to hear it.

2956. (Mr. Longe.) Do you know Robert Oldreive?—Yes.

2957. He did not vote at the last election?—I think he was away at some meeting.

2958. What position is he in?—A very good position; land surveyor and steward.

2959. Robert Oldreive, not Lewis?—There is no such person living in Bridgetown of that name; I do not know the man.

2960. Charles Pitts?—I do not know.

2961. (Mr. Bere.) What more have you got to tell us?—I have been brushing my memory up as to what I have heard about the offering of bribes, and so forth.

2962. That is what we want to know?—Since I have been out I have thought of something. Mr. Evan Evens' name was mentioned before, and I forgot a circumstance about that. I recollect hearing of

FOURTH DAY.

Mr. G. Mitchell.

27 Aug. 1866.

Mr. Evan Evens taking some money to Mr. John Corney of this town.

2963. Which election was that?—That must have been at Dunn's election. Excuse me if I am wrong, I fancy it was at Dunn's election, that he left a sum of 20*l.* with his daughter, and he was a very foolish man, I call it, for he returned it.

2964. John Corny returned it?—Yes.

2965. Was he one of your 25?—No; and I have heard of one Robert Harris wanting to leave a sum of money at Mr. Pearce's, the cowkeeper of this town, and I have heard also about Mr. Foote. I think Mr. Cuming can give you some information about that, Mr. Samuel Cuming, junior.

2966. William Foote was the man whose wife showed the 100*l.*?—Yes; I cannot say the sum exactly, but a great deal of money. On the last election I was informed that Mr. John Heath, junior, and Mr. Arthur Niner were very busy, up at 5 o'clock in the morning, in the parish of Berry, throwing out some great inducements to some of the duke's tenants to vote on their side.

2967. How many?—I cannot say.

2968. What names?—Mr. Chamings of Wild Woods and Mr. Ruby at Castle Mill. Also a case in Dunn's election;—I heard a report that Mr. Harris should go over to John Daw with a sum of 70*l.* That is what I heard; I cannot brush up anything more at present.

2969. Have you brushed up anything about the other side?—I do not think I could. I do not wish to screen them, I assure you.

2970. Nothing against the other side has occurred to you?—Not that I can bring to mind. I vote on the Liberal side, but I never interfere in anything of this sort, in bribery or corruption; and I defy anybody to say I asked them for their vote in any shape or form. As to municipal affairs, I can give you a little.

2971. We should like to hear a little about that?—I have taken part in that on many occasions. I can give you an instance of the Whig party being beaten out by the Tories outbidding them. In 1848, I think, about that time, I fancy I am pretty near right about that, somewhere about that time the Whig party was beaten out, they outbid them altogether.

2972. The whole four candidates?—Yes; they gave up the contest. I thought it was a pity they should go on without being contested, and I allowed myself, and others allowed themselves to be put up; I, Thomas Holman, Mr. Samuel Huxham, and Mr. William Adams, were nominated as candidates for the town council of the borough of Totnes.

2973. What success had they?—We went into the contest and did what we could.

2974. How much money did you spend?—I will tell you presently what I spent; what the party spent altogether. We went into the contest; they did not expect such a thing, but I said, sooner than let them win without a contest, I should allow myself to be put up; not that I wanted to get into the council, for I might have done it without a contest, not at that time though. We went into that election; we had bills printed, voting papers printed, and we got them filled up and distributed them, and went to the poll. I cannot give you the numbers of the poll, but we drew them into spending 80*l.* only in that little bit of a game.

2975. How much did you spend?—I will tell you what we spent. The whole expenses. We had merely requested Mr. Huxham to allow his name to be put with our names so as to make up the four, and when we made up our account it cost us 8*s.* 4*d.* each; that is what it cost us. We did not allow Mr. Huxham to spend a farthing, and we spent 8*s.* 4*d.* each, and that was the whole expense we went to, and we drove them to the expense of above 80*l.*

2976. What was that 80*l.* spent in?—Bribery, to get votes.

2977. That was the time of the two and sixpence being paid and a breakfast, was not it?—They did not get anything out of me, I can assure you that; I never go into these things.

2978. You understand a man would not like to lose his day's work for the pleasure of voting for you?—If he did not choose to, he might stop away for me. I never ask a man to vote for me; therefore I defy the town to say I was mixed up with anything of the sort. I merely give you this as a little incident that happened in our electioneering tactics. It was just to put them to a little expense.

2979. To give them a breathing?—If they did not do it they would walk over the course and save their money. I did not like that, and drove them to spend more.

2780. (Mr. Longe.) You went up on the petition after the last election?—No. Did I not say just now I did not receive any money for electioneering purposes? I think I said so. I was wrong there. I received money about that election petition. I will tell you the whole of it.

2981. If you will keep to my questions we shall not get confused. You did go to London?—Yes, I did go to London.

2982. Were you subpœnaed?—Not from Totnes.

2983. Where you subpœnead at all?—I went to London on my own account.

2984. At the time of the petition?—At the time of the petition.

2985. Were you subpœnaed when you got there?—After I got there. I was just going to tell you. I was subpœnaed after I got there. There were parties who were very officious, and seeing me go to the committee room once or twice, they said, "What do you want "here; you must not come, I will take care of that." I took no notice, but went a second time, and they said they would stop my going in there, and they go in and subpœna me to appear as a witness on this election petition. I looked at the thing and thought it was a hoax. Some fellow there, a runner, they got hold of to serve me with it to get a shilling or two.

2986. (Mr. Coleridge.) You were not sorry for that, because you got your expenses?—After I was kept there three days, they paid me very well; they gave me 4*l.* 10*s.*; I was not dissatisfied. That was the only money I received at all.

2987. (Mr. Longe.) Did you know Mr. Blank?—Yes.

2988. A shoemaker?—Yes.

2989. Was he up in London?—Yes.

2990. Did you see him when in London?—I did.

2991. Did you go up with him?—I went up in the same carriage.

2992. You were not subpœnaed at that time?—No.

2993. Was he a witness?—He was subpœnaed to give evidence.

2994. He was?—Of course he was.

2995. What do you know of him; is he a friend of yours?—No, I know the man, and I speak to him when I see him.

2996. Has he had dealings with you?—I have had dealings with him, but many years ago. Whatever he bought of me he always paid for.

2997. Had you any dealings with him before this last election?—Not within 10 years.

2998. Not within 10 years?—Not within 10 years, I can safely say.

2999. Does he live near you?—No; farther up the town. I live below the arch.

3000. Do you know who went in the same carriage with you besides him?—Yes.

3001. Give us the names?—There were a good many; Samuel Cuming, George Roberts, William Pengilley, and Mr. Reeve and Mr. Perrott.

3002. Those were all witnesses, were not they?—No, Perrott and I went up on pleasure; we were not subpœnaed.

3003. You went to look after those witnesses that were subpœnaed?—Well, in a measure, I went up. I was asked if I would go up. I said I wanted to go.

3004. Who by?—William Perrott was the man who asked me.

3005. What was the object you were wanted for?—I will tell you; the object I was wanted for was to keep those men, if I possibly could; not to let them know what was going on; nor did they know. They did not know what I was about. The object of my going was to keep them from getting others mixed up with them to draw anything they could. The reason I was asked to go up more particularly than anything else was that I was one who knew something about London. I had been living in London, and I knew London, and I was asked to go up to show them about it, to keep them employed and not to let them go astray and mix with others.

3006. (Mr. Coleridge.) Not to let the other side get at them?—Not to let them get at them, because you never know when you are right with them if they get hold of you. If you speak one word they make two of it at any time.

3007. You take more interest in the Liberal party than you have given us to understand before?—No. They thought I was an independent party, and I should not be subpœnaed there at all; therefore they asked me to go up.

3008. Do you mean electioneering parties depend more on independent electors than their own partisans?—There is no doubt that they have confidence in me. I believe they have. I have that pride to think they have at any rate.

3009. You were very much interested in the petition, were not you?—I was disgusted. I thought it was a most shameful thing that men should come down and act in the manner they did. Men who came down, as to which evidence came out at that committee, and they made up their minds before they went to the election that they would file a petition.

3010. And you thought that a very hard matter that Mr. Pender, after spending all this money, should be unseated?—I thought Mr. Pender was very shabbily served; but my going up there could have no more effect than just keeping those parties together and amusing them while there, and after they had been before the committee, of course.

3011. (Mr. Bere.) What is your qualification?—A house in Fore Street. I have never been objected to since I have been in the house; never been corrupted by the registration courts, like many else have.

3012. (Mr. Longe.) You went up with Mr. Blank?—Yes, there were 11 went up, I think.

3013. You were aware that Mr. Blank had been bribed?—I do not know it myself.

3014. Did Mr. Blank tell you?—No, he never told me.

3015. You have heard it mentioned?—I have heard it mentioned that he was bought.

3016. That he was bought?—Yes, I had heard it mentioned previous to his going up. I never had any conversation with Mr. Blank about it in my life.

3017. Did you hear whom he had been bought by?—I do not know whom by.

3018. You know what he went up for?—I do not know why he was summoned.

3019. Do you mean to say you did not know what he was summoned for, what the case was that he was to prove?—No, I did not know, I did not inquire into that.

3020. When did you hear this rumour of his being bought?—At the time the election was going on in the town.

3021. And that was before the petition?—Of course it was.

3022. You knew at the time that there was a rumour that he had been bribed?—Yes, but I had no conversation with him on it. I did not enter into any conversation with any of them on it. I never inquired into it, and never asked a man about it. I never throw out to a man he has been bribed in an argument with me on any subject, however hot the argument with him on the subject be; and I defy any man in Totnes to say that I ever threw out that he was bribed.

3023. If you knew nothing about it what was the use of Mr. Blank going up as a witness?—I was merely requested to go up and keep them apart from the Tories.

3024. (Mr. Coleridge.) You are a neutral?—I was asked to go up to do that. I am not a neutral in voting; I always exercise my franchise, always. I never entered into any conversation with them, never let them know what I was about up there.

3025. When you went there did you keep them together at one house?—I kept them together, saw that they were altogether, and then amused them in the evening; that is, I took them the first evening into the Alhambra, they did not know where it was; I did and took them there; then I took them to the Princess's and next to the Oxford and knowing those different places and they not, they were very glad.

3026. Was it all at Mr. Pender's expense?—I never paid a farthing, never had a farthing in my hand from him.

3027. Did they pay themselves?—They paid their own.

3028. Do you know whether they had it allowed them afterwards?—I do not know. I heard that they had their expenses paid by Col. Dawkins.

3029. Were they not your witnesses?—They were not our witnesses. I was paid by Col. Dawkins too. They were subpœnaed by Col. Dawkins too.

3030. Did all those theatrical entertainments take place at Col. Dawkins' expense?—For my part and the others too, I believe. They say a fool and his money is soon parted.

3031. (Mr. Longe.) You heard that this Mr. Blank had been bribed, a rumour?—I fancy I have heard that Mr. Searle was the man, but I cannot tell.

3032. That was the rumour?—The rumour is so.

3033. You heard that it was so before you went up?—Whether Mr. Blank was bought or not I cannot say, whether bribed or not I cannot say, I never asked him, or had any conversation with the man, I was with him, mixed up, but never asked anyone a question about it.

3034. (Mr. Bere.) You know Mr. Blank's politics?—Yes, I do.

3035. The history of his politics?—Yes, the history of his politics.

3036. What had he been previously?—Well he was a Liberal in principle; he was a Chartist in the first start.

3037. (Mr. Longe.) Before you were subpœnead what were you doing in London. Where were you when you were subpœnaed?—In the lobby of the House of Commons, that is where I was.

3038. Do you know why you were subpœnaed?—To prevent me going into the committee room, that is what they subpœnaed me for, nothing else. They told me, Mr. Harris is the man who told me so; is not that so?

(Mr. Harris.)—Yes.

3039. (Mr. Longe.) Did Mr. Robert Harris the Wesleyan Minister go to the Alhambra with you?—Wesleyan Minister! I do not know him.

3040. The preacher?—He preaches good ale, there is no doubt about that.

JOHN SHUTE, junior, sworn and examined.

J. Shute, jun.

3041. (Mr. Bere.) How long have you lived in Totnes?—About 60 years.

3042. And you knew this borough before the Reform Bill?—Yes.

3043. What are you?—A boot and shoe maker.

3044. Were you brought up to that trade?—Yes.

3045. Were you a freeman of the old corporation?—No, I had nothing to do with the old corporation.

3046. You had nothing to do with the election of members before the Reform Bill?—No.

3047. Which was the first election at which you voted?—Cornish and Parrott's.

FOURTH DAY.

J. Shute, jun.

27 Aug. 1866.

3048. When Lord Boringdon stood ?—Yes.

3049. Cornish and Parrott and Boringdon stood in 1832 ; did you vote then ?—Yes.

3050. Whom did you vote for on that occasion ?—Cornish and Parrott.

3051. There is but little doubt that that was a pure election ?—I believe it was.

3052. When was the next time ?—I voted next time when Mr. Mayne came down.

3053. Did you vote for Mr. Mayne or Lord Seymour ?—Mr. Mayne at that time.

3054. That was a pure election, too ?—I believe it was.

3055. There was very little money on Mr. Mayne's part to pass ?—I do not think there was.

3056. Did you vote again in 1837, when Lord Seymour, Mr. Parrott, and General Adams stood ?—I did.

3057. At that election did you hear for the first time that there was a suspicion of bribery ?—I did hear that.

3058. Did you hear the horse and cart story as told at that meeting which we have heard described ?—Yes.

3059. Do you believe there was any other bribery at that election or anything like that done in any other instance ?—I think the public houses were thrown open for the first time.

3060. On both sides, or only one ?—On Sir George Adams' side.

3061. Was there a good deal of treating took place on the Conservative side ?—I do not think very much.

3062. That was all ; the houses were thrown open? —Yes.

3063. Were a good many people employed as messengers and runners ?—Yes, at that time ; that election, I think, was the first time.

3064. Did you hear what that cost Sir George Adams ?—I never heard.

3065. Then we come to the election of 1839 ; Mr. and Blount, Mr. Baldwin, when Mr. Parrott resigned, and there was a double return?—Yes.

3066. Did you vote for Mr. Blount at that election? Yes.

3067. Did you take any particular interest in Mr. Blount ?—I think I did.

3068. Were you on his committee ?—No, I was not on his committee ; I was subpœnaed.

3069. Did you go about canvassing with him ?—No ; I was anxious for his return just as a private person a voter would be, but I was not on the committee.

3070. Had you known him before ?—Not before he came down. I was subpœnaed on the committee. When there was a scrutiny I was subpœnaed up to London.

3071. Do you know for what purpose you were subpœnaed. We have heard there were allegations of bribery and corruption in the petition ?—I went up as an overseer.

3072. You were an overseer at the time ?—Yes, or the year before. I think there were two sets of overseers subpœnaed up, and I was on one of them, the first set.

3073. Did you hear there was a great deal of money spent at that time ?—I did.

3074. Did you hear what price was paid at that time ?—No ; I will tell you what Mr. Parkes, the chief clerk, told me.

3075. Mr. Joseph Parkes ?—Yes.

3076. He was the Liberal agent at that time ?—Yes. He told me in London that the election and scrutiny cost Mr. Blount 2,000*l.*

3077. The scrutiny did not last very long ?—No.

3078. There was an objection taken on the notice, and it was over in a day ?—Yes.

3079. Did you hear the names of any persons, I do not want them, being electors in 1839 who were bribed by either side ?—I did not.

3080. How much, if Mr Blount spent 1,500*l.* or 2,000*l.*, did Mr. Baldwin spend ?—I cannot tell ; perhaps the same amount. I do not know.

3081. They did curious things in those days, did not they ? Did you hear of a John Endle who was put into a cask ?—I had quite forgotten that.

3082. Now I remind you do you know ?—No, I have forgotten it.

3083. That was a void election in 1841, and then there was an election where Mr. Gisborne and Mr. Baldwin were candidates ?—Yes.

3084. Did you vote for Mr. Gisborne then ?—Yes.

3085. Did you take any interest on his part ?—No.

3086. Nothing more than voting ?—No.

3087. Had you anything to do with Mr. Gisborne coming down here as a candidate at all ?—No.

3088. Did not you know him till he came down ? —No.

3089. Was there a good deal of bribery at that election as far as you know ?—It was reported there was bribery. I believe there has been bribery at every election.

3090. Since 1839 ?—Yes.

3091. Since bribery was first introduced there has been bribery ever since ?—Ever since, I believe.

3092. Now we come to this last election of 1865 ; you voted for Seymour and Pender ?—Yes.

3093. Have you heard of any people represented to have been bribed at that last election ?—There are many reports. I took no interest in it ; never went out to vote till 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I never took any interest at all.

3094. You did not go out till 3 o'clock to vote ?—No.

3095. The state of the poll at that time was strongly in favour of the Liberal candidates, was not it ?—Yes.

3096. The election was virtually over at that time ?—Yes ; 204 and 196, those were the two Liberals.

3097. You say you did not take much interest in politics ?—No.

3098. Had not you had work to do for the Liberals ? —Yes, I think in 1839 I was appointed by Mr. Michelmore the agent.

3099. Mr. Thomas Michelmore ?—Yes.

3100. What were you appointed as ?—To watch the registration and work it, the parliamentary registration.

3101. How long did you do that ?—About 20 or 21 years.

3102. Then it would be from 1839 to 1859 ?—I think it must have been more than 20 years up to 1861 or 1862 ; 1861 I think.

3103. Who appeared before the barrister as the representative of the Liberals besides yourself ?—The first time I appeared in court there were four or five reformers, who were attorneys, Mr. Taunton, Mr. Tucker, vice president, Mr. Windeatt, and Mr. Parrott since deceased.

3104. Were there any gentlemen who took a similar part to yourself on the Conservative side ?—I do not know. I think there was always some gentman who looked after the registration.

3105. Is there a regular paid agent on the Conservative side ?—Yes.

3106. Who is that now ?—On the Liberal side ?

3107. No, the Conservative side ?—I do not know.

3108. Who on the Liberal side ?—Mr. George Fitze.

3109. Who appeared as the advocate on the Conservative side in the registration courts ?—Sometimes Mr. Daw of Exeter.

3110. At the first start ?—Mr. Beer.

3111. Of Devonport ?—Yes.

3112. And then another gentleman from Exeter, Mr. Abbott ?—Yes.

3113. Who were the local solicitors who assisted them ?—I can hardly tell, sometimes one and sometimes another.

3114. Mr. Charles Edwards ?—Yes; he was present several times.

3115. And Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore ?—He was there on behalf of the Seymour interest the last two or three years.

3116. Then all the time you continued to conduct the registration, did Mr. Tucker of Ashburton, appear there as one of the attorneys ?—He did; not for Lord Seymour.

3117. But as representing the Liberal interest ?—Yes.

3118. Has he ceased to act ?—I believe he has on account of ill-health.

3119. Has his son succeeded him ?—I have never seen his son at those times.

3120. During all those elections did Mr. Tucker of Ashburton, appear and act as agent of one party in a registration or at an election ?—He acted in the court as the advocate of the Liberal party; but as regards the election, Mr. Tucker did not often appear at Bridgetown when the elections took place. Lord Seymour's interest was strong, so that he never required an advocate there.

3121. Where was your vote or qualification, in Bridgetown ?—No, in Totnes. Mr. Michelmore and myself used to sit at the "Seymour Arms."

3122. Was that where the polling was going on ?—No, the committee room was there.

3123. Were you a sort of clerk there or what ?—No, I was not a clerk. Mr. Michelmore asked me to go, and I went.

3124 Then all the proceedings of the Liberal party were known to you ?—No; as regards the Seymour party or the Seymour interest Mr. Michelmore and I conducted that.

3125. Do you remember when Mr. Petre and Mr. Teed came down as Conservatives ?—I can just recollect their coming, and that both of those gentlemen canvassed me.

3126. Did you hear of a memorandum being drawn up between Lord Seymour and the Conservatives ?—I did.

3127. Did your hear the purport of that memorandum ?—I never could discover what it was. I did not know of it until Mr. Presswell mentioned it. There was a rumour about it, and I asked Mr. Thomas Michelmore if it was correct. He said I cannot tell you whether it is correct or not, or the purport of the memorandum as I was not present. I told Mr. Michelmore that I thought it was very wrong, if Lord Seymour had done so, to coalesce with the Tories. He said I think I can tell you why Lord Seymour did this; he went about canvassing, and he came in in the evening and said, I do not know what is the matter with the electors of Totnes, they will not promise me that they will not vote against me; but I have had but five promises all the day.

3128. How long was that before the election ?—It might have been but a few days.

3129. Was that in 1841 ?—It was Mr. Petre's election, I think. I can just recollect it. I do not know the date.

3130. Was it before the memorandum was signed ?—Yes; I think the memorandum was signed a day or two after that.

3131. Upon Lord Seymour making this complaint, what did Mr. Michelmore say ?—Mr. Michelmore was very cautious.

3132. He is now dead ?—Yes.

3133. The end of it was that the agreement or memorandum was signed between Lord Seymour and the Conservative party ?—Yes, and that gave offence to the tenants.

3134. And the next election where Mr. Ricardo was a candidate that was carried out ?—I believe so.

3135. Were you in the committee room of the Liberals at half-past 3 o'clock on the day of Mr. Ricardo's election ?—I do not remember.

3136. Do you remember some person coming into the room and saying they had three to vote for Mr. Ricardo, Mr. Baldwin being then one a head, and Mr. Michelmore asking whether he should not make Cross and Field vote for Mr. Baldwin ?—Nothing of that kind was done in my presence.

3137. Did you know Cross and Field ?—I knew them perfectly well.

3138. Were they the Duke's tenants ?—Yes. Field was told by Mr. Michelmore before the election that he was to plump for Lord Seymour, and Field being somewhat of a Liberal had promised the two Liberal candidates, and Mr. Michelmore heard of it, he called on Mr. Field, and for the first time he said he almost lost his temper; he said he was bound to support the Liberal interest, and Mr. Michelmore was very angry with him.

3139. Mr. Michelmore thought that Field's voting for the two Liberals would not benefit the Liberal interest ?—He thought it would damage the Conservatives; that if Lord Seymour undertook to stand as it were neutral, that if any of the tenantry went and voted for Mr. Ricardo it would be an injury to Mr. Baldwin.

3140. And would upset the arrangement between the Conservatives and Lord Seymour ?—Yes.

3141. I believe that arrangement did not continue in force at the next election ?—No.

3142. When Mr. Dunn came down ?—Yes.

3143. Were you concerned at all in the election of 1852 ?—Yes, I was there then.

3144. Were you a quasi clerk of Mr. Michelmore's for election purposes ?—No; he employed me in the registration court. I suppose he thought he had a claim on me; we were the only two persons who managed it.

3145. At Mr. Ricardo's election was there a good deal of money flying about amongst the Liberals ?—I did not hear of it much. I was kept close at the work.

3146. Who were Lord Seymour's committee ?—Myself and Mr. Michelmore.

3147. That was all ?—Yes.

3148. Was there no one else ?—No.

3149. Whom had Mr. Mills or Mr. Ricardo ?—They had several—Mr. Cuming, Mr. Windeatt, and several others working for them.

3150. Where was their committee held ?—That I cannot tell you.

3151. Was it at the "Seymour Arms" ?—It was perhaps in another room in that house.

3152. Was there no communication between them and you ?—No.

3153. You kept yourselves perfectly aloof from them ?—Yes, during Lord Seymour's election.

3154. That was as long as the understanding lasted, but when that was put an end to in 1852 did not Lord Seymour and Mr. Mills work together ?—No, I think not.

3155. Had they separate committee rooms ?—Yes.

3156. Were you and Mr. Michelmore still the only two for Lord Seymour ?—Yes.

3157. Had not Mr. Chaster anything at all to do with it ?—He had nothing to do with us.

3158. Were you ever sent out to canvass a doubtful voter, or do anything of that sort ?—Never.

3159. At the election in 1855, when Lord Gifford came in unopposed, do you remember Mr. Mackenzie coming down ?—Yes, I remember him.

3160. Did you hear the reason why Mr. Mackenzie went away ?—I suppose he thought he had no chance.

3161. Did you hear how it was that he had no chance ?—I suppose it was the same story over again, the metal.

3162. Did you hear that he came down pretty heavily laden, but that the load was not enough ?—I heard so.

3163. Did you hear the names of any individuals who were then holding out ?—I did not.

3164. Have you any doubt that Mr. Mackenzie did not stand because he found that he would have to pay an enormous sum for the seat ?—I believe that is correct.

3165. In 1857, when Mr. Mackenzie did stand with

FOURTH DAY.

J. Shute, jun.

27 Aug. 1866.

Mr. Gregory, Mr. Mills, and Lord Gifford, had you a committee ?—Yes.

3166. Who were the committee ?—I think the committee was then enlarged.

3167. Who had the honour of being introduced on the committee ?—I was on the committee with Mr. Michelmore. Lord Gifford then was of opinion that the Liberal interest should be amalgamated, that they should not be distinct, as they had always been ; such was his opinion, and I believe it was acted on.

3168. In consequence of that, has there been a joint working together of the two Liberal candidates from that period ?—It has been more so than before.

3169. Have they had separate or the same committees ?—I can hardly tell you. I thought those things hardly worth remembering. I know that Mr. Windeatt was there, and young Mr. Michelmore, and several more.

3170. Did you hear anything of Mr. Mills having received a sum of money in the town on the occasion of that election ?—I never heard of it until it was mentioned here on Saturday.

3171. Did Mr. Mills spend a great deal of money here ?—There can be no doubt of that.

3172. Have you not heard what Mr. Dent spent when he was here, or what Mr. Mills spent ?—Never.

3173. You have heard no rumours at all ?—I do not know what Mr. Mills spent, but there is no doubt he spent a great deal of money.

3174. You gave up the registration in 1861 ; who succeeded you ?—Mr. Fitze.

3175. Did you continue on the committee of the Liberals ?—Not after that.

3176. Have you taken no active part in the elections of 1863 and 1865 ?—None at all. Mr. Jeffery Michelmore sent for me several times, but I declined, and said I had had enough of it.

3177. Was your disinclination to act on account of the way in which things had been managed in Totnes ?—It was precisely.

3178. When you were on the joint committee in 1857 and 1859, did you not hear the names of persons who wanted bribes, or those who had been offered them successfully ?—I was not admitted into the secret ; there were other parties.

3179. Was there an inner circle or conclave ?—There must have been somewhere.

3180. (Mr. Longe.) What were your duties particularly ?—To write out the canvassing books for Lord Seymour or Lord Gifford.

3181. You kept an account of the names of persons who had promised ?—Yes.

3182. After the Liberal party had amalgamated, what were your duties when you were acting for both ?—The duties were pretty much the same.

3183. Did not that necessitate your knowing those who did not promise ?—I looked over Lord Gifford's book, but over Mr. Mills' I did not. Lord Gifford always was strong, as well as Lord Seymour, and that satisfied me that his election was sure.

3184. You did not canvass yourself at all ?—I did not.

3185. You must have known the names in regard to Mr. Mills when you acted for Lord Gifford and Mr. Mills ?—No ; I had nothing at all to do with Mr. Mills.

3186. I thought you said that the committees were combined then ?—They were more combined than they had been before, but there was a time when they used to part, and when we used to go into another room by ourselves.

3187. Was there any intimation given that there were discussions of a peculiar kind going on which Lord Gifford's agents were not to hear ?—I did not hear of any of those things then.

3188. But you did hear afterwards that those things had been discussed ?—I do not know that I did.

3189. Was not your opinion asked when they mentioned the name of a doubtful voter ? Do you know how this man is to be acted upon, or what influence can we bring to bear upon such a one ?—No, nothing was said about any one but those in the Duke's interest.

3190. You were never asked any such question as that ?—I have been asked the question no doubt, but the interest that was brought to bear was nothing more than canvassing.

3191. Did they ever follow up that question by saying, what are his circumstances, do you know whether 20*l.* or 30*l.* would be in any way useful to him ?—No.

3192. Such things as those never took place in your presence ?—They did not.

3193. In 1859 did no one receive money for voting for Lord Gifford ?—I do not believe that Lord Seymour or Lord Gifford ever gave a shilling.

3194. As to Mr. Mills, you have no doubt they did receive money ?—Yes.

3195. At the time when you say they had two rooms, were they at the same hotel ?—Yes, I think so.

3196. Your work was simply confined to writing down the names as they were brought to you ?—That was the most of it.

3197. Who were the persons who brought this information ?—Lord Gifford would bring in his book and so would Lord Seymour, and put down the book before me and Mr. Michelmore. There was a man of the name of Knapman who was evicted.

3198. About what time was this ?—I do not know the date. There had been a field added to give him a vote, and we found out afterwards that he was going to sell his vote. It was a difficult matter to come at him, we could not find him out, he was never to be found at his house to canvass him ; we heard that he was going to vote for the Conservatives, and one afternoon or evening as I was walking up the town I saw Knapman on the other side of the street. I went over to him and said to him, "Mr. Michelmore "wants to see you ;" he said "Where is he ?" I said, "At the 'Seymour Arms Hotel.'" He said, "I don't "want to see Mr. Michelmore." On the day of the election, about three o'clock, I was sitting with Mr. Michelmore and he was requested to go outside as some one wanted to see him. He came back and said to me, "Who do you think wanted to see me ?—that "man Knapman." He had said to Mr. Michelmore, "I was made a vote to support the Liberal interest, "and now that I see Lord Seymour is safe I was "going to support the Conservatives—let me support "the Liberals ; it will be for my advantage to do "so." Mr. Michelmore said, "I will not take your "promises."

3199. He went and voted for Seymour and the Conservatives ?—Yes.

3200. And subsequently he was turned out of his land ?—Yes.

3201. Was the condition of his holding that he was to vote for both the Liberal candidates and not for one only ?—Yes.

3202. Did you receive as the watcher of the Liberal interest any particular instructions from Mr. Michelmore what to do as to votes ?—To strike off all the corrupt votes that we possibly could ; all that we thought would ask something for their votes.

3203. Can you mention the name of a single voter whom you knew to have been bribed in 1859 who were ever struck off the list on your objection ?—I do not recollect.

3204. Can you give me a single instance of a vote that you had altered in consequence of these instructions ?—It is so many years ago that I cannot.

3205. You were the agent I think in 1861 ?—Yes.

3206. Do you remember William Mitchell ?—He was struck off.

3207. When was that ?—I do not know.

3208. Who objected to him ?—The Seymour interest.

3209. For what reason ?—The reason was because it was thought that he had sold one vote to the Conservatives.

3210. (Mr. Coleridge.) Used all the people who supported Lord Seymour to support Lord Gifford ?—Nearly all.

3211. Where a good many Conservatives had given Lord Seymour one vote was the interest strong enough to secure a Conservative vote for Lord Gifford ?—There might be some who voted for Lord Seymour who would not vote for Lord Gifford.

3212. Although Lord Gifford represented the Seymour interest he had not so strong a hold upon the electors as Lord Seymour himself had ?—I do not known how that may be; Lord Gifford told me that he thought the Liberal interest ought to be united.

3213. He did not follow out the tactics of Lord Seymour in letting the Liberals fish for themselves ?—I do not know about that.

3214. I suppose the fact was that Seymour was not thorough enough for them ?—Some of the Reformers certainly did object to him.

3215. That he did not back up the other Liberal members ?—Yes.

3216. Lord Gifford was a more Liberal member than Lord Seymour ?—I think so.

3217. And in consequence was more popular ?—I think so.

3218. I believe Lord Seymour never spent or had occasion to spend any money ?—Not a shilling.

3219. But could always be returned against any amount of money on the other side so far as he was concerned ?—Yes.

3220. Do you consider the Duke is as powerful in the borough now as when he sat for this place as Lord Seymour ?—I should think he is.

3221. He could put any one whom he liked into one seat ?—I think not, he must be a thorough Liberal man.

3222. Supposing his son were the same politics as his father could he put him in without spending any money ?—I think so.

3223. If he were a stranger he must spend money though a Liberal ?—He must be a thorough Liberal man.

3224. Did Mr. Pender come in entirely on the Seymour interest ?—When Mr. Pender came down he had nothing to do with the Seymour interest.

3225. Mr. Pender you do not doubt obtained a deal of influence by the money he spent ?—I dare say he did.

3226. Have you any notion what money Mr. Pender spent at the last election ?—Not at all.

3227. Did you hear that a large sum was spent by Mr. Pender in 1862, before the election of 1863 ?—I have no doubt he did.

3228. In 1862 there was no canvassing then ?—Only five voted for Mr. Dent and 171 for Mr. Pender.

3229. What became of all Mr. Dent's former supporters ?—I cannot tell, they refused to vote for him, I do not know what for.

3230. Have you any doubt that a large sum was spent in order to prevent Mr. Dent from continuing the contest ?—I cannot tell, I was not on the committee.

3231. It is not very likely that in Totnes only five would be found to vote for the Conservatives. What led to Mr. Dent's resigning ?—I do not know.

3232. Without money being spent and the Seymour influence used, in 1862 the parties were pretty evenly balanced ?—It appears so.

3233. If Mr. Dent had gone on was there any chance of his being returned ?—If he had spent a large sum of money he would.

3234. The parties were so evenly balanced that Mr. Dent's retirement must have been brought about by something beyond legitimate means ?—I believe it was brought about by the voters wanting too much money, that is my opinion.

3235. Did they get that money from Mr. Pender which they otherwise would have got from Mr. Dent ?—I cannot tell you that.

3236. Was a large sum spent on the Liberal side in that contest when Mr. Dent polled the five ?—I should think Mr. Pender did not spend any money then; I cannot tell.

3237. (Mr. Bere.) Did things look as if he were likely to spend it ?—I cannot tell.

3238. (Mr. Coleridge.) Could that state of things have been brought about without the expenditure of money by Mr. Pender ?—I believe it was by money that it was brought about.

3239. (Mr. Bere.) When were the waterworks erected here ?—About 12 months since.

3240. When was the school opened ?—It is not opened yet.

3241. When was the foundation stone laid ?—About two years since.

3242. (Mr. Coleridge.) How do you account for this state of things unless by a large expenditure of money ?—I was not on the committee, I do not know.

3243. You have no opinion on the subject ?—I do not know.

3244. May I ask have you no opinion on the subject ?—I have an opinion that Mr. Pender did spend money; I have no doubt about it.

3245. Can you tell at all to what amount ?—That I do not know.

3246. What should you think ?—It is out of any man's power to tell.

3247. Suppose you were told that between 1862 and 1865 Mr. Pender had spent as much as 8,000*l.* should you be very much surprised ?—I should be surprised.

3248. What should you think a probable figure that it would have cost him ?—I cannot say.

3249. You cannot give us any information upon that ?—No.

3250. (Mr. Longe.) After the election in 1863 Mr. Pender left a sum of money behind him ?—There were 1,000*l.* left by him here, which I think was put into the bank in the names of three persons, Mr. Chaster, Colonel Willoughby, and Mr. Thomas Michelmore.

3251. What was their trust, what were they to do with it ?—They were treasurers for the town council. I received 200*l.*, for which I gave them a receipt, which went towards the construction of the waterworks.

3252. Do you know how the rest of it was disposed of ?—There was something expended on the bells of the tower. I do not know the amount. A certain amount was given to the Independent chapel and to the Wesleyan chapel. I think the thousand pounds was distributed equally and fairly amongst the parties.

3253. (Mr. Longe.) Was any other money given by Mr. Pender after the election in 1863 ?—Not to my knowledge.

3254. As to Mitchell's case, what was his qualification to vote ?—It was for a house at Bridgetown.

3255. What was the rental ?—I think 10*l.*

3256. Do you know how long he had held that qualification ?—I think he had had it for several years.

3257. And you supported it before the revising barrister ?—Yes.

3258. Was it often opposed ?—It was opposed by the Liberal party I think.

3259. On what ground did they oppose it ?—Because that Mitchell had voted for the Conservatives sometimes.

3260. What objection did they bring forward to his vote ?—That it was not worth 10*l.*; that there was a room behind in the court which other people had access to, and that it had a separate door below, which reduced the value below 10*l.*

3261. You retained the vote for some time ?—Yes.

3262. And then at this time did you not oppose the next registration of his vote ?—Perhaps I did.

3263. On what ground did you oppose it; after having supported it for some years, what was your objection ?—That there was a house behind.

3264. Was not the objection that he only paid

FOURTH DAY.

J. Shute, jun.

27 Aug. 1866.

9*l.* 10*s.*, not 10*l.*, and that Mr. Michelmore had given him back 10*s.*?—No, that was not it; I never heard of that.

3265. You never heard that he had paid back 10*s.*?—It was said he had; he always said he had not.

3266. Was not that given in evidence before the revising barrister?—I think Mr. Mitchell has been struck off since I left the registration, four years ago; I may have made a mistake in the dates, but I think he was struck off since I left.

3267. You did not remember Mr. Michelmore or yourself opposing the vote on the ground that he did not pay 10*l.* a year rent?—No.

3268. (Mr. Bere.) He was struck off upon an objection which had been before taken by the Conservatives, and always upset on your own argument?—I cannot recollect.

3269. (Mr. Coleridge.) It was the want of your argument which lost the vote?—Perhaps it might be.

3270. In 1862 Mr. Seymour came down on the death of Mr. Mills?—Yes.

3271. And in 1863 stood against Mr. Dent on the death of Lord Gifford?—Yes.

3272. Large sums were spent in 1863 by the Conservatives?—I have no doubt of that; a man has no chance here unless he spends money.

3273. Was any money then spent on behalf of Mr. Seymour?—Not a shilling.

3274. The Duke's interest here is sufficient to return a member without the payment of any money?—I believe it is.

3275. Have you ever heard that Mr. Pender paid part of Mr. Seymour's expenses in that year?—Never.

3976. Or that the money was spent on his behalf?—No.

3277. (Mr. Longe.) What number of votes would you attribute to the Duke's interest?—I cannot tell unless I was to look at the register. They were not all objected to; a few might have been struck off.

3278. When you acted upon the committee you must remember the number which you could count upon?—I cannot recollect it now.

3279. Was it as many as 60?—I should think it was more than 60, perhaps 70.

3280. (Mr. Bere.) As you have been the registration agent for a great many years you will be able to tell us the amount of the manufacture of what are called the Linney votes; when did they first begin?—It has been going on gradually.

3281. Was there not a great increase in Bridgetown between 1840 and 1841?—I think there was.

3282. At that time was Mr. Baldwin the owner of the Gerston property?—Yes.

3283. And I believe he manufactured votes out of that?—Yes.

3284. Do you know to what number?—I should think about 20.

3285. How many were created on the Bridgetown estate?—I should think about the same number.

3286. How many Linney voters are there in that place at present?—I do not know.

3287. How many were there upon it when you ceased to have anything to do with it?—I think there were sixty odd.

3288. Then have they been reduced or have they been increased?—I think they have been increased since then.

3289. Are there any Linney votes now except upon property belonging to Liberal owners?—Yes, I should think there are.

3290. Will you tell me of any?—There were several votes made at Broomborough.

3291. That was in 1864, and when they came before the revising barrister they were abandoned, can you give me any one instance of a Linney vote upon land which is not belonging to a Liberal owner?—I cannot tell you.

3292. Are there any on Bowden?—There were three on Bowden.

3293. They do now exist in Bridgetown I believe?—Yes.

3294. That all belongs to the Duke of Somerset?—Nearly all.

3295. What is the number in Gurston?—I cannot tell the number now, because the company has been upset, the others there belong to the Duke.

3296. What other Linney voters are there in Totnes?—I think in Langdon there are some.

3297. Are there any in Sharpham?—I think there are some on the Ingelwood estate.

3298. Does that belong to the Duke?—Yes.

3299. Has Mr. Durant got any?—I think he has not very many.

3300. As many as six or seven?—Perhaps so.

3301. Then it is only on Liberal property that the free extension of the franchise is allowed?—It is.

3302. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you heard the story of a guarantee having been given for a sum of money during the election of 1863?—I have heard of it in the court, but I do not know anything more of it.

3303. You do not know anything of Mr. Michelmore and Mr. Chaster having become responsible to the Provincial Bank for a certain sum of money?—I never heard of that matter before.

3304. Did you ever hear that Mr. Pender paid it afterwards?—No, I did not.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. W. J. W. Bastard.

28 Aug. 1866.

FIFTH DAY.

Tuesday, 28th August 1866.

MR. WILLIAM JOHN WAKEHAM BASTARD recalled and further examined.

(The Witness.) I stated yesterday that the amount of the mortgage was 350*l.*, but that was a mistake. I find on looking that it is 325*l.* Then I was asked who the solicitor was for whom I transferred it. Now I find that the person to whom it was transferred was Miss Corrie, of Newton, in Herefordshire, and the solicitor's name was Rogers, of Exeter.

3305. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Rogers was the gentleman who wrote the letter and signed the cheque?—Undoubtedly. I have not seen the cheque since.

3306. You have no doubt it was?—No.

3307. Whoever was the solicitor signed the cheque?—Yes, and this transaction took place on the 24th December 1863.

3308. (Mr. Bere.) Is that all you wish to say?—Yes.

Mr. R. Harris.

MR. ROBERT HARRIS sworn and examined.

3309. (Mr. Bere.) What are you?—I am a land agent and the recognized Conservative registration agent for the borough of Totnes.

3310. How long have you been the recognized Conservative registration agent for the borough of Totnes?—I might say I have worked the registration either partially or wholly since 1859.

3311. Who preceded you in that?—A man called Welch.

3312. By whom have you been paid?—By Mr.

Rennie in part. I have had a standing stipend from him, and sums varying from the committee at Totnes.

3313. You have been paid a standing fee by Mr. Rennie?—Yes; 25*l.* a year at the outset till 1862, and after 1863 50*l.* a year from Mr. Rennie.

3314. What sums have you received from the Conservative committee?—I should think on an average 50*l.* a year, that is, from the candidates, or the prospective candidates, and the committee.

3315. Will you give us the names of the individuals from whom you have received the money—the committee money?—I received money in various sums from the committee and Mr. Maclay, of London.

3316. From what member of the committee?—I think it was subscribed at the time; 5*l.* from Mr. Bentall, 2*l.* or 3*l.* from Mr. Bastard, 5*l.* from one and 5*l.* from another.

3317. Did you go and collect the individual sums, or did you bring in an account, and was it paid?—Some of the gentlemen made me gratuities after the registration, some 10*l.* and some 15*l.*

3318. Whom do you consider the members of the Conservative committee?—Mr. Bastard, Mr. Bentall, Mr. James Gill, Mr. John Heath, Mr. Andrews, Sparke Distin, John Willis, Mr. Edmund Tucker, Mr. Evan Evens, Mr. Nicholas Manning, Mr. Edward Owen, Mr. James Pack, Mr. T. C. Kellock, Mr. Thomas Hunt Edmonds, and Mr. Frederick Kellock, secretary. I think that is the whole.

3319. Are they persons from whom you have received money from time to time as registration agent?—I have.

3320. How long have you lived in Totnes before you became registration agent?—I may say I am a native of Totnes and a thoroughbred Conservative; my father was always a Conservative, and is a Conservative now.

3321. You take a strong interest in the Conservative cause in Totnes?—Not before 1857, when Mr. Windeatt got me out of a situation worth 200*l.* a year.

3322. He is now dead?—Yes.

3323. Then you began to take an interest in politics?—In 1857 he got me discharged.

3324. There was an election?—Yes, Mr. Mackenzie's election.

3325. What were you?—I was district secretary for the British Equitable Insurance Society. I had the control of Devon and Cornwall, for which I received 100*l.* a year salary, all my travelling expenses, and 20*l.* a year to keep a horse, and 5 per cent. on all I did.

3326. You considered it worth 200*l.* a year?—Yes.

3327. Was it at Mackenzie's election that you began to be connected with it?—No, after that.

3328. The election of 1859?—That was the first time. I had a vote in 1857. I was in favour of Mr. Mackenzie, and because I displeased Mr. Windeatt and two or three others of the Dissenting rabid Radicals they wrote and got me out of the situation. They had some influence.

3329. It was after the election that you got your discharge?—I was not exactly discharged. They wished me to go to London—to remove to London. I went to London, because I was only an annual servant, and bound to do as they bade me. After I went to London I found I was out of my element, and consequently I resigned. It was the means of my sending in my resignation.

3330. In 1859 were you concerned in the election?—I was.

3331. Did you take an active part in the election; I only ask you generally about the early elections?—I may say I took an active part. There are several things connected with it which will come out in due course.

3332. You were active in the election of 1859, and I may assume that you were active in the election of 1863, and that you took a prominent part in the election of 1865?—I did.

3333. Will you tell us that; did you go to London about the business of the election?—I went there several times.

3334. When did you first go?—I do not know the date; just prior to the election, some months perhaps. I may say the Conservative party was looking out for some time for a candidate instead of Earl Gifford, that is, in 1862.

3335. Confine yourself to 1865?—I do not think I went to London but once.

3336. It was known that there was a general election to take place in the summer; when did you go to London to find a Conservative candidate for Totnes?—I do not think I went but once during that period.

3337. When was that?—Just prior to the election.

3338. How long?—Some months.

3339. When you got to London whom did you see?—I saw Mr. Rennie.

3340. That is Mr. Colleton Rennie, of the Western circuit?—Yes.

3341. He was here as a Conservative candidate some years ago?—I think he came in 1861.

3342. Was Mr. Mackenzie here when Mr. Colleton Rennie came?—No.

3343. Was there a vacancy expected?—It is always expected when sharp divisions are going on.

3344. He never stood as a candidate?—He came as a prospective candidate. He was introduced to the committee and accepted as candidate.

3345. He is a barrister on the Western circuit?—Yes.

3346. And the son of Sir John Rennie?—Yes.

3347. Sir John Rennie was at Bowden?—Yes, 12 months.

3348. Was it then that he was chosen as candidate?—I think before that.

3349. Where did you first see Mr. Rennie?—The first interview was in Totnes.

3350. But in London?—At the Carlton Club.

3351. Were you alone?—Yes.

3352. Did he recommend any one?—No.

3353. Were any names mentioned?—Yes.

3354. Tell us them?—Mr. Potter, the chairman of the Great Western.

3355. Anybody else?—Mr. Akroyd. He was a Liberal Conservative considered. He is now the member for Halifax.

3356. Anybody else mentioned?—No, those were the only two.

3357. Did anything else pass between you and Rennie as to whether he himself should stand?—He asked what I thought would be the amount of the expense.

3358. What did you tell him?—According to the register I thought it would take at least 4,000*l.*

3359. He was not able to stand 4,000*l.*?—He said his father would not advance more than 2,000*l.*, and I told him I did not think that would do.

3360. Having told Mr. Rennie that 4,000*l.* would be wanted, how was that to be spent?—In bribery.

3361. How many votes did you imagine would be influenced by 4,000*l.*?—I really cannot tell you; sometimes the hotel bills are fearful here; it all depends upon that.

3362. 4,000*l.* was to be spent improperly; properly and improperly in the election?—Yes.

3363. Then beyond the reason given for not becoming a candidate himself he mentioned the names of Mr. Potter and Mr. Ackroyd amongst others?—Yes.

3364. Did he mention Mr. Dent's name at that time?—No.

3365. Nor Colonel Dawkins?—No. Mr. Dent's name was mentioned. I had written to Mr. Dent several times, and had a letter from his secretary saying that he refused to come forward unless I got a requisition signed containing the names of certain persons, amongst others Mr. Bowden and Mr. Chaster, which was inconsistent altogether, and I gave him up.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

3366. The letter is,—

"69, South Audley St., Grosvenor Square,
"MR. HARRIS, Londor, April 22, 1864.
"DEAR SIR,

"I HAVE your note of the 20th inst., and in reply have only to say that I am quite unable to assist you in any way towards the object in view. As far as Mr. Dent and his advisers are concerned, let it be clearly understood that he will never return to Totnes unless upon a requisition in which some of the more prominent electors on the other side shall concur; such men as Mr. Bowden, Mr. Chaster, &c., &c., whose high personal character place their motives beyond suspicion.

"I am, sir,
"Your faithful servant,
"W. H. MITCHELL."

That is the letter.

3367. Mr. Dent refused?—Yes.

3368. Had anything passed between you and Mr. Mitchell with regard to the sum of money Mr. Dent should spend?—Not a word.

3369. How long did the interview last with Mr. Rennie?—About an hour I should think.

3370. What did you do next?—I had an interview with Mr. Spofforth.

3371. In Victoria Street?—Yes.

3372. At that interview who was with you?—Mr. Rennie was with me. Mr. Spofforth said I can only allow you two or three minutes; they were very busy, as they always are. He asked me a few questions with regard to the register and so forth, and he said I will try and get you a candidate.

3373. You being the registration agent at that time, what was your personal opinion with regard to the distribution of politics in the borough, supposing there was no bribery?—According to the facts which I had then, the opinion which I held and which I still entertain, I contend that the Conservatives had a legitimate majority of 20 votes.

3374. That is to say, if no money was spent on either side, you believe that two Conservatives could have been returned?—No.

3375. But one Conservative by a majority of 20?—Yes; and that is borne out by the evidence of the last election. You observe in Totnes Colonel Dawkins polled 151 and Mr. Pender 140. If you look under you will observe there are 23 unpolled, and 19 of those are Conservatives.

3376. How long had they shown their tendency for Conservatism?—The principal portion had voted hitherto for the Conservatives, and signed a requisition to a gentleman of Conservative principles before.

3377. I suppose you told Mr. Spofforth that you believed the Conservative party could carry Totnes if no bribery was practised?—Not a shadow of doubt about it.

3378. Do you consider the Conservative party could carry it with the influence of property of the Liberal party used against them?—I give them the allowance of property.

3379. Simply the force of money?—The force of money. Nothing but money would turn us out.

3380. Did Mr. Spofforth suggest the name of any person as a candidate?—No, he did not.

3381. Did he say he would communicate with you?—Yes, he said he would communicate with me and with some gentlemen, whose names he did not mention.

3382. Was that all that passed between you?—Yes.

3383. Did you stay in London?—No; I returned the same day, I think.

3384. Did you afterwards receive two letters from Mr. Spofforth?—Yes, I did.

3385. In those letters is Mr. Kennard put forward as a person who would be likely to be a good candidate for you?—He was.

3386. When was it Mr. Spofforth mentioned Mr. Kennard's name?—It was only by letter.

3387. Now on Mr. Spofforth mentioning by letter Mr. Kennard's name to you, was a requisition got up to Mr. Kennard?—No.

3388. How long afterwards?—There was never a requisition got up to Mr. Kennard.

3389. None at all?—No.

3390. Do you know the reason why Mr. Kennard did not come forward at Totnes?—He had an interview with Mr. Pender. Mr. Pender and Mr. Kennard were joint directors of the Consolidated Bank, and when he found the close connexion that existed, Mr. Pender assured him, as he told us, that he could not get in without spending a lot of money, and consequently coming in opposition to Mr. Pender.

3391. Did you see Mr. Kennard yourself at all?—I saw him, but I did not speak to him.

3392. Where did you see him?—I saw him at the "Stars."

3393. He came here?—Yes.

3394. How long was he here?—One day. He went to the Seymour Hotel to see Mr. Pender.

3395. Who came with Mr. Kennard?—I do not know, I did not see anybody.

3396. With whom did he communicate, with Mr. Bastard, Mr. Bentall, and other gentlemen you have mentioned?—I believe so.

3397. Were you alone with him?—No; those three gentlemen, Mr Bastard, Mr. Gill, and Mr. Bentall were authorized to look after a gentleman for the Conservative party.

3398. At what meeting of the committee was that authority given?—I do not know.

3399. Were you present?—I was.

3400. When was that meeting?—Some time before the election.

3401. Those three gentlemen were authorized to look out?—They were deputed to examine the gentleman's political ideas; that he was not a thorough ballot man, or anything of the kind.

3402. Were they to come to London to look for a candidate?—No.

3403. They were to wait till a candidate came and then to be sort of examiners into his political principles?—Yes.

3404. Inquisitors?—Yes.

3405. They performed that operation upon Mr. Kennard?—Yes, I believe so.

3406. At the interview you had with Mr. Kennard did anything pass about money?—I never spoke to him at all.

3407. You may have heard other people speaking to him?—He seemed to be aware of the fact that the borough was a corrupt one, and whoever came here would have to spend mone.

3408. Then Mr. Kennard went away?—Yes.

3409. How long before the election was that?—I should say a week perhaps. I do not know. I am not certain.

3410. Would that be on the 4th or 5th of July?—Somewhere about that.

3411. Did you go to London between the 4th and 5th of July and the election?—No, I did not.

3412. When did you first hear of Col. Dawkins?—He brought me a letter of introduction from Mr. Spofforth.

3413. Had Mr. Spofforth mentioned the name of William Dent?—I suggested the name of William Dent, because Mr. Dent having spent a lot of money in 1863 his name would go a good way in his favour; and if we could get a gentleman with their high reputation in London or one of the family, we thought he would do, and I mentioned it, I think, to Mr. Spofforth.

3414. Colonel Dawkins called upon you with a letter from Mr. Spofforth?—He did.

3415. That is the first you had ever heard of Colonel Dawkins?—Yes.

3416. Do you know whether any members of your party had heard of Colonel Dawkins before?—I do not think so.

3417. What passed; he called at your house I suppose?—No; he sent the letter to me first, and then I sent my card and we had an interview.

3418. Where was that?—At the "Seven Stars."

3419. Did you see Colonel Dawkins in the room?—Yes.

3420. What passed between you and Colonel Dawkins on that occasion?—He was aware that I was acquainted with the state of the register and he asked my opinion. He had come down, and if there was a probable chance of winning he would fight the battle, and I put before him a statement of facts.

3421. You told him by word of mouth your opinion, or by a written statement?—I had got a book that was printed, a blue book that was published.

3422. Of Dent and Seymour's election?—Yes; how parties were likely to vote. My poll was made up and I handed it to Colonel Dawkins.

3423. You made up the poll for yourself?—Yes.

3424. Have you got the poll here?—No.

3425. Will you let us have it?—I cannot.

3426. Is it destroyed?—I cannot find it. I think I gave it to Colonel Dawkins.

3427. Were you still of the same opinion with regard to the Conservative majority, provided money was not used on either side?—Decidedly.

3428. Did you communicate that to Colonel Dawkins?—I did. I was not only of that opinion, but urged the committee to get a second man, because the run for the second man would be close, between two and three, provided no undue influence was used on the other side.

3429. Did you tell Colonel Dawkins that if money was spent on the Liberal side, money must be spent on the Conservative side?—I did.

3430. Did you tell him what figure?—No.

3431. What did you tell him?—I told him Mr. Pender was reputed to be rich. Under such circumstances he must expect if he went into it to do the same.

3432. Had your calculations diminished or increased since your interview with Mr. Rennie?—I calculated 4,000*l.* would carry him nicely through.

3433. Was that all that passed at that interview?—That was all.

3434. Did he begin to canvass?—Yes.

3435. Did you go with him?—Sometimes; not generally. When he could not find out an individual or anything of that sort I went with him or Rennie's tenants.

3436. Tell me the names of any people you went to canvass with Colonel Dawkins, being requested by him to go and find them out?—I do not know any special ones.

3437. Rennie's tenants you say; I must ask you a question about that. Has Rennie purchased land here?—No; Mr. Dent, after he went away in 1862, and Pender was allowed to walk over, had an offer made to him by Mr. Phillips of Broomborough and Mr. Farwell to become the tenant of certain lands which they possessed.

3438. It was for the purpose of creating votes?—Yes. After the election of 1863 Mr. Dent desired to give it up, and Mr. Rennie feeling an interest in the borough, said rather than it should go into the hands of the other party I will take it off their hands.

3439. Is that what Mr. Rennie calls the Bentall rents?—No; that is another property, and he took it, I think, at a reduction of 60*l.* a year.

3440. Was Mr. Dent giving 60*l.* a year more than it was worth?—No, he gave the valuation price, but I considered in looking over it—

3441. Did you value it?—No, they had an authorized valuer in the first instance.

3442. Did you value for the rent that Mr. Dent was to give for it yourself?—No, I had no connexion with the rent.

3443. How was it that Mr. Rennie was to give 60*l.* less than Mr. Dent?—For this reason, Byne had two or three fields, and others had two or three fields granted to them at a certain rent which I considered low, and consequently it would be as a matter of course so much less rent arising, because they had taken them for terms of three years, and there would be this much less accruing from the letting.

3444. Mr. Dent having rented these fields at a fair rent let them to people who had supported him at the election at an insufficient rent?—Yes.

3445. Rennie was not to pay for the kindness of Mr. Dent?—No.

3446. Had you the management of that property?—Yes.

3447. How many votes have been created?—We put nine on Broomborough.

3448. Did you succeed in supporting these before the revising barrister?—I had them in two batches. One batch I failed with; in the other I succeeded.

3449. Was that in 1863?—Yes.

3450. Did you try the experiment in 1864?—No. I think it was in 1864 I only had one try, then the new decision came in of Powell v. Boraston. I said I will take my objections upon those, and I carried it to the court above.

3451. Can you tell me the names of any particular voter that you went to canvass with Col. Dawkins yourself?—No.

3452. How long was Col. Dawkins in the field before Capt. Pim came?—Perhaps a week or some few days.

3453. The election was on the 11th and 12th?—Yes.

3454. You say about the 4th or 5th you saw Col. Dawkins first?—Yes.

3455. How many interviews had you, in company with others or alone, between the time of his coming down and the nomination?—Several.

3456. How many voters had you yourself seen in the time?—I should say two-thirds, or at least one-half.

3457. Had you found as your interviews went on that there was a necessity for spending money?—Oh, dear, yes. The electors seemed to think I was possessed of amazing powers, and they came to me like swarms of bees.

3458. Can you give me the constituent parts of the hives?—The Duke's factotum, the objector-general, William Byne; he was one who had 60*l.* for voting for Dent in 1863.

3459. He voted for Dent in 1863?—Yes, he was a tenant of the Duke of Somerset's then. He was turned out by the Duke for voting, and I took him under my wing, as it were; then all went right for a time; but Mr. Bryett, the solicitor in the town, said to me, "Have you heard about Byne?" I said, "What is it?" He said, "He is going to vote against "us." "Is it possible," I said; "he had 60*l.* for voting "for Dent and five fields at a reduced rent, for less "than half on the Dartington property; he had a lease "for three years, that was 60*l.* more, that was 120*l.*, "and I thought that would satisfy him."

3460. However it did not satisfy him. You found he was going to vote wrong still?—I went to him and said, "Is it true that you are going to vote against "us?" He says, "I am going to vote for Seymour "for certain." "Vote for Seymour!" I says, "When "did you alter your mind? You promised Colonel "Dawkins."

3461. Had you seen him before that with Colonel Dawkins?—Yes, he promised Colonel Dawkins when he called.

3462. You had seen him prior and he was reported to have promised?—Yes. "Well," he says, "I pro-"mised; but I shall not vote for him without he "pays me." I said, "This is rather an extraordinary "thing for you to vote for Seymour and then expect "to be paid by the Conservative side." I felt exceedingly disgusted with the man. The result of the difficulty was that when the election came of course he voted against us.

3463. Was that all that passed between you then?—All that passed then.

3464. What was it that Mr. Bryett had to do with that?—I think about that time, three weeks or a month before the election, Mr. Rennie desired to give up the land again into Mr. Dent's hands; then the agency was taken out of my hands and placed in the hands of Mr. Bryett.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

3465. Mr. Bryett is an attorney here?—Yes. He is now the agent of the property. I think it was the 28th of August that I was to give up; then Byne, you see, was under Mr. Bryett.

3466. Where did Mr. Bryett come to tell you this?—I think in the street he met me.

3467. Were you walking down the street?—Yes, I was coming down the street and he was going up to his house.

3468. Was that all he said to you about Byne then?—All about Byne, yes.

3469. Did he tell you about any one else?—No.

3470. Now give us another person's name you called upon?—I called on Pengilley.

3471. Which Pengilley?—In the same passage.

3472. You said there was no requisition to Mr. Kennard. Do not you know there was a requisition signed by some people who were electors of the borough?—I think it was a little before. I do not know exactly the date; it was between the 1863 and the 1865 election, by a Mr. Smith in London, a gentleman in London of the Conservative party that was introduced. Henry Smith I think he was called.

3473. Is he the person who appears for the Conservatives in the registration courts in the City of London?—Yes, that is the same man.

3474. A Mr. Smith?—Yes. He sent down to know what was the state of the register; but it was prior to the revision of 1864. He sent down to me to ask about the register, the whole facts were laid before him, and he authorized me to incur any necessary expense in order that the registration might be properly formed. After the registration was over Mr. Maclay came down.

3475. Who is Mr. Maclay?—Mr. George Maclay.

3476. Where did he come from?—From London.

3477. What was he?—I do not know.

3478. Was he from foreign parts?—I have no idea whatever. I think Sir Lawrence Palk introduced him to Mr. Smith. I think I am correct in stating that Sir Lawrence Palk introduced him to Mr. Smith.

3479. Did he come down with a letter to you?—Mr. Smith came down with him.

3480. Did they come down and call on you?—Yes.

3481. Then was Mr. Maclay shown to the Conservative committee?—Yes, we dined together.

3482. Did you have any "All Nations"?—I remember that we had a very happy meeting.

3483. Was Mr. Maclay approved of?—Yes.

3484. He was approved of by the Conservative committee?—Yes; but he would not give us any answer as to whether he would stand before we had got up a requisition for him.

3485. When was that?—I think the latter part of 1864 or the early part of 1865. I do not know, somewhere thereabouts; it was after the revision.

3486. Before the meeting of Parliament?—I do not know from that.

3487. Then did Mr. Maclay go away?—He did.

3488. Had any conversation passed between you and Mr. Maclay or Mr. Maclay and anybody else in your presence about the money that would be wanted?—No.

3489. Did you go about and get up a requisition?—I did.

3490. Can you give us the names of the people who signed that?—168 signed.

3491. Have you a copy of it?—No. I was telling your secretary so this morning.

3492. What we want particularly to know is not so much the names of those who were Conservatives who signed that requisition and afterwards voted with the Conservatives, but the persons who signed that requisition and afterwards at the election of 1865 voted for the Liberals?—I can give you those. William Byne signed, William Pengilley signed, John Fox Green signed, John Diggins of Bridgetown signed, John Wright signed, Thomas Matcham signed, and James Matcham signed, father and son, John Parnell Searle signed, William Sloggett signed, James Edmonds signed. Then there were those who voted half and half who signed.

3493. These all voted for the Liberals?—Yes. How many was that?

3494. Ten.—Then I think there were one or two more. Samuel Hill, junior, signed, and not only signed that requisition but signed a note of this description which I have in my pocket to Mr. Dent. I made another effort to get Mr. Dent, and I sent a note of that sort to him signed by men who had voted for Seymour, in order to show him that we were in a bonâ fide position to return a man. Mr. Dent was very timid; he would not after the amazing corruption in his election believe us. That was the sum and substance of it.

3495. Was there anybody else?—Is there anybody in the court can remind me.

3496. Now the lukewarm?—Then there was Thomas Blackler he signed, he voted for Pender and Dawkins, which was a thing we never anticipated; Henry Eastman, he voted for Pender and Dawkins, he signed; William Farley, junior, he voted for Pender and Dawkins, which was a thing we never anticipated; George Griffis; he voted for Pender and Dawkins, I believe that man received a little bit of gold on both sides.

3497. (Mr. Coleridge.) He was not singular in that, was he?—I am not in the secrets with reference to that matter. Then Samuel Hill, the elder, signed.

3498. (Mr. Bere.) How did he vote?—For Pender and Dawkins.

3499. That was not anticipated?—Yes; that was anticipated. He wanted 150*l.*, that is what he wanted.

3500. (Mr. Coleridge.) There were very few of these lukewarm gentlemen?—He came to me and wanted 150*l.* to vote a plumper.

3501. For whom?—To go for us both.

3502. You speak of Dawkins and Pim?—Yes. Then there was Richard Harris, no relative of mine, he voted for Pender and Dawkins, he signed; John Michelmore, the coal merchant, signed, he voted for Pender and Dawkins; Edward Shinner he signed, and he voted for Pender and Dawkins; Richard Parnell Tarring he signed, and he voted for Pender and Dawkins; Thomas Blank signed, here is another name put in, he voted; he told me he never would vote without he was paid, he never did and never would.

3503. Did any elector abstain from voting because he was not paid?—Samuel Heath, he voted for Seymour and Dawkins, he is the brother of John Heath. David Manning he signed.

3504. How did he vote?—For Seymour and Dawkins. The other four who voted for Seymour and Dawkins we understood they would, they were Jeffery Maye, he did not sign; Evan Evens, he did not sign, he said his son had got a situation and was looking for promotion, and Seymour had promised him promotion, and he could not go the whole hog for us; William Paige and Walter Worth, those were the four, they would not sign because they were under an obligation to the Duke of Somerset.

3505. Were they all tenants of the Duke?—Walter Worth was, and Mr. Paige had a son who was a tenant of the Duke; Evens has a son in the Admiralty Office who was promoted at the time of the election, and Jeffery Maye was a tenant of the Duke.

3506. (Mr. Coleridge.) What is the name of the son in the Admiralty?—Evan Evens. He abstained from voting against Mr. Seymour on that ground. He had been one of our principal men in days gone by.

3507. When was the last election that Evan Evens had been an active agent as a bribing man?—In 1859. Mr. Coombes, he plumped for Pender; he voted for Dunn. When Dent came he wanted 500*l.* to vote for Dent. He was one of the five that remained behind, but Mr. Dent would not spend the money because we could not get eight, enough to win, and he was one of the five. John Heath can tell you all about that; he had the negotiation part. James Paddon, he gave me to understand that he should report well for our party, he voted a plumper for Mr. Pender and so did Mr. Wright.

3508. (Mr. Bere.) How had he voted before?—He was a new voter, and had never voted before. W. S. Guppy, he voted a plumper. I understood he was going to give us one.

3509. Who told you about that?—Himself.

3510. Was he a new voter?—I think he had voted for Mr. Dent in the previous election.

3511. For Dent?—I think he had voted once before; no, not for Mr. Dent, for Mr. Pender before, Mr. Seymour I mean. Then there was Mr. James Mitchell of Bridgetown, the screw was brought to bear on him, he always was on our side, and he gave Seymour a plumper, which was one of course lost to us.

3512. Who was he?—A tinman there; he always voted on our side.

3513. (Mr. Longe.) Was he a tenant of the Duke's?—No; he resides in his own house, a leasehold house. He anticipated I believe that if he was to die his friends would have to put the house in repair or something of that kind, and he wanted to keep the favour of the Duke.

3514. (Mr. Bere.) If he had voted for Seymour would it have prolonged his life?—No, not exactly that, but there would not be those repairs to be done when they surveyed the leasehold premises, the surveyor would scan them over and say it was all right. Rotten walls and decayed buildings make no difference if the man is one of the right sort.

3515. An extremely liberal view would be taken?—Yes; and Mitchell had hitherto voted on the Conservative side.

3516. Did you go and see any of those other 12 gentlemen who had signed the requisition?—Yes, to young Samuel Hill especially.

3517. When did you do that?—I saw him several times.

3518. What is he?—A rag merchant.

3519. Does he live in Bridgetown or Totnes?—Totnes, he is a tenant of Samuel Huxham, junior.

3520. Samuel Huxham is a Liberal?—Yes; he is a tenant of his, I went to him. I might say after the election of 1863 he related to me his grievance, namely, that he had been induced to return 200*l.* which Mr. Dent had sent up to his house for his vote in consideration of a promise which he had received from his brother and Mr. Francis Brooking Cuming not to vote for Seymour.

3521. Who is his brother?—He is now in America; he was a clerk at that time of Francis Brooking Cuming.

3522. What is his name?—John Hill. He related to me how that those parties came to him to induce him to return the money which Mr. Lorimer, a gentleman now strongly impregnated with Liberal ideas, had carried him, bribed him in fact.

3523. He said that Mr. Lorimer had carried him 200*l.*?—Yes, and that Mr. Cuming and his brother had induced him to return it.

3524. Mr. Lorimer was at that time a Conservative?—He was a Conservative, he did not vote; he was one of the five hanging back. This money was returned to Mr. Lorimer, and brought back again to the Conservative party, I do not know to whom.

3525. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did Mr. Lorimer's conversion take place?—When Mr. Pender came down.

3526. That was the first time he came down?—Yes, and I shall have something to say about that by-and-bye.

3527. (Mr. Bere.) When Mr. Hill told you about his grievance what did he say?—He told me he had written to Mr. Pender and given him the whole particulars, and he considered it was an exceedingly hard and disgraceful affair. I may say that Hill did not expect the money to come out of Seymour's pocket, but Hill was given to understand that the condition on which Mr. Pender came to Totnes was that he was to pay all the expenses appertaining to Alfred Seymour, so that he wrote directly to Mr. Pender asking him for the money. This he told me himself.

3528. (Mr. Coleridge.) You mentioned that he had returned to the Conservatives?—Yes, that he had been promised.

3529. (Mr. Bere.) Did he tell you what Mr. Pender answered?—Yes, that Mr. Pender sent back to say that Francis Brooking Cuming,—the man who had promised the money—just at that time something was said about the charities here in Totnes, and I found out that Mr. Cuming had about 800*l.* or 1,000*l.* poors' money, and he implicated his son, who was discharged from his situation simply because he had kept our money. Just give me leave to go on with this story with regard to Hill; Hill had been offered 200*l.* by Lorimer on behalf of Mr. Dent, and at the request of Cuming and John Hill had refused to keep the money. He kept it one night, the nomination night, and sent it back the morning of the election; Lorimer expected that Cuming would give him an equivalent sum, that is, that his promise was equivalent to the money.

3530. He expected Mr. Cuming to do so?—Just so.

3531. (Mr. Longe.) Did he give this back on the ground that the Conservatives were running short of ready cash at the time?—No, Lorimer told me that he was exceedingly disgusted with the man, because he had been the means in a certain sense of inducing Mr. Dent to go so far as he did, because Mr. Lorimer looked on him in that light.

3532. (Mr. Coleridge.) What induced Hill to give back the 200*l.*?—He said it was his conscience; he would not keep the money of both parties. He is not like many in Totnes; he for conscience sake returned the money he had.

3533. (Mr. Bere.) If he had the 200*l.* he would rather take it from the Liberals?—Yes, and being in an insolvent condition, finding he could not get the 200*l.* at once, a certain pressure was made and he became bankrupt.

3534. Who was the pressure put on by?—Some one at Plymouth, nothing to do with the party. I might say this. After he had related this, he said, would I let him a field on behalf of Mr. Dent, and he pledged himself to be heart and soul with us, and do anything we wished if I would let it to him, and I let him a field.

3535. On what concession of rent?—He had four or five acres at 5*l.* a year, a small field just to put his horse in.

3536. What is it worth in the market?—It might be 8*l.* or 10*l.*; I do not know.

3537. What passed between you and him with reference to the election of 1865?—I got him to sign Mr. Maclay's requisition and that note also to Mr. Dent. He gave me distinctly to understand that he would go heart and soul with us to support our party, and I represented him as such to the committee, and to my surprise the night before the election, the nomination night, that report came that we had lost him. I went up to him about 4 o'clock in the morning of the election, and said, "Is it true that you are going "to desert us after dragging Colonel Dawkins and "others into it? You induced me to get men to fight, "and now you desert us. Is it money you want? "Speak out and tell the truth. Do you want money?" Nothing could induce him, he was gone. I understood that Robert Ryder had been there.

3538. Who is Robert Ryder?—I do not know.

3539. A foreigner?—Yes, I understood afterwards, I think it was an hour or so afterwards, that Robert Ryder was seen going in there the night previous.

3540. Who was he?—A painter here in the town.

3541. Is he alive?—Yes.

3542. Is he living in the town?—Yes, he is one of the Radical electors.

3543. You assume from Robert Ryder going in there that there was a conversion took place by some means or other?—I asked him if it was ready money he wanted, because though I never bribe myself, I said I have no doubt Colonel Dawkins will do the same as other parties do.

3544. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you never offer money?—I never gave a farthing of money in my life.

3545. You said you did not pay but did you promise?—No, I asked him what he wanted.

3546. You suggested?—I suggested; I said, "Is it "money that you want?" He had dragged me into the mire I thought.

3547. Can you remember the words that you used to Hill about the money?—I asked him when he told me that he was going to vote against us; I said, "Is it "money that you want?"

3548. Did you intimate to him that money would be forthcoming if he did want it?—Most decidedly.

3549. From Mr. Dawkins?—No, I would introduce him to Mr. Mum.

3550. You said you would introduce him to Mr. Mum, and that Mr. Mum would consider the value of his services?—Just so.

3551. Who was Mr. Mum?—I do not know who he was. I have no idea. I have been asked repeatedly.

3552. Was he a stranger to Totnes before the election?—He was a perfect stranger.

3553. Did he come down from London?—He came on the nomination morning by the mail train.

3554. Had a telegram been sent from London announcing to some person in Totnes that Mum was coming?—I think there was; not to me.

3555. To whom was it sent?—I do not know.

3556. Was it sent to Mr. John Heath?—I do not know.

3557. You do not know to whom the telegram was sent?—I do not know.

3558. Have you ever seen the telegram?—No. I saw the man when he came. I was the only person who was up.

3559. You saw him when he came?—I did.

3560. Had you seen the telegram before he came down?—No; I was informed there was a telegram.

3561. You were informed of the arrival of the telegram?—Yes.

3562. Was he heavily laden?—I think he had a tolerably good bag.

3563. Did he take that into No. 13 at the "Seven Stars"?—He took it into the "Stars;" I do not know what number.

3564. Did you afterwards see him at the "Stars"?—Several times.

3565. Did you always manage to get money from him?—Never a farthing.

3566. Did you recommend the people who were to have money?—Not exactly that. If I may say so, I was a go-between; parties would come to me, and even some of our own supporters, many on the other side, intimating, "I do not like Pender at all." I remember Nicholas Browse, the relieving officer, coming to me; he was highly displeased with Mr. Pender; his votes in the house did not accord with his notions at all, and various things about these things, and there were insinuations made, and overtures that he was ready to vote for the Conservative party on consideration.

3567. Did Browse mention the consideration?—No. I communicated the fact to this Mr. Mum, and I think Screach, or somebody else it may be, went to him.

3568. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did anybody you had recommended to Mr. Mum ever complain to you that he could not get what he went for?—No.

3569. In fact he carried out your advice strictly?—I have no doubt about that.

3570. (Mr. Bere.) Now the morning when Mr. Mum came down you were the first person who saw him?—I believe so, except the postman and the men at the station.

3571. You were the first active man on the Conservative side who saw him?—I think so.

3572. Was there a meeting between him and the committee in the morning?—No.

3573. Did he not see any members of the committee that morning?—I do not believe he ever saw a man.

3574. Not a man?—Not of the committee.

3575. Whom did he see?—He might have seen Screach.

3576. That is John Sandford Screach?—Yes.

3577. And yourself?—And myself.

3578. And who else?—A Mr. Heard.

3579. Colonel Dawkins?—No, he would have nothing to do with Colonel Dawkins.

3580. John Heath?—I do not know; I do not think he did; he might have.

3581. You have never seen him?—I rather think he saw George Heath, and I will give you the reason why I believe it. I had a little bill, somewhere about 100*l.*, for repairs I had done in enhancing the value of the property here about town, which we always look upon as for the candidates to pay, the first instalment as it were. I communicated the fact. I produce the bill.

3582. How was the property enhanced in value?—By building something extra to it, so as to bring it, if not up to 10*l.*, up to 10*l.* Suppose something not worth 10*l.*, I should lay out 20*l.* on it.

3583. So as to make it worth 10*l.*?—Yes. That was what I called my prerogative money for the registration court, and those were the bills paid at that time.

3584. You were going to tell us what happened about these bills?—I did not see the man in reference to it myself, but George Heath brought the money.

3585. Are those the bills?—Yes, they are.

3586. Did not you yourself see Mr. Mum with regard to this payment of your bill?—No.

3587. You saw George Heath?—I rather think I communicated the fact to Mr. Edmonds.

3588. Mr. Edmonds the solicitor?—Yes, the recognized agent, because I considered they were legitimate payments, and there was no secrecy about it, there was nothing that Mr. Edmonds on behalf of Colonel Dawkins might not know; consequently I communicated the fact to Mr. Edmonds, and he paid two or three, I think. The remainder was about 56*l.*, which George Heath handed over to me, so that I might defray it.

3589. Was that handed over on the day of the election?—No, I think a day or two before.

3590. In gold or notes?—Gold.

3591. Was it paid before Mum came down?—No.

3592. I think you said Mum came down by the mail train on the morning of the nomination?—It was paid on the nomination day.

3593. That was the 11th July, the day before the election?—Yes, that was the day. Permit me to refresh my memory. I think, whether paid on the 11th or 12th, the day is stated. I do not know (referring to the bill); I see it is the 11th.

3594. Where was it paid to you?—George Heath paid me at the "Seven Stars."

3595. In a room in the "Seven Stars"?—No; I do not know.

3596. Did you see where Mr. Heath went when he brought the money down?—No. I rather think I was paid in his office.

3597. Was Mr. Mum there in his office?—No.

3598. Had George Heath got a lot of money at the office out of which he paid you?—I do not know.

3599. Did you see where he took the money from?—No.

3600. Did he take it out of his pocket?—No; he came and said, "Mr. Harris, I have 56*l.* for you."

3601. Where did he take it from?—He had it in his hand or his pocket.

3602. In a bag?—No.

3603. All open?—He put it down and called me in and said, "Here, Mr. Harris, I have 56*l.* for you to pay those bills with." I said, "I thank you; I will "do it at once."

3604. You took the money and put it into your pocket?—Yes, and went to discharge the bill.

3605. When you saw Mum that morning who were the people you paid the money to?—Will you permit me to refresh my memory? [Referring to the bills.] There was 14*l.* paid to Walter Light.

3606. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was he a voter?—No; but his father was.

3607. How did his father vote?—Against us.

3608. Was that John Light?—Yes. Then Henry Foster, 26*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*

3609. Is he a voter?—Yes.

3610. How did he vote?—On the Conservative side.

3611. Had he always voted on your side?—Always.

3612. (Mr. Bere.) What was he?—He is a builder, and put up roofs to two buildings on some property that I took. Then there is Samuel Hill.

3613. Which is that?—The senior one.

3614. He voted against you?—No; he paired.

3615. He split his vote?—Yes.

3616. How much did you pay him?—I paid him two or three bills. There is one for 1*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.*, another for 1*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, and 5*l.*, three of them, little small accounts. Then there is one for James Lewis Goodridge, 1*l.* 15*s.* 7½*d.* He was a builder also.

3617. Was he a voter?—Yes.

3618. (Mr. Bere.) Your side or the other?—Always. I do not know always; he has been for some time.

3619. Generally?—Generally. Then there is to William Wilcocks, 6*l.* 13*s.* 7½*d.*

3620. What politics?—Always Conservative. Then Stephen Tozer, 27*l.* 7*s.* 11½*d.*

3621. Always Conservative?—Yes.

3622. You made it a point to employ Conservatives as a rule?—Yes.

3623. When was the first time you spoke to him?—In the course of that day.

3624. What were you talking about?—About money matters and as to various parties.

3625. Tell us the names of some of the persons you talked about.—I was principally asking him whether such and such men had been settled with, for instance, such as William Pengilley, who was rather shaky.

3626. You asked Mr. Mum whether he had been settled with?—Whether he had information of his being all right.

3627. What did he tell you of Pengilley?—I do not remember. It was reported on the election morning that it was all over.

3628. That you had lost Pengilley?—Yes; he had had 50*l.* from Screach. He returned it on the election morning and went against us.

3629. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did you know this Mr. Mum?—There had been a telegram sent down stating that a gentleman, a Mr. Mum, would come down in the morning by the mail train. I was to meet him at the station or at the "Seven Stars."

3630. How did you know this was Mr. Mum?—I went up to see whether such a man was coming there, because it was an extraordinary thing for such a person to be coming there at that hour; we expected some person would be there at that time; he had rather a heavy bag to carry.

3631. Did he go to the "Seven Stars"?—There was a fly waiting for him.

3632. Who ordered that?—The fly always goes there.

3633. Are you sure there was not one expressly ordered for him?—That I cannot say.

3634. Was the "Seven Stars" open at that hour?—Yes, the gentleman was expected.

3635. You say no person went there besides yourself, was any one up at the "Seven Stars" at that time?—No.

3636. Neither Mr. Heath or any of his sons?—No; only the maid-servant.

3637. What was the maid servant's name?—I do not know.

3638. Is she there now?—That I cannot say.

3639. Was she a chambermaid or a waitress, or what was she?—I do not know.

3640. You have been in there at other times?—I went there the same day.

3641. Do not you remember what you called the maid?—I do not; I do not know whether she was a waiting maid or what she was.

3642. Do you know the christian name of any of the females in the house?—There is a Miss Prout ther e b armaid.

3643. Was she up on that morning?—I did not see her.

3644. Who told you about this gentleman coming?—I really do not know where it came from, it was reported there was a gentleman coming.

3645. How late had the committee sat up the night before?—They were up very late, in fact until the morning.

3646. Was it mentioned in the committee room?—No.

3647. Had you not received private information that a gentleman was coming down, and did you not wait up for some one?—No.

3648. How did Mr. Mum spell his name?—Mum.

3649. You never supposed for a moment that that was his right name?—No.

3650. Did you ever seen it written?—No.

3651. Have you seen him since?—Yes.

3652. Will you describe him to us?—He is rather a pleasant looking man, I saw him in London at the time of the petition.

3653. Was he a tall or a short man?—Rather tall, a middle-aged man.

3654. Had he light hair or dark?—He had dark hair.

3655. Had he a beard or no beard?—He had no beard.

3656. In the course of conversation did he ever intimate what part of London he came from?—No.

3657. Or mention the names of any persons whom he knew in London?—No.

3658. Was Mr. Spofforth's name ever mentioned between you and him?—No.

3659. Or Mr. Smith?—No, never, I had no conversation with him except asking him whether such a man was all right or not.

3660. How long did Mr. Mum remain?—The door was locked at nine o'clock on the election morning.

3661. What door?—The bribery door.

3662. You mean by that the door of the room in which Mr. Mum sat?—Yes.

3663. It was locked?—There was no further supply to come from there, they had settled the election; Mr. Pender brought up the men whom we expected would have polled for us, and it was all over.

3664. As soon as you found your case hopeless you ceased to spend your money?—Yes.

3665. Whom was it you would expect the telegram to come from, who would be intrusted with such a secret as that?—I cannot tell.

3666. Would Mr. Edmonds know it?—That I cannot say; Colonel Dawkins had his valet and his other servants here.

3667. Was it any one in the town who told you?—No.

3668. Should you be surprised to hear that it was Mr. Edmonds?—No.

3669. Or Mr. Heath?—He would be as likely as anyone to mention it.

3670. Would Screach have known such a thing as that?—Yes.

3671. Had you seen him about during this time?—Very frequently.

3672. This sort of thing was nothing new to you?—No.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

3673. It always happens at Totnes that an unknown gentleman comes down in this way?—It is the natural consequence of an election at Totnes.

3674. There is a sort of man in the moon there?—Yes; there was another man came down here on one occasion who brought a blank card with the name of John Smith on it.

3675. Where did he come from?—He came from London, that was in Mr. Dunn's time; he was a rather peculiar character, not at all good looking, and deeply pock marked; I saw him in London when I was there on the petition, and he seemed in high glee.

3676. Was he a tall dark man?—No, he was a little man.

3677. Did he go by the name of Grant?—I only knew him by the name of Smith, you will hear of him hereafter.

3678. You say the "bribery door" was shut at nine o'clock on the morning of the election, how long had it been open?—From the time the man came.

3679. From the arrival of the mail train?—I rather think there was bribery going on before that, I do not know where it came from.

3680. How many times did you go to Mr. Mum in the course of the day with an intimation that there was a certain person who wanted assistance?—I did not say that.

3681. Whatever your term was tell us?—My inquiry was after the welfare of the man.

3682. Did you ever intimate how his welfare might be increased?—No; my inquiry was whether he was satisfied.

3683. How many names did you mention to Mr. Mum?—Not one.

3684. But you say you went to Hill?—No, Hill came to my house, and wanted 150*l.* to vote; I communicated the fact to Mr. Mum, and he had to send some one else.

3685. Who was that?—I do not know; I might afterwards ask Mr. Mum if Hill was satisfied.

3686. Mr. Mum being a stranger here how would he find out any one else?—He would authorize some one to go who was acquainted with Hill.

3687. How would he get the messenger, was it Screach?—It is more than likely.

3688. Was Screach the only person employed?—I think a man called Heard did a little in it.

3689. Were they the only two messengers?—I will not drag Mr. Heath into it more than I can possibly help, but I think it is probable that Mr. George Heath knew a little about it.

3690. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you know a woman named Martha Gale living at the "Seven Stars" at that time?—I knew no women there except Miss Prout and Miss Heath.

3691. I mean a widow woman who has since left the "Seven Stars"?—No.

3692. Was there not a widow woman about the house at that time as a servant?—I do not know.

3693. (Mr. Bere.) Used the voters themselves to go to Mr. Mum?—I think some of them did.

3694. Can you give us the names of those you heard went there?—I have heard that Mr. Foote had 150*l.*, who paid him I do not know.

3695. (Mr. Longe.) They came to you and you sent them in if they wanted money?—We would be having conversation about the election.

3696. About the time of the nomination did they come to you?—They asked if there was any money flying about; I said I believe there is, you had better go to the "Stars" and inquire.

3697. They did not know where the money was to be got?—No.

3698. They came to you for the purpose of knowing where to go?—Yes; I directed them to the "Stars;" I said there is a gentleman at the "Stars," a particular friend of Colonel Dawkins, spending his money rather freely.

3699. You have mentioned one person, do you know any others you sent in that way?—That is the only one I remember.

3700. (Mr. Bere.) Can you mention the name of any other persons whom you directed there in this way?—I think Hill is the only man whom I remember.

3701. How many men spoke to you in the course of the day about money, or whatever was the phrase you used?—They did not exactly say money, they have a curious way of expressing themselves here.

3702. We should like to hear what it is?—They would say they were in difficulties, and wish to know if we could relieve them.

3703. How many people on that day told you they were in difficulties?—I do not know it was that day exactly, I have marked two or three. For instance, I saw Blank the day before, he was down there with Screach, and wanted 150*l.* for his vote. Screach was in tow with him, locked up in the privy for a certain time.

3704. When you did not know of Mr. Mum coming what did you tell the voters who spoke to you of their being in difficulty?—They asked if there was any chance of getting a sub.

3705. Before you knew of Mr. Mum's coming down where did you direct them to?—These inquiries as to money matters were going on immediately that Col. Dawkins arrived. If a man intimated that he required money, we said, We cannot tell yet whether Col. Dawkins will go to the poll, we have not made a complete canvas.

3706. When did you hear that this person was coming down?—The night before the nomination.

3707. You had been practising on the voters long before that?—I had been feeling their pulse to see if they had got up to fever heat.

3708. Where did you direct them to before you knew that Mr. Mum was coming?—I intimated to several there was likely to be some money, and that they were not to sell themselves to the other side, but let us know.

3709. Was there not money in the town long before Mr. Mum came down?—I do not know.

3710. Had not Colonel Dawkins brought money with him?—I have reason to believe he had, but I do not know.

3711. (Mr. Longe.) Was it not rather dangerous to spend money before the nomination?—I do not know what they did before the nomination, the heavy sums were paid on that day, or the day before.

3712. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know of any Conservative voter having been paid before Mr. Mum came there?—I do not; I do not think there was much money flying about before that, my bills were not paid; I was rather anxious about having my sub.

3713. Mr. Edmonds paid you?—On the nomination day.

3714. (Mr. Bere.) Tell us the name of any voter who asked you about the sub.—There was Blank, William Byne, Francis Coombe.

3715. He is the gentleman who wanted 500*l.*?—That was in Mr. Dent's time.

3716. What did he want in Colonel Dawkins' time?—He did not mention any sum; I understood that he had 200*l.* for voting for Mr. Pender.

3717. Did he ask for any specific sum?—He has compounded with his creditors since, and in his accounts there is a sum of 200*l.* borrowed that day of Mr. Parnell, who was the bribing agent. If they borrow of a member they never think of paying it back.

3718. Did he say what he would vote for?—No. I got so close to the shore in 1859 that I was determined never to get near the rock again, and I would not hear of any specific sum.

3719. Was that all that passed between you and Coombe?—That is all.

3720. Can you give us the names of any one else?—There was old William Earle, a tenant of mine, who did not vote, he wanted money.

3721. How much did he want?—I do not know.

3722. Did he vote for Mr. Dent before?—Yes.

3723. And receive a consideration for that?—Yes.

3724. Do you know what he received in former days?—No; he will tell you about that when he comes.

3725. Any one else?—George Griffis.

3726. How much did he get from your side?—I do not know.

3727. Did he have money from Mr. Mum?—Yes, no doubt.

3728. How much?—I do not know.

3729. What is he?—He is a wheelwright, a very poor man.

3730. Had he voted for you before?—Yes, for Mr. Dent.

3731. Was he one of those who were turned out by the Duke and compassionately received by the Conservative party?—As a rule, as to all those who were turned out, I felt it to be my first duty to get houses or lands for them.

3732. Was Griffis one of those to whom land had been let at a low rate?—No.

3733. What did he say?—It was nothing more than a general discussion that money was required, he was very poor, and so on. Then there was William Hannaford, Mr. Durant's tenant, who related his interview with Mr. Durant, who had got a promise from him that he would never disobey him again if he felt disposed to remain on his land.

3734. He is the man who was carried off at Mr. Dent's election?—Yes. He received notice to quit from Mr. Durant, and then came to me to get him a house. He then went to Mr. Durant and expressed contrition, and said he would never offend again; we could not get at him the next time.

3735. Did you try?—Yes.

3736. What image did you hold out to attract him?—He had tasted the blood before, and having once done so he would be sure to be at it again. He got well paid by the Liberal party, no doubt, but I never entered upon any definite sum or figure.

3737. You intimated to him that if he wanted money it was to be had?—Yes.

3738. Give us some more names?—There were the two Hills.

3739. What happened to Hill senior?—He wanted the 150*l.*

3740. Did he say he wanted 150*l.*?—Yes; it was at my house. He waited till I went down to see Mr. Mum, but the sum was too outrageous.

3741. (Mr. Coleridge.) You broke through your rule as to him?—No, he came about my bill; I paid him the bill. He wanted 150*l.*; I was disgusted with him altogether; it was audacious.

3742. Is he the only one who ever told you of any exact sum?—The only one.

3743. (Mr. Bere.) You would not give him that sum?—He would not go to see Mr. Mum. I recommended him to go there, or thought some one else might be sent to him.

3744. Then who had manipulated Hill senior at the former elections?—He was a Liberal, and had voted for Mr. Ricardo, and for Gisborne and Mills. The present postmaster, an immaculate Liberal gentleman, was the great briber at that time.

3745. Who is the present postmaster?—Mr. Samuel Parnell. Hill told me he was displeased with the Liberals, especially with Mr. Parnell, because he had not paid him 25*l.* for that election. They had a regular list, and they did not want to ask a man how he was going to vote; the 25*l.* was handed over to them. Mr. Parnell took the money and kept it, and never gave it to Hill.

3746. And he was angry at that, and became a Conservative in consequence?—He voted for Dent and Dunn.

3747. And he would have voted for Dawkins and Pim if he had got 150*l.* for doing so?—Yes; he wanted a consideration for his vote.

3748. Give us the next name?—Robert Morgan.

3749. Who is he?—A neighbour of mine, within two or three doors of me, a china merchant and silversmith. He had I think 60*l.* for voting for Mr. Dunn. I asked him if the same consideration would induce him to come again; he was gone; I could not get him.

3750. You did mention a sum to him?—He was above that figure altogether.

3751. Do you know what he got from the other side?—No; he was paid a very heavy sum certainly. Then, John Pearce, we could not get him at all this time. In Mr. Dunn's time he had 25*l.*, and voted against us.

3752. What did he do in Mr. Dent's time?—He went against us; we could not get him at all, the sum was too large.

3753. Did you see him in Mr. Dent's time?—No doubt; I canvassed all the people I could get at.

3754. What passed between you?—He was not come-at-able.

3755. You found the price too great?—He had been settled with before.

3756. When did you see him?—I think on the nomination day.

3757. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever canvass any of these who were not come-at-able?—I canvassed them all as a rule.

3758. You canvassed the pure as well as the others?—There are very few pure in Totnes. I would put them in three classes. First, we have to do with the Duke's men; there about 90 of that class; they are bound head and heels to the Duke, and it would be no use to go to a Duke's man and say anything to him about his vote unless you have something like a consideration to offer him. They would say, though I am a thorough Conservative, I should be turned out of my land, and without a consideration I cannot go on your side. Mr. Michelmore can blow the bugle in Totnes, and get 60 to answer his call in a moment. Hence Mr. Pender's statement as to bringing the Duke's men to the poll without bribery is true. But there are a few of the Duke's men who are open to be treated with, such as Byne, Light, Knapman, Griffis, Turpin, and that class, men who have been turned out, and Mr. Michelmore is right in his conjecture that those men who come over get a consideration for coming over; they would not do so without.

3759. They will not chance their eviction without?—No. Then you come to another class in Totnes, men who want situations for their sons, nephews, sons-in-law, and so on, of whom there are no end. There was Mr. Robert Earle, he wanted to get his son into something; I remember his saying to me, I have always been a Conservative, but I cannot vote for your side now, they are driving the nail pretty close. In olden times there was a compact entered into, but when Mr. Mills came the compact was broken; the Duke's party were then driving the nail home, and Mr. Earle was compelled to turn.

3760. Then either a minister or a merchant is the most acceptable man you can have in the borough?—Decidedly.

3761. You are never looking out for a country gentleman, but for a stranger who is in a good position?—In my communications with Mr. Spofforth I always advised them to try and get a local man.

3762. You have not finished your classification?—There is another class, and that is the reason why I am opposed to the extension of the franchise, that is those parties who are insolvent or who are ignorant.

3763. How many of those are there in Totnes?—If a man is insolvent, and you go to him with anything in the shape of 50*l.* or 100*l.*, that is a temptation which it is not every man who is able to withstand. Then again, if you go to any one who is an ignorant man, all that that man is after is the gold bag. However well off he may be in the world, he will not move outside his door unless he gets paid for doing so. I know there are many in this neighbourhood who have plenty of money, and who are yet always looking out for more. Those are the insolvent and the ignorant class. I have already mentioned the class who want situations for their sons and other relatives, or even

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

to be made magistrates, or something of that sort. As an instance of what I am alluding to, I remember Mr. Watson, an old resident of Totnes. I remember some time ago, prior to Mr. Dent's election, he gave out that he was going to France, and he took a monthly ticket to France, at the same time giving it out that he did not intend to return. After he left urgent messages were sent after him; when he went away he had given us to understand that he did not intend to vote; he came back again, and as soon as he had voted on behalf of the Liberal interest the Duke, I understand, made him a county magistrate. The Duke is the Lord Lieutenant of the county, and the idea of making him a county magistrate, and putting him by the side of a man like Mr. Durant, seemed to be a matter which could not have escaped attention.

3764. The greatest disgrace ever inflicted upon the county magistracy? How did Watson vote before?—Always Liberal.

3765. Was there any particular inducement for him not to vote upon this particular occasion?—No, not the slightest, only he wanted honour. He communicated the fact that that was the condition of his returning to these people. I do not mean to say I know of that generally.

3766. How many are included of the constituency of Totnes in these three classes?—Yes, there are the lawyers and the agents. For myself, I have always gone Conservative. There are those who voted with James Field, and the Duke's influence, and the lawyers on both sides would be sure to go.

3767. Can you tell of your great knowledge how many people there are who have been uninfluenced by any of the motives you have described, or have given their votes conscientiously?—About 50.

3768. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Mitchell is one of them?—You will find something about him when you have got John Pender before you, he will tell you whether he gave a true account yesterday.

3769. (Mr. Bere.) We have got as far as Mr. Pearce, and the people you spoke to about that time, go on with the list and give us the other names?—William Pengilley, he was very friendly with me, and gave me to understand he wanted money. He had 50*l.* sent to him by Screach, which he returned, and voted for the other side; Frederick George Putt, I conversed with him several times about it, and I understood he was one of the slippery company at the former election in 1862, his name is in writing, and it will come in due course.

3770. Did he mention any sum?—No sir, only conversation.

3771. Did he open his mouth widely?—He is one of those whom we call the ignorant class, the ignorant class require the largest sum of money.

3772. The insolvent are bounded by their wants, and the ignorant where their desires lie?—Just that. There is William Reeve, he voted for Dent. I had conversation with him, and when I took the requisition to him to sign he objected.

3773. Did you have any conversation with him about voting?—I had several times.

3774. What did he say, he wanted money?—A good deal of money. Soon after this last election, the man who had offered, by circulars, to pay so much in the pound before the election had got plenty of money to pay every person, and fill a shop full of things.

3775. How long before the election?—A month before.

3776. He sent circulars to his creditors?—Yes.

3777. Offering a composition?—Yes.

3778. Do you know what composition it was?—No.

3779. Were you one of those to whom he sent?—He came to me to lend him 10*l.*, and I would not do it, unless he would give me a promise to support us.

3780. You did not lend him the 10*l.*?—I would not.

3781. Did he afterwards send out this circular?—Yes, Mr. William Tucker and Mr. Huxham were creditors.

3782. The composition was not acted upon?—I do not think it was; after the election he paid in full, I think so, as his shop was well furnished immediately. He had 40*l.* for voting for Dent at the previous election; 40*l.* or 60*l.*, I am not certain which.

3783. It must have taken a deal of money to do that?—I should rather fancy so, I do not know. I fancy he had 60*l.* at least, I do not know.

3784. Go on with your list?—Thomas Searle, junior; he was the manager of the slippery company, he and Mr. Putt; that will come after in 1863. In 1862 I think it will come out. He was not available at all till the last election. You had to screw him down and get him to sit.

3785. Is he a tenant of the Duke?—Yes, he is.

3786. He of course was not to be had without money?—Oh, no.

3787. Did you get from him any idea of what he might be had for?—A very large sum, in fact he acted in co-operation. When men join together like that they are fearful fellows to have to do with.

3788. The slippery company was entituled in 1862?—Yes, in Pender and Dent's time.

3789. It was in consequence of the slippery company demanding a large sum of money that Mr. Dent retired?—That is the fact.

3790. Do you know what they demanded in 1862?—1,000*l.*

3791. Seven of them?—Seven of them, it was all in writing.

3792. They were not likely to ask for less than the rest?—They had increased rather than diminished; they know their power, and they are the most fearful men to have to do with. They will sell body and soul.

3793. Give us the names?—John Searle, manager, Thomas Parnell Searle, son-in-law of Thomas William Searle senior, Edward Angel (tailor), John Randle Veasey. I am not certain as to the others, they will come out. I think Edward Willis was one.

3794. Where do they hold the confederation, where are the offices of the company?—Shall I give you an account of it.

3795. I merely want the fact?—In Mr. Searle's house.

3796. Have you gone through the list?—Oh, no; there is William Sloggett, he signed the requisition, Frederick Evens can tell what he wanted.

3797. Did he tell you anything about it?—He intimated to me that he wanted money, or to get a mortgage off his house.

3798. There was a mortgage on his house?—Frederick Evens can tell you that. He told me the house was mortgaged, and he wanted to sell it.

3799. To whom?—To the late Mr. William Hannaford.

3800. Is that the person who is the election agent?—No, he is dead.

3801. What was the amount, do you know, of the mortgage?—I think he wanted 350*l.* for it; the same property was sold the other day for somewhere about 200*l.* I am not certain of it; I anticipate he wanted about 100*l.* more than it was worth.

3802. Now the next?—We come now to John Wright.

3803. What is John Wright?—He is a gentleman.

3804. What class do you put him in?—Well, sir, I think it appears to be this, when Colonel Dawkins called upon him he promised his vote in a moment to the Colonel. I think it was on the nomination day, or some days prior to it, a gentleman with a white hat, and black band about the hat, and grey-headed, had an interview with Mr. Wright;—Mr. Pender, and Mr. George Fowle had one or two interviews with him; after those interviews a rumour was in circulation that Wright had changed his views and his ideas.

3805. He had promised Colonel Dawkins ?—He had.

3806. Were you present ?—No, but Mr. Edmonds will tell you about it. It was reported that he had changed ; he communicated the fact, and it was communicated in my presence to Mr. Edmonds. He had previously rented an estate of Mr. Edmonds ; he went over to him and asked him if it was true the report that was in circulation ; he said, "I have made up my "mind to mind myself ;" and it appears from what we could glean that Mr. George Fowle's vessel was in pound or in pawn or in foreign parts. That was his son-in-law.

3807. Fowle was Wright's son-in-law ?—Fowle was Wright's son-in-law ; he had a vessel in pawn, or he had been doing some act abroad ; he had been throwing the gauntlet in pretty far by carrying goods, and he was seized and he had to pay so much money to get out ; he applied to Mr. Pender, and Mr. Pender advanced him the money.

3808. You do not know the sum ?—No, I do not ; he will tell you all about it I should hope. He was gone, and he voted a plumper for Mr. Pender.

3809. Did you try to get him back again ?—No.

3810. Did you see him here at all ?—No ; that was on the nomination night ; the next morning he was down.

3811. And voted ?—He was off our hands.

3812. Was Fowle a voter too ?—Yes, he was.

3813. He voted ?—He voted the same side.

3814. Then there was the Rev. William Henry James ?—I am informed that gentleman was offered to be bribed some weeks before the election.

3815. Who is the Rev. William Henry James ?—He is residing at Mount Pleasant. He has got an incumbency in Wales, and I think some money. It appears that he became a shareholder in some joint stock bank, or something or other in London ; this bank was making calls upon him. This is what I have been informed, I am giving hearsay evidence ; I believe it is correct. In fact when Colonel Dawkins called on him he gave Colonel Dawkins to understand that he should support him in the presence of Mr. Edmunds. He did not give a pledge that he should do so, but it was a tacit understanding that he would support him. Mr. Edmonds wrote him a letter asking him as a special favour to do it. Mr. James took advantage of the letter, showed it to Mr. Pender, repeated the position he was in. Mr. Pender at once in his presence put his hand in his pocket and pulled out 300*l.* and lent it to him.

3816. As a loan ?—It is a loan.

3817. Was it to be repaid ?—I do not know about that ; we never think of paying before.

3818. Did that come out before the Committee of the House of Commons ?—It was just introduced. There was this 2,000*l.* and the loan was a portion of the money drawn out by a man called Solomon or Salmon, or some such like name. Mr. Cooke, the counsel in London, thought there was sufficient evidence to turn out Mr. Pender, and therefore he did not go on. Then there was this other man Kellow.

3819. Did you have any interview with Mr. James? —No, I did not ; it is merely hearsay evidence.

3820. Mr. Edmonds will probably be able to give us the information ?—I dare say he will. There was a Mr. Kellow.

3821. Had you any conversation with him ?—I had conversation with him about the election. I understood him he wanted money.

3822. What is he ?—He is an eating-house keeper and a labourer who works for Mr. Condy, the brewer. I understood he had 50*l.* ; in fact that 50*l.* Pengilley carried down to the bank ; it was Kellow's 50*l.* sent down so I am informed. That was a portion of the 2,000*l.*

3823. (Mr. Coleridge.) When Penny returned it was handed over to Kellow ?—It was.

3824. (Mr. Bere.) Which Pengilley was it that carried it down ?—It was George Pengilley, not the voter.

3825. Did you see Kellow ?—I saw him several times during the election ; he gave me to understand he was open to remuneration.

3826. Did you suggest that it could be procured ? —I intimated to him I thought he could have money from our side if he would come on our side ; but he was working for a Liberal master, and it was rather dangerous ground to travel over.

3827. What time was it before the money came ?— About the nomination day.

3828. When people came to you before the money came down, before the telegram arrived intimating the probability of the money coming down, to whom did you direct any person anxious to receive consideration to go to ?—I never directed any person till Mr. Mum came. The general conversation before that was in reference to money matters.

3829. You knew money was coming ?—I knew it.

3830. You represented to them that money would come, and they believed your representation ?—Just so ; they believed it.

3831. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you know what money would come down to Totnes ?—I never conversed with any one about it ; I always understood it.

3832. Who told you ?—I do not know.

3833. Any conversation with Colonel Dawkins ?— No, not a word.

3834. With Mr. Edmonds ?—I should think Mr. Edmonds and I have talked about money matters several times.

3835. Before that was there anybody else ?—It is more than probable ; I do not know it.

3836. Do you think there was anybody more probable to have told you ?—No ; Mr. Edmonds and I communicated one to the other.

3837. You thought Mr. Edmonds the head man of the party ?—Yes, the agent ; we were always anxious to keep him intact and not drag him into the mire.

3838. I believe he told you money would come ?— He would know it.

3839. The fact of it having been part of the requisition that Colonel Dawkins should be one of the candidates, and that he would give the money ?—No doubt he knew it.

3840. Did you know it ?—I did not know it from him personally.

3841. Who did you know it from ?—It would come through Mr. Edmonds, no doubt, or through the party generally.

3842. Did not Colonel Dawkins himself know all about it ?—I have no idea.

3843. Did you never state that Colonel Dawkins knew all about it ?—No.

3844. Both Colonel Dawkins and Capt. Pim knew about money coming down ?—I do not know anything about it.

3845. You never said so ?—I never said so.

3846. You have no doubt ?—I would say it is very likely Colonel Dawkins knew about it, but I do not know it of my own knowledge personally.

3847. Had Mr. Edmonds never told you ?—I do not recollect any conversation of that sort. If I recollect aright, it was said.

3848. Seeing that a petition was presented, you cannot say why it did not claim the seat ?—No.

3849. Were you not influenced partly in that Colonel Dawkins was too much implicated in the matter to claim the seat ?—My idea was not to spend any money, because there were some votes struck off by the revising barrister, and my advice was to have a pure election, to make them spend and try to go in and claim the seat.

3850. As that did not take place, what was the reason you did not claim the seat for Colonel Dawkins ?—Because we thought Colonel Dawkins considered he could not get out of it with clean hands.

3851. (Mr. Bere.) Have you finished the list ?— That is all.

3852. I understand those are the only people you saw with regard to the election of 1865 ?—The only ones I remember about bribery purposes.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

3853. You lost them all?—Very near, sir; that was the house I was sent to; a house that was rather shaky.

3854. Nearly all of these men you lost?—Oh! yes, quite so; that was the class of men I directed my attention to specially, to get out of the Liberal ranks.

3855. Were you sent to any of those who previously voted for the Conservatives, and who voted for Dawkins and Pender, with the exception of Foote?—I did not go to Foote. I have heard that he and Thomas Dennis had 100*l.*

3856. Who is he?—He voted also Dawkins and Pim.

3857. What is he?—A cab proprietor.

3858. He was examined before a Committee of the House of Commons?—Yes, I believe so; I do not know it of my own knowledge.

3859. Do I understand you to say this, as far as you remember, that the only voters you went to at the election of 1865, and to whom you suggested money would be forthcoming, are those?—Yes, I think so.

3860. Mrs. Gillham, did you see her?—No, I never spoke to her in my life.

3861. Mr. Gillham?—No.

3862. You do not know the name or the house?—When I say I never spoke to him in my life, that is going too far, but they are the Duke's tenants, that you cannot get at at all.

3863. Is it the Mr. Gillham that keeps an inn on the left-hand side of the bridge?—That I assume to be the man. That was the information given to me. John Gillham junior was to be had. I know a young man called Johns was put upon him.

3864. Did you go to see whether he could be had?—No; it was brought to me that he was to be had. William Henry Johns was deputed to see him.

3865. Was he one of Mum's runners?—I do not know. They are great cock fighters, Gillham and Johns.

3866. Was he tried the other day?—Yes. Gillham is a Radical and Johns is a Conservative. We thought those were likely to be brought together.

3867. Birds of a feather?—Just so.

3868. Did you see Mary Ann Green, the wife of John Fox Green?—Very likely I did.

3869. Do you remember having seen her?—I dare say.

3870. He is one of the men who signed the requisition?—I remember going up once or twice. He was taken off to Plymouth, and consequently when he was gone I went up to make inquiries where he was gone to. I wanted to go down to scent him out. I could not get upon the scent of him; he was too sharp for me.

3871. Did you go to Plymouth?—No.

3872. You went up to Mrs. Green to inquire?—I did not go direct. There was a friend of ours residing in the house; one of the 10*l.* class, who make a vote in order to get money.

3873. And do they let lodgings?—No; houses of this class have two sides; they let off the right side and keep the left.

3874. Did you hear from Mrs. Green where her husband was gone, and did you not tell her if he came back it would be a good thing for him?—More than likely.

3875. Did you not tell her how good a thing it would be?—No, I am sure I never said anything about the amount.

3876. Did John Fox Green vote for Dawkins before?—That was his first vote.

3877. He had not tasted blood?—He might in the council election.

3878. You intimated it would be a good thing if he came back and voted for you?—I felt especially interested in all those that had signed the requisition; it was on the faith of that that Mr. Spofforth had induced men to come to Totnes; and more than that, I felt they were bound to support their party.

3879. It was on that representation to Mr. Spofforth that he went to look for a candidate?—Entirely.

3880. You believed they would have voted for him?—Yes.

3881. Provided they were paid?—Decidedly; I put in that qualification.

3882. Did you tell Mr. Spofforth they must be paid?—No, I did not.

3883. Did you intimate to him that they had signed the requisition, and in certain instances would be bribed?—I think the class of representation I made was this:—I said, "Mr. Spofforth, the majority on "the list are Conservative, but in order to keep them "it is necessary that you should be prepared to "defend them in case they are tempted by the other "side."

3884. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you first see Mr. Spofforth on the subject of this election?—Only once.

3885. Where did you see him?—In London.

3886. Did you see Mr. Rose at the same time?—No.

3887. Whom else did you see connected with Mr. Spofforth?—No one at all.

3888. No one at all?—Of course when we went we saw a clerk.

3889. Did you ever see Mr. Mum at Mr. Spofforth's office?—No.

3890. Did you ever see him with Mr. Spofforth's clerk?—I have not seen him since the election.

3891. When you saw Mr. Mum at that time did you recognize him as the man that came down?—No.

3892. (Mr. Longe.) How long before the nomination day did you see John Fox Green?—Three or four days. A man of the name of Elliott took him away.

3893. He came back?—He came back; they had got him off.

3894. Were there any other cases of men taken away?—Reeve; he bolted, and they caught him down about Dartmouth.

3895. Any others?—No, those are the only ones.

3896. Do you know how long Reeve was taken off?—Mr. Lorimer had worked him pretty well; he got him down about a ship down about Dartmouth.

3897. (Mr. Bere.) Tell us the names of all those people who, as far as you know, were tampered with by the other side?—As far as I know those are the names I had conversation with.

3898. Do you know a man called Ruby, of Castle Mill?—I know him. I never spoke to him about bribery.

3899. Was he a tenant of the Duke?—Yes, he came up here; he has a partner.

3900. Who was that?—A man called Searle. I never had anything to do with him, I was so thoroughly disgusted.

3901. Do you know anything about Drew?—Drew, I know him; I never spoke to him; he is one who had 5*l.* after Mr. Pender came down, and then he bolted. Mr. Pender was very kind, and he gave 1,000*l.* to bribe all the people in Totnes on behalf of Mr. Seymour. Drew was disgusted that he only got 5*l.*

3902. When was that?—After Mr. Pender stood in 1862. John Diggins, he had 5*l.*, and voted for him.

3903. What do you say about the 1,000*l.*?—1,000*l.* he gave, that was nothing but bribery; 100*l.* and 150*l.* were given to the chapel, that was to secure the Wesleyans; so much was given to the Independents, and so much was given to the Church. The worst kind of corruption is that, and I hope I shall never see the day when it is practised again, for it is the worst kind of corruption to receive money as a bribe for any purposes connected with religion.

3904. Jackson, do you know anything about him?—Robert Jackson is one of those, he was Lord Cranstoun's tenant. He came down and I had an interview once or twice with his Lordship when he came over here, and he found there were four of his tenants

Robert Jackson, Henry Bradridge, Robert Oldreve, and Richard Mortimer; his Lordship was desirous that the Conservatives should succeed here, and he communicated the fact to his tenants; but it appears that Mr. Jeffery Michelmore, who is also steward for Lord Cranstoun as well as the Duke of Somerset, got these men under his thumb. It appears that he made a representation to his Lordship that it would be very hard or very unjust for him to get those men to vote against the Liberal side, inasmuch as they had been made on a Liberal qualification.

3905. Had they got building land?—Yes, they were manufactured votes.

3906. Linnies?—Not Linnies, but votes that were manufactured, as we call fictitiously, in Totnes.

3907. Is it a guano pit?—Take the six Dartmouth lot, they make their votes in this way:—there is a property which had been occupied from time immemorial by the tenants of the Seymour Hotel, that was handed over in this way,—Mr. So-and-so, will you consent to become a nominal tenant of the Duke of Somerset? Yes, I have no objection; will you please to appoint George Fitze manager; then George Fitze is appointed manager; he goes to the tenants of the hotel and says, Now you are to have the occupation as before, to eat all the grass, to cut all the hay, and pick all the stones as before, yet every two or three months you must render to me an account (a sham account) of the number of horses, cows, and pigs you put into the field, so that you shall be able to go before the barrister and swear you have this cattle taken in it per week. A grosser case of immorality I never heard of. He occupies as much as any man who occupies his own house, and yet those six men vote upon it. I would say in passing, in reference to the Duke of Somerset, that I have felt very strongly that the Duke of Somerset is at the bottom of all the demoralization that takes place in the town of Totnes.

3908. Who are the six Dartmouth?—One called Mark Fox; he was a briber up here in 1859.

3909. What is he?—A grocer, an assistant grocer; he does not keep a business of his own. Then there is Christopher Graham Clifte, of Dartmouth.

3910. What is he?—He is a gentleman who lives on his means. Then there is William Henry Rees; he comes up to see his mother or brother once or twice a year, and that is all he knows of Totnes; he comes up to the meetings of the party. Then Thomas Stranger, he is a Dartmouth man; he comes up here, and he is a retired farmer; and he has not got a head of cattle, and he knows nothing about it at all. Then Mark Whittell; that man, I understand, is a grocer or a grocer's assistant, or something of that sort. The sixth, I think, he is dead. They put in another, Thomas Matthews.

3911. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do they poll dead men?—There was one man very near dead; in a few hours it was over; he never spoke, and he was virtually dead.

3912. Do you know a man called Chamings?—I do.

3913. He voted at the election of 1865?—Mr. Chamings, I knew him in 1865. I do not speak to him now. He knew it, in fact he has told me over and over again that that is how the Duke manufactured votes; a man that will swear anything, that man will. I never speak to him. George Mitchell has always occupied a farm for a number of years.

3914. Who is George Mitchell?—George Mitchell the butcher. Permit me to go back to one I omitted just now, namely, James Matcham and Thomas Matcham; they both signed the requisition.

3915. What are they, shoemakers?—One was a gentleman, a retired innkeeper, James Matcham; and Thomas Matcham at that time was an innkeeper, and he kept the "South Devon" inn.

3916. Did James Matcham live in Torquay?—No, that is the son that lives at Torquay. Mr. Thomas Matcham gave me to understand at various times that he intended to support the Conservative party, and he did everything that a man could do to confirm that impression. I hold one of the rent audits and I have paid him something considerable for it. Just prior to the election the old gentleman spoke to me. Mr. Thomas Matcham was away out of town. I think there was a summons after him or a writ, I do not know which; but he had gone out of town, and the old man came to me and asked me if I could get him 200*l.* or 200 guineas.

3917. How long was this before the election of 1865?—A few days before the election of 1865. I told him I had nothing whatever to do with it, or money matters, but I would communicate it to Mr. Mum.

3918. That must have been after Mr. Mum arrived?—I think it was; we anticipated Mr. Mum.

3919. Did you call him by the name of Mum?—No, he was an unknown individual, whatever he was called. I saw him on the nomination night, after the nomination. I might say I happened to be at the Railway Hotel by the late express train, somewhere about 11 or a quarter past 11 in the evening of the day before the nomination. I think Mr. Mum was anticipated by that train. I think it was 50*l.* I had in fact.

3920. You are quite sure about that?—At any rate I am satisfied as to the older Matcham; he was there waiting for some one. We had some other conversation, and he assured me that his son Thomas was going all right, but to my surprise the son came by the train, which he said was to be kept from me, and he did not tell me he was looking for his son again. As soon as the son got outside the rails his friend, Tom Searle, junior, was there; he nabbed him, and he caught sight of me at once. I could not get him, Thomas Matcham, junior. I went in the evening, as he had signed the requisition. I felt exceedingly anxious he should carry out his promises; if he wanted money, let money be paid for him. I did not anticipate that we were to be bought off out of the field with money. I asked him plainly and distinctly whether he wanted money, and the old man said he wanted 200*l.* That was the first intimation I had from an independent man residing in Totnes that he wanted 100*l.* for his vote, that is the old man.

3921. He is alive?—Yes, he is alive, and so is the son. The result was, on the election morning I happened to be in the booth at a quarter to 8 o'clock, down they came, him and Thomas Searle, and he goes and polls dead against me, right in my face. I directed Mr. Pender's attention to it, and I said "Do "you think you can take your seat after that man's "polling?" He said "If I am turned out, my son "will come," intimating that his son was close by.

3922. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was his son down at the election?—He was, and he brought the money with him.

3923. Which son was that?—I do not know which it was; he was rather a short man; he is a captain.

3924. Do you know whether he came from Canada?—I do not know where he came from; he is a short man, not very good looking. There was a little incident connected with Samuel Hill.

3925. Which?—Samuel Hill, junior; he owed a year's rent; after he voted against me, I went to him, the day after, for the rent, and he immediately paid me.

3926. What was it?—5*l.* Previous to that he told me he was very poor and could not pay me. I think that is all I omitted that has occurred to me that I ought to have stated.

3927. Now with regard to Chamings of Wildwoods. Do you know on the morning of the election John Heath, Arthur Niner, and James Heath went over to him?—I believe John Heath and Arthur Niner went over to him. I think they went to Mr. Ruby and also Mr. Chamings; we understood he was open to conviction.

3928. Had you seen Mr. Arthur Niner and Mr. John Heath when you went there?—No, I had not.

3929. Had you heard any conversation, or why

FIFTH DAY.
Mr. R. Harris.
28 Aug. 1866.

they were gone ?—No ; I was only aware of the fact after they had gone.

3930. When you knew they were gone, you knew pretty well for what purpose they were gone ?—I know they went there to offer the money. I do not think that Mr. Mum had anything to do with the offer. I do not think it was intimated to him as a matter that wanted a companion.

3931. He did not go to the others ?—Not to my knowledge ; I never heard of it if he did.

3932. Did he go to Crook and Drew ?—I do not think he did.

3933. Jackson ?—That is Buckfastleigh. I never heard of that. He went with John Heath as companion.

3934. Do you know Mr. John Venn ?—Yes.

3935. Do you know how his vote was influenced ?—Not the slightest. That is one of those manufactured votes ; he lodged with Mrs. Thomas, who is a very strong partizan ; she would scarcely allow him to live if he voted contrary to her wishes.

3936. Would she not provide him with the proper means of life ?—She would be very desperate against him, and he would be turned out of his house I have no doubt. I might say Mr. Venn was one of a company of six whose votes are manufactured after the manner I have described as to the Dartmouth company. It is the most demoralizing manner in which you can conceive it to be done ; it leads men to perjury and all those sins.

3937. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is it the same way as the Dartmouth company ?—Just so ; and they tell the most deliberate untruths that you can conceive, and a man who will do that you may anticipate what sort of an elector he is.

3938. (Mr. Bere.) Is it the rent they pay ?—I know nothing about the land. There was a company of eight or nine of them. John Venn was a retired exciseman, and got not a pig, dog, or horse, or anything at all.

3939. Whose land ?—The Duke of Somerset's. He is the head and the centre of all the demoralization you may rely upon it. I hope the Commission will come to that very thing and will point to the Duke as the centre.

3940. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Baldwin had nothiug to do with it ?—He began ; the spring head is the Duke of Somerset. The company consists of Venn, George Fitze, Robert Jackson, John Hamlyn, John Furneaux, John Spark Amery ; then the Bridgetown company, Henry Bradridge, John Whiteaway Hoppin, Andrew Hepburn, John Knapman, junior, William Henry Rossiter, Richard Stanning, John Venn, and William Veasey.

3941. Where do they live ?—They reside in the neighbourhood of the seven miles' circle.

3942. In the town ?—Some in the town. George Fitze is the registration agent for the Duke of Somerset and Robert Jackson is a carpenter.

3943. How do they hold this land ?—They appoint George Fitze the manager, his place is to take in cattle for a week of A., B., and C. ; but Mr. George Cole, the previous occupier, occupies the ground as before, he renders a fictitious account made up that the rents may be brought up to that, the rates and rents are paid in their names, but the previous occupier occupies as before.

3944. What about their rents ?—They rent the value of the ground, they have got the value in it, it is done for the express purpose of making votes ; and what I say is they are brought into this court to swear they are occupiers when another man occupies.

3945. They do pay that ?—It is all done under colour you know.

3946. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do they pay the sum they pretend so pay ?—They come into court and say they know nothing about it ; they leave it to their agent.

3947. They know whether they pay ?—They never contribute a farthing to the loss nor receive a farthing of the profit.

3948. These names you have mentioned are they the same class who represented the Dartmouth party, the people who were not engaged in farming pursuits and had no cattle ?—Not one ; I think Mr. John Hamlyn is one.

3949. He is a tanner of Buckfastleigh ?—Yes, he might have a horse.

3950. They never stock themselves ?—No ; the previous occupiers have to stock as before ; only they have to come to this understanding at the end of the year, how many horses have you had, 20 horses ; how many bullocks, 20 bullocks ; then there is so much rent to be paid, and we will distribute it at so much a week.

3951. (Mr. Longe.) Before the registration are the votes disputed ?—Yes.

3952. What is the objection ?—That it is not tenanted ; but I intend to carry it to the court above if necessary. Lord Chief Justice Erle in the concluding part of his judgment in my case says occupation of that description will not do before that court ; they prove occupation in fact.

3953. (Mr. Bere.) At the end of the year the real occupier makes up an account for the number of cattle on the property ?—Yes ; so that there is a certain rent to go to the real occupier, who is denied, and the balance is sworn to as the value of the occupation.

3954. The amount is placed to go to the original rent ?—Yes.

3955. And then sub-let ?—Yes.

3956. Does the original occupier continue at all in the matter or only the fictitious occupiers ?—Only the fictitious occupiers. They are rated and the rates paid in their name ; the occupier has perhaps got an occupation in another place and it is not necessary for him to appear ; those rates appear for the others, and the overseers are bound to put them on the list, and they come here and say they have occupation de facto under such circumstances.

3957. When they produce the accounts does it appear that the cattle are put on by persons other than themselves, or by their manager, or one of themselves ?—By their manager. The real occupier you have not got ; you cannot summon him.

3958. The real occupier would not appear ?—He would not appear.

3959. Upon the face of the accounts ?—Yes, as the party paying so much money. But Mr. Roope said without a change of that description he would not allow it, and I have confidence in him, that he will not allow it ; if he fails to support our objection, we shall carry it further.

3960. (Mr. Coleridge.) How many votes would that strike off ?—The Duke has about 50 legitimate votes and 40 fictitious votes.

3961. How many fictitious votes have the other side ?—Not one.

3962. Since Mr. Baldwin's time ?—In the year 1861 I think I put on nine manufactured in the same way or the same principle ; but I was so disgusted with it that I made up my mind not to have anything to do with it, and I appeal to any one who knows me whether I have not refused to have anything to do with companies. I would rather take it to the higher courts.

3963. (Mr. Bere.) Have you any information to give us as to any particular subject with regard to the election of 1865 ?—No, there does not seem to me anything except those points I have mentioned. I may say, with reference to the magistrates, I mentioned something just now and I should like to qualify it a little. I spoke of a gentleman made as county magistrate which I considered a disgrace to the town; there were three magistrates made, Samuel Huxham, junior, John Webber Chaster, and William Webber ; William Webber was one of those persons who at Dunn's election was taken away and who had promised himself by writing and by word of mouth.

3964. You need not go into that. Is hay made pon the land you spoke of?—Yes; the real occupier supposed to buy it as grass.

3965. You were the only person up when Mr. lum came down that morning, did you see him come ito the "Seven Stars"?—No.

3966. When did you first go in that morning?—omewhere between eight and nine. I waited till ie man came. I was informed that he was coming nd I was anxious to see him.

3967. Had you had a description given of him?—o.

3968. You saw a man with a heavily laden carpet ag come by the mail train?—Yes, I saw him and I as told he was the man.

3969. You went between eight and nine o'clock?—Yes; in the course of the morning.

3970. When did you first see him?—Soon after I ot there.

3971. Did you ask for him?—That is more than kely.

3972. Do you remember who you asked?—More han likely the waiter.

3973. What name?—Brown, and I asked for the entleman who come by the mail.

3974. Did you know by what name he was to be ecognized?—No.

3975. Is Brown the waiter still?—Yes.

3976. Were you shown up?—I think he came down n the lobby and saw me.

3977. What passed between you? Were you by ourselves?—I was by myself.

3978. Will you tell me what passed?—That he was nuch interested in the election of Colonel Dawkins, nd was prepared to do what was necessary or some-hing of that sort.

3979. No more explicit words?—No.

3980. Merely what was necessary?—Yes.

3981. Was that all that passed?—I think that was ll that passed.

3982. Did you go away then?—I did.

3983. When did you see Mr. Mum again?—That ay.

3984. How was he called Mum?—After it was nown he was here the general inquiry was, has he ot any name, and nobody knew his name, and Mum as a kind of name given him.

3985. (Mr. Coleridge.) He did not give you that ame?—No, I think that is the way he got it. I ever saw a card. In Dunn's time the man brought card, John Smith, which he gave me, but this man id not give any card.

3986. How many times in the course of the day id you see Mr. Mum?—Two or three times; perhaps our or five.

3987. When did you next see him after that first nterview?—The door was locked at nine o'clock.

3988. On the nomination day?—I saw him four or ive times during the day.

3989. When did you see him next?—I think not ill I saw him in London after the election.

3990. Am I right in understanding that he came own on the morning of the nomination day?—Yes.

3991. You saw him four or five times on that day?—Yes.

3992. When was the second time you saw him on he nomination day?—During some part of the morning.

3993. Do you remember where you saw him?—Always at the "Stars."

3994. Did you see him alone?—Always alone. He would not see anybody.

3995. Do you remember what room you saw him in?—I think almost every time in the lobby. There was one little room the first flight; I rather think that room is 13, whether I did go in there or not once I do not know.

3996. Was it in a room?—No, in the lobby.

3997. Were there people about then at that time?—There were people going to and fro.

3998. Did he talk in a high voice or low?—Not so that any person could hear what we had to say.

3999. Can you remember the particulars of any conversation you had with him?—I remember portions of the inquiry were whether he had the list of names right and whether they were satisfied.

4000. The men you have mentioned?—Yes.

4001. What did he say, Mr. Mum?—Sometimes he gave me a good account, sometimes he would say the negotiations were in the course of process and so on.

4002. Was there a sort of committee occasionally saw Mr. Mum?—No.

4003. Not a regular committee, but two or three associated together?—I do not remember. Mr. Bowen has reminded me that on that morning (the nomination night) about four o'clock Captain Pim came into the room where I was, and this gentleman, Mr. Mum, came with him.

4004. Was Colonel Dawkins there?—I do not remember; I think he was not. If he comes he will be able to tell you.

4005. Did you hear what passed at that time?—As is usual at those times we went over the register finally.

4006. Had you a canvass book?—Yes, the canvass book was on the table.

4007. Did your canvass book relate to people besides those who were shaky?—No.

4008. Yours was an important canvass book?—Mine was devoted to those men who might hum and haw between us.

4009. "Come-at-ables"?—Yes. They were people it was not deemed advisable that I should have to do with them. Pay them 20*l.* or 30*l.* and they went on all right.

4010. They went straight forward as soon as they were paid?—Yes.

4011. What passed about voters?—Nothing in the presence of Capt. Pim.

4012. Nor Colonel Dawkins?—Not in my presence. I was one of those I may tell you who was always very anxious on that point. I would never have anything to say in the presence of a candidate, we always endeavoured not to get ourselves complicated. I was the recognized Conservative agent, and if we won there would have been possibly a petition against us, and I did not want to link myself up with it, therefore I kept myself apart from it.

4013. Did you see Colonel Dawkins that morning, with your canvass book, about four o'clock?—I think I did.

4014. And go through the "come-at-ables" with him?—There were those who had not made a promise; many, men like Mr. Mitchell; he says he never will promise; there are many good and true who will not promise.

4015. I want to keep you to the canvass book. You had made it up, and you had it at the time Mr. Mum came into the room. I want to know whether you saw Colonel Dawkins, and discussed with him the various people mentioned in the canvass book?—I do not think I did with reference to money points.

4016. Supposing you were going through the canvass book, and came to John Smith, would not you say to Colonel Dawkins, "I have seen that man, and "he is all right"?—I should say that.

4017. And the next one, "You see that man is "going wrong"?—Or, "I am informed that man is "going wrong."

4018. Did not that take place with regard to most names in the canvass book?—We went through them carefully, every one, during the night of the nomination, and it was found we must secure some two or three at a desperate price, hence John Heath and others were sent as messengers to A., B., and C., in order that they might be tested, to see whether they were come-at-able.

4019. What time was the information given?—About four o'clock in the morning.

4020. Was it given to you?—No.

4021. Was it given to Colonel Dawkins?—No, I do not think it was; only we wanted some four or five more. Whenever we had to discuss anything about

FIFTH DAY.
Mr. R. Harris.
28 Aug. 1866.

money affairs I withdrew. I did not want to have anything to do with it, nor Colonel Dawkins, nor Captain Pim.

4022. As soon as money was mentioned you opened the door and walked out ?—We did not care about it.

4023. (Mr. Longe.) Mr. Heath was in the room ?—No, not that morning. There was that gentleman, Mr. Mum, he was a very pleasant man.

4024. Was Screach there ?—No.

4025. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had you any conversation with Colonel Dawkins about Mum's arrival ?—No, not a word.

4026. Colonel Dawkins knew of his arrival I suppose ?—No doubt of it.

4027. (Mr. Bere.) Were you up all that night ?—Yes.

4028. At the "Seven Stars" the whole time ?—Yes.

4029. Going through the canvass book ?—Yes, and receiving reports.

4030. Did you communicate the result to Colonel Dawkins ?—It is more than probable.

4031. You say you saw Mum about four o'clock in morning ; did you see him again before nine o'clock ?—I did not.

4032. When was the last time you saw him ?—That was the last interview.

4033. When ?—About four o'clock. I went there. The report came that Samuel Hill had gone wrong. I went and rung him up, and inquired whether it was true he had departed.

4034. Was it Mr. Bryett brought that report ?—No, I do not know the party.

4035. Was not it Mr. Bryett you told us of before ?—That is Mr. Byne.

4036. Who was it brought you the report about Samuel Hill ?—I do not know. It is more than probable it might be Screach.

4037. Do you know when Mum left the town ?—The same day of the election I think.

4038. What train ?—I do not, I never saw him after four o'clock on the morning of the polling day.

4039. Is Totnes distributed into districts and had not you a large number of sub-agents ?—We do not want many.

4040. How many had you ?—Mr. Screach was the principal sub-agent.

4041. Who else, Mr. Evan Evens ?—No, Mr. Evan Evens had nothing to do with it.

4042. Did not he canvass a large number ?—Not Evan Evens. Mr. Frederick Evens I think was a necessary ingredient in the warfare.

4043. Screach and Frederick Evens, who else ?—Heard and George and John Heath.

4044. Whose peculiar vocation was it to look after the Bridgetown people ?—That I do not know. Any one who had got any special knowledge or was intimate with any party over there ;—no selection of any particular individual ;—it would be something like Johns ; Johns was asked to see one Gillham because he was a cock-fighting man. Whereas, if I were to go, I would be watched, there would be a touter to see where I went.

4045. You would be followed ?—Yes.

4046. Persons who might go and talk about other matters besides electioneering would not be watched ?—No.

4047. You saw Mum again after four o'clock ?—Yes I saw him in London on the petition.

4048. What passed ?—We talked about the corruption of the place, what a notorious place it was.

4049. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he say what he had contributed towards it ?—I think I heard about 4,000*l.*

4050. Did he tell you that ?—I do not know, I have heard that, but I do not know whether he told me. We had a conversation about it.

4051. Did he tell you where he got it ?—No.

4052. Was there an individual answering to Mr. Mum on the other side ?—Yes, he had a white hat with a black band on it, I think they adopted the course of 1859. Mr. John Smith went about with money in his hands. He was a man called Snell, he proferred his services, but I do not think we engaged him for bribing purposes.

4053. (Mr. Bere.) Had you any other strangers in your employ besides Mr. Mum ?—I was not aware of any.

4054. Any one from Ashburton ?—No, the Liberal party generally used to bring in Mark Fox of Dartmouth and those great bribers of those places.

4055. Is there much bribery at Dartmouth ?—Dartmouth is a fearful place. When Mr. Bourne and Sawyer come up they will tell you their ideas.

4056. Is Ashburton a bad place ?—I do not know.

4057. Do you know Mr. Tucker of Ashburton ?—Yes, he can tell you a lot about that. In closing up this part about the petition, Mr. Tucker was here taking down the evidence, I saw him myself, and these people were shaking, such as Sam Hill, the Matchams, and others, and they went to Mr. Tucker to be advised what to do.

4058. Have you seen Mr. Tucker here before the election ?—I think I did. I think he came over here with Mr. Jardine ; after Jardine's election was over he came over here.

4059. Ashburton was uncontested ?—Yes, and I think you ought to have Mr. Jardine here ; he ought to be free from the taint that he brought some money and that was spent, and that was the reason why the money in the National Bank was not taken out.

4060. Did you see Mr. Tucker and Mr. Jardine here ?—Yes, they came here.

4061. When was that ?—On the nomination day here.

4062. Mr. Tucker has been concerned on the Liberal side for every single election you have known about in Totnes ?—I think as legal adviser in some way or other.

4063. He can tell us a great deal about it ?—Yes, he knows about it. He said if we went into it heart and soul there must be a pretty state of things.

4064. Did he say that to you ?—No. I think Mr. Edmonds will tell you all about that.

4065. Is there anything more you can tell us about the election of 1865 ?—I believe you have got all I know about 1865.

4066. (Mr. Coleridge.) I want to know a little more about the meeting with Mr. Mum in London ?—I never saw him.

4067. About the petition ?—Yes.

4068. Was he engaged about the petition ?—No, he was only there as a spectator.

4069. Was Mr. Spofforth in the room ?—Yes.

4070. Did you see any communication between Mr. Mum and Mr. Spofforth ?—No ; I was door keeper, I reported about Mr. Mitchell running in and out, and we subpœnaed him, he was a dangerous kiddy.

4071. How long did the committee last ?—Three or four days.

4072. Which day of the committee was it you saw Mr. Mum ?—He was there the whole time.

4073. I suppose every day you saw him there you had something to say to him ?—No, I do not know that I did, we passed the time of day.

4074. Did nothing occur except that, he may have told you it was 4,000*l.* He did not begin by saying it was 4,000*l.* ?—Perhaps he might have said, What do you think will be the result ? What do you think of so-and-so's evidence ?

4075. Did you say what was in the bag ?—No, I did not. There was a general conversation about the corruption of the place. He said it was a fearfully corrupt place. He had the names of the persons to whom he had paid money.

4076. Then he told you what he brought down ?—I would not be sure whether he did or not.

4077. Did he tell you he spent what he brought ?—I do not think he did. The door was locked at nine o'clock, there was a lot more in the bag.

4078. Do you believe Mum had spent all he brought down by nine o'clock in the morning?—I think not.

4079. Did he take some back?—A large portion, because some did not vote.

4080. How much do you account for having been given away in bribery on your side?—5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.*

4081. Given away on your side?—Yes.

4082. If Mum did not spend all he brought in the bag, where do you imagine the rest of the 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.* came from?—I do not know, I believe Colonel Dawkins contributed a portion.

4083. Do you know whether Colonel Dawkins brought it down himself?—I do not know.

4084. Do you know the name of Colonel Dawkins' valet that was here?—No.

4085. Money was going before Mum came down?—Not much, I think; not before he had been round to see what was what.

4086. You say 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.* was spent, and Mum only brought 4,000*l.*, and he did not spend all that; when was it going, the other part?—The same day.

4087. The door was closed at nine o'clock?—There was nomination day and night, and you soon got through it, giving one man 100*l.* and another 50*l.*

4088. At nine o'clock Mum shut up?—Yes.

4089. Mum took back a portion?—Yes, my impression is he did.

4090. Then if 5,000*l.* or 6,000*l.* was spent it must have come from some other source?—Perhaps Colonel Dawkins may have spent some thousands, but he did not say a word to me about it.

4091. Do you know that he did?—Not of my own knowledge, but my impression is he did, but he will tell you.

4092. Did Captain Pim spend any?—I think he gave 500*l.* to Mr. Kellock.

4093. When did he give the money to Mr. Kelloch?—When he came down.

4094. Can you give us any instance in which money was spent on your side before the arrival of Mr. Mum?—No. I think none was spent. Negotiations may have been entered into.

4095. Mum's money and Dawkins' money were amalgamated together?—Yes, the word of command was given to open the door, and immediately the door was opened out pour the messengers.

4096. Can you put down on a piece of paper the amount of money you know was distributed, with the names of those who received it?—No, I cannot.

4097. How far would what you actuatly know carry you towards 5,000*l.*?—I had nothing to do with money matters.

4098. We do not ask you whether you gave it, but you know what these people did receive, and how far, putting that on paper, would that carry us into 6,000*l.*?—I cannot tell.

4099. How far can you tell?—I was not aware that Foote had had 150*l.*; I thought 25*l.* was sufficient.

4100. We will give you Foote in, and how far could you account for 6,000*l.*?—I do not know I am sure.

4101. Could you get to a couple of thousands?—I do not understand you.

4102. Of those persons who actually received money?—It is only what I have heard.

4103. As far as you have heard, putting the sums together, with the names of those that received the money, to the best of your belief how far would it get towards 6,000*l.*?—I could not tell whether I should have to put down 100*l.* or 25*l.*, and I am informed that one man had 200*l.* Mr. Bowen is telling me.

4104. Never mind Mr. Bowen. How far, from what you have heard and from what you believe, can you put the sums together to make up 6,000*l.*?—I cannot tell that it was that.

4105. Would it include lawyers?—Lawyers and hotel bills.

4106. How far would you get towards 6,000*l.*?—I cannot tell what to put down for each man; they appear to be rising higher and higher.

4107. They did not all get the same?—No, it was not as at Yarmouth, 15*l.* and 25*l.*; they vary from 500*l.* to 25*l.*, and you will soon get rid of 6,000*l.* if you give 500*l.*

4108. How many were bribed on your side?—About 75.

4109. By you?—No, by the Conservatives.

4110. How many of your men were bribed by the other side to the best of your belief?—I should think a great many; those that signed were all bribed. I anticipate, and I put it at a low estimate, and Mr. Condy thinks I am right, and he knows more about it than he told you here, he is a tolerable good judge of those matters, and he said I was pretty near right when I put it at 75 Tories and 50 Whigs.

4111. (Mr. Bere.) That is bribable, but you know they are bribed?—They would not go to the poll without they got the money.

4112. You believe they were actually bribed?—Yes. There was one man, John Diggins, signed a requisition, and was negotiating for a large sum; Mr. Screach can tell you about it. I do not want to enter on that which others can tell you. I think his first price was about 200*l.* We could not offer that exactly, we thought it a little beyond the mark. We understood that was considered exorbitant.

4113. When was that?—That was the nomination day; some part of the election day he would have taken 25*l.*

4114. What did he get?—I do not think he got anything.

4115. He stood out with bad effect?—Yes; some few did not vote at all.

4116. You have told us some of your people you bribed; how many of the Liberal voters did your party bribe?—Did we get at any but Foote? I think that is the only one.

4117. The conclusion is, whatever you spent the others must have spent more?—Bless yonr soul! they bought us out of the field; we were no use at all.

4118. Supposing, including everthing, you spent 6,000*l.*, what do you suppose the others spent?—There is Pengilley, he had 60*l.* to vote for Dent; then he took 50*l.* to vote for our side; and do you think he would return that without getting a sum on the other side? Rumour says 200*l.*

4119. Can you tell me what amount was spent on the other side?—Mr. Pender stated that during the time he was here the whole of the expenses, money he gave away and the money he spent in bribery, was 15,000*l.*

4120. On the two elections?—Yes. We might have picked up a good sum if we would have withdrawn the petition, but Colonel Dawkins would not.

4121. Who was the gentleman?—I do not know.

4122. When was the offer made?—The morning we were going on with the petition.

4123. The morning you were going into committee?—Yes.

4124. There was an offer made?—Yes; Mr. Edmonds can tell you.

4125. Were you present?—Mr. Guscotte told me we could have 20,000*l.* Colonel Dawkins' solicitor telegraphed to Colonel Dawkins, but he would not withdraw.

4126. Who was the offer of 20,000*l.* made by?—I cannot tell.

4127. Who was to have the 20,000*l.*, Colonel Dawkins or the electors of Totnes?—I should have come in for a good scoop.

4128. You were rather disappointed it was not withdrawn?—I do not know about that. Upon reconsideration, I would rather like Pender than Seymour, and considering he had plenty of money, he would be the best man for the place; and there would be a fearful exposure on both sides of the question.

4129. You believe that 20,000*l.* was offered on behalf of somebody?—I have no doubt about it.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

4130. And there was a telegram sent to Colonel Dawkins?—I think Mr. Guscotte said so; but I think that was the day prior.

4131. You heard that the day before?—I did not hear it.

4132. Then you heard that the offer had been made and refused?—Yes; because Mr. Guscotte, Mr. Edmonds, and myself were present, and Mr. Guscotte said that an offer had been made of 20,000*l.* if we would give it up, and that he had telegraphed to Colonel Dawkins, who had sent him back word to say that he would not withdraw the petition.

4133. Did you see the telegram and the answer of Colonel Dawkins?—No.

4134. Then who made this statement, do you say?—Mr. Guscotte.

4135. He acting on the behalf of Colonel Dawkins, and having been the sender of the telegram?—Yes.

4136. And you have no doubt that the offer was made?—I have not the slightest doubt, and they were in a terrible state.

4137. Did you not hear from Mr. Guscotte of this offer before?—No.

4138. (Mr. Longe.) Was anybody else present?—Mr. Edmonds.

4139. Is this the first time you mentioned the offer?—I do not reveal those things.

4140. Is this the first time it has been mentioned?—No; I have mentioned it to several parties.

4141. After this offer was there any consultation with your party more than this telegram?—No; Colonel Dawkins telegraphed and said that he would be up to-morrow, and not to accept it.

4142. Did not Mr. Guscotte tell you the way the money was to be paid?—No; he said we might have it, and I suppose he meant myself, Mr. Edmonds, and Messrs. Guscotte.

4143. If you would withdraw the petition?—Yes.

4144. Independently of those who had signed the petition?—We must have got their consent.

4145. And they would require a consideration?—They were gentlemen, and did not want it.

4146. You told us they all required bribes?—They were the pure men in the borough; we asked them to sign it because they were men who could not be accused of bribery.

4147. Did Colonel Dawkins come up?—Yes.

4148. Had you any conversation with him about the offer?—Not a word.

4149. Did you say anything of a handsome offer, or anything of that sort?—No.

4150. You never mentioned it to him?—No.

4151. Nor heard it mentioned in his presence?—No.

4152. Did he say to you there has been this offer?—No; he said he was determined to go through with it.

4153. Did he say that without having said he had had an offer?—Yes.

4154. How came he to say that unless there was some reason for his saying so?—I think I had intimated that we should all get implicated, and he said he did not care; still we must go through with it.

4155. You hinted that on account of having heard of the offer?—No, I did not. I thought that we were all tarred with the same brush.

4156. When you mentioned that to Mr. Guscotte you had the offer of 20,000*l.* in your mind?—It is more than probable.

4157. What time did you see Colonel Dawkins; was it the first day?—No, the second day.

4158. Did he then suggest to you that it might be well to accept the compromise?—No, because he had got in; we had opened the ball.

4159. How was it that Colonel Dawkins, without saying anything to you, said, I am determined to go on?—Because of the dreadful exposé coming out.

4160. Because an exposé not proved had got before the world?—Not altogether, not before Screach got in. If Screach had not let out what he did, perhaps, you would not have known as much as you know now.

4161. The witnesses were not such as you expected?—Serjeant Ballantine was 'cute, you know; he is a sharp sort of chap.

4162. You did not think that Screach was going to split?—We did not think he would go into matters relative to our own affairs. I was subpœnaed, and they paid me very handsomely, and Mr. Dawkins was very pleased with the evidence, and gave me 10*l.* extra.

4163. Did that offer come from Mr. Pender?—I believe it did.

4164. (Mr. Bere.) You have told us about Mr. Fox Green, and some conversation with Mrs. Green during the time of the election?—Yes.

4165. Did not he come to you before the election to borrow some money?—Yes.

4166. 10*l.*?—Yes, several times, and I lent him 5*s.*

4167. One time did he come down drunk, and said, "I have been at the drunken game a long time. If "you will lend me 10*l.* I shall be much obliged, "and I will vote on your side"?—Yes, he did.

4168. And you only lent him 5*s.*?—I would not lend him 10*l.*, I should never get it again.

4169. Did you see him afterwards with a lot of sovereigns?—No, I met him just the other side of the bridge. On the bridge he got into company with John Crocker, and this was after the election, during the time the petition was talked of, and I spoke to him about his going to Plymouth, how he allowed himself to be lugged off to Plymouth, and where he got the 5*l.* to pay. I understood that he had a 5*l.* note, he said I have not a 5*l.* note, I had mine in sovereigns.

4170. Was a man called John Williams there at the time?—He was.

4171. Who is W. H. Oldrey?—W. H. Oldrey is clerk to Mr. Smith at 33, Norfolk Street, Strand.

4172. Was that the Mr. Smith who sent you down Mr. Maclay?—Yes.

4173. Is Mr. Oldrey a Totnes man?—Yes, he is son of Mr. William Oldrey, High Bailiff of the County Court.

4174. Had Mr. Henry Smith anything to do with this election?—Nothing at all.

4175. W. H. Oldrey, had he a great deal?—He felt interested as a Totnes man; he has a county vote.

4176. Did not he suggest to you one or two candidates?—Yes, he suggested Mr. Potter.

4177. Did not he also suggest Captain Pim?—No.

4178. Who suggested Captain Pim?—Captain Pim came down I might say on a chance.

4179. I think you are getting wrong?—I think you will find that is so from the date of the letter.

4180. That was afterwards?—That was after we had turned out Mr. Pender.

4181. No, December 1865. Did you know anything about Mr. Pim before he actually appeared here?—No; he came down before I knew anything about him at all. He brought down his address from Abingdon, then we just altered the address for Totnes, called in a printer and got it printed.

4182. (Mr. Longe.) Do you know the gentleman who played Mr. Mum's part on the other side. You knew his face?—Yes.

4183. You saw him in the committee room?—Yes, several times every day.

4184. Could not you make use of him at all on your side?—We could not get any evidence to link him up. He was a man running about hither and thither.

4185. I presume you refer to the white-hatted gentleman?—Yes. You could not link him up with anything, except that old Mr. Wright's servant was reported to have said that she heard through the keyhole that Wright had got a certain sum of money from this gentleman. We did not consider that sufficient, and I do not think it was introduced. He was subpœnaed.

4186. (Mr. Bere.) Who was subpœnaed ?—Mr. Wright was.

4187. Did you subpœna Mr. Pender's Mum ?—No, I do not think they knew his name.

4188. But the gentleman who answered to yours ?—They could not get at his name.

4189. Did you also see that Mr. John Smith who came down with Mr. Dunn was in the committee room too ?—Yes.

4190. In fact nearly all the strange gentlemen engaged in bribery on the other side had sufficient interest in the Totnes election inquiry to come into the committee room and stay there nearly the whole time ?—First I saw that old briber, Joseph Ferris, he was there, he is living in London now, he was an old briber on the Liberal side.

4191. When did he cease to perform that office ?—I think in 1859.

4192. Did he go to London then ?—He became bankrupt here.

4193. In spite of his being a manager ?—I do not think he minded himself.

4194. Only his party ?—No ; he was friendly to other people and not to himself.

4195. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you offer Thomas Blank 100*l.* if he would tell the truth before the committee in London ?—Certainly not.

4196. If he says that, it is untrue ?—That is untrue. I will tell you what I think I did say, something of this sort, that the law offered a reward as it were to a man who told the truth. I said, "There is "no doubt, Mr. Blank, of course that you were bribed, "therefore you had better take my advice and make "a clean statement of it." He promised to do so, only that George Mitchell secured him from me and I could not get hold of him again.

4197. Mr. Mitchell was sent out as Mr. Blank's guard ?—Yes.

4198. Did you offer John Fox Green any money for bribery ?—I told him the same.

4199. Did you tell him to go down and say he had been bribed, and ask if 10*l.* would be of service to him ?—I told him to go and tell the truth.

4200. If he has sworn that, that is untrue ?—No doubt.

4201. Did you offer Mary Anne Green 50*l.* at any time ?—Never ; I never offered a person money in my life.

4202. Tell me who is Mr. J. S. Jenkins ?—John Sloggett Jenkins.

4203. Yes ?—A gentleman living at Moat Hill.

4204. What has he to do with this place ?—He is an elector.

4205. Did he take an active part on the Liberal side ?—Yes, very ; he made a speech here once or twice, in this hall on the part of the Liberal party.

4206. Did you know he was very intimately mixed up with Mr. Pender ?—I have been informed that he has been pressing for a situation as a school inspector, and he has been putting his claims, this is only hearsay, pressing his claims on Mr. Pender on the late Government to give him an appointment as school inspector.

4207. Do you know he was taking considerable interest in defending the petition, that he was one of the active parties ?—No ; I did not know that he was an interested man ; I do not know more than that.

4208. When the petition was presented, was it bonâ fide in the first instance ? Did you have any notion that it would be pressed on ?—Decidedly ; because Colonel Dawkins pledged himself to me that he would prosecute the petition.

4209. You do not believe that any offer was made to Mr. Jenkins that if the costs incurred in that petition were paid it would be withdrawn ?—There is not the slightest atom of truth in it.

4210. There was never any suggestion of that kind ?—Never.

4211. (Mr. Bere.) When was the first conversation about petitioning against the seat ?—Immediately after the election, because those parties who had signed the requisition to Colonel Dawkins, their names were read out after the election was over.

4212. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was done about some of those witnesses you wanted on the petition, about taking what is called their affidavit ?—I do not know.

4213. Mr. Jenkins is not a lawyer, and I suppose he is not very strict in his terms, and he talks about several witnesses having all been got hold of by the Conservatives, and their affidavits taken ?—I believe young Narramore gave his evidence in writing. He was one of the witnesses before the House.

4214. This is some time before the 10th February ?—So it is.

4215. Very early. Mr. Jenkins says in his letters four or five Conservative affidavits have been taken. Do you know of any person besides Narramore ?—No, I do not.

4216. You do not know whether Mr. Bovey's was ?—I do not know whether Mr. Edmonds can tell you. I had nothing to do with that. They asked me to give a written statement of the offer Mr. Pender made to myself, and I did so.

4217. What were the names of the petitioners ?—John Earle Lloyd and Edmund Tucker.

4218. Is one of those in Mr. Bentall's office ?—A partner with Mr. Bentall.

4219. (Mr. Bere.) John Earle Lloyd ?—Yes.

4220. (Mr. Coleridge.) This was practically Mr. Bentall's petition ?—No.

4221. It was not ?—No ; Mr. John Earle Lloyd was a gentleman who was looked upon as having never had anything to do with bribery, who never offered or received a bribe, and was one well qualified to petition against those who had been guilty of it.

4222. (Mr. Bere.) There was a petition of Colonel Dawkins too, was not there ?—I think not.

4223. He did not claim the seat ?—I think not.

4224. How long before the election of 1865 did you see Mr. Pender down here ?—He came in 1862 ; that was the first time.

4225. I mean in the actual year 1865 ?—Some few days previous to the election when he came down.

4226. Where did you see him, at the "Seymour Arms"?—No.

4227. You did not go to the "Seymour Arms" at all ?—No.

4228. Did you see him out in the street ?—The only time I ever spoke to him to my remembrance was the time that he offered me the situation on the Plains.

4229. You have already given an account of it in the House of Commons ; but we must have it on the notes. Will you tell us what passed between you and Mr. Pender about the offer of an appointment ?—I was on the Plains just by the Wesleyan chapel, and I had been there to canvass a man called Allery ; I said Pitts before, they were both men in the same employment, Allery tells me it was him ; they were both there, and I was talking especially to Allery at the time when Mr. Pender came up to me ; there was young Mr. Windeatt and several of his friends beyond the chains that were near at hand, Mr. Pender came over and shook hands, and said, "I have left my card at "your house. I have come to solicit your vote." I said, "I cannot give it, it is quite impossible for me "to give you my vote." He said, "A man of your "ability ought not to be here at Totnes, but doing "something better than getting the small stipend you "do, I will give you" or "get you," I do not know which, "a situation of 300*l.* a year." I said, "Mr. "Pender, no situation offered by you will induce me "to vote for you. I have been employed by the "Conservative party, they have always behaved well "to me, and I have no reason to leave them, and "therefore cannot accept it." Allery will tell you he talked with me about an hour.

FIFTH DAY.
Mr. R. Harris.
28 Aug. 1866.

4230. All on the Plains ?—All on the Plains. He was conversing with me one whole hour as regards the general corruption of the borough. I expostulated with him as regards spending money. I said it was unfair and demoralising to spend money, and therefore the best way would be to effect a compromise, and allow Colonel Dawkins and himself to be returned. He admitted that there was corruption going on to a fearful extent, and when he came down here he was bound to do as others did, using an expression that when he came to the Jews he had to do as the Jews did. Then I spoke to him about a man called James Matcham. I was so much disgusted when asked for the 200*l.* that I mentioned that circumstance to Mr. Pender. I said, "Here are two men very likely "going to vote for and pledge themselves to Colonel "Dawkins, and yet they want 200*l.* to vote." I said, "Can you conceive anything worse than that." He heard it, and just shrugged his shoulders, and said he must fight it through, or something of that sort. Just as he was about to leave he held out his hand and said, "Good bye, Harris, I hope you won't work "against me, and I will give you a situation." I told you just at that time Mr. Rennie gave up his ground into Mr. Dent's hands again, and consequently my arrangements with Mr. Rennie would cease on the 28th of August. I then wrote to Mr. Pender on the 20th July, the election took place on the 12th, I wrote to say I had considered the conversation which we had had on the Plains.

4231. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is that a copy of your letter (referring to a letter) ?—Yes.

4232. I will read it :—

"John Pender, Esq., M.P.

"SIR, "Totnes, July 20, 1865,

"I HAVE considered the conversation which we had together (on the Plains) in reference to a situation for myself out of Totnes, and have decided to accept it, provided it is one which I can occupy with satisfaction to my employer. The principle on which I act, is that whatever my hand findeth to do, to do it with all my might. On the 28th of next month my engagement with my present employer will cease; after that date it will afford me pleasure to serve you or yours to the best of my ability.

"Waiting your reply,

"I am, Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

"ROBERT HARRIS."

Is that the letter you sent to Mr. Pender ?—I believe it was.

4233. How came you to write that letter ?—That was when we were going to leave. After I had told him I would not vote, he said, "Very well, Mr. "Harris, after the election is over I will give or get "you a situation." I said, "That is another con-"sideration."

4234. Have you Mr. Pender's letter in answer ?—No, I left it in the House ; they demanded it.

4235. Did he write you this letter, dated the 26th July 1865 ?—Yes.

4236. This is the letter :—

"Crumpsall House, Manchester,

"SIR, July 26, 1865.

"I LAST week received from you a note, the contents of which were so preposterous that I had made up my mind not to notice it, nor would I now do so were it not that I learn you have stated in Totnes that I have offered you a situation with a salary of 300*l.* a year. The statement you are reported to have circulated is, as you know, untrue, as also that contained in your letter, that I ever offered you one, or that I ever intended to do so. I beg, therefore, that you will contradict any report that may be circulated that I have ever at any time offered you a situation.

"I am,

"Your obedient servant,

"Mr. R. Harris, "JOHN PENDER.

"Totnes."

4237. Is that the answer you received ?—I believe it was.

4238. Now what is the meaning of Mr. Pender saying what you have stated is preposterous ?—I do not know.

4239. After that did you write him this letter of the 27th of July 1865 ?—Yes.

"To John Pender, Esq., M.P.

"SIR, "Totnes, July 27, 1865.

"I AM in receipt of yours of 26th inst. I conceive you are advised to repudiate your promise, inasmuch as your seat is to be questioned before the House of commons. I thought when you spoke of it that if you were to do it you would have no rest day nor night. There are Mr. Windeatt's sons, Mr. Jenkins, Mr. Chaster's sons, Mr. Thomas Searle & Son and his son-in-law, Mr. George Stoyle, Mr. Barber Hosking, and Mr. George Fowle, all of which I beg to recommend to your notice. Surely you must mind them first.

"I am, Sir,

"Yours faithfully,

"ROBERT HARRIS."

4240. What is the meaning of that letter ? What is the meaning of your recommending all these people to his notice ?—Because they were very actively engaged for him, and I understood that immediately these parties learned he had offered me a situation they had written to him to say they wanted their claims recognized.

4241. This was chaff, in fact ?—Yes ; if he attempted to give me a situation they never would support him any more.

4242. This is the postscript to your letter :—"I dare "say you will laugh, but knowing the ins and outs "of these matters, I knew you could not do it and "retain your seat. Thanks for your good wishes "the same. It's all very well for you to promise, "but as a party man you must stick to party, and "they will like you all the better for it. You know "as well as I do what you said, and I have no doubt "if you were allowed to carry out your own wishes "you would have given me a place, but you must not "see what a lot there are here sucking you all the year "round, and if there was no one here to keep up an "opposition they would have no bills to make out. "However, while I am here I will keep them alive, "and 1,000*l.* a year to pay all these demands is but "little out of your large income. I propose being in "London next February or March, and I shall do "myself the pleasure of asking for an order to hear "the debates. You have the parliamentary honours, "the Conservatives have the municipal ones, and by-"and bye we shall go and leave it all behind." What is the meaning of that letter ?—That is just what I term a little chaff.

4243. Does not that rather give you the idea that his offer in the first instance was chaff?—No, he was compelled not to carry it out. You will have before you an instance now in which I have power to explain, whereas I had not power then before the House, the power of calling my wife before you, who will tell you that Mr. Pender said he had written to Mrs. Lorimer to offer her the situation long before Mr. Pender had offered it to me.

4244. What was the situation to be ?—I do not know ; somewhere in his employ ; and that this Mrs. Lorimer spoke of it, not only in the presence of my wife, but of another person, and after that he took no notice. How could he do such a thing ?

4245. He never took any notice of your letter ?—I thought he ought as an honourable man, and as he had got in ; and I consulted my wife about it, and she said, "Oh ! Mrs. Lorimer has been here, and "offered it to me some days ago."

4246. His letter was not so chaffy as yours ?—I knew blessed well that, when he wrote that, he had pressure brought to bear behind him, because he did not write it for several days.

4247. Four days. How came you to write to him again after all this was stopped ? You write to Mr. Pender :—"Sir,—Excuse me for taking the liberty to "write to you, but I saw in the newspaper some few "days since the death of the postmaster of Ottery "St. Mary, Devon"?—I did not write that ; that is not mine.

4248. What is your wife's christian name?—Milita.

4249. Were you aware she had written that?—Not till it was presented in the House of Commons.

4250. This is the letter signed by your wife:—

"Now I do not know what the situation is worth, neither do I know how to ascertain. My husband knows undoubtedly, but I do not intend to let him know I have written you. No one knows it but myself and Mrs. Lorimer. Should it be enough for a living for us, I should esteem it a favour, would you use your influence with Lord Palmerston, for I understand it rests with him to appoint another master. I should like to get out of the political strife of Totnes, which I have had for so many years to bear with, if I could do so without injury to my family. "Yours very respectfully,

"Milita Harris."

Your wife having written that letter, did you write to him again on the 7th of May about the election petition?—Was that the letter which was afterwards published in the town?

4251. Yes?—Yes, I did.

"Totnes, May 7, 1866.

"John Pender, Esq.

"Totnes Election Petition.

"Sir,

"Refering to your letter in the "Times" of the 3rd inst., I feel perfectly astonished that a man of your acknowledge shrewdness should labour under such a severe infirmity of memory to forget the correct circumstances connected with the case for which more especially you were expelled from parliament. I rejoice, however, with you, that an oppertunity will soon be given in this place of refreshing your recollection on this point and on various other little matters delicately connected with your candidatures for the borough. I write this with the most profound respect, as your letter has been reprinted in the borough in the form of handbill by a person who usually does your printing. I regret very much this action, although I will not resent it by indorseing the expressions of some freinds of mine, who affirm that it is extremely appropriate that the letter of a convicted briber should be reproduced by a convicted libeller.

"I always feel that a man's case must be redused to the lowest state of weakness when he is compeled to resort to personalities, feeling the strength of my own case, I am unwilling to retort in a similar strain.

"Although I may not be blessed by the Apollo-like form which distinguishes your person, nor of that symmetrical eleganse which marks your figure, and which a sculptor might select as a model, I am yet as providence intended me to be, and therefore think foul scorn of the man who would ridicule another person for that over which he has had no control.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your obedient servant,

"Robert Harris."

4252. What does that allude to?—After the petition, he published this letter, stating that I had stated that which was untrue, and also making reference to my appearance in the House of Commons. He said, I think, that Mr. Bouverie stated "Mr. Harris was a "respectable man; they had no reason to doubt his "evidence."

4253. Have you a copy of Mr. Pender's letter in the "Times"?—It was published about the time, and I thought it was so ungentlemanly for him to refer to such things, and refer to my personal appearance.

4254. As we shall have to ask Mr. Pender himself about that, do you still maintain that your account is correct and his incorrect?—I defy him to contradict it.

4255. (Mr. Bere.) Before you make a final answer to that, I will tell you what Mr. Pender does say. His account is this:—"You were at the door of a "cider shed when I went up to canvass one of the "workmen at the shed." That you went up to him and said, "I am before you, sir." Did you say that?—No.

4256. He replied, "Yes, Mr. Harris, you often "cross my way. It is a pity that a man of your "ability should not be better employed than doing "the dirty work of the party." Upon which you replied, "I wish you would get me something better "to do. I should be very glad to be out of it." And Mr. Pender answered, "You know my finding you a "situation is impossible"?—No.

4257. Your account is true, and that is not correct?—No.

4258. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have a situation now—Yes, in Cambridge.

4259. Is it a similar sort of situation?—Yes, 200*l.* a year.

4260. What is the nature of it?—I am under Mr. Peed.

4261. (Mr. Longe.) Is he a Conservative?—He knows Mr. Coleridge very well.

4262. Is he the Conservative solicitor?—Yes.

4263. When you wrote to Mr. Pender, on what ground did you expect any success?—When he left me he held out his hand; Mr. Allery will come before you and give a statement of facts as regards the interview, he says, "Harris, well good bye, you won't vote "against me and I will give you a situation after the "election is over." I said, "Thank you, sir, that is "another consideration."

4264. There must have been something in the shape of quid pro quo. You had voted against him and worked against him?—No, I had never voted against him before.

4265. (Mr. Coleridge.) But you had worked against him after the petition and this correspondence?—No, not after the correspondence. You see the election took place on the 12th; on the 20th I write. There was scarcely anything said about the petition then.

4266. I mean at that time what was the ground on which you expected any success or thought it worth while to write?—It was rumoured about town and he said it to various parties himself, that he had offered me a situation, and consequently I wrote, and in the terms which I mention in my letter, which of course if I had stated anything that had been untrue, I conceive I do not know whether I may be wrong, but I went into the witness' box in London with an idea of Mr. Pender coming in and contradicting what I stated, because I am not one of those who make a statement to-day and repudiate it to-morrow, and consequently I expected that Mr. Pender would come in on oath and there and then distinctly deny what I stated; but instead of that he refused to do it, but comes up by what we call a side wind and attacks a man's character when he has a bad case, which he did in my case.

4267. We shall have an opportunity of hearing his version of the matter?—Quite so.

4268. Have you heard from anybody else that Mr. Pender said he offered you a situation?—It was the common report in the town.

4269. Was it a report originated by you or originated by others?—Mrs. Lorimer will be able to tell all about it.

4270. She is the wife of the man Lorimer?—Yes, a strong partizan of Mr. Pender; he was in Lorimer's house more than any other man's house in the town.

4271. (Mr. Coleridge.) Now Mr. Harris as to the election of 1863; we are going now to the death of Lord Gifford; there was a contest?—Yes.

4272. And Mr. Alfred Seymour, cousin to the Duke of Somerset, was returned?—Yes.

4273. The borough was contested very hotly then by Mr. Dent?—Yes.

4274. I think the numbers were Seymour 165 and Dent 157?—Yes.

4275. How did you set about getting a member on that occasion?—Mr. Dent was previously down here.

4276. In Totnes?—Yes.

4277. And when Lord Gifford was known to be in a dying state?—Yes, he was in a consumption.

4278. How long before the actual death had Mr. Dent been down here?—He came down when Mr. Pender was elected in December, and I think a month or a very short time afterwards Lord Gifford died.

FIFTH DAY.
Mr. R. Harris.
28 Aug. 1866.

4279. He had been down and withdrawn ?—On the first occasion.

4280. Had he given any pledge that if another opportunity offered he would contest the borough ?—He did. During the interval he took the land referred to, both Phillips' and Farwell's.

4281. Did you commence to make the best of that land for improvement ?—We took in the ejected ones from Bridgetown, that is to say, those men likely to be ejected from their holdings, we kept this as land for them.

4282. How many votes would that add to the register ?—Somewhere about 20 votes I should think, if all made properly.

4283. Enough to turn the scale ?—Yes, enough to turn the scale.

4284. How long before the election do you say it was that he came down ?—The day of his first appearance was when Lord Gifford was said to be in a dying state, and Mr. Dent himself was said to be ill at the time, and when Lord Gifford died Mr. Mitchell made his appearance.

4285. Mr. Mitchell was Mr. Dent's secretary ?—Yes.

4286. Can yon fix how far before Lord Gifford's death he came down about Lord Gifford's seat ?—He gave us to understand he would contest the seat when he went away ; he gave 100*l.* before Mr. Pender came in 1862.

4287. That was three years before ?—No, only just a few months, only a month's difference.

4288. Then immediately, I suppose, a telegram came here announcing Lord Gifford's death ?—Yes.

4289. Was that before Mr. Dent came down after Lord Gifford's death ?—Immediately he was announced to be dead we communicated at once and made preparations.

4290. What were the preparations you made for that election ?—The usual preliminaries.

4291. Did you get up a requisition ?—No.

4292. Nothing of the sort ?—No, there was no requisition.

4293. Had arrangements been made about the money before that ?—I do not know anything about the working of it.

4294. What was the day of nomination ?—January 19th.

4295. How many days before the nomination was Mr. Dent in the place ?—In the field.

4296. In the place ?—I do not know.

4297. When did you first see him before the nomination ?—I saw him when he came. I do not know ; some few days, say a week or a fortnight.

4298. You were in the same position at that time as at the subsequent election ?—Yes.

4299. He stayed at the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

4300. Who came with him ?—Mr. Mitchell.

4301. Anybody else ?—I do not remember any one else.

4302. Did you canvass the electors then ?—I did.

4303. What had you to counteract on that occasion ?—We had some influence ; that was what we call a single-handed fight ; we were very strong then, and according to my view and Mr. Edmonds' view we had a clear majority of 20.

4304. Were you in the same position as in the election of 1865 ?—Yes.

4305. Then who was the other agent ?—Mr. Edmonds was the recognized agent.

4306. Do you know whether Mr. Dent brought any solicitor from London with him on that occasion ?—I believe none whatever.

4307. Mr. Edmonds was the head man upon that occasion ?—Yes.

4308. Who were the members of Mr. Dent's committee ?—The same as they are now.

4309. When you went canvassing had you any difficulty with the voters whom you expected to vote for you ?—They were rather displeased. Lord Seymour was not a popular man at that time ; without spending money he would have been a long way behind. William Reeve voted for us, he had 40*l.*

4310. From whom did he have 40*l.*?—From Mr. Dent.

4311. Who did he get that from ?—I think Screach was the party who paid him.

4312. Who else had been on your side on that occasion ?—Hill was to have had 200*l.* I believe ; he voted upon the understanding that he was to have had 200*l.*

4313. Do you know whether he ever did have the 200*l.*?—I do not think he ever did have it. There was a man of the name of Crawford ; we lost him.

4314. Had Crawford promised you ?—Yes ; Crawford afterwards had a new horse and carriage, and I understood he had 60*l.* for his vote ; Mr. George Stoyle managed him all right ; I saw him with Stoyle on the nomination night.

4315. What was offered to this man on your part ?—I think 150*l.* was offered to Crawford.

4316. And yet he voted against you ; was he a tenant of the Duke ?—He had a field granted to him which my father had had for more than 20 years ; he had been turned out.

4317. When was your father turned out ?—At that election.

4318. And you offered him 150*l.* ?—I think so.

4319. Then how do you account for his taking the 60*l.* on the other side ?—He was a Liberal in his ideas, and a new voter ; he had expressed his displeasure at Lord Seymour, and had intimated that he wanted a consideration for his vote ; a tolerably good offer had been made to him. Of course there was always a heavier offer made to those who were known to be Liberal in their ideas than to those who were known to be Conservative.

4320. You mean those whom you had to buy out of the other camp as it were ?—Yes.

4321. (Mr. Longe.) How do you know that he got 60*l.* for his vote ?—Only by rumour. He was a very poor man, and immediately after he got this 60*l.* he had a new horse and carriage, which to this day has been called the Seymour and Company's carriage.

4322. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know were there any other horses and carriages given away about that time ?—There was a tremendous lot of bribery then no doubt.

4323. You were going to tell us something about Stoyle ?—He can tell you how much he had when you have him before you ; I do not think he was offered anything on our side. There were certain sub-bribers on the other side.

4324. Will you be good enough to go through those who were either bribed or were offered bribes on your side ?—Richard Andrews ; it was commonly reported that he was bribed on the other side.

4325. Do you know was Andrews offered money on your side ?—Yes ; he was tried. A person of the name of Armstrong, his brother-in-law, some years ago left a lot of money under the carpet for him.

4326. At the election of 1863 was he offered anything on your side ?—That I do not know.

4327. Which way did he vote ?—He voted for the Liberals.

4328. William Allen voted for Mr. Dent ?—Yes.

4329. Was anything given to him ?—That I do not know ; I should have put M. against his name.

4330. What would that mean ?—That would mean money ; he has generally been a Conservative ; we might have sent him a little sum of 20*l.* or 25*l.*, and then he would be all right.

4331. Thomas Angel ; he voted for Mr. Dent ?—He is one of our staunch freemen ; he votes without money ; he is a large ironmonger here, and is beyond that.

4332. Henry Ashford ?—He is beyond that.

4333. John Angel ; he voted for Seymour ; was he tried on your side ?—He is an old Liberal.

4334. Edward Angel, what of him ?—He is one of the slippery company ; he is a tailor ; he was tried y a commercial man at Exeter; he will tell you all bout that himself.

4335. Do you know the name of the commercial nan?—I do not know his name.

4336. Was he a commercial traveller?—Yes.

4337. He was a traveller in the woollen trade?—Yes; and he offered him 150*l.*

4338. Where was that to come from?—From Mr. Dent.

4339. Do you know where this commercial traveller put up?—I think at the "Stars."

4340. William Adams?—He voted for Seymour.

4341. Was he tried on your side?—No; he voted on our side the last time.

4342. What did he get?—Not anything; circumstances had changed with him.

4343. Was he a tenant of the Duke's?—No; he was the organist at the Bridgetown chapel; now he is at Harberton under Mrs. Anthony.

4344. Then John Ackrell, he voted for Seymour?—I should rather think that gentleman always had money.

4345. Was he tried on that occasion by your party?—He was tried very heavily; I think in Mr. Blount's time he had 200*l.* I had a conversation with him; he is a thorough Liberal; he would say we require a little; I should have put that against his name. I had a little conversation with him, but I could not get at him.

4346. What was it that you said to him; did you ask him to vote for you?—I should not have put a direct question of that sort to him.

4347. Would you have talked about a sub—or a consideration?—We should have talked of things in general.

4348. Did he say anything to you about his being in distress?—No, he was one of the selfish sort of men; I should have put him down in the ignorant class as requiring a large sub.

4349. Do you know what he got from the Seymour party?—No, I never heard.

4350. The next is Richard Andrews?—He is the man who had the money left by Armstrong under the carpet; report says that he always got paid.

4351. Did you try him at Mr. Dent's election?—No; we were not friendly.

4352. Joseph Adams?—He was one of the Liberal company, and was bound to go with them.

4353. Then Samuel Angel, jun.?—He is one of the Duke's tenants, and must do as he is bid.

4354. Then Marcus Angel?—He did not vote.

4355. Thomas Blank, he voted for you?—Yes.

4356. How did you get him?—Whether it was 60*l.* or 100*l.* that he got I do not know; I know it was a large sum.

4357. Was that through Screach?—I do not know who the party was.

4358. Who was doing the money business at that election?—There were several parties about.

4359. Will you give us their names on your side?—Screach and the two Heaths; they will be able to tell you who were the sub-runners.

4360. On the last election you had a talk with the voters and suggested to them where to go and get money; what did you do at Mr. Dent's election?—I think there was a black man down here then.

4361. Who was the black man?—A man who had got a black face.

4362. You did not know his real name?—No; he was kept secret upstairs.

4363. Had he really a black face?—I believe so.

4364. Did you ever see him?—I never saw him myself.

4365. Did you see him in the House of Commons afterwards?—No. Mr. Henry Helms brought down the money; he went to London after the money.

4366. Had you any conversation with Blank about the election?—I had. The general drift of the conversation would be that he wanted money; he would tell you candidly that he would never vote without it.

4367. Did he generally vote on your side?—Sometimes for Whigs, sometimes for Tories.

4368. Did you send him to the black man?—I really do not know the individual. I rather think it was Screach; I am not certain.

4369. I suppose the black man lived at the "Seven Stars"?—I believe he was there. I never saw him.

4370. Then Theodore Bryett?—He is a solicitor.

4371. Is Mr. Bryett employed on the Conservative side?—He was the old Conservative agent here; but he has got rich since then, and he will not now take a retainer.

4372. Henry Bartlett; he voted for Mr. Dent?—He has always been a Tory.

4373. Had he a sub?—I do not know.

4374. Did you canvass him?—Yes, with others.

4375. The next is George Beer?—He is a postboy at the "Stars," and he goes as the landlord of the "Stars" goes.

4376. Did he get a sub?—Not to my knowledge.

4377. Then William Bentall?—He has been examined here.

4378. Was he one of the agents on your side?—He was one of the committee.

4379. James Barter?—He was a baker.

4380. Did you canvass him?—Yes, I did.

4381. Do you know whether he had anything or not?—I do not know.

4382. Thomas Blackler?—That gentleman, I think, had a little.

4383. Did you canvass him?—No; he was turned out from Bridgetown. You could not get a Bridgetown man unless he was paid a little.

4384. Was that after Mr. Dent's election?—Yes, after that.

4385. Did Screach manage him?—He lives now close by the "Seven Stars;" he had a corn store there.

4386. Were many voters then in the habit of going to the "Seven Stars"?—I remember one event, when Mr. Dent away, which I shall never forget to the day of my death. Mr. Dent had not decided whether he would go on or not, and the slippery company were keeping us in the background. When they said that they were going over to the other side there was of course a shut up altogether, and a message was sent down to say that they would not go on. If there was one in the lobby there were 40 or 50, and some of them had baskets with them to carry home the money; that was in 1862.

4387. You do not doubt that Blackler had money in 1863?—I do not know.

4388. Then Gilbert Butland?—He voted for us at that election; at the next he voted against us. I understood when I went with the requisition that he was displeased with Mr. Dent because he had not got his son a situation which he had promised him.

4389. You say he voted with you in 1862?—Yes.

4390. And voted against you at the election of 1865?—Yes.

4391. Richard Bowden?—He always votes with us.

4392. Does he get anything?—Not to my knowledge.

4393. Joseph Bennett, he voted for you?—He voted for the Liberals in 1859, and at the last two elections he voted for us.

4394. Has he been converted?—Not by me. He is a respectable man. I have heard him say that he never was bribed; he was charged with it when he was a Liberal; but he says it was not so.

4395. Which of your classes would he come under?—He should be in the respectable class.

4396. But you have not given us a respectable class in your list?—There are such men as Mr. Durant and others of that class, who of course do not take money.

4397. Then in justice to the borough you should have given us another class. You have said there were three classes to be bribed in different degrees. You think there is a pure class altogether?—There is a pure class; at least I should hope so.

FIFTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

28 Aug. 1866.

4398. You only mean there are three classes of impurity ?—Yes.

4399. Now we come to a gentleman of whom we have heard so much, William Byne ?—He is the Duke's objector-general just now.

4400. He voted for you at that election ?—He had 60*l.* for doing so and five fields at 20*l.* less rent than they are worth.

4401. Was he a tenant of the Duke's ?—Yes, he was.

4402. When did you first buy him into your camp ?—At that election. At the election before he voted for Mr. Pender.

4403. Had he promised you at the previous election of Mr. Dent ?—Yes. Just at that time the poll was opened, and Mr. Pender was anxious to get all he could to poll for him.

4404. What had you promised him at former elections ?—I really do not know ; he was one of the heavy birds.

4405. From whom did he get the 60*l.* you told us of ?—I think Mr. George Heath paid it to him.

4406. Did you canvass him ?—No. I never had anything to do with bribery.

4407. Did you have any conversation with Byne about the election ?—No, I did not ; after the election was over he told me that he had got the 60*l.* ; and I know that he got the fields ; I was the agent.

4408. You had no conversation with him before that ?—No.

4409. But there was a general report that money was going about ?—Yes.

4410. How long before the election was that known ? It might have been a fortnight or three weeks.

4411. Had money been going about in a certain direction for more than two months ?—Mr. Pender's thousand pounds had been distributed, and there was a great talk of the school ; the money was to have been given to A., B., and C. upon certain trusts.

4412. Had there been a report that money was going about on your side between the time when Mr. Dent withdrew and the election upon Lord Gifford's death ?—No money was reported to be going about then.

4413. The next, Mr. Bastard, has been examined ?—Yes ; he was one of the pure class.

4414. Do you know John Bowden ?—Yes, very well ; he does not take any money.

4415. John Bearne ?—I know nothing about him at this election.

4416. Samuel Barrett ?—Nor I do not know anything of him.

4417. Thomas Boardman ?—He is a gentleman beyond anything of that kind ; he was a Tory once ; but they have made him a captain since he turned a Whig.

4418. David Blight ?—He told me that he should a sub. ; but I do not know whether he got anything.

4419. Did he say how much he wanted ?—I think he did ; it was a tolerably good sum that was offered to him.

4420. Who was it offered to him by ?—By the Conservative party. Before the election he told me that he was going to mind himself. I communicated that fact to our party, or to those who I thought were likely to aid him.

4421. Did you tell him who they were who were most likely to aid him as you thought ?—I did not.

4422. Do you know what he got from the Seymour party for voting for them ?—No, I do not. He is a tenant of the Duke's of a small field ; he lives in his own house ; he is one of those gentlemen who cannot write their own name.

4423. Then he would come amongst the ignorant class ?—Yes.

4424. Then George Bennetts ?—I do not know the cause of that. Those gentlemen did not vote until late in the day ; there was some talk about them.

4425. Who do you mean by them ?—They did not vote until late in the day.

4426. Had you any conversation with Bennetts ?—Yes ; several times.

4427. Did you try him ?—After the money was given to the Wesleyan chapel—he is connected with that body—he seemed to be pretty strong.

4428. Do you mean that he was strong against you ?—Yes ; we could not get at him at all.

4429. I believe, as a rule, the Dissenters are generally Liberals ?—In Cambridge the principal Conservatives are the leading Wesleyans.

4430. But that is not a general rule, is it ?—As a rule the Independents are the most rabid Radicals ; John Wesley himself was a a strong Conservative.

4431. But in a place like this there is no general principle of that sort ?—No. You generally find that the most uncharitable men are the Independents. They talk of liberality in very strong terms, but they are the most illiberal.

4432. How do they vote ?—They are rabid Radicals.

4433. Did you tell George Bennetts how to vote ?—No. There was a debt I think upon the chapel, and he said that they would like to have it cleared off.

4434. Was that debt cleared off do you know ?—They had 150*l.* out of Mr. Pender's thousand pounds.

4435. How had he voted before that ; can you say ?—In the municipal matters he would now and then give us a vote. Mr. John Heath was a great customer of his for corn, and he will tell you that he had reason to believe that he was going to support us against the Seymour party. I was told they were not pleased with the tyrannical conduct of the Duke.

4436. Robert Bourne ?—He was the man who wanted to bribe Richard Pengilley ; whether he had the money or not I do not know.

4437. What did you know about him in 1863 ?—He said that he had been caught in the trap twice, and he would not be caught in it again.

4438. Did you canvass him ?—I could not get at him ; he was under the Duke of Somerset.

4439. Jeffery Berry ?—He was a tenant of the Duke's. There was no money would touch him.

4440. Frederick Bowden, what do you know of him ?—He did not vote for a number of years, and then he came out very strong, whether anything was given to him or not I do not know. I rather think his father-in-law got 10*l.* given him by the Radical party.

4441. Do you know whether he got anything ?—I rather think that he voted for them in consideration of the Liberal party giving his father-in-law 10*l.* a year out of the charity.

4442. Did you offer him anything ?—No.

4443. William Broom ?—He is one of the made votes ; he is a regular Conservative in heart.

4444. Is he one of the Duke's made votes ?—Yes ; he lives with his son, who is a large tenant of the Duke's.

4445. Did you try him ?—He is beyond that sort of thing.

4446. Nicholas Browse ?—He was a gentleman who wanted money several times.

4447. Did you have any conversation with him ?—Yes, several times ; he has always told me that he wanted money.

4448. Did you tell him how to get it ?—No, I was caught in the trap in 1859, and I was very shy of it after that.

4449. But your shyness was wearing off in 1863 ?—No, not exactly. We did not want to get so many. According to our register we ought to have returned Mr. Dent without difficulty.

4450. You have no doubt that Browse voted for Seymour ?—No. I think he will tell you that I made him an offer of money, and asked him if he wanted any money.

4451. Did you tell him how he might get it ?—I think he was displeased that he did not get what he wanted. He might have said, which is an assumption on my part, I have seen Harris, who has offered me so much money, and I suppose that you will give ne the same. At the next election he said he was ot satisfied with Mr. Pender's votes, and when Mr. 'ender called there he said he was not pleased with im and would not promise him his vote. He was ighly pleased with Captain Pim, and said that he vas going to support our party, but we lost him on oth occasions.

4452. William Barter ?—That was one of the ma- ufactured votes of the Duke's.

4453. Does he want any help, do you know ?—I lo not know what they gave him.

4454. Thomas Bearnes ?—He is a gentleman who s beyond bribery.

4455. James Walrond Burrough, why was his ame put in italics ?—That means those who do not ote.

4456. Can you tell us how the money got into the orough on these occasions ?—I think Mr. Helms rought it.

4457. Can you say how much ?—A great many housand pounds.

4458. When did he first tell you there was money n the borough, how long before the election ?—I new of that soon after the election.

4459. You did not know of it before the election ? —No.

4460. Did you know of it on the nomination day ? —No.

4461. But you knew that money had been going bout ?—Yes.

4462. Did Mr. Helms tell you where he had got t from ?—I knew that he was going to London for it nd had brought it from there. I think that has refer- nce to the first election.

4463. How did the money come on the occasion of he second election ?—I am doubtful about that.

4464. Upon the first occasion how much did he get rom London ?—Several thousand pounds ; it was a remendous lot.

4465. Did he get it straight from Mr. Dent ?—I think he did ; it came right out of Mr. Dent's coffers.

4466. How much did they spend ?—Nothing at that election. They gave us 100*l.* towards the charity.

4467. Do you always put off paying the money to the very day ?—Yes, that is the usual course with the Liberals.

4468. Even on the nomination day had no money been paid ?—No. It was said that the contest would be a very close one. It was reported that Mr. Pender was going to spend a lot of money ; it was said by Mr. Cuming, the Liberal agent, that Mr. Pender was a man who paid income tax on 100,000*l.* a year, and it was useless to compete with him, because they were determined to win at any cost. Then Mr. Dent said, let us see our position before we go on any further. The slippery company had made terms with us in writing.

4469. Have you got those terms ?—Mr. Heath had them. When they gave us to understand in the evening that they were going against us, we said it was all up, and we must close the door.

4470. Upon the second occasion do you know how the money came down ?—I think Mr. Helms brought it down.

4471. And was it taken to the "Seven Stars" ?—Yes.

4472. I suppose that has always been the head-quarters of the Conservatives ?—Yes.

4473. Do you know about when the money had been brought down ?—I do not.

4474. Do you know whether it had been down here as much as three weeks or more before the nomination day ?—I believe Mr. Dent had made up his mind to go in and win ; after the death of Lord Gifford he intended to go on against Mr. Seymour ; he was determined to fight, and we had made preparations for it very early.

4475. Were you in the field before Mr. Seymour ? —No. Mr. Seymour came down before Mr. Pender ; Mr. Seymour was a candidate for Exeter : he was here before Mr. Pender ; Mr. Seymour had not got money enough to fight the battle.

4476. Then how could he fight with such a rich man as Mr. Dent was said to be ?—Mr. Pender's 1,000*l.* had done a good deal for him. Mr. Pender had promised to pay all Mr. Seymour's expenses, so that he was to have been returned free. That is, when Mr. Dent withdrew. The money which Mr. Pender intended to have spent then he would have handed over to Mr. Seymour's committee, and they would have spent it.

4477. Had not Mr. Pender spent any money before Mr. Dent withdrew in 1862 ?—He might have spent a thousand pounds or so.

4478. Can you give me the names of the voters who were bribed at that time ?—John Diggins of Bridgetown had 5*l.* given him, and Thomas Kinsman, junior, a baker, had 10*l.* given to him.

4479. (Mr. Bere.) What remuneration did you receive for your services in 1865 and 1863 ?—I think after the election Mr. Dent gave me a 10*l.* note ; that was all the money that I received.

4480. In 1865 was not Colonel Dawkins more generous ?—Colonel Dawkins gave me 25*l.*, and Captain Pim gave me 25*l.*

4481. You were a paid agent, in fact ?—That was included in the bill.

4482. How much did your bill amount to ?—To 50*l.* at the last election. Colonel Dawkins refused to pay the whole of it, so Captain Pim sent down 25*l.*, and Colonel Dawkins the other 25*l.*

4483. Did you send in any bill to Mr. Dent ?—No ; the parties about here made me a present of a purse of sovereigns, to which Mr. Dent contributed 10*l.*

4484. They made you up a pretty good purse ?—Yes ; they considered I had been a very active man.

Adjourned to To-morrow at 11 o'clock.

SIXTH DAY.

Wednesday, 29th August 1866.

Mr. Robert Harris recalled.

4485. (Mr. Coleridge.) We had got to the B.'s yesterday. (The Witness.) Will you allow me to correct one or two points in the evidence yesterday ?

4486. Correct anything you like which you stated in mistake ?—With regard to the Rev. Mr. James, I understand he is dissatisfied with the statement I made yesterday. I do not know how the reporters took it down, but I gave it as a matter of hearsay.

4487. (Mr. Bere.) Yes, you said so. You said you knew nothing about it ?—I never spoke to the gentleman about it in my life.

4488. (Mr. Coleridge.) You spoke of what you heard ?—Yes.

4489. (Mr. Bere.) You heard that he had promised his vote for Colonel Dawkins, and he says not ?—And I see something in the "Western Morning Times"

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

which is likely to lead to a wrong inference, that Mr. Huxham and Mr. Webber and Mr. Chaster signed the requisition—that is not so.

4490. That is a mistake, you never said that?—No; and I do not wish for any false statement to go forth if I can help it. It was in reference to the magistracy—I classed them with the class of gentlemen that wanted situations or honour. I beg to say that Mr. Edmonds will be in a position to give the whole particulars of Mr. James's case.

4491. Did you hear the statement?—I heard the statement.

(Mr. James.) It is entirely false and an invention.

Mr. H. Mudge.

Mr. Henry Mudge sworn and examined.

4492. (Mr. Bere.) Where do you live?—At Blagdon.

4493. Are you the nephew of Mr. Thomas Tracy?—Grandson.

4494. Were you present at a meeting at Mr. Thomas Tracy's house when a memorandum was signed?—Yes.

4495. When was that? Was it in 1841 or 1847? Was it at Mr. Petre's election or Mr. Ricardo's?—Mr. Ricardo's, I think. Mr. Baldwin was there, I know.

4496. Who were present?—Lord Seymour, Mr. Thomas Michelmore, Mr. Charles Michelmore, Mr. Charles Edwards, Mr. Cull, and Mr. Browne Paige. I do not know the others.

4497. And your grandfather?—Yes.

4498. And yourself?—Yes.

4499. Was Mr. Gilbert there?—I cannot say.

4500. Where did the meeting take place?—In one of the parlours of my grandfather's house.

4501. What time of the day?—I think about 11 or 12 o'clock.

4502. Do you know whether it was a meeting arranged by previous agreement?—It was.

4503. Had you known anything of the negotiation that went on before the meeting took place?—No. I merely heard a meeting of that sort was to take place.

4504. Who drew up the memorandum?—I think Mr. Charles Michelmore.

4505. Do you know the purport of the memorandum?—I did not read it, but I understood it was that Lord Seymour was to support Mr. Baldwin so long as he chose to offer himself for the borough of Totnes as member of Parliament.

4506. And that Mr. Baldwin should support Lord Seymour?—I do not know that. I think so.

4507. Was it signed?—It was signed by those parties I have named to you.

4508. All of them?—Yes; at least I saw several of them sign.

4509. Did your grandfather sign it?—I think he did.

4510. Your grandfather was a tenant of the Duke?—He was living in his own house at that time.

4511. He had some land of the Duke's?—He had a field or two.

4512. He was a Conservative in politics?—Yes.

4513. Do you know what became of the memorandum after it was signed?—It was placed in my grandfather's possession.

4514. Did you ever see the memorandum again after that day?—Yes.

4515. Have you read it?—No, it was sealed.

4516. Where did you see it last?—In his house at Bridgetown, where he died, but it was sealed.

4517. Who was the executor?—His two daughters.

4518. Is Miss Tracy?—Yes; and my mother.

4519. Miss Tracy was living at Mary Church?—Yes.

4520. Do you know who took possession of his papers?—His daughter, Miss Tracy.

4521. Do you know whether she took possession of the memorandum?—She did, certainly.

4522. Do you know that from her?—Yes; I have heard her say so.

4523. Have you seen the memorandum since in her possession?—I have not.

4524. Have you any doubt that the memorandum is still in her possession, if in existence at all?—It is, most certainly, if in existence at all.

4525. Sealed up, is it?—It was sealed up.

4526. In an envelope?—A large envelope.

4527. What sort of piece of paper was it?—Half the size of the desk.

4528. (Mr. Coleridge.) You know that was in 1847?—I do not know.

4529. Do you know that in 1852 Lord Seymour and Mr. Mills were returned and Mr. Baldwin was not; do you remember that?—Yes.

4530. Was it said that the memorandum had not been kept to, and that Lord Seymour had not supported Mr. Baldwin?—Yes, I said so.

4531. Did you have occasion to refer to the memorandum?—No.

4532. To whom did you make that observation?—To different parties.

4533. That the memorandum had been broken?—Yes.

4534. And your reading of the memorandum was, that as long as Mr. Baldwin came forward Lord Seymour had undertaken to throw over the other Conservative candidate and support him?—Not the Conservative.

4535. The other Liberal?—Yes.

4536. In 1852 he did not do so?—No.

4537. Is there anybody else of those besides Miss Tracy alive?—And my mother.

4538. Who are alive of those parties who signed the memorandum?—They are all dead, I think, besides the present Duke of Somerset. I do not know whether he signed it. Mr. Charles Michelmore and Mr. Thomas Michelmore are dead.

4539. Is Mr. Cull dead?—No, I think. Mr. Cull is the only one alive, I think.

Mr. R. Harris.

Mr. Robert Harris recalled and further examined.

(The Witness.) I wish in the case of Samuel Hill, jun., to give you an account of some of the interviews I had with him. At the time when he had the 200*l.* left at his house, or prior to that, we had borrowed a sum of money from a loan society, and the sureties were my father, Samuel Hill, sen., and Robert Lorimer, the men who carried the money to him. Mr. Lorimer felt particularly interested in this transaction that he might be released from his liability. I remember, after referring home, or remembering the circumstance, that was the reason why Lorimer felt specially interested in this money transaction. That money was paid off, on account of Mr. Cuming not fulfilling his promise, by Samuel Hill, sen., and Robert Lorimer.

4540. (Mr. Bere.) By the sureties?—Yes. When the election of 1865 took place, I have been informed. I have not the facts to prove it, but I believe Mr. Pender paid Mr. Lorimer and Mr. Hill the money advanced. I do not know it, but I believe that to be so, according to report. That is all I know about that case.

4541. I want to ask a question about that. Has Samuel Hill a brother called William Henry Hill?—I think he has.

4542. Were you in communication with William Henry Hill during the election of 1865?—I do not remember any interview at all.

4543. Did you not send William Henry Hill to see Samuel Hill, jun.?—I do not remember the circumstances, but I might have done it, I sent to him several times my own self.

4544. Are you quite certain you did not send William Henry Hill to Samuel Hill with a message from yourself to the effect that Samuel Hill should be turned out of his ground if he did not vote for Col. Dawkins and Capt. Pim?—It is more than probable that I should have said that.

4545. Did you say it through William Henry Hill?—I do not know; I think I told Hill so myself.

4546. Did you authorize William Henry Hill to go to Samuel Hill to make an offer of money for his vote?—No, certainly not.

4547. Where did you see William Henry Hill?—I do not remember seeing him.

4548. You do not remember having any conversation with him?—No.

4549. Is he a voter?—No.

4550. When you went to Samuel Hill on that morning of the election at 4 o'clock, did you say anything to him about money?—I asked him whether he was going to adhere to his former promise, and he told me plainly that he had altered his mind and was going to vote for the Liberal candidates, and I asked him what inducement. I felt indignant at his turning about thus after having signed the requisition and done everything in fact he possibly could to give me an idea that he was going to support the Conservative candidate. I said to him "Is it money you "want? Why do not you speak out?"

4551. After that did you send William Henry Hill to his brother with an offer of a specific sum of money?—On the same day.

4552. After that?—No.

4553. Did you send to him before?—I do not remember.

4554. I must put it plainly. Did you not send Henry Hill to Samuel Hill to offer him 150*l.* for his vote?—Not that I remember.

4555. You must remember?—I do not remember having any conversation with William Hill about it. I know of Hill having waited at my house when he came to my house for 150*l.*, when he called about the bill; he waited, my wife tells me, for several hours.

4556. Old Hill?—Yes, he waited several hours on the nomination day till I got something like information whether he could get the 150*l.*

4557. You did get information?—Not that; they would not hear of it.

4558. Though you did not offer 150*l.*, you say he asked you 150*l.* for the vote and you went to see whether 150*l.* could be got?—Yes, I did.

4559. One word about Mr. Hill. When was it Samuel Hill, jun., promised you his vote?—I can tell by my ledger when he took the field. It was the time he took the field that he gave me to understand that he would support the Conservative side.

4560. How long before?—There was 12 months rent due.

4561. Had you seen him in the interval and had he said anything about his vote?—I spoke to him several times, when I went about the requisition to Mr. Maclay and the document to Mr. Dent.

4562. You had seen him after the document to Dent?—Repeatedly.

4563. Did not he come about the time of the election to be paid those bills you showed us yesterday?—Mr. Samuel Hill, senior, yes.

4564. Had Samuel Hill, junior, no bills?—No.

4565. Did he come with his father?—No, I never saw him about it.

4566. As to the inquiries you made with regard to the 150*l.* to be paid to Samuel Hill, senior, was that done in this way,—did you send Samuel Hill, senior, to Mr. Edmonds?—No, I went myself. He remained in the house during the time I went to the "Stars."

4567. Are you quite certain Samuel Hill was not sent to Mr. Edmonds, from Edmonds to Heath, and from Heath back to you?—Not to my knowledge; I think he remained.

4568. Did he bring a message from Mr. John Heath?—No, I do not think he did, I do not remember. He remained in the house for a great many hours, I should think five or six hours, waiting till I returned. My wife will tell you all about it, she was at home all the time.

4569. You say he did not return. But supposing you are mistaken, did you offer him first 100*l.*, then 150*l.*, and then 200*l.*?—No, I wanted 150*l.* and I could not get it.

4570. He waited, you say, at home?—Yes.

4571. Was Mrs. Lorimer there?—No, she was not.

4572. How about Mr. Pender, were there any attempts made to get you over to vote for the Liberals?—Not to myself personally, save and except the interview with Mr. Pender.

4573. Did you hear of any inducement held out which was to be communicated to you to make you vote for the Liberals?—I am not aware of it. I have it on my notes to mention a fact which I forgot last night.

4574. Is that the canvass book?—Yes. It appears that Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore, a gentleman connected with the Liberal party, had a canvass book one night at the "Stars," in company with John Heath, senior, and William Narramore, a clerk, and he showed this canvass book to John Heath, on which my name was placed, "Harris to be had for a situa-"tion."

4575. (Mr. Coleridge.) He showed it to Narramore?—Yes.

4576. (Mr. Bere.) Were not the words "Harris "to be had if situation obtained before election"?—I do not know. I saw Mr. Heath last night, and he said "How did you forget about the poll book?" and I said "I forgot it." I may also say, my wife will tell you of the interviews, where Mrs. Lorimer was sent from Mr. Pender to my wife to offer a situation. I am more particular on this point, because it is a matter connected directly between Mr. Pender and myself, and I trust you will give me a fair opportunity to prove the case.

4577. (Mr. Coleridge.) We will call your wife?—In reference to the slippery company, having brought that up yesterday, allow me also to interpose, as a fact, that Mr. Searle sent for John Sandford Screach to join it.

4578. (Mr. Bere.) To join the slippery company?—Yes; Mr. Screach went to Searle's house, had an interview with Searle, the names were read over, and Screach joined the batch, saying he felt he should stand upon his own bottom, or something of that kind, saying he would have nothing more to do with combinations.

4579. (Mr. Coleridge.) A sudden access of virtue on behalf of Screach?—I do not know, I believe he was manager of the Lapstone club.

4580. We want to know about that?—You understand the senior Screach, John Sandford Screach, I might say also, it comes to me through my wife, she says that Mrs. Lorimer says,—it is a roundabout story, but it comes out in evidence,—Mrs. Lorimer says when Hill returned the 200*l.* he said his conscience pricked him, and that he would rather take 100*l.* and not vote at all, if that was agreeable.

4581. His conscience did not go so far as to be willing to take nothing at all and not vote?—Nothing said about that. In reference to Matcham. I have got that on my notes. After the petition was presented I had several interviews with old Mr. Matcham. I had one special interview at the "South "Devon Inn." I went in and had tea, and he sat down with me while I had tea; it was when I supplied him with a 5*l.* note. He told me he had received no money, but that he had voted for Mr. Pender because Mr. Pender had promised a situation for his son Tom, and that the situation was now in negotiation between Mr. Tom Searle and Mr. Pender. Mr. Tom Searle was the negotiator between Mr. Matcham and Mr. Pender. I may also say, I do not find it in the papers; I do not know whether I stated it yesterday, but I may say that Tom Searle took Mr. Matcham,

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

senior, and Mr. Thomas Matcham from their house early in the morning, at eight o'clock, and took them in a carriage from the house to the poll. I draw attention to this to show the connexion.

4582. Has not the office of postmaster for Totnes become vacant since 1865 ?—Very recently.

4583. Since the Derby Government came in ?—No, I wish it had.

4584. Who has been called the Whig briber; is that Samuel Parnell ?—Yes, he is the Whig briber.

4585. When did the office of postmaster become vacant ?—It was about a fortnight, or a few days before the late Government——

(Mr. Michelmore.) The postman tells me it is the 10th June that it became vacant.

4586. (Mr. Bere.) It was filled up by the late Government, and not the present?—Yes. On the Friday that they went out they filled it up on that same day.

4587. I see you have a number of recommendations for that appointment (referring to some papers)?—Yes. Still I should be very thankful to my party; they did all they possibly could for me, and there is no doubt I should have had the situation.

4588. (Mr. Coleridge.) Will you tell me what election that refers to, that letter of yours with no date to it?—That was when Mr. Maclay—if you will remember, the requisition was to this Mr. Maclay.

4589. What election ?—For 1865.

4590. Mr. Dent, as we know, we are on the election of 1863, did stand. What is the meaning of that letter?—It is 1865.

4591. 1863, I read it?—No, it is 1865.

4592. Yesterday, I believe, I had the wrong poll book; we had got to the end of the B's, as far as it went, and now that we have the right one, which has a great many more names, will you just read them through, and tell us whether there are any I did not ask you about among the A's and B's, or you did not say anything about, as being bribed by your party or offered a bribe?—Did you ask me about the Reverend Gilbert Butland ?

4593. No?—I do not think you did. He voted for the other side, you observe. I understood that he wanted a situation for his son. Who gave him to understand that his son was to have a situation I do not know, but that there was an understanding of that sort, either by Mr. Dent or Mr. Mitchell, that his son was to have a situation. That situation was not given, and consequently he has a sore—proud flesh, as it were, and it is every now and then exhibiting itself, and consequently he voted against us last time.

4594. Did he vote against you ?—He voted against us.

4595. Both against you ?—Yes, he did.

4596. Just see if there are any others that you have to say anything about that I did not ask you as to yesterday ?—There is John Brimicombe, I do not think you asked me about him.

4597. No; he voted against you ?—Yes, he voted against us at one election; I do not know whether 1859. He went away, and I think there was some consideration given him for going away; I do not know, but rumour says so.

4598. Did you have anything to do with him ?—No.

4599. Did you canvass him ?—No.

4600. Did I ask you about William Byne ?—I think you did, and I gave the account about him. He voted for Mr. Dent, then he had notice to quit.

4601. Who gave notice ?—The Duke of Somerset gave him notice; then he came to me and asked me; in fact part of his stipend, as it were, or part of his remuneration for his vote was 60*l.* in money.

4602. Who gave him that ?—George Heath, and he had five fields, a lease for three years of four of the fields, and the other one by the year, at a reduced rent, according to my estimate, of 20*l.* less value than they were really worth. Then I took on the agency after that, and he did everything he possibly could for the Conservative party.

4603. And he voted for Dent, I see ?—He voted for Mr. Dent, and was turned out after he voted, and these fields were granted to him after that.

4604. As a sort of remuneration ?—No doubt that was the consideration, and it was carried out.

4605. Were they more than he had under the Duke of Somerset ?—He had only one under the Duke of Somerset.

4606. (Mr. Bere.) Just look at that book and tell me in whose handwriting it is (referring to a small red book) ?—I do not know that handwriting.

4607. It is all the same handwriting, is it ?—I will see.

4608. It is not yours ?—No.

4609. Nor anybody you know ?—I could not say the handwriting. It might be the gentleman's who filled in the notices.

4610. Is it Condy's handwriting ?—No; I think if we could get a Whig notice now this book would correspond.

4611. You think it is a Whig book ?—Yes.

4612. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did I ask you about the three Bowden's, Frederick, Richard, and John ?—Yes.

4613. Now William Crook, he voted for Seymour ?—Yes.

4614. Did you canvass him ?—No.

4615. Do you know anything about him ?—William Crook, Bourton Berry Pomeroy. I think he was offered 150*l.* at the last election.

4616. By whom, Mr. Heath ?—No, a man called Heard.

4617. (Mr. Bere.) That was the election of 1865 ?—Yes; I think it is 150*l.*; I remember hearing it at the time.

4618. Which way did he vote ?—Against us. We could not get at him; they had a larger sum on the other side.

4619. Then James Chamings ?—That was the gentleman that Mr. John Heath went up to see, and made an offer to of a heavy sum; but I suppose he had a very heavy sum on the other side.

4620. What did he offer him ?—I think he offered 400*l.*

4621. What is Mr. Chamings that he stands so high ?—A small farmer. It was a very large sum.

4622. Which Mr. Heath offered that ?—Mr. John Heath, jun.

4623. He refused that ?—Yes.

4624. He voted for Seymour ?—Yes; no, this was 1865 I am talking of. I do not know anything about the election of 1863.

4625. If as you go on you find anything you omitted as to 1865 tell us?—Yes; you did not go through the list yesterday, and there was consequently many names I did not remember yesterday.

4626. Then Henry T. Cole ?—I am very glad that his name comes up; because in 1865 there is a little thing connected with him. The Devon and Cornwall Bank was short of sovereigns on the day of the election. Cole was sent to Plymouth. There happened to be three of my friends in Plymouth, and there was a boy sent from the bank at Plymouth up to the station with a heavy bag of gold, so Mark Oldrey put his hand on the bag and touched it.

4627. He was one of your friends?—Yes.

4628. Who else?—John Godfrey and George Robins Stone. So they put their hands on to the bag, and said to the boy, "Where is that for, then?" "Oh, Totnes, sir," says the boy. "Are you Henry "Cole of the Devon and Cornwall Bank ?" He says, "I am not." So Cole must come posting after, and there were 3,000 sovereigns in that bag.

4629. From what bank in Plymouth?—I do not know where it came from.

4630. The Devon and Cornwall Bank was the receiver?—Yes, the Devon and Cornwall Bank.

4631. How came Henry Cole to be sent?—He was what we call second manager at the bank. I may also mention in connexion with that which I omitted yesterday, I think it an important item, namely, that

David Derry, brother of John Derry, the manager of the Devon and Cornwall Bank at Plymouth, it has been his principal object here at every election, and he generally comes up with something which is necessary it appears to conduct the election. I do not know what, but at any rate it seems a necessary ingredient to the warfare.

4632. Is the Devon and Cornwall Bank Liberal in its politics?—Yes.

4633. Was the political feeling carried out to such an extent that the parties who banked there were Liberals and not Conservatives?—No, because the manager here is not a voter; but David Derry is to all intents and purposes a strong partisan.

4634. Is H. T. Cole Henry Turney Cole?—Yes; he is now at Collumpton at a branch bank there. I think you ought to have David Derry.

4635. Where is he to be found?—At Plymouth. I think he is a very important witness for you.

4636. Do you know anything that Cole did in 1863?—No; I do not think there were any banking transactions in reference to Mr. Dent. I do not think there were.

4637. Or 1862?—Or 1862.

4638. All the other side?—All the other side.

4639. Richard Cross, Bridgetown, he voted against you?—Yes; he was one of those supposed to be under the wing of the Duke of Somerset, in fact, he was an old clerk of the Duke of Somerset's.

4640. He voted for him as a matter of course?—He voted for him as a matter of course; did the bidding of the Duke of Somerset.

4641. You did not try him?—No.

4642. You did not waste time on those you saw no hope of?—No, certainly not.

4643. Henry Crawford?—That is the man who has the carriage which we call the Seymour company carriage. I think he was offered 150*l.*, I am not certain.

4644. In 1863?—In 1863.

4645. Who by?—By our party.

4646. Who, did you?—No.

4647. Did you canvass him yourself?—No.

4648. You did not have anything to do with him?—No, he was a character I never would touch.

4649. Then William Richard Coulton?—He is a gentleman who never took a farthing in his life, he is beyond everything of that sort.

4650. Philip Condy, junior?—I was very much surprised to hear that gentleman's evidence the other day; I thought he could tell you a good deal more, and I hope when here again he will have refreshed his memory a little as to what they did at the 1863 election. He was one of the active men, and they must know what is going on of course. People come to them as to me, as being one of the most active men in the borough, and of course all these venal voters go to these men and relate the circumstances, and say, "Oh, sir, I have been offered so much by Mr. Harris "or Mr. Somebody else," perhaps it is all fiction, but they are feeling their pulse; we know what it all means, and Mr. Condy must know more by a vast deal than he told you.

4651. Can you tell us anything particular about him in 1863, at this election?—No, nothing more than his going in and out of the committee rooms.

4652. He was in and out?—Yes, continually, and always out and about with candidates and lawyers.

4653. Do you know any voters he canvassed?—No.

4654. That is about his man Kellow you told us, perhaps he can tell us something about that?—Yes, he had 50*l.*, I believe.

4655. Now Samuel Cuming, Plymouth Road; he voted for Seymour?—I never heard of his having money. He is one of the old Liberals of Totnes.

4656. Did you try him?—No, he is beyond me.

4657. I do not understand taking your view of the case; what line do you draw between those you will try and those in want of plenty of money?—Samuel Cuming is a surveyor, and always employed by the Liberal party, and he is a man who adheres to the party in consideration of their supporting him, and so they give him all the support they can.

4658. You are now taking the particular instance of Mr. Cuming, but what is the line you draw, because you say you believe the greater part to be the ignorant or the impure; how do you draw the line between people you will and will not try? Did you ever try the Duke's tenants, for instance?—I tried a lot of the Duke's tenants, and a good many of them were to be had at times; I should say to them "Well, "here is an election going on, what do you think of "it?" I should say, Well, I do not think Pender will be returned next time. Well, do you intend to vote against him, that is the fact? Are you open to consideration? Then they would soon tell you whether they were or not. I remember having a conversation with Chamings many times, and he told me his estate was a poor estate, and he could not get a good living there. Those were insinuations, I do not mean that it was direct to the point.

4659. They were appeals to your heart?—Yes, I knew what they meant very well.

4660. Then one may say that as regards the Conservative side, that those people you do not try, whom you think pure as regards the Conservative party, nothing would make them vote for the Conservative party, whatever they might get from the Liberals?—No. I think a certain number of the Liberals, like Richard Andrews, who is reported always to have received money. I do not say it is true, it is reported to have been so, I am sorry the newspapers have not given it correctly; it is reported that Robert Armstrong put a lot of money under the carpet at some back election.

4661. We have heard that?—It is reported only.

4662. There are good many of those you will not try yourself that you have no doubt were tried elsewhere?—No; they are like a great many on the Conservative side, there are a great many Conservatives I believe, although I never paid them myself, yet they receive 20*l.* or 25*l.* at each election. They never ask, it is sent as a matter of course. I should like here to mention a little kind of qualifying clause with reference to the Duke. Yesterday I said that I considered he was the spring head of the corruption in Totnes, and I still adhere to that for this reason: when we have to buy a man out of Bridgetown he has to come into Totnes. When he is turned out immediately he comes into Totnes. Now that man looks of course from the Conservative party for a douceur, a little sum that he expects to be sent in, not that he asks, but as a matter of course.

4663. About how many on the Liberal side do you suppose there were of these matter-of-course voters?—A large number.

4664. Would you put them at 50 matter-of-course men?—Fully that, I should think.

4665. More?—I divide them.

4666. (Mr. Longe.) You said that 60 men would answer at once to Mr. Michelmore?—Yes, that is about it. I look upon the Duke of Somerset's tenants as bound neck and heels; in fact they must come, it is only to pull the string of the bell and they must come.

4667. Still some you can buy over?—Yes, but he has about 90, and that is 60.

4668. (Mr. Coleridge.) You do not mean that all those 60 under Mr. Michelmore are as a matter of course?—No; they are bonâ fide tenants like Mr. Mortimer and large tenants, and those hold a field here to qualify them.

4669. These matter-of-course men you speak of have nothing to do with one another. When you say there are 50 matter-of-course men on the Liberal side, you do not mean that they are entirely the same party that are under Mr. Michelmore's hands?—No, I mean the independent Liberals in the town.

4670. How many matter-of-course men are there on the Conservative side?—I should think there are at least 100, or more, matter-of-course pollers.

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

4671. Do you mean 100 on the Conservative side, who without asking or trying them in any way you would send a certain sum of money to on an election?—No, they would be sure to vote on the Conservative side, but a great many of them would receive small sums.

4672. How many?—I do not know numbers.

4673. You have said about 50 of the Liberals, how many of the Conservatives?—I calculate about 75 altogether.

4674. I want you thoroughly to understand me. I mean by matter-of-course men, those who without being asked or tried in any way would have a certain sum given them at every election?—Yes.

4675. There were 50 of those on the Liberal side and 75 on the Conservative?—Yes. I do not know of my own knowledge, but I assume that is so.

4676. As regards the Conservative side you pretty well know?—I believe Henry Helms has all the names at his election.

4677. What is the sum these matter-of-course men get?—25*l.* about.

4678. They are a perfectly distinct class, those that can be operated upon?—Yes, they are a different class of men, and they receive a little sum of money when there is an election.

4679. Francis Brooking Cuming, he votes for Seymour?—There are some circumstances connected with him I might mention.

4680. William Richard Coulton?—He is a gentleman above that sort of thing.

4681. He always votes for the Conservative party?—Yes.

4682. John Webber Chaster?—He has now retired from the tanning business since the election. He is now an agent of Mr. Pender's. I have been informed, whether rightly or wrongly, that he has a thousand a year to manage the affairs here.

4683. Does that go on now that Mr. Pender is unseated?—I do not know about that, but that is what rumour says.

4684. James Clarke?—He was a waiter at the Stars, he is now a waiter, I believe, at the Globe Inn, Newton.

4685. He voted for Mr. Dent?—Yes.

4686. Did you canvass him?—No.

4687. Is he what you have called a matter-of-course man?—He is a matter-of-course man; when Mr. Dent was going away perhaps he would put an extra 20*l.* note into his pocket; they are placed in a position to be well paid in those times. They did try him very hard.

4688. The other party, you mean?—Yes; at the last election especially.

4689. Edward Stanley Cary?—He did not vote.

4690. Francis Coombes?—He did not vote, he was one of those gentlemen who remained behind. I understand he has been rather annoyed at my assertion yesterday. This I can say, that at the election of 1863 I went to him about half-past 3 o'clock, when the race was running very close. I saw him at his own shop and asked him if he was going to vote. I never heard of a man in such a respectable position as he was wanting money, it had never entered into my mind. He says, "I am waiting for Mr. Heath, "he understands all about it, as soon as ever he "comes in I am going to vote." I daresay Mr. Heath will tell you all about it. I think Mr. George Heath had something to do with it. I am told that he wanted a large sum of money, 500*l.* This of course is only hearsay.

4691. Do you know whether he got any sum of money or not?—I think it was a kind of loan that he got, the same as was got from the present postmaster at the late election, something like what was given to the Rev. Mr. James; not money spent in bribery, but a gentlemanly way of taking money.

4692. You mean a loan without any fear of being at all pushed for the repayment?—Yes; I understand he was much displeased with what I stated yesterday, but of course he has the opportunity of coming here and making his own statement. All that I can say for myself is, that what I have stated he said to me is true.

4693. John Pedrick Callard?—He is the Duke's steward's clerk, and lives at the Gate house, and votes with the Duke as a matter of course.

4694. Is he an active agent?—Yes.

4695. Does he canvass about at all?—No; he does all the writing work; he is in Mr. Michelmore's office.

4696. Did he assist at all in operating upon the voters?—I was told that he had a long conversation with Byne, and I have reason to believe that he was the gentleman who in 1865 converted Byne; it was either he or John Ackrell.

4697. One or other of them?—Yes.

4698. Robert Came?—I do not know anything of him.

4699. Did you canvass him?—No; whether he had any money or not I do not know; he was then a tenant of Mr. Durant's, against whose interest he voted, and he turned him out.

4700. You do not know what he had if he had anything?—I rather think it was something like this. He had an uncle, a Mr. Tozer, who was also a voter, and who was ill; he expected some property from Tozer, and I think Tozer wrote to him to ask him to vote for Mr. Dent; he did so, but I do not think there was any money.

4701. You do not know whether the Heaths got at him?—No.

4702. Was he a matter-of-course man?—No.

4703. (Mr. Longe.) How long had he been a tenant?—Many years. At previous elections he had voted on the Liberal side.

4704. Of what size was his farm?—He rented an estate called Wood farm, from Mr. Richard Durant, jun., but he rented the field which he had here just to qualify, to give himself a vote.

4705. (Mr. Bere.) Was he turned out of his farm?—He left his farm immediately after.

4706. Had that anything to do with the election, do you know?—I have no idea.

4707. (Mr. Coleridge.) James Cole?—I know nothing of him; he was a poor man who was not likely to have voted for the Whigs without having money.

4708. Did you try him with any?—No.

4709. Can you tell us why you would not canvass a man like that?—He was always in the employ of the Whigs; he is one of those snarling sort of men.

4710. He was not what you would call an agreeable customer?—He was not come-at-able.

4711. Is there a sort of honourable understanding between the two parties not to meddle with any one who is a matter-of-course man?—There is.

4712. You had as you say a majority of 25 matter-of-course men?—Yes; we thought we should have been able to turn the election if it had not been for money.

4713. John Creed?—He is a gentleman beyond that.

4714. John Chapple?—He is a matter-of-course man.

4715. You did not attempt to do anything with him?—No.

4716. Was he tried on the other side?—He was on the last occasion.

4717. William Cornish?—He is a private gentleman, I do not think he had anything.

4718. Did he ask for anything?—No.

4719. George Cole?—He was one of the Duke's tenants; he was offered a very good sum this last time, I think 400*l.*; he promised to go down, and William Narramore went up in the morning to offer him 400*l.* for a pig, I think it was. He promised to go down into the "Stars" field, on the other side of the station, to meet Narramore, to carry out the arrangement, but, as I have told you, the door was shut at 9 o'clock, consequently he did not come.

4720. Was he a matter-of-course man on the Liberal side?—He was one of the Duke's tenants.

4721. But one who was open to conviction?—Yes; he was a new man; he had lately come into that field.

4722. (Mr. Longe.) What was the extent of his farm?—He had a house and three or four fields; he was one of those very accommodating men who would allow other men to be qualified upon the property which he occupies; he occupies the field, but he is not rated for it.

4723. You do not know the number of acres?—I should think from 15 to 20; he is what we call a general jobber, or cattle dealer, buying and selling pigs, calves, and so on.

4724. He is one of those gentlemen, who, if there were another opportunity, you would not despair of getting over?—I should not despair of getting him.

4725. You would not put him down as a matter-of-course man?—No.

4726. William Cole?—Yes; he was offered a tolerably good sum. I remember a conversation with him myself in 1863.

4727. Will you tell us about that?—He only rents qualifying property of the Duke's; he rents the other portion of what he lives by from Mr. Champernowne.

4728. Who is a strong Conservative?—Yes. He said, I shall be turned out of that field if I vote for you, and that field is very handy for me. Some parties made him a very good offer, but I do not think he got the money.

4729. Who made him the offer of that money?—I do not know; some one from the "Stars;" some one on our side.

4730. Was he offered anything on the other side?—He was well paid; there is no doubt of that at all.

4731. What was the size of his other farm?—He held several fields.

4732. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have told us that in 1865 the money was too strong for you on the other side; in 1863 was the money more evenly balanced?—I think we were a pretty good match for them at that time.

4733. John Crocker?—He was the ostler at the "Stars," and was a matter-of-course man.

4734. William Cole?—He is a gentleman; a retired surgeon.

4735. Does he always vote for the Conservatives?—That was the first vote that ever he had here, and he gave it to us.

4736. And that was given in a fair and legitimate way?—Yes.

4737. Samuel Cuming, jun.?—He is one of the manufactured votes, which I referred to yesterday; he goes with his father; they are surveyors in the town, and get all the work of the Whig party. They are matter-of-course men on the Liberal side.

4738. He gets his 25*l.*?—They give him some kind of employment; send him to do something, to put something in his way.

4739. John Drew?—We sent and offered him 150*l.* on his table. I think he only had 5*l.* from the other side.

4740. That was in 1865, was it not?—Yes; I do not know what he had this time.

4741. (Mr. Bere.) Where did he get the 150*l.* from?—We sent and offered him 150*l.* and he would not have it.

4742. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he say that he should vote against you?—No. He is one of those shaky kiddies; he is a very poor man, and goes about with a cart.

4743. In spite of that he refused 150*l.* from you?—Yes.

4744. And the deduction that you drew from that is obvious?—Yes; perhaps if they had offered him 100*l.* he might have said, I have just been offered 150*l.*

4745. Who sent him the 150*l.*?—Mr. Mitchell, I expect, or the black man.

4746. Whom did he send it by?—I do not know; that will come out in due course.

4747. John Dawe?—At that election he said I did not tamper with him at the previous election. I offered him something in 1859.

4748. In 1863 you did not offer him anything?—He is one of those gentlemen whom I should put doubtful against; open to conviction.

4749. In 1863 you did not canvass him at all?—No.

4750. In 1862 did you canvass him?—No. I remember that in 1859 he was displeased with them and voted for us.

4751. Then George Duder is the next?—I never heard of his having any money; he is one of the certain men, under the Duke's thumb.

4752. John Diggins, he voted for Seymour?—Yes; I rather think he held out pretty strong at that time.

4753. What is he?—He is a little shopkeeper, sometimes Tory, sometimes Whig.

4754. How did he vote in 1865?—He was a man who wanted 200*l.*; he signed the requisition.

4755. In 1863 what happened to him?—He said he was disgusted with the affair: that he was willing to sign the requisition, but he was not willing to be trapped again, and he was trapped.

4756. He outstood his market?—Yes; the saying here is, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the "bush;" he went to the poll without the money, and the Seymour party are not ready to pay afterwards.

4757. Then they got his vote for nothing more than a promise?—Yes; he was determined to vote against them in consideration that we paid him 200*l.*

4758 Did you pay him?—No; at 9 o'clock the door was closed.

4759. John Diptford; he voted for Seymour?—He is a poor man, one of those men who requires a small sub; he is as right on the other side as the sun.

4760. He is a matter-of-course man?—Yes.

4761. James Dean; he voted for you?—I do not know anything of him; he is a man who has voted on both sides. I should rather think he requires a little tin.

4762. He is open to conviction?—Yes.

4763. With men of that sort you would canvass the whole borough?—Not as a rule.

4764. Do not you canvass those who are likely to vote for you?—No.

4765. Why would you miss such a man as that?—The solicitors would go round canvassing. I do not know anything of that department, save and except that after it was over I should be consulted as to A. B. C., and so on.

4766. Who would tell us about the general canvass—Mr. Edmonds?—Yes, I should think so.

4767. Mr. Richard Durant?—He is beyond that sort of thing; whether they might be disposed to make him a baronet or not I cannot tell.

4768. John Derry?—He is generally right; he votes Liberal.

4769. Is he a matter-of-course man?—Yes; he has an independent property.

4770. Is he one of those who are regularly paid without being asked for it?—Yes.

4771. Then John Denner?—He is a printer; he always goes right, he knows how to make out the bills at those times.

4772. And they are not disputed?—No.

4773. Andrew Sparke Distin?—He always goes without money; he is a staunch Conservative, and a member of the Town Council.

4774. Then Louis Dufort; he votes for you, does he not?—He was paid.

4775. Did you canvass him at all?—No; he lived just opposite to me at that time.

4776. Did you have any conversation at all with him?—Yes, I had, several times; he was a staunch Conservative. I think he had a small sum.

4777. Mr. Frederick Thomas Distin?—He is a gentleman. I do not know anything about him.

4778. Has he always voted against you?—I think that was the first election at which he had ever voted; his father was always a staunch Liberal.

4779. Did he vote against you at the next election ?—Yes.

4780. John Elliott ?—He is a carpenter, a tenant under the Duke ; he is one of their active bribers. That is the man who had something to do with John Green in the year 1865.

4781. Do you mean he was one of those who would have been entrusted with money ?—Yes.

4782. And he would have helped himself to his share as a matter of course ?—Yes ; that is not always the rule. I have known instances of those who have had plenty of money to distribute who have sometimes run short themselves.

4783. The next is Thomas Endle ?—He is dead ; he was a farmer under the Duke ; he was considered always to be all right.

4784. Then we come to John Endle ?—They do say that he is the man who was put under a barrel at one time, or that he was put into a cask ; he is a cider merchant. I have been informed that he had 200*l.* for being put into a cask at the time of the election.

4785. In other words, you mean that he was extinguished for the day ?—Yes ; they went and tried to hunt him up. That was in Baldwin and Blount's time. A man who has once tasted the blood I should fancy would like to have a little more of it.

4786. James Edmonds ?—That is the gentleman whom Mr. Screach will be able to tell you about. I believe that he went and offered him a tolerably good sum ; he signed the requisition.

4787. What was offered to him do you know ?—That was in 1863. There was some money offered to him I know then.

4788. Did you canvass him at all ?—He was at Torquay at this time, and John Callard went over there for him one morning in a gig with some one else ; he was one of the Duke's men, and we sent over some one to fetch him home, but somehow or other he managed to slip through our fingers. He had promised to vote for Mr. Dent, but we lost him.

4789. What was he to have got ?—I had heard 100*l.*

4790. Do you know who managed him ?—I think he had promised to come ; he was in a situation down there as a gardener, his wife was living in the town.

4791. The next is Thomas Hunt Edmonds ?—He is our respected supporter.

4792. Charles Endle ?—He is a brother of John Endle. I never heard of anything against him.

4793. He voted against you ?—Yes.

4794. Evan Evens ?—He did not vote then.

4795. Did he have anything for not voting in 1863 ?—He had been our active man ; he knew the requirements of the several voters. I went to him about it, and he said that he should not vote for us as soon as he had got a situation which Mr. Michelmore or the Duke was to have given to his son, a situation in an office in London.

4796. That was the office in the Admiralty ?—Yes.

4797. Then after 1865 the son was promoted in the Admiralty ?—Yes ; he got a first-class situation ; he was raised 60*l.* a year, that was the bribe.

4798. He would not vote for you or against you in 1863 ?—No.

4799. How did he vote in 1865 ?—For Seymour and Dawkins.

4800. Robert Earle ?—He was a good old staunch Tory once.

4801. He voted against you last time, how was he got at ?—He got some fields under the Duke. He has gone ; he was taken up to Manchester.

4802. By Mr. Pender ?—Yes, by Mr. Pender.

4803. Did you try him ?—I did try him, and tried him so far that I had a little fight and a row with him.

4804. Let us hear about that ?—Not that election, at the election prior to that.

4805. In 1862 ?—Yes.

4806. Let us hear ?—He said I cannot support you now the Duke is driving ; the bonds were broken ; he has always been a tenant of the Duke of Somerset. He was a tenant under old Mr. Baldwin. He went to Gerston ; when the Duke bought Gerston he was transferred ; he said I shall not be able to support you now, Mr. Harris, because if I do the Duke will turn me out.

4807. You looked upon that as a hint ?—He was a man that I do not think wanted money.

4808. You did not say anything to him about money ?—I remember saying to him about a house ; he got pale once.

4809. When was that ?—When we were here at a meeting ; when I mentioned the Duke's tyranny he got very pale about it.

4810. What was that ?—He rented of Mr. Baldwin first, and when the Duke of Somerset bought the estate——

4811. What was his occupation ?—He is a seed merchant, he was a baker at one time.

4812. He qualified for his house ?—Yes, not for land.

4813. A bonâ fide qualification ?—Yes.

4814. William Ellis ?—That gentleman rented under the Duke, and I think he voted for us in consideration of our letting him in as one of Mr. Dent's tenants.

4815. He voted for you in 1863 ?—He was one of the Duke's tenants ; he knew he should be turned out, he had got one field in Sharpam Lane, Inclewood field ; we promised him or agreed with him that he should take possession of certain fields that he has now.

4816. At a fair rent or a low rent ?—A low rent.

4817. What would the proper rent be ?—I do not think he gets much out of it, perhaps 5*l.* a year.

4818. Did you try him ?—No.

4819. How did he vote in 1865 ?—All right.

4820. Now John Eales, he voted for Seymour ?—He came from Dartmouth ; he came from a rotten place.

4821. Did you canvass him ?—No, he was one of those crotchety men.

4822. Who dealt with the Dartmouth lot ; whose special province was it to look after him ?—No, he is beyond dealing with so far as we are concerned, we cannot get at him.

4823. You never attempted to do anything with John Eales ?—No, he is residing in Totnes ; he came from Dartmouth ; they are tainted down there.

4824. Do you know whether he got anything on the other side ?—No, I do not.

4825. He is a matter-of-course man ?—I know nothing about him.

4826. George Evens, he voted for you ?—Yes I think that Mr. Evens knew a little about bribery.

4827. Had you canvassed George Evens in 1863 ?—No, he did not want to be canvassed, he was very prompt.

4828. On your side ?—Yes.

4829. Was he a matter-of-course man ?—He was required to carry out a preliminary arrangement, and various other things.

4830. He was entrusted with money ?—I think he will tell you.

4831. Both ?—Both the same.

4832. Richard Coull Earle, the Rectory, Ashprington ?—He was a tenant under the Duke, he did not vote ; I remember his telling me that when he took the field of the Duke he promised to give one vote, that he did not like Mr. Seymour at all, and he said that rather than be in the position he should be placed in he would give up the field, which he did.

4833. What were his politics ?—He was a Conservative out and out.

4834. John Elford ?—He was a Gerston man at the time of Baldwin's election.

4835. He voted with Seymour ?—Yes ; he was offered a good sum of money.

4836. Who by ?—I rather think I tried that gentleman rather hard.

4837. Tell us all about your trial of him?—He was a man open to conviction, I went up to know what he wanted; I knew he had had 25*l.* for voting for Mr. Dunn before, and I went to try him. I offered or tried or insinuated to him whether he wanted 150*l.*

4838. Was not that high enough?—No, it was not high enough.

4839. Then you lost him?—I lost him.

4840. Do you know who went after him on the other side?—No, he had got under the Duke's wing, and we could not get at him.

4841. When you were on these expeditions you were closely watched by the other party?—They were always at me. After the transfer of the Duke's property he got under the Duke's wing.

4842. (Mr. Bere.) What was the date of the transfer?—Four or five years ago.

4843. Before 1863?—Yes, just before 1863; I had no authority to offer money, I only wanted to know whether he wanted money.

4844. If he had said yes, where should you have sent him?—To Mr. Black man at the "Stars."

4845. What should you have told him to do, to go to the "Stars" and inquire for him?—To go down and inquire of Mr. Black man.

4846. Do you know anything about him in 1862?—I rather think he came down; I have got some faint recollection about that year; I think there was some negotiation between him and the Black man.

4847. (Mr. Coleridge.) You say you never saw the black man yourself?—Never saw him.

4848. Before or after the election?—Neither before or after.

4849. You heard of his arrival?—I heard of his being there.

4850. Whom from?—I was daily in communication with Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Dent's agent; perhaps if there was anything I wanted to communicate I should communicate it to Mr. Mitchell, and he would communicate it to Mr. Blackman.

4851. William Earle?—A Bridgetown man.

4852. Is he one of the Duke's men?—No, he lives in a leasehold house of his own.

4853. He voted for Seymour?—He was one of the original Lapstone club, I think there is much he will tell you about that.

4854. To tell us about William Earle?—I believe he could; whether he got money at that election I do not know.

4855. Did you canvass him?—He is a tenant of mine.

4856. He voted for you?—He is generally considered pretty right if you have got a little small sum for him.

4857. Is he one of those to whom money would be given without being asked?—No; perhaps he might ask for a little. Last election in 1865 he did not vote, he made use of the expression he was sold when he was in town, the vessel was wrecked on a rock or something of that sort, he turned on his horse and bolted over.

4858. Before we part you will be able to make us out a list of what you will call the matter-of-course men?—I should be happy to give you all the information I can. This is what I call the Tory section, I hope the Liberals will do the same on their side.

4859. Suppose they do not you will assist to give us a list of the matter-of-course men as well as you can?—I cannot enter into details of ours.

4860. You can put your finger on the men of the party whom you consider matter-of-course men as against those who may be converted?—Yes, if my poll book was looked at, if I had the original I dare say you will find my name against a great many men, and the letter D, doubtful; then again I should mark those that I know to be what I call staunch men, perhaps they may require to be employed, or may require to have a good fee. That is another class.

4861. How is it you find that class that always have a certain sum of money are never attempted to be operated on?—That is a class of men; it either means something to do or something or other.

4862. Who want money or money's worth?—Yes.

4863. William Farley?—He is one of the slaves of the Duke's; he was formerly a Lapstone club man.

4864. What election does that apply to?—I think it applies especially to 1859 at Ricardo's election, and Baldwin and Blont's election, and all those elections prior to 1859.

4865. That was one of the Lapstone club?—Yes.

4866. In 1863 he voted for Seymour; do you know anything about him?—He was one of that class of men; I scarcely fancy he would vote for a consideration.

4867. Did you canvass him?—No; I think his son told me he offered him a large sum of money.

4868. Who?—His son offered it to him to vote for us.

4869. Is that son alive?—Yes.

4870. Did the Lapstone club always vote Liberal?—They were principally Liberal parties at one time, I do not know whether they were latterly. They generally had a fixed sum for the lot.

4871. They were bought in a lot?—Oh, yes, in a lump.

4872. George Ford?—He is a man that must do what Mr. Michelmore tells him.

4873. Whether he gets money or not?—He never gets any money.

4874. George Field?—That is one of the Duke's workmen; he was addressed by Mr. Cross.

4875. How do you mean addressed by him?—In Mr. Ricardo's time.

4876. Is he a matter-of-course man under the Duke?—Yes.

4877. As far as money goes?—Yes.

4878. He gets money or money's worth?—Yes.

4879. James Farleigh?—He rents an inn at Bridgetown. I should have put that man's name "favourable" at one time; he is against us dead.

4880. In 1863 did you canvass him?—No, I did not.

4881. When did you canvass him last?—I think he will be able to tell you whether he had any money or no.

4882. Did you canvass him in 1865?—No.

4883. When did you cease canvassing him?—After that election. I think this was the last time he voted.

4884. What made you put favourable to him if you did not canvass him?—He insured his life with me at that time, and I was friendly with him, and he said he was Conservative because he was not under the Duke or Michelmore.

4885. Did you have any conversation with him about money?—I do not remember.

4886. Elias Ford, he went Liberal too?—That is a noteable man; that is a tool of the Duke of Somerset.

4887. He is made a magistrate?—I should not be surprised.

4888. Did you ever speak to him at all?—He was a tenant of the Duke of Somerset and the great company I spoke about the other day; he took the ground of the several parties. He is supposed to take the ground of the several parties and then re-let it again to the parties to be able to come and say they rent under one landlord.

4889. Was he a man to be tempted?—No.

4890. Arthur Furneaux, Weekaborough?—That is one of the Duke's slaves or tenants; I should look on him as a slave here. He rents a field.

4891. William Ford?—He was hostile to Seymour like Crook.

4892. John Farley?—John Farley of New Passage, I know nothing about him.

4893. Did you canvass him?—He is something like my father, nothing in the world will turn him; it is of no use to say a word to him, you may as well try to turn the stream of the river.

SIXTH DAY.
Mr. R. Harris.
29 Aug. 1866.

4894. Did he always vote Conservative?—Yes.

4895. Joseph Fairweather?—I should put him as a very doubtful man.

4896. Did you canvass him in 1863?—No.

4897. 1865?—No.

4898. 1862?—No. I think he wanted some consideration if he voted.

4899. How came you never to have got hold of him?—Because he is one of those rabid Dissenters, uncharitable men that I would not have anything to do with him.

4900. Does he always vote Liberal?—That was the first vote he had.

4901. In 1865 did he vote again?—Yes.

4902. W. J. H. Foale, jun., Ashprington?—He was beyond bribery, a tenant under Mr. Durant.

4903. William Farley, jun., he is a son, I think?—Yes.

4904. He voted for you?—Yes.

4905. What did he get for voting?—I do not know.

4906. Did you canvass him?—No, I did not.

4907. When did you have this conversation with him?—He is a convert.

4908. He came over to you from the Liberals?—Yes.

4909. When did he vote for the Liberals last?—He think in 1859, I do not know.

4910. Did he vote in 1862?—In 1859. I should like to have the 1859 poll book.

4911. (Mr. Bere.) He voted for Dunn in 1859?—He was a Bridgetown tenant, then living in the same house that Stone was living in.

4912. Do you know the nature of the conversation, how it was brought about?—No.

4913. In 1863 do you know if the Heaths had anything to do with him?—I do not. I remember one little event, rather insignificant in itself.

4914. When was that?—When Mr. Dent did not dub out he was done then, when he bolted and would not turn out.

4915. That is in 1862?—I know he was down there at the "Stars," and several others in waiting.

4916. Was he in the lobby and clamorous?—He was anxious to know if there was anything in the wind.

4917. Was there a black man down in 1862?—I do not think there was.

4918. (Mr. Bere.) You know that a black man came down in 1862 with a bag as heavily laden as it could be?—That was Helms.

4919. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was Mitchell down in 1862?—Yes.

4920. Henry Foster?—I never heard of his having money.

4921. Did you canvass him?—He is always safe.

4922. Is he a matter-of-course man?—He is a genuine Conservative.

4923. Without anything?—Oh! yes.

4924. You put him down pure?—I look on him as a pure man.

4925. John Ferris, did he have anything for not voting?—He was a Conservative, and I heard that he got a field, and got cramped up by the Duke; he cramped him and he would not vote.

4926. Did he get turned out of his farm for not voting?—Yes, I think he did. I do not think he is the holder of the field now.

4927. Do you know when he was turned out?—Soon after that.

4928. Is a negative vote equally punished by the voter being turned out?—Yes, if you do not come to the scratch.

4929. A field and linney?—He voted for his own house.

4930. George West Fowle, New Walk, he voted for Seymour?—I do not know whether his vessel stood in pawn; this is the vessel man.

4931. He voted for Pender at the next election?—I doubt about that vessel, it is all hearsay evidence; but he seemed to be very strong on behalf of Mr. Seymour, and Mr. Pender especially afterwards.

4932. Did you canvass him in 1863?—No, I did not.

4933. Did you ever canvass him?—Oh! no, never.

4934. He is pretty sure to go Liberal; had he ever voted Conservative?—I think this was his first vote.

4935. James Fitzpatrick, he is one of your men?—Yes; ours.

4936. What about him?—I do not know anything about him.

4937. Whom did he vote for?—He voted for Mr. Pender; there was a conversion in that case.

4938. In 1862 he voted for Pender; the votes are there on their account?—I should rather fancy he demanded a consideration, I do not know.

4939. How came you not to go to him before this or have any conversation?—He is very friendly with me; I do not think I had any conversation with him about money matters.

4940. Do you know who dealt with him?—No, I do not know that; he was at Torquay.

4941. How did he vote at the last election?—Those are the only two times; after that he went to Torquay to live.

4942. George Fitze, jun.?—He is a great company man; one of the Duke's men.

4943. You did not try him?—No.

4944. Nor 1862?—No.

4945. He was too powerful to go after him?—Yes, a waste of time.

4946. George Griffis, is he a Bridgetown man, and votes for you?—He is a Bridgetown man; if I did once canvass him I have forgotten since.

4947. Did you canvass him?—I think I did.

4948. You know when you canvass a man you have a notion he may be shaky in his faith?—You must be prepared to talk to them reasonably.

4949. Can you recollect what conversation you had with him?—I do not.

4950. How had he voted in 1862?—This is his first vote.

4951. How did he vote last time?—Pender and Dawkins. The report says that he had a little bit each side; whether it was true I cannot say. This gentleman down here offered him 50*l.*

4952. Which gentleman?—Mr. Michelmore.

4953. That is the last occasion?—Yes.

4954. In 1862 you do not know who?—No.

4955. (Mr. Longe.) He had changed his house?—He has no house; he lived there three years ago; I think he went then.

4956. (Mr. Coleridge.) John Gillham, did you canvass him?—No; he is beyond getting at on my part.

4957. Was he got at on the other side?—He is an innkeeper; they generally know how to make out the bills.

4958. Where is the "New Inn"?—Bridgetown; he is a Duke's tenant.

4959. (Mr. Bere.) Has he got a wife, Mary Gillham?—Yes.

4960. Did he vote Tory in 1864?—No; I never went near his place.

4961. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is "New Inn" a Liberal house?—Not Tory; I never knew him other at all. That single man was put on him at the election; cock-fighting man, Johns.

4962. John Gillham, jun., did you canvass him?—No; I think there were offers made to him.

4963. Who by?—Johns. I am not sufficiently acquainted with it.

4964. What sort of occupation had he got?—That is a manufactured vote.

4965. He lives with his father and votes by a manufactured vote?—Yes, they do now.

4966. Alan Gardner?—That is a firm old gentleman, that.

4967. A matter-of-course man?—A gentleman; he is a man that money was no consideration to.

4968. I suppose the other side do not attempt to meddle with him?—I believe not.

4969. Nicholas Gidley?—There is a conversion in that case; he was a regular old Tory.

4970. When did he last vote Tory?—I think it was in 1859.

4971. Was he converted in 1862; how was he converted on this occasion?—How did he vote in 1859?

4972. I will tell you in a minute. He voted for Dunn?—Yes, I thought so.

4973. In 1862 how did he vote?—I think for Pender at that time.

4974. That was the occasion of his conversion?—Yes; and there was a rumpus between the parties somewhere or other, and John Chaster got mixed up with Mr. Pender, and that is his son-in-law, he married his daughter, I think. What did they want with him? He has lent himself to make a gentleman opposite there, one of the fictitious votes in the town.

4975. That is not the gentleman I mean?—I do not know; he is a very selfish uncharitable man.

4976. He has had something offered to convert him?—Yes.

4977. Does the conversion hold good up to the present time?—He is a very singular man.

4978. Did he vote in 1865?—Yes, he did, against us.

4979. James Gill?—James and Robert Gill, those are two beyond any bribery. Gill never had a farthing of money in his life.

4980. Did he vote Conservative? — Always, as staunch as a rock.

4981. William Godfrey?—He was a Tory once, and was converted.

4982. When did he last vote for the Tories?—William Godfrey voted for Mills and Gifford in 1859; the election before that he voted for Baldwin.

4983. No, he did not, that was William Godfrey, junior?—Then there was an election prior to that; he voted once for the Conservatives.

4984. His conversion is of long standing?—Yes, at the last election.

4985. Did it take effect at the last election?—He made a good coat for Mr. Pender, whether it was lined with gold I do not know.

4986. Did Mr. Pender appear on the hustings in it?—I do not know.

4987. In 1863 did you canvass Godfrey?—No, he was not come-at-able on the other side at all.

4988. Is he a matter-of-course man, a man that will expect something?—No, a good firm supporter rather.

4989. Thomas Gillham?—That man has always been a Tory.

4990. He voted for you, did you canvass him?—No, I never did.

4991. Is he a matter-of-course man?—You must look on him as a matter-of-course man; he has a public house, a man who keeps an inn.

4992. Bills?—Yes.

4993. (Mr. Bere.) The same sort of thing; an inducement either in money or money's worth?—Yes.

4994. (Mr. Coleridge.) Samuel Goodman of the "Oxford Arms"?—That is the same class. He did not vote at the last election of 1865.

4995. How do you account for that, was he got at by the other side?—I do not know anything about him at all.

4996. Was he always a Conservative?—I do not know whether he was. I believe so. I never knew him. He may have done so.

4997. Dunn?—I do not know.

4998. He did not vote in 1859?—Samuel Goodman.

4999. (Mr. Bere.) He split his vote in 1859?—He was a steward of the Duke; he was turned out in Dunn's time.

5000. (Mr. Coleridge.) He was money or money's worth?—He kept an inn.

5001. George Gill, Dart Villas?—He is a retired gentleman, one of the pure ones.

5002. Always voted with you?—Always with us.

5003. John Godfrey, he voted for you?—Yes.

5004. Did you canvass him?—There is a conversion in that case.

5005. A conversion of what date?—I think he voted in 1859 for the Liberals.

5006. Did you canvass him?—No, I had nothing to do with him, nor do I know that he had any money, 5007. Do you mean it is a conversion of conviction?—I think he said so in London.

5008. Do you know whether the Heaths tried him?—I have heard him say there was some little bill the Liberals owed him and they did not pay him; he was disgusted with them; upon the point of politics he approved the Conservative policy rather than the Liberal policy.

5009. Have they any special regard for the Liberal policy?—They care very little about that in Totnes.

5010. You know there had been a conviction about a policy and it made an impression upon you?—Tailors and shoemakers are rather thinking men; they are not so ignorant as many are. I have known some bright tailors.

5011. The ignorant class are the rich men?—Yes, tolerably well-off men; men who have risen by labour and got houses and gone in; they are bribed time after time, and they always want money.

5012. (Mr. Bere.) Was Godfrey the man you mentioned as having been in work at Mr. Oldrey's of Plymouth?—Yes.

5013. The touch of the bag had no influence on his conversion?—It was not our bag.

5014. (Mr. Coleridge.) James Goodridge, he voted for you?—He was with the Liberals once; then Charles Webber turned him out of his work, and he voted against him.

5015. Do you put him in the matter-of-course list?—I always looked on him as a good man.

5016. A man that you could have without money?—Yes, one of those men I employed.

5017. He looked for something?—You never heard of his looking for anything.

5018. William Guppy, did you canvass him?—He is a Liberal; his son is the mayor of Barnstaple.

5019. You did not canvass all you knew to find out what they are?—I did not mean to canvass a man like this, I tried to run against him in some way or other before the election took place to learn what he is; then I can pretty well judge what amount of money will keep this sort of man in.

5020. Did you run against him?—Yes, he is a Liberal.

5021. You could do nothing with him?—No.

5022. Did you suggest any means of conviction to him, the sum of money coming down?—No, never; not at that election.

5023. Did you at any election?—There was some little suggestion at the last election about it.

5024. Was he wavering?—I think he voted for Pender only; he was disgusted with Seymour.

5025. You had hopes of getting the other vote?—Yes, I had, but we did not get it.

5026. Did you tell him there was money going?—Perhaps one might have made an insinuation of that sort, but he is an independent gentleman, I am very friendly with him.

5027. Then William Huxham?—I know that gentleman; he did not vote at the election; he lived in a house over at Bridgetown, and the house next door to him was a better one, so he agreed with us that if we would take the next door house and let him have it at the same rent he was then paying he would abstain from polling.

5028. Was he a tenant of the Duke's?—No, I do not believe he is.

5029. How were you to take the next house?—I think it was Mr. Bentall's house, I am not certain.

5030. Did you take it?—No, after Mr. Dent was beaten we gave it up.

5031. You repudiated it?—Yes, he has been terribly savage with me ever since.

5032. At the next election he voted against you?—He was like wildfire against us.

5033. Did you do anything to try to assuage his wounded feelings in 1865?—No, I could not get at him at all.

5034. There was not time to deal with a stammering man?—I had got to contend with the worthy county magistrates made by Mr. Pender.

5035. Did you send any one whom he had not that personal ill-feeling against?—I think they were over at a meeting; but he was not redeemable.

5036. Who was the mediator?—I do not know, I do not think we could get at him.

5037. William Hodge, of Berry Lodge?—That is the lodge-keeper of Berry Lodge. I might say in reference to Huxham's case, I had not got anything to do with him; I heard he was to be had.

5038. What about William Hodge?—He is the Duke's servant; he is what we call a woodranger and looks after the coppices.

5039. John Hoare, the carpenter?—He is a man we tried pretty hard in 1863, we could not succeed.

5040. Tell us how you tried him?—He rents an estate under the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, no, under Mr. Barnes at that time,—a portion of his estate from Mr. Barnes as the lessor,—but we could not arrive at him at all.

5041. What did you offer him?—I do not think we offered him any money; I think that Mr. Barnes wrote him to ask if he would vote as a favour for the Conservatives. I do not know that I even tried, but believe so.

5042. You could not get at him?—No.

5043. The black man was of no use to you?—No.

5044. William Hodge?—He is dead. I think he voted for us once. There was a house that was taken at the top of the moor by a man called Harding. If I look through my book I can find when he voted or abstained from voting.

5045. When did his conversion take place?—He was under the Duke.

5046. He voted for the two Liberals in 1859?—There are two William Hodges, bear in mind.

5047. He voted both times?—William Hodge of Bridgetown. I remember something about it; he is one of the Duke's tenants, and an active committee man.

5048. John Hains?—A surgeon, he had a special case for Plymouth.

5049. Is this the gentleman Mr. Presswell got rid of?—There was some reference to the company, he went away; there was a special case he had up there.

5050. William Kaye Hannaford?—He was turned off.

5051. Was he one of the Duke's men before?—Yes, I do not know about money.

5052. How did you get him over?—I do not know; he always was a Conservative.

5053. How did he vote in 1862?—He did not vote then.

5054. Is this the first time of his voting?—Yes.

5055. (Mr. Longe.) Is that the William Hannaford of Priory Gate?—No, William K. Hannaford; he was off for some years, not in 1859; he was an active man here.

5056. He did not vote in 1857; he was on the list?—He was on the list.

5057. William K. Hannaford voted in 1852?—I do not know.

5058. (Mr. Coleridge.) You know nothing about money?—He is the son-in-law of Mr. Page, a draper's assistant.

5059. Is he a matter-of-course man on the Duke's side?—He was living in Totnes when he voted at first.

5060. You would have put him down as voting?—He would have to come up from Plymouth, and his expenses would have to be paid.

5061. George Heath?—He is the son of John Heath, he goes as a matter of course.

5062. We then come to Mr. Pyle living at Plymouth, he is put down?—His wife and family are here.

5063. He comes backwards and forwards?—There is some little disagreement in his family, I do not think they live together, I do not know what it is.

5064. George Heath, that is one of the "Seven Stars"?—Oh, yes.

5065. Always with you?—He is good and true.

5066. Thomas Harris, did he vote against you?—I think he is one of the pure Liberals.

5067. Has he always been Liberal?—Yes.

5068. Joseph Hakewill, you call him a consistent man?—He was dead.

5069. Samuel Hilley in Fore Street, what is he?—Yes, he is a convert, always since I have known him.

5070. As a matter-of-course man?—I do not know anything about money with him.

5071. Can you put him in that class as a pure man?—I did at one time, he went over to the Seymour.

5072. What election was that?—1863, I do not know that it is so.

5073. Did you canvass him?—I do not think I did.

5074. Did you have any conversation with him about the election?—I do not remember.

5075. You counted on him for certain without taking any trouble about him?—He is a respectable man living in his own house.

5076. William Hannaford?—He is a Conservative; he is an election agent, and he gets perhaps 10*l.* or 20*l.* out of it.

5077. What did he get by the last election?—Five per cent. upon the return, I think.

5078. John Heath of the "Seven Stars Hotel"?—He is sure to be right.

5079. Samuel Huxham, he voted for Seymour?—That was the father.

5080. Did you try him at all?—No, he is the gentleman who advanced the money when the Liberals were short.

5081. What is he?—He is dead now.

5082. The father of that young gentleman who was here the other day, Mr. Samuel, the grocer?—He always did lend money at election times.

5083. Is he also a pure Liberal?—Yes, always; he is one of the rabid Dissenters.

5084. William Hole?—He voted for us that time; he had not voted for some years.

5085. How did you convert him?—I do not think he had money.

5086. What did he have?—He has got a son in China to whom Mr. Dent had been very kind, and I think he did it out of gratitude to Mr. Dent.

5087. Had he been kind before the election time?—Yes, there was some sickness, I do not know what it was, on one of Mr. Dent's stations there.

5088. Is this a vote for love and affection?—I do not know anything about it more than that I remember hearing it.

5089. In 1865 did he vote again?—Yes, and he went against us then.

5090. So that his vote in 1863 was purely for Mr. Dent and not for party?—The poor man got insolvent and bankrupt between the two elections, and then he went away to London, he was one of the bad votes which I forgot to tell you of the other day; I hope you will allow me to make a summary when you close up the evidence as regards my opinion upon the state of the register. There were six men outside the seven miles, they had got no right to vote, I believe it is a misdemeanor for them to vote, but they did vote; this man was in London and he came down.

5091. Has he recovered from his insolvency in consequence of his vote?—He went back again; George Parrott over the water managed him. There ere overtures made to him, we tried to get at him in ondon.

5092. What extent did you intend to go to for him? -Anything reasonable.

5093. 200*l.* or 300*l.*?—Not so much as that, that ould be rather too much for him, I wrote a letter to m.

5094. Did you get an answer?—No, I did not; I ot a friend to write, a Mr. Ough wrote to him.

5095. Do you know who managed him on the her side?—I think George Parrott or Mr. Endle, of Teston. Young Endle seemed to have pretty much to o with the money. That was stated in Mogridge's idence.

5096. (Mr. Longe.) Why is one man worth 100*l.* d another worth 200*l.*?—If he is a regular Liberal, ou want to get a convert; he is worth more because e get the man from the other side.

5097. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose you had been ying to get him round to your side?—Mr. Thomas?

5098. Yes?—Oh! yes, I believe you.

5099. You cannot tell what he is worth?—No.

5100. (Mr. Bere.) You spoke yesterday of a ajority before the election and before the day of olling—of a Conservative majority?—Yes, fair and onest, and if they had gone to the poll, and there as no bribery, we should have had a majority of otes—20.

5101. And that number of Conservatives, would ou say, are always in the habit of receiving?—Yes.

5102. What do you mean by "without bribery"? -Supposing there was no bribery.

5103. No money going?—Suppose a compact en- red into between both parties.

5104. You have no test to apply for these men— e genuine Conservatives?—They always go with ; they attend our meetings and approve of our inciples.

5105. (Mr. Coleridge.) Suppose there is no money oing at all, and the register in that state, how many ould not take the trouble to go to the poll?—That as the case last time; 20 or more of ours did not me up; they did not take any more interest in it. What use is it? I remember one man saying to me -I mean Francis Hayward—on the list. I went to m and asked him, "How is it you did not go to vote?" He says, "Nobody came up for me."

5106. Is it the habit of every voter to be taken up somebody to vote?—No, they walk and go down e men, or they ought to do so.

5107. (Mr. Bere.) Where did you write to Hole?— had the address at the time from Mr. Ough.

5108. Do you remember the contents of the letter? -It was no offer of money. I only wanted to get him to know what his ideas were. I understood was a thorough Conservative. I could hardly get him. It would not do to put anything about oney on paper.

5109. How long before the election?—Mr. Ough, think, wrote about a week or a fortnight before the ection. I think he will give you the address.

5110. (Mr. Bere.) Is there only one William ole?—Only one.

5111. Now Richard Hoppin; he voted against you? -Yes.

5112. Did you canvass him?—No, he would not low me to come near him. They called him the Harberton Bull." He has a tremendous voice, and ars like a lion. He is a strong, muscular man, and ou cannot get near him at all.

5113. Suppose you sent Mr. Manning to him?— size he would do; if he had got pluck he would a good match for him.

5114. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had he always voted beral?—He is a genuine Liberal.

5115. He voted for you?—Whether he got paid r his field I would not say.

5116. Henry Heath?—He is an old Tory; always our side.

5117. Has the father anything to do with you?— o; the blacksmith.

5118. No relation to the "Seven Stars"?—No.

5119. Is he a matter-of-course man?—If money was going about, being a thorough honest man and true, I should send him down a 10*l.* note.

5120. As a matter of course, without asking him? —Yes, because he is a poor man.

5121. Being poor and being honest seems to lower the value at once?—Yes, the more dishonest you are the higher price you get.

5122. Theodore Hannaford; he voted against you? —There was almost a conversion in that case once, I think. You will find in one election he only voted for Seymour, and did not vote for Mills. He is a printer. I do not think the printing bills were so heavy as they ought to have been that year or this election.

5123. But did he vote?—I know he did. He is what we call the malignant correspondent of the "Western Times." He puts in some curious articles there about myself.

5124. What is the organ in which you answer him?—I do not lower myself to scurrility.

5125. What is the Conservative paper?—We think the "Western Morning News" is a reasonable paper. If I have a letter to send I send it to the "Western Morning News." I sent the letter of Mr. Pender to the "Western Morning News," and they would not put it in.

5126. He has never been converted?—He is Tory blood; he came from a Tory stock, and ought to be true.

5127. Now Mr. Robert Harris?—That is myself. I was born and bred a Tory, and a Tory I am now.

5128. Have you anything in particular to tell us about yourself?—No.

5129. Anything you know of yourself?—I am one of those kind of men that is very well pleased with himself.

5130. (Mr. Bere.) Were you brought up under the benign influence of the "Seven Stars"?—Oh! no.

5131. (Mr. Coleridge.) You are Totnes bred and born?—Yes.

5132. Samuel Heath, what is he?—Brother to John Heath; he votes.

5133. Always Conservative?—Yes, generally speaking Conservative, and one for the Seymour party.

5134. One for the Seymour?—Mr. Michelmore is a customer of his, and he pays the Liberal party.

5135. Did he vote for Dent at the single election too?—I rather think our friend Mr. Durant was rather free with him.

5136. He seems to have changed his opinion, because in 1852 he votes Seymour and Mills?—Mr. John Heath, of the "Seven Stars," he has changed; he is not like one of the true stock. There is another Samuel Heath. Of course a man may change his views; for instance, if he accept an office.

5137. There is only one?—That was the old man.

5138. Was it not Samuel Heath, of Grove?—No.

5139. Samuel Heath, smith, behind the walls?— That was the old man.

5140. Now Samuel Heath; what consideration did he have for his vote?—I do not think he had any.

5141. Was he one of those honest men that you would send a 10*l.* note to after the election?—It would be rather an insult to him.

5142. Hardly a matter-of-course man?—I cannot answer.

5143. William Hannaford?—Yes, he voted for us. He had a good round journey for it up here.

5144. Let us hear about him; did he always vote Conservative?—I will give you his history, and what he states himself. He was the son of Mr. Hannaford, what we used to call the major, in Half-moon Street, and Mr. Hannaford was a Tory or Conservative always out-and-out; when he got down there he felt himself rather bound to Mr. Dunn and Mr. Seymour. I might say he has not got a very attractive appearance, and he was not struck with Mr. Seymour's appearance.

5145. I thought that had more effect upon the

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

ladies than the gentlemen?—It has an effect upon gentlemen. If you was to become a candidate, you would have good effect in Totnes elections.

5146. Now go on?—I related this fact to a young gentleman called Gill, where he was in the habit of doing a day's work gardening now and then, and he could not see his way clear how to get out of it. This Mr. Gill suggested that he should make himself scarce, and he consented to do it. I believe he went down the river somewhere or other. I might say in that case his wife was not to be aware of the fact, so that it was done as a kind of blind to her, only so far as the party was concerned, consequently they took him to Torquay and kept him there till the time for polling, and drove him home all right.

5147. Is that the last?—1865?

5148. How did he vote last time?—He expressed contrition to me and Mr. Dunn, and said he would never offend again.

5149. (Mr. Bere.) He was going to turn him out?—His father gave him notice.

5150. Some of the Liberal party came forward?—When they saw him in my company they said, 'Harris will have him."

5151. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was he to have for it?—I do not think he had anything, not a farthing.

5152. Was he one of those that you looked on as one to whom it was a correct thing to send 10*l.* to?—I should also fancy I ought to, because he was a poor man; he was not our man, he was a Liberal man before.

5153. (Mr. Bere.) You did not go to Torquay yourself?—No.

5154. Was it known for whom he voted when he was taken?—I heard some one say he was intoxicated or inebriated. He was perfectly sober, as I am at this moment; he took my arm.

(Mr. Coleridge.) I think we have got into a little confusion on the point on what we call the matter-of-course men. You say, the Duke's men, they voted for him as a matter of course; when I put the question I mean the class to which you apply the 50 Liberals and the 75 Conservatives, who would receive a sum of money without anything being said about that. Bear that in mind, and it will save confusion when I put a question The last was William Hannaford; now Samuel Hill is the next.

5155. (Mr. Longe.) There are a certain number of Conservatives or men on your side who always count upon receiving something or other on every occasion?—I have no doubt, I have no personal knowledge of it. I should suspect so; that would come from another channel.

5156. What channel would that come from?—Mr. Helms would be able to give information about that.

5157. (Mr. Coleridge.) If I understand, you have kept so clear of the actual money transactions that you are not in a condition to say the proportion that would come as a matter of course, and those that are bought at a larger price?—No.

5158. Heath and Helms would?—Yes; my position, save at the election of 1859, was, that I never had or saw, that I remember, any monetary transactions at all.

5159. So I understand the nearest thing you go to it is this, you talk to the people and get a sort of inkling, which you communicate elsewhere?—Yes; and at the election of 1863 I think I communicated all the facts to Mr. Mitchell.

5160. You do not know where Mr. Mitchell is now?—I think he is in China.

5161. Mr. Dent too?—I do not think Mr. Dent is, I think he is in New York, so I have heard. I think he is coming home, will be home in a month, or perhaps two months; I have heard so, I do not know whether it is so.

5162. The person who knows most about the election of 1863 is Mr. Mitchell?—Yes, no doubt.

5163. He is the person who could tell us about the black man?—Yes.

5164. Who would be most likely to tell us about Mr. Mum in the election of 1865?—I do not know. I know nothing about it.

5165. Mr. Guscotte?—I do not know. I have no communication with any solicitor.

5166. I did not know whether you could tell us who he was?—I understood that the man was coming with some money, or something of that sort.

5167. Since yesterday have you had any communication with Mr. Edmonds as to the question of the proposed settlement by the payment of the 20,000*l.* of the petition?—Yes, I have.

5168. Can you tell us now by whom the telegraphic message to Colonel Dawkins was sent?—I do not know. I saw Mr. Edmonds last night, and I said, "You heard my statement, I believe I stated what was "correct;" and he said, "Yes, Mr. Harris, perfectly "correct, every word correct."

5169. You are not in a position to give us further information about the offer of the 20,000*l.* to settle the petition?—No, Mr. Guscotte I think is the only one.

5170. Do you know from whom the telegram came to say Mum was coming?—No, I do not.

5171. Do you know to whom it was sent?—No; whether sent by telegram or letter I cannot say. I got the information. I do not know how it came.

5172. Have you found out whether it was sent to Mr. Heath?—No; I cannot tell anybody who knows. The only information was that a gentleman was coming, whether by letter or by telegraph I cannot tell, most probably by letter. My private impression is that it came to Captain Pim. It runs in my mind that Captain Pim was the man who recived the message.

5173. Can you bring your mind to say whether Mr. Spofforth was the person who sent the man?—No.

5174. Or Mr. Rennie?—No; if he had he would have communicated it to me.

5175. For diplomatic reasons he might not have communicated with you?—I do not know.

5176. Who are the warm supporters of your party, but such outsiders as not to be implicated, to whom that message might have been sent, supposing it was not Captain Pim, Heath, or Edmonds?—I cannot tell you. It was a secret; but that the man had come from some source, and was a friend of Colonel Dawkins, and had got plenty of money, was a rumour in circulation.

5177. You cannot tell who first mentioned to you the fact?—I have tried to brush my memory up and I have mentioned it, but I cannot find out.

5178. We have got a mysterious stranger, Mum in 1865, and a black man in 1863?—Which man I never saw.

5179. In 1862, before Dent withdrew, was there any mysterious stranger?—I never heard of any; they did not open the bags at all.

5180. They brought some?—Yes; Helms told me he brought them.

5181. And he took them away?—Yes.

5182. Now Mr. Samuel Hill resides in the Plymouth Road?—Yes.

5183. Did you canvass him?—No. I had nothing to do with him, only what I related that he had been disappointed in days gone by; that Mr. Parnell had received 25*l.* at the elections which he had not handed over, and he was told that by one of the Liberal party.

5184. He was in my sense of the word a matter-of-course man, who ought to have 25*l.*?—He was not our man before that.

5185. That was the election of 1863?—I think so.

5186. How did he vote in 1862?—I do not know. I think he did vote for Pender at that time; I am not certain.

5187. According to your theory he came over to you in 1863 because he had not had his 25*l.* regularly paid over before?—You see how he voted in 1859. Did he vote for Dunn? I really do not know.

5188. He voted for Mills and Dunn. In 1862 he oted for Pender, in 1863 for you, and this time he plit again ?—Yes.

5189. He is a man who has been wavering between he two parties all along ?—Yes. I do not know anyhing about money transactions except when he came o me.

5190. In 1865 ?—Yes.

5191. You have had nothing to do with canvassing him in any way ?—No.

5192. Samuel Hill, junior, of Fore Street voted against you ?—Yes.

5193. Is he the son of Samuel Hill, senior?—Yes.

5194. How do you account for his voting one way and the father another ?—That is the time the 200*l.* was sent. Mr. Lorimer carried him 200*l.* which he returned. He afterwards sent to Mr. Pender, and Mr. Pender referred him to Mr. Cuming, and the result of it was that he became a bankrupt and those men had to pay the money.

5195. (Mr. Longe.) Lately you say he has had something ?—I am referring to 1863.

5196. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you say Mr. Pender had paid those people back ?—That is hearsay evidence.

5197. Lorimer and Samuel Hill appear on the schedule of Hill as creditors ?—I do not know.

5198. How had Samuel Hill voted on the previous occasions ?—Always Liberal.

5199. He voted for the Liberals last time ?—Yes.

5200. Now Mr. Henry Helms ?—That is the gentleman with Mr. Dent's money bags.

5201. In 1863 were you associated with Mr. Helms at all carrying on this work ?—No.

5202. What was the position Mr. Helms took on that occasion, was he an agent of Mr. Dent ?—Mr. Dent was not aware that the man was living here when he came. In 1862 Mr. Mitchell came here, I remember his coming first. He came without any person knowing, he was coming when there was a meeting in this hall, and when Mr. Pender was here. After it was over he had an interview with myself, and asked me what I thought about matters; I told him I thought, as I always believed, that the borough is notoriously corrupt, and it was no use bringing a person unless they had plenty of money to spend. He communicated the fact to Mr. Dent, and he told me that Mr. Dent was a rich man.

5203. And the money would be forthcoming ?—No doubt that he could advance six to any man's half dozen.

5204. Was the communication made to you alone ?—Yes.

5205. Not in the presence of Mr. Helms ?—He did not know Mr. Helms.

5206. Who introduced him to Mr. Helms ?—After it got rumoured abroad that Mr. Dent was likely to come, Capt. Helms heard it; he was a captain in the employ of Mr. Dent; and he said, "John Dent! why 'that is my master, I have got a thousand pound 'note from them, they gave me 1,000*l.* on my leaving 'their service."

5207. Was he captain of one of their ships ?—Yes, one of the pilot ships.

5208. Are you sure about that, that Helms was in Dent's employ ?—Yes.

5209. Was he captain in the navy ?—No.

5210. Master of a ship ?—They called him captain.

5211. Skipper ?—Yes, something of that sort.

5212. Did he go and introduce himself to Mr. Dent as having been in their employ ?—I think that was communicated to Mr. Mitchell; he had an interview, and soon found out they were all connected.

5213. You as Conservative agent were in communication with Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. Mitchell was in communication with Mr. Helms ?—Yes.

5214. Was Mr. Helm in communication with you at all ?—No, he showed me a note on demand or promise to pay or something of that kind.

5215. Did you take the trouble to look at the date of the note ?—No.

5216. Was it long anterior ?—Some years prior to his coming here.

5217. How came he to have the note? I suppose he had cashed it ?—It was to remain in their hands and they were to pay interest. He thought it as good as a bank note.

5218. If they were to pay interest how came he to hold it ?—It would be as a matter of course that he held the note.

5219. It was not to be put back to their account ?—No; it was a kind of promissory note for which he received interest. He showed me the note, I remember seeing the document.

5220. After this you and Helms may be taken jointly to be the active men ?—Oh no, I do not think Helms was an active man, he got linked up with a lady down the town whom I did not admire at all. He visited a Mrs. Thomas, who was what I call an outrageous woman.

5221. Politically or morally ?—Nothing immoral; but politically, a very strong partizan.

5222. For which party ?—On the Liberal side. She was a widow and he was a bachelor.

5223. (Mr. Longe.) You did not trust him after that ?—I did not like to confide in him after that. He was in bad company.

5224. (Mr. Coleridge.) He got into a bad state of political atmosphere ?—Yes, that is what they say about Mr. Pender, he was in bad company when he talked to me. If he was a wise man he ought to have kept out of my company.

5225. He did not know he was watched ?—It was in the street.

5226. You distrusted Captain Helms because he got into Mrs. Thomas' company ?—They had been friendly for some years. It was not an acquaintance originating in the election; it was an acquaintance of old standing.

5227. What was your distrust? Was it that you thought he had got into society in which it might be dangerous to confide your secrets ?—Knowing the female influence at times, I thought there might be some time when he would reveal the whole.

5228. You thought it was not prudent to tell more than you could help ?—Yes.

5229. But Mr. Mitchell did not take that view of Captain Helms' association with Mrs. Thomas ?—He was a bachelor himself, and did not know the ins and outs of the ladies so much as I did.

5230. (Mr. Bere.) Did Mr. Mitchell consult Mrs. Thomas in the affairs of the borough ?—I have no idea.

5231. (Mr. Coleridge.) When Captain Helms visited Mrs. Thomas did he take Mr. Mitchell ?—I do not know.

5232. Knowing the danger of women, you felt that was a reason for not confiding in Captain Helms ?—Yes.

5233. Mr. Mitchell went on confiding in him ?—Yes.

5234. Captain Helms was about with Mitchell ?—I do not think he was about. I remember he came up once in the committee room, and they did not approve of it, or with having anything to do with him. The committee were rather dissatified with the employment of Captain Helms.

5235. We may take it that Captain Helms rather got the cold shoulder from the Conservative supporters ?—Yes.

5236. Then beyond having been the means of introducing money into the borough he had nothing to do with the election ? He did not canvass ?—He did lend some money to James Rees. Whether he lent it with the idea of getting his vote I do not know.

5237. In 1862 ?—Yes.

5238. What did he lend ?—Some hundreds of pounds.

5239. Was James Rees one of the five who voted for Dent ?—No, he is a Radical; whether he wanted to convert him or not I do know.

5240. Did he vote for Pender ?—Yes.

5241. Was Helms down in 1863 ?—Yes.

5242. Who brought the money down in 1863 ?—

SIXTH DAY.
Mr. R. Harris.
29 Aug. 1866.

I do not know how the money came in 1863, whether the black man or Helms brought it.

5243. Was Helms staying here?—Yes, he still resided here.

5244. And was still visiting Mrs. Thomas?—Yes. She was a dangerous character politically speaking.

5245. In 1863 you, Mr. Mitchell, and Captain Helms were again of course thrown together. Although you distrusted Captain Helms, as your principal trusted him you could not sever yourself from him?—I do not think I had much to do with him. I might have had the usual conversation with him.

5246. Captain Helms was here in 1863 as well, but you do not know anything that he had to do with the money in 1865?—I do not.

5247. Did Captain Helms take any part on the Conservative side in 1865?—Oh! no, he did not vote; he was away.

5248. In fact his interest was a personal interest for Mr. Dent?—Yes.

5249. How had Helms voted before Dent came to the borough?—He never voted before; I never knew him to vote in the council or anywhere else.

5250. Did you know at all what his political opinions were from your knowledge?—No, I did not know at all.

5251. From his association with Mrs. Thomas you thought he was on the Liberal side?—I thought he was in bad company.

5252. The next name is Richard Aish Huxham; he voted for Seymour?—Yes, I think the first vote he had.

5253. Did you try him?—No.

5254. Did you know he was a Liberal?—I did not know exactly. He was living in a Tory house.

5255. In Fore Street?—Yes, living in Mr. Gill's house. I went to Mr. Gill and asked if he knew his state, but he said he would not ask the tenant for a vote; he was not like the Duke of Somerset. I think that is all I know about him.

5256. You did not make any attempt upon him?—No.

5257. Do you suppose he got anything from the other side?—He was a poor man, but he has got up within the last few years. But some men make extraordinary springs.

5258. Did you put him down among the matter-of-course men, or to be bought by higher means?—I would rather look upon him as being an honest man.

5259. On the last occasion how did Huxham vote?—He voted Liberally.

5260. Do you know anything about his getting anything then?—No. I may say Richard Aish Huxham was very friendly with the Cumings, and whether they contaminated him or Huxham contaminated the Cumings I do not know. When you see men very friendly you may make up your mind there is something up.

5261. Except electioneering time?—Yes.

5262. Does this strong political feeling go on except at elections?—Yes, there is always something. The Duke of Somerset never will surrender. He fights to the last drop of blood; he will have everything. I say he shall not, and we two do not agree.

5263. I dare say he gave you a recommendation to Cambridge to get rid of you?—Not he.

5264. Now something about Joseph Hannaford?—Screach says he bribed him the last time.

5265. In 1863?—I know nothing about him.

5266. 1862, did you know anything about him?—I heard in olden times he was one of the Lapstone club.

5267. The Lapstone club I thought were all Liberals?—It was before my time; but although I was a boy I remember the circumstances, reading the particulars about the man getting into the hole, and hearing all the conversation.

5268. You said a short time ago that the Lapstone club were all a Liberal body as a rule?—Yes.

5269. Then Joseph Hannaford, he was a Liberal?—You will see there.

(Mr. Bere.) Gifford and Mackenzie?

(The Witness.) How in Ricardo's time?

(Mr. Bere.) He did not vote.

5270. (Mr. Coleridge.) He was one of Screach's men?—It was said so, but I question whether it was so. He was called "Ginger-pop."

5271. Why was he called "Ginger-pop"?—Because he makes ginger beer.

5272. Have you heard that Screach bribed him?—I have heard it.

5273. Did he say what he gave him?—No.

5274. The old Screach or the young one?—The young one.

5275. The next is John Heath (Grove), voted for Seymour?—I believe that man has been tried, and tempted hither and thither, and every influence brought to bear against him, but he always stood fireproof.

5276. Always stood to the Liberals?—Yes.

5277. How did you treat him in 1862?—He was a poor man, and I put him among the class paid by the Liberals.

5278. Paid regularly?—Yes, I have always looked upon him as a man (and we have had a fair good shot at him) to whom, if you make him an offer, make him a reasonable one.

5279. That is a little different. You said there was a sort of honour amongst you; that you did not try the matter-of-course men?—He was a youngish man. That Samuel Heath was his father.

5280. In 1862 how did you try him?—I do not know, I never tried him myself.

5281. Who was it tried him?—I do not know. I remember in conversation with a gentleman his name being brought up.

5282. He voted for Pender in 1862?—Yes.

5283. In 1863 did you try him?—I think almost every election.

5284. Did you try him yourself?—No.

5285. No conversation with him?—No.

5286. You never canvassed him?—No, his ideas and mine never could get into harmony.

5287. Thomas Hardin, Fore Street?—That is the son of old Mr. Hardin, who used to be the regular briber, the old Whig briber.

5288. I see he voted in accordance with his father's views?—Yes; if you have him down I think he can tell you a little.

5289. Had he a vote in 1862?—I think one election he did not vote, if you kindly look back 5290. How did Hardin vote in 1865?—Against us.

5291. Was he tried by you?—I think he was, but I am not certain; I think Mr. Gilbert will tell you something about that gentleman.

5292. Do you think Gilbert tried him in 1863 and in 1865?—I do not know, he will be able to tell you when you get him down.

5293. Did you try him in 1865 yourself?—No, he is a man I never tried; I had a little conversation with him in the Ashburton Road, and in that conversation he gave me to understand that he was open to consideration.

5294. Before the election of 1865?—Yes, he had a paralytic stroke.

5295. Had you any conversation about his misfortune, about wanting a little help?—No, he has got a good business.

5296. He did not say "When a man is afflicted he "wants a little help"?—No.

5297. Did you get at all at his price?—No. His general conversation was that he was not pleased with the Liberals, and that is a sympton of disease.

5298. Did you tell him money was coming?—No this was long before the election. He was a man I was never in the habit of conversing with at all.

5299. You had this conversation with him?—Yes.

5300. Did you say that money would be going and hat you should recollect him, or that he might come o you again?—No, I did not say that to him.

5301. Having had this overture on his part before, at the election did not you think he was a likely man o be got after that?—I think some one was put upon him.

5302. Did you put that man upon him?—No.

5303. I suppose you reported his shaky state at head-quarters and some one was put upon him?—Yes.

5304. It would be owing to the conversation you had with him in the Ashburton Road that some one would be put upon him?—Yes, a private mark would be put against him, "Try A.B.—he is shaky." That would be on the poll book, a private memorandum like on Charles Michelmore's.

5305. Did you destroy your poll book?—I think I gave mine to Colonel Dawkins; I only had one.

5306. What did you do with the poll book of 1863?—I do not know that I had any.

5307. You say you used to put a mark against them, therefore you must have had some book?—I have not now.

5308. You have not for 1863?—No, nor 1862. I have nothing beside this small book in my hand.

5309. What class did you put Thomas Hardin in, in the class regularly paid?—Yes.

5310. Regularly bought or regularly paid?—I should look upon him as the slippery company class.

5311. He would not be contented with 25*l.* at the election?—He knew that his father had been sucking at bribery, and he very likely might say, "I know "there is money going, and I intend to have a little."

5312. A little in the regular way, to be put on the "matter-of-course" list, or did he go in for a large sum?—Very likely this; for instance, a man may not make overtures to a Conservative, like as a Conservative would not make overtures to a Liberal, but there are some signs of disease on the man exhibited to the leaders of the party. He might say I am not satisfied, or something of that sort. And as soon as that occurs we must set these defects to rights, that is to say, with 40*l.* or 50*l.*, which Mr. Condy spoke of, Screach was affected; and there was Gilham, he was dissatisfied, and several others were dissatisfied, and all those things have got to be mended, and we must make it a sound case.

5313. What was the date of Mr. Screach's proselytism?—I think he voted against us in 1852 and 1859.

5314. That is the old gentleman?—Yes.

5315. The young one was always on your side?—No, he is not a voter.

5316. He always worked for you?—No.

5317. Now the next name is Samuel Huxham, jun.?—He had a magistracy for that.

5318. That is once for all?—He will be right for life now.

5319. Henry J. T. Hodder?—He is clerk of Mr. Kellocks.

5320. He voted for you?—Yes, he is safe; he must go with the Tories. I heard he did not get anything except the polling clerks' two or four guineas.

5321. Charles Hoare, Dean Prior?—He is a farmer, and I never heard of his having money.

5322. Did you ever try him?—No, he is a good man and true.

5323. William Hamlyn?—He was an election agent, I think, the last time; I do not know whether the time before, and perhaps he got 10*l.* or 15*l.*

5324. You mean the election agent for the expenses?—Yes.

5325. Lewis Harris, Fore Street?—He was a doctor.

5326. Was he free and independent?—Yes.

5327. Edwin Jordain, "King William the Fourth"?—He did not vote.

5328. Do you know the reason of his not voting?—Let me see, this lady called Thomas—what was there connected with that affair? This gentleman had to supply somewhere about 60*l.* or 80*l.* worth of wine. I have heard so, but it is purely hearsay.

5329. In 1863?—Yes, there was open house at Mrs. Thomas's, wine, sandwiches, ginger beer, and anything you wanted, and Mr. Jordain supplied it.

5330. How did he vote in 1862?—I do not think he voted. I do not think he voted at all except for Mr. Thomas Holman as councillor—a plumper. He is an extraordinary man, but to keep him quiet he had to supply the wine there.

5331. Where was it supplied?—I think to Mrs. Thomas.

5332. Is Mrs. Thomas alive?—Yes, and jolly and fat as ever.

5333. In 1865 how did he vote?—He did not vote at all.

5334. Had he this order for liquor?—I do not think he had.

5335. Had he and Mrs. Thomas fallen out?—I do not think the liquor trade was carried on.

5336. William Edward James, Plymouth Road; did he vote against you?—Yes, I think he had an offer; he is the station master.

5337. Who did him?—I do not know; he will tell you all about that.

5338. Do you know whether he got anything from the Liberal side or not?—When they are open to receive a temptation from the Tories, it is an indication that they get something from the Liberals.

5339. Do the railway company use their influence here?—The railway party are Liberals.

5340. Who is the chairman of the South Devon?—Mr. Woolcombe.

5341. He is a Liberal?—An out-and-outer.

5342. Who is the traffic manager?—Mr. Cockshot was.

5343. What is Cockshot?—A Radical, I think. I have heard so.

(Mr. Bere.) The deputy chairman is a strong Tory, and Mr. Woolcombe is a Liberal, so that the influence would not be strong.

5344. (Mr. Coleridge.) You do not know whether the railway people are influenced or coerced?—We lost Smith on the last occasion.

5345. What is he—porter?—Yes. I do not know the reason why. He will tell you whether there was influence beyond.

5346. At the time of the last election who was the deputy chairman?—I think Mr. Derry.

5347. Which way is Derry?—Liberal.

5348. During 1863 they were both Liberals?—Yes.

5349. Any influence used would be for the Liberals?—Yes.

5350. How many are there voters?—I think four.

5351. Was James at the railway in 1862?—Yes.

5352. Did he vote for Pender always?—Yes.

5353. John Sloggett Jenkins?—That is the gentleman you asked me about yesterday. He was a schoolmaster in Plymouth one time. He married and got a little money and came here to reside; very bumptious.

5354. Did he always vote Liberally?—That was the first time he voted. I remember the first time he came to the hall he made a speech, a very extraordinary thing for a man coming to a place like that to make himself officious.

5355. Did you think he was a likely person to try?—I think he wants a situation to be a school inspector at 500*l.* or 600*l.* a year.

5356. Did you have any conversation about the power of the Conservatives to help him to that?—No, I had a little conversation to see what he was before he was on the register. I found he was a "Rad.," and then I did not touch him.

5357. Did you try him?—He was one of those persons I could not get at.

5358. Did others?—He was hot, sweet, and strong for Pender.

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

5359. Did he vote for him?—Yes, I think he is deputy secretary.

5360. He had been thick with Pender?—He is hot, sweet, and strong, uncommon sweet on Pender. He goes to Mr. Pender's office, for when a friend of mine was there out he came.

5361. What is Jenkins doing now?—Nothing; whether watching the registration I do not know.

5362. What was your friend doing at Mr. Pender's?—I do not know. He was the member you know.

5363. Mr. Kellock, he is a surgeon?—Yes; his father was the mayor, and one of the old staunch freemen who never had a penny in his life, and was as true as a rock.

5364. The next is John Kelland?—He is a tenant of the gentleman described as being six feet long.

5365. Tell us something about him; he voted for the Liberals you say; had he always voted for the Liberals?—Yes; Mr. Manning does not try to coerce him; he does as he pleases.

5366. Did you try to do anything with the two-yard man?—We objected, and that objection made him a Liberal. We can tell who is a Liberal by his looks.

5367. How do you manage to do that?—If you see a Liberal he is sure to have a downcast look.

5368. Then you do not require to have any conversation with them to find out what they are?—No.

5369. Was Mr. Kellock made a magistrate?—He was nominated as such by the council.

5370. When was that?—Before Mr. Webber was made they had had a majority; but Lord Westbury cared as much about the recommendation of the council as about the snap of his fingers; he only cared for his own sons.

5371. He had a recommendation, but was never made one?—No.

5372. Do you remember any one recommended by the council who was not made by the Chancellor?—Yes, Mr. William Bentall and Mr. Thomas Edward Owen.

5373. Were they all Conservatives?—Yes.

5374. How many magistrates have you in this place?—Seven. I saw six here the other day.

5375. At the time they were recommended were there seven?—No, there had been some deaths; Mr. Huxham died, and they put in his son, and when Mr. Soper died they put in two to make up his vacancy.

5376. Was not the reason Lord Westbury refused to make those, that he thought there were enough?—No, because he made others.

5377. (Mr. Bere.) You must know that the appointment of magistrates is left to the member of Parliament, and that the Lord Chancellor, except formally confirming it, has no more to do with it than you have?—I was not aware of that.

5378. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do not you know any instance in which Liberal magistrates have been refused in the same way?—I never knew an instance.

5379. As to Thomas Kinsman, Fore Street, was he always a Liberal?—He has always been a Liberal.

5380. Was Thomas Kinsman one of the independent Liberals?—He was not exactly an independent Liberal, but he was one of those who wanted a situation for his nephew.

5381. Had he always been a Liberal?—I remember Mrs. Kinsman telling me that Earl Gifford had promised her a situation for young Mr. Kinsman on his leaving the town, and that he did not comply with the promise which he had so made, or adhere to it, and consequently she was rather dissatisfied when Mr. Mills came down here.

5382. Mr. Kinsman always voted for the Liberals?—Yes.

5383. How did you get hold of Kinsman, did you have any conversation with him?—No.

5384. Did you return him as a likely person to be got hold of?—Yes.

5385. For what reason did you think he was a likely man?—He was working with uncle, and was not a man with a very high intellect, a man likely to be tempted with a handful of gold.

5386. But Thomas Kinsman the uncle?—He is not bribed. Young Kinsman, he worked with his uncle.

5387. How did you get hold of him?—His wife was a Conservative, and it is a capital thing if you can get hold of the better half.

5388. And you canvassed her?—No, I did not; she informed us of certain facts.

5389. Little difficulties he was in?—And she would aid us in looking him up. She was something like Cross's party with regard to Putt; the Duke's party, Cross's party, got him and we could not get him.

5390. How much do you think young Kinsman got?—I have not heard the amount.

5391. Who dealt with him?—I have no idea at all; he will tell you, he is in the town.

5392. Thomas Creaser Kellock?—That is the mayor; he would get his fee.

5393. Frederick Kellock?—He is the same, a lawyer.

5394. Edwin Thomas Lizard?—He is what we call the Duke's slave; he is a tenant, that is to say, he rents a farm as well as having a fee.

5395. Is he always Liberal?—He is bound to go that side.

5396. Without any consideration?—Yes.

5397. One of those who expect to get something from their election?—No.

5398. You put him above that?—Yes.

5399. Robert Lake?—He was the Duke's tenant at that time.

5400. Now what part did Mr. Thomas Creaser Kellock take in the election of 1863?—I do not remember; I do not think he took any active part.

5401. He was not an agent?—I do not know.

5402. Did he take any part in the election of 1862?—I do not know.

5403. Did he take any part in the election of 1865?—Yes, he did.

5404. He was returning officer in 1865?—No, he is now.

5405. Tell us what he did in 1865?—I do not know; he did not do anything illegal to my knowledge, I think he went about canvassing.

5406. Was he in your committee room?—Yes, very frequently of course.

5407. In fact he was cognizant of all the goings on of your party?—We never said anything to him about bribery.

5408. I do not say bribery, the general working of the election?—Yes, he went about canvassing.

5409. He knew as much as the other members of the committee who were kept in the dark?—Very likely.

5410. (Mr. Bere.) Who kept your poll book or canvass book or whatever you call it for 1863 and 1865?—I think the solicitors would have a poll book of their own.

5411. Mr. Edmonds?—Yes.

5412. (Mr. Coleridge.) I think you said you gave yours to Colonel Dawkins?—Yes; that was when he first came.

5413. Edwin Thomas Lizard?—He is the Duke's tenant.

5414. Then Robert Lake?—He was the Duke's tenant.

5415. He voted for you?—He voted for us; he got some money to do it I believe and got turned out.

5416. Did you canvass him?—No, I had nothing to do with him.

5417. You had no conversation at all with him?—No.

5418. (Mr. Bere.) You seem to have had very little to do with these people at the 1863 election?—I was not at that class of man at all.

5419. Do you know who did him?—No; he is here and can tell you.

5420. Was it Niner?—I have no idea.

5421. Young Heath?—I do not know, it may be.

5422. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know at all what he got?—No; a tolerable sum I should think.

5423. You do not know?—No.

5424. How did he vote in 1862?—For Mr. Pender in 1862 I think.

5425. Do you know what he got then?—He told me that Jeffery Michelmore came down to him and told him he would be the ruin of his wife and family if he did not vote, and a host of things of that kind.

5426. Did he tell you that instead of ruining his wife and family he had got something instead?—I do not think he did; I do not remember.

5427. In 1865 how did he vote?—He was not a voter. He rented a mill, which is property of the Duke of Somerset, in the parish of Berry, and he got a young man to take a field of him, so that they objected to him and knocked him off.

5428. Samuel Lane, he voted for you?—He is the relieving officer; I never heard anything about him.

5429. Was he always the same way?—Always a Tory. I believe the only thing that I remember about Lane does not refer to this election. It was about poor Hill, whom Joseph Ferris sent some money to, and he did not carry it to him.

5430. That is not this election?—No.

5431. Then Thomas Laskey, he did not vote I see. Do you know anything about him, why he did not vote in 1863?—He was very ill at the time, and I think they wanted 500*l.* for him.

5432. What is he?—I think of the number that was holding back; he was very ill, and died soon after.

5433. Then he got nothing, or did he get a large sum?—A large sum. I do not know the amount.

5434. Did he get a large sum not to vote?—He was to come down, and was up, dressed, and was waiting to be carried, but old Light was there, and we could not get at him.

5435. Which way was he to have voted?—Michelmore said do not vote, and he said, "If I do I shall "lose my bread," and consequently we could not get at him.

5436. Did he vote for you?—Yes.

5437. You were willing to give him 500*l.*?—Yes.

5438. Which managed him?—I do not know.

5439. Did you go down to see him when he was ill?—No; I went up there once to see his wife, but could not see him.

5440. Did you make any arrangements with the wife?—No.

5441. Did you tell him whether he could have something for his vote?—No.

5442. Nothing of the sort?—No.

5443. How had he voted before?—Always a Tory, a thorough Tory until that, and then we had his last dying speech and confession.

5444. John Light?—He did not vote.

5445. Why did he not vote?—He had money to go away.

5446. Which side?—On our side.

5447. He would have voted against you?—He was always a Liberal.

5448. Did he vote the time before for Mr. Pender?—Yes.

5449. At the last election 1865 he was a Liberal?—Yes; he voted for us on two or three or four occasions, and I think at the council elections his price was 4*l.* We got him all right then.

5450. I suppose having got hold of him not to vote in 1863, he was a man you naturally went to in 1865?—He was fully tempted in 1865.

5451. Screach went to him?—Yes; I think he offered 150*l.*

5452. Did you go at all?—No.

5453. Did not you canvass him at all?—No.

5454. They offered 150*l.* and he voted against you, did not he?—He had more than that from the other side. He is one of those cunning crafty kiddies who knows what he is up to.

5455. Was Parnell the man who did him?—Yes.

5456. Do you know what he gave him?—No. You may rely on it as a certain fact there was more than that offered. We put down 150*l.* as I am informed, and he would not take that. He was up to that, because he had voted for us before, and must have had more to vote against us.

5457. Do you know whether Mr. Windeatt mixed himself up with this?—Yes, and poor old Derry.

5458. (Mr. Bere.) He had never voted for you before?—No; but after that election he had money to stay away.

5459. I thought you said that he had voted for you once before?—In the council; but after that he took that money to remain away. He voted two or three years for us in the council, and had 4*l.* a time.

5460. (Mr. Coleridge.) After the last election had you any conversation with him about his going round again?—No.

5461. Never any conversation with him since?—No.

5462. Did you ever talk to him about Windeatt, what he did with him?—No.

5463. Did you hear of any correspondence between Windeatt and him?—No, I never had any.

5464. Did you hear of any?—Mr. Windeatt I think was a kind of trustee for him. He was entitled to some little yearly stipend arising from some property, I think at Kingsbridge, and Mr. Windeatt had the payment of the money. I do not know exactly how it was. He was terribly disgusted with Mr. Windeatt, because he is what we call a long-winded chap to get money out of his hands. He was poor and had a large family. I believe him to be a thoroughly honest man notwithstanding that.

5465. Robert Lorimer, he did not vote?—No.

5466. (Mr. Bere.) He voted against you in 1865?—Yes. In 1859 he voted for us. He voted for Mr. Mackenzie also.

5467. (Mr. Coleridge.) In 1862 how did he vote?—For Mr. Pender.

5468. How did you manage to prevent his voting in 1863?—He was the man who carried up the money to Sam. Hill, and he told me. I remember going up about three or half-past three that day. Whether there was any heavy pressure or anything brought to bear, or what it was, I do not know.

5469. Do you know what your side gave him not to vote?—I believe the other side gave him a heavy sum not to vote.

5470. He voted for them before?—Yes, he voted for them before.

5471. (Mr. Bere.) He voted for Mackenzie in 1857, and Dunn in 1859?—Yes.

5472. (Mr. Coleridge.) And in 1862 for Mr. Pender?—Yes; but we could not move him after he brought back the money that morning of Hill's.

5473. You saw him yourself?—Yes.

5474. What did you say?—I asked him if it was money he really wanted, if it was to speak out. No, he said, he would take no sum of money at all.

5475. Did he say he had got money from the other side?—No.

5476. What did you think he was going to do, vote against you or not at all?—I thought he was going to vote for us.

5477. When did you offer him money?—I did not offer any money, I asked him if he wanted any money.

5478. When did you ask him that?—I asked him whether he was dissatisfied with anything, and I think he was disgusted with Mr. Hill's conduct, that he had anything at all to do with it.

5479. After you found out that he did not want money, I suppose you thought he was going to vote on the other side?—My impression was at the time that if we could get the other parties, because he asked the question, "How many more have you to

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

"vote?" and if his vote was to carry it he would have gone down and recorded it.

5480. Had he got any money in 1862?—Rumour says so; whether true or not I do not know.

5481. He was a man open to conviction?—I should think he was, by means of his lending himself to do what he did.

5482. Was he a man who on either side was a matter-of-course man?—I have heard that Mr. Pender has lent him a good deal of money lately, or some time ago, and that made him strong on Mr. Pender's side.

5483. Had he been Conservative before he voted for Mr. Pender in 1862; was it at that time that he lent him the money?—Mr. Pender was exceedingly friendly there. I do not think there was any house in the town that he called in at so much as Lorimer's.

5484. That was 1862?—And 1865.

5485. Having voted for Mr. Pender, as you say he had in 1862, how came he in 1863 not to vote at all; why did not he vote on the Liberal side?—I cannot tell. There was some secret behind the scenes, I do not know what.

5486. Do you think he was paid on both sides in 1863?—I do not think he was paid on the Conservative side. No, he was honest enough to return the money, and asked to have a receipt as having paid the money back. I think he has the receipt, I do not know from whom, one of the Conservative party.

5487. In 1865 he voted for Mr. Pender again?—Yes; and he is hot, sweet, and strong for Pender now.

5488. Do you know what he got in 1865?—No. He is a very active man, and he is something like me, he would not work for nothing.

5489. Now there is the next, Thomas Lombardini, Fore Street; he voted for Dent?—Yes.

5490. What is he?—A boot and shoemaker. I never heard anything about that gentleman.

5491. Did not you canvass him?—No; he was not on my list at all.

5492. He is one on your side?—Yes; but he is always good and true.

5493. What do you do before an election here; do you divide the people according as you know them into different lists?—Yes; for instance, we should give George Evens his father-in-law for that reason.

5494. George Evens is a regular canvasser?—Yes.

5495. What class would be given to you?—A class above that rather.

5496. You want to deal with them on a more liberal scale?—No. I should have to deal more with those who are considered Liberals, to try and convert them.

5497. To try your powers of persuasion?—Yes, I had to bring my powers of persuasion to bear, and so on.

5498. What class would be given to the Heaths?—They would have to go after me.

5499. They would have to perfect that which you had ingeniously commenced?—If there was a hole in the ballad they would have to go and mend it; the possibility of putting in a spoke.

5500. They were your lieutenants. Who would be the party which Evens would canvass?—Oh! he would have to do with the black man. The black man would order him where to go.

5501. Whom would he canvass among?—The lower class of voters would be left to Mr. Evens and Helms.

5502. Captain Helms?—No. I do not think Helms had anything to do with that election; 1865 I am speaking of.

5503. Heard and Evens canvassed the lower class, and you with the Heaths as lieutenants?—I do not look at it in that light; I never had anything to do with bribery. I should report to them the state the man was in, a high fever or low.

5504. You put the tempter into the voter's way?—No; I should go to ascertain what his views are, whether open to money.

5505. And then you set them in motion?—Yes, take a bag of money with them and try the man.

5506. Who besides the Heaths had you under you?—Screach.

5507. Who besides?—That is all.

5508. Then the next is Thomas Lampen?—That was a gentleman that was mentioned in the olden times.

5509. (Mr. Bere.) That is a gentleman concerned in the election of 1841?—A very old man.

5510. He voted for Mr. Dent. Did he vote at the last election?—Yes.

5511. Was not there something said at the last election about considering an old man. Did not he say he was an old man and wanted to be considered?—He never had a farthing at the last election.

5512. So we heard, but did not he ask for something?—No. I rather think I put him down among that class we thought would expect a certain sum.

5513. How much?—20*l.* or 25*l.*

5514. But he did not get it?—Not a farthing.

5515. The door was shut too early for him?—Yes, I suppose so. He was in a terrible tear with me. I wanted to know what was up.

5516. The party had served him very bad after the 1865 election?—Yes.

5517. What did he get in 1863?—I was not aware in 1863 or the time before.

5518. Did he tell you in 1863?—No.

5519. What is he?—A basket maker, living in his own house. I inferred from what he said that he was displeased with something or another.

5520. Did he intimate that he was more generously treated in 1863 than 1865?—No.

5521. John Earle Lloyd?—He was one of the petitioners and one of the freemen.

5522. The partner of Mr. Bentall you spoke of yesterday?—Yes.

5523. Jeffery Maye?—He is a gentleman who did not vote. He received a letter,—I am informed so, I am not aware of the fact,—on the morning of the election from Mr. Thomas Michelmore. He had promised us, I may say, prior to this election.

5524. Was he a tenant of the Duke's?—Yes; and qualified on the Duke's property. He received a letter from Mr. Thomas Michelmore stating that the election was likely to be very close, and begging and praying him not to vote against, that he should be turned out of his living if he lost that election.

5525. Did you ever see that letter?—No.

5526. How did you hear it?—It was the current report. John Maye was another elector very strong with us, and I think they went out there with a carriage for him, and lo! and behold, this letter had come, and he would not.

5527. How did he vote in 1865?—For Seymour and Dawkins.

5528. Do you suppose that any money passed?—No; he was beyond anything of that sort.

5529. James Mitchell?—He was an old Tory. He got turned right over at that time. I do not think he voted at that time for Mr. Pender, but he always feels he is indebted to the Seymour party, and consequently he in that instance gave them a vote.

5530. Is he a tenant of theirs?—No. I spoke of a man yesterday, of his voting in 1865 for Seymour a plumper, and this is the gentleman. He lives on leasehold property. I said yesterday something about his death. I think on the house there is one life left. Perhaps he expects to be living when that life dies, and it is leasehold property.

5531. Where you told us about the surveyor?—Yes; quite so.

5532. John Mitchell?—I should think that gentleman gives his votes without any money.

5533. Which side?—The Liberal man.

5534. He voted for the Liberals?—Always a Liberal man.

5535. Not a tenant of the Duke?—Yes.

5536. Is he a slave?—He always goes that side. He is not a man of very great intellect; he does not read much.

5537. What property, any house?—Yes, he has ome property on this side of the way.

5538. The next man is Thomas Mitchell, Seymour Place, Bridgetown. Is he a tenant of the Duke?—They used to call him "the little China boar."

5539. From what peculiar signs of character?—He was very short and thick.

5540. How did he vote?—He was the gentleman referred to when you were asking Mr. Shute in reference to the manufacture of votes at Bridgetown, where Mr. Michelmore got implicated very seriously in reference to this man's manufacture; Mr. Mitchell paid 10*l.* a year rent, of which 10*s.* was returned to him by Mr. Michelmore year after year, notwithstanding he gave him a receipt for 10*l.*

5541. 10*s.* was returned to him, and notwithstanding that he came and swore it was worth 10*l.*?—Mr. Michelmore always sat alongside and acquiesced in what the man stated when that objection was made.

5542. It is not always the rent paid is the true value of the qualification?—No, just so. As far as that, we found that out in the fields. As soon as let by auction they will make a great deal more than now.

5543. George Randle Mitchell, is he an honest man of the party?—Thomas Mitchell was turned out of the house and is not a voter now.

5544. Is the Duke's property, do you consider, let at its full value?—I should think so.

5545. House property as well as land?—Yes. I should not like to give more than 10*l.* a year for that house.

5546. George Randle Mitchell?—He is the son of James Mitchell a butcher at Bridgetown and a tenant of the Duke's.

5547. He votes according to the Duke?—Yes.

5548. Did you try to get at him at all?—No, not of late years.

5549. When did you last try?—I think I last tried in 1852.

5550. Then it was thought of no use to try him again?—I do not know whether he was tried in 1859.

5551. George Mitchell had not a vote then?—No, had not he?

5552. He had a vote in 1857 and voted for Mills and Gifford, and he had a vote in 1859 and voted for Mills and Gifford. He was tried to be got at in 1859 then?—I think at one of the elections I remember something being said about him, but I do not think he had any money. I think he is one of the class that at the sound of the bugle he must come.

5553. He is a slave?—Yes.

5554. The two following, Thomas and Jeffery Michelmore?—They all come in the same way.

5555. Always come as a matter of course?—Yes.

5556. Now Thomas Michelmore had got the key of the borough in his pocket so far as Liberal interest was concerned?—Entirely. He followed out to the letter the orders of the Duke, and the Duke was very conscious. I am fully aware that the Duke was cognizant of everything going on; because you will bear in mind that according to the history of this borough it is a very rare thing to get the Duke of Somerset to come near us. The last time and the last time but one that he came, on a Sunday, he got salutations that must have been very disagreeable to him. In fact he is afraid to come to the borough, he is so disliked. I recollect that he looked like a man with a tail piping in the latter part of the day.

5557. Do you think that Mr. Thomas Michelmore, by his personal influence as well as being agent for the Duke, was really able to return a Liberal member here?—Independent of the Duke's influence?

5558. No; with the Duke's influence and his own. Had not he a good deal of influence himself apart from what the Duke's stewardship gave him?—No, how could he get any.

5559. He was agent for other people, was not he?—He had not any property in the borough, I believe. He was a tenant of Lord Cranstoun. They were manufactured votes for other places brought in from Buckfastleigh and elsewhere by this company I spoke of.

5560. But they were tenants of Lord Cranstoun?—Whom he brought in, but he had them under his thumb—his control, nothing more than that.

5561. How long had he been steward for the Duke?—For as long as I can remember, and his father before him.

5562. Jeffery Michelmore is his son?—Yes.

5563. He succeeded him?—Yes; they say he is a little more tyrannical than his father, whether it is so or not I do not know. He is fiery, he is ginger.

5564. Robert Morgan?—He voted against us at that time. At the previous election he voted for us.

5565. Was any influence used?—I heard he had 60*l.*

5566. At Dunn's election. Had you been to see him yourself?—No.

5567. Was he not one of the gentlemen whom you considered necessary to influence?—No; I have been thinking who did bribe him, but I cannot remember.

5568. I think in 1865 you saw him and intimated?—I had a conversation with him, but he was not come-at-able.

5569. Had you a conversation with him in 1863?—I think I had a little talk.

5570. Just a suggestive talk that money was to be had?—No; of course we knew he was a money man, because after they have once tasted the blood they are sure to want to again.

5571. Charles Frederick Michelmore, he is the cousin, is not he, of Thomas Michelmore?—Yes.

5572. He is the Charles Frederick Michelmore mentioned in the proceedings before the House?—Yes.

5573. What part did he take in 1863?—He was the recognized man then.

5574. Was his father, Charles Michelmore, alive then?—No, he has been dead some time.

5575. Was he acting as the legal adviser with Mr. Windeatt of the Liberal party?—I think he looked upon himself as the legal recognized agent for Mr. Seymour.

5576. You saw him going canvassing about with Mr. Seymour?—Very frequently. At the last election he said he was not agent then.

5577. William Michelmore, who is he?—A regular old staunch Conservative, who never had a farthing in his life.

5578. Is he related to the other?—No.

5579. George Mitchell, was that our friend the currier?—Yes.

5580. What class did you put him in?—Report says he was bribed in Ricardo's time, and he has been bribed every time now, report says so. John Perrott will come into the witness box and tell you that gentleman bribed him himself, although he professed here on oath that he was a purity man.

5581. So that he was not only a briber but a bribee?—Mr. Perrott told me after Mr. Mitchell gave his evidence here, that he had sworn to the greatest lies conceivable, and that he was one of the 25 that held money for the old party, and John Perrott was the one he received it from.

5582. Was John Perrott then one of the 25?—He was one of the 25 I believe.

5583. When was John Perrott a voter; he was not on the list in 1863?—He voted for Mills and Gifford in 1852.

5584. He did not vote at all in 1859?—In 1859 I think he voted.

5585. He voted in 1859, he split?—Yes, for Seymour and Dent; Penny Sharpham will be able to tell you a little of what Mitchell did to him.

5586. Did you go to Admiral Mitchell?—No.

5587. Perhaps he is not in a position to deserve it. John Michelmore?—I never heard of his having money.

5588. Whose side is he?—Our side.

5589. Did he vote for you last time?—He voted for Pender to my surprise, I do not know how he came to do it, Pender and Dawkins.

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

5590. Has he anything to do with the other Michelmores?—No.

5591. Not a cousin?—No.

5592. He never had any money, and to your surprise voted for Mr. Pender?—Yes, I do not think he would if the contest had been close at all.

5593. Did you talk to him about it at all?—No.

5594. Were you present in the booth when he voted?—No, I do not know that I was.

5595. (Mr. Coleridge.) He is one of those who like to vote on the winning side?—I cannot conceive what induced him to vote for Mr. Pender; hints have been thrown out, but I cannot believe them.

5596. (Mr. Bere.) What is he?—A coal merchant.

5597. In pretty good business?—Yes; what was the motive he had I cannot conceive, because he was always a staunch Conservative.

5598. If he voted for Mr. Pender then, do not you think the inducement must have been very stong?—I cannot think evil of the man, because I do not really think he would condescend to accept a bribe.

5599. Has he many children?—Only one. Whatever induced him to vote for Mr. Pender I was astonished when I heard it.

5600. Nicholas Manning, he is the "two yards of bad stuff," is not he?—He is on the Conservative committee, and is always very active; I have heard him say over and over again that he never had a halfpenny in his life.

5601. He always voted for the Conservatives?—Yes.

5602. Richard Mitchell; he voted in 1857 for Mackenzie and Gregory, Conservatives?—Yes.

5603. Who are his tenants?—Charles Fitze, William Farley, John Briggs, and William Callard.

5604. How have these four voted?—Callard votes Liberal; Fitze votes Liberal; Briggs has not got a vote yet, he was turned out from the Duke's property; Fitze went into the slave states and Briggs came into the free states.

5605. Had Briggs voted against the Duke?—Yes.

5606. And had got turned out in consequence?—Yes.

5607. At what election was that?—At this very election.

5608. Now as to Farley, can you tell us how he voted?—In 1863 he voted for Mr. Dent, and so did Fitze.

5609. Do not you know that Mr. Manning got a great deal of money for his tenants though he got none for himself?—I do not know that.

5610. Do not you know that Fitze and Briggs both got money?—Briggs would be found in the Bridgetown lot; Fitze voted for Mr. Manning's house.

5611. You do not know at all what sum of money they got?—No.

5612. Did Fitze have his qualification altered?—He has always voted on our side. I have heard Mr. Manning say that those men never had any money.

5613. Mr. Manning was a farmer, was he not?—He was a retired gentleman.

5614. He was very active during the election, was he not?—He attended the committee meetings and so on.

5615. Did you ever see Mr. Manning and Mr. Mum together?—No, he is not the class of man whom we should ever trust with a matter like that.

5616. Then what was his peculiar use?—He canvassed.

5617. He was a good big strong man, was he not?—Yes; but like a good many more in Totnes, he has not read much. For instance, he was not so well versed in politics as I might be.

5618. Then do you not trust any one on the Conservative side unless you consider him to be well versed in politics?—We generally look out for men who are tolerably well up to the mark.

5619. Robert Mogridge?—He is dead. He said before the committee that he was always "Mr. Most."

5620. When did he die?—He was buried about a fortnight ago.

5621. Was he bribed in 1863?—I concluded that he was from his own observation.

5622. Did you canvass him at all?—No.

5623. What was he?—He was a hay dealer.

5624. William Marks?—He is a grocer; he did not vote at the last election. I thought that he was strong on our side. I never heard of his having been bribed by any one.

5625. You never heard of his having been bribed?—No; if there was any money he might have had a 10*l.* note sent him, as he is a working man with a family.

5626. You would send him some money as a matter of course?—Yes.

5627. Then why did he not vote at the last election?—I have been led to think that Mr. Lorimer brought some influence to bear on him, at least that was the rumour. I am afraid of it.

5628. Accompanied with a little coin you may think?—I do not know what was the influence that was used, but I was surprised that he did not vote.

5629. He had been a voter how long?—He had been a voter many years.

5630. And had always voted on your side?—Yes.

5631. Had he voted on your side at the election for the council as well as at the borough elections?—Yes; he was always what is called our man.

5632. John Maye—he is the brother of Jeffery Maye—it was he who gave you all the information about Mr. Thomas Michelmore, and so on?—Yes, he is a staunch gentleman.

5633. What is he?—He is a man of good means.

5634. The next is Thomas Mugford?—He is the cockle man.

5635. Then, when he has not a very good sale for his cockles sometimes, what effect would that have upon his vote?—I do not believe that if you were to offer him 500*l.* he would turn Whig, although he is a very poor man. If there were any money going, I should certainly conscientiously send that man 25*l.*

5636. Do you know did he have 25*l.*?—I do not know that he had, but I should suppose so.

5637. Then if another election was to take place you think he ought to be considered?—The party ought to look after a man like that, who has been true to his colours, and who is a poor man.

5638. He has never come and asked you for anything?—No.

5639. You think that he would accept what was offered him; that he would not haggle about it?—No; he always answered to the call, like the Duke's men would to Mr. Michelmore.

5640. He would come at the sound of the Conservative trumpet?—Yes.

5641. Even suppose he got nothing?—Yes, I really think he would, conscientiously.

5642. Then, supposing that other people of the same class had got 25*l.*, do you still think that he would come and vote for you if you had given him nothing?—I believe that he would.

5643. (Mr. Coleridge.) If he found out that that had been done once or twice you think he would still come?—I do not think you would turn him; he is an uneducated man, and is very strongly impregnated with Conservative ideas, and when you get hold of a man like that no power under the sun will turn him. If you speak to him he says, I am a Tory, that is his answer to your question.

5644. Did you ever ask him if he knew what a Tory was?—No; he does not know what a Tory is any more than that book.

5645. (Mr. Bere.) Charles George Mason, what is he?—He is a gentleman; one of Mr. Durant's tenants, and he is a thorough Conservative; he said he wished Mr. Dent success, but he could not vote for him, as he was afraid of his landlord. He votes so as to please Mr. Durant; he told me so.

5646. You think he is enchained by that influence?—Yes.

5647. Did you ever ask him if he knew what a onservative meant?—He is a very respectable gen-eman.

5648. Is he a farmer?—Yes.

5649. A person who farms a large property?—Yes; and he has got large estates of his own at Harberton. I remember to have heard him say in reference to this very election that he wished Mr. Dent uccess, but that as he had qualified under Mr. Durant's property, he felt bound to vote for him.

5650. Did not Mr. Durant come down and try to ee Mr. Dent?—That was at the first election in 862.

5651. And I believe that he was not allowed to see im?—He was not the right colour.

5652. Richard Mortimer, was he one of Lord ranstoun's tenants?—Yes.

5653. And under Thomas Michelmore's influence? es, and voted for him.

5654. What was his qualification?—He voted for a eld at Windmill Down on the Duke's property.

5655. David Manning, what is he?—A butcher. think this was his first time.

5656. He was a person whom you would have exected to vote for you in 1865, and who did not?—es, he did; he voted for Seymour and Dawkins.

5657. I suppose much to your surprise?—I did not nticipate that he would have had any inducement ffered to him to vote for Seymour.

5658. How came he to vote for Mr. Dent in 1863?—That I do not know.

5659. In 1863 into whose district would he have ome?—That I cannot tell.

5660. Would he have come into Evens' district or nto yours?—I do not know; he was looked upon as a afe man.

5661. Giles Narramore?—He is a safe man on the ther side; he is John Bowden's clerk, the cyder nerchant.

5662. Is Mr. Bowden in Totnes now?—I do not now. Perhaps I may be here permitted to say that t has been reported to me I was wrong in reference o the Rev. Mr. James, and that it was Mr. Bowden who lent the money to Mr. James, but you will learn nore of that hereafter.

5663. Philip Kelland Niner?—Yes, P. K. as we all him.

5664. What is he?—A hatter; a man of large roperty.

5665. Was he strong in your favour?—Very trong.

5666. And was not, as you think, to be influenced by the other side or by their gifts?—No.

5667. Is he the father of Arthur Niner?—Yes.

5668. Was he very active do you know?—He went about once or twice with John Heath as a ompanion.

5669. Nicholas Norrish, jun.?—I have heard that e had same tin.

5670. How much, can you say?—I do not know.

5671. Was it in tens or in hundreds?—He is a poor man; it was not a very large sum.

5672. Might it be 40*l.* or 50*l.*?—I should think bout that, I do not know.

5673. Do you know who had paid attention to im?—I should think he would have been in Fred. Evans' class.

5674. John Nickells?—Screach said that he gave im something in 1865; whether that is true or not I annot tell.

5675. What did he get in 1863?—I do not know whether Screach may have dealt with him then or ot.

5676. Had he before 1863 given any vote to you?—I believe he had voted twice.

5677. How does he vote in the council?—He is lue there.

5678. Does he want 4*l.* for his vote in the council?—I never heard of it. I have been sitting there as ssessor, and I do not know about the out-voters.

5679. Lewis John Oldreive; who is he?—A land gent; he is beyond anything of that sort.

5680. Does he live in a house of his own?—He does, in one of the new houses on the top of the hill, overlooking the river; he bought it.

5681. Robert Oldrieve; is he any relation of Lewis John?—No, he is a tenant of Lord Cranstoun's.

5682. Is he under the Michelmore influence?—Yes, he qualified on the Duke's property and voted for them. At the last election he did not vote at all. Mr. Pender got his son a situation I believe.

5683. Was the situation got before the election or after it?—It was after the election. I believe he had the situation for not voting, otherwise he would have voted for us.

5684. Did you hear of any promise given to that effect, about his son having a place given to him if the father did not vote?—No.

5685. (Mr. Longe.) Did he ever vote for the Conservatives?—No, but Lord Cranstoun wished him to vote for us on the last occasion, and I believe he would have done so.

5686. The next is William Oldrey?—He is the high bailiff of the town. I never heard that he had any money given to him, nor Thomas Edward Owen, nor William Ough.

5687. He was the clerk to Messrs. Smith and Guscotte?—Yes, he was; he is now connected with the registration for East Kent.

5688. When did he leave Totnes?—Some four or five years ago.

5689. Before Mr. Dent came down here?—Yes.

5690. Thomas Edward Owen; what is he?—He is a gentleman, a surgeon in the town. There was no man there; not with him, nor yet with Mr. Presswell.

5691. Mr. Oldrey votes for you; although he may not receive any money himself, yet he has considerable power to use his influence?—I do not know about that since the new judge came down. The present judge is a Radical.

5692. And so was the late judge, was he not?—No, Mr. Praed was an out-and-out Conservative. Since that time Mr. Oldrey has had nothing to do with politics, but has simply given us his vote; that is all.

5693. Does he not canvass?—No, we cannot get him to move.

5694. Did you ever find that he put in an execution quicker upon a Radical than he would as to a Conservative?—No, I never heard of anything of that kind. Mr. Ough was a Scripture reader here, and there was no money stirring in regard to him.

5695. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you recollect Mr. Presswell being converted to the Conservative faith?—That was in 1859 I think.

5696. He had been a very active partizan on the other side before that?—In 1857 was my first time.

5697. Mr. Presswell was then an active Liberal, was he not?—Yes.

5698. What made him become a Tory?—I have no idea at all what it was.

5699. Was it merely a change of opinion, do you know?—I do not think he liked Mr. Brooking Cuming very well, or there was something of a rumpus between him and Mr. Charles Webber. He was a charity trustee, but I do not think he attended the meetings for years.

5700. I suppose that created as much excitement as if Mr. Michelmore had turned Tory?—No, what influence has Mr. Presswell got beyond his own vote?

5701. Was he not employed at various elections?—I do not know anything about that.

5702. Was it not thought a very strange thing his going over to your side?—I should think all reasonable men ought to be Liberal Conservatives.

5703. Of course you received him with open arms?—Decidedly.

5704. And he brought considerable influence to bear on the Conservative side?—No, we never could get him to move on our side, although we have had a strong Conservative party in the council.

SIXTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

29 Aug. 1866.

5705. Merifield Paige?—He is a tenant of the Duke's, and goes for the Duke without any money.

5706. William Perrott and George Parrott?—I should like them to be asked who paid William Perrott for going to London and looking after these men whom we have heard of. William Perrott went to London and attended to the Liberal interests in these matters.

5707. Was he summoned before the committee?—No.

5708. Did he go up as a guard over Blank?—No, that is Blank's guard over there (pointing to a person in the hall); he went after what we call Drunken John the tailor, John Fox Green.

5709. What! were there two of them? — No, William Perrott was for Green and George Mitchell for Blank.

5710. Were they all kept together?—Yes; they were like a limpet on a rock, you could not get at them.

5711. I suppose you looked after the witnesses on your own side pretty well? —Yes; but every one whom we had got on our side went up to tell the truth, whilst they were up there to tell a lot of lies.

5712. Where did you keep your witnesses?—At a house near Westminster Hall.

5713. Do you mean the Westminster Palace Hotel? —No; at some eating-house.

5714. Did you look after the others?—I kept my eye upon the others. Blank promised to tell the truth, and so did Mitchell; but they had got them together so that I could not get at them.

5715. How many Liberal witnesses did you send out a subpœna for?—I should think 40.

5716. And how many on your own side?—Not very many.

5717. The Reverend Major Paul?—He is very strong; he had a portion of the 1,000*l.* for his chapel.

5718. How much did he get?—He was the minister of the Independent chapel at Totnes at the time.

5719. How much did he get?—I understand 50*l.* towards the organ; that was a regular bribe to the chapel.

5720. How had the Reverend Mr. Paul voted before?—That was the first time of his voting.

5721. Mr. Daniel Putt?—We could not get at him; his wife was a Radical, and if you knocked at the door he was not to be found.

5722. The ladies seem to have a great deal to do with the elections here?—An immense lot in this town.

5723. Then you are pretty safe as regards the vote if you can once convert the wife?—Yes; you have made a good point.

5724. Does the wife get anything, do you know? —Sometimes we give her a sovereign to get a good cup of tea at the first going off.

5725. Would they get a new silk dress, or anything of that sort?—No doubt that is very acceptable.

5726. And is sometimes given?—No doubt of that.

5727. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did Mr. Pender give away many silk dresses?—Mr. Pender is a very liberal man indeed.

5728. (Mr. Bere.) Did you see Mr. Putt yourself? —No.

5729. Who called upon him?—Mr. Dent went over there, and Mr. Edmonds, and she always said he was not in when he was, so that we could not get at him.

5730. Did they try their influence on Mrs. Putt?— She would not go with a Tory; she was a Miss Cross, she was Cross by name and cross by nature.

5731. Had she kept him straight all that time?— The last time he bolted.

5732. Had any of your influence been at work to get him out of the way?—Mr. Evan Evens had.

5733. Where did he go to?—I do not know where he went to; whether he was waiting behind for something strong I do not know. I heard his name mentioned in the committee room.

5734. How much did you hear spoken of?—It was a pretty good sum. Evens will tell you about that.

5735. Then from time to time those things were mentioned in the committee? — When there is a doubtful man of that sort you discuss it; not exactly the question of amount, but that so-and-so is to be had, and is open to a consideration.

5736. You do not know how Evan Evans got over Mrs. Putt at the last election?—Mr. Putt was rather displeased that Mr. Dent did not call upon him, he told me so himself; but they kept him incog., and we could not get at him, he therefore went and voted for the Liberals; he is a Conservative in heart.

5737. How long has he been married?—He went to sea for some years.

5738. After he was married, do you mean?—Yes.

5739. When you have a doubtful man, you hold a sort of inquest upon him and come to a verdict, by which it is decided whether he is worth so much money, say 200*l.*, or not?—Supposing I was conversing with Evan Evens, I might say, "I have seen "so-and-so; I think he is to be had." I should put "doubtful" against his name.

5740. Then the committee all know the price of the man as well as you do?—I do not think they do at first, but they soon find out how heavy he is, and after that they send him to the black man.

5741. Then who decides what is the value of the man?—That is either Mr. Mitchell or the black man.

5742. Then do not the committee have any voice in that?—No, the committee never decide upon the value of a man, whether he is to have 25*l.* or 100*l.*

5743. Then Mr. Kellock would have no knowledge of that?—No, nor Mr. Edmonds.

5744. Then how is it known whether the man has received a sum of money; do you get a receipt?—As a rule receipts are given.

5745. They are kept by whom?—By the black man. The man would say to the voter, "You had "better give me an I. O. U. for it." They get a piece of paper and write it down, and the voter takes the tin.

5746. Then there is some written acknowledgment for it?—Yes, in almost all instances. I remember the instance of a man of the name of Dennis, whose name I think I mentioned before, who had 100*l.* at the last election.

5747. Have you got any of those receipts?—That I cannot tell.

5748. Or has Mr. Heath got them?—I cannot tell; I never saw them.

5749. Are they never held over until the next election to act as a sort of coercion upon the voter? —I believe not.

5750. You know of no instances of their being held over until the next election to be a means of intimidation to the voter?—No; I do not believe that it would stand good in law.

5751. I suppose the candidate never sees these receipts?—No; I suppose not. They bring it down in a lump sum, 1,000*l.* or 5,000*l.*, as the case may be.

5752. What relation is John Putt to Daniel Putt? —No relation at all.

5753. He voted for you?—Yes.

5754. What is he?—I think he was paid to vote for Mr. Dent in 1863.

5755. Had he voted before?—I think he had. I only know this from hearsay.

5756. Who tempted him; in whose district would he be?—That is in Fred. Evens' class.

5757. What particular class would he have to look after?—Men to whom you would have to pay 20*l.* or 25*l.*

5758. How did John Putt vote in 1865?—For us I think.

5759. Under a similar inducement?—I do not know; he is living at Ivy Bridge now. In 1859 they adopted the plan of Mr. Pender's party. There was a man of the name of Smith, a little man, who went round with the money in bags; and there was a man named Satchwell, and another man named Bird, who had 25*l.* a piece; that was at Mr. Dunn's election.

5760. You said in the early part of your evidence hat you had got so near to the rock in 1859 that you ere afraid to do anything of the kind after that?—es; that is the very case to which I then referred; happened in my own house.

5761. In the years 1852, 1859, 1862, 1863, and 1865, have you ever yourself in any instance seen money pass?—No; that was the only case that ever came so near to it, and that happened in my own house.

Adjourned to to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

SEVENTH DAY.

Thursday, 30th August 1866.

Mr. Robert Harris recalled and further examined.

5762. (Mr. Coleridge.) Can you tell us how long Col. Dawkins came before the election of 1865?—That letter of mine will tell the date.

5763. Three or four days before the election?—Yes.

5764. Who came with him?—Mr. Smith, a solicitor of London, of the firm of Smith and Guscotte.

5765. Anybody else?—I rather think a gentleman named Turner, I am not certain—Turner, of Exeter.

5766. What sort of looking man is Mr. Turner, of Exeter?—He is a shortish man, a little taller than Mr. Bere.

5767. (Mr. Bere.) Do you mean Mr. Turner, the registrar of the Probate Court?—Yes.

5768. (Mr. Coleridge.) Anybody else?—No; those three. I think Mr. Smith is Mr. Turner's London agent, and Mr. Smith called upon Mr. Turner to introduce him to Totnes.

5769. Mr. Smith and Mr. Turner were the only people who came with Colonel Dawkins?—Yes.

5770. You are quite sure?—I am quite sure.

5771. Did anybody else join him before the day of the election?—He had his valet.

5772. What sort of looking man is his valet?—He was a soldier, you could see that.

5773. Dark or fair?—A fair young man, about 25.

5774. Good looking?—No.

5775. There was his valet, Mr. Turner, and Mr. Smith?—Yes.

5776. Did anybody join him before the election time?—I do not remember.

5777. You were in and out of his room?—Yes.

5778. You do not recollect anybody who struck you particularly?—No.

5779. Tell us as accurately as you can what Mr. Mum is like. Is he good looking?—Rather what we call a Roman face—longish nose and thin face.

5780. A moustache?—No moustache.

5781. You are sure of that?—Quite sure.

5782. Was he a delicate looking man?—Not very fat; what we call a middle size.

5783. About what age?—I should think about 30 or 35.

5784. Rather a girlish face?—No.

5785. Try and recollect, was there any one else with Colonel Dawkins during the election?—I do not recollect.

5786. No other stranger? If there was you must know?—No.

5787. From the time he came to the time he went away?—I do not remember.

5788. If there had been any stranger constantly about with him you must have seen him?—There was no one constantly about with him.

5789. You are sure of that? Not on and off; not coming and going?—No.

5790. Recollect yourself. Was there a remarkably good-looking young fair man with a moustache, with rather a girlish face?—When you mention that, I think there was.

5791. How came you not to recollect that before?—I did not; but I think there was a young man; what was his name?

5792. I know his name; but I shall not tell you?—I think some baronet's son.

5793. Did he come with Colonel Dawkins?—I did not see him at the time.

5794. You would know him again?—Yes, a thin, neat figure; rather a maiden face, as you say.

5795. When did he come?—I do not know; I saw him with Colonel Dawkins.

5796. You had forgotten all about that till I described him?—Yes; I think he went about with him once or twice in his carriage now you speak of it.

5797. That had slipped your memory?—Yes, it had.

5798. When did he come?—I do not remember.

5799. Did he come with Colonel Dawkins?—I did not see him.

5800. Did you see Colonel Dawkins when he first came?—I saw him the first.

5801. Was that gentleman with him?—No, those three were with him.

5802. When did that gentleman first come upon the scene that you have got the description of? Tell me a little about it.—I do not know; somewhere about a day or two.

5803. Do you recollect when Mr. Seymour, the member, came first?—I do not know the day.

5804. Was it before or after Colonel Dawkins?—I think before; I do not know. I am not positive.

5805. You would not undertake to swear that Mr. Seymour was not in the town before Colonel Dawkins?—I cannot.

5806. Nor that Colonel Dawkins was in the town before Mr. Seymour?—I do not remember.

5807. It was a day or two after Colonel Dawkins came down that this good-looking young man appeared?—I do not think he was good-looking.

5808. That is a matter of opinion. He was a fair young man?—He was about 25, a fair young man.

5809. About one or two days after Colonel Dawkins came down he appeared?—Yes.

5810. What did he do? As you were constantly with Colonel Dawkins, you can say whether he was generally with him?—I do not think he went about with him. When he went out in the carriage he went.

5811. Do you know what he did with him self Totnes is not a lively place to disport himself in?—He might walk about.

5812. Did you see him walking about?—I saw him, but I do not think I spoke to him.

5813. Did you see him going about with Colonel Dawkins or Captain Pim?—I think I did.

5814. By himself?—Yes.

5815. Any of your party with him?—No.

5816. How long did he stay?—I do not think he stayed many days.

5817. Did he stay up to the time of the election? Be careful.—I really do not know.

5818. It is a short time ago; you must try and recollect?—I did not speak to him.

5819. At election times a stranger is a remarkable thing?—There are many strangers at Bridgetown.

5820. But were there strangers with Colonel Dawkins?—No.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

5821. A stranger with Colonel Dawkins must have excited your curiosity. Did you ask what he was doing?—No.

5822. Do you remember hearing who he was?—No; if you were to mention his name I should tell you.

5823. You saw the stranger in the room and made confidential communications to Colonel Dawkins?—I do not think I saw him in his room.

5824. Did this gentleman stay at the "Seven Stars"?—Yes; he had his own apartments. I think so, I am not certain. I never saw him with Colonel Dawkins.

5825. In the house?—Yes.

5826. In Colonel Dawkins' committee room?—Never.

5827. You are certain of that?—Yes.

5828. Did you see him on the day of the nomination?—I do not know.

5829. Come now recollect; a perfect stranger, a friend of Colonel Dawkins, and the nomination day given?—It might be. I never talked to the man at all. He never opened his mouth to me.

5830. Did he go about the town at all or keep himself quite aloof?—I never saw him talking to anybody that I remember. I understood he was a friend of Colonel Dawkins.

5831. Your curiosity was so slight that you never asked him?—He was not the kind of man to do anything in the money way, and consequently I did not want to ask about him.

5832. He was a well-dressed man?—Evidently he was a gentleman. I heard his name several times.

5833. You never took the trouble to make any inquiries about him?—No.

5834. You cannot swear that he was not here on the nomination day?—I cannot swear, he may have been.

5835. From the time he first appeared in the town to the time of his departure from the town, how many days would you say it was?—I do not think he came when Colonel Dawkins came.

5836. So you told us?—Probably a day or two afterwards. I did not see him. I remember seeing Mr. Turner, and Mr. Smith, and Colonel Dawkins.

5837. When did he first disappear from the town?—I do not know; I never spoke to him; had no communication with him.

5838. Was he present on the polling day?—I do not remember seeing him.

5839. You do not remember seeing him on the polling day. You do not know about the nomination day, where did you see him afterwards?—I have not seen him since.

5840. During the time he was here was he in a fitful way? Did he appear in fits and starts; sometimes here and sometimes not?—I do not know whether he went and came or stayed here.

5841. Do you know now who this gentleman was who was going about taking train from Torquay instead of Totnes?—No; I am not aware.

5842. Who was in the habit of going in a carriage from the "Seven Stars," or anything of that sort?—No.

5843. You were so incurious that you took no heed of him?—No.

5844. You do not think he was mixed up in the election in any way?—I never heard that he was.

5845. Had he a valet down here also?—I almost think he had, I do not know.

5846. I suppose at election times the "Seven Stars" is taken entirely by the Conservatives?—No; a lot of strangers go in; all the commercial men and those.

5847. But if any stranger who was not known as one of the commercial men who used the house came in was not he narrowly watched?—Why watch him? There is nothing done but what is clean and above board.

5848. Do you mean seriously to say that at the last election there was nothing done but what was clean and above board that you know of?—There was no fighting, or anything of that sort.

5849. I ask you whether a stranger to the place is not naturally watched when he comes into your camp, and you answer me that there was no fighting! You cannot mean seriously to tell me that there was nothing done that was not clean and above board at the last election?—Suppose the committee had got two, three, or five rooms, if a stranger came into either of those rooms I should inquire, "Who is that "individual?" but if 10 strangers were close by I should not inquire.

5850. You would not inquire if he came with Colonel Dawkins, one of your candidates, who he was?—Of course Colonel Dawkins would not associate with him unless he had confidence in him.

5851. Colonel Dawkins' friendship would frank him into your apartments?—I never saw him there.

5852. You never saw him in the committee room?—No.

5853. He came down for nothing but to admire Colonel Dawkins?—I know nothing about it.

5854. (Mr. Longe.) You were with Mr. Mum on one or two occasions?—I spoke to him two or three times.

5855. What was the colour of his hair?—Dark hair.

5856. It was his own hair?—Yes.

5857. When Mr. Screach says he wore a wig, how do you explain that?—I do not know anything about what he may say.

5858. When you saw him he had his own hair?—Well, for instance, a man may have his wig on and a hat, and you may not know whether it is a wig or no, but immediately he removes his hat up comes the wig.

5859. But with you he did not wear his wig?—I never remember seeing a wig or anything particular about his hair.

5860. What was the colour of his hair?—Dark hair he had, and I have seen him since; the same man.

5861. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know on the same night that Colonel Dawkins came down, that another gentleman came down as candidate to stand with him, not Captain Pim?—I think that was the man that was talked of at the time; I do not know; he was a young man. It is my private impression it was he, but I do not exactly remember.

5862. Did not Colonel Dawkins inform you that he had brought another gentleman likely to come forward with himself as candidate for Totnes?—No; I do not think that anything was said about that.

5863. Did not Colonel Alexander come down with Colonel Dawkins for the purpose of standing for this borough of Totnes as a second Conservative candidate?—I never heard the name before now.

5864. That was not the name of the young man who was here?—I never heard the name till now.

5865. (Mr. Coleridge.) You do not recollect any other stranger except that young man you have talked to me about being down with Colonel Dawkins?—No.

5866. This is how the man is described. Now try and recollect. Colonel Alexander is a man with a good deal of red whiskers, red moustache, florid?—I have very little to do with those. Mr. Bastard and those men will be able to talk to you about that, whether anybody was introduced to them as the committee.

5867. Is it at all possible that a Conservative candidate could be here for the purpose of standing for Totnes without your knowledge?—He was not announced, or any prospective man that I know of. I never heard of the name till now.

5868. Colonel Alexander you never heard of till now?—No.

5869. Or Mr. Alexander?—No.

5870. Or Captain Alexander?—No.

5871. You never heard the name of Alexander?—No.

5872. That is not the name of the young man we have been talking about?—I fancy his name was Abbot.

5873. You will not be certain?—I will not be ertain.

5874. Did you hear the name of Mr. Abbot during e election that makes it familiar?—No. I know was some baronet's son though. They said he was poor man, some poor baronet's son in London; that all I know about it.

5875. (Mr. Longe.) You were in the room with creach and Mum together?—No; I never saw them gether during the whole period I was there.

5876. You swear that Mum's hair was black?—I ve no doubt about that—not a shadow of a doubt. can speak to that positively.

5877. Can you explain at all why he should appear his own hair to you and in a wig to Screach?—I ve no reason for that, but he may not have been the me man.

5878. (Mr. Coleridge.) You do not know whether ere were two Mr. Mums down?—That may have en. I never heard that there was. There are some rious goings on at these times. These London arpers, they are up to all kinds of things.

5879. They beat the countryman?—Knock him t of sight altogether.

5880. What you do not know they teach you, and hat they do not know you teach them?—No, they are t very communicative.

5881. Now take your list, will you. George Penny, bre Street, he voted for Seymour; what about m?—We understood that we were to have that ntleman.

5882. What were you to give him?—I think he as a large figure man, that man.

5883. What amount—a couple of hundreds?—A ry large sum. Mr. John Heath will be able to tell u all about it. He made overtures to us. I remember seeing him at the "Stars" several times. Whether he was come-at-able John Heath will be able tell you.

5884. How had he voted on the previous occasions?—He has always been a Rad.

5885. But he was open to conviction in 1863?—es, I believe that he said this, that he was aware at his friends and neighbours around took money, d he did not see why he should not have some also.

5886. Have you known him to have money before 63?—I do not know that he had that then.

5887. I did not ask that. Have you known him to ve money before 1863?—No. He was an eccentric aracter. In spite of all these attractions he voted r Seymour.

5888. How did he vote in 1865?—The same way.

5889. Did you try him in 1865?—I did not.

5890. But was he tried by the party?—I should ink that John Heath will come and tell you about at man. He goes down on Friday nights, and gets gratiated down there, and gets into a private conrsation. I dare say that Mr. John Heath knows a od deal about that.

5891. Is he residing here now?—Oh, yes. I do not ow that he had any money; nothing more than hat rumour says.

5892. Do you know what he had from the other de in 1863, that you lost him?—No.

5893. Or 1865?—No. I should think, if bought all, a good round sum. He is one of the ignorant ass.

5894. You do not canvass the ignorant class?—No.

5895. Samuel Parnell?—He is the great briber of e Liberal party. He is now the present postmaster.

5896. He has always voted for the Liberal party I ppose, or he would not have got that?—Yes. That as the gentleman I referred to about Samuel Hill. his man had 25*l.*, so it is reported; of course I only ve it as a report. It is reported that at several elec-ns he received 25*l.* for Hill.

5897. (Mr. Bere.) Who received it?—Mr. Parnell ceived it from the Liberal committee, and that he iled to pay it over, and in the course of conversation ith Mr. Hill, when he expressed his dissatisfaction ith the conduct of the party, and one of the heads of the Liberal party said, "Did not you get your "money?" and he said, "I never had a farthing."

5898. Who was the head of the Liberals?—I do not know. Hill will be able to tell you who it was.

5899. Besides keeping back Hill's money, did you ever hear of Mr. Parnell having any money himself?—You may depend that a great briber is sure to take care of himself.

5900. He would take care of himself as a matter of course?—Yes.

5901. Mr. Abel Brown Pulman?—He is a staunch man, and one of the committee.

5902. Did you offer him anything?—No; he is an infidel, and I would not like to have anything to do with such a man.

5903. But he is a pure man?—He and George Mitchell are two infidels. I would sooner sacrifice my life than have anything to do with either of them.

5904. James Pack, he voted for you?—Yes; he has always been a Conservative.

5905. In 1859 and in 1863?—Yes.

5906. And at the last election as well?—Yes.

5907. John Punchard?—He is a tenant of the Duke of Somerset's.

5908. And goes regularly with him?—Yes; I never knew him deviate.

5909. Did you ever try him?—Never.

5910. He is a matter-of-course man?—Yes; he is one of those men who would always expect a little douceur, to have something sent to him. I think his son had a situation given to him at one time; I do not know when it was, but they have got him nailed fast to their colours.

5911. John Pearce, behind the walls?—He is the man; we could not get at him at this election. The election before he was open to conviction. This time he was not available.

5912. He was not convinced in 1859?—No; that is one of the cases you will have to hear of by-and-bye.

5913. How did he vote at the last election?—He voted against us; he looks for a little something.

5914. Is he a tenant of the Duke's?—A small tenant.

5915. Jasper Parrott?—He was a lawyer, but he got struck off the rolls.

5916. He used to vote for you?—He voted for Mills in 1852.

5917. When did he come round?—This was the first election I think. Being a solicitor, he looked on himself as having a retaining fee, though he was struck off the rolls. There was a petition in 1852, and I think they gave him a handsome sum; he knew all their secrets then. They thought he was going to split on them.

5918. Did that petition go before a committee?—I think the committee was struck, the petition was withdrawn.

5919. John Phillips, Broomborough?—He is beyond anything in the shape of corruption.

5920. What is he?—He is now dead, he always voted with us.

5921. John Parnell?—He is a nurseryman; Mr. Pender's men will tell you that he came out in his garden to the man with the white hat and black band and that he offered him a very large sum.

5922. He voted for you?—He did not vote in 1865.

5923. But in 1863?—I know nothing of him.

5924. He lives on the road going towards the railway?—Yes.

5925. James Penwill?—Rumour says that he had money, but I do not know how that is.

5926. Did you canvass him?—No; he always voted on our side.

5927. If he had money where did he get it from?—We do not canvass every man in that way.

5928. You send Mr. Heath to him without any preliminary canvass?—Yes, we look on him as a safe man.

5929. He always voted for you?—Yes. I never knew him to vote the other way. Mr. Michelmore

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

I fancy will be able to tell you something about him. It is said there was some money put on the head of a cask on one occasion to bribe him, I remember hearing of it when I was a boy, it was in Baldwin and Blount's time.

5930. Do you know anything of the cask transaction ?—It was when I was a boy.

5931. The next is Thomas Pack, he voted Liberal ?—He is a very poor man, he always goes with the Liberals; he is one of that class who would expect 25*l.* as a matter of course.

5932. And who would get it ?—There can be no doubt in the world about that.

5933. Thomas Pearse, Tollaton ?—He was a tenant under Mr. Cary, he is one of the reasonable men in the town; Mr. Cary is a Liberal who never interferes with his tenants, he is not like the Duke of Somerset. He does not tell you to do this or do that, but to go and do as you please.

5934. Had he any inducement to vote for you ?—No, he is a gentleman far above that.

5935. Had he always voted on the Conservative side ?—Yes.

5936. John Jerman Phillips ?—He voted for us; I never had anything to do with that man. I know that he is one of those men to whom you have to give 20*l.* or 25*l.*

5937. Is he one of those who were always to be found voting with you or the contrary ?—He is a journeyman carpenter, and as I understand Mr. Michelmore turned him out of his work. If you look at the poll book you will find that he voted for Seymour.

5938. What did he do in 1862 ?—I do not think he voted at the election of 1862.

5939. But there were a considerable number who voted for Mr. Pender on that occasion, were there not ?—Yes. I am told that he did not vote at the election of 1857.

5940. Did he vote for you at this last election ?—He did; we have always looked upon him as being a staunch Conservative, we think him one of those who were always to be depended upon.

5941. George Please; what do you know of him ?—He is one of those gentlemen whom you may put in the same class I suppose.

5942. You mean by that one of those who would not feel it an insult if you were to leave 25*l.* for him on the table ?—No, the rich and the poor may be put in a different class at that time, the rich men meet and take their breakfast together, while all that the poor man gets is half-a-crown.

5943. The Rev. James Powning ?—He is a freeman.

5944. Had he anything to do with taking him away from Mr. Durant's ?—I do not believe there is a word of truth in it.

5945. John Pyle ?—I think there is a conversion in that case. I do not know anything about it, how the conversion took place; perhaps it was political.

5946. He was converted in the time of Dent's election ?—Yes.

5947. Did he vote for Pender in 1862 ?—No, he served with us I think at the last election. There was something which he will mention.

5948. Did he vote for you in 1865 ?—Yes.

5949. Was it in 1859 the conversion took place ?—I have not got the books before me.

5950. (Mr. Bere.) He split in 1859 ?—Did he, sir; I think it was his first election, he was a half-and-half man, now he is what we call a thorough Conservative.

5951. (Mr. Coleridge.) When there came to be a single election the half-and-half men had to make their election ?—Just so, that is the way.

5952. That is the test ?—What I would rely on is this; it is always so in a place like this, and I still maintain that the Conservatives have a majority in the borough; if there is no bribery we can carry our man; but by means of bribery they go on shifting about; they may be a heap of sand at one time, and next time none at all.

5953. You have not then taken into consideration the people who would not come to the poll at all if they were not paid, that does not go for much ?—It is according to the spirit running.

5954. Richard Pengilley, he voted for you ?—He voted. That man Mr. Bourne tried very hard and offered him a lot of money.

5955. What did he offer ?—He got him down to his house. He was authorized by the Liberal committee to go and see him, and he got him down to his house. No, I think I am wrong, this is in 1859; at the election of 1859 Mr. Bourne was an active man.

5956. How did he vote in 1859 ?—For us.

5957. He had some counter-irritant applied that brought him round ?—I never had anything to do with him. He generally voted to please Mr. Bastard. The Liberals knew that, and they tempted him very hard. He was an auctioneer, and he was put on him because he was a furniture dealer, and he attends Mr. Bourne's sales, and it is nice to have the auctioneer in your favour, because down goes the hammer quick.

5958. Is it part of your province or some one above you to arrange who shall go after everybody ?—We look over the list.

5959. Is it part of your duty ?—I should recommend who to put on A. and who to put on B.

5960. You would watch the proceedings ?—I should be called in as the lieutenant, with a captain above me.

5961. Who would be captain above you ?—Mr Edmonds.

5962. The next is William Paige ?—That gentleman votes without any money. At the general election he always splits.

5963. What is he ?—He is a retired farmer, a man of good property. He formerly rented under the Duke of Somerset, and his son at present is a tenant under the duke, therefore he always gives the duke one vote.

5964. What did he do in 1862 ?—He did not vote.

5965. In 1865 he split his vote ?—Yes, he did; Seymour and Dawkins.

5966. William Pengilley ?—That man was bribed at that election.

5967. By whom ?—By us. I think he had 60*l.*

5968. From whom ?—I really cannot tell you. He was one of the party, and had 50*l.* from Screach; afterwards he returned it.

5969. In 1863 he had 60*l.* more ?—Yes.

5970. Did you try him in 1862 ?—I do not try that class of men.

5971. Did you canvass him in 1862, when Mr. Dender withdrew ?—He was right with us then.

5972. It would all have been right with him, but you had none ?—If the purse strings had been untied he would have been supplied on the nomination night.

5973. Mr. Helms having come back with it, he would have been supplied ?—Not that night, the next day.

5974. He did not open it ?—No.

5975. Did he vote for you in 1865 too ?—No; he was one of the renegades.

5976. What did he do ?—He signed the requisition.

5977. What did he do in 1859 ?—I almost think that at this election it was his first vote.

5978. He is a gentleman open to conviction on either side; he comes in that class ?—I should not put him along with the slippery class.

5979. That is the same list ?—No; there are some men open to conviction in a certain sense that are candid; they are the slippery men that will not speak out; they will make use of certain expressions to convey certain ideas, at the same time they are under the rose, and you may treat with two persons at one time; they are the slippery kind of men.

5980. Richard C. Paige ?—I went to see him.

5981. There is first James Page, how did he vote

—He voted for us. He is a clerk in the employ of Mr. Bryett. He voted all right.

5982. Richard C. Paige; he never voted at all?—No, he never voted at all in Totnes.

5983. Frederick G. Putt?—He is one of the slippery company.

5984. Do you know what he had in 1863?—No, I do not.

5985. Did you canvass him?—I had several conversations with him about the election; he is one of the ignorant class.

5986. What do you think he was going to do? Was he open to conviction on your side?—I thought so. I fear there was some conspiracy. This was his first vote.

5987. Who did you put upon him?—I almost think his sister was put on him. I think she offered him 50*l.*, and he agreed to take it.

5988. On your side?—Yes.

5989. Who was put upon his sister?—I do not know. His sister lives with him.

5990. What is her name?—Mary Ann Putt.

5991. She lives with him?—Yes.

5992. You do not know who dealt with her?—No.

5993. That was in 1863?—Yes.

5994. In 1865 what did you do with him?—He was one of the slippery company; then he was one of the seven. He was lost to us; in fact they bound him so tight we could not get at him.

5995. He did not vote at all?—Yes, for the Liberals.

5996. You have no doubt he was paid for doing it?—Not the slightest doubt about it.

5997. Charles Pitts?—He is one of the gentlemen who has got a curious name, about six feet. That is one of his tenants. I have heard that Mr. Manning asked for something for him, but Mr. Manning has told me he never did. I inquired last night if there was any truth in it.

5998. Asked for something from your party?—For this man.

5999. He was not a matter-of-course man?—I should send him something as a matter of course. He is a labouring man.

6000. Did you give him something?—I never did.

6001. Did your party?—I do not know. I have no idea at all. He ought to have something, if he had not.

6002. Who would be the person who would distribute these sums in benevolent charity after the election?—I think Frederick Evens will be able to tell you about that.

6003. Richard Quint?—That was the man who was very near dead when they polled. I have heard he did not speak; it killed him to all intents and purposes.

6004. Did you try him?—No; he was a duke's tenant; he rents a farm.

6005. Did he also vote Liberal?—Yes, he did before he was tied; he had a large farm.

6006. Captain Frederick Rogers?—I thought he was a Tory man. When he came he got converted. After he came up here he voted against us. I do not know whether he was like Captain Sumpter when he did not do any service. Permit me to mention about Captain Sumpter in 1865. I should like to have the Duke of Somerset here. I hope you will have him. This gentleman was made a captain; he was a lieutenant before in the army. Then he came up here and was made a freeman by the Tories a great many years ago. He comes up and takes a room; after he is made a captain he qualifies. He was a Tory before he got it; in three weeks he rises from a lieutenant to a captain.

6007. Do you mean he lives in Plymouth?—Yes. I intend to have a shy at him soon. Captain Sumpter voted at the last election.

6008. As a freeman?—Yes.

6009. As you thought he was going to be a Tory, you would not meddle with his vote?—He was made a Tory, and then he went away and lived. He then was made a captain and got rank, and then under the Lord Chancellor he was made a magistrate. He resides at Plymouth, and has got a house.

6010. Well, then, George Roberts?—He was bribed once, and having once tasted of blood I do not think he will go free again.

6011. When was he bribed?—Mr. Mitchell could tell you about that, the purity man.

6012. Was that in 1859?—No; I think Baldwin and Blount. He was one of the company that slipped through them, and we got him.

6013. Then did they give him something first?—They gave something in Baldwin and Blount and Ricardo's time.

6014. (Mr. Bere.) That was the Lapstones?—No, the Mitchell club; he slipped through their fingers somehow or other, and he took our money and voted for us.

6015. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did he go away from you again?—He was so disgusted with them, both parties, that he was not a voter for a number of years. He was a person that occupied some property of the duke in Bridgetown, and that was the first time he had a vote.

6016. Did he vote in 1865 too?—Yes.

6017. All right for the duke?—Yes.

6018. Did you know that he was one of the slippery company, did you try him in 1863?—He is one of the class that I should not try; he was a tenant of the duke, and his better half was a strong rabid politician. It was no use going up there.

6019. Did you send anybody over to save your own skin; did you send anybody else to try him?—I do not remember.

6020. Do you know whether the Heaths got him?—No.

6021. James Rees, of Fore Street?—He was the gentleman who gave you a note yesterday of something, and said about his houses; I only gave it as a matter of hearsay about the mortgage Mr. Helms had upon his house.

6022. Is he a voter your way?—He is one of the active men, but he gets dabbling with money.

6023. (Mr. Bere.) He voted against you?—Yes.

6024. (Mr. Coleridge.) Has he ever voted for you?—No, his brother is one of those who formed the Dartmouth company.

6025. (Mr. Bere.) What is Mr. Richardson?—He is dead, poor man. I think he was tolerably true to the party, and I think a very good man. He was a carpenter.

6026. Employed by the duke?—Yes, and buying his timber of the duke. He was a jobber in timber. There is always a way to make up to a man that is true to his colours, "I have got 120 trees to buy up, "say 10*s.* a tree less than what they are worth;" you can go, and that man is safe.

6027. Robert Ryder?—I lost Samuel Hill through that man. He met young Samuel Hill, and report says he was bribed. I do not know whether it was true or not.

6028. This is Robert Ryder, junior?—Robert Ryder, junior.

6029. Who is Robert Ryder, senior?—He is his father, he is a painter, a staunch Liberal.

6030. Influenced by a little money?—I should put a little sum against that man.

6031. At the usual amount?—At the usual amount upon the Liberal side of course, where could they spend the money; if they spent 15,000*l.* it must go somewhere.

6032. Robert R. Rossiter, he is a tenant of the duke?—No, a tenant of Mr. Bowden now.

6033. Mr. Bowden is a Liberal?—Yes, he goes all right, I think, that man.

6034. Samuel Reeve?—He is the father of William Reeve, and he voted for us at this election.

6035. That is the William Reeve you were successful in getting?—Yes, successful in getting the son, not the father.

6036. Did you try to get the father in 1863?—I

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

do not think we did, the father was successful in getting away the son from us in 1865.

6037. In 1863 what did you do ?—I do not think he was tried.

6038. Neither the father ?—Not the senior.

6039. He voted for you in 1863 ?—Yes, in 1865 he will tell you of some little conversation he had with Mr. Tucker. He was very anxious, cutting to and fro when Mr. Tucker was here taking the evidence about the petition, Samuel read the links up in his favour.

6040. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell me had you often seen Mr. Tucker of Ashburton before the election ?—He is here repeatedly.

6041. He has not got an office here ?—No, he always does what is the dirty work, that is legal, to be advised about in reference to the dirty work.

6042. He puts up at the "Seymour Arms" ?—He had an interview with the Searles and the Matchams at the "Devon Inn."

6043. That was after the election ?—Yes.

6044–5. I want to know before the election of 1865, did you see Mr. Tucker in the town ?—Repeatedly.

6046. And in 1863 ?—Yes.

6047. Did you see him going about with Mr. Pender canvassing ?—No, I do not think he had any portion of that work.

6048. He still did come and go away again ?—Yes. Is he not on the list that election ?

6049. The son ?—I beg pardon.

6050. James Raymond ?—He is now. I have objected to him, but I did not object to him this year.

6051. What does he vote on ?—On a small shop down in the town. If he has not money he ought to have some, he is a poor man.

6052. If you used your discretion he would have some money ?—Most decidedly.

6053. And about the usual amount on the other side, 25*l.* ?—25*l.* to 40*l.*, it varies.

6054. Robert Ryder, junior, a gentleman about whom you talked this minute ?—We lost Mr. Hill through him.

6055. Thomas Adams Roberts ?—A manufactured vote by Mr. Condy up at the "Commercial Inn."

6056. How does Mr. Condy make him a voter ?—Mr. Condy is the owner of the "Commercial Inn," and this young man or some relative of his does Mr. Condy's work ; he is the owner of the furniture in the house.

6057. Is Roberts rated for the house ?—Yes, he is, and consequently gets the vote. It is bonâ fide Mr. Condy's house. This man is rated, and he has got the occupation of it.

6058. William Reeve ?—I think he voted, and had 40*l.*

6059. Samuel Rolstone, what did you do about him, did you write a note to him and ask him to vote for Mr. Dent ?—No.

6060. You are quite sure about that ?—In 1865.

6061. No, in 1863 ?—No, he was here in the town then.

6062. Was he one of the exceptions you made in his favour in canvassing ?—Yes.

6063. Did you go and see him yourself ?—No, I was very friendly with the man ; I never heard him say anything about money ; he is a gardener, and he ought to have 25*l.* or 30*l.*

6064. Does he live near you ?—No, he did at one time ; when he voted then we were living not far from each other.

6065. Did you see him often ?—Very frequently ; he was the gardener of Mr. Phillips of Broomborough.

6066. You never offered it to him ?—No ; now you mention the name permit me to refer you back to 1865. I went up, Mr. Edmonds desired me to go up to Bath ; he had removed from Totnes to Bath. I went up to see him, and he asked me.

6067. You went to see him at Bath ?—Yes.

6068. That was a longish journey to make to see him there ?—That is nothing ; suppose you wanted to go to France to save one vote.

6069. You went to Bath ?—Yes.

6070. Did you do any other voters on the road ?—No, he was the only man ; before he came he had had some correspondence with the man here, and so it was all right.

6071. Who was the friend ?—John Watson.

6072. Is he any relation to the magistrate ?—No, sir ; two or three classes lower than the magistrate.

6073. He was all right ?—Yes, right as the sun.

6074. When did you go, how long before the election ?—Two or three days, or a week perhaps.

6075. Did you go on your way to London ?—Oh, no, I went direct up to Bath and returned again.

6076. Did you not write first of all to Rolstone yourself in 1865 ?—It is more than probable I did ; I do not know ; I came upon him here unawares.

6077. You did not write to Colonel Willoughby ?—I said if he voted as he was going to do it was a misdemeanor because he was beyond the seven miles.

6078. Did you write to Colonel Willoughby that he was not to vote unless he voted right ?—No, I drew his attention to the Act of Parliament as a conscientious man, and a man who would reverence the law, and I said before you can record your vote in the face of that Act of Parliament see that you are not entitled to vote, and you do so under a penalty. He went to Mr. Vincent and he said he should record the vote.

6079. Did he vote ?—He never voted for us ; I am speaking of Colonel Willoughby.

6080. I am talking of Rolstone ?—No ; I say I wrote to Col. Willoughby, whose servant Rolstone was.

6081. He did vote for you ?—Yes.

6082. He was a servant of Colonel Willoughby ?—Yes.

6083. The same objection applied to him that applied to Colonel Willoughby ?—Yes. As soon as I found Colonel Willoughby was going to vote I asked him ; he was sitting down ; he says, "I am, I shall "be down by such and such a train." He says, "Did "you receive a letter from me at Totnes."

6084. You did not warn Rolstone that he would commit a misdemeanor ?—The two would be polled together ; two bad votes ; the two would go against us.

6085. In the event of a scrutiny ?—In the event of a scrutiny you have only two that way, then Rolstone was one of the two.

6086. (Mr. Coleridge.) William Reeve in 1863 ?—He is a gentleman who had 40*l.* for voting for Mr. Dent ; he was taken away from Totnes ; he consented to be lugged off, but he came back and got the money.

6087. Do you know the party who paid it ?—No, I do not know the party who paid the money. I do not know whether Frederick Evens had anything to do with it, or Screach.

6088. This is 1863 ?—At this election.

6089. He was taken away in 1865 ?—Yes, he was home then ; he got on the wrong scent.

6090. Taken home by you in 1863 ?—By us in 1863, and by us in 1865.

6091. Richard Soper, he was dead at the time ?—He was a gentleman, one of the magistrates or aldermen.

6092. In 1862 do you know anything of Reeve ?—Yes, the first time he voted ; do you mean in Mr. Pender's time ?

6093. Yes ?—I really cannot tell you ; you have got my sheet before you. I think he was all right with us at that time ; I am not certain.

6094. William Reeve, did he vote in 1862 ?—I think he was with us.

6095. Robert Soper ?—He was dead.

6096. Thomas Searle ?—This gentleman forms one of the slippery company ; he is the father of the manager ; he voted for Baldwin in the early times ; he was for the Tories in the early times ; he turned over of course; he is a man that men know about as a duke's tenant.

6097. In 1862?—I think Screach will be able to give you a nice history in reference to this gentleman.

6098. James Dimond Searle?—I do not believe that ever he was bribed; he is a large tenant of the duke; he is one of the class that comes to the sound of the bugle.

6099. You never had any communication with him?—No, I know nothing of the sort; he is beyond anything of that kind; no person ever attempted him.

6100. He is a Liberal?—Yes, he is a Liberal; I know the Mortimores under the Earl of Devon were Conservatives, as soon as they got down there they were Liberal at once.

6101. The Rev. James Shore?—He has got an annual stipend from the Duke of Somerset; he is bound to go as the duke goes.

6102. What is that he has got?—A chapel of ease at Bridgetown; I remember two or three years ago there was a row between the Bishop of Exeter and Mr. Shore, and he got 200*l.* a year.

6103. He is the minister?—Yes, appointed by the Duke of Somerset, and he pays him so many hundred pounds a year; as a matter of course he supports that side.

6104. John Sandford Screach?—That is the gentleman that will be able to give a description of himself.

6105. When was his conversion?—I think in 1859 he voted against us.

6106. John Searle?—He is another of the large tenants of the duke; he is always safe on that side.

6107. Did you ever hear of his being paid?—I never heard of any temptation to him; he must go as he is bid.

6108. (Mr. Longe.) George Robins Stone?—Poor man, they got him turned out; it was what I call a mean dirty trick to get that man out of Bridgetown; he was renting a house of a person who was independent in a certain house, and what do they do, the Liberal party, Thomas Holman and William Perrott are the principal instigators, they go to the landlord and take a lease of the house at such and such a rent to keep the thing in repair; they gave the landlord 3*l.* a year; they could not take the man out of Bridgetown unless they did it by this mean and dirty trick; they got the house and gave him notice to quit, and he is in a house of mine.

6109. When was that?—Soon after this election.

6110. Do you know how soon?—Soon after; they set about immediately to do it as soon as they could get him out. It may be six or nine months before they could get him out. They got him out soon after.

6111. John Symons?—He promised us to vote for Dent. I do not know what inducement. He is a cyder merchant. He had got a small store there at Bridgetown. The report was brought to the committee room that the man was going to vote for us.

6112. Who brought the report?—I never regarded him as a man that way. He is one of those down-looking men you can never make them out.

6113. They are retired?—I think they are.

6114. Did he ever vote for you?—That is the first time he voted. Mr. William Coulton will be able to tell you about him.

6115. This last election?—He is gone after they once secured him.

6116. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is he open to reconversion?—A good many of them are. After they have got the money once, if you have got the same material, in all probability you will be able to keep them.

6117. Unless you are outbid?—Yes, unless you come to the slippery class, and then the danger is they rise more in one year and more the next, and knock you out of the market.

6118. Stephens?—He is a poor man, a matter-of-course man.

6119. John Shute?—John Shute, junior; he was a paid representative of the Duke of Somerset. I hope you will allow me to mention him again, and that you will ask him as to Penny Sharpham about some leather which he gave him. He could give you some particulars about copper leather.

6120. Who is Penny Sharpham?—Not at this election.

6121. 1865?—Some election previous, but I do not know exactly the whole report. I remember the report being in circulation.

6122. What was Penny Sharpham? A shoemaker?—He is now a tenant of Mr. Shute's.

6123. That is all you know about it?—I only knew the report in circulation.

6124. He gave him some leather?—A large quantity of leather; and I think there was some row about it. When you see smoke there is some little fire.

6125. Stephen Francis Shairp?—That man voted for us when Mr. Dunn was here; he is a bank manager. Whether there was anything that induced him to turn against us I cannot tell, but he did.

6126. What bank?—The National and Provincial Bank. I cannot conceive he did it for money.

6127. Did he change his bank?—No; he was the bank manager and brother-in-law of Charles Frederick Michelmore. Whether he brought his influence to bear on him I cannot tell; probably he might.

6128. He married after?—No; he married previous to this. He was married when he voted for us. Strange things occur in Totnes.

6129. (Mr. Longe.) If any one knows anything about it, Mr. Michelmore ought?—I do not know; he is a very persuasive man in his way, and he can do things other people cannot do.

6130. William Stoyle?—He always voted our side. He is one of the matter-of-course men that ought to have 25*l.* I do not know that he had, notwithstanding that.

6131. You would have recommended it?—Yes; the class of men I would recommend.

6132. It was but fair?—And legitimately right and proper, according to the state of things in Totnes.

6133. You must know some persons who actually do receive these sums?—You will have it yourself when you have them up.

6134. This has been treated as true, as an acknowledged fact?—I do not go into the money cabinet at all. I am outside. They do not come and tell me what they do.

6135. You seem to know very well they do receive it?—I have handed in a list, and put "money" against the names. These inquiries would be made: "This is all right?" and he was seen, "Yes, he is all "right."

6136. Henry Seaman?—Yes; that gentleman voted for us. At this last election he could not be got at.

6137. That was the election of 1863?—He proposed Mr. Dent, or seconded him.

6138. He is in some position?—He is a very respectable man. I do not know why he did not vote last time. He is living at Gerston in a house with a lawn there.

6139. He is a tenant of the duke?—Yes, he is a tenant of the duke; he was at first of Mr. Baldwin.

6140. (Mr. Bere.) Was he at the time he proposed Mr. Dent?—He was.

6141. Had Gerston changed hands before that?—It was some little time running. He was more independent then. I think the lease ran out before 1865. He is now a tenant under the duke.

6142. As soon as he turned to the duke his politics shifted?—He did not vote at all at the last election. I fancy if there had been a close run he would have voted for us; I should fancy so. I cannot conceive that man ever had a consideration; he is above it.

6143. (Mr. Coleridge.) He is a tenant of the duke?—Then there is a power brought to bear; there is a heavy pressure brought to bear. A man knows if he goes against the duke out he must come.

6144. What position in life does Mr. Seaman hold?—He is a man living on his means. He is very com-

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

fortable up there; he appears to be in a very comfortable house, and he likes the place.

6145. Samuel Sims?—He was an old workman of Mr. Bentall's. I have heard that he never had a farthing in his life, he is one of those honest poor men.

6146. He is a labouring man?—Yes; he ought to have some money sent to him; but I have heard repeatedly that he never had.

6147. Though there are recognized paid Conservatives, that would not include the poorest?—Some poor men would not take it, and I think Sims is one of those: he is a tenant of Mr. Rennie, and has been so for a long time.

6148. Samuel Sharpham?—He is the son of Samuel Penny Sharpham. I never heard anything against him.

6149. William Satchwell?—He was tampered with very heavily by us. I could tell you a little about him in 1859. I have no doubt whatever he had a very large sum at Seymour's election.

6150. Which way did he vote?—In 1857 he voted for Mackenzie. In 1859 he came to my house, and there was a man of the name of Smith who brought him 25*l.* When he got the money he went down to Mr. Bennett in the plains, a friend of mine, and said, "I have got 25*l.*, but I do not intend to vote on their "side." Mr. Bennett says, "Keep it until they come "for it." He kept the money and voted against us. In 1865 I should expect he was bribed by both parties; otherwise a man like that I cannot conceive would vote for Mr. Pender. He was very heavily tempted in 1863.

6151. (Mr. Longe.) Who acted for you then?—I do not know.

6152. Did you canvass him yourself?—No; he is a man whom I set my face against after a trap of that sort.

6153. (Mr. Bere.) He was one of the two who were bribed at your house?—Yes. I said that I had run so close to the rock then that I would never get so near the shore again.

6154. Samuel Sanders?—He is a coach builder; he never votes; whether he gets anything for holding his tongue I cannot tell.

6155. Did you ever try him?—No; he is one of those slang sort of men who want to please A. and to please B. He works for the "Seymour Hotel" and for the "Stars." He will hold with the hare, and run with the hounds. He is one of those dangerous characters.

6156. Samuel Shillabeer?—He voted against us this time. In 1865 he voted for us. He was a duke's tenant who was turned out; he ought to have had some money; if he voted for them without money they ought to mind him. He is a tenant of mine now, or of Mr. Rennie's. I took him under my wing when they turned him out in 1865. In 1865 he voted for us.

6157. Was he bribed?—I do not think there is any doubt about that.

6158. He has been turned out since the last election?—Yes. I think he required a pretty heavy sum at this election. Mr. Jeffery Michelmore got rather savage with him.

6159. When was he turned out by the Duke; at the end of last year?—They keep a kind of terror or rod of iron over them; they keep on giving them notice to quit. It is the practice of the Duke to do that here. He serves a host of notices on doubtful men, and when they vote against him he is able to put the notice in execution; he did so before the last election; he may say the land will be wanted for building purposes, so he keeps a rod of iron over the poor men.

6160. What was their holding?—A Michaelmas holding.

6161. A notice at Lady-day then would be a right notice?—Yes; if they vote all right they may hold on.

6162. At Lady-day, 1865, it was known there would be a general election?—Yes.

6163. And many notices to quit at Michaelmas would come out?—Yes.

6164. If they voted right the notice would not be put in force; if they voted wrong it would?—Yes; that is the course here, and a more tyrannical course you cannot well conceive. It works the people up to such a pitch that they do things which they would never do in any other place.

6165. What was Shillabeer?—He was a poor dairyman in the town who had held two fields of the Duke.

6166. Of how many acres?—Perhaps five or six. They then connived to make his brother-in-law vote.

6167. Who was his brother-in-law?—Robert Smaridge. I remember seeing Smaridge, and I thought that he was all right, but the duke's people got hold of him somehow or the other. This man was a made vote in respect of a field which was actually occupied. Smaridge had to come up here and swear the blackest lies that are conceivable in the face of the duke's party. The corruption that takes place in the registration court you cannot conceive.

6168. What does he rent under you now?—A field.

6169. What do you let it to him for?—22*l.* a year.

6170. What is it worth?—That is a bonâ fide rent; it let for 18*l.* a year.

6171. Edward Shinner?—He is always on our side.

6172. And I suppose always has been?—Yes; he is a man whom I should like to send a little money to if there was any about.

6173. What is he?—He is a coal hauler; he is a very poor man. If we ever had any money I should send him some.

6174. (Mr. Longe.) Who is the gentleman who arranged the subscriptions or the annuities?—I should think the black man or Mr. Mum would have a list of that sort.

6175. Who sends that list?—I cannot tell you.

6176. They are only paid when the candidate comes down; your charge is the first?—Mine is the first; the other would be the second charge if these men are faithful to their party.

6177. That is Mr. Edmonds' business?—I do not know that it is.

6178. Mr. Screach has nothing to do with that?—Yes, they would make out a list themselves, I suppose.

6179. Would they waste the services of Mr. Screach on a class such as those?—I do not know about that. You can pay a great many in the course of a few days.

6180. Thomas Searle?—He was the manager of the slippery company.

6181. Where is the "South Devon Inn"?—It is at the higher part of the town near the Plymouth road. It was occupied at the last election by Matcham, Searle's son-in-law.

6182. (Mr. Bere.) You had better tell us about the slippery company?—I remember being up the town when Mr. Pender was canvassing the voters with Mr. Cuming, and Mr. Tucker, the butcher, said, "Harris, have you heard what is up? Tom Searle "and that lot are going against them this time; let us "go up and have a glass of beer or a glass of grog." We went up, and when we got there Mr. Pender was just coming out with Mr. Cuming. Searle told Mr. Cuming that if he did not go out of the door he would kick him out; how dare he enter his premises after the treatment which he had received from that party, intimating that there were some very heavy scores due or some promises which had not been performed. I said, "Mr. Searle, what do you mean? we shall be "very glad to have you on our side if an arrangement "can be made." He came down to the "Stars," and he was asked to send in a list of those men in writing, their names, and the amount which they wanted, which list can be produced in court.

6183. Mr. Heath has got that list, I suppose?—He has; we find by that list that an arrangement had been entered into by which he was to have so much money, I believe a thousand pounds for the seven men, but it soon got out on the night of the nomination that there was a screw loose, and that a reconciliation had taken place; that Mr. Cuming who before that had been considered as a bitter enemy, and a person whom he would not let come within his doors, had taken his seat at the conclave once more, and there they were, as great chums as ever. Then that had to be reported to Mr. Dent; after that we looked at our books and found that we could not win; Searle bought a house soon after that, the house which he now lives in, and the next door to it; he made a large purchase.

6184. To what amount was that purchase, do you know?—I should think about 500*l.* or 600*l.*

6185. Had he been an innkeeper before?—Yes, he was a poor man before.

6186. And after that change he became a rich one?—At all events he was able to buy houses; I know that houses are sometimes bought without much money; but lawyers are generally very shrewd, and will not lend you anything like the full amount you require; you must have some of your own.

6187. (Mr. Longe.) That was the only case of combination that you knew of?—It was the only one at that election. The Lapstone club had been broken up for some time; they stood upon their own bottom.

6188. (Mr. Coleridge.) And this slippery company was got over by the other side on the occasion of the election in 1862?—Yes.

6189. Do you know whether they got the money, or whether it was only that they were to get it?—I think they got it; you may leave Tom Searle alone for that.

6190. They were to have how much from your party did you say?—They were to have a thousand pounds from us.

6191. To be divided amongst how many of them?—Amongst seven.

6192. And you believe that that money was actually paid?—I have not the least shadow of a doubt of it; and I could give you my reasons from a conversation that I had with "Slippery Jack," as we called him, that is, John Parnell Searle. I do not speak of him in this way with any degree of scurrility, and I hope that the Commissioners will not accept it in that way, but "Slippery Jack" is the common name by which he goes, and I remember very well seeing him shortly after the election; he was hot, sweet, and strong upon us at the time when he thought this arrangement was going to be carried out, which I have spoken of in 1862, and such being the case, I thought there would be no harm in making any overtures to him again individually; so I said to him, "Jack, "what do you say to 150*l.*, will that be of any service "to you;" but I found it was of no use my saying anything to him of any sum like that, for he was not come-at-able at all.

6193. This is one of the very few instances wherein you have dealt with any precise sum in figures; you remember this amount?—Yes; I remember mentioning the sum I have named to this individual on that occasion; I asked him whether 150*l.* would be of any service to him, but he would not listen to such a sum, he was beyond that altogether. They had gone up in the market to an extraordinary height; you could not get at them at all.

6194. This gentleman was one of the same party whom you have spoken of just now as having gone over to the other side at the last moment?—Yes.

6195. And what were you ready to have given them on the occasion to which you have referred?—They were to have had a thousand pounds as I understood at the time.

6196. (Mr. Bere.) Slippery Jack has slipped off?—He has gone to America.

6197. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have told us in 1862 and 1863 there was money going on the nomination day?—In 1862 it did not.

6198. You say no money was spent on your side, although Mr. Dent went to the poll before he withdrew; but according to your tactics a great deal of money would be spent?—I spoke to you yesterday of a lady and gentleman, Mr. Helms and Mrs. Thomas. Mr. Helms was in communication with Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. Helms told Mr. Mitchell that he did not think they could win from the reports; he told Mr. Mitchell, and he, as the proper adviser of Mr. Dent, would not open the money bags till he could see his way to win.

6199. Helms had got information from Mrs. Thomas that they could not win?—She got the information that the slippery company was against us.

6200. You do not believe a single sixpence was spent in bribery in the year 1862 by Mr. Dent?—Not a single sixpence.

6201. (Mr. Bere.) It would have been spent if wanted?—Yes.

6202. (Mr. Coleridge.) They were all arranged with about the sums?—Yes.

6203. There was a great disappointment when Mr. Dent withdrew?—A fearful panic in the place; long faces.

6204. (Mr. Longe.) William Sawyer?—Mr. Searle and Mr. Sawyer have had a fall out. When Mr. Sawyer comes before you he will be able to tell you all about some interviews in reference to this affair.

6205. About the slippery company?—Yes, I wish you take a note about that. But they had a terrible fall out. After that election I refer to, certain things were said about what Sawyer knew, and what a blackguard Searle was, all that sort of thing and another. I will not enter into that, because I was not present, but I believe Sawyer will tell you all about it.

6206. (Mr. Bere.) Was Mr. Sawyer got at by your side?—Oh, no.

6207. You did not try him?—No. He keeps the "Castle Inn," at the head of the hill.

6208. Was the "Castle" his protection?—His father was a Liberal and he was a Liberal. When the registration is going on there is open house for all men that are objected to. They know how to make up bills in Totnes, and Mr. Sawyer knows how to make up his bill.

6209. (Mr. Longe.) That is how he is rewarded?—We look upon him as a safe man for that party, and then they put anything in his way they can.

6210. George Sercombe?—I think he was paid by us.

6211. How did he vote before?—He was one of the duke's tenants and turned out.

6212. When was that?—He was turned out because he voted.

6213. (Mr. Bere.) He had not voted in 1859?—I think he had.

6214. Yes, you are right, I see he split his vote, Gifford and Dunn?—Yes, because he did not go the whole hog he was turned out.

6215. (Mr. Longe.) Did he receive any money?—We should always pay the duke's tenants as a matter of course. We could not expect a man to run the risk of being turned out without some compensation.

6216. William Shinner?—Mr. Michelmore here can tell you something about that if you will take a note of it to ask him about it.

6217. He voted for you?—Yes; but he was tried I have been informed.

6218. (Mr. Bere.) You tried him harder?—He was always a Conservative. He was one of the poor men, and ought to have 25*l.*

6219. (Mr. Longe.) He was tried by Mr. Michelmore?—Very, very hard, night and day. We had to keep men on guard. They were at him night and day.

6220. Who were they?—The roughs of the place.

6221. Were they voters?—No. Sometimes the Whigs got desperate, and we had to keep an army.

6222. Men from the town?—Yes; we can raise a larger number than they can. They get them from Bridgetown.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

6223. And the Dartmouth roughs?—Yes, they come for the Liberals.

6224. And from Ashburton?—Yes.

6225. The town is full of roughs?—Yes, with sticks and stones and rotten eggs.

6226. They half killed Mr. Seymour?—He looked very well yesterday, I thought.

6227. John Slatter?—He was abroad at the time. He was always a consistent man, and voted on that side. In 1865 he was living at Jersey, he came over and I wrote and told him that it was a misdemeanor to vote, but he took no notice of it.

6228. That is one of the six bad votes?—Yes.

6229. George Stoyle?—He was the man who managed Henry Crawford. I looked upon him as I should look upon Evens with us. He is their subbribing man.

6230. What is he?—He is under strapper to Holman and Parnell.

6231. What is he?—A pork butcher. Crawford had promised us and pledged his word, but they got at him and kept the back door locked.

6232. Was that in 1863?—Yes; Stoyle took him to the "Seymour" hotel, and never let him out.

6233. (Mr. Bere.) What is the Liberal special drink? Has it any particular name?—I do not know anything about the drink. I am not a drinking man, and I do not go into that department.

6234. (Mr. Longe.) John Sampson?—He always voted for us. I think it was the first vote he had. He was a respectable man. I do not know anything about him.

6235. But you believe he had money?—No, I do not believe he had money.

6236. Nor tried?—Not to my knowledge.

6237. What is he?—He is a grocer.

6238. Searle?—That is "Slippery John," as we call him.

6239. When did he go to America?—On the Monday, I think, as you came here on the Thursday.

6240. The summons having been served?—But he intended to go long before.

(Mr. Michelmore.) He went last Monday fortnight.

6241. (Mr. Bere.) What has he gone for?

(Mr. Michelmore.) His wife's father is living in America, and she went away last year, and made arrangements for him to come.

(The Witness.) I should like to have him here; he is a curious man.

6242. A great loss to the Liberal party?—A great loss to this Commission. He is a slippery man, and got into their camp and the others too.

6243. William Sawdye?—He was a tenant of the Duke of Somerset. I believe he got something from their side. I know he was tried on ours.

6244. At Newton Abbot he lives?—Yes; he was out of the seven miles. He was not a good vote. We should not value him so much.

6245. You tried him?—Yes.

6246. You try those outsiders who hold land for the express purpose of giving a vote?—Yes. We try those men; they only hold a field at 10*l.*

6247. What do you suppose is the advantage. Do you think they are strong Liberal politicians and like to advance the cause?—They like it for various motives. I remember conversing with John Barnes. I said, "What can induce you to come and meddle "with us?" He is a paper maker, and he said, "I "do not see why I should not have a vote as a paper "maker. I want my interests promoted in the House "of Commons."

6248. That is a good reason?—Yes.

6249. Are they all equally good?—Yes. John Hamlyn is a tanner at Buckfastleigh, and he wanted to have his interest promoted. Every one has a motive. Mr. Hamlyn has a vote for Ashburton and a vote for Totnes.

6250. Now, the Dartmouth man?—That is another of that class. They take what we call the black red cocks. I do not know whether you know anything about them.

6251. We do not.—That is a cock that will fight to the death and never run. So with these men that come into Ashburton. They pick out the men that never run. No power can move them, and they bring them out here to make votes of them.

6252. They are safe men?—As safe as the sun.

6253. (Mr. Bere.) Who tried Sawdye?—I do not know. Sawdye at the time he voted rented a place near Ashburton from Lord Cranstoun, and they took an accommodation field to send cattle for a change. It is handy to have a field to change the cattle; if you want to fatten cattle you must change them. The field is highly advantageous to a farmer, and they bring farmers that they can make sure of supporting the party.

6254. Lord Cranstoun is a Conservative?—Lord Cranstoun had not declared his politics. He was under Mr. Michelmore. It is the man who is the steward who knows. Mr. Rennie does not know anything about the tenants; the steward is the man.

6255. Mr. Sloggett?—I remember having a conversation with him at this election, and he wanted us to buy a house (which he has recently sold) for 300*l.*

6256. That is the 1865 election you said?—No, I did not mean that. It is the 1863 election.

6257. You told us Frederick Evens could tell us all about that?—I think he can.

6258. He mortgaged it to Mr. Hannaford for 350*l.*?—I do not think he wanted that.

6259. It was sold afterwards for 250*l.*?—Yes, he wanted about 100*l.* more than it was worth.

6260. That is the 1863 election?—Yes.

6261. (Mr. Longe.) In 1862 which way did he vote?—He is a Liberal. I should look upon him as a monied man on the Liberal side, as a man open to conviction.

6262. (Mr. Bere.) What is he?—He was a dyer, and a man with a large family.

6263. (Mr. Longe.) A 25*l.* man?—No, he is heavier metal than that. Perhaps a 50*l.* or 60*l.* man.

6264. Though a Liberal?—Yes, he makes himself active, and considered his services worth so much. He worked about for the party. We thought we had him safe, but Sawyer I think followed him, and got him away from us, and he will be able to tell you what he gave. He was offered a large sum I know.

6265. Sloggett was always a Liberal?—Yes, but when we met the other day about the requisition he signed it.

6266. (Mr. Bere.) Then he was not always a Liberal?—He was a Liberal. He never voted for our side. He made overtures, but when the time came he slipped through our fingers. He was a man of that class.

6267. (Mr. Longe.) He signed the requisition?—He signed the requisition to Mr. Maccay, and he promised to go with us, and all this time we made safe of him, but William Sawyer got him, and lugged him off, by what means I do not know.

6268. Did you ever make offers to him before?—I think he had always been tried. He was Liberal in idea. If Liberal in idea, if an offer comes he goes to the Liberal party and says so-and-so offered so much.

6269. He signed the requisition?—In 1865 he went bad after signing the requisition.

6270. Now Sharpham?—Samuel Penny Sharpham. That is the gentleman about the leather. Ask Mr. Shute about that man. No doubt he would communicate that he was poor. I do not think he is a wealthy man. I do not know that he had anything, but rumour says he had.

6271. Mr. Shute would know about him?—Very likely, I might say, at this last election. Whether that was one of the conditions of his voting I do not know, but his son-in-law Mr. Pender has in his office.

6272. Who is he?—I do not know, but soon after Pender took his son-in-law; I do not know whether that was one of the conditions. At any rate his son-in-law is now in the service of Mr. Pender.

6273. He had never been on your side?—No. I think he only had a vote two or three times.

6274. Henry Wills Stranger?—He did not vote till late in the election, he and Mr. Bennetts.

6275. (Mr. Bere.) He is in partnership with Mr. Bennetts. They are corn merchants?—Yes; there was a long conversation about them. Mr. Heath will tell you they had promised to vote for us. I do not know that they wanted money, but perhaps they had some influence brought to bear. They held back, and did not vote till late in the day.

6276. In 1863 do you mean?—Yes.

6277. Do you know when you heard they were going to vote for you?—At the election.

6278. But when?—Some days before when we canvassed him. Mr. Stranger is half a Conservative, so is Mr. Bennetts. In the council I have known them come up, and I believe always when they came they split their votes in the council. I do not think in any case they voted the whole hog. Mr. Seymour was not popular, and Dent was, and we thought that might induce them.

6279. James Shinner?—Hampstead. I never heard of him having an offer of money.

6280. Hampstead, where is that?—Over here. He qualified on Gerston property, but was soon turned out of that.

6281. When was that?—After 1863.

6282. He had voted on the Gerston property?—Yes, but never had a vote since.

6283. When did he use that vote?—I believe that was the first time and the last; he was not permitted to come upon the roll again.

6284. He took it under Tory auspices?—Yes.

6285. He would take it for Mr. Baldwin?—Yes. As long as he was a tenant of Mr. Baldwin he voted as he wished him. When he became a tenant of the Duke of Somerset he refused to vote, and was turned out.

6286. John Southwood?—He is a tenant of Mr. Durant's. Very poor. I know an offer was made to that gentleman.

6287. By you?—By our party.

6288. Who did that?—I do not know the gentleman who was put upon him. Somebody about Diptford where he lives.

6289. Who would it be likely to be out there?—I do not know. I have no idea who was advised about that man.

6290. That was at this election?—Yes, that was at this election. He is struck off now; they would not have him again when they found he was a doubtful kiddy.

6291. What has become of him now?—He is not a voter.

6292. What has become of him, has he left there? No, he is out at Diptford. He has not the qualification now. They found he was not a staunch man, and Mr. Bourne put in a man they could depend on.

6293. Do you remember young Mr. Durant being struck off?—I remember the circumstance, it was in 1857 I think.

6294. Do you remember five votes being created in the place of Mr. Durant's one by the same qualification, or how many were?—All Mr. Durant's property is fully occupied now.

6295. But was it not at that time young Mr. Durant was struck off?—I think not.

6296. (Mr. Longe.) When you say it is fully occupied, by how many?—You go by the rate book to see. Supposing it is rated at 3*l.* an acre, when it comes up to 10*l.* that will bear one vote, 20 acres two votes, and so on, and Mr. Durant lets himself in one case, and I hope he will see his error, manufacturing two votes at Ashburton, which men know no more about the field than we do.

6297. Can you give any more than two votes?—There is about seven or eight votes on land, I think he is rather deceived about two, and he will find he has put on two birds who are not safe. Time will tell that there was other influence at work besides Mr. Durant's in that case.

6298. (Mr. Coleridge.) John Stanning, what about him?—He is a tenant of the duke, a large tenant, and always goes for that.

6299. He is a large tenant farmer?—Yes.

6300. Did you ever hear of his being bribed?—No.

6301. He came forward at the election?—Yes. He is one of those active men on their side. I think if you summons Marks he will be able to tell you, I understand, whether he was offered any money.

6302. On which occasion?—The last, 1865.

6303. By Stanning?—Yes, and they brought some influence to bear from their neighbours there.

6304. Thomas Smith?—He is one of the railway men. He did not vote for us the last time. I think the railway interest was strong, that kept him away from us.

6305. Was he a porter on the railway?—No, he was a policeman there, and now he is something at Newton Abbot. I think he is a little above that now.

6306. Did he get any money do you suppose for his vote at that time?—He is one of the men whom I should have sent 30*l.* or 40*l.* to.

6307. (Mr. Bere.) You would not consider him doubtful, but pretty certain, and you would have sent the money down?—His wife is a Radical, that is the worst of it.

6308. How do you ascertain the politics of the wives?—When you go they soon let you know what their politics are.

6309. (Mr. Coleridge.) I suppose they have most of the talk, and you see if the wife is favourable to you?—Yes, and if the wife is favourable she will facilitate the object you have in view, but if she is against you she will throw all manner of obstacles in the way.

6310. She would not object to your bribing the husband at all events; she would not stand in the way of the money?—Some females will say, "I let him do as he likes."

6311. Robert Smaridge?—That is the gentleman I spoke of just now in reference to Mr. Shillabeer. They were both heavily bribed by Jeffery Michelmore himself; at any rate he took them away and locked them up over there. I believe this gentleman here (Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore) slept with them. If you go through the list with Mr. Michelmore the same as with me he will give you a better description of the men than I can. You are putting me through what I call rather a serious ordeal.

6312. (Mr. Bere.) Jeffery Michelmore took people away, you say, where did he lock them up?—At Bridgetown, and this man, Mr. Michelmore, slept with them.

6313. Was that in 1863?—Yes. I believe he locked them up there in some close room five or six at once.

6314. What other voters besides Shillabeer and Smaridge?—I think Mr. Crawford was there.

6315. Who else?—Several, I do not remember now. I cannot enter into the secrets of that over there. Mr. Michelmore will be able to tell you, but I recollect their taking away Smaridge, and I think he was to have 100*l.* from us, I do not know whether 100*l.* or 150*l.* He came to vote for us; they got hold of him, he bolted and got down behind something and hid, and they caught him, and he voted for Seymour.

6316. Do you mean they actually put hands on him?—Oh, yes, bodily; they get a set of men, a mob, and on they go.

6317. (Mr. Coleridge.) Edwin Shinner?—He did not vote at that election, the last election of 1865 he voted, when he rather disappointed us, he voted half and half.

6318. What did he get from you?—I do not know whether he got anything from us. He is a brother of James Shinner.

6319. He gave you one vote for nothing?—I do not know. I think he had money for voting on the other side, he would never vote for them without money, though he is a man I fancy who would not take it. I thought he would not have voted for Pender,

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

I cannot conceive how he voted for Pender, it is rather a curious vote, and there must have been some influence brought to bear at any rate. Perhaps Mr. Michelmore will be able to tell you when he goes through the ordeal.

6320. William Smale?—He was a man who was offered a lot of money at that election.

6321. He did not vote?—No.

6322. Was it offered by you?—I paid him; what was it? I had a room, a kind of committee room, and paid him 5*l.* a day for the committee room. Mr. Bowden came in there one day, and after Bowden had been in, and in fact prior to that he was under obligations to Mr. Bowden, he had lent him money or something of that sort I think, and after that we could not get hold of him.

6323. Was that in 1863?—At this election.

6324. How did he vote in 1865?—He went against us then.

6325. Did you try to get at him in 1865?—I did not.

6326. Did you try to get at him in 1863?—Some time prior to the election I went to ask him if I could get him a situation, if he would accept a good situation.

6327. And if he would accept a situation he would vote for you?—I never said anything about voting.

6328. You leave that to implication?—I thought he was open to go away from Totnes if he could get a good situation.

6329. (Mr. Bere.) How long before the election was that?—Some time before the election.

6330. After you had got your candidate?—We had got our candidate long before that, and were making preparations for the battle.

6331. (Mr. Longe.) You hired a room in his house?—That was this election.

6332. Then you lost him?—No; he did not vote at all. I understood at the time that he was not going to vote.

6333. You understood when you took the room that he was not going to vote?—I think he will tell you when he comes into the witness box that a man came and offered him 300*l.*, I believe, for his vote, a large sum at any rate.

6334. Before you took the room?—Before and after.

6335. Which side?—Our side.

6336. Who is the man?—I think Mr. Heath, I do not know exactly; he told me so himself. I have heard him say he offered a heavy sum of money.

6337. When you took the room you thought he was on your side?—I thought he was with us; and when I was in the room Mr. Bowden, I remember, late in the afternoon came in, and he had a secret interview with him, and then he would not poll. I do not say that he had any money.

6338. (Mr. Bere.) You paid him the 5*l.*?—I did.

6339. Was he a likely sort of man to be offered 300*l.* on your side, and to get nothing on the other?—I do not know. It was a very heavy temptation. I think he was one of those birds that you must fire a good shot at.

6340. Why did you choose his house?—Because it is on the Plains, close by the booth.

6341. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you pay him this 5*l.* yourself?—Yes, I did, out of my own pocket.

6342. Was this paid out of the election expenses?—I have never been paid to this day.

6343. Why did not you put it down, you say you never did anything in the way of bribery yourself, why did you never demand your money?—I had nothing to do with that.

6344. But you would have. If you spent it legitimately for the party it ought to have gone down. How do you account for that?—There was a committee room at the "Seven Stars," and I wanted a private room, and I took this room and paid him.

6345. How do you account for not putting that down, it was a legitimate committee room?—No. I did not look on it as that, but my private affairs.

6346. You sacrificed 5*l.* to a good cause?—Yes. Mr. Dent made me a present of a purse of sovereigns. He gave 10*l.*, and another 5*l.*, and so on.

6347. And you considered it was covered?—They were kind afterwards; they gave me a purse of sovereigns.

6348. (Mr. Bere.) You will save us an immense deal of time if instead of obliging us to use the torture of cross-examination you would tell us what you know. We have to put to you a great many questions for information you could give to us perfectly readily, and you would save us a good deal of time and trouble by pursuing that course. For instance, with regard to Mr. Smale, why did you not tell us at first all you knew about him?

6349. (Mr. Longe.) Now Saunders?—I do not know anything about him.

6350. Is he a pure man?—I think he went away with Wm. Reeve. I do not know anything about him myself.

6351. He was the man who took off Reeve?—They went away together I think. I have heard of such a report of them.

6352. How do you mean went away?—When William Reeve and two or three others went away.

6353. (Mr. Bere.) On your side?—Yes.

6354. In 1863?—Yes.

6355. He voted?—Yes.

6356. But he came back?—He went away some few days before.

6357. (Mr. Longe.) He was taken away?—Oh, yes. I do not know whether he went away with his own consent or not. I have no idea.

6358. (Mr. Bere.) What was the object of his being taken away?—I do not know, to be away from temptation.

6359. (Mr. Longe.) Then, I suppose, he was paid on one side to get away from temptation on the other?—I do not know for a fact, but I assume such to be the case.

6360. Do you believe the man would go away of himself?—That is what Reeve tells us.

6361. To give such powers to take Reeve away Saunders must have been a man of considerable position on your side?—I believe there were other parties went with them.

6362. Who were the parties taken away?—I do not know.

6363. How many were taken away?—Several.

6364. A dozen?—No.

6365. Half-a-dozen?—Four or five.

6366. (Mr. Bere.) Where were they taken to? They were the lame ducks, were not they?—Well, that is what they have been designated.

6367. Were they taken to Torquay?—Somewhere, I do not know where. I know they were taken away, but where I do not know.

6368. (Mr. Longe.) Frederick Seccombe?—He did not vote. He is a druggist here. I do not know why he did not vote I am sure; I have no idea.

6369. You have no suspicion of his being bribed?—No, he is beyond that I think.

6370. What are his politics?—I understood when he came here he was Conservative, but he went into a Liberal shop and he has Liberal customers.

6371. When he found his customers were Liberal he stuck to the Liberal side?—Yes. He told me his father was a Conservative.

6372. How long has he been here?—Some four or five years.

6373. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do Liberals always support Liberal shops?—As a rule.

6374. Is Mrs. Thomas's a Liberal shop?—A very Liberal shop that. She does not live on Captain Helms, but then he is a bachelor man and she is a widow.

6375. Thomas Hore Taylor?—He is a clerk, and was for years, to old Mr. Windeatt.

6376. (Mr. Bere.) He is a clerk in Mr. Windeatt's office?—Yes. He is one of the very few old freemen in the place; he is very poor, but they always put him to work, and gave him something to do. No doubt e gets a little pay for it, just as we should expect ir. Bryett's clerks or Mr. Kellock's clerks to give iem a little work to do.

6377. John Toms?—He is a gentleman who is ead. I think he was dead then, I do not know.

6378. He did not vote?—No; but he is a gentleman beyond anything of that sort.

6379. Benoni Tozer?—He is the duke's tenant.

6380. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is he open to conviction?—No, he is beyond all that.

6381. (Mr. Longe.) He is firm?—Yes, bonâ fide.

6382. Did you ever hear anything of his politics?—No.

6383. George Turpin?—I do not think he ever had ny money himself; he used to try poor Mr. Moysey, nd Mr. Mogridge, who is dead. You will find it in ie particulars.

6384. He tried Moysey?—Yes.

6385. (Mr. Bere.) He was a tempter, not a tempted?—I think that was his position.

6386. That is all you know?—He never had any oney; he worked for their party.

6387. At which election?—Every election he would o what he could no doubt.

6388. Is he a large farmer?—A very large farmer.

6389. He worked in Totnes?—He worked in Totnes and Bridgetown.

6390. Was he trusted with money for the purpose f influencing the election?—No; from what I could ear from Mr. Mogridge this man was taken to Endle.

6391. He threw out hints?—Just so.

6392. Endle was their Mr. Mum?—That is it.

6393. Edward Randle Turpin?—That is a brother f the late George Turpin, I think he was a carpenter nder the Duke of Somerset for 20 years. He always oted right for the Liberal party, but this time did ot like Seymour, and approved very much of Dent, nd he had a desire to vote and voted for him, and I are say for that vote he had a little remuneration, nd was turned out.

6394. (Mr. Bere.) I suppose that his desire arose in his mind as soon as he heard of Dent's money?—No, but he did not approve of Mr. Seymour. I have eard him say so, that he did not like Seymour at all.

6395. Seymour and nothing was wanting compared in the balance with Dent and money?—Seymour was backed up with Mr. Pender's money, if he had one of his own you must recollect.

6396. (Mr. Longe.) It is rather a question of opinion, but suppose the turning out was a sort of fatality held over him, would he have required any oney?—I should have looked upon him prior to hat as a sort of freeman on the Liberal side. I do not think he had a farthing from the Liberal side, and when he expressed a desire to vote for the Conservatives he might have said, "I shall certainly be turned out." You know when they withhold their vote from hem they are sure to be turned out, and of course we should offer him money to compensate the sacrifice.

6397. Was he one of the chickens you took care of?—I got a house for him.

6398. Did you find him one?—Yes; he is all right now.

6399. One of your own?—No, the late Mr. Hannaford's. I went to Mr. Hannaford and got it.

6400. (Mr. Longe.) Richard Tilley?—He always votes on our side. If he had not got money he ought to.

6401. Why?—He is of the class of working men; they ought to have sent him a little.

6402. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is he a matter-of course man?—Yes; he always goes right. He is a dairyman and keeps a small shop.

6403. (Mr. Longe.) Henry Tapper?—I think you will see at the previous election that is the gentleman that Mr. Bentall spoke about. He used to go for the Liberals, and on one occasion he voted for Mills and Dunn.

6404. That Mr. Bentall has spoken about?—Yes.

6405. He is an old voter?—A very old voter. In 1852 he voted for Mills and Dunn.

6406. Mills and Mackenzie in 1857, or Mills and Dunn in 1859?—Yes, I dare say that is right.

6407. I believe he was one of those gentlemen that received something on both sides?—He is since dead now.

6408. Did you ever buy one vote?—If you cannot get at them in any other way perhaps you try to get one.

6409. That is sometimes done?—Very frequently. That is what the Liberals did last time. That is the way they worked a great many of ours.

6410. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is the selection of the one you buy left to you or the man who does it?—Left to us to select the man, because, for instance, there are many people in the town of Totnes who do not like the Duke of Somerset; they are Liberals, but they like one of our men, so they vote for Mills and ours provided they get some money.

6411. (Mr. Bere.) In fact they vote against the Duke of Somerset?—They vote against the duke.

6412. They have no political principles at all.

6413. (Mr. Coleridge.) And when you get an exceptional vote for Pender and Dawkins say, there must be something very peculiar to make that sort of thing?—No, that is against the duke.

6414. (Mr. Bere.) If you get a split for Seymour and Dawkins there must be something curious?—Yes, the Seymour interest must be brought to bear or there must be some money flying about.

6415. On the Tory side?—Yes.

6416. Robert Taylor?—He is dead now, but he never had a farthing. He was perfectly independent, he rented a large farm of Mr. Dacres Adams at Bowden.

6417. Robert Tucker?—I never heard of his having money.

6418. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he always vote the same way?—Yes, he was a Tory.

6419. (Mr. Longe.) What was he?—A saddler.

6420. Henry Toms?—He was a printer. Mr. Bourne tempted him very, very hard on the Whig side.

6421. Did you ever hear what he offered?—No; but he was a printer, and he chose to adhere to us, and did our work.

6422. Bourne could have put a good deal of business in his way?—Yes, I have heard Toms say he used to have work to the amount of 40*l.* a year. Immediately he voted for us he took away his printing.

6423. (Mr. Coleridge.) You paid him liberally for what he did for you at elections?—The proper charge. He is a man not in want of money.

6424. (Mr. Bere.) How did you hear that?—Mr. Toms told me himself.

6425. (Mr. Longe.) William Tucker?—He is a grocer. I never heard of his having money, I should not think he ever had any money.

6426. Did he always vote the same way?—Always Liberal.

6427. Edmund Tucker?—He is one of our petitioners. He is what we call one of our pure men in the town.

6428. He is a young man, I suppose?—He has been in business many years.

6429. What is he?—He is a large grocer and tallow chandler.

6430. (Mr. Longe.) Stephen Tozer?—If he had not got money he ought to.

6431. Why?—Because he is a poor man.

6432. (Mr. Coleridge.) Then would he be a matter-of-course man?—Yes, always right, safe as the sun for the Conservatives.

6433. Richard Parnell Tarring, what have you to say about him?—He voted for Dent then, and he voted for Pender and Dawkins at the last election.

6434. He split his vote?—Yes.

6435. Did you try him?—No.

6436. How did you get him for Colonel Dawkins?—I do not know; he signed the requisition.

6437. For whom had he voted in 1862?—I almost think he voted against us before.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

6438. He voted for Pender in 1862?—I think so. I am not positive. I almost think he did.

6439. How did you get him for Dent?—He was bribed.

6440. Who bribed him?—I do not know.

6441. Did you canvass him?—No.

6442. Who did?—I do not know.

6443. Had you any conversation with him before the election?—No.

6444. Was he not a man with whom you had any dealings?—No.

6445. Who was the man that got him?—I do not know.

6446. Who would be likely to be?—I do not know his name; he was put down as likely to be bribed.

6447. Who by?—I do not know.

6448. Was a list returned to you of all people bribed on your side?—No; we should look on certain people to be bribed beforehand.

6449. Who put his name down?—We should mark them off on passing over the list.

6450. Was that one of your marks (referring)?—I think so.

6451. Why did you put him down?—I think he has voted against us before.

6452. Do you mean at the single election when Dent withdrew?—I think in 1859 he voted against us, and he was a come-at-able man.

6453. Did he vote then in 1859?—Yes, for Mackenzie.

6454. How did you know he was a come-at-able man?—I did not know.

6455. Had you any conversation with him?—Yes, I have had conversations almost with every person in the town.

6456. Had you with him?—I do not remember any particular conversation.

6457. You do not recollect anything that gave you an idea that he was come-at-able?—I should think the tenor of his conversation would lead to that conclusion.

6458. Was he a man with a downcast countenance?—Not very pertinent.

6459. Betwixt and between, and therefore doubtful?—Yes.

6460. How did he vote at the 1865 election?—Half and half.

6461. John Tozer; what do you know about him?—He is a gentleman who has voted free.

6462. Always for you?—He is dead now; that is the last time that he voted.

6463. Was he alive at the last election?—No, I believe not.

6464. Robert J. Troake; he voted for Seymour?—He is dead. He was landlord of the "Town Arms"; he voted no doubt that way.

6465. Had he always voted for the Liberals?—Yes.

6466. From first to last?—From first to last.

6467. Would he be a matter-of-course man?—No; he was paralysed, and was taken down at the very last hour. I do not believe he ever spoke, and was not conscious at all. He was taken down in a carriage. I remember being present.

6468. John Tucker, Fore Street?—He was a butcher. I do not know if he was bribed.

6469. Did you try him?—No.

6470. He voted on your side?—Yes.

6471. Did he before?—I do not think he was bribed. He worked very hard for us, and rather complained that he ought to have a little tin.

6472. Then he had not any of the matter-of-course sent him?—No; we did not look on him as a bribery man, but as an active man.

6473. How did he vote in 1862?—Always a Tory.

6474. And 1865 a Tory?—I was going to say that was the first time he voted.

6475. In 1865 did he vote again for you?—Yes.

6476. Did he have any money then?—No.

6477. Did you have a bill at his house?—No; he was a butcher. He was very hot and strong.

6478. Was there any system of giving away meat at Christmas?—In the olden times.

6479. Not latterly?—No.

6480. They do it more indirectly?—Yes.

6481. Robert Tozer?—He is one of Mr. Durant's tenants. They had expectations, and voted according to Mr. Tozer's request.

6482. Tozer voted for you?—Yes.

6483. How did he vote in 1862?—I think he voted against us.

6484. He was one of the Pender lot?—Yes.

6485. How did he vote in 1859?—He was not a voter; Mr. Durant turned him out.

6486. Did he vote in 1865?—He is not a voter; he was qualified by the Durant property, and he turned him out.

6487. He had no vote at this time?—No.

6488. (Mr. Bere.) He had in 1859?—No. I think he was not on the register.

6489. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had he any money for voting?—No; I think he voted in consideration of the uncle's request.

6490. In consequence of their expectations?—Yes, property from their uncle.

6491. Richard Tope?—He is a railway man, and I never heard he had any money.

6492. I see he voted for you on this occasion?—Yes; that is the only one of the railway men—no, Smith also voted for us.

6493. Had you a good deal of conversation with him?—I never had any.

6494. Never any word with the railway people?—No, my forte was not that.

6495. What was he?—The same as Smith the policeman.

6496. Who would have to do with him?—He is a thorough out-and-out Conservative. I do not think any money would buy him.

6497. Was this his first vote?—Yes.

6498. He voted for the Conservatives, and you looked upon him as a matter-of-course man, and thought he ought to have something sent to him?—No; he had very good pay.

6499. Do you mean that no man, with say 30*s.* a week, is in the position of a matter-of-course man?—No. I do not look on him in that way.

6500. You would not have thought that?—No, he is a pick above that. I should think what you call a degree above that.

6501. Do you mean he was a degree approaching to bribery?—No; he was a man of that class; he was particularly reserved. I do not think that any money would tempt him at all. I do not think he would entertain the idea.

6502. Do you know who canvassed him?—No.

6503. He voted for you again in 1865?—Yes.

6504. Had he a sub. then?—Not to my knowledge.

6505. And you did not when you were making up your lists of people who deserved remuneration for their free and independent exercise of the franchise put him down?—No, I should not; I should put him down as certain.

6506. And not even that he should be rewarded for his political consistency?—No.

6507. Philip Tozer?—He is the duke's man.

6508. (Mr. Bere.) A slave?—Yes.

6509. (Mr. Coleridge.) And a matter-of-course man?—This man is in the true sense of the word a slave, because he works for the duke.

6510. In what way?—As a labourer. Although he rents a field or two, yet he is constantly at work for the duke.

6511. What work has the duke there?—All about his ground, making hedges and so on.

6512. Does the duke keep any land in hand?—No, he looks after the hedges, premises, woods, and a host of things.

6513. In a position to be regarded as a matter-of-course man?—Yes. I forgot to tell you, if you will permit me to mention it, that his son in 1865—he has a son in Bridgetown—took a sum of money from us t this last election, but he returned it again, and I hink his father was the means.

6514. Was his son a voter?—Yes.

6515. Was that John?—Yes.

6516. Is he dead now?—No; he did not vote at his election—not the election we are referring to; he is a new voter.

6517. (Mr. Bere.) Who gave him the money on your side?—I think his mother-in-law, Mrs. Lombardini; she was put upon him.

6518. Who put her upon him?—The Conservative party, not myself.

6519. Was she the wife of Thomas Lombardini?—Yes.

6520. You do not know who was put upon her?—No, I do not.

6521. (Mr. Coleridge.) John Tucker, Rolster Bridge?—He did not vote.

6522. Do you know about his having money to keep away?—He was offered a very heavy sum to vote. He was one of the duke's tenants.

6523. Did you offer it to him?—No.

6524. Did your side?—I rather think we offered him a good sum to vote, and they paid him to keep away.

6525. He would not vote for the duke?—No.

6526. So you offered him a good sum?—Yes.

6527. Do you know how much?—I think 300*l.* or 400*l.*

6528. Do you know by whom?—No; he was offered a very heavy sum at any rate; I do not know exactly what.

6529. Was he turned out for not voting?—Yes; he was turned out immediately.

6530. (Mr. Bere.) At what time was he offered?—About three o'clock.

6531. On the polling day?—Yes; they were only conditional sums offered, provided that we could get the remainder, like Coombes.

6532. If they could win the election they were to have these large sums?—Yes.

6533. These persons who were offered large sums late in the day were they to have anything—a smaller sum—in the event of your not succeeding?—I think they bribed the duke's tenants, and we wanted time, as it were, to get him to vote.

6534. Was he an instance of a man taking money on both sides?—I think not.

6535. Are there many who you imagine at the election of 1863 took money on both sides?—No.

6536. Or 1865?—No, very few of that sort.

6537. They were too well looked after?—They were too well looked after.

6538. Is he a tenant of the Grammar School Committee?—Yes.

6539. Are they Liberals?—They were at that time, but since that it has passed into other hands. It was under the hands of Charles Webber, and he brought his influence to bear in this matter.

6540. Against you?—No; the duke was with him in this matter.

6541. Against you?—Yes.

6542. And he prevented this man voting?—This man would have voted for us I think; but they stopped him somehow or other, I do not know how. He promised us, and they stopped him.

6543. In using that influence they prevented him voting at all?—Yes; whether influence or money I cannot tell.

6544. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know how many Mr. Dent was behind at half-past 3?—Eight, I believe so.

6545. Was he near Seymour at any time at that election?—I do not remember.

6546. He was never at the head of the poll?—He was at the early part of the day I believe, a long time.

6547. How long was he at the head of the poll, do you recollect?—Up to about 12 or 1 o'clock.

6548. Then I suppose the heavy sums were not going as long as he was at the head of the poll?—We lost several men that we anticipated would have secured him; for instance, such as the Hills and various parties of that sort. We anticipated that there would be a majority of 20 at that time.

6549. (Mr. Bere.) When did he first come behind?—I think between 12 and 1.

6550. You say they had six bad votes on their side, and you two?—Not that election.

6551. How many then at that election?—I do not remember.

6552. (Mr. Coleridge.) How many had you?—I do not remember.

6553. (Mr. Longe.) Do you know who it was that operated upon Mr. Tucker then?—No, I do not. I think there was Mr. Charles Webber, the magistrate, on their side.

6554. Who else?—There was some messenger sent out to the "Stars."

6555. Did not you use some of your big guns at that time, some of the leading men in the town?—I do not know.

6556. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you mean that in such an important thing as a bribe of 300*l.* or 400*l.* the business would be intrusted to such a man as a messenger?—Yes. No respectable man would do it.

6557. The Heaths did it?—What I mean is such as a lawyer for instance, a man of position in society.

6558. You do not regard the Heaths as respectable men in the way you use the word?—They were working men. I mean such a class as barristers and solicitors. They might be respectable working men.

6559. It might have been one of the Heaths?—Yes; they were very anxious.

6560. These heavy transactions were generally confided to inferior agents; is that what we are to understand?—As a rule. For instance, I would not have anything to do with it myself.

6561. But you have told us instances where you have had to do it yourself?—Never.

6562. At the same time you mean the heavier the transaction the inferior the agent?—No.

6563. You have told us in almost all cases the Heaths have done it. Do you mean when you come to heavy transactions you would employ some one inferior to the Heaths?—I do not know. When the political fire is burning many parties run and do what they would not in their sober moments.

6564. You have told us of many instances of 60*l.* or 70*l.* in which you have said the Heaths were concerned; now we want to know whether when you come to larger sums you would not be more likely to employ a man of Mr. Heath's stamp than a man of a lower stamp?—I do not know about employing; it is a question of who has influence there.

6565. Do you mean that it makes any difference whether the person tendering it is Smith or Jones? I want to know, you say a messenger went to them, and you have told us lots of cases in which you have said no doubt Frederick Evens or the Heaths have done it?—I do not know who did this.

6566. Who was likely to be the person to be intrusted with it?—I have no recollection.

6567. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember seeing Mr. Presswell, the town clerk, about that time?—He was one of the trustees of the estate, and I think he brought his influence to bear in the same way as Mr. Charles Webber, but he was not strong enough. Mr. Charles Webber received the rents; Mr. Presswell had not much to do with those things, though since I believe he was made a receiver of the rents.

6568. (Mr. Coleridge.) You think Mr. Webber got him away from him and prevented his voting?—Yes.

6569. Mr. Presswell tried the same means as Mr. Webber you say?—I think so.

6570. Then you got Mr. Presswell against Mr. Webber by the same means, and then you got an offer on your side of 300*l.*?—It was a very large sum; it may be more.

6571. Then it was 300*l.* and Mr. Presswell against Mr. Webber, and that did not succeed in making him vote?—I think that is a correct version of it.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

6572. From that you would infer that there must have been Mr. Webber and something like 300*l.* also to keep him away?—A very large sum on the other side.

6573. Arthur Venning, Fore Street?—I do not know anything of him personally.

6574. You know nothing about him?—No, he was always a staunch Conservative.

6575. What is he?—A retired gentleman who lives on his means.

6576. You would not think of sending him anything?—I do not know about sending, I would not say he was not bought in. I do not know of my own knowledge.

6577. You have told us of a certain class of people when you went down the list that you have said you sent them so and so?—That is a poor man.

6578. It is a question of amount. I suppose you would not have sent him anything as a matter of course?—No.

6579. John Randle Veasey; he voted against you on this occasion?—Yes, I remember having a conversation with him upon the subject.

6580. Had you canvassed him?—Yes.

6581. When did you canvass him, how long before the election?—During the election.

6582. What did you think from his reasoning, what was he going to do?—He was open to conviction.

6583. What mode did you propose to convince him by?—I think he was joined with Searle's lot and we could not get at him. I remember his being up at Mr. Sloggett's painting when I was there.

6584. Is he a painter then?—Yes.

6585. How did he vote in 1862?—He was Mr. Manning's tenant.

6586. He voted for Mr. Pender in 1862, how about '59?—I do not think he was a voter then.

6587. How did he vote in 1865?—Against us.

6588. Do you know at all what convinced him to vote against you?—Perhaps he stuck to his old party.

6589. The Searles?—Yes.

6590. He stuck to the slippery lot?—In fact after the 1862 vote, after the bargain was closed, I think they felt themselves bound to support in a certain sense the Seymour party even without the money.

6591. (Mr. Longe.) Honour amongst thieves?—Yes, I think so.

6592. There is such honour in Totnes as that?—I think you may designate it as honour among thieves. When not required to vote for Mr. Pender, and then when Mr. Seymour came they felt bound to vote for Mr. Seymour without anything at all, that is my opinion about them.

6593. Their conscientiousness bound them?—We have no conscientious men in Totnes.

6594. You have told us of lots of pure voters?—There may be, but very few.

6595. Then James Richard Veitch, Dart Villas, he voted for you?—He is a captain in the navy; beyond anything in that way.

6596. He has always voted for you?—That is the first time he voted. He proposed Commander Pim.

6597. John Venn?—He was one of the manufactured voters. He lived in the same house with Mrs. Thomas.

6598. She kept him straight?—He could not go wrong.

6599. A lodger of Mrs. Thomas's?—Yes. He knew nothing more about that field than a stranger.

6600. Where?—At Gerston.

6601. Is he one of the nine?—Yes.

6602. Being under the thumb of Mrs. Thomas?—He is a retired exciseman.

6603. I suppose you could hardly venture to Mrs. Thomas's house?—I should be very sorry.

6604. Did you ever catch him outside?—No.

6605. Being a manufactured vote you thought it was hardly worth while?—No man would do that, he would swear away a man's life, he is always a dangerous character.

6606. You never attempted to tamper with his virtue?—No; because if I attempted to speak to him he would swear I offered him money.

6607. You did not?—No, never in my life; not about election matters I mean.

6608. Has he always voted Liberally?—This is the first election at which he has voted.

6609. How did he vote in 1865?—For Pender and Seymour.

6610. Mrs. Thomas's influence was still paramount?—I do not think that we tried him.

6611. She would not let anybody in?—No, not to let them remain there. If they had gone in for a halfpenny bun they would soon have to walk out.

6612. John L. Winter, Bridgetown?—He is a freeman, and he is the only instance in which the Duke of Somerset permits a man who is a Tory to remain in Bridgetown as his tenant.

6613. What is the reason of that?—He is a clerk to Lewis John Oldreive, the great land agent.

6614. And he is a Conservative?—Yes; that is the only instance in which the duke has allowed a Tory to remain.

6615. Do you know whether Mr. Oldreive has been employed by the duke at all?—No.

6616. And this man has been allowed to vote as he likes?—Yes.

6617. Henry White?—He is a gentleman in Bridgetown, who, I do not believe, ever had any money. He is a quiet, innocent sort of man.

6618. Is there not some surgeon in Bridgetown who has a house of the duke's, and who yet always votes against him?—If you allude to Mr. Hains, I think he always supports the duke.

6619. Is that the man of whom the story was told of his having been sent away for the purpose?—He had a special case on one occasion; some confinement I believe.

6620. That was Mr. Presswell's secret?—I was not in the secret.

6621. It was an imaginary confinement then?—Yes.

6622. William John Willis, Totnes?—He is one of our active men.

6623. And one who always votes for you?—Yes; he always votes for us.

6624. How has he been remunerated for it?—He was doing the work that was necessary.

6625. Was he paid for his services in a lump sum?—I do not know that; he ought to have been, if he was not.

6626. Then would you put him down as one who had earned his money well? Is that what you say of him?—I should put him down as a certain man.

6627. I am not asking you about your offering him any money during the election, or before the election but was he what you have called a matter-of-course man?—I should say not; certainly not.

6628. Then you think that a 25*l.* sub. would not have been sufficient for him?—I should think that he ought to have had 10*l.* just for his exertions.

6629. He was a lame duck, was he not?—No; I rather think that he took away some of the lame ducks.

6630. He was a sort of decoy to them?—Yes.

6631. You told us that, as to a certain man, because he was poor, you would send him 20*l.* or 25*l.* or some such small sum; if you would send a poor man 25*l.* for doing nothing beyond voting, why would you send only 10*l.* to Willis for voting and giving his services as well? Upon what principle would you do that?—I would send it to him as a sort of gratuity for his services in moving about on our behalf.

6632. Then a poor man, who merely gives his vote is worth 25*l.*, and a man who is not poor, but who is actively engaged, is worth only 10*l.*?—Yes; and particularly if he was one of those who had been expelled by the duke.

6633. Are there not many of these men to whom are now alluding who are always staunch to you ?

ll that I can say is, if they were not paid they ht to be. We have a lot of them now in Totnes hat very state, and I think they are men who ht to be remunerated.

634. John Woodley, Totnes ?—He is a man of same character; very energetic. I think this was first occasion of his voting. His father, I believe, been a Conservative.

635. John Wright ?—He is a gentleman who ed with us then.

636. How was he in 1862 ?—I think that was first time that he voted.

637. Did he not vote against you in 1865 ?—Yes; was the story about the vessel; the offer that made as to his son-in-law. It has been reported the maid looked through the keyhole, and she she heard a large sum of money offered, 300*l.*

638. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know the maid's name ? er name is Honeywell. She peeped through the ole of the door when the man with the white went in, and she says she heard this man make a ain with Mr. Wright for 300*l.*

639. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is that the way in which ladies of Totnes influence the elections by peeping ugh the keyhole ?—This person was a servant he house.

640. And she listened at the door ?—There is one g certain, that he always was a Conservative, he signed the requisition and gave a pledge Colonel Dawkins, and afterwards voted against

641. William Willcocks ?—He always voted for Conservatives.

642. What is he ?—He is a painter.

643. And what you have called a matter-of-course ?—Yes.

644. Would you send him 25*l.* ?—No; a little only a little in the drink way. He lives at the y Horse Inn ;" they give him plenty of work, Seymour party.

645. At a double election I suppose he votes one one ?—Not at the last election. There are ing but genuine men who are got over there

646. Edward Woodley ?—He is a thorough sup- er, and never had a farthing.

647. The next on the list is Richard Watson ?— t is the gentleman who was made a magistrate coming over from France. He went away some before the election, when it was known that the ion was about to take place, and I have been rmed that on the platform at Totnes he said——

648. Who informed you of it ?—I heard Mr. swell say so at this very election.

649. That he had gone away, not meaning to ?—He took a fortnight's ticket to France. There been a rumpus amongst them because he could get exactly what he wanted. He got over to ace, and then there was a communication between telegraphic messages, and so on, going to and hither and thither, and they got him back again; immediately that he got back again he was made gistrate.

650. Do you know anything about these tele- ns yourself ?—No ; I do not.

651. William Webber ?—He is now dead. It is right to rake up the deeds of the dead, but that he man who interfered with John Westaway, a e you will find in the list a little below. He was ged to Mr. Dent, and had signed a paper that he ld vote for him. He called upon Webber, who ed him in his house and kept him there all night.

652. At which election ?—At this election, and ght him out in time to poll.

653. How had Webber voted before ?—He was ut-and-out Radical; he was made a magistrate doing that.

654. How did Westaway vote on the last occa- , do you know ?—He was not allowed to vote ; s a gardener to Rear-Admiral Mitchell. At the end of his garden he has a house in which this man lives; the property is sufficient to qualify; and when the admiral found that this man had voted against his wish, he says, I will be rateable in future for the property myself, so that you will not have the vote any more.

6655. John Willis ?—He is one who never had any money.

6656. Do you know what he is ?—He is a butcher and a member of the town council. He always votes on the right side.

6657. Edward Willis ?—I am told that he formed one of the seven of whom I spoke just now; one of the slippery company.

6658. Did he vote in 1862 for Pender ?—He keeps an inn. He was one of those dissatisfied men. There was a bill remaining unpaid before Mr. Pender came, and a portion of the money which Mr. Condy told you of went to his house to pay off the old scores.

6659. Has he ever voted for you ?—I do not remember that he has. All his family were Conservatives.

6660. He has himself always voted on the Liberal side ?—Yes.

6661. Thomas White, Harberton ?—I never heard of his having any money given to him. He is a very respectable farmer on Mr. Cary's estate. At the last election he did not vote ; probably he did not like to vote against Mr. Cary.

6662. Mr. Cary does not vote himself, I believe ? —He did not vote at this election. I think the old cardinal who died the other day was a Conservative, and they have brought their influence to bear on Mr. Cary.

6663. What is Mr. Cary ? A Liberal ?—He is a Roman Catholic. At the late election he would not vote; the Roman Catholics brought their influence to bear upon him.

6664. You have not many Roman Catholics here ? —I believe he belongs to the Roman Catholic church at Torquay.

6665. Frederick T. Waymouth ?—He rents a field of the duke, and likes to give him a vote. He did not vote at all at the last election. He never had any money. He says, "I am a Tory. I vote for my "colours."

6666. Was he turned out ?—No ; he has a field by means of which he makes two fictitious votes.

6667. The next is Walter Worth ? What do you know of him; he seems to have voted for the Liberals ?—He is a Conservative in heart.

6668. If he is a Conservative in heart it is very odd that he should have voted for Mr. Pender in 1862 ?— You will find that he rents a field of Mr. Rennie or of the duke ; the condition is this, that if he pays 30*l.* to the Duke and 36*l.* to Mr. Rennie, he is not to allow any vote to be made on either of the properties. That is a kind of set off; he is to vote one Conservative and one Liberal. That has been the understanding.

6669. Does he have any money for his vote ?—I believe not.

6670. Joshua Weymouth ? — He always votes Liberal, and his nephew, Frederick Thomas, votes Conservative.

6671. Is he a matter-of-course man ?—Joshua Weymouth is right.

6672. John Williams ?—He is dead. I believe Mr. Condy, who did not know anything the other day, tried him very hard, but could not succeed.

6673. And you tried him too ?—He is always Conservative ; he is one of the men whom I should send 25*l.* to.

6674. Is he a poor man ?—Not exactly a poor man ; he keeps a small inn ; they are worse off than labouring men.

6675. He would want it more than a railway porter ?—Yes, because the latter has a permanent salary.

6676. Thomas Willis, Fore Street ? — He is a brother of John Willis, and is all right on our side.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

6677. Should you send him anything as a matter-of-course man?—He is above that.

6678. Has he always voted your way of thinking?—No; in 1859, I think, he voted for Mills.

6679. Then what led to his conversion in 1863?—It was the election before that.

6680. He voted for Seymour and Mills in 1852?—His family were all Conservatives; he deserted the ranks from some little grievance; that Mr. Baldwin did not get him some situation.

6681. Did you ever put him down for money?—No; he is not a money man.

6682. William Willis?—He is the town surveyor; he is all right.

6683. He votes with the majority of the town council?—When they turned out poor Sam Cuming they put him in.

6684. Has he always been Conservative?—Some years ago he was half and half.

6685. Is he open to conviction?—No; he is not a conviction man.

6686. John Watson, "Lord Nelson Inn"?—He keeps an inn; he is under Mr. Heath; he is right enough, but you must give him a little bill.

6687. Has he ever gone away from you?—No; he is true to his colours.

6688. Thomas Widdicombe?—He was the tenant of the duke; a man whose vote was made on Westaway's field, a fictitious vote; he is not on the register now.

6689. Was he a matter-of-course man of the duke's?—Yes.

6690. Would he have had any money?—No, he is beyond that.

6691. James Willcocks?—He is one of the old Tory school who always stuck to his colours.

6692. What is he?—A painter.

6693. What do you send him after the election?—Not anything; his work and labour lies with the Tories.

6694. James Warren?—He is dead; I think he had some tin.

6695. Who did he have it from?—From the Tory party.

6696. Who would give it to him?—That I do not know; I should rather think it was Evens.

6697. Did he vote for you?—Yes.

6698. Colonel Willoughby?—He is all right on that side; probably I may be allowed to say, in reference to the guarantee of Mr. Michelmore and others to some bank in Totnes of a large sum of money on behalf of Lord Seymour, it was currently reported at the time that this gentleman at my elbow (Mr. Michelmore) was very much displeased at the manner in which the subject was being treated and was afraid they should be called on to pay the money. I remember very well a man coming down here, called Moore, they called him Rory O'Moore, the great anti-corn law league man. He came down with Mr. Pender some time after Lord Seymour's election, and I have reason to believe that he came down here to settle the whole affair; this man was a great orator, I believe. There had been some dissatisfaction in the town and communications going on between some parties about the money, but after this man came I never heard anything more of the dissatisfaction.

6699. Do you know who were the parties to that deed?—Mr. Charles Michelmore, Mr. Jeffery Michelmore, Mr. Chaster, Mr. Huxham, Mr. Condy, and various other persons; I only tell it you as I remember it, but it was stated at the time that Mr. Condy was one of the parties who were answerable for it.

6700. Did you hear whether the guarantee was in writing, or whether it was a mere getting of these people to bind themselves to be answerable for it?—It was in writing, no doubt. You may leave bankers alone to advance money on the mere word of any man.

6701. You think even Mr. Derry would not do that?—He would require something in black and white.

6702. (Mr. Longe.) What did you refer to be the committee when you spoke of a bill with "A "Seymour" being at the top?—I was asked whe I knew the writing of Mr. Jeffery Michelmore.

6703. And what was shown to you?—An acc paid to Charles Pengilley who went to bribe Bo It was a bill sent in to Mr. Pender and altere Alfred Seymour; they asked me in whose wri the alterations were.

6704. (Mr. Bere.) You told us that you had something to Guppy; did you suggest any mea conviction to him; if so, tell us what it was?—I him just outside my house, and he said or intim that he was open to conviction to vote on our I communicated the fact to Mr. Mum, and the ended. I asked him what he would take for bot votes; he said that he had promised Mr. Pender he had not promised the other vote.

6705. He did not name the sum?—I do not t he did.

6706. Did you say to him, if he gave both votes he should have 100*l.* or 150*l.*?—I might have a him whether he would go for both for 100*l.* or 1

6707. Do not you think you did?—Very like did.

6708. And that the money should be coming t house in bank notes or in gold?—I am quite ce of that; his was a vote we did not value.

6709. And when you had given this informa did he say that he was going to vote for Mr. Pe and that he would give you one?—Yes, he did. did not think him of any value.

6710. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is that the letter w appeared in the "Times" which elicited your l to Mr. Pender (handing a paper to the witness Yes, it is.

"The Totnes Royal Commission.

"The following letter appears in Thursday's 'Times'

"SIR,

"IN the report of the proceedings in the Hou Commons on Mr. Bouverie's motions last evening fo issue of a Royal Commission to inquire into the exis of corrupt practices at elections in Totnes, that gentl says that a man named Harris, one of the witnesse amined before the late committee, 'proved that Mr. Pe 'had offered him a situation if he would not take an a 'part against him,' and on this evidence 'they unseate 'sitting member.'

"It is doubtless true that Harris did make a state to the above effect; but that this assertion 'proved charge is open to question, inasmuch as Mr. Bouverie 'an attempt was made to throw doubt on Harris's vera 'but as he was what would be generally called a respec 'man, in appearance and occupation, the Committee bel 'him to be a credible witness.' The result was, that o man's impeached and unsupported evidence, on this allegation of his, all other charges of bribery agains sitting members 'having,' as Mr. Bouverie admits, ' 'stantially failed of proof,' I was deprived of my seat.

"Under these circumstances Mr. Harris has just re to be satisfied with his personal appearance, since it stood him in such good stead on this critical occasion; instances are, I apprehend, rare where the members legal tribunal, engaged in the solemn duty of administe a penal statute, have permitted themselves to be so fascin by the exterior of a witness as to set aside the eviden his untruthfulness out of compliment to the respectal of his looks.

"I have, however, to offer my acknowledgment Mr. Bouverie for procuring the appointment of a C mission, before whom the evidence thus overruled by late Committee will be reproduced, I trust with t effect, and all the circumstances being investigated an shall have the opportunity of demonstrating in perso utter worthlessness and falsehood of this the one sol charge—all others having been abandoned—on which unseated by a Committee of the House of Commons.

"I have the honour to be, your obedient ser

"18, Arlington Steeet, JOHN PENDE

"May 2nd.

"Printed at the office of the 'Western Daily Mercu Frankfort Street, Plymouth."

6711. What room were you in when you hea this offer about the 20,000*l.*?—In Mr. Gusco office.

6712. Where is that?—In Essex Street in the and.

6713. Mr. Guscotte was there, and you and Mr. monds?—Yes.

6714. And Mr. Guscotte came into the room and there had been an offer of 20,000*l.*?—He did, or rds to that effect.

6715. Are you quite certain of that?—I have con-sed with Mr. Edmonds, who is present, and Mr. monds told me that what I stated here the other was perfectly correct.

6716. If Mr. Guscotte should contradict that, would think there must have been some mistake?—I am dy to swear that Mr. Guscotte said that an offer hat description had been made.

6717. An offer of 20,000*l.*?—Yes.

6718. There is no mistake about that you say?—ne whatever.

6719. Do not you know that on behalf of your own y 5,000*l.* had been asked as a compromise, and been refused by Mr. Pender?—I never heard t.

6720. Did Mr. Guscotte say that this offer had been de?—He did.

6721. Who was in the room first?—I rather think as there first; I was waiting for him.

6722. You say you were in the room first; did you Mr. Edmonds go in together?—I think I was iting there. Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Guscotte came ogether.

6723. How did the conversation begin. I think it to tell you that Mr. Guscotte denies all this?—es he?

6724. What was the conversation that occurred n Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Guscotte coming into the m. Was that the first thing which was said?—I not think it was.

6725. Try and recollect, because this is most im-tant, what was the conversation before the offer of 000*l.* was spoken of?—I do not remember the tenor he conversation.

6726. Was it about the election petition?—We e going through the names of the men who were be called first; reading the evidence, and things of t sort.

6727. Did Mr. Guscotte come back and say that s offer had been made, or was it after discussing evidence that he told you this?—In the course of conversation.

6728. If there had been any idea of accepting the er it would not have been necessary to discuss the dence?—I understood that he had telegraphed to lonel Dawkins before our interview that the offer d come through some means, I do not know what ans, and that Colonel Dawkins had sent back using to accede to any terms whatever.

6729. Then he said to you after going through the dence, we have received an offer of 20,000*l.*, and have consulted Colonel Dawkins by telegram, and will not hear of it?—I think there was a word or o to that effect.

6730. You are quite sure that you have made no stake, either as to the amount, or as to the nature the compromise?—I recollect distinctly the sum ing stated.

6731. Are you sure that it was not this sort of ng. We want more than they will give, but we ght to go as far as 20,000*l.*?—No.

6732. You are certain it was a downright state-nt by Mr. Guscotte that such an offer had been ade?—I have no doubt about it whatever.

6733. Did you see the telegram of Colonel Dawkins using it?—I did not.

6734. I asked you on a former occasion who was to ve the 20,000*l.*; whether it was to go amongst the ctors of Totnes; and you said you supposed that . Guscotte, Mr. Edmonds, and yourself were to ve a share of it?—Nothing was said about who was have the money.

6735. I asked you who you expected would have it, d you said that you expected it would have to go amongst the electors and Mr. Guscotte?—Exactly so, I thought it was rather an extraordinary offer myself.

6736. Still you did believe from what Mr. Guscotte said that it was a really bonâ fide offer?—I considered it was.

6737. You thought it was a very handsome offer, and you had no doubt whatever that it had been made?—I had no reason to doubt it.

6738. Mr. Guscotte did not speak of it in any way as if he were chaffing you about it, and you believed seriously that such an offer had been made?—I believed then and believe still that the offer had been made.

6739. Then after the offer had been made, did you have any conversation about Colonel Dawkins' refusal to accept it?—No. Mr. Guscotte said that he had received a message from Colonel Dawkins stating that he would not compromise the matter.

6740. Do you mean to tell me there was no conversation between you three men who were so much interested in the obtaining of this 20,000*l.*?—I was as much interested as any other man in Totnes.

6741. Can you state that between you three men who were so much interested in the division of this 20,000*l.*, yourself, Mr. Guscotte, and Mr. Edmonds, there was no expression of regret or astonishment at the refusal of this offer on the part of Colonel Dawkins?—No; I never expressed anything in the shape of regret at all.

6742. Did Mr. Edmonds express any regret at all about it?—No. I will tell you what I think really did occur, and what I think Mr. Edmonds will confirm me in, that if the money was spent amongst the electors of Totnes it would be far better than to turn out Mr. Pender, or something of that sort. You know 20,000*l.* was a wonderful offer. We thought it would be better to have the money spent in Totnes.

6743. Then if that had been so, you and Mr. Guscotte and Mr. Edmonds would not have been able to share the whole amount. Do you wish to recall your expressions in which you said that you expected it would have been divided amongst Mr. Guscotte, Mr. Edmonds, and yourself?—I think I have said that there was a conversation between Mr. Edmonds and myself.

6744. But do you wish to recall that part of your evidence in which you have said that you expected it would have been divided between yourself, Mr. Edmonds, and Mr. Guscotte?—I did not expect so from any conversation between Mr. Guscotte and Mr. Edmonds.

6745. You did not expect that Colonel Dawkins would have put the money into his own pocket?—I thought he was too much of a gentleman to do any such thing.

6746. Unless he had thought fit to repay himself what he had expended during the election at Totnes, he would have handed it over to you and to the two solicitors?—He might have repaid himself the expenses of the election.

6747. What sum should you suppose that Colonel Dawkins left behind him in Totnes?—I should think about 4,000*l.*

6748. I thought you had put it down before as 6,000*l.*?—You should recollect that Mr. Mum brought down a lot.

6749. Then whatever Colonel Dawkins brought down was his contribution, and whatever was brought down by Mr. Mum was the contribution of Captain Pim, or we will say of some one on his behalf?—That I do not know.

6750. Where do you imagine that the money which was brought down by Mr. Mum came from?—That I cannot say. I have read the evidence on the Yarmouth Commission, and there I find that the candidate had a friend in his partner, Mr. Nightingale, who advanced a very large sum on his behalf.

6751. But such friends do not come forward without some expectation of being afterwards paid what they have advanced?—There are many persons do more strange things than that.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

6752. Then am I to understand that you really did expect that if Colonel Dawkins had received this large sum of 20,000*l.* it would have been handed over to you three gentlemen?—Less the expenses that he had been put to at the election. I fancied so.

6753. (Mr. Longe.) I suppose you were considered to be a valuable man against Mr. Pender at the time of the committee?—Speaking for myself, I did not consider my own evidence to be worth much. To be sure it was only a mere matter of conversation between us, and if Mr. Pender with the letters M.P. attached to his name was to be put in opposition to poor Robert Harris of Totnes, why then I concluded that the Committee of the House of Commons would believe him instead of me, notwithstanding that truth must always stand.

6754. (Mr. Bere.) Will you be good enough to furnish us with a list of those persons whom you have considered as matter-of-course people in the borough of Totnes on the Conservative side, and who you say as a matter of course would have had money sent to them?—I will endeavour to do so; but I am afraid you are putting rather a severe ordeal on my shoulders. It is certainly very painful for me to be here to delineate the characters of individuals; at the same time I have come here to tell the truth, and the truth I will tell.

6755. We would also wish you to give us a list of those persons whom you believe have received money as a matter of course on the Liberal side, or who have had money sent to them in the way you have described?—Have I not already given you such a list as that?

6756. I mean in regard to the elections of 1862 and 1865?—Perhaps you would take Mr. Michelmore on the other side, and go through the list of 1865 with him. He will be able to give you as faithful evidence as I have given you; he knows all the ins and outs and the host of bribery which has been carried on here just as well as I do.

6757. What do you know of the election of 1859, I shall not take you through the poll book?—I only had those three cases that I have mentioned to you.

6758. Was that the first election at which you were regularly employed by the Conservatives?—I did not look upon myself as being employed.

6759. Were you paid at that time?—I think I received a sum of money for the services I did. 25*l.* I think.

6760. As canvasser?—Yes.

6761. Who paid you?—Mr. Dunn.

6762. Mr. Dunn himself?—No.

6763. Mr. Edmonds?—No, there was a Mr. Cameron.

6764. From London with Mr. Dunn?—Yes, I think that was the gentleman who paid me. The only instances I remember in connexion with 1859 are those three cases I have given before, namely, William Satchwell, who came to my house and had 25*l.* from John Smith, and John Bearne who came there. He voted in 1859 for Mr. Dunn, and he had 25*l.* also. Mr. Smith asked me where John Pearce lived. He lives in a back street, and I went to John Pearce's to show him where the house was. They understood what was going on, and he left 25*l.* and came away.

6765. Where were you?—I was outside the door.

6766. Did you go in?—No, I did not.

6767. You stood at the door of the house and John Smith left 25*l.* inside?—Yes, in sovereigns on the table, so he told me. For the sake of Mr. Pearce I may say; finding on the day of the election he did not vote, I sent a man named John Sampson for the money, and Mr. Pearce said he had got no money. When I saw Smith he said he left it with his wife, and Pearce said he did not know anything about it.

6768. How did he vote?—Against us.

6769. Did he come to your house?—No.

6770. John Bearne and William Satchwell, how di they come there?—They came up the town.

6771. Was it election day or the nomination day?— The nomination evening I think.

6772. Late in the evening?—Yes.

6773. What time of the year was the election?— The 30th of April I think. You will find Bear voted all right and Satchwell voted all wrong. H says he handed the money to his wife and did n know anything about it.

6774. Did they come together?—No.

6775. Who came first?—Satchwell first. Bear was at work for me.

6776. What is he?—A carpenter.

6777. Was Smith in your house at the time?—I came in after.

6778. Did you send for them?—No.

6779. Did not you know from him that they we coming up?—No, I did not.

6780. Were their names on his list?—I do n know.

6781. Had he not asked you about them?—No.

6782. You were beginning to be recognized as a active man?—Yes.

6783. Were these people that you had know intimately before?—I had not anything to do wit the registration up to this time. I was appointed t overseer that year.

6784. Those people come to your house?—Y Satchwell I was friendly with, and Bearne was n carpenter.

6785. Was it the house you are living in now?— No; that is the upper part of the town.

6786. What part of the house?—In my offic Smith asked if Mr. Bearne was there and M Satchwell, and they said yes.

6787. Where were you?—On the other side of t house. I understood from the man afterwards he h given those men 25*l.*

6788. From John Smith?—Yes; and I we after he had given the money to Bearne and Satchwe to show him where Pearce resided.

6789. It was after he had dealt with Bearne a Satchwell that you sent him to deal with Pearce?— Yes, he seemed to have had a list of the parties deal with.

6790. When did you first see him after the tra action with Bearne and Satchwell?—Immediately came on the other side of the house. The house resided in was a double house. The office was one side of the passage and my sitting-room on t other.

6791. Was your sitting-room door shut?—I do n think it was.

6792. The office door, was that shut?—Yes.

6793. Was it shut when Bearne and Satchwell we in or when Smith went in?—They shut it when th went in.

6794. Had Smith to pass your door to get in?— No.

6795. Did you know that Smith had gone into yo office?—Yes, he knocked at the door and asked if t men were there.

6796. The outer door?—Yes.

6797. Did you answer it?—I think I did, or n servant.

6798. He asked if the men were there?—I watched them in.

6799. You knew what Smith had come there fo —No, I did not.

6800. And had no suspicion?—I do not mean say that I had no suspicion. He introduced his ca and he was an electioneering man.

6801. Was that the first time you saw him?—Y

6802. What sort of man?—He is a pock-mark man.

6803. You saw him afterwards?—Yes, in Lond at the committee room. He shook my hand. I sa "How are you?" and he said, "Do not you remem "I was at Dunn's election."

6804. Did he speak about Bearne and Satchwell?

Yes, and I said I got very near that time, and I said I would not do it again.

6805. Was it in consequence of acting as canvasser that you were made registration agent?—No, I think not; Mr. Welch died, he was high bailiff, and I felt anxious after Mr. Windeatt as I thought got me out of the office; I felt a desire to look into the registration to see that the Liberals were well punished for what they had done to me.

6806. Vengeance?—I do not know that it was vengeance, but I intended to look at the register.

6807. Did you look at the register before you were appointed agent?—Yes, free.

6808. Before Mr. Welch died?—Yes.

6809. The knowledge you acquired made you useful as registration agent and they appointed you?—Yes; in due time they saw I knew what I was about, and they asked me if I would consent to take the office if paid, and I consented so to do. On the morning of the election at that time Barnes, now in Galveston in South America, bribed, I believe, Pearce. Pearce drove his cows to the Plymouth Road and Barnes was waiting for him; they had some conversation at the gate, and I believe that is where the money passed over.

6810. Who were their regular bribers?—Fogwill, Barnes, and Parnell.

6811. Evens, was he in it?—I do not know; I may say I had nothing to do with the election save and except voting.

6812. Who were the bribers on the Liberal side?—Fogwill, the postmaster; Samuel Parnell, the postmaster (they seem to have a particular fancy for postmasters); and this Mr. Barnes.

6813. What was Barnes?—He was a schoolmaster, and now I understand he is the British Consul at Galveston.

6814. Parnell, is he alive?—Yes.

6815. Who did you hear received bribes on that occasion?—I do not know.

6816. No notorious names occur to you as having been bribed?—No.

6817. No familiar sounds?—I do not remember any particular event at that period; I might say I heard about that loan affair which Mr. Huxham related, that Charles Webber and Samuel Huxham lent money out of their own pockets, and when they had not enough they became securities by a joint note of hand, I think for 2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.*

6818. On what day?—On the day of the election. But Mills was a capital milch cow, he had got a good udder as we call it.

6819. (Mr. Coleridge.) Can you give us any other names on the Conservative side that were bribed in the election?—I think Mr. Parnell in connexion with Ferris bribed John Elliott.

6820. Is he alive?—No, but his wife is alive and can tell you all about it.

6821. Where does she live?—In part of the house of Thomas Mugford. I think the money in that case was put into the teapot; and like the boys when they have got anything sweet they say, "Shut your eyes "and open your mouths and see what God will send "you," so with the teapot, she had to go to the teapot when she wanted a bit of golden tea and she got it.

6822. Did you not tell us something of a man called Dawe?—If Dawe has reported that to be so, I do not think he will tell an untruth, and I understand he says in the course of conversation with him I asked him if 100*l.* or 150*l.* would be of service to him. But I do not think it so likely, because he is not such a man as I should attempt.

6823. I dare say you had the curiosity to compare the returns of 1857 and 1859?—No, I cannot.

6824. You cannot tell whether there were any marvellous conversions?—No, I had not had the registration at all, and I took but little interest.

6825. Had you anything to do with 1857?—That was the memorable event.

6826. (Mr. Bere.) The answer was, "John Dawe "at that election says I did not tamper with him, but "I offered him something in 1859." You mean he said so?—Yes; I remember his coming afterwards and my letting him a room; and it is more than probable, if he says so, that in the course of conversation I asked him if 100*l.* or 70*l.* would be of any service that I did. But I had no authority, for I was not in their secrets at that time, not in any shape or form. But I may mention this also, that this election took place in 1859, and Mr. Dawe was dissatisfied with what the Liberals did, and at the election in the council he voted for all four for us. If I promised him money he went to them and they promised him, and he was very disgusted and voted in the council for us.

6827. What was going with the Conservatives in 1859?—A lot of money.

6828. How much?—Several thousands.

6829. Mr. Mills?—There was no limit to that.

6830. Was Mr. Mills as good as Pender?—I think Mills was bled freer than Pender; Pender is a good sharp man.

6831. What do you suppose Mills spent on the elections?—I think 20,000*l.*

6832. How much Pender?—15,000*l.*, that is the current report.

6833. And Dunn?—2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.*

6834. Was any subscription got up?—No, Dunn came down afterwards and was very well pleased with the men, and afterwards got in for Dartmouth; he got in free; he went in and fought Stanley and turned him out.

6835. About 1857?—That was the memorable event in my political life; I was the only man punished in that election by Mr. Windeatt and Mr. Samuel Huxham, at the commencement of my career; I was receiving 100*l.* a year as district secretary, an allowance for a horse, and I had five per cent. on all I did, which made it 200*l.* a year. Mr. Windeatt, who is now dead and gone to his reward, wrote to the directors; they removed me to London, and when I got to London I found it was tantamount to a dismissal, and I sent in my resignation.

6836. (Mr. Coleridge.) Why?—They took me out of my sphere; you would not employ a man unless you wanted him; I was out of my sphere; I was able to get my living in Devonshire, but I was not able to get it in London; I sent in my resignation, and I told Mr. Windeatt about it.

6837. Had you voted at that election?—Yes.

6838. Voted for Mackenzie and Gregory?—Yes.

6839. Was money going then?—I do not know.

6840. By Mr. Mills?—I do not know.

6841. Not your side, but Mills'?—I do not know. As the reporters report everything very sharp, it is necessary to be particular. The "Mercury" makes a kind of insinuation that I was discharged from the office or left for a purpose. I state here, before all the reporters, that they may take it down, and I defy the world to contradict it, I was not indebted a single halfpenny to the company, and after my resignation was sent in they asked me if I would sell my commission, because parties had to pay premiums, and I was entitled to five per cent. commission upon it, and they sent to ask me if I would sell the commission, and I did so, and I think I received 60*l.* in cash besides all the salary due to me which Mr. William Windeatt was to hand over, and there was a proper agreement that when up there I was not to meddle with their concerns.

6842. Who succeeded you?—Mr. Barnes and Mr. Windeatt had got a brother near on the other side appointed.

6843. Politically, can you tell us anything about the election of 1857?—No.

6844. Can you tell us who were the acting men on the Conservative side?—I cannot tell you.

6845. Who can?—I do not know.

6846. Was there a black man, or a Man in the Moon, or a Mr. Mum?—I do not know.

6847. (Mr Coleridge.) What brought you into

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

your present employment? You were not regularly employed in 1859?—No, I went on my own hook for a year without any view of party; we were satisfied, and in 1860 Mr. Rennie came here; he was anxious to keep the thing on the move, and asked me if I would undertake the registration under Mr. Edmonds, to look after the rates, and keep the rates all paid up, and do everything that was to be done that way.

6848. (Mr. Bere.) He was regulating the borough?—He anticipated becoming a candidate.

6849. When did he begin to take an interest?—That was the time.

6850. Not before?—No, he was in the habit of seeing Mr. Champernowne; but I thought he had not money enough to fight the battle.

6851. That is all you know of the election of 1857 and 1859?—That is all, I think. I have told you all about Mr. Heath, and Mr. Ackrell told me there was an offer of a large sum.

(Mr. Bere.) For reasons of our own as to any prior election we will not inquire into any further back than 1857.

6582. With regard to the duke's interest in Bridgetown, you stated that he had 90 votes altogether?—Yes.

6853. I think you said 40 votes bad?—He can depend on 50.

6854. But bad votes on the register?—Yes, fictitious votes, not a bonâ fide holding.

6855. Are they Dartmouth men?—Yes, George Fitze's company?

6856. 40 of that class?—Yes.

6857. The manor of Bridgetown is about 235 acres? I do not know. Perhaps you are about right.

6858. The property of Mr. Durant is filled up, and the duke's property is filled?—Yes, everything is filled up except what is cut off from the Gerston property.

6859. The 235 acres and the Gerston property is filled up?—Yes, every 10*l.* value is to produce a vote somewhere or other.

6860. Do you know any cases? I think you mentioned one, a Mr. Maye who had a letter written to him when he was working the voting for the Conservatives?—He promised the Conservatives, but he was the brother-in-law to Mr. Michelmore, the steward.

6861. Do you know any men who are not pledged, but who have occupation under the duke?—I think he was the only man who was permitted to remain who was not a thorough Liberal and that you could not depend on; but he was the brother-in-law of the steward, and he allowed him to remain. He is the only man of that batch that we could look for for one vote on the general election; but he is, I think, out now. Mr. Jeffery Michelmore has turned him out.

6862. For not voting?—He voted half and half, and Mr. Jeffery Michelmore and the duke will not have that; you must go the whole hog.

6863. Did you hear of any other letters?—No.

6864. I suppose a letter is seldom wanted?—A letter is seldom wanted, but in that case I understand he had promised to vote, and Mr. John Maye went over to Mr. Thomas to get him to come and vote and take him back again; but when he went out he saw this letter there, he was shown the letter, and thinking it would be a very strong thing if Mr. Thomas Michelmore lost his bread by it, we induced him not to vote if he lost the election. The Duke of Somerset was so tyrannical, and he would have turned him out and put in another steward; that was the intent of the letter.

6865. There are a certain number of Parliamentary voters who have not a vote for the municipal election?—Yes.

6866. What number is it? These Dartmouth men would not have a vote?—No.

6867. And the tenants of the duke at Berry Pomeroy?—No. The Municipal Act says it shall be a "house," "warehouse," "shop," not building or land; but in the Reform Act building or land crept in in somebody's clause which was introduced in the House of Lords; and bonâ fide you must occupy premises of this description and of this kind to qualify the farmers of the borough of Ashburton. Though they may qualify upon the land, 50 out of the 90, or 60, are not municipal voters, and when you come to the borough of Totnes, for instance, if the late Reform Bill had passed we should be a Conservative borough of ourselves to all intents and purposes. We have on the present register at least 60 more than they, but they swamp us with the outsiders' buildings and land.

6868. That is your opinion of the anomalous state of things?—Yes, I asked your permission to give a kind of analysis before I left as regards the state of the poll, because I felt anxious at the last election. Although I am a humble man, yet I pride myself on having brought Colonel Dawkins into the market, and upon the face of the documents and the facts I thought we had a fair and legitimate majority of votes.

6869. (Mr. Longe.) You did not ask him merely to pay the money and to get the votes?—No. On examining the list there was a reasonable prospect of a Conservative catching the election, but when we have to contend against Mr. Pender's money and the duke's influence it is a fearful thing to contend with.

6870. (Mr. Coleridge.) On your assumption it is that there should be no bribery on either side, and every one should go to the poll?—I assume that the man who pledges himself to me will stick to me. If he wanted 100*l.* I should try and get it. If he had come and said, I want 150*l.* I would try and get it; and I would say to them, "Do not depart from me" when they are signing the requisition.

6871. That is, assuming there was no bribery, you would have had a majority?—Yes.

6872. No bribery, and that every one should think it worth while to come to the poll?—Yes.

6873. But that is a state of things that you could not expect here?—Yes; but assuming that they sold themselves, I say let me have the first chance; that is what I wanted; but instead of that they would not give me the first chance.

6874. (Mr. Longe.) Beginning with 1865, with regard to the tactics of the Liberal party, we want just the leading names, some of those who took a prominent part; there is Jeffery Michelmore?—Yes, and Mr. Charles Michelmore here.

6875. What part did Mr. Charles Michelmore take?—Unfortunately for him I believe they had not placed so much confidence in him; he has taken to drinking, that is, what we call drinking in Totnes. It is painful to relate, but if you ask my opinion it is so, and they have not placed so much confidence in him, and I do not think he has taken that active part that he used to do, a dead go-by; but for some time he did the work and was paid. There was a cheque sent to him—you will find it in Mr. Michelmore's cheque book—from Mr. Seymour for his services not included in the accounts; he received cheques not included in the accounts, and that will come out.

6876. From whom?—From Pender and Seymour; 50*l.* from Pender and 25*l.* from Seymour.

6877. He did not know there was a petition?—Yes, Mr. Narramore saw his cheques. I remember William Godfrey, the tailor, saying he knew it for a certainty.

6878. Charles Frederick Michelmore can tell us about the money?

(Mr. Michelmore.) I had the cheques 50*l.* and 25*l.*; I do not deny that.

(Witness.) Mr. Griffis told me that Charles Michelmore paid him 50*l.*, and there was Mr. Parnell, the postmaster.

6879. You mean agent?—Yes, an active man.

6880. Have you any other man Mr. Michelmore knows about?—There was that in reference to Mr. Narramore. He was about in every public house treating everybody, feeling the pulse. Mr. Heath saw the poll book, and saw there was marked 100*l.* for one, and 50*l.* for another. This was some few days before the election, and Jonathan Narramore saw it. That was on the same poll book on which was written, "Robert Harris to be had for a situa- "tion." The "Mercury" had it that it was after the situation was offered by Mr. Pender. It was days before the situation was offered by Mr. Pender that this was seen, and I wish that corrected in the "Mercury."

6881. What part did Mr. Michelmore take? What position did he hold?—I saw him about in the carriages with Alfred Seymour and Mr. Pender canvassing.

6882. About with the gentleman in mourning with the white hat?—He was a pleasant man. I spoke to him once or twice. When I spoke to him it was in this way. When the bills got out I remember carrying two or three bills in the Ashburton Road; this man was coming up, and young Tom Windeatt was with him, the present lawyer, the clerk of the Poor Law Board, and he said, "Mr. Harris, will you please "to give me one of those bills," and I think he came to me another time for a bill; those were the only times I had any talk with him.

6883. You know him by sight?—Yes.

6884. You saw him in London?—Yes, several times.

6885. You know he is not a Totnes man?—Yes.

6886. He was the same as Mr. Mum?—Yes; he was the Mum on the other side. I believe he carried the money about, save and except what Mr. Tom Searle and George Stoyle had.

6887. What others?—Mr. Samuel Parnell, Mr. John Elliott, John Pedrick Callard, clerk to the Duke of Somerset; he went about also; and Mr. Prout, he was running about actively offering people money.

6888. J. B. Prout?—Yes.

6889. (Mr. Bere.) He was clerk in Mr. Michelmore's office?—Yes, he was, but he is with Mr. Michelmore of Newton now. I might call them serjeants and corporals. Then there were a lot of under-strappers. One man can tell you that Windeatt put a serjeant upon Baker, and offered him a lot of money. Then Mr. Bovey had Pengilley put upon him. Then there was Mr. Worth was under-strapper to Parnell. He managed old Light. There was a regular staff of old ones. They were up to everything that way.

6890. What time did the work begin? Can you give us any date? When was it known there would be a contest?—As soon as ever Col. Dawkins came into the field. He did not announce he would stand till the day prior to the nomination.

6891. There was some work before that—when Mr. Kennard was announced?—We were then in prospective—everything in prospective.

6892. The Liberals began to protect their seat before that?—Yes; because Mr. Lorimer had told me that Mr. Pender had told him to go to any needy voter.

6893. Had they not begun committee rooms six weeks before, and had there not been open house at the "Seymour Arms" from the end of May?—Yes; long before.

6894. (Mr. Longe.) What about Mr. Chaster and Mr. Jenkins?—I think they would go about feeling the pulse, but they would have nothing to do with bribery. They would be doctors taking the symptoms.

6895. And the others the apothecaries?—Yes; and others dispensers of the medicines.

6896. Who was watching you?—I do not know; they were always at me. John McKnight; they gave him a vote for his active services. He was terribly after me. He was not a voter then. There were several of the party; they kept their men down watching at the doors.

6897. And you had your men watching them?—Exactly the same as a matter of course.

6898. Mr. Cuming was an active man?—Yes. I wish you would have him; he would unfold the whole story. I am afraid he is too bad to come here.

6899. Had Pender and Seymour a joint committee?—Yes; I think they had.

6900. Were there handbills about the town "Vote "for Pender and Seymour"?—Yes.

6901. Do you remember when the Seymour faction and the Liberal faction became joined?—Nothing further than by hearsay.

6902. You know nothing of any election before 1857?—No; my father voted in that election, and I was a regular Tory all my boyhood.

6903. What is Holman?—He is a tenant farmer of the duke's, and there are three fictitious votes made in his field. He is a sly bribing man. I should think he would take the higher class of voters than Stoyle.

6904. Such as 150*l.*?—Yes; higher than that. 200*l.* or 300*l.*; he and Parnell would come in for the higher classes.

6905. They were on the committee?—Yes.

6906. Was there a published list of the committee?—I am only giving these statements as matter of opinion.

6907. How long was Holman an active man?—All my life; his father was before him. I may say that I received a letter this morning threatening me; they are going to hang me up by the neck. The Whigs are in a terrible funk about my exposure, and I must come to you and see what protection you can give me. They must be in a terrible stew to resort to things of that sort when the truth is told.

6908. Did you see many strange faces about Bridgetown during Mr. Pender's election?—I do not know; he had his valet with him.

6909. Did you see Mr. Salmon?—I do not know the gentleman unless he is sitting there. If so he was a very good-looking man.

6910. (Mr. Coleridge.) I think you had some correspondence beginning in May with Mr. Spofforth?—I had a lot of correspondence.

6911. Are those all the letters you have which you have given to the Secretary?—I think so. At the end of the year perhaps I have a drawer full of letters, and then I should destroy them.

6912. Those are all?—All in the last year.

6913. The first is marked "Private and confi- "dential,"—

"6, Victoria Street,
"Westminster Abbey, S.W.,
"My dear Sir, May 6, 1865.

"I am taking measures to see Mr. William "Dent, cousin of Mr. John Dent, and ask if he will "come forward for Totnes"—

Had you suggested some one of the name of Dent?—Yes.

6914. (Mr. Bere.) Who is T. W. D. the voter?—That was in 1859. I do not know; he went abroad.

6915. Nothing to do with this Mr. Dent?—No.

6916. (Mr. Coleridge.) Then the letter goes on,—"It is quite out of the question asking Mr. Potter"—who was Mr. Potter?—The chairman of the Great Western Railway.

6917. "It is quite out of the question asking Mr. "Potter to come out. He will not stand for any "place at present, and certainly Totnes would be "rejected by him. Failing Mr. W. Dent, I will "endeavour to procure you a commercial man of the "spirit you require.

"Yours very faithfully,
"R. Harris, Esq. M. Spofforth."

What was the commercial man of the spirit you require?—Perhaps I described the sort of man we wanted; a man who had a good deal of pluck. I do not mean a monied man; you might send an ass laden with money, that would not do.

6918. You think a commercial man has more pluck? Mr. Pender is a plucky man; he will dive in and bring out anything.

6919. Colonel Dawkins is not a commercial man?—No; he is more of the aristocratic class; we want a more dare-devil sort of a man.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

6920. I should think the soldier would be more dare-devil than the merchant?—Yes, with the sword in hand; but that is not what we want.

6921. Having but little trade here, you want a commercial man with plenty of pluck?—Yes.

6922. Is it not all nonsense about the commercial man; you wanted the money?—No; I wanted the man who would come and build a mill or do something; that was what we wanted.

6923. What drew forth that about the commercial man with the spirit you required?—I said if we could get a man who would come with plenty of money, and spend his money in a commercial enterprise, in the manufacture of serge, and so on.

6924. (Mr. Bere.) To get back the old trade?—Yes; and make the money roll round in the town.

6925. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Potter was a sufficiently commercial man if you could have got him?—Yes; he was a first-class man.

6926. Mr. Potter would reject Totnes, whatever he would do anywhere else?—I had an interview with him; he did not seem to reject it altogether.

6927. He did not like the price?—I think he had had a bellyfull of it at Gloucester.

6928. That was afterwards?—No.

6929. Then the next letter is "Private and confidential"—

"6, Victoria Street,
"Westminster Abbey, S.W.,
"DEAR SIR, June 6, 1865.

"I HAD not time to write to you on Saturday to say that Mr. Kennard has gone down to see Mr. Bryett and Mr. Edmonds, and I hope will have met with you before this. He is an unexceptionably good candidate, and I hope will consent to stand, and that you will pull him in.

"Yours faithfully,
"R. Harris, Esq., Totnes. M. SPOFFORTH."

Did Mr. Kennard come down?—Yes.

6930. Why would not Mr. Kennard have anything to do with it?—I think I related the circumstance of Mr. Pender and he being joint directors of the Consolidated Bank.

6931. Then there is another letter of the 19th June "Private and confidential"—

"6, Victoria Street,
"Westminster Abbey, S.W.,
"DEAR SIR, June 19, 1865.

"I HAVE got the poll book back from Mr. Kennard, who is going to stand for Gloucester. You may rely on having two men, but I think they should not seek acquaintance with their future constituents until the last moment. I believe I shall be able to write you in respect of one to-morrow or the next day.

"I am, dear Sir,
"Yours faithfully,
"R. Harris, Esq., Totnes. M. SPOFFORTH."

What had occurred to make it desirable not to have the candidates here?—Because, if we could not get a commercial man, the monied man should come at the last moment. If he were a first-class man he should be sent down at once.

6932. You recommended that the commercial man could come and make himself popular, and that the monied man should come and buy the place at the last moment?—Yes, that is the sum and substance of it.

6933. Was it in consequence of your suggestion that Mr. Spofforth writes here he should not come till the last moment?—I do not know.

6934. Was it your suggestion that he should be kept back till the last moment, or did you adopt that suggestion?—I adopted that; he was well up to the mark.

6935. Mr. Spofforth was well up to the business then?—Oh, yes, he is a "ripper."

6936. He has had a great deal to do with elections?—Yes, he is what we call a "slap bang" man and knows what we want.

6937. He is solicitor to the Carlton?—Yes.

6938. Of the firm of Baxter, Rose, and Norton?—Yes.

6939. The next letter is "Private and confidential."

"6, Victoria Street,
"Westminster Abbey, S.W.,
"MY DEAR SIR, June 20, 1865.

"I AM happy to tell you that we have got Lord Cranstoun's full support, and he will use every influence he has got in the contest for Totnes. The only difficulty is finding a man with plenty of money to carry the seat. This, however, I trust to be able to do, and as soon as we find him you shall know. I will get Mr. Potter to influence the persons you name.

"I am, dear Sir,
"Yours faithfully,
"Robert Harris, Esq., Totnes. M. SPOFFORTH."

Who were the people you requested Potter to influence?—I do not think I mentioned about Potter's influence; I only said if Potter came at least he could influence the railway men.

6940. This subsequent. This is June the 20th; you ask for some people to be influenced, and Mr. Spofforth undertakes to get it done?—That was James Smith and Smale.

6941. The railway people?—Yes.

6942. You told us the influence of the railway was Liberal?—Yes.

6943. How was he to influence them?—He is a director of the South Devon, and at that time there was a talk of amalgamation.

6944. There was a Liberal chairman and a Liberal deputy-chairman at that time?—Yes, but the Great Western, I think, can do what they like with the South Devon.

6945. Mr. Spofforth was to find a man with money and Potter was to influence the voters?—Yes.

6946. Here is another letter "Private and confidential."

"6, Victoria Street,
"Westminster Abbey, S.W.,
"DEAR SIR, June 27, 1865.

"THANKS for your letter. The bearer of this is Col. Dawkins, who has a letter of introduction to Mr. Edmonds. Do the best you can for him, you will not find a better candidate on this side of the general election.

"I am, dear Sir,
"Yours faithfully,
"Robert Harris, Esq., Totnes. M. SPOFFORTH."

After all you did get a soldier and not a commercial man?—Yes.

6947. What others have you had suggested?—None.

6948. Can you give a reason why commercial men avoided Totnes?—I suppose Mr. Spofforth would tell them because Totnes had got a notorious name, and unless you are prepared to come with plenty of money it is no go.

6949. He could not come without his pockets were well lined with gold?—No; but let us have a commercial man and he might do some good.

6950. A commercial man was better than a soldier with money?—Yes, if he would employ it, and we could get a man like Mr. Pender, they might set up something.

6950. Your own object was to get some commercial man with lots of money away from the district; that is what you thought a proper man for the borough of Totnes?—Yes.

6952. (Mr. Bere.) Perhaps the commercial men would not oppose each other?—Mr. Kennard knew that Mr. Pender was a likely chap and did not like to oppose him.

6953. Mr. Mum had a list of names given to him?—Yes, I presume he had.

6954. Who gave him that list?—I do not know.

6955. Did you give it to him?—No.

6956. Had you any cognizance of the list having been furnished to him?—No, I should think that was in Screach's prerogative.

6957. There was a list given to Screach; Screach received a list from Mum, so he stated before the mittee of the House of Commons, and I wanted know where that list came from?—I did not ply it.

958. Did not you give him any names that might influenced by Screach; when you sent to Mr. m did not you say so-and-so is to be influenced, did not he write it on a piece of paper?—No; if w him and he asked me about any person that we not know about he might take a memorandum.

959. Did he make a list in his own handwriting? t is probable.

960. Has Mr. Edmonds a clerk in his office named ggins?—Yes.

961. That is not the John Diggins?—No.

962. What part did he take?—No active part, ept as poll clerk; he is a steady going young .

963. That means a good Conservative I suppose? lis father used to vote Liberal.

964. How long was Mr. Turner here?—I think ame here and returned the same day; he only e to get an introduction.

965. What time did Col. Dawkins come?—He e in the afternoon or the morning; but I think that Mr. Turner did sleep here one night; but Charles Michelmore can tell perhaps.

966. (Mr. Longe.) The duke's land is all filled up he full market price?—Over the price; I know in y cases where there is 16*l.* rateable value it makes rent, so that they are let above their value. I d men say that tenants of the duke have to pay a e price for a field, that for that which is worth 8*l.* makes them pay 10*l.* in order to get a vote for that l; so that the field is enhanced in value on account hat, and he makes more votes by so doing than the l is worth.

967. (Mr. Bere.) Can you give me any more es than those you have mentioned of persons, nts on the Duke of Somerset's property, being ted for voting against him or not wholly for him? have a list in 1859.

968. Of those who received bribes and who were ted?—This is 1859.

970. Who were evicted?—George Seccombe, holas Norris, William Knapman; then John th rented several fields of the duke, and he was ed out, but he did not qualify on that property. d in 1863, there was John Willis, William Harris, lliam Ellis, Edward Randle Turpin, Thomas tchell, William Kaye Hannaford, William Byne, n Tucker, that is the Tucker we spoke of, Robert e, James Penwill, and George Griffis. I think se are all.

970. Have you a list of every one of those men ted in 1863 who had received bribes upon your ?—My father was not a voter at that time nor . John Willis, I do not think he received a bribe.

971. The father suffered in consequence of the ?—I felt indignant at that; you will have observed he course of my examination I have used strong guage in reference to the duke in consequence of conduct to my father. He was an occupier and ant for 20 years, and when the notice was served n him to quit, the agent said, "You are turned out because your son opposed the duke."

972. If not the same motive, a similar motive to t which caused the eviction of your father caused eviction of others?—Yes; he was a tenant for 20 rs, and paid his rent, and because I would not render to the duke's tyranny (I would rather spill blood) he was turned out.

973. Why do you think the duke personally had thing to do with this, personally as distinguished m Thomas Michelmore?—It was reported in the don newspapers, and if he had not approved of course he would have told the agent to withdraw.

974. Then it was because it was brought to the e's notice, and he did not countermand it?—He cognizant of everything that was going on.

975. If those persons were turned out because y received bribes on your side, what did you do with them?—If they were in that way turned out we kept them of course.

6976. Do you mean to say whether they were turned out for voting or for not voting?—Certainly not.

6977. (Mr. Longe.) Would it make any difference at all. All the land of the duke's in the borough they hold on the condition that they vote?—Decidedly.

6978. As a matter of fact no one does vote against that party without being bribed?—I should think so. I think it would be so.

6979. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you not consider that you yourself and your party have contributed as much as anybody else to demoralize the borough by paying the persons who were turned out by the duke?—I do not know that. Supposing a man, who is a sensible man, comes into a duke's holding, he does not understand what the duke's terms are, and he has two candidates, Seymour and Dawkins.

6980. Do you not consider the fact of people knowing that if turned out they will be remunerated by you for being turned out must tend very much to corrupt the constituency?—They would not leave for certain without they were corrupted. But you must bear in mind also that the Duke of Somerset knows a man is bribed. Take the case of Byne, is not that a demoralizing case he has taken into his hands now; the man that he knows was bribed by us, as he tells you this very month; he knew it, and he has taken him into his own fold back again.

6981. Did Byne vote for Pender and Seymour at the last election?—Yes, and the election before; and took 60*l.*, and then he was accepted. This is the principal man in the registration courts; he knew he was bribed, and where he went. A man that would sell himself body and soul. Just fancy the man.

6982. (Mr. Longe.) Does he occupy?—The duke has now let him two fields in Down Sharpham Lane.

6983. Two fields, that will give a vote?—Yes.

6984. (Mr. Coleridge.) From what you have told us, and from what we have heard from others, are you not of opinion that the Conservatives have spent more in bribing the borough in the last 20 years than the Liberal party?—I should think they had.

6985. (Mr. Bere.) Have you given us the names of all the people who after they were turned out by the Duke of Somerset have been taken care of?—William Turpin we took care of, John Ellis, Thomas Rendell, Thomas Mitchell, he is not a poor man, he has not been taken care of; Wm. K. Hannaford, he is taken care of.

6986. You passed over one, William Mitchell; he is not a voter, so he is not taken care of?—He was a voter at the time.

6987. But as he is not a voter you do not take care of him?—He lost his wife, and he wished to go with his son-in-law to reside. He has not a vote now, and he did not wish to be taken care of. But it was necessary for him to be taken care of, and we took care of him.

6988. You put him on the register?—Yes. John Tozer, we took care of him, Robert Lake, and there was John James Rendell, we took care of him, and George Griffis.

6989. How many of those at a less rent than the real rent?—William Ellis, William Byne, John Tucker, and James Rendell are the only four of that sort. When we take houses, or go to the parties and get houses for them, we pay the legitimate rents.

6990. (Mr. Bere.) Do you think Mr. Dent's land was underlet at 60*l.* a year?—About that.

6991. What is the proper rent?—Nearly 700*l.* a year. We got no votes at all upon that property.

6992. (Mr. Longe.) On the Gerston piece you did?—I do not know.

6993. (Mr. Bere.) You wrote a letter to the man?—You asked me whether I did not do it. I do not remember doing it. The man is still in occupation. It is not at all likely I should have done it; it is a thing I disdain to do.

6994. Suppose the Duke of Somerset had been a

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

Conservative?—There was a rumour the other day that he was turned round.

6995. Would the Conservatives of Totnes turn about too?—I believe candidly that if the duke was to practise the same treatment to the Whig party as he is now doing to the Tory party I should turn round against him. No doubt the Duke of Somerset is tyrannical.

6996. Has he the slightest influence in determining on which side a man votes?—No doubt it is so, and he gets many enemies on account of his conduct.

6997. You remember Mr. Pender bribing the town by giving money to the charities, did the duke ever bribe the town in that way?—He is not a liberal man; he is a skinflint.

6998. Does he exert much influence on the town?—Lord Seymour did when he came forward. He has got some property in Newton.

6999. Is there anything else you wish to say?—No; I think I have given you my bellyfull.

(The Witness.) If you require me further I shall be in readiness to attend.

(Mr. Bere.) Very well, will you leave your address with the secretary, so that he can communicate with you if necessary.

(The Witness.) I would now respectfully ask you to allow me my certificate.

(Mr. Bere.) I cannot say anything about that at present; it must stand over till the proceedings are terminated.

(The Witness.) And I would also ask you to allow me my expenses.

(Mr. Bere.) You must speak to the secretary about them.

(The witness then handed in the annexed bills:)

Mr. R. Harris, Totnes,

To Stephen Tozer.

For repairing a house at Victoria Street; repairing, plastering, putting in windows, altering doorways, and other jobs.

1865.		£	s.	d.
Jan. 9.	Self, man, and boy, half-day each	0	3	11
,, 10.	Man, half-day ditto	0	1	7½
,, 21.	Man, half-day, whitewashing	0	1	7½
,, 24.	Man, one day, stopping up holes	0	3	3
,, 22.	Self, man, and boy, one day each, putting in window and other jobs	0	7	10
,, 23.	Man and boy, one day each, repairing plastering	0	4	7
,, 25.	Self, man, and boy, one day each, repairing hailing	0	7	10
,, 28 to March 4th.	Self, five days, repairing flooring and whitewashing	0	16	3
	Man, half-day, stopping up the windows	0	1	7½
Mar. 21.	Man, half-day, putting a top to a chimney	0	1	7½
,, 27.	Man, half-day, finishing up job	0	1	7½
	Cask cement	0	19	0
	Two chimney tops	0	4	5
	Mortar, slate, and lime for whitewashing	0	10	0
		£	4	5 2½

Task Work.

Mr. Fabyn's house, 25 perch, at 5*s.* per perch	6	5	0
Mr. Stone's house, 31 perch, at 6*s.* per perch	9	6	0
Hailing, six square nine feet	6	9	0
Paving 39 yards at 7*d.* per yard	1	2	9
	23	2	9
	4	5	2½
	£ 27	7	11½

Settled, July 17th, 1865.

STEPHEN TOZER.

Bentall Property.

Mr. R. Harris,

To Samuel Hill.

	£	s.	d.
To contract building wall at the yard occupied by Mr. Potter, finding all materials and labour	5	0	0

Settled, July 11th, 1865.

S. HILL.

Mr. Bentall's Property.

To Samuel Hill.

1865.		£	s.
Mar. 24 & 25.	Self, son, and assistant, covering common sewer, labour, &c. for	0	7
	Four load of stone and carriage	0	8
	29 feet of cover stones and mortar	0	6
		£ 1	2

Settled, July 11th, 1865.

S. HILL.

Mr. Harris,

Dr. to W. Light.

1865.		£	s.
March 13.	Three grates	0	14

July 14, paid.

W. LIGHT

Mr. R. Harris,

Dr. to Samuel Hill.

1865.		£	s.
Feb. 1.	One man, one day, altering doorway	0	3
	One and a half laths flath nails	0	3
	Two and a half barrows of made mortar	0	3
	One peck and a half plaster paris	0	2
	Second man, three-quarter day, ditto	0	2
	Half barrow made mortar, whitening, and half peck plaster paris	0	2
		0	17
1864.
Feb. 4.	Two men, half-day, sweeping chimneys	0	3
,, 27.	Self and assistant, repairing plastering in bedroom and one hod of mortar	0	1
		£ 1	1

1864, July 11, settled.

S. HILL.

Mr. Harris,

To L. Goodridge.

1864.		£	s.
	To bill delivered for 1864	1	5
	Ditto for building a liney in Caronpit meadow	4	0
	Ditto for 65 weeks' rent for room at 9*d.*	2	8
	Ditto, two days' work for drawing dung to Barter's field	0	14
	14 cart load of dung, at 1*s.* 6*d.*	1	1
1865.
Jan. 10.	Sharpening Drethy a saw	0	0
,, 30.	To rep. a gate to Broomborough	0	1
,, 31.	Self, man, three-quarters, about drawing room	0	5
Feb. 1.	Self, half day, man, three-quarters day, ditto	0	4
	4 ft. 6 in. of three-quarter lead, 2½*d.*	0	0
	A pair of raising butt boxes	0	1
	A box staple and nails and screws, &c.	0	0
Apr. 10.	Self to jobbing	0	0
	Paid for taking out gateway in Sim's orchard	0	2
	A gate for ditto	1	0
	Iron work for ditto	0	9
		£ 10	15

Settled by 10*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.*

J. L. GOODRIDGE.

Mr. R. Harris,

To Henry Foster.

1865.		£	s.
Jan. 9.	Two pair door joints	0	16
,, 10.	Man, half day; window, 8*s.* 6*d.*	0	10
,, 11.	Man, day, man, half day, breaking at door, 8 ft. 3 in.	0	7
,, 12.	Two men, day, 5 feet 6¾ inches, two hooks, 2*d.*	0	7
	New four pannel door	0	10
,, 17.	Man, half-day to windows	1	1
Feb. 4.	Quarter to lintels, 5 ft. 6 in. and 12 ft. by 3, at 9*d.*	0	4
,, 10.	Two men, half day	0	3
	To two new roofs to Fabyn and Stone's	6	0
,, 11.	Man, half day, four flint, 3 ft. and 1 ft. 2 in., with hinges, turns, nails, 12*d.*	0	4

1865.	R. Harris to Henry Foster—cont.	£	s.	d.
Feb. 21.	Two men, day, oak, 9*d.*	0	7	5
„ 22.	Two men, 5 ft. oak, 4 by 3 and 4	0	8	4
	24 feet of half-inch, 12 feet, 2½ by 2	0	5	6
	Hinges, 1*s.* 6*d.*, nails, screws, 6*d.*	0	2	0
„ 23.	Two men, hinges, screws, 4*d.*	0	7	0
	New sashes and frame	1	1	0
	Window shutters	0	9	4
	Weights, 1*s.* 6*d.*; bolts, 6*d*; fastenings, 6*d.*	0	2	6
	23 ft. at 2*d.*, hinge 6*d.*, nails screws 12*d.*, 4 ft. half-inch at 2*d.*, stayem 8*d.*	0	6	2
Mar. 2.	Two men day, man half day, sash frame, 12*s.* 10*d.*	1	0	4
	Two new doors	1	3	4
	Two thumb plate, two bolts, and two hinges	0	3	6
	Two feet of oak, 4 by 2, 4 feet of half-inch, bolt 6*d.*	0	1	7
„ 3.	Man day, man half day, 5 ft. half-inch, 3 ft. in.	0	6	9
	New door and jambs	0	19	0
„ 4.	Man day, 3 ft. inch, 2 ft. half inch, cordweights 18	0	5	8
„ 7.	Man day, man half-day	0	5	0
„ 8.	Two men day, 24 ft. shute 1*s.* 3½*d.*, four cramps	0	15	8
	3 ft. of 3 by 3 1*s.* 2*d.*, two lodge doors 11*s.* 10*d.*	0	11	6
	New locks and frame	1	6	3
„ 9.	Two men day, 13 flint 8 ft. of in. nails 2*d.*	0	11	5
„ 10.	Two men day, railing, nails 2*s.*	0	8	8
	240 feet railing, 16 posts	2	6	0
„ 11.	Two men, three-quarter day, 4 ft. 6 in. of half splint	0	6	6
	20 ft. of inch set and hinge 4*d.*	0	2	10
	Pg. house door 4*s.*, 3 ft. 6 of inch	0	4	10½
	Hasps, staples, nails, 1*s.* 2*d.*, weights, 1*s.* 3*d.*	0	2	5
„ 13.	Man half-day, casement 2*s.* 10*d.*	0	3	8
„ 15.	Two men day, 12 feet of three-quarter, 8 feet of half inch	0	10	6
	Lock staple 3*s.* 2*d.*, thumb plate, 8*d.*, pair hinges 5*d.*	0	3	4
	5 ft. 6 in. of 4 by 2, nails 9*d.*	0	1	8
„ 11.	Man day, fastening 6*d.*, 4 ft. of 3 by 2, bolt 6*d.*	0	4	10
„ 18.	Two men day, 5 ft. 6½-in., 8 ft. 6-in.	0	9	8
	8 ft. of three-quarter, 6-inch bolt 6*d.*	0	2	2
	Pipham door, iron work	0	5	4
	Nails 6*d.*, pair I. hinges, thumb latch	0	2	0
Apr. 1.	Two men day, 24 ft. of 6 shute cramps	0	15	0
„ 11.	Man quarter, bond 8*d.*	1	6	0
		£ 26	15	10

July 11, 1865, settled.

G. Foster.

R. Harris,

Dr. to W. Willcocks.

1865.		£	s.	d.
Jan. 12.	To work done at tenements, Victoria Street, to new window Fabrian's kitchen, 9½ ft. at 6*d.* per foot	0	4	9
	Painting sashes and sash frame, three coats, three-quarter day man at 2*s.* 7½*d.*, 2½ lb. paint for ditto	0	4	3½
Feb. 21.	Priming door Foster shop, 1 lb. paint, quarter day man	0	1	6½
„ 28.	Priming two doors back house, 1½ lb. paint, quarter day man	0	1	10½
Mar. 1.	At Fabrian tenement, 14½ lb. paint, 2 lb. putty	0	10	4
	One day two men, 3*s.* 6*d.*	0	7	0
	26 panes glass in lead window, 3*d.* each	0	6	6
„ 2.	Half day, man painting	0	1	9
	Part leading and bonding back windows	0	1	8
„ 3.	One day, two men painting	0	7	0
	Self, hanging six pieces paper kitchen, and size, 9*d.* per piece	0	4	6
	To six pieces paper for ditto, 6*d.* per piece	0	3	0
„ 4.	One day, two men painting	0	7	0
„ 8.	To 11 panes glass in wash-house window, sashes 8*d.*	0	7	4
	Painting sash and sash frame, Stone's kitchen, half day painting, and 1 lb. paint	0	2	5
	Primed sash of frame, Stone's kitchen, and glazed, 11 feet at 7*d.* per foot	0	5	6
	New light for casement at Stone's bed room	0	2	6
	To repairing all the back windows, new lead, bond, and nails for ditto, 12 panes new glass	0	5	8
„ 11.	10½ lbs. paint Stone's tenement	0	7	0
	One day, two men, 7*s.*, half day, self, 1*s.* 9*d.*, painting, 1 lb. putty, 4*d.*	0	9	1
„ 22.	To painting outside of the tenements, 18 lbs. paint, stone colour and brown	0	12	0
	One day man, half day self	0	5	3
„ 23.	One day, man painting	0	3	6
„ 24.	Half day, self and man at Stone's	0	3	6
	Nine panes glass Stone's front shop	0	3	9
	Pane, mangle room at Fabrian's	0	1	0
„ 29.	1½ lb. paint for shutter at Foster's shop	0	1	0
	Priming ditto	0	0	6
„ 30.	Half day, man painting brown door shutes at both tenements	0	1	9
	2 lb. brown paint for ditto, 1*s.* 4*d.*, 1 lb. putty, 4*d.*	0	1	8
		£ 6	13	7½

Settled.

Wm. Willcocks.

SEVENTH DAY.

Mr. R. Harris.

30 Aug. 1866.

EIGHTH DAY.

Friday, 31st August 1866.

EIGHTH DAY.

Capt. B. Pim.

31 Aug. 1866.

Capt. Bedford Pim sworn and examined.

7000. (Mr. Bere.) Are you a Commander in the Royal Navy?—Yes.

7001. Did you come as a candidate on the Conservative interest for the borough of Totnes in July 1865?—Yes.

7002. How did you first become acquainted with the borough?—Mr. John Heath come to my house.

7003. Where do you live in London? — In Hampstead.

7004. Had you known Mr. John Heath before?—Not in the least.

7005. Had you had any communication with the Carlton Club, or with any one connected with it with regard to standing for the borough?—No.

7006. Did you mention to any of your friends that you wished to stand for the borough?—I tried to get in for Abingdon before, and I suppose Mr. Heath must have known it.

7007. When did you stand for Abingdon? At the last election in 1865?—Yes. I did not stand for it, I went down and went over the borough with some friends.

7008. Had any of your friends any connexion with the West of England?—I believe Mr. Wescomb, of Exeter, and I believe he was the man who mentioned my wish to get into the House to the people of this borough.

7009. Had you known Mr. Wescomb of Exeter long?—Some years.

7010. Did he go with you to Abingdon?—No.

7011. Mr. Wescomb is the editor and proprietor of the "Exeter and Plymouth Gazette"?—I believe he is.

7012. How did you first become acquainted with Mr. Wescomb?—In matters of business about five or six years ago; principally mining in Cornwall.

EIGHTH DAY.

Capt. B. Pim.

31 Aug. 1866.

7013. Have you any reason to doubt that it was through Mr. Wescomb that Mr. John Heath come to you?—No; Mr. John Heath told me he had a requisition signed by 168 electors of the borough when he came to my house.

7014. Did you see the requisition?—I would not be sure. I cannot say that I saw it. I think he had it in his possession; he had a number of papers in his hand.

7015. You cannot say whether you saw it?—I did not ask to look at it, and it was not handed to me.

7016. What did Mr. Heath tell you with regard to the state of parties in the borough?—He said if it was a pure election no doubt a Conservative candidate would be returned.

7017. One or two?—He thought there was a probability of two.

7018. When was this?—I cannot tell the exact date, but I should think some time about the 3rd or 4th of July. I came down on the 7th.

7019. Did you know at that time that Col. Dawkins was in the field?—I had not the slightest knowledge of Col. Dawkins.

7020. Did Mr. Heath represent to you that you were the only Conservative that was going to stand?—Oh, dear, no! He told me Col. Dawkins was down.

7021. And he was come to look for another candidate?—Yes.

7022. Did he show you any poll book or any canvass book?—He had them in his hand, but I was not well experienced in those matters then; not so well as I am now, and did not trouble him to show them to me.

7023. Did you know anything about the political history of Totnes before you saw John Heath?—Yes.

7024. Did you know that Totnes was a place in which bribery was pretty prevalent?—I knew it well. My great grandfather was one of the first men in the place, and my grandfather was born here.

7025. His name?—Harrison.

7026. When Mr. Heath said a Conservative might be returned, did you make any mention as to the purity of Totnes?—No, I did not. I did not intend to bribe, and did not say anything about it.

7027. Was that all that passed?—I asked how much the election would cost, and told him I did not intend to bribe in the least. He said about 300*l.* or 400*l.*, and I said I would be happy to pay it.

7028. (Mr. Longe.) Your election was distinct from Col. Dawkins?—Quite distinct; nothing to do with Col. Dawkins.

7029. Did Mr. Heath think 300*l.* or 400*l.* would be sufficient to return you for Totnes?—He positively said so.

7030. Did you say anything more to him or he to you?—I think I told him I would consult a friend or two, and if I decided to come down I would come immediately.

7031. Did you know Mr. Rennie at all at that time?—I did not know Mr. Rennie.

7032. Did you know Mr. Spofforth?—Yes; I was introduced to him by Sir John Rennie a long time ago.

7033. Had you a communication with Mr. Spofforth about standing for Abingdon?—Yes, I talked to him not as a matter of business, but as a matter of friendship.

7034. He knew you were ready to stand as a Conservative?—Yes; but quite distinct from the Carlton Club. Mr. Spofforth knew it from the beginning.

7035. Mr. Spofforth knew, as a private individual, that you were ready to stand as a Conservative candidate?—Yes.

7036. And the recommendation may have come from Mr. Spofforth?—For aught I know it may.

7037. Did you see Mr. Heath again before you left?—I do not know.

7038. Or any other persons connected with the borough of Totnes?—I do not think so.

7039. Or with Mr. Spofforth?—I may have called on Mr. Spofforth. I know I did.

7040. When you called upon Mr. Spofforth and said you were going, what did he say?—He said, "Do not "touch it with a pair of tongs."

7041. Did he give you his reasons?—He said it was a dreadfully corrupt place, which I knew before.

7042. Can you fix the date of Mr. Spofforth saying that?—I came on the Friday the 7th, and it must have been between my interview with Mr. Heath and my coming down. I should say the 5th; somewhere about the 5th.

7043. How long did that interview last with Mr. Spofforth?—I really cannot tax my memory to tell you. It was merely a call upon Mr. Spofforth, not as a matter of business, and Mr. Spofforth's time is too valuable to be taken up long.

7044. Did you do anything more with regard to the election for Totnes while in London before you came down? Did you see any people about it?—No, my own personal friends; nobody else. I cannot remember ever doing so. It has slipped my memory if I did.

7045. Then you came down on the 7th of July?—On the 7th.

7046. Did you have any communication with Col. Dawkins between the 3rd and the 7th?—Never.

7047. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you find Col. Dawkins here when you arrived?—He was at the "Seven Stars" hotel.

7048. Do you know how long he had been there?—He said upwards of a week.

7049. (Mr. Bere.) You came to the "Seven Stars" hotel?—Yes.

7050. Did you come by a late train?—I came through the night. I think I left at 10 minutes past 8.

7051. On the morning of July the 7th or 8th?—It must have been the morning of July the 8th.

7052. Then you went to the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

7053. Did you find Mr. Heath waiting at the "Seven Stars"? First of all, had you written to Heath to tell him you were coming?—No. I write very little indeed, and I think I should have remembered if I had written. I do not remember ever writing to Mr. Heath.

7054. When Mr. Heath left you, did he understand that you would agree to stand as a candidate and come down?—He saw my inclinations were very strong to come down, and I do not suppose it was at all doubtful in his mind that I should come down, but I did not pledge myself to him.

7055. You did not pledge yourself to come on any particular day?—No.

7056. Did you communicate the day to any one on which you might be expected?—I might have done so, but I do not remember it.

7057. When you came did you find Colonel Dawkins here?—Yes.

7058. When did you have the first interview?—I think we breakfasted together, I am not quite sure.

7059. What money did you bring with you?—300*l.*

7060. In cash?—No, I gave a cheque for 300*l.* to Mr. Kellock.

7061. Mr. Kellock who is now the mayor?—Yes.

7062. Did Mr. Kellock act as your agent?—He did.

7063. When did you first see Kellock?—I think on the 8th. It must have been on the 8th.

7064. What did Mr. Kellock tell you about the state of the borough?—Mr. Kellock seemed rather pleased to see me down here, especially when he heard of my family connexion with the borough, and that I was a west countryman, and he told me frankly it was a very corrupt place, but I said I should simply go on the principle I told Mr. Heath, that I would not bribe the least bit, and as far as I was concerned it should be a fair and straightforward election.

7065. I suppose you went and canvassed?—I went and canvassed the best part of the borough.

7066. Before you went to canvass what arrangements did you come to with Colonel Dawkins?—I must tell you frankly that the colonel did not propose to me any arrangement whatever. He was quite prepared to stand on his own bottom, and I the same.

7067. Did you and Colonel Dawkins have a joint committee?—Not the least, we had separate committees.

7068. Who were on your committee?—I do not know their names.

7069. Had you a separate committee room?—Yes, somewhere up in the town near the bar.

7070. If I put the names to you, do you think you would recognize them?—No; I did not take any trouble about it.

7071. (Mr. Coleridge.) You confided it entirely to Mr. Kellock to manage for you?—Yes.

7072. (Mr. Bere.) You left it in his hands?—Yes. Mr. Kellock and Mr. Hare, who is a very respectable solicitor and well known in the town.

(Mr. C. F. Michelmore.) He has not been here six months.

7073. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know who was with Colonel Dawkins?—I have a shaky bad memory for names, I must tell you, but there was the Hon. Fox Maule I think.

7074. (Mr. Coleridge.) You are wrong there?—At all events he was the gentleman you were speaking about yesterday.

7075. Mr. Lane Fox?—Yes; Mr. Lane Fox. He was with Colonel Dawkins, and they breakfasted together.

7076. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know how long he had been down?—Two or three nights.

7077. Do you recollect when he went away?—I think he was at the polling; I will not be quite sure; I think so. It was rather an exciting time.

7078. (Mr. Coleridge.) He was living there with Colonel Dawkins?—Yes, quite so.

7079. Do I understand you to say that no arrangements were come to between you and Colonel Dawkins at all with regard to your standing for Totnes?—Certainly not in the remotest degree; do you mean with regard to money?

7080. I mean with regard to money or with regard to any mutual assistance you might give each other?—No; we were colleagues, and we were prepared to go shoulder and shoulder through the bother.

7081. (Mr. Bere.) Who went and canvassed with you?—Mr. James Heath.

7082. Is he the son of John Heath?—Yes.

7083. Was he told off as your especial assistant to canvass?—I am not at all aware about that; I only know there is not a finer young fellow in Totnes.

7084. Who directed him to go with you to canvass?—I am not aware.

7085. Who introduced him?—His father.

7086. How did he introduce him?—He said, "You "do not know the borough, and my son will take "you round."

7087. Did you go round with Mr. James Heath alone?—Sometimes Mr. Hare joined us.

7088. Did Mr. Kellock go with you?—No, never. He went to one or two of the principal people. I think Mr. Kellock introduced me to Captain Veitch; I am not sure. He is a brother officer of mine in the service, though I had never met him before.

7089. Did Captain Veitch go with you?—Always.

7090. Did you always canvass separately from Colonel Dawkins?—Certainly.

7091. Did you and Colonel Dawkins ever meet at the house of an elector when you went to canvass?—Yes.

7092. When?—Only on one occasion, and then it was more for a lark than anything else. It was at the house of the Rev. Mr. James.

7093. You and Colonel Dawkins went to canvass him together?—Yes; we went to him together.

7094. Did you see him?—We did.

7095. Did you get his vote?—No.

7096. Did he promise to vote, or did he say anything about voting for you?—He gave us hope that we should have his vote.

7097. Did he tell you about the money difficulties he was in?—Oh, dear, yes.

7098. What did he tell you?—I cannot tax my memory to say word for word.

7099. What was the impression that the conversation left on your mind?—He generally gave us a sketch of his past history, and both Colonel Dawkins and myself certainly inferred that he would not object to receiving some small assistance.

7100. To get him out of his monetary difficulties?—Exactly so.

7101. You yourself were not prepared to give such assistance?—I told him exactly the position I stood in the borough and of my intention not to bribe a bit.

7102. Was Colonel Dawkins of the same opinion?—He hardly spoke. I think I did the better part of the conversation.

7103. You talked, Mr. James answered, and Colonel Dawkins listened?—Yes; Colonel Dawkins listened and laughed.

7104. Was he the only elector whom you canvassed jointly?—I do not remember any other.

7105. Now was it on that first day, July 8th, when you first came down that you saw Mr. Robert Harris first?—I know Robert Harris now especially from hearing his evidence and having seen him at the House of Commons; but at that time I did not know him from Adam, and I do not know how I was introduced to him.

7106. Were you never introduced to Mr. Robert Harris at the "Seven Stars"?—I do not remember.

7107. Although you had a separate committee room and different people acting as your committee, did you never go into Colonel Dawkins' committee rooms at the "Seven Stars"?—Very likely I may have done so.

7108. Did you have a separate canvass book?—Mr. James Heath had the canvass book. I do not believe that I ever had it in my hand myself.

7109. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you live jointly with Colonel Dawkins, or have your meals together?—No; sometimes he dined with me and sometimes I dined with him. We had separate committee rooms, and were altogether quite separate.

7110. (Mr. Bere.) Is Mr. James Heath the only person who kept a canvass or poll book for you?—I have not the slightest doubt that Mr. Kellock and Mr. Heath—

7111. John Heath?—Yes; watched the whole course with the greatest closeness, but I am not aware that they did.

7112. Had James Heath the poll book?—Yes.

7113. And you say you do not know whether you saw that at all?—I saw it in his hand repeatedly, but I took his word for the way in which the canvass was going.

7114. And you did not take the trouble to go through it?—No, I took his word for it. Captain Veitch often tottled it up and told me the result. How could I go through it not knowing the names of the persons.

7115. You might have seen whether in figures it was correct?—Yes; but I was obliged to take Mr. Heath's word, and I have no cause to regret having done so.

7116. Did you see any other of the gentlemen who were on the Conservative side; Mr. Bastard, for instance?—I had the pleasure of making Mr. Bastard's acquaintance.

7117. And Mr. Bentall?—Certainly; Mr. Bentall lives in the house that my family occupied many years in this place.

7118. They promised support to you?—Yes, and Mr. Phillips.

7119. Was that all the aid they gave you, or did they go with you to canvass?—No, I do not think they came round to canvass. I dare say they helped me in every possible way, because they said they would do so.

EIGHTH DAY.

Capt. B. Pim.

31 Aug. 1866.

7120. Did it strike you that the electors were ready in their promises or that there was a little hesitation about them?—In some cases there was a little hesitation, but I am bound to say that on the whole I met with a most flattering reception.

7121. Do you know whether in any instance you came to an elector before Colonel Dawkins or his agents had canvassed him?—No; I think we did on one or two occasions.

7122. Can you give us the names of those people to whom you came?—No.

7123. You say that some of them hesitated; can you give us the names of any of those?—The Rev. Mr. Butland was one I particularly remember.

7124. What made him hesitate, or what impression had you?—It is a very unpleasant thing to say what I suppose; you know what made him hesitate as well as I do.

7125. Did he say anything to you which made you understand that he had a reason for hesitating?—It was a very similar conversation to that which passed with the Rev. Mr. James.

7126. Was that about money difficulties or a situation for his son?—Well, it was about a situation for his son.

7127. I think you must tell us, if you please, what he did say, or what the impression left on your mind is. I put it to you, was it to this effect, that he would not vote for you unless you got a situation for his son?—Well, my impression was that if he had a situation offered his son he would have voted for me decidedly.

7128. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did he vote?—He voted against us.

7129. Against both of you?—Yes.

7130. (Mr. Longe.) How long was the interview?—Some time; because I went with Mr. Veitch who is a neighbour of his, and his son was going out to New Zealand. I have a great interest in Central America, New Zealand, and Australia, and of course there was a good deal of conversation with respect to my own movements out there; so we remained I should think for an hour at his house.

7131. Did he tell you what his opinions were politically apart from the situation or anything else?—No.

7132. You did not find any political opinion?—I did not find any strong bias on either side.

7133. (Mr. Coleridge.) You did not find any about Totnes generally?—No.

7134. (Mr. Bere.) Had you any power of offering or procuring a situation for Mr. Butland's son?—I had not, strictly speaking, at that time, but I could now for example.

7135. At that time there was no appointment to which you could present him at once?—No, certainly not.

7136. Was there anything else said by him about any other present?—So far as my remarks may go I think he made some observation about a handsome bracelet having been presented to some one.

7137. To whom was it given?—To some one or other, I do not know whom; it is a matter that was brought out in conversation, and has been retained in my memory as something curious.

7138. Cannot you remember the name of the fortunate lady who had received the bracelet?—I cannot tax my memory with it, but he said that a bracelet had been given to the wife of one of the electors worth sixty guineas.

7139. Was it by Mr. Pender or by any one else?—I think by Mr. Dent, he was an old friend of mine in China.

7140. Do you know Mr. Mitchell of London?—No.

7141. He was a great friend of Mr. Dent's?—I do not know.

7142. Is he a member of the firm of Palmer, McKilloch, & Co., or of the other house of Dent & Co.?—It is Dent & Co. They have a large house at Hong Kong. I was very badly wounded when I was in China, and he nursed me the whole time I was in the hospital.

7143. Was this all that the Rev. Mr. Butland hesitated about?—If we could have made it square about the situation for his son I think we should have had his vote.

7144. Was there any one else who hesitated?—I could not tell their names, but those two instances impressed themselves so forcibly on my mind, because from their social position I should have thought they were men who would not have done anything of that sort.

7145. Did their hesitation always take the same form?—No; the electors said we have not made up our mind.

7146. Did they accompany that with any gestures from which you could gather what they wanted?—No, they simply said that; it was thoroughly well known in the town that they would not get anything from me.

7147. Did you hear any specific sum mentioned by any one for which they would have made up their mind?—There were eleven men I understood who had signed a requisition for the Conservative candidate to come down.

7148. Who has got that requisition?—I suppose Mr. Heath; I have never seen it myself.

7149. Was that requisition the same one that had been sent to Mr. Macleay?—I do not know.

7150. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you find that the voters who had answered favourably to Colonel Dawkins would not promise you?—No; I think all that promised Colonel Dawkins said they would split their votes for me.

7151. Was it well known that you were standing on purity principles?—Yes.

7152. And was that at all thrown in your teeth by the voters?—No; I received the greatest kindness here. I do not think I heard an unkind word even from the most rabid Radical.

7153. They knew pretty well that the other Conservative candidate was not standing on pure principles?—I dare say they knew that.

7154. Then you were made a sort of cat's-paw for them?—It is not a very pleasant thing for a man to admit that he has been placed in such a position, and I do not admit it, though the result was not very favourable to me. I thought the chances were very largely in our favour, and I believe at this moment that we should have won if the other party had not brought heavier guns to bear upon us.

7155. (Mr. Bere.) How often did you see Colonel Dawkins during the time between the 8th and the 11th?—Constantly.

7156. Did he ever say he would have to spend money, and was spending it?—I am positive of that. I never hinted to him to share his expenses, and if you knew him you would quite understand that he is not that sort of man.

7157. Did you hear from him that he had brought down a large sum of money?—I knew that he had, but not from Colonel Dawkins.

7158. From whom?—From Mr. Smith, of Smith and Guscotte.

7159. Did he tell you the amount?—No.

7160. Did he give you any idea of whether it was hundreds or thousands?—Thousands.

7161. Have you any idea where that money came from?—Not the least idea.

7162. Or whether it was in Totnes?—No; he did not say a word about it.

7163. When did Mr. Smith tell you this?—Probably on the 10th.

7164. The election was on what day?—The 12th.

7165. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he tell you the money was in Totnes before the nomination?—No.

7166. That was on the 11th?—Yes.

7167. Did he tell you that Colonel Dawkins was ready to spend money, or had brought it down?—That he was ready to spend money.

7168. He did not say whether it had come down?—Not the slightest hint of his informed me that the money was actually in the town.

7169. Do you know when that money arrived?—No.

7170. (Mr. Bere.) On the Monday afternoon did you hear that more money was wanted?—I did.

7171. Do you know of a telegram being sent to London for more?—I knew that more money was wanted. I did not know the means which were taken to bring it here.

7172. You knew nothing of any telegram being sent?—Nothing whatever.

7173. Or of any telegram being received from London on the evening of Monday?—No.

7174. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you never have any communication that a person was expected from London by the mail train?—Not the slightest. Mr. Smith managed Colonel Dawkins' financial business entirely, he kept it to himself, he simply told me that more money was wanted.

7175. What money did you spend over the 300*l.*?—Captain Veitch wrote to me for 50*l.* more for certain little things which were wanted to be paid in the borough. I never asked for the items; I simply sent him the cheque, knowing what was his character, and from his having stuck to me from beginning to end, that it was not for the purposes of bribery.

7176. The whole election cost you 350*l.*?—350*l.*, nothing more on my honour.

7177. And that would include all your legal expenses?—Yes; every thing.

7178. (Mr. Bere.) Did Mr. Smith tell you what money more would be wanted? He did not tell me so, it was palpably evident. I had no positive proof of it.

7179. Do you know what amount per head was to be paid on the nomination day?—My only means of knowing that was an incident of this nature that on the day before the polling day a man came to me, I cannot tell you his name, and as it was about two o'clock in the morning, from what I then saw of him I think it is by no means likely that I should know him again, and even if I felt that I had any strong conviction about him, I should not like to point out any man to injure his character, if one may say so.

7180. Was it Mr. Harris who was here yesterday?—No.

7181. Was it that gentleman (pointing to a gentleman in court)?—No; without being perfectly positive I would rather not mention any one. This man came to me and said that himself and 10 of his mates had signed this requisition, that they were Conservatives, but that the other party had promised to give them 250*l.* a piece, and that unless I could cap that they were very sorry but they must vote on the other side, and they did vote on the other side.

7182. Do you know who this person was?—No. I have already said I should not know him again.

7183. You did not know his name, the man who said this?—No.

7184. Did he say he was one of those 11?—I understood him to be the captain of the 11.

7185. You did not hear the names I suppose?—No, I was rather disgusted. I got a list and read out the names afterwards on the hustings.

7186. Where did he come to?—To me at the "Seven Stars."

7187. Had you a private sitting room at the "Seven Stars"?—Oh, yes.

7188. What number was that?—I think No. 3, I am not sure.

7189. What names did you read out?—You will find them in the Torquay paper; the only paper that published the names was the Torquay paper.

7190. Those are the names of the men who signed the requisition?—I believe they were the names of the men who had signed the requisition. Mr. Heath told me so.

7191. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did they vote against you?—Yes.

7192. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember the names of any one?—I think one was a man named Diggins.

7193. John P. Searle, Slippery Jack?—I think he was one.

7194. Bland, was he another?—I think so, I have not looked at the list.

7195. Edmund Tawing?—Very likely.

7196. Fox Green?—Yes, now you refresh my memory.

7197. Sloggett?—He was one.

7198. Pengilley?—I think he was another.

7199. Do you not remember the name?—I cannot remember at all. I do not think I could swear to him if he was brought before me now. It was quite dark, and you can easily understand it was an exciting time at two o'clock in the morning before the election.

7200. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did you get at the names you have just told us?—John Heath gave them to me, and I read them from the hustings.

7201. (Mr. Bere.) Who introduced you to this man, who brought him up to your room?—He came straight up to me. I was walking about in the lower part of the hotel, the entrance part.

7202. Was he in the house?—He was in the house; he was a Conservative until the polling day.

7203. Did he see you alone?—No, it was not in the room at all; he spoke to me and took me on one side.

7204. Who were about the house at the time?—There were a great number in the house all night.

7205. Did you have a conversation with him?—I told him I could not cap it; he wanted me to cap the 250*l.*, and I said that I had not a hat that would fit him.

7206. It was for each one of them?—For each one of the 11.

7207. You said you could not do it?—Yes.

7208. What became of him then?—I really do not know, I thought he was gone.

7209. At that time was there a mysterious stranger in No. 13?—I really know nothing about the mysterious stranger.

7210. Are you quite sure you were never in that room?—I may have been in the room with the mysterious stranger, but he never attracted my attention.

7211. You would know the room again at the "Seven Stars"?—The room that I had?

7212. No. You told us there was a room No. 13, should you be able to tell whether you had been in that room if you saw it?—Most certainly, I think I know every room in the "Seven Stars."

7213. (Mr. Coleridge.) Where was it you were present with Mr. Mum?—I know nothing at all about Mr. Mum, I had no Mr. Mum myself, and I know nothing of anybody else's Mr. Mum.

7214. (Mr. Longe.) The mysterious stranger might have been in the room with you?—I dare say he might have been in the room with me.

7215. What room would it be?—I should say it was in another room in the "Seven Stars" during the election. I really cannot tell you in what room I met him.

7216. It would not be your own room?—Certainly not. It might have been my own room, there were lots of people there in and out all day and night, and in Colonel Dawkins' room.

7207. Was it at all likely he would be in your room?—If I had seen a man in my room I do not think I should have gone out of it. I should not have taken the slightest notice of him.

7218. (Mr. Coleridge.) You thought he was one of the party?—I thought so.

7219. (Mr. Bere.) Had you any person when you and Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Harris were by yourselves in the room together, any fourth person?—I never was in the room with Colonel Dawkins, Mr. Harris, and a fourth person.

7220. Were there always more?—Always more.

7221. Did you see any person on the night of the nomination day whom you did not see about the hotel before?—No, there were so many faces I cannot say.

7222. Did you see a man with a wig?—I never heard of the man with a wig till yesterday.

7223. Did you hear of him before the committee?—No, I did not hear about him. I think the first day I was in the House of Commons I missed a great deal of the evidence given, I did not hear Mr. Screach's evidence, I was in the City. I never heard about the man with the wig till yesterday.

EIGHTH DAY.

Capt. B. Pim.

31 Aug. 1866.

7224. (Mr. Bere.) Having heard on the Monday that money was wanted, did you hear on the Tuesday that money was found, and that it came down from town?—On the contrary, my impression was that it had not come.

7225. Mr. Smith spoke to you about it on the Tuesday?—He was in a very excited state indeed, it was a most exciting time, and he said very little to me, good, bad, or indifferent.

7226. May I take it that you did not hear that money had come down upon the Tuesday?—Most certainly I did not.

7227. From no person at all?—From no person whatever.

7228. (Mr. Coleridge.) About the names you read out on the hustings, was Thomas J. Searle one of them?—I do not know, the Torquay paper can be easily obtained.

7229. You will find he was one?—There was a great deal of disappointment, the whole election was exciting, and it has escaped my memory.

7230. Does it seem familiar to you?—Yes, it does.

7231. You could not tell whether he was the person that came that night to the hotel?—No, I could not; I should be afraid to do so.

7232. (Mr. Bere.) When you canvassed James and Buckland did he canvass with you?—Harris was in the room.

7233. He was there with you?—With us.

7234. On both occasions?—Yes.

7235. What took place, had you a note against those names?—I had no note made against those names. I never came across a more excellent young man than James Heath, or one who did his work better; I left it entirely to him, and I did not interfere with him in the least, not a bit. I took everything for granted which he told me.

7236. Did you think when you left Butland he was lost to your party for ever?—I gave Mr. James up for myself certainly, whether Colonel Dawkins could make any arrangement with him, I know nothing about that.

7237. Did you suppose some other steps would be taken with regard to those men?—No; I knew at the time Mr. Butland's vote was lost and also Mr. James's. I had a moral conviction that they would vote against me from looking at the two men again alone.

7238. Then the polling day came, did you receive information from those that assisted you that the election was virtually over before 9 o'clock in the morning?—Yes, I was standing at the bow window of the "Seven Stars;" several people came in.

7239. Mr. Harris among others?—Yes.

7240. Mr. Kellock?—At that time I did not notice Mr. Harris, he may have been in the room, very likely he was.

7241. Did Mr. Kellock come in and tell you so?—He did not tell me so, he may have been present with a number of others. He said, "The election is lost "to our side."

7242. Did he tell you the reason that the men who had signed the requisition, and whom you expected to vote for you, had gone to the other side?—There was a good deal of execration lavished on those men.

7243. At what time did you leave Totnes?—I slept in Totnes that night, and went away the next day.

7244. Did you see any people go away from the hotel, did they remain there that day?—I am not sure whether Mr. Lane did, I think he did.

7245. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Lane Fox?—Mr. Lane Fox. As soon as I possibly could I went to bed.

7246. You had been up all night?—Yes, and I was very tired.

7247. Did you see No. 13 in the course of the day at all?—No doubt. I was in and out of the sitting room.

7248. We have been told it was locked at 9 o'clock, and no more money was to be had out of No. 13?—I assure you I did not know that No. 13 was the treasury at all. I had not the faintest idea of it.

7249. You did know who was the treasurer?—I had not the slightest idea of it. I am on my oath, I could not tell whether any one was paid or not, I have a strong conviction of it.

7250. And who gave the money?—I have not the slightest idea.

7251. You have no doubt large sums of money were paid on the Conservative side?—I am sure of it.

7252. Did you reap the benefit of it?—If you put it to me so strictly as that I think that Colonel Dawkins reaped the benefit of my coming down.

7253. You think your popularity as a townsman was a set off against Colonel Dawkins' influence?—More than a set off.

7254. (Mr. Bere.) I see you divide the votes evenly between yourself and Colonel Dawkins, 147 each, and none split between you and any of the other candidates?—I was not aware of it until yesterday, from your room I obtained the pamphlet you are looking at, and then I saw it for the first time.

7255. Neither you nor Colonel Dawkins got any plumpers?—I did not know it till I looked at the book yesterday, I got it from your room upstairs.

7256. (Mr. Coleridge.) What were the election expenses returned?—266*l.* and some odd shillings.

7257. Does that include your agents' fees?—I have not looked at it, I have got them here, and I can show them to you at this moment. I could not tell you the items; I paid the bill.

7258. How many days were you in Mr. Heath's house altogether?—I came down on the Friday, and went away in five days.

7259. Did you bring a servant with you?—No, I came down entirely by myself.

7260. And your expenses came to 110*l.* 15*s.*, do you consider that a good hotel bill?—I do not know.

7261. Is that the sort of sum you have paid before?—Sailors always do pay much higher than other people.

7262. Have you ever paid anything like 110*l.* for staying a week at an hotel?—Most certainly I have abroad.

7263. In one week?—Yes, and I have done more. In Spanish America I have had to pay that.

7264. Have you paid that in England?—No, certainly not.

7265. Have you ever paid it for a week at an hotel?—I think I have at Dartmouth, and that is close by here.

7266. Was that at an election time?—No, it was not.

7267. (Mr. Bere.) Your hotel expenses did not appear in your expenses of printing, &c., at Totnes?—I do not know. I gave 300*l.* to Mr. Kellock, I never asked any questions about it at all, and I sent 50*l.* to Captain Veitch to make it up.

7268. I see returning officer's expenses, I see 15*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*; who is Mr. J. F. Phillips?—He was the returning officer.

7269. Professional assistance 50*l.*, that is two sums of 25*l.* each, one to Mr. Kellock and one to Mr. Hare?—I have not got the hotel expenses here.

7280. I dare say horse and cart hire may be included in the hotel expenses, 27*l.* 10*s.*?—There was a good deal of it.

7271. What was that?—We went everywhere, I went to every elector in the borough.

7272. They were not very great distances, were they?—There were some considerable distances; Buckfastleigh for example.

7273. And Ashburton?—I think I went to Ashburton.

7274. Dartmouth?—I did not go to Dartmouth at all.

7275. (Mr. Coleridge.) There is Diggins, advertising in the "Exeter Gazette" newspaper and for papers, 23*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.*; H. T. Hodden, advertising in "Western Morning News," 6*l.*; H. Toms, printing and stationery, 16*l.* 5*s.*; John Denner, ditto, 9*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*; "Torquay Times" office, newspapers, 8*s.* 4*d.*; H. T. Hodden, as poll clerk and for copying work, 4*l.* 2*s.*; G. S. Lane, ditto, 4*l.* 2*s.*; W. D. Narramore, copying work, 2*l.* 2*s.*; Wm. Hamlyn, poll clerk, 2*l.* 2*s.*; John Johns, ditto, 2*l.* 2*s.*; Bishop, preparing Guildhall, 1*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*; what that?—I do not know.

7276. F. Bartlett, as messenger, 10*s.* 6*d.*; F. Hill, tto, 10*s.* 6*d.*; John Willcocks, ditto, 10*s.* 6*d.*; Chapple, jun., ditto, 10*s.* 6*d.*; Totnes ringers, ging, 3*l.* 3*s.*; Samuel Matthews, posting bills, 14*s.*; tal, 253*l.* 9*s.* 1½*d.* Commission to election agent, e per cent., 12*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; total, 266*l.* 2*s.* 7½*d.* In e 110*l.* were your carriage expenses included?—should think it very probable, everything I think.

7277. The committe rooms were not included, are ey, they are not in the extra 50*l.*?—Captain Veitch n tell you that; I am perfectly sure that he would t lend himself to any bribery and corruption of that rt. He told me it was necessary and I sent it to n.

7278. It was paid out of the 300*l.*; did Mr. Kellock urn anything to you?—I wrote to him and said I ped he would accept the balance.

7279. For his professional services?—He had taken reat deal of trouble for me, I was only sorry it was small a sum.

7280. Have you got your hotel bill?—No; I have t one here that I looked at this morning, and that ay explain part of it.

7281. I wanted to see whether carrying voters to e poll was included?—No; these were sent up to , and I asked Mr. Heath to give the servants 10*l.* en I went away. That would make the bill 90*l.* stead of 100*l.*

7282. That is 120*l.*?—That is included in the l.

7283. That would make the bill 120*l.*?—I cannot ll all the expenses now.

7284. Do you know Captain Veitch's address?—e is the governor of a gaol in Liverpool.

7285. You found, of course, in your canvass that ere was a strong hostility to the Duke of Somerset?—Very strong, indeed.

7286. Did you join in it yourself?—I felt strongly gainst the Duke of Somerset as a naval officer. I ve been on a naval inquiry or a committee for the t few years, and I have practically seen the dread- l state of the navy.

7287. Did you find it was rather from a feeling in mmon with you that any of the voters had hostility wards the Duke of Somerset?—I think the remarks nanated from the voters.

7288. Did you take those remarks with your special owledge of the Duke of Somerset's shortcomings?—all depends upon the style of person I am speak- g to.

7289. Did you work your hostility towards the uke of Somerset as a topic amongst the voters in nvassing?—No; I did not condescend to do that. verybody knew I was opposed to the administration the navy at that time.

7290. How did everybody know it?—I should think erybody knew it. James Heath would tell them.

7291. In fact, if James Heath told it the feeling as worked?—Thoroughly well known.

7292. And made use of?—If it could have been ade use of I should have thoroughly approved of it ing made use of.

7293. You made use of it on the hustings?—Most idedly.

7294. Did you hear of Mr. Alexander coming down re to stand?—I never heard of him until you men- ned him yesterday.

7295. You told us what Mr. Spofforth said to you uching this place; did you hear those letters read sterday from Mr. Spofforth?—No, I was not here the afternoon. If the letters have been read it ust have been late in the afternoon.

7296. Should you be rather surprised if Mr. Spof- rth, after what he said to you, had recommended nother gentleman to come down here and write to r. Harris?—Yes.

7297. Should you be surprised to hear that Mr. ... before he saw you on this subject, had been doing his best to get some gentleman to stand for this place?—I should not be surprised now, but I should then.

7298. And that he should have been writing in this strain, "the only difficulty is finding a man with "plenty of money to carry the seat?"—I should have been surprised then.

7299. You would have been surprised?—Most certainly.

7300. It would be difficult to reconcile the two?—I could not have reconciled the two.

7301. And also another expression, writing to Mr. Harris also, "Failing Colonel Dawkins, I will en- "deavour to procure you a commercial man of the "standing you require;" did you hear what Mr. Harris said about that, what he meant by a commercial man?—I can quite understand what Mr. Harris inferred.

7302. Mr. Harris said his great object was to get down a commercial man, and neither a soldier or a sailor?—I never heard it.

7303. He said he wished to have a commercial man to bring up the place in a commercial point of view, and he must have plenty of pluck and plenty of money?—I heard that.

7304. Were you told they were doing all they could to get some one of that nature to come down?—Most certainly not.

7305. All this intriguing for a commercial man was unknown to you?—Entirely unknown; I do not think I should have come if I had known it.

7306. If you had known of it probably you would not have come; if you had seen the letters of Mr. Spofforth after you came down?—I should have gone to town immediately.

7307. (Mr. Bere.) You were, to a certain extent, a commercial man?—I can say I could have been of great use to this town, and that was one of the ideas that brought me down.

7308. You were going to establish a certain line of steamers?—Yes, certainly.

7309. To make Dartmouth a port?—It would make a splendid port, and support for a line in which I am deeply interested. Totnes was a very flourishing place, and there seems no reason why it should not be made so again.

7310. (Mr. Coleridge.) You know there was a petition sent from here?—Of course.

7311. Did you hear of any compromise being talked of on behalf of the Liberals?—Nothing more than a rumour; nothing definite was ever proposed by Mr. Pender.

7312. Did you tell this gentleman here that you ever heard from Mr. Smith, of the firm of Guscotte & Smith, that 20,000*l.* had been offered to withdraw the petition?—No.

7313. You never heard it mentioned before?—Oh, no.

7314. Did you hear of any sum being asked on your side to withdraw the petition?—No; Colonel Dawkins will give the facts; he will tell his own story. Colonel Dawkins undertook the petition, and rather against my advice at first, because the evidence showed Totnes either was not worked up as it ought to have been; if it had been it would have made the petition perfectly certain. Colonel Dawkins, in talking it over, went into the position of the matter. It was an understood thing between him and me that I should pay one half the expenses, simply between us as gentlemen.

7315. Is all the account closed now?—Oh, dear, no.

7316. What was the evidence you thought ought to have been worked up to make the petition certain?—Mr. James's 50*l.* note.

7317. What was that?—It was a note which had passed from Mr. Pender and through certain banks, which could have been traced very readily by the Conservatives, but which up to the last moment was not traced.

7318. Was there any other thing that ought to have been brought out against the other party that was not?—It seemed to me a very strong case if you could bring the 50*l.* note from the Rev. James's hands into Mr. Pender's hands; it seemed quite sufficient to carry the case.

EIGHTH DAY.

Capt. B. Pim.

31 Aug. 1866.

7319. Tell us any other case that you thought was omitted that you know of?—I was very anxious they should mention the eleven men, but I was overruled; I considered it was such an astounding thing to do.

7320. Have you a copy of the Torquay paper you mentioned?—No, I have not. I have certain extracts from speeches taken from the Torquay paper.

7321. Had Mr. Kellock told you this place was very corrupt?—I cannot say that he positively told me; but it was a thoroughly understood thing.

7322. Did he give you to understand that it was?—He had no occasion whatever to do so.

7323. All your plans were formed upon the supposition that the place was corrupt?—I would not have spent any money myself, because I knew the place was corrupt. I hoped by fighting it bravely we could carry the Conservative feeling.

7324. You never had the slightest idea of coming in under the wing of Colonel Dawkins, but that you could have fought it firmly together?—That is a point I never took into consideration; coming in under the wing of another candidate; it was rather the other way, in a sailor's way of putting it. I should not think of anything of the sort.

7325. You had no notion but that you could do it gamely; but you knew that the assistance of the other candidate must help you in your election; was not that so?—I had not given any consideration to Colonel Dawkin's movements. I left him alone.

7326. You say it was so perfectly understood that the place was impure, and you think that from your presence and your local interest you were going to make it a pure election?—I thought I was going to be elected.

7327. You did not suppose that anybody standing upon the same principles you stand on would have been elected?—I stood upon the principle of minding my own business. If a man chooses to sell himself, let him do so; if Colonel Dawkins chose to buy these people, let him buy them.

7328. You did not imagine that the nature of the constituency was likely to be altered?—I was utopian enough to hope that there might be a change in the place; and I had the vanity to suppose that I could infuse a little feeling into the place, and to have got in at some future time.

7329. You did not imagine that there could possibly be a pure election while all that was going on?—Now, speaking about that, I do not know that it would have been absurd. Every one said that the place was rotten in itself; there was no disguising it.

7330. You did not understand at all about it?—I had nothing to do but to attend to my own business, and I did not attend to anybody else's business.

7331. (Mr. Longe.) You did not interfere?—I have taken some little interest in politics for the last 10 years, and I cannot believe that there is a borough in the kingdom that has not the same going on. I did not come down here a baby; but the idea of 250*l.* apiece to 11 of them!

7332. (Mr. Bere.) Do you believe there was any chance of your being returned to the exclusion of Colonel Dawkins?—Not the slightest. I should have been very sorry.

7333. If a difficulty had arisen should you have given way?—I admire Colonel Dawkins immensely; I think I should.

7334. You are an independent gentleman. You have some grievance?—No, I have not; quite the contrary. I have on the whole been a fortunate man. Colonel Dawkins has a grievance, and a very great one, I conceive.

7335. (Mr. Coleridge.) Nobody split with the Liberals?—I was not aware of that till I looked at the pamphlet I got from your office.

7336. Several split for Colonel Dawkins?—They did.

7337. Probably under the influences brought to bear?—No doubt of it.

7338. Let me ask you one question. You told us you knew nothing about Mr. Mum being down here. I think you also had a letter that on the nomination day the money had not actually come; did you know before the day of the polling somebody had come down from London?—No; I had not the slightest idea that anybody had come; on the contrary, I thought from Mr. Smith much money did not come.

7339. What was it that gave you the impression that there had been some hitch about the money on the nomination day?—I am accustomed to discipline and handling bodies of men, and I saw there was something going on in the camp.

7340. Could you gather from his manner whether it was owing to the actual absence of money, or owing to the insufficiency of it?—I should have said it was the insufficient quantity.

7341. You would have gathered from his manner that it was not the absence of money, but the insufficient quantity of it?—Yes, from all I knew.

7342. At a later period of the nomination day, from his manner could you infer that things had been put right; did he become more satisfied?—No, he was in the same excited condition all through the election—very excited indeed.

7343. You gathered from that that there was an insufficiency of the ready money, or that he might have been outbid by the other party?—That was my impression certainly.

7344. (Mr. Bere.) That he was outbid by the other party, or that there was an insufficiency of money?—Outbid by the other party.

7345. What time did you get up in the morning on the nomination day?—I fancy I was out of bed the whole time I was down here. I do not think I went into bed.

7346. Were you up when the mail train arrived on the morning of the nomination day?—Yes, I was.

7347. At the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

7348. Did you see some person arrive with the fly?—I think Mr. Pender's son came by that fly with a very large bag.

7349. He did not get out at the "Seven Stars"?—He came, unfortunately for me, to the "Seven Stars"; it was a "Seven Stars" fly.

7350. Was it on the morning of the election or the morning of the nomination?—I think the morning of the election.

7351. Did somebody else come in the fly with him?—Yes, decidedly.

7352. Did he get out at the "Seven Stars"?—He got out and stopped at the "Seven Stars."

7353. Did he have a bag?—He had a bag with nothing but clothes in it, and a friend of mine going on some mining business to Cornwall, Mr. Murchison, a stranger to him, was with him. He was in the carriage with Mr. Pender's son, and it appears from his information that Mr. Pender's son had this money; it was put into a very heavy bag, and put into Mr. Murchison's fly, and they were brought to the "Seven Stars."

7354. Were they the only two that came down in the fly?—No one else—not that I am aware of; I know those two from a circumstance that tickled my fancy.

7355. Are you quite certain as to the person that came down in the fly to the "Seven Stars"?—I did not see him come out of the fly. I did not even see Mr. Pender.

7356. Did you see anyone arrive at the house that night?—Do you mean from London?

7357. Yes?—No, certainly not. I did not even see Mr. Murchison get out of the fly.

7358. Did you see him until he came into the house?—He came straight to my room.

7359. And the chambermaid was sent to him to get him a bed?—He did not go to bed.

7360. When did he go away?—Not till almost the next train; he had some breakfast and went to Liskeard.

7361. Did he go away after nine o'clock ?—It must ve been after nine. I assure you he did not come wn with any election views or any finance business nected with our election.

7362. Where did he breakfast ?—With me.

7363. Though he did not go to bed, did he change clothes, so that you could see what was in his ?—I do not think so ; he opened it to take out a sh to brush his hair and make himself comfortable.

7364. You could not see in the bag ?—I could not ear it was not full of sovereigns, except by the ight.

7365. (Mr. Longe.) What could have kept you up night ?—I took a great interest in the whole elec- . I stopped up every night.

7366. You were in communication with Colonel wkins and the other parties, who would tell you at they knew ?—For a special reason I minded my n business ; I had never done anything of the sort ore, and therefore I stopped up all night.

7367. You could not canvass in the night ?—No ; I am accustomed to stop up at night. It was no d-ship to me. I stopped up to see what was going on.

7368. To see other people's motions ?—The whole ce was alive.

7369. To see the entertainment going on ?—Yes.

7370. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did Mr. Murchison tele- ph to you to say he was coming down ?—By-the- very likely he did. I can easily find it out.

7371. Had he written to say so ?—He may have e so ; it did not strike me before.

7372. You said you expected him, and you could e found a bed for him ?—Very likely. In fact, v I remember I must have done so. The fly was for him ; that was the way Mr. Pender hap- ed to come to the "Seven Stars" in the fly.

7373. How came he to meet Mr. Pender ; did they e the fly at the station ?—That is the reason I ember it; they were great friends on the way .

7374. You cannot say whether he wrote to say was coming, or whether he telegraphed ?—He may e done both.

7375. (Mr. Longe.) Did you order the fly to go n ?—I sent the fly for my friend.

7376. (Mr. Coleridge.) On the morning of the ination ?—I think it was.

7377. It was four o'clock in the morning ?—Yes.

7378. Was it on the Monday or the Tuesday ?—I uld expect it was the Monday, and that he had elled through the Sunday night.

7379. Can you give us his address ?—Yes ; 8, tin Friars.

7380. Can you tell me whether it was one of those es which I will read to you; Thomas Blank, boot shoemaker ; John Parnell Searle, butcher ; Slip- y Jack ; James Matcham, innkeeper ; William gilley, shoemaker ; William Byne, shopkeeper ; liam East, John Bridges, Samuel Hill, James unds, John Tozer, Bridgetown ; Robert Jackson, kfastleigh ; was the person who came to you in house, and wanted you to cap the 250*l*, one of e men ?—No doubt he was one of those.

7381. Can you tell us which of them it was ?—I ld not tell you by name, because I do not know names of the people here.

7382. You would not be likely to swear to any one his appearance ?—No, it is not a very pleasant g to do ; one may make a mistake. The person o came to the hotel was a perfect stranger to me, you would not again easily recognize a person m you once saw in a crowd at two o'clock in the ing.

7383. You have no doubt he was one of those ers ?—Not the slightest.

7384. (Mr. Longe.) You heard what Mr. Harris about Mr. Mum ; is it your belief or not that such person did come down here that night ?—I eve that a Mr. Mum is usual on those occasions.

7385. But do you believe that any one came down n London that night to the "Seven Stars ?"—If any one did come, I am utterly ignorant of it up to this moment.

7386. But do you believe that this person, Mr. Mum, did come to Totnes that night ?—If you ask me my belief, I should think he did, for this reason. According to the habits of Totnes the election was managed capitally. My belief is that a Mr. Mum did come, but I have no positive knowledge one way or the other.

7387. (Mr. Coleridge.) Can you let us know which night it was that Mr. Murchison came down from London ?—He came down from London on mining business, and by reference to his books he can tell you. I will write and give you the information with pleasure. I think he must have come down on the Sunday night, for this reason, that Mr. Murchison has a great deal of business, and makes the most of his time.

7388. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know Mr. Edmonds the solicitor by sight ?—Yes, I know him now. I did not know him then.

7389. Do you remember seeing him at the "Seven Stars" a great deal ?—Yes, he was there a great deal.

7390. Had he a room to himself ?—I cannot say that. I had what was called a private room, but the door was always open, and people were constantly coming in and out, and in Colonel Dawkins' room the same.

7391. (Mr. Longe.) Mr. Edmonds was not Mr. Mum ?—No ; he is thoroughly well known here, and highly respected.

7392. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Edmonds was about the place all the day before the nomination ?—Yes. No doubt the coming of Mr. Mum was made known to the free and independent electors of this borough.

7393. They did not let you into the secret ?—No. I would tell you directly if they had.

The witness handed in the following document :—

Totnes Election, July 12, 1865.

Bills owing by Captain Pim, R.N.

Namesof Claimants.	For what incurred.	Amount.
		£	s.	d.
J. F. Phillips, Esq., Returning Officer.	Professional assistance, tradesmen's bills, &c.	15	4	10
Mr. John Heath -	Hotel expenses, &c. -	110	3	4
H. Kellock -	Professional assistance	25	0	0
F. J. Hare -	Ditto - -	25	0	0
J. Diggins -	Advertizing in "Exeter Gazette," and for newspapers.	23	8	8
H. T. Hodden -	Advertizing in "Western Morning News."	6	0	0
H. Forus - -	Printing and stationery	16	5	0
John Denner -	Ditto ditto -	9	10	6
"Torquay Times" Office.	Newspapers - -	0	8	4
Mr. H. T. Hodden	As poll clerk and for copying work.	4	2	0
G. L. Lane -	Ditto ditto - -	4	2	0
Mr. D. Narramore	Copying work - -	2	2	0
W. Hamlyn -	As poll clerk - -	2	2	0
John Johns -	Ditto - -	2	2	0
John Bishop -	Prepairing Guildhall, &c.	1	3	6
F. Bartlett -	As messenger - -	0	10	6
F. Willis - -	Ditto - -	0	10	6
John Willcocks -	Ditto - -	0	10	6
Totnes ringers -	Ringing - -	3	3	0
Samuel Matthews	Posting bills - -	0	14	0
		253	9	1½
Commission to election agent, 5*l.* % -		12	12	8
	£	266	2	9½

Returned by Mr. Presswell and retained by me for current expenses - - - 0 16 4

WM. HAMLYN,
Agent for Election Expenses.

I hereby certify that these bills have all been paid by me, and the vouchers handed over to the town clerk (G. Presswell, Esq.), as required by Act of Parliament.

W. H. 12/9/65.

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S Screach, junior.

31 Aug. 1866.

JOHN SANDFORD SCREACH, junior, sworn, and examined:

7394. You assist your father, who is an innkeeper at Bridgetown?—I do.

7395. How long have you lived there?—A great number of years. I was born there.

7396. Have you always lived in the same inn?—We have not been in the public line more than 11 years.

7397. He has carried on the boot and shoe trade?—Yes, and he does still.

7398. How old are you?—Thirty.

7399. Have you been mixed up in election matters for many years?—I have had some little to do with them. My first connection was with municipal affairs.

7400. When did that begin?—I think I may fairly put it as 1861.

7401. Was that the first time you had had anything to do with elections?—I have some faint recollection of having something to do with the previous municipal elections.

7402. That is the first time you took any interest in it?—Yes.

7403. On which side were you in 1861?—On what is called the Liberal side.

7404. In 1863 and 1865 you were on the Conservative side?—Quite right.

7405. What had caused the change of your opinion?—Simply because my father had felt disposed to change, and I followed him.

7406. When did that conversion take place?—I think soon after the 1861 municipal election.

7407. Was it before Mr. Pender came to Totnes?—There was a dinner before that with my father and the parties.

7408. Do you remember when Mr. Condy paid his bill?—I remember my father making repeated applications for a bill of 11*l.* for matters respecting the previous election.

7409. That bill had been left unpaid for some time?—Yes, before the death of Mr. Mills; and when they fancied they required my father's services again the bill was paid.

7410. Paid by Mr. Condy?—Yes.

7411. At that time had you changed sides?—Nothing had transpired at that time.

7412. Was there a contest in the council in 1862?—I think not.

7413. When the election took place on Mr. Mill's death, did you take any interest in the parliamentary business of the borough?—Not the least.

7414. Not until 1863 did you take any interest in the elections here?—That was the first time.

7415. Have you a vote?—I have never had a vote for the borough.

7416. What interest did you take in the election of 1863. Were you employed by Mr. Dent?—I took a very active part in the election with some few men.

7417. Were you employed by Mr. Dent?—I never had orders from Mr. Dent. I was acting on the part of the Conservatives.

7418. From whom did you get your orders in 1863?—From some fellow who was there. A Mr. Mum.

7419. Mr. Harris has called him a black man?—He was a very dark complexioned man, not a decided black man.

7420. Where did you see him. At the "Seven Stars"?—At the "Seven Stars."

7421. And in Number 13?—That was the room I always used to see him in. It was a bed room.

7422. (Mr. Coleridge.) This black man had a very dark complexion indeed?—He was a dark man, not particularly dark.

7423. With short curly black hair?—I am not clear about his hair. I think he had dark hair, and very large whiskers, which came down on the side.

7424. What height was he?—I should think he was nearly six feet.

7425. Did he stoop with his head now, and walk with his head rather forwards?—I cannot say; I only saw him, to the best of my recollection, in his bed room.

7426. You never saw him walking about?—No.

7427. Did you ever hear any name given to him—No.

7428. When did you last see him?—It was one or two days prior to the contest of 1863.

7429. Did you see him about the galleries of the House of Commons when the Committee was going on?—I do not recollect seeing him there.

7430. Should you know him if you were to see him again?—I do not think I should.

7431. Was he not a very dark man?—Not particularly so.

7432. Was he not almost as dark as he could be—He was very dark.

7433. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell me what sum of money was spent on the other side on the occasion of the municipal election in 1861?—In 1861 the Duke of Somerset's wood ranger came to my father's in the morning, a man of the name of Hodge, and said he wanted to borrow 10*l.*, and that as soon as the bank was open he would return it. That money was distributed amongst a parcel of men who came round there in the morning, and wanted a little something to drink.

7434. That was the common way in which things were carried on at that time of day; by keeping open houses, and paying a certain sum of money to each voter after the election?—That is about it.

7435. Do you know about what was the price to the voter?—I do not. Before dinner I had not taken a very active part in it. Then at dinner time Hodge borrowed another 10*l.* of me, and said he was short of money; he then asked me if I would begin to stir my stumps, and I then went and paid Samuel Simms and Thomas Simms 3*l.* each. I managed to keep George Heath away from the "Stars" at that time.

7436. You say you spent as much as 10*l.* or 20*l.* on that occasion; do you at all know what was spent on the other side?—I do not know at all myself; but have heard there was as much as 200*l.* spent on each side.

7437. It would come to as much as from 300*l.* to 400*l.*?—In many elections that has been the case.

7438. Who was your commander-in-chief upon these occasions?—It was Hodge who came up and got this money in the way I have told you early in the morning.

7439. Had not Mr. Parnell something to do with this matter?—I am not quite sure of that.

7440. Did not Mr. Charles Michelmore do a good deal on this occasion?—I think he was one of those who were active in 1861.

7441. And did he not use his influence on the Liberal side?—Yes; he behaved very handsomely to me at that time. I think he gave me a sovereign, and again ten shillings during the day.

7442. Had you a vote yourself?—I had no vote.

7443. But your father had a vote we understand?—Yes; my father had a vote.

7444. Did your father have anything for his vote—I am not confident.

7445. This is the election of 1861?—Yes.

7446. There was no contest in 1862?—No.

7447. Was there a contest for the council in 1863—Yes; I was on the Conservative side.

7448. Who was your commander-in-chief?—George Heath.

7449. Did you receive money?—Yes.

7450. What quantity of money?—I think 32*l.* or 33*l.*

7451. How did you spend it?—I have a list of names.

7452. Did you spend that amongst persons, bribing them for the Conservative side?—Most decidedly.

7453. Are those persons whose names you have given there 10*l.* householders, or persons below that rank—I do not think 10*l.* householders.

7454. Are those persons voters? — Not in the ough affairs.

7455. Not for a member of Parliament?—No.

7456. You distributed 32*l.* or 33*l.*?—Yes.

7457. Amongst how many men did it go?—Twenty.

7458. Did you give more to one than another? es.

7459. What did you give?—I think in the contest 863 the highest was 2*l.*

7460. And what the lowest?—I paid one as low 5*s.*

7461. Who else besides you acted for the Conatives then?—I think Mr. Frederick Evans had little to do with the municipal affairs.

7462. Was he the only other person?—No, there others.

7463. Who else?—Mr. George Heath took an ive part.

7464. He distributed the money himself?—Yes.

7465. Did Heard have anything to do with it?—I k I did hear of Mr. Heard; of his being a payer.

7466. Do not you know that he got money from rge Heath, and distributed the money like you?—id not see him get the money; but I should say did.

7467. Mr. John Heath, had he anything to do with —Yes; I should say he took an active part in it. all events he did in the advising, if he did not in paying part.

7468. Did all the money you received come from rge Heath; or did you get any money in 1863 n anybody else?—I think I had the whole from rge Heath; I think I may say I am certain.

7469. Is that all you have got; or did you have a icipal election in 1864?—I do not think any since . I have not spent any money since.

7470. How many men are there, as far as you w, of the municipal electors who are open to bribe Totnes?—I really cannot say; I never felt so rested in the numbers as that.

7471. Are there a great many?—I should say ndreds.

7472. I do not mean persons who want to be repensed for losing a day's work, but who would e for one side if no bribes, and vote for another if ribe was offered?—I do not exactly understand.

7473. We have heard there was at one time a tem of paying half-a-crown and a breakfast?—Yes.

7474. I do not mean persons who would want for a day's work; but persons who want money an inducement to vote?—Those men are generally ongst the labouring classes. I do not think the desmen look out for money at such times.

7475. I suppose 1*l.* or 2*l.*, or even as high as 4*l.*, is sufficient temptation to a tradesman?—I should not.

7476. Had you anything to do with the election of . Pender and Mr. Dent in 1862?—Yes; I had ly one case at that election.

7477. When Mr. Dent withdrew?—Yes.

7478. What was that case?—I was deputed to go see Mr. Thomas Edmonds, then living at Torquay.

7479. Where was he living?—With two ladies ed Taylor, on the hill.

7480. What was he?—Gardener.

7481. Was his wife still living in Totnes?—I lieve still living in the same service at Marldon.

7482. Did you see him?—Yes.

7483. What passed?—I offered him 50*l.* the first e, and he said if I could double it he would support r side.

7484. That is for Dent?—Yes.

7485. Who had sent you in 1862 to Edmonds?—I s sent for to come to the "Seven Stars" at three lock in the afternoon, and on entering the front or I saw a gentleman in conversation with Mr. .

7486. It is not the contest in 1863 with Seymour d Dent?—I understand. I saw a gentleman in nversation with Mr. John Heath.

7487. A stranger?—Yes.

7488. What was the stranger like?—That gentleman had ginger whiskers, red sort of whiskers.

7489. What height was the man?—Middle height.

7490. Stout or thin?—Rather a bulky man.

7491. What age?—I do not recollect; I could not say; a youngish man.

7492. What passed between you and this gentleman; but how came you to go to the "Seven Stars"?—I was sent for.

7493. Who came for you?—A youngster named Pack, the under "boots."

7494. Mr. Heath wanted to see you?—I think so.

7495. Where is Pack?—I do not know.

7496. You went to see this gentleman?—Yes.

7497. Tell us what passed?—Mr. John Heath and the gentleman deputed me to go to Torquay.

7498. What did they say?—He said go over to Edmonds and offer him 50*l.*

7499. He must have asked you some questions before whether you knew Edmonds? — That was represented by Mr. Heath, I should think.

7500. You were to go to Torquay?—They told me to go and offer 50*l.*

7501. Had you the 50*l.* before you went?—Yes; I think I had.

7502. In what?—In gold.

7503. Did you take the 50*l.* in gold?—Yes.

7504. Did you tell Edmonds that you could give him 50*l.*?—I think I made a mistake; I had not the money the first time. It was when I had the 100*l.*; the second time.

7505. You went and offered him the money, and he wanted 100*l.*?—Yes.

7506. Then did you come back?—Yes, I came back and reported. I am confounding the Marldon affair with other elections; I am confounding the 1865 election; I was sent to get Edmunds in the first affair; to get him at any figure from 100*l.* to 150*l.*; I had no money then; the money was not given to me then. I was confounding the two elections.

7507. You went to Torquay and saw Edmonds?—Yes.

7508. What did Edmonds want?—He came home with me under the impression of having 120*l.* when he came to Totnes.

7509. What time did you get back?—12 o'clock.

7510. By train?—No, I had a saddle horse; and he would ride a mile or two, and then I would.

7511. You went to the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

7512. When you came did you receive the distressing information that Mr. Dent would not go to the poll?—Yes.

7513. And you did not get the 120*l.*?—No, no money was spent.

7514. Did you hear of the slippery company in 1862?—Not at the time.

7515. Did you know whether any overtures had been made to your father to join the company?—I remember perfectly well Mr. Thomas Searle, jun., who kept the "South Devon Inn," coming and asking father to come and join a little batch of men at his house; I remember hearing his asking the governor the words in our bar, and the governor said, no, he should not have anything of the sort. What Mr. Harris said yesterday as to his reading the names over to father is false.

7516. He says he heard of it?—He did not.

7517. Were you present?—I was in the passage, and I was curious enough to listen.

7518. Did you hear the names mentioned?—Mr. Searle did not mention the names; he merely asked the governor to come and join the party.

7519. Did he say what the party was for?—No, but it was dear enough.

7520. You knew?—Yes.

7521. Your father would not go?—He declined to act.

7522. Is that all you know about the election of 1862?—Yes.

7523. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do not you know of any people paid by the Liberal party at that election?—

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S. Screach, junior.

31 Aug, 1866.

I do not know; there are rumours, but it is useless for me to come here and condemn my neighbours on rumour.

7524. Confine yourself to what you know. What was the sum you finally offered Edmonds?—120*l.*; if he would not come I was to go to 150*l.*

7525. Was that the only sum?—That was the only case I had.

7526. Was that the only case you were employed to bribe?—In borough affairs, for a member of parliament.

7527. It was in 1862 that this gentleman with the ginger whiskers sent you to Edmonds?—Yes.

7528. And in 1863 the black man?—I am not sure about dates.

7529. When Dent withdrew was the time when the ginger whiskered man was here?—Yes.

7530. And 1863 the black man?—Yes.

7531. (Mr. Bere.) Have you seen the ginger whiskered man since?—No.

7532. What was he like?—A middle sized man, rather bulky.

7533. There was an election in January 1863, in which Seymour and Dent were candidates?—Yes.

7534. Were you employed on Dent's side?—I was.

7535. How many days before the election did you begin to be employed?—I am not clear as to the number of days.

7536. A week or a fortnight?—I should say a week.

7537. Who employed you?—I was sent for to go to the "Stars" by Brown.

7538. Did he call at your father's inn and ask you to come down?—I am not clear as to that, but I know I went.

7539. Between the two elections had anything been going on in a political way in the borough?—I do not know of anything.

7540. Nothing you knew of?—No.

7541. When you got to the "Seven Stars," did you see Mr. Heath?—I did not.

7542. Whom did you see?—The waiter was there remaining in the lobby for me.

7543. Did you go with the waiter anywhere?—Yes.

7544. Where?—To No. 13.

7545. When you got to No. 13 did you see that gentleman about whom you have given us a long description?—Yes, this black man was in the room.

7546. Did the dark man give you a list of the names?—He did.

7457. How was he dressed?—He had on a long frock coat, similar to the gentleman on your left; but I do not remember his dress much.

7548. Had he a slouching way of walking and moving himself?—I cannot say. It was in a bed room, a small room; and there was not much room to walk about.

7549. Should you know the man again?—I think not; I should tell you it was one night when I saw him.

7550. What time?—The days were short then, somewhere about six or seven o'clock in the evening; I cannot tell to an hour.

7551. How long before the election?—I think a day or two previous; I cannot tell the day.

7552. Was this the first information of his being employed by the Conservative party at that election?—It was.

7553. You said you were employed for nearly a week before?—That was only one particular case.

7554. We must have that. This was not the first occasion at that election that you were employed for the Conservative party?—Really I am not clear as to the exact time.

7555. What was the case you were employed upon before you saw the black man?—I think Edmonds asked me if I would come and see him.

7556. Where was this?—He was living at Marldon; I do not know whether it was Marldon or Torquay.

7557. Where did you see Edmonds?—He belongs to the Forester's society to which I did.

7558. Does that meet at your father's house?—No, the "Oxford Arms."

7559. How long before the election was that?—I should think it must have been months prior to the election.

7560. You are making a mistake; you remember there was only about a month between the two elections?—I did not take any notes; I am not correct about it.

7561. Was your being sent for to go to the "Seven Stars" in Seymour's election the first employment of you by the Conservative party with regard to the election?—I should think it was some few days before.

7562. (Mr. Longe.) Do you remember hearing of the death of the Earl of Gifford?—I do.

7563. How soon after that were you employed?—It must have been within a day or two.

7564. Was it soon after Lord Gifford's death that some communication was made to you?—I should say not for some days; I cannot tell exactly the time.

7565. (Mr. Bere.) Can you say how many days before the election the interview with the black man took place?—I cannot say positively.

7566. Three or four days?—I should say it was about that time.

7567. (Mr. Longe.) Did you expect to be employed when you heard of the death of Lord Gifford, by the Conservatives?—Yes, but I did not know positively.

7568. You looked out for some work at the election?—Yes.

7569. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you had to do with Edmonds twice?—Yes.

7570. You say you were employed first in 1863, which was something about going to see Edmonds?—Yes.

7571. Had you promised to go and see Edmonds in consequence of offering the money in 1862?—That is right.

7572. In consequence of your offering money in 1862 Edmonds wished you to go, in case of any money going?—Yes.

7573. How long before you saw the black man did you go and see Edmonds?—I cannot say; but he gave me a list of names.

7574. Then it was after?—I am not clear. I think it must have been.

7575. Did you go and see him?—Yes.

7576. Tell us the second story about what took place; where did you go to?—I went to Torquay. I am pretty certain it was Torquay.

7577. You think it was after you saw the black man?—I think so.

7578. Now what took place?—I went, I think, and offered Edmonds 80*l.*

7579. Had you got the money with you?—No, I had not then.

7580. What did he say?—He said he could not promise, as he had seen a man named John Callard and John Elliott, and he could not give me any answer before he had seen them again.

7581. Did you then spring your offer?—No, I came home.

7582. Did you report that to the black man?—I reported it to the black man.

7583. What did the black man say then?—He said he was not in a position to say anything about figures higher that day; he would see me on the following day.

7584. Did you see him on the following day?—I did.

7585. What did he say then?—He gave me 100*l.*

7586. What did he give you the 100*l.* in?—In gold.

7587. Did you go to Mr. Edmonds?—I did.

7588. What did you offer him then?—I offered him the money.

7589. Did you show it to him?—I did not open the

, but I said, "Here is the money, if you choose to it."
590. What did he say?—He said he could not;
the figures would go up.
591. Did you take the money back to the black again?—I took it back and reported it that night.
592. (Mr. Longe.) Whom at that time did you besides the black man?—No one.
593. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was he in the same bed-n as before?—No. 13. I never went into any
r.
594. What did the black man say about that?—
t him be, we won't trouble any more about him."
595. Did you trouble any more about him?—I
I went down again on the nomination day.
596. What did the black man tell you to do then?
e told me to offer him 200*l.*
597. And did you have the money with you?—
598. What did Mr. Edmonds say then?—He said ould be home in the morning, and then would me.
599. That would be the election day?—That d be the election day.
600. Did you come back and tell the black man
?—Yes, I came back and reported it, of course.
601. To the black man?—To the stranger.
602. Was anybody else present?—No.
603. Did Edmonds come to see you?—No, he was d by this man Callard.
604. Then in fact Edmonds got nothing from
—No.
605. (Mr. Bere.) When you first saw the black did he give you a list?—He did.
606. What were the names on the list?—I have here.
607. Read them?—Joseph Hannaford, Edward
r.
608. Who is he?—A tailor, living at New Walk,
the Plains. John Nickells, blacksmith, William gilley, shoemaker, Fore Street.
609. Whose writing is that list in?—It is my writing.
610. But did he give it to you written out?—
611. Have you it now?—No, I did not take any unt of it after the election was over. William
, Charles Pitts, Edward Turpin, Shillabeer, he is keeper at Warland.
612. Samuel Shillabeer?—Yes. James Raymond.
613. Who is Raymond?—He is a man who keeps le shop in Fore Street.
614. Was there anything else on the list besides ames?—No.
615. No sums of money?—No; he told me to me myself to a figure.
616. What figure did he limit you to?—To get men for about 40*l.* or 50*l.*
617. How high might you go?—He did not tell go any higher the first time.
618. Did you succeed?—I could not do anything them at forties.
619. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you with 50?—I did.
620. (Mr. Bere.) Take the first name on your —Joseph Hannaford.
621. Did you go and see him?—I did.
622. What is he?—A baker in Fore Street.
623. Had he been a Conservative or Liberal in es before?—I think he voted for the Conservatives or twice.
624. Had you anything to do with him in the ions for the council?—No, never.
625. Did you know how he voted in the elections e council?—I think he was a Conservative for elections.
626. You went to see Joseph Hannaford?—Yes
627. Tell us what passed?—I cannot tell the exact
s.
628. Did you offer him money for his vote?—I to close the bargain with him.
629. Did you offer him money for his vote?—I did.
7630. What sum of money did you offer him?—50*l.*
7631. Did he ask for more?—He did not.
7632. Did he say anything about the other side having offered him more, or being likely to offer him anything?—I do not recollect his telling me anything of that sort.
7633. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you pay him the money?—Yes.
7634. Before he voted?—Before he voted.
7635. (Mr. Bere.) Then you took the money with you the first time?—I am not clear as to that. I had to see some of them several times before I could come to a bargain.
7636. When did you pay Hannaford?—About a day or two previous to the election.
7637. (Mr. Coleridge.) What did you pay him in?—In gold.
7638. (Mr. Bere.) Did you get the gold from the black man?—Yes.
7639. In No. 13?—Yes.
7640. Did you see where the black man took the money from?—I believe I can tell you.
7641. Where?—I believe a large bowl that was on the bed; a china bowl that looks like a punch bowl.
7642. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did it belong to the house?—I do not know.
7643. (Mr. Bere.) Was any man with you and the black man at the time the money was handed over?—No.
7644. Did he hand you over the sums for each voter, or did he hand you over a round sum and tell you to give some to each man?—I had the different sums from him.
7645. What sums did you receive. Am I to understand that you had sums for each particular voter, or that you had 300*l.* or 400*l.* to be divided?—I drew sufficient for four or five.
7646. How much did you get at one time, say the first time?—The first time I got 200*l.*
7647. What did you do with that 200*l.*?—I am very sorry, but I am giving you all the particulars of the 1865 election. It never occurred to me till that moment. It is all of it the particulars of 1865.
7648. (Mr. Coleridge.) There was no black man in 1865?—There was a stranger.
7649. But not a black man?—No. I am confining myself to the 1865 election.
7650. Is all this about 1865?—Yes, all about 1865.
7651. (Mr. Bere.) All this list is about 1865?—Yes, all the list is about 1865.
7652. Then we will go on with 1865. It was not the black man but the person you saw in No. 13, we must have a description of that first?—I think it was No. 15 on the last occasion.
7653. Is that a bed-room too?—Yes. I would not be certain, the waiter can tell you as to the last rooms.
7654. Describe this man whom you saw in 1865?—An elderly meagre-looking man, with grey whiskers.
7655. Beard or moustache?—I think he had at the time.
7656. (Mr. Coleridge.) A very thin wizen-looking man?—He looked a careworn man.
7657. (Mr. Bere.) A man of 60 or 70?—I should not think he was as old as 70.
7658. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know his name?—No.
7659. What did he go by?—No, not even the nickname; I did not know the name of Mum before I came here.
7660. Who sent you to this man?—The same man, the waiter, fetched me.
7661. (Mr. Bere.) That is the man whom you met on the bridge?—Yes. Brown.
7662. Was it Brown you met on the bridge, or was it this man, this stranger?—It was Brown.
7663. And he came to you and said you were to go to the "Stars" and see a gentleman?—Yes.
7664. Where did you see the gentleman first?—In the bedroom.

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S. Scrutch, junior.

31 Aug. 1866.

7665. Are you quite sure about that?—Yes, certain.

7666. You are quite sure that you did not see him in the lobby first of all?—I do not know whether he was standing at the end of the staircase when I came in.

7667. When, in 1865?—Yes; I am sorry I so confused it.

7668. Did the waiter go up stairs and leave you down stairs?—I did not return with the waiter.

7669. You did not go back in company with the waiter?—No.

7670. Did you find the waiter in the house when you came to the "Seven Stars"?—He stood in the lobby.

7671. Was the strange gentleman there too?—I think the waiter said, as near as I can recollect, "There is the gentleman that wants you," and I followed him up stairs.

7672 You went to No. 15?—I believe it was No. 15.

7673. Then he gave you that list from which you read the names?—Yes, that is right.

7674. And then he gave you the money from the bowl?—Yes.

7675. Did he give you the money from the bowl before you went away to see the people whose names are mentioned?—No.

7676. Then did you see all the men whose names are on the list before you went back to the stranger?—I do not know that I did; I think not.

7677. Did you see most of them?—I did.

7688. Did you find that most of them wanted prices higher than you were authorized to give?—Yes, I did.

7679. Did you then go back to the stranger?—I did, and reported it.

7680. This was on the nomination day?—I cannot swear whether it was the nomination day or the day previous; I think it was the nomination day.

7681. What was the time that you first saw him, what time in the day?—I think it was some time in the afternoon, somewhere about 2 or 3 o'clock. I cannot tell you to an hour.

7682. Was it before your dinner time or after?—I rather think it was before.

7683. It would not be so early as that, I mean your dinner hour. I suppose you dine about 1 or 2 o'clock?—About 1. You see that I cannot tell for an hour or two.

7684. (Mr. Coleridge.) It was not as early as 10?—I do not believe it was that time in the morning. I think it was the day before the nomination; I am not clear, I never took a note.

7685. (Mr. Bere.) What was the first time the stranger gave you any money?—It was either the nomination day or the day prior to the nomination.

7686. Did you go to him more than once before you had been to see the voters, or was it after you had been to see some of the voters and came back and reported to him, that he gave you the money?—I think I went twice, and then got the money.

7687. How much?—I had it in two or three different lots.

7688. You told us 200*l.*?—That was 1865.

7689. How much?—I think I had 400*l.*

7690. Was that the first lot?—That was the first lot, I believe.

7691. What did you do with that, the first lot that you had?—I can give you the names and how much I paid. I paid Joseph Hannaford 50*l.*

7692. Mr. Bere.) Give us another name?—Edward Baker.

7693. Who is he?—A tailor living at New Walk.

7694. Did you see him before you went back to the stranger, first of all?—I am not certain about that.

7695. When did you see him then, on the nomination day?—I saw him, unquestionably, when first I had the list. I paid Baker.

7696. What conversation had you with him before you paid him?—I merely told him my business.

7697. What business?—I came to know whether little money would be of any consideration to him, a he said it would.

7698. (Mr. Coleridge.) Whom was he to vote fo —Pim and Dawkins.

7699. And Hannaford the same?—Yes, and Ha naford the same.

7700. (Mr. Bere.) You mentioned of course f whom he was to vote?—Well, of course that was t understanding, that he was to vote for the two.

7701. And then did he ask for a particular sum, did you say you would give him 50*l.*?—I think I sa 40*l.*, and he said he supposed I could manage anoth 10*l.*, and I said yes.

7702. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you give it to him gold or notes?—Gold. I may say in that case that told me he had been tempted on the other side b man named Punchard, of Leet Garden.

7703. Who was the next that you gave money t —I paid William Pengilley.

7704. How much?—I am not clear as to the amou exactly, but somewhere about 40*l.* or 50*l.*; I thi about 45*l.*

7705. Had you any conversation with him?—Y of course; I had to make the bargain.

7706. Did he vote for Pim and Dawkins?—Y for the same side.

7707. Did he ask any more?—He did not.

7708. How did you take the money about?—I bag.

7709. In your bag?—Yes.

7710. (Mr. Bere.) A canvass bag?—No, a bro holland bag.

7711. Was it yours or the black man's bag?—T stranger's bag.

7712. You have the list; do you know wh handwriting that is in?—No, I do not.

7713. What sort of handwriting is it, was i legible roundhand?—I cannot say, I have no id He had the list prepared when I got into the room.

7714. Where was the list, was it lying on the tabl —He took it from a drawer.

7715. Did he open the drawer and take it out? I think it was a drawer in the dressing table.

7716. Had he three or four?—I do not know; only saw the one he gave me.

7717. What did you do with that list?—I do know what became of it.

7718. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you got it at hom —I do not think I have.

7719. (Mr. Bere.) Have you looked for it?—N

7720. I wish you would?—I will; I do not thi I have it, if I have you shall see it.

7721. John Nickells?—I think he had 34*l.*

7722. Had you any particular conversation w him?—No; he was always a Conservative.

7723. That is an odd sort of sum. How did happen that he had 34*l.*?—I have heard that the C servatives generally made it a practice of sending h the same amount.

7724. (Mr. Coleridge.) He is a matter-of-cou man?—Yes.

7725. We have heard that the matter-of course were not paid till after the election, generally, this was before?—Yes. I had a little conversati and I said 34*l.* will satisfy you, and that I paid hi 7726. Who next?—William Allen.

7727. How much did you give him?—80*l.*

7728. What did he say?—He said he had offered heavy sums on the other side.

7729. Did he say who offered him?—He did I dare say he can tell you.

7730. (Mr. Bere.) Where did you give it to h at his own house?—No.

7731. Where did you pay him?—At Joseph H naford's.

7732. Is that a sort of place where these men on list meet?—No; they are brothers-in-law.

7733. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you make these p give you receipts for the money?—Never; at lea only took one receipt, from William Pengilley.

7734. Have you that?—No, I gave it to the stranger.

7735. You say you gave Hannaford 50*l.* and Allen 0*l.* at the same time?—Yes.

7736. Did they know what each got?—No; I never paid one man before another.

7737. You did not?—No, I made a plan of paying separately.

7738. Was Hannaford at his house at the time you paid Allen?—Yes.

7739. You had to go back to the stranger and ask him whether you might give him 80*l.*, as being above your figure?—No, I do not think then. You understand he limited me to 50*l.* first, then I went back, and he, running down the list, said, so-and-so and so-and-so want so much, and they must have it.

7740. How came you to take a written receipt from Pengilley and not the others?—Because I was requested to do so by this man. I think you will find from the evidence that he acted very shabby on two or three occasions, and they rather distrusted him.

7741. Was he the only one who acted shabbily of his party?—That I do not know. That was the only man who I received a receipt from at that election.

7742. Who is the next man?—Charles Pitts.

7743. What did you give him?—Either 40*l.* or 50*l.*, I am not certain.

7744. Did you have any particular conversation with him?—No. He was always on the Conservative side.

7745. Where did you pay him?—In his own house; no, I beg your pardon, I met him in the street, and he took me into his employer's cellar and I paid him. I think it is Bennett and Stranger.

7746. Were any other people present?—No.

7747. Who is the next on your list?—Edward Turpin.

7748. What did you do with Edward Turpin?—I paid him 60*l.*

7749. Where did you pay him 60*l.*?—I do not know; but I think it was in the smoking-room of the "Stars."

7750. Was the smoking-room of the "Stars" open to anyone?—I think I called him in out of the "Seven Stars" tap.

7751. Was there anybody in the smoking-room?—No; by day that is very dark.

7752. Those all voted for Pim and Dawkins?—Yes; barring Pengilley, they all went right.

7753. (Mr. Bere.) Who was next; Samuel Shillaker, cow-keeper, Warland.

7754. How much did he have?—I think 60*l.*

7755. Where did you give it to him?—I paid his wife then.

7756. At his own house?—At his own house.

7757. And James Raymond?—Yes, he had 80*l.*

7758. How came that?—Well, there was a few of them held out for rather a stiffer figure than the rest, that is the only reason I can assign.

7759. (Mr. Coleridge.) That is the whole of your list?—Yes, on the last election when Dawkins and Pim were here.

7760. (Mr. Longe.) Did you complete all these transactions in one day?—Yes, I paid every penny in one day.

7761. (Mr. Coleridge.) This was done on the nomination day?—Either the nomination day or the day preceding.

7762. (Mr. Longe.) You said some days before the election you were introduced to him; that is what you said before the Committee?—If you refer to that evidence, I was so badgered about by Mr. Serjeant Ballantine, that there are many little things said there that I was not so exactly correct as I should have been as regards time, for if you see he pulled me most cruelly.

7763. (Mr. Coleridge.) Bring your mind to it, and try and recollect. How many days did you see the stranger at all? Was it more than one day?—I think I must have seen him on two different occasions. I saw him two or three times the day the money was expended; that I am certain of.

7764 You saw him on the polling day of the election?—I never saw him after the nomination day, not the stranger.

7765. Was not the nomination day the only day on which you saw him?—I am not clear on the subject; I know the day I paid the money, it was very close around the "Stars," where many of them lived, and it did not take me a minute.

7766. It may have been the nomination day or the day before?—The day preceding the nomination.

7767. You have finished your list?—That is for that election.

7768. (Mr. Bere.) Was there anybody else you offered any money to?—Yes, offered.

7769. That is the list of people whom you offered bribes to and they were accepted?—Yes.

7770. You have told us how many persons you offered a bribe to who accepted the bribe. Now tell us those whom you tempted, and who resisted the temptation?—Yes, John Drew, he is living at Bridgetown, and is one of the duke's tenants.

7771. How much was offered to him?—A small sum of 400*l.*

7772. Was he a man to whom John Heath, junior, and Niner, had gone to?—I do not understand.

7773. Was he one of the men that John Heath and Arthur Niner had gone to?—This man is not a farmer; he votes on buildings and land; he keeps a horse and cart.

7774. Is he one of the linhay lot?—No, he has a house and field, and not buildings and land.

7775. What day did you offer it to him?—The election morning.

7776. What time?—Four in the morning.

7777. Where?—I knocked at his door, and he came to the bed-room window.

7778. How far from you does he live?—In Seymour Place, just above where we live, down on the right there.

7779. On the right as you go up the hill?—Yes.

7780. (Mr. Bere.) When he came to the window, what occurred?—I asked him if he had determined on voting, and he said, Yes, he had, and I said, "Here is 400*l.* if it is any consideration." Well, no, I was too late. I think that was the only remark that passed.

7781. Then did you go away?—Then I went away.

7782. Who had authorized you to offer that 400*l.*?—This old gentleman who was there, the stranger.

7783. Had he given you his name. This man, the stranger, had he given you Drew's name, for instance?—I received a list of names from him that morning, that were to be had, it was the last effort, at any figure.

7784. What time did he give you that list on the election morning?—I should think about half-past three; I saw Drew about four o'clock.

7785. There were other names on that list?—Some two or three names.

7786. How many?—Thomas Pack.

7787. Just give us the list of names on the list he gave you?—I have not the list, but to the best of my recollection I will give it to you; I think he gave me the name of John Drew, John Wright, James Edmonds, and Thomas Pack; I think those were the four names.

7788. You saw John Drew at his bed-room window, and you asked if 400*l.* was any object to him. Had the stranger mentioned any sum that you might give him, or had you unlimited power?—The stranger passed this remark: If they are not to be had at that figure——

7789. What figure?—400*l.* You may go anything above it to make the other side pay.

7790. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he give you the money to do it?—No, not a farthing.

7791. (Mr. Bere.) Was that all that passed between you and Drew?—That is all I can recollect.

7792. Did not he come down stairs?—No, nothing of the sort. He told me that I was too late; that he had promised last night; so you see he did not promise till the night before the election.

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S. Screach, junior.

31 Aug. 1866.

7793. Is he a Liberal?—Yes.

7794. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did his wife get up too?—I did not see his wife that morning; nor had I been to him prior.

7795. (Mr. Bere.) Did he call out of the window when he came to it, and ask, "Who is there?"—He asked who is below, or something, and then I looked up, and the conversation took place which I have given.

7796. Is that all that passed?—All; I believe; I do not recollect of anything more.

7797. Had he always voted right before?—I believe he had always gone on the other side.

7798. Always for the Liberals?—He had always gone for the Liberals.

7799. He was a man who seems to have given some little trouble. Had you seen him during the nomination day or before the election?—Yes, with his own party.

7800. Did you not get at him before?—No, had not a word.

7801. Did you say to the stranger, when you gave him the name of John Drew, that he was not a likely man to be got hold of, because he was one of the regular Liberals?—I did not know that I did.

7802. Did you and the stranger ever discuss the chance of getting particular men whose names we mentioned?—Never; the only thing that transpired was to the effect that you must try so-and-so, and here is a list; where he got it from I do not know.

7803. You have not that list?—No. Evidently somebody must have furnished him with it who knew the affairs of the borough.

7804. Did you refer to that list when you went home; did you find it during the adjournment?—There was not time to go to Bridgetown.

7805. Now what did you do with Thomas Pack?—Well, I think I offered Pack somewhere about 200*l.* or 300*l.* that morning.

7806. Who is Pack? Does he carry on business as a pork butcher opposite the church?—He is a labouring man.

7807. (Mr. Coleridge). As to Mr. Drew, you had begun tampering with him earlier in the election than this?—Never.

7808. Had you never written to him?—Never written to him.

7809. The first time you went to him you knew he was holding out?—I did not know it: I will tell you why. In Mr. Harris's evidence I think he said something about a poll-book being found, and in that we found "D" carried out against John Drew's name as "doubtful," and that put us on to him I suppose.

7810. Who put you on to him?—The stranger.

7811. The stranger put you on to John Drew, and you imagine that because he had a "D" in Harris's poll-book, the book which Mr. Charles Michelmore says was stolen from his pocket, that the consequence was that you, or at least your party, thought he might be had. The stranger did not go about?—I do not recollect seeing him out of the room.

7812. Then the stranger must have got his information from somebody who had Mr. Michelnore's poll-book?—Unquestionably.

7813. Tell us about that poll-book?—That is the only thing I can tell you, confining myself to John Drew, that the letter D was carried out against his name, and that of a good many others thought to be staunch Liberals.

7814. When did you get informed that there was a D against his name?—I think the nomination night.

7815. Before you tempted him with the 400*l.*?—Yes.

7816. Whom did you communicate your knowledge to that there was a D put against his name?—I did not communicate it to anyone.

7817. Who told you?—Mr. Narramore told me.

7818. Had he been much about the "Stars"?—Mr. Narramore was an active agent as well as myself.

7819. Do you know whether Mr. Narramore had ever been in the room with the stranger?—I do not know.

7820. You had never been in the room with him?—I was always alone. I beg to say I have been in the "Seven Stars" and the waiter has gone and said "the "gentleman is engaged; you cannot see him for a few "minutes."

7821. When he has said that, have you seen any body come out of the room?—No, I never did.

7822. So you cannot state of your own knowledge that anybody went to see the stranger except yourself?—You are quite right.

7823. You know people did, but cannot say whom—No.

7824. In consequence of what Mr. Narramore had told you about this D, somehow or other it came to the stranger's knowledge?—It must, I suppose.

7825. That is the reason you went to him?—That is the only reason I can assign. I do not know that that even was the case.

7826. (Mr. Bere.) When did you go to Thomas Pack?—The same time. I think it was the same morning.

7827. After you went to Drew or before?—After Drew. Drew was the first I saw.

7828. Where did you see him?—At his house.

7829. Did you go into his house?—It was about 6 o'clock.

7830. Did you go in?—I went as far as the door.

7831. Did you knock at the door?—I did

7832. Did somebody come down and open it?—He was preparing to go away to work. He is a labouring man, working for Mr. Searle of Weston one of the Duke of Somerset's tenants.

7833. John Searle, not one of the slippery company?—No, he is not anything of that sort. This Mr. Searle stands very high.

7834. You say he came down and opened the door?—He did.

7835. What did you offer?—300*l.* as a consideration.

7836. Did you ask him for his vote beforehand?—I had never seen him before.

7837. Had not you known him before?—I was very well acquainted with the man.

7838. Is the Mr. Searle whom you speak of at Weston alive?—Yes.

7839. Does he qualify in respect of Spark Hays near Weston Road, Bridgetown?—I believe that is right.

7840. (Mr. Longe.) What is Pack's qualification?—I think he votes for a house in Fore Street, the house he lives in, it is close in front of the church.

7841. (Mr. Bere.) What did Pack say to you when 300*l.* was offered him?—He fancied another hundred would be about the thing.

7842. As you had offered Drew another 100*l.*, could not you offer Pack another 100*l.*?—I did not do so.

7843. Why not?—I cannot give any explanation. I will tell you why. In my humble opinion I do not think my party intended to pay a single farthing. It was merely to raise the figures on the other side, because I had not a penny, though I was offering these men so much.

7844. And you did not think you could get it, and you went back?—I did not believe they would have paid it, that's candid. I did not believe, when the Matchams turned sides, as you have heard in evidence, that they would carry it.

7845. But they did not turn sides till 8 o'clock in the morning?—They had an idea.

7846. Had they, do you think?—I think I have heard so from parties. They were seen about in company with parties the night previous.

7847. If they had known Matcham's turning, would not that have made such a difference in the election, that it would have been no use bribing these three or four men?—Very likely, but I think it was hispered that they had withdrawn the night previous at a late hour.

7848. Where did you hear the whisper?—About the "Stars." There were plenty of people waiting about to see and hear what they were doing. I heard that they were in company with the other side.

7849. Is that all that passed between you and Pack?—That is all.

7850. Have you ever seen Pack since you talked to him about it?—Never.

7851. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know what Mr. Pack had from the other side?—I have no idea.

7852. What did you hear?—Not anything.

7853. How did he usually vote?—Always on that side.

7854. Did you use any endeavours to persuade him, or did you think the money was sufficient. Did you have any conversation at all?—No; I did not think our party intended to pay him; the Conservatives and I merely made the offers.

7855. You said you had not a farthing of money at that time. How much money had you received in all from the stranger or anybody else during the election?—Some 500*l.* or 600*l.*

7856. Can you give us exactly?—No, I cannot. I cannot, because sometimes he would say to me "You will find so-and-so at different times of the day when I saw him there. He says we will allow you your expenses."

7857. Was it as much as 600*l.*?—It was 500*l.*, or rather more, I should say.

7858. Are you sure it was not over 600*l.*?—I am not sure. I am not sure it was not 700*l.* I am not sure about it. I dare say that by-and-by the figures will be put together.

7859. Are you quite sure it was not 700*l.*?—I am not. I do not know the figure.

7860. You cannot swear it was not 700*l.* Will you swear it was not 800*l.*?—I will not swear anything about it. I do not know the exact figures. It was somewhere about 500*l.* or 600*l.*

7861. Will you swear it was not 1,000*l.* If Mr. Drum should appear here and say it was 1,000*l.*, should you be prepared to contradict him?—I never spent the money.

7862. Did you receive 1,000*l.* at the last election from the stranger or anybody else?—I did not.

7863. You will swear it was not 1,000*l.*?—I will swear I did not receive that amount of money.

7864. Will you swear you did not receive 900*l.*?—I will swear it.

7865. Will you swear you did not receive 800*l.*?—I am not certain.

7866. That is the nearest you can get to, that you are not certain about 800*l.*?—600*l.* is the nearest number.

7867. You will not swear you did not receive 800*l.*?—I do not believe I did.

7868. Will you swear that you did not?—I think I may swear that.

7869. Will you swear that you did not receive 700*l.*?—I cannot swear that I did not.

7870. Will you swear that you did not receive 550*l.*?—No, I cannot tell you the amount, about 500*l.* or 600*l.*

7871. Just think again, and tell me whether you are prepared solemnly to swear you did not receive 600*l.*?—I can solemnly swear it.

7872. You will not swear you did not receive 550*l.*?—I could not undertake to do it.

7873. It is only 50*l.* difference, so you must have a margin in your mind. Now we will go on with the offers.

7874. (Mr. Bere.) John Light?—Yes, I offered Light some money.

7875. What did you offer him?—60*l.* at Bovey Tracey.

7876. Did you go over to Bovey Tracey?—I did.

7877. When?—I think it was the nomination day.

7878. (Mr. Longe.) How did you manage to do all those on the nomination day?—The nomination day and the day preceding the nomination day.

7879. (Mr. Bere.) How did you go over to Bovey Tracey?—I went by train as far as Newton.

7880. Then how did you go on?—I had a cab at the station.

7881. What time did you get out at Bovey?—I should say somewhere about 4 o'clock.

7882. Four in the afternoon or the morning?—The afternoon.

7883. What is John Light?—I think he keeps a school there.

7884. Where does he keep a school in Bovey?—I do not know his address.

7885. Where did you go in Bovey?—All I know is, it was at this end of the village, on the right hand, nearly opposite the church. I asked parties when I came there who were passing on the road.

7886. I know Bovey; you had better think what you are saying.—It is opposite the church, I mean the church on the left, with a lot of tombstones in it.

7887. That is generally called the chapel. Does he live in one of those new houses?—He lives in one of those houses on the right. I was not aware it was a chapel, I thought it was the church. I was never there before.

7888. Did you see him there?—I did.

7889. What did he say to you; was he suprised to see you there; had he known you before?—I do not know that I had very much conversation with the man before.

7890. How long had he left Totnes?—I cannot tell you.

7891. Did you begin the conversation and tell him what you had come about?—Yes.

7892. What did you say to him?—I told him that I had come up from Totnes to see him, and to know whether 60*l.* would be of any consideration to him for his vote.

7893. What did he say to that?—He said it would have been a day or two prior, but that he had promised to come over to Totnes on the election day with a man who, I think, he said was a doctor there, a gentleman who had canvassed him for his vote on behalf of the Seymour party.

7894. Did he give the doctor's name?—I do not remember the name. He did, but I have forgotten it.

7895. Are you sure he said the gentleman was a doctor?—I am pretty certain.

7896. At Bovey Tracey?—Yes, or there close within the neighbourhood, and he would come over with him on the day of the nomination; whether he said nomination or polling I am not certain, I rather think polling, and before he saw him he could not give me any decided answer. He either said nomination day or polling day, and I says, "The money I "have brought you is no account to you."

7897. How much had you?—I had 100*l.*

7898. Who gave you that?—This fellow at the "Stars."

7899. Was it part of the money that you had given you in a lump sum or other money?—I think I must have had that money in a second draw that was made to endeavour to go and get Light. I think he gave me 100*l.* to go and see whether I could get him.

7900. When did you leave Totnes?—I left Totnes by the express some time in the afternoon, about 3 or 4 o'clock.

7901. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you get back?—I came back as soon as I could, the very next train. The coach drove at a wild gallop, and I came back the same evening and finished up my work in the town.

7902. Whom did you see when you came back to Totnes?—I saw the same man, and I told him that Light was coming with this man, and he could not say anything till he came down, not as regards agreeing to any figure.

7903. (Mr. Longe.) I think you say this was the day before the nomination day?—Or the preceding

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S. Screach, junior.

31 Aug. 1866.

day; I am not clear. Either one or two days before the election; I think so.

7904. According to your account, then, the stranger was down two days before the nomination day?—I do not know anything about the name of Mum, the stranger.

7905. The stranger was it?—Yes.

7906. (Mr. Bere.) I want to know generally, had not you money long before this stranger came down to Totnes at all?—Not this last election.

7907. In 1865?—Nothing of the sort.

7908. No money at all till the stranger came?—No; I believe it was either the day or the day preceding the election.

7909. Now, James Edmonds is the last name on your list of offers. What have you to say about him?—[No answer.]

7910. (Mr. Longe.) When you went to Bovey Tracey it was either one or two days before the nomination day?—Yes.

7911. I thought you said just now the nomination day?—No, the nomination day or the day preceding. Which day I would not be clear.

7912. You are confused about that a great deal; are you quite certain the stranger came down before the nomination?—I do not know when he came.

7913. You could not have gone to Bovey Tracey before he came, because you would have no money?—I had when I went.

7914. You had money, and it may have been the day before the nomination day. Be careful. You had money before the nomination day, and you went to Bovey Tracey with this money. When you went to Bovey Tracey with this money, you must recollect this, was it after you had bribed Baker, Nickells, and those people?—I believe it to be in the afternoon of the same day that I paid them in the morning. I will not swear it was, but I believe it to be so.

7915. Was it before or after you went to Thomas Pack and that other man you named, John Drew?—I did not go to them till the following morning.

7916. This man Light, to whom you went to offer money, was not one of those to be had at any price?—I was about to remark with respect to Light—

7917. Answer my question first. Was he one of those persons who was to be had at least at any money?—I do not know. He went the other side.

7918. You said there were certain names, and you read Light amongst them, Drew, Light, Edmonds, and Pack, and you said, with regard to the offer to Drew, that he was one of those who were to be had at any price. Now you say Light was previous to that occasion?—He was previous to that.

7919. Then you put Light in the wrong class?—I saw Light, I should say, after he came over.

7920. You saw Light over at Bovey Tracey?—And saw him at Totnes.

7921. Let us have the Bovey Tracey business first. And you offered him this money, and he said it was too late. Is that so?—That is right.

7922. Then supposing the stranger not to have come down till the nomination day, and this happened the day before, where did you get the 100*l.*?—The stranger and I went to Bovey Tracey.

7923. Do you mean, on your oath, that you did not receive any money except that from the stranger?—I will swear not a penny, not anything.

7924. Colonel Dawkins was down the week before?—I do not know.

7925. How long had you seen Colonel Dawkins before the time you went to Bovey Tracey?—He was in the town many days before I saw him; there is no question about that.

7926. Was not money going about in the town before the stranger came down?—Not to my knowledge.

7927. You put the stranger's arrival as on either the nomination day or the day before?—I do not know when he came.

7928. (Mr. Bere.) It must have been three or four or five days before the nomination?—He might have been the whole time with the colonel. I never saw him.

7929. (Mr. Coleridge.) You did not see him till the nomination day or the day before?—Yes.

7930. Will you swear you never saw the stranger till the day before?—Unless it was the day before.

7931. (Mr. Longe.) You are not certain as to the day?—No. It is useless to say that I am. If you ask a dozen times I cannot swear it.

7932. (Mr. Coleridge.) Will you swear you ever saw the stranger earlier than the day before the nomination day?—I really cannot swear to a day.

7933. On how many days will you swear you saw the stranger at all?—I never saw anything of the stranger after the nomination day till the following morning at 4 o'clock.

7934. On how many distinct days will you swear that you saw him at all?—I am not prepared to swear.

7935. Did you see him more than two days?—I do not know, it may have been.

7936. Did you see him more than three days?—I cannot say.

7937. Did you see him more than one day?—The day that I went; certainly I did.

7938. This is trifling?—I am not, indeed.

7939. You must have seen him more than one day?—I admit that I believe it to have been on the election day, the nomination day, or on the day preceding the nomination day.

7940. You saw him on the nomination day, are you certain of that?—Of course I am.

7941. Did you see him on the election day?—I did, very early in the morning. I did not see him after the poll was opened.

7942. Will you swear you did not?—I cannot say whether I did or not.

7943. Will you swear you saw him on the election day and on the nomination day?—I saw him on the nomination day, and I have given you proofs of my seeing him then.

7944. Yes; pretty strong ones. You will not say you did not see him the day before the nomination day?—I really cannot swear.

7945. Did you or not see him on the day before the nomination?—I am not clear upon that.

7946. Did you see him at all except on the days you have mentioned?—I am not clear when I did see him.

7947. You cannot say whether you saw him more than three days in all?—I will not undertake to swear to a day before or after.

7948. Did you see him as many as four days?—I cannot say?—I did not make a note of anything.

7949. Do you mean to tell us that this stranger being down here on such an occasion as this, you cannot say how many days you saw him?—I cannot, really.

7950. (Mr. Longe.) You told us about paying money to these men whose names you have mentioned, and also going to Bovey Tracey?—These men live within five minutes' walk of each other, and after making a bargain with them, it would not take me long to count out 400*l.* or 500*l.* I could pay double as many in a day if they lived as near to one another.

7951. You swear you went to Bovey Tracey, and also went to these men on the same day?—I cannot swear that it was either the same day or the day preceding.

7952. That is a fact that you must remember if you think of it?—I came here to tell the truth of it as far as my recollection serves me.

7953. Cannot you remember?—I cannot by possibility recollect; I would willingly do so if I knew it.

7954. I am speaking only of what you did on this day; you must remember, surely, whether you went to this place and dealt with these men on the same day?—I went either on the nomination day or the day preceding.

7955. You think it was all on the same day?—I do not know; I cannot say positively.

7956. Were you engaged in the same kind of busiss for two days ; if it was only one day's work, there n be no confusion about it ?—I had been engaged making bargains with these men some time previous the election.

7957. Do you mean for two or three days ?—I nnot say.

7958. There cannot be any mistake about it, you ink ?—I think not ; I am not like Mr. Harris ; I not like to give a lot of daresay evidence.

7959. But you must know whether you were em-oyed one or two days or more ?—I never kept a note anything or gave in any bill.

7960. But common sense would tell us that you ust know ?—I cannot say.

7961. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had you offered any money anyone before you saw this stranger ?—There were rtain inducements held out.

7962. Had you yourself been the vehicle of offering oney to parties before you saw the stranger ?—rtainly ; I had made offers, but I had nothing to ay.

7963. Tell us whom you made any offer to before you w the stranger ?—Some of these very men ; I was ld to inform them that they were not to promise eir votes, because there would be money down here.

7964. (Mr. Bere.) Had you yourself been to these en who afterwards received a bribe ? Take James imonds, for instance, of Warland ?—As to James lmonds, he had been offered a terrible figure on two three occasions.

7965. Had you seen James Edmonds at Warland fore this election ?—Yes.

7966. Before the stranger came down ?—Yes.

7967. How long before ?—I had seen him before ; cording to the evidence given in London it is said made a very extravagant offer to him of 200*l.*

7968. Who had authorized you to make that offer ? —I do not know ; I was sent by some one to say that ere would be a gentleman here, and that they were ot to sell themselves.

7869. Who authorized you to go to Edmonds and fer him 200*l.* ?—I do not know whether it was George eath ; I am not clear about that.

7970. Where did you go from ?—From the "Stars."

7971. How did you go ?—I drove there in a horse d gig.

7972. How far is it from here ?—From three to ur miles.

7973. Was James Edmonds working in the garden hen you got there ?—I put up at the public house d sent for him.

7974. Who ordered the horse and gig for you ?— came out of the yard of the "Seven Stars."

7975. Did John Heath go and order the horse and g to be got ready ?—I said to Mr. Heath that I anted to go there, and he ordered his man to put the rse in.

7976. Did you tell Mr. Heath what you wanted the rse and gig for ?—I did.

7977. To go over to Edmonds ?—Yes.

7978. Where did you speak to John Heath ?—I ink it was in the lobby of the "Stars."

7979. Had you just come out of the Conservative mmittee room ?—I was never admitted into the mmittee room.

7980. Had you seen any member of the Con-rvative committee ?—Not to my knowledge.

7981. From whom did you get your instructions to o to Warland to James Edmonds ; who authorized u to go and offer money to James Edmonds for his te ?—I am not quite clear, but I think it was George eath.

7982. You may be quite clear ; it is a matter you annot forget ?—I never took a note of anything.

7983. If it was George Heath, where was it ?—omewhere about the "Stars."

7984. Where ?—In the lobby, or somewhere there-bouts ?—I think George Heath would know.

7985. Then George Heath was employed ?—Yes ; e was a very active agent.

7986. Why did he not go himself ?—Perhaps he thought he should not have any great weight with the man ; I have been very friendly with him for many years before he went out in the service, when he kept a dairy.

7987. Where did George Heath come from when he told you to go to Edmonds ?—I do not know.

7988. What time of the year was it ?—It was the same day when Captain Pim's meeting was held in the hall ; that has just occurred to me.

7989. (Mr. Bere.) Can anyone present give us that day.

(Mr. Stone.) It was the Friday before the election.

7990. (Mr. Bere to the witness.) Had you been to Captain Pim's meeting ?—No ; I think I went away from the "Stars" just previous to the meeting.

7991. Was it not John Heath ?—It was one of the Heaths ; I am not clear which it was.

7992. Had he not just come out of the Conservative committee room ?—I do not know.

7993. Where was the committee room, up or down stairs ?—I do not know ; I was let into nothing more than the spending of the money.

7994. Was it a back room with a bow window ?—I do not know where it was.

7995. Was there a room into which a number of gentlemen used to go from time to time who were known to be Conservatives, and whom you saw going in and out of that room ?—I have seen many gentlemen go in and out of the large room, but I was never inside.

7996. Did John Heath come out of that room before he gave you the order ?—I could not see that room from the lobby.

7997. Did he come down stairs ?—I believe he did ; I am not certain.

7998. Was it John Heath, not George Heath ?—I think it was the old gentleman.

7999. At that time did you know what members of the Committee were up stairs ?—I did not.

8000. Was Colonel Dawkins in the place ?—I do not know if he was in the house at the time.

8001. Had the people who were going with Captain Pim, to hear his address, started from the "Seven "Stars" at that time ?—I do not think they had when I went away.

8002. Were they assembled there in order to go with him ?—There were a great number stood round the front of the door when I went away.

8003. Was Captain Pim there ?—I cannot say.

8004. Was Mr. Kellock there ?—I think I saw Mr. Kellock, Mr. Edmonds, and Mr. Bastard.

8005 How far were they from you when John Heath gave you directions to go to James Edmonds ? —Just the length of the passage.

8006. (Mr. Coleridge.) Will you undertake to swear that during the election of 1865 you never received money from anyone but the stranger ?—I will.

8007. If the stranger did not come there till the day of nomination, must you not have made some mistake as to your dates ?—I am confident that I never received a farthing but from the stranger.

8008. Do you know anyone from whom you got money except from the stranger ?—I do not, so help me God.

8009. Who told you that you were to get money from the stranger ?—The waiter at the "Stars." He can tell you who the stranger is.

8010. Did the stranger tell you who had recommended you to him to be the recipient of the money ? —There was no conversation of that sort.

8011. Did he say nothing to you ?—There were passing remarks as to how things were going on, and if I had succeeded in getting the men.

8012. How did the stranger know that you had been trying to get the men ?—He had given me a list.

8013. The first time that you saw the stranger, how did you begin business with him ?—He handed me a list of the names.

8014. What did he say to you ?—He asked me

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S. Screach, junior.

31 Aug. 1866.

whether I was going to get those men at a certain figure.

8015. Did he ask you if you had tried those men ?—He did not.

8016. You are quite certain that the first time you ever received any money was from the stranger ?—I will swear it.

8017. And that the last sum of money you ever received was from him ?—I never received any money from anyone as to the election of members of Parliament but from a stranger. I have on municipal elections.

8018. Who gave you instructions to make the bargain with these men ?—I think it was Mr. John Heath.

8019. (Mr. Bere.) Will you tell us anyone who gave you instructions to go to anyone before the stranger arrived ?—I believe that Mr. John Heath told me, if I felt disposed to speak to any man relative to the coming contest, I was to give them the opportunity of knowing that there would be some cash, and that they were not to promise their votes.

8020. How many people did you then go and speak to on this subject ?—There is no doubt that I saw all those men whom I told you I paid.

8021. Did you return a list of the men whom you had seen and whom you thought you could influence to John Heath ?—I did not.

8022. Did you tell Mr. John Heath that you had been to so-and-so, and you thought you could do something with him ?—I used to report principally to the stranger.

8023. Keep the stranger out of your mind for a moment. John Heath having given you general instructions that money was coming, you saw most of the persons who are named on that list ; did you report to him the names of the persons who had promised you, and with whom you had negotiated before the stranger came ?—I reported to him that I had seen so many, and no doubt they would be right as soon as the party came.

8024. Did you report to anyone else but to John Heath ?—I did not.

8025. Where used you to give these reports to John Heath ?—At his house.

8026. Where ?—At the "Seven Stars."

8027. In what part ?—In the bar or in some other part of the house. Sometimes I saw him in the smoking room.

8028. Used you to send for John Heath ?—I have seen him often about there in the evening.

8029. Were there other persons present when you gave these reports to John Heath ?—I dare say there may have been some parties present.

8030. Who were they ?—I have had conversations with Mr. Kellock as to the number of persons whom I have seen. He never sent me.

8031. Thomas Creaser Kellock ?—Yes ; so I have with Mr. Edmonds.

8032. And you have reported to Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds the fact that you had been to certain parties, and that they would be right when the money came down ?—That I had seen those parties and they would be right ; they would say, "We have nothing "to do with money affairs."

8033. You have seen those two gentlemen at the "Seven Stars ?"—They were there giving directions.

8034. After they had a knowledge of what you were doing in the way of money, they told you that they had nothing to do with money affairs ?—Yes.

8035. (Mr. Longe.) You were never asked to go and talk about politics with anyone who was there ?—No ; we were talking of money matters.

8036. (Mr. Coleridge.) What had you to do with tempting Liberal voters in 1865 ? What did you do as regards the Liberals ; did you see many of them ?—I do not recollect more than the list I have mentioned.

8037. Do you mean that the list you have mentioned is the sum total of all those whom you have tried in any shape or way ?—If there are any others I am no correct.

8038. Cannot you give us any other names of persons who voted on the Liberal side, whom you trie and found hopeless ?—I cannot. I have given yo four names.

8039. (Mr. Longe.) Before any money was sent t you, how soon were you employed to negotiate at a with any of the electors ?—It may have been a week perhaps.

8040. Or a fortnight ?—I should not think it was fortnight.

8041. Your operations were confined to money matters ?—Yes ; I never had anything to do with other matters.

8042. You have mentioned Mr. Kellock, Mr. Edmonds, and Mr. Heath ; were there any other gentlemen who authorized you in any way ?—I do n think so.

8043. You were frequently talking with them ?—Having conversations as to how things we going on.

8044. And acting, in fact, under their sanction ?—Yes. Mr. Heath was the man who took the principa lead in ordering me to see parties. "Go and see so "and-so, and say that there will be some money i "the field." Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Kellock were careful not to meddle with money affairs.

8045. (Mr. Bere.) Did he ever suggest to yo certain persons on whom your influence could b used ?—No.

8046. Or make any remarks as to how they migh be best influenced ?—No.

8047. Did he ever send you to Mr. Edmonds, the solicitor, with a message about the voters ?—No. recollect saying to Mr. Edmonds once as to the Warland case, when I went to see James Edmonds, tha he said he had seen a man named Callard prior t that, that he had been there about a week before me and said that 200*l.* was no object.

8048. Did you report that to Mr. Edmonds ?—Yes I did.

8049. And what did Mr. Edmonds say to that ?—That he was very much surprised, and hoped tha their party would not give any such figure.

8050. That is all that you recollect ?—That is about the only thing.

8051. Were Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds constantly down about the "Seven Stars" at all times o the day and night ?—No, I think not.

8052. Did you ever see any canvass book or any poll book made up ?—No.

8053. Did you keep a canvass book yourself ?—No. I knew nothing of the ins and outs of their affairs except my bargaining with regard to the money matters. I never was in the committee room.

8054. The china bowl which you spoke of was at the election of 1865, as I understand ?—I think so ; it was like a large basin with money in it.

8055. Have you told us all that you know about 1865 ?—I believe that is all.

8056. (Mr. Coleridge.) And of the conversation with Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds ?—To the best of my belief I have.

8057. You reported to those gentlemen what you had been doing ; can you recollect any conversation that you had upon these reports ?—I have mentioned one ; that is all I am clear about.

8058. (Mr. Longe.) From what you remember of the business when you commenced to pay money, you knew that there had been a great deal of money spent before ?—Not to my knowledge. I do not recollect ever having heard so. In 1865 I do not believe there was any money paid before I begun to pay.

8059. You heard what Captain Pim said here this morning ?—Yes ; I have no reason to believe it.

8060. You did believe it ?—No ; for this very reason, that if it were so they would not have sent me to the men to say there was any money to be in the field; they would have closed the bargain previously.

8061. (Mr. Coleridge.) Has it been the habit of the ople here to trust voters with money several days fore the election?—I have heard of instances where ey have been settled with before, but not to my nowledge.

8062. How long before the election have you ever own a voter to have been paid?—Some two or ree days before the election.

8063. Give us an instance of anyone who has been id three or four days before the election?—I think can give you one in 1863.

8064. Can you give any instances in 1865?—I annot.

8065. (Mr. Longe.) We have heard from Mr. arris that the class of voters on your side would be fe men, men who had been in the habit of receiving douceur when they voted?—I heard the evidence Mr. Harris upon that, but I am not acquainted ith their affairs sufficiently to know the ins and outs yond money matters.

8066. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever pay any oney after the election?—I never did so. I have ard of it.

8067. (Mr. Longe.)—You do not know that there as not such a thing?—I do not know. What I have ne I am willing to tell you.

8068. (Mr Bere.) About how long before the elec- n in 1863 did you begin to work for the Conserva- e party?—I should think four or five days before.

8069. Was Mr. Dent here when you began to work?—Yes.

8070. Do you know Mr. Henry Helms?—I do.

8071. Was he down with Mr. Dent at that time?—I used to see him about the "Stars" with Mr. itchell.

8072. Did Mr. Mitchell come down with Mr. Dent?—I do not know when he came.

8073. Did you see Mr. Mitchell before you saw Mr. ent?—I think I did.

8074. And you think some few days before the ection?—Yes.

8075. What did you then begin by doing?—I saw e man in the moon, the stranger here.

8076. That was the black man?—A tall dark man.

8077. How many days before the election did you st see him?—I should think four or five days, it ay be a week, I cannot say.

8078. You have told us that the same waiter, rowne, introduced you to the black man in 1863?—he same man.

8079. Did he send to you at your father's, or did e come and meet you?—I think he met me on the idge, and said I was wanted at the "Stars."

8080. And having received that intimation, did you o to the "Seven Stars"?—He went away, and I fol- wed him about 10 minutes after.

8081. Did you go back home?—I did not. I left e bridge and went straight to the "Stars."

8082. Did you see the black man there?—I think am pretty clear about this, that he was standing at e foot of the stairs near the bar when I first went in.

8083. Did the man speak to you?—Browne says, This is Screach;" the gentleman beckoned me and followed him up stairs into No. 13 bed-room.

8084. What time of the day was this?—Somewhere tween 1 and 3, I cannot be certain to an hour.

8085. What passed between you and the black man hen you were up in that room.—He asked me if I new anything about Edward Turpin, Thomas Mit- hell, John Diggins, and Joseph Hannaford.

8086. Had he got a paper from which he was read- ng?—He had not then.

8087. What answer did you give to him?—I told im I knew them all very well.

8088. What did he say?—He said I dare say you ave got an idea of my business; then he said I should o and see them, and endeavour to get them at about 0*l.* each to vote for Mr. Dent.

8089. At that time had you seen any of these en?—I had not.

8090. To whom did you go first?—I cannot tell to hom I went first; I called on all four of them.

8091. During the same day?—Yes, I think so.

8092. Tell us first what passed between you and Joseph Hannaford?—I saw Joseph Hannaford.

8093. Does he live near the "Seven Stars"?—Close by.

8094. Then it is likely you would go to him first?—Yes.

8095. At his own house?—Yes.

8096. What passed between you and him?—He did not beat about the bush very much; I asked him if 50*l.* would be of any use to him; he asked me if I could get it; I said yes; from instructions I had had I could get it, and he said he would accept it.

8097. How did he vote?—He voted that way.

8098. Who did you go to next?—I am not clear, but I think it was Turpin.

8099. What did you say to him?—It was a very similar conversation; he said if I could get it he would willingly go on that side.

8100. Had he gone on the other side at other elections?—I do not know anything of him beyond that.

8101. To whom did you go next?—I saw Thomas Mitchell; I made a similar bargain with him; I cannot repeat the words; I offered him 50*l.*

8102. And then did you see Diggins?—I did.

8103. And did you have the same conversation with him?—Nearly so.

8104. Was there not some difference between the conversation with Diggins and that with the other people; was he as willing to vote for you as the other people were?—He told me so at that time, and I made a bargain with him.

8105. After you had seen those four men, did you go back to the black man?—I went back and reported that I had seen them.

8106. Did you report that they would each of them take 50*l.*?—Yes, and I believed they were all safe.

8107. What did the black man do then?—He said there would be no money for some two or three days, at all events that he had no money at that moment.

8108. Did you see any of these four men after that before the election?—Yes, I think I squared with them some two days before the election.

8109. Where did you get the money from to square with them?—From the stranger.

8110. How much did you get?—I had 200*l.*

8111. Did you get in No. 13?—I did.

8112. Then had you gone to see him?—He told me when he expected the money would be down, and I was to come on that day.

8113. What did he tell you?—That he expected the money would be down in about a couple of days.

8114. He said it would be down in that time?—That he would be able to let me have the money in a couple of days. I do not know that he had it not then.

8115. Did you receive any information from him that the money had come down?—No; I was to call again in a couple of days. It was late when I commenced with the election.

8116. You went to him and saw the black man again?—I did.

8117. And he gave you 200*l.*?—Yes.

8118. In sovereigns?—In sovereigns, the whole of it.

8119. Where did he take it from?—I am not clear about where he took it from, what part of the room.

8120. Was it from a bag under the bed?—I am not clear about that; he went round the bed and brought me 200*l.* in a bag. I did not see him take it; I heard him.

8121. Had he the bed between you and him for some time?—For four or five minutes.

8122. And you took the two hundred sovereigns to Turpin, Mitchell, Diggins, and Hannaford?—I paid the four of them 50*l.* each, and took all their receipts.

8123. What did you do with those receipts?—I carried them back and gave them to the black man.

8124. Do you mean stamped receipts?—No; merely an I O U to exonerate me.

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. J. S. Screach, junior.

31 Aug. 1866.

8125. When did you pay this money?—On the nomination day or the day before that.

8126. When the black man went to get the money were the curtains of the bed drawn?—It was white furniture, and the curtains were drawn where I had to stand from one end of the bed to the other.

8127. Did you pay these men at their own houses?—I did.

8128. Was anyone present at your payment of the 50*l.* to any one of them?—Yes; Mrs. Hannaford was present when I paid her husband.

8129. Did you pay John Diggins the 50*l.*?—Yes, I did.

8130. You afterwards lost him, I believe. Is that not so?—Yes; he returned the money to me afterwards.

8131. When did he do that?—I got it from him by using a threat after the election was over.

8132. He voted on the other side after all, did he not?—Yes.

8133. What did he tell you about it?—He told me in the morning when I called on him to refresh his memory, that if I could get him 200*l.* he should be good for our side.

8134. Did you call on the others to refresh their memory—No, they had polled early in the morning.

8135. Did you go to the black man to intimate to him that Diggins wanted a refresher?—I did not when he did not vote right. Mr. John Heath said to me, "How is it that Diggins has not polled?" and I then said I would go and see.

8136. About what time was this?—It was near dinner-time. Then he said he had been offered 200*l.* on the other side; and I said to him in reply, probably they would give him the same amount on our side.

8137. Did you go to the black man to see whether 200*l.* could be got for him?—I went back, but I never saw the man afterwards.

8138. Did you see John Heath after that, and tell him about it?—I think he voted shortly after that.

8139. Do you remember the state of the poll about this time?—It was getting a pretty close run then.

8140. Then his vote would have been of real value at that time, would it not?—Yes, it would have been of great value.

8141. Were you sent to try and get other votes?—That is the only thing I did at that election, those four cases.

8142. What after the election?—I went to his house. Mr. Diggins did not happen to be at home. I saw Mrs. Diggins, and I said, "I am surprised Diggins "has not voted for our side." She said, "We are pe- "culiarly situated, living in the duke's house. I do not "know what caused him to go against you." I smiled, and I said, "Our London agent, the gentleman I have "had this money from, that is what I am sent to tell "you, will sue you unless the amount of money is "returned;" and I think she became frightened, and returned 50*l.*

8143. What kind of receipt was it?—Merely an acknowledgment.

8144. An I O U?—To keep me harmless.

8145. What did you do with the 50*l.*?—It was given me as a retaining fee.

8146. Had the black man left the town?—I do not know.

8147. To whom did you go with the 50*l.* that you got from Diggins?—To Mr. John Heath; he went away, and after a short time he returned and said I might keep that as a retaining fee, as they did not expect to get it.

8148. Would you have got anything?—I do not know.

8149. What did you get?—I got a pound or two to pay expenses, and the horses I wanted I got from the "Stars," and John Heath gave the bill for that.

8150. You had no regular agreement?—No.

8151. You got the 50*l.* as a retaining fee?—Yes.

8152. You would not have got anything except for that?—I do not know.

8153. Is there anything more about the election o 1863?—That is the only case I know.

8154. What became of Turpin?—He was turne out of his house.

8155. Where is he living now?—At Warland.

8156. Edward Turpin?—Yes; I paid him twice.

8157. In 1865 and 1863?—Yes, I had nothing do with private affairs.

8158. (Mr. Coleridge.) You said you were goin to give us an instance; all those persons you paid the nomination day, or the day before, you said?— That is in the 1863 election?

8159. Yes?—I believe so.

8160. I was asking you about 1865, and you sai you would give us an instance in 1863 where th voter was paid a considerable time before the electio What is that?—I do not recollect any.

8161. What do you mean by this, then? Whe was asking you whether it was usual to trust peop till just before the polling, and you said in 1863 yo would give us an instance of where they were pai before?—I do not think I understood the questio If so I would willingly explain it.

8162. To pay them before the nomination day, i contrary to rule?—These are elections which I ha to do with, and I will tell you when I paid them.

8163. How is it you can give us no instance anybody being paid in 1862, when Dent did not go the poll, if they were in the habit of being pa before?—I cannot tell; Mr. Heath, perhaps, can te you. I had but one case, and that is Edmonds case. He came back with me under the impressi that he was to have 120*l.*, and when we came bac the thing was over.

8164. In 1862 nobody was paid, because the pe did not go on?—I do not believe a penny w expended, not on Dent's side.

8165. In 1863 they were paid on the day of th election, or the day before, and in 1865 on the day the nomination?—I think so.

8166. (Mr. Bere.) Did you see Mr. Kellock a Mr. Edmonds, the solicitor, on the day of the polli in 1863, about John Deane?—I went to Stoke teignhead with Mr. Willis to bring some of tho lame ducks.

8167. Where were the lame ducks?—At Mr. Jam Sopers'.

8168. Who took them there?—Mr. Willis to them there, and I went with Beer, as he did not kno the road, the driver, or cabman.

8169. Did you drive them?—Yes.

8170. Were some kept at Kingsbridge?—I not know.

8171. Who were the lame ducks?—A man name Mogridge, Nicholas Norrish, and William Stoyles.

8172. Did they come back in time to vote?—Ye we came home early; we left before daylight long.

8173. (Mr. Coleridge.) What did you get for th job?—I did not get anything; it was not my job, was Willis'.

8174. You were sent as assistant?—I went becau Beer did not know the road.

8175. You told the Parliamentary Committee th you could give a splendid account of the Liberal pr ceedings from 1852; will you give us that accou which the Committee did not ask you for, but whi we do?—I was so bewildered by Serjeant Ballanti that I do not know what it was.

8176. You say you were employed by Jeffe Michelmore on the Liberal side?—That is the m nicipal election.

8177. Did you mean the council election of 186 —Yes.

8178. Had you been employed by Jeffery Mich more in any election concerning the borough? Never.

8179. Had you anything to do with the Libe party in connexion with the borough?—Never.

8180. Did you know of your own knowledge an thing concerning the doings of the Liberal party wi ard to the election 1862, 1863, and 1865?—I do ; my father can give you an account.

181. You told us your father had changed; you your father had changed together?—Yes.
182. In 1862, 1863, and 1865, the elections in ich you were yourself concerned on the Conservative e and about which you have given us particulars on ir side, can you tell us anything that happened on Liberal side?—I do not know anything about it, I said. My father will be able to give you a le account of that. I know that in 1852 father l the paying of a party.
183. We had better confine ourselves to what you w yourself?—I do not know anything except by rsay.
184. (Mr. Longe.) About 1862, 1863, and 1865? 852 father can give you some information about.
185. (Mr. Bere.) I want the three elections about ch you can speak?—I cannot prove anything. I e heard a lot of speculation rumours, but I do not h to state anything or implicate any man by that ch I cannot prove myself.
186. Do you know the Conservatives that signed requisition and voted for the Liberals?—I know re were men, but I do not wish to speak anything inst men unless I have some proof. I do not it to give evidence as other parties have done on rsay.
187. We are not asking you to give hearsay evi-ce, bnt if you will communicate anything you w to the Secretary, we shall feel obliged to you? there is anything I hear I will communicate it; t I can prove.
188. We want you to tell the Secretary what you e heard yourself, and then we shall investigate it see whether it is true or not?—There is one g I feel it my duty to name on behalf of my er; that there are two men whom I should wish you as gentlemen, to take particular notice of, that is, in reference to the origin of that scurrilous report and rumour with reference to the Lapstone Club. I will proceed to state that yesterday I had a conversation with a man named Callard, the Duke of Somerset's clerk; I said to Callard, "Now then, Cal-"lard, I shall have the opportunity of asking those "gentlemen that are sitting on the Commission; have "you an explanation to offer why you, in connection "with Elliott, Fitze, and others, got up that scurrilous "bill which Mr. Theodore Hannaford, I was told, "printed and was paid for—the Lapstone Club; it "will be of material interest to find out whether "such a thing existed."

(Mr. Bere.) In all probability it will not be necessary for us to find out about the Lapstone Club, but if it should become necessary, you and your father shall have an opportunity of rebutting anything that is said.

8189. (Mr. Longe.) Did any of those notorious men who signed the requisition for the Conservatives in 1865 vote against you?—There is one case.

8190. Any notorious case?—There is one case I can prove, that is James Edmonds; I drove to Marldon and he signed the requisition.

8191. With regard to the other men; was not it talked about how they were bought over?—I do not recollect anything that I could say, but I can clear that case up.

8192. Did you have any conversation with any of those men who signed the requisition, in the course of which you learned for how much they had changed their mind?—No, never.

(Mr. Bere.) For the present we do not require your services as a witness, but you must not leave the town without leaving your address, or it may be inconvenient for you.

(The Witness.) My name has been up all the week for attendance.

(Mr. Bere.) Apply to the Secretary.

Mr. Frederick John Evens, sworn and examined. Mr. F. J. Evens.

193. (Mr. Bere.) What are you?—A cabinet er and general furniture dealer.
194. How long have you lived in Totnes?—All lifetime.
195. How long has that lifetime been?—I am 30 s old in November next.
196. Have you always been a Conservative in ties?—Always.
197. Have you taken from early times an interest he political affairs of the borough?—Yes, always en an interest.
198. Both in the council and for members of Par-ent?—Yes, both council and members of Parlia-t.
199. When did you first begin to interest your-?—The first opportunity I had of interesting elf to any purpose was in Mr. Dunn's election in
00. Did you continue from that time down to the election to take great interest in all the elections? es.
201. Were you employed as agent for the Con-ative party in all those elections?—Yes.
02. As a paid agent?—As regards pay I never w what I was to have till the election was over, I was made a present.
203. What amount was the present in general?— one occasion I had 20*l.*
204. Is that the highest amount you ever had?—
05. What election was that?—In Mr. Dunn's ion in 1859.
06. The first time you were employed?—Yes.
207. When did you get the largest sum?—The st sum was in Seymour and Dent's time, and I pretty much to do with it; that was in 1863.
08. What did you get then?—50*l.*
09. Can you tell us anything about the municipal ions other than what we have heard from Mr. T.

Harris and Mr. Screach?—I think you have heard that a great many are paid.

8210. Did you yourself ever pay money for the purpose of influencing a municipal election?—Yes; a great many.

8211. We do not want the names; but are they persons who are voters?—The persons whom I paid for municipal elections were not voters for the borough; there might be one or two.

8212. It was an exceptional case to have voters for the borough?—Yes.

8213. Was the sum you paid per head varying from 10*s.* to 1*l.*?—From 10*s.* to 1*l.*

8214. Have you paid in many instances as large a sum as 5*l.*?—I have on one or two occasions.

8215. Were those occasions near about the time for the election of the borough or not?—No.

8216. In 1861 did you pay a great deal of money?—No.

8217. In 1863?—I think in 1863 there was some money spent.

8218. Was that the first time the Conservatives got a majority in the council?—I think not; I think they had a majority before that time; I cannot swear to it.

8219. They spent a good deal then?—There was a good deal spent.

8220. Was that the time you gave the 5*l.*?—Yes; I found there were several men who had to be paid.

8221. Were the men you had to give 5*l.* to people accessible to the influence of the same kind on the Liberal side?—I cannot say they were accessible to influence; but they were people who were offered money by the Liberal party.

8222. Had they told you that they had been offered money?—Yes.

8223. Had they told you the amount?—Yes, they told me the amount they had been offered.

8224. And you outbid them, and got them?—Yes.

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

31 Aug. 1866.

8225. Did you keep them?—I did not keep them long.

8226. Had you no contest in 1863?—No; in the council.

8227. What class in life were these people?—Labouring class.

8228. Agricultural labourers or fishermen?—Such as we call edged-tool carpenters.

8229. What sort of wages did they get?—I should suppose 16*s.* or 1*l.* a week. Some in business for themselves perhaps got more. I did not mention any sum I gave them, what I thought they deserved.

8230. (Mr. Longe.) In the municipal elections whenever there is a Liberal and a Conservative opposition, does the whole Liberal party come forward, or is it confined to the borough on this side of the bridge?—The whole party comes forward.

8231. The duke's influence, is that brought to bear?—Yes.

8232. As much as possible?—Where they can bring the duke's influence to bear they do so.

8233. Are you a Conservative by conviction, or because the duke is a Whig?—I have been a Conservative all my life.

8234. Because the duke is of a different way of thinking?—No, not at all.

8235. Would you become a Liberal, supposing the duke became a Conservative?—I have nothing to do with the duke any more than the duke has to do with me.

8236. In 1865 you were employed as one of the Conservative agents?—Yes.

8237. Was a certain district assigned to you?—No.

8238. Were certain people mentioned to you, whom you were to go and see?—Yes; I was not limited.

8239. I mean were there a certain class of persons to whom you were to go?—No, not at all.

8240. When did you first begin to canvass on behalf of the Conservatives in 1865?—I think about a week or 10 days before the election.

8241. Who employed you?—A gentleman at the "Stars."

8242. Were you sent for to go to the "Stars?"—No, I happened to be at the "Stars" in the morning. I cannot say the date.

8243. Try and fix the date. Was Colonel Dawkins down as a candidate?—He was down as I understood. I had not seen him.

8244. You had not seen him yourself?—No. I was at the "Stars" one morning about 11 o'clock. I went to have a glass of bitters if I recollect rightly, and when I was coming out one of the servants came to me.

8245. Man or woman?—An elderly woman.

8246. Was her name Martha Gale?—No.

8247. Do you know her name?—No.

8248. Is she there now?—I cannot say; I have not seen her since the election.

8249. Had she been there before?—She was an elderly woman, and came to me and said, "Is your "name Mr. Evens?" I said "Yes." She said, "There is a gentleman in No. 13 wishes to speak to "you." Accordingly I went to No. 13. I knocked at the door, and the gentleman opened the door.

8250. Give us a description of him?—He was about middle height, dark hair, slight, grey whiskers; middle aged man, about 50, I should say.

8251. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was he a very slight man?—Not very slight; medium.

8252. (Mr. Bere.) Had he a wig on?—No, he had not a wig; dark hair.

8253. Who began the conversation?—I said, "Good "morning" directly he opened the door. He said, "Your name is Evens, I suppose." I said, "Yes, it "is." "Come in and take a chair."

8254. Are you not confusing 1863 and 1865?—1865 you are asking me questions about.

8255. Yes. Are you not confusing 1863 and 1865?—I am certain I am not.

8256. What passed between you then?—Well, the gentleman sat down, and I sat down as well; then he asked me if he was to go over the list with me, whether or not there were a few parties that I could have to do with, and we went over the list, and I told him I had a deal to do with them.

8257. Had you got a list yourself?—I had not.

8258. Had you got a list?—I saw a list in his hand.

8259. Do you know in whose writing it was?—It was a printed list of voters.

8260. Was it one of the list of voters printed for the election of Dent and Seymour?—Yes.

8261. You went through that list with him?—Yes; and as I came to certain names I ticked them off, and made a small memorandum of them myself.

8262. Have you got the memorandum with you?—No, nothing; none whatever.

8263. Can you remember the names you ticked off?—I may, if I heard them.

8264. Did they begin with Thomas Blank?—Yes.

8265. William Foote?—Yes.

8266. John Rotherfold Putt?—Yes.

8267. John Jerman Phillips?—Yes.

8268. William Stoyle?—Yes.

8269. William Shinner?—Yes.

8270. William Sloggett?—Yes.

8271. Arthur Venning?—Yes.

8272. William Vallance?—Yes.

8273. Nicholas Norrish?—No; not in that election.

8274. Charles Pitts?—No; not in that election.

8275. Were those all the names?—Those were all the names.

8276. Did he write them down, or did you write them down?—I took them down myself.

8277. After you had taken them down what passed between you and the stranger?—All that passed between the stranger and me was that I gave him to understand that those men would require something for their vote.

8278. Did not you say so plainly?—I told him so plainly that they would want something for voting, and he said, "Mr. Evens, you had better just hear "what they would require."

8279. Tell me before you go on, did he say who had mentioned your name to him?—No.

8280. He knew you?—He sent for me and considered no one else, I suppose, would come to his room.

8281. He having intimated that you were to go and see them, did he tell you what you were to offer them?—He told me to get them as cheap as I could.

8282. Was not there a man called Smith amongst them?—Yes, there was a man named Thomas Smith.

8283. You went to do what you could?—Yes.

8284. Was that all that passed between you then?—Yes.

8285. Did you see any money then?—No, none at all then; I beg your pardon, I did. I had a large family of my own, and I knew going to see those gentlemen that I should require something, and the first thing they ask is, "We must have a drop of gin "or something," or "all nations," as you were told the other day; something of that sort, and I think he gave me 1*l.* or 2*l.*

8286. For your expenses?—Yes, for my expenses; more than that, he told me if I required any more I was to go to him.

8287. With this 2*l.* did you go out?—I went to see those men.

8288. Can you remember whom you saw first?—I think I went to the old favourite.

8289. Who is he?—Old Blank; we liked to pinch him first.

8290. He had been pinched right in 1863?—Yes.

8291. You pinched him to a purpose?—Yes, I think I put him right in 1863.

8292. You saw him in 1865, what passed?—He was in the shop; he saw me pass the window, and I went a little way up.

8293. Did you look in?—Yes, I gave him the wink and he took it very well.

8294. He was used to it?—Yes, he knew pretty ll.

8295. Then you walked up the street?—I went up ittle way and came back, and bolted up the pas- e.

8296. Was he standing in the passage?—No; I ew where to go, I bolted down the passage; his fe was there, and she said, "hush!" holding up r finger; but I saw they were watching me higher the town, the Liberal party, and I bolted into the chen.

8297. Where was he?—When I came in I found r. Blank was seated in an arm chair. "Well sir," says, "Ah, ah, ah, you have come again." So I s, "Yes, old boy, I am, I hope you will be very lenient this time." "Ah," he says, "I do not know about that; I do not know about that at all." says, "I heard last time people had a lot of money; I intend to myself this time." "Well," I says, "If you expect to have a lot of money you will get the eed altogether; the fact is, our man will not stand." ell, he still held out that he wanted a lot of money. is a man who has got two or three shoemakers to rk for him, and in a moment in comes one or two those men.

8298. Were they voters?—No, sir, no voters whatr. As soon as those two made their appearance in kitchen I made manners to him, we must have it somewhere else. He touched me by the shoulder, id up his finger, as much as to say come on. We nt out behind and got into a wash-house, I think it s, and sat up on the top of a table. "Well," I s, "now do not keep me too long here, I do not are about stopping here to-day." I says, "What s it you require this time; you say you want a hundering lot of money." He says, "You must ell me what you mean to give me." "Well," I s, "will 50*l.* do for you?" "Oh, no, that will ot do." He made a terrible fuss about it. I says, Will you tell me what you require?" and he says, No, it must be more than that." I says, "Will you name some sum, what you want." He says, "I want to do something this time for myself." He nped off the table and sat up again, and he says, I want 100*l.*" "Oh," I says, "that is what you want, is it?" I says, "If that is what you do want, I had better go away;" accordingly I went ay and left him to himself, sitting on the table in wash-house. I left him to himself.

8299. Did you ever go back to him?—Yes.

8300. How soon afterwards?—I think I left him a day or two.

8301. Did you begin to feel him again?—Then I gan to feel him again; I went in at him again. I rd that he had made up his mind thoroughly that would have a heavy sum this time, as he termed it. went to him a third time.

8302. Did you mention any sum to him the second e?—Yes, I rose from 50*l.* to 70*l.*

8303. Had you seen the stranger in the meantime? Yes, I had.

8304. Were you authorized to raise it?—I was thorized by the stranger to do what I thought oper. The third time I went back with an authoy to give this Mr. Blank what he required, 100*l.* fact things were considered to be driving rather ht.

8305. Was it on the nomination day?—No; before nomination day.

8306. Do you recollect Mr. Pim's meetings; before after that?—I do not recollect it. I never attended e meetings; I do not know of them.

8307. You went back to him?—I went back to him th an authority to offer him 100*l.* "Oh," he says, No, no use. I would not take 100*l.* My dear fellow, that is of no use at all to speak to me again. I would not take 100*l.*" I felt so disgusted that I nt away out of the passage and never saw more of s.

8308. You did not offer him 150*l.*?—I never went near to him. I understood other parties were put upon him.

8309. Of your party. Do you know who they were?—John Sandford Screach. I heard he got up a rise at one time.

8310. Were you authorized to offer what you pleased?—I understood I was authorized to offer him what I pleased.

8311. Why did you not offer him more than 100*l.*?—I thought I was observed, and I thought I could go and get another man for less money.

8312. So much for Mr. Blank. Who did you get after Mr. Blank. Whom did you see. When did you go to Mr. Foote?—I think he was the next man; he was a very near neighbour.

8313. What happened between you and Foote?—He was very facetious; he tried to close too light.

8314. Heling Palms?—I went to Foote and asked him what he intended to do.

8315. What is he?—A scavenger; one who cleans the streets.

8316. Picks up anything he can get?—Yes, I suppose he is very ready to pick up what is offered to him at all events.

8317. Did you see him at his own house?—I saw him at his own house.

8318. What happened between you and Foote?—I had more to do with the wife than I had with him.

8319. What happened between you and Mrs. Foote?—Mrs. Foote, as soon as I put my foot inside the door,—she had got a nice little parlour,—asked me to come inside; I went in and sat down, Iwas rather frail at that time. It was just about my lunch time, I said, before we say anything more we will have a drop of something, I sent for a quart of ale.

8320. Did you spend any of your money in giving Mr. Blank entertainment?—I had a little drop of gin with him.

8321. You had ale with Mrs. Foote?—I had the ale for Mrs. Foote, I said, "Now missus, there is an "election coming on again, I am rather in danger in "being in this house, I was away on the last election." "Oh never mind us, I do not care for Mr. Kinsman, "and nobody else, us has got ourselves to look after," I says, "Very well, what is to be figure then?" she says, "You know, you must name the figure." I says, "I "suppose 50*l.* will be enough?" "Oh, bless you no, you "know he must have more than that, you must try to "get more than that." I asked whether 60*l.* would be sufficient. "No, that is not sufficient at all," I says, "Well what do you require." "Oh bless you, we have "been offered more than that, so we shall not vote. My "master will not vote without he can get something "handsome. "Well," I says, "I am not in a posi- "tion to offer you more than what I have mentioned." We drank up our ale, and she gave me a bit of bread and cheese. She was very kind to me, and I left the house, and told her she had better consider the offer I had made her, and let me know, and I would call in again the same evening or the next morning. Accordingly I left the house and returned. I think it was the next day in the evening. Well, when I came the next evening I was met by her, and I then got the same reception as I had before. She told me that her husband had been offered a great deal more money. I asked her by whom, she would not tell me the name, but she gave me a hint or two that young Mr. Cuming knew her husband well. I could not get out of her that he had offered her any money at all. So I offered her the 100*l.*, which she would not hear of.

8322. Was her husband at home on either of these occasions?—No, it was the lady that had got all to do with it.

8323. Did you see her again?—I left them alone entirely from that time until the nomination morning, and then I went up to the house and saw Mrs. Foote, as usual, I says, "Is master in"? "Oh yes, he is in, "he is all ready," I said, "Well, what do you intend "to do." "Well," she says, "I want to have 150*l.*" Well, I rather hesitated for a time. I says, "Will "you do it"? "Yes, oh yes. I shall not do anything else," says I, "if you have the 150*l.* you must come "along with me," so she says, "Oh yes, I am ready to "go with you, and so is William," and accordingly they went with me. I fancying it was a heavy sum of money, thought I had better not give it to him without securing the bird first. If I could get him secured I could venture to do it for him.

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

31 Aug. 1866.

8324. Where did you get your cage ?—I found a "cage for him" at the "Seven Stars."

8325. In the smoking room ?—No.

8326. Where did you keep him ?—I kept him upstairs.

8327. And his wife with him ?—No, I liked to part them; the fact is we rather wanted for the sum of money to be mentioned about, so as to raise the market a little and make the other party spend it.

8328. The wife went home ?—Yes, she went off very comfortable and let it out.

8329. How long did you keep him ?—Till the next morning.

8330. Did he poll all right ?—I polled him all right.

8331. What time was this ?—This was in the morning of the nomination.

8332. You locked him in ?—No, I did not turn the key on him; I had got another old gentleman there; I had got a military gentleman there.

8333. Who was that ?—William Stoyles.

8334. Perhaps we may as well have his history next ?—As you think proper, sir.

8335. Is he the only one you locked up besides Mr. Foote ?—I put him on the top of the house, I did not think he would find his way down.

8336. Did you give him some "all nations" ?—Yes, I did, and he had some tobacco.

8337. They were very happy ?—They were very happy.

8338. Were they the only two in this condition at the "Seven Stars" ?—I think so.

8339. Now then the history of the other one, Mr. Stoyle ?—He is a good old gentleman, sir; he is a very old man, but he is a man that at an election gets greatly tantalized by the other side, and one of his torments, who I suppose has got quite a right to do so, is a brother of his.

8340. Which is that brother ?—George Stoyle. The way I came to get him I will tell you; I think it was on the evening before the nomination I was at home having my supper with my family, some one come down to me and told me George was in with William Stoyle, and his wife was there, and he was afraid they were going to take him away. I said, as soon as I have had my supper I will come up and see; accordingly as soon as I finished my supper I went up and found George Stoyle in the room and his wife also, and Mr. William Stoyle in bed and his wife at the foot of the bed. As soon as I came in Mrs. Stoyle, that is William Stoyle's wife, said she was very glad I was come, and said they should not interfere at all with him; it was not very long before I thought George Stoyle began to get rather fidgetty, consequently I asked him whether I should tell him in the room. I think that he had heard they were going to take him away; having put him away at some previous election they were afraid I was going to do the same thing. He said, "Do not you think you are "going to take away my brother this time," or words to that effect; I said, "My dear man I will not attempt to "take away your brother, I will take good care that "you shall not tell where he is." Words arose between Stoyle and me which was very convenient to me. The fact is old Mr. Stoyle thought I had better go, and I thought I would go, and I went out of the bedroom door and I saw one of the watchers. They do very foolish things, they watch at the house at the elections of Totnes; there are some men put out to watch at the gates, and they sometimes knock each other down just for amusement. I happened to meet one of those men; I was rather in a difficulty how to get away this William Stoyle, and something struck me that I had got an old tunic at home and I would send for it and dress him up and get him away quietly; so I went after the tunic and I went in and got up stairs just to see where George Stoyle was; he left the room; as soon as he left the room, indeed before he left the room, I had got my bundle on my arm, and as soon as we were alone the old gentleman was put into the breeches and we got him down stairs. George Stoyle was at the door but he did not know his brother and we got him away all right; I took him to my own house, in the morning I had a fly and took him down to the "Stars" and I polled him all right.

8341. When did you raise the money matter with him ?—I raised the money matter a day or two before that.

8342. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was he to have ?—He was to have 30*l.*

8343. He was cheap ?—He was one of the staunch men, but too old and feeble, and he could not be easily taken away.

8344. Was he a matter of course man ?—Yes.

8345. (Mr. Bere.) Did he receive 30*l.* ?—No, I am sorry to say that he did not get all the money.

8346. How much did he have ?—The bag was running short, when the money is going they cannot have it.

8347. What did he get ?—He rather pulled himself out of my hands, and the consequence was he did not get the money, and he was obliged to come to me again; they had not more than 20*l.* to give him, the bag was so short there was only 20*l.* for him.

8348. You got his vote ?—Oh yes, I got his vote all right.

8349. (Mr. Longe.) That class of men are generally made right ?—No, they generally are left almost to the last.

8350. (Mr. Bere.) When did you pay ?—On the morning of the nomination.

8351. In sovereigns ?—In sovereigns.

8352. You got the money from the stranger ?—I got the money from No. 13.

8353. How much money did you have altogether from the stranger ?—I have not made up the sum of money; I should think about 300*l.* or 400*l.*

8354. Was it more than 400*l.* or less than 400*l.* ?—I can soon make it up.

8355. (Mr. Coleridge.) Foote had 150*l.* ?—His wife had; she carried it home in her apron, and what was worse she showed it about after she got home.

8356. (Mr. Bere.) Now take the next person, John Putt is in order ?—I do not think there is any man that can give you very much history about all the others that had money.

8357. What money had John Putt ?—John Putt had 60*l.*

8358. Where did you pay him ?—In the bake house.

8359. In his own bakehouse ?—In his own bakehouse.

8360. Did you pay him before the nomination day ?—Yes; he wanted a fearful lot; he thought he was a man very badly served; they got tittling and making a deal of him; this man had a lot of money.

8361. Some people got more than he had in 1863, and therefore he was not going to be done in 1865 ?—That is it.

8362. Did the other side get at him at all, or is he one of the staunch men that wants a little ?—He is a man that gave me to understand that if he did not get his price he knew where to go. I rather think that he told me a certain gentleman of the name of Browse, of Bridgetown, had got a little to say to him. I think he was the relieving officer of the union. I think the man was supplying the union at the time with bread. He gave me to understand he could get more than I offered.

8363. What did you offer him ?—20*l.*

8364. You had to spring up to 60*l.* ?—I had to spring up to 60*l.*

8365. John J. Phillips, he is one ?—He is a staunch man.

8366. Did you have to pay him ?—I paid him 40*l.*

hink, I am not exactly certain to a pound or two ; ave no notes.

8367. You could trust him ?—As soon as he got e money he was right.

8368. When did he get the 40*l.* ?—I think it was ree nights before the election that I paid Phillips.

8369. William Shinner ?—He is one of the staunch ries ; he is a man that must have a little, he is an extravagant man.

8370. What did you get him for ?—20*l.* he had.

8371. Was that the sort of sum he usually had ?—metimes ; I have given him 50*l.* before now.

8372. Did you give him 30*l.* in Mr. Dent's elec-n ?—In Mr. Dent's election I think he had then l.

8373. Now William Sloggett ?—That is the man I uld not get at very much.

8374. Did you try ?—Oh yes, I tried him very rd.

8375. Did you see him ?—Oh yes.

8376. What did he want ?—I could not get at him th what he wanted.

8377. There was a Mr. Most ?—Yes.

8378. Did you ever dress Mr. Most up ?—I think others did the very morning of the nomination.

8379. What did he have offered ?—I heard at the ne 200*l.*

8380. He would not take it ?—He would not hear it.

8381. Did he tell you how much he was likely to t ?—No, he would not tell me how much he was ely to get.

8382. He voted the other side ?—I offered him 200*l.* d he would not listen to it.

8383. Arthur Venning ?—I think he always goes.

8384. What did you give him ?—I think I gave m 40*l.*

8385. Thomas Smith, what did you give him, he s to stay away, he did not vote ?—No, he did not te, he would have voted had he been required.

8386. I suppose it was late in the day when you und the election was gone ?—When I found the ection was going I had offered him 40*l.*, at that he ng out.

8387. He stood out for 60*l.* ?—He stood out for 60*l.*, gave him 40*l.*

8388. Was he a man who usually voted for you ?—e was a man who voted for us, once before he voted r the Liberals.

8389. William Vallance ?—He is a man that goes l right.

8390. What did he get for it ?—He had 50*l.*

8391. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know anything about r. Light ?—No.

8392. Anything about Crawford ?—In 1865 I know thing about Crawford.

8393. Do you know anything about him in 1863 ? -No, I heard nothing about him.

8394. John Chapple ?—No.

8395. William Cole ?—No.

8396. James Dering ?—He did not vote in 1865.

8397. You had something to do with him in 1863 ? -Yes.

8398. Edward Shinner ?—Not in 1865.

8399. Richard Taring ?—No.

8400. Tozer ?—No.

8401. Veasey ?—No.

8402. John Light ?—No.

8403. (Mr. Coleridge.) You used to have money om the stranger in 1865 ?—When I required it.

8404. How many different sums ?—I cannot say.

8405. How long before the election did you have e first money ?—As I told you just now it was the rst interview I had.

8406. When did you have money first from the ranger ?—I rather think I had some payments about ree or four days before the election.

8407. That was the earliest ?—That was the arliest.

8408. You had seen the stranger about 10 days ? -Yes.

8409. Between the time you first saw him and the first payment of money was he every day here ?—I saw him every day.

8410. Did he go away between the last time you saw him and the time of the election ?—He might have.

8411. You did not miss him ?—I did not.

8412. Did you see him the day before the nomination ?—I am sure I did.

8413. What time ?—I saw him in the daytime.

8414. Did you see him upon the Monday before the nomination day ?—I do not think I did.

8415. Did you see him the Saturday before ?—I must have seen him.

8416. Did you see him late on the Saturday evening ?—I cannot say that I did. I think about 2 or 3 o'clock I saw him last.

8417. What time does the mail train arrive ?—8 o'clock.

8418. Did you see him after the time of the mail train ?—I did not.

8419. You did not see him on the Sunday ?—I did not.

8420. Do you say you saw him on the Monday ?—On Monday I saw him.

8421. What time did you see him often ?—Different times, the first time was about 11 o'clock in the forenoon, I saw him again about 1 or 2.

8422. Had he told you money was getting at all short when you saw him on the Saturday ?—He never told me any such thing.

8423. Did he say there was any difficulty about money at the latter end of the week before the election ?—No difficulty at all.

8424. There was as great facility about money when you saw him on the Monday after ?—No difficulty at all, I got what I required.

8425. Did you see him on the nomination day ?—Yes.

8426. Did you see him on the polling day ?—Yes.

8427. At what time ?—It was early in the morning.

8428. You shut up about 9 ?—Between 9 and 10.

8429. You saw him before 9 o'clock ?—Yes.

8430. When did you last see him ?—It was on the polling day.

8431. You did not see him at all after 9 o'clock on the polling day ?—I never saw anything of him.

8432. When did he go away ?—That I cannot tell you, the last time I saw him he put 30*l.* in my hand, and he says you have been a very useful man at this election and here is a present for you.

8433. Did you see him at the time of the petition ?—I had nothing to do with the petition.

8434. Have you ever seen or heard anything of him since ?—No.

8435. What name did you call him ?—I did not call him any name, I heard he was called Mr. Mum.

8436. Do you know who sent him down ?—I should suppose from the manner he had that he came from London.

8437. Did you have any talk with him about other election business, what he had done at other places ?—No, the only conversation me and him had was as regards the election that was going on.

8438. (Mr. Bere.) You always saw him when you wanted him at at the "Seven Stars" ?—Sometimes I was somewhere else with him.

8439. Did you always see him alone ?—Always alone.

8440. Did you go up to his room ?—I used to go up and knock at his door ; if he was alone he would open the door, and then if he did not I knew there was some one with him.

8441. Was the door locked ?—Yes.

8442. To whom did you make your minutes with regard to your success in regard to these different voters ?—No one but him, if I did want to meet the agent it was Mr. Edmonds or Mr. Kellock, as I was going in I would say good morning, how are thing

EIGHTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

31 Aug. 1866.

going on. they might say how are things looking up, favourable, he said I am glad to hear it.

8443. Did they ask yon how affairs were going on, and did you tell them ?—Perhaps, on two other occasions he might say do you think you will be able to get Foote or one of the others, and I might say yes.

8444. Who did say that to you?—Mr. Edmonds.

8445. Do you recollect Mr. Kellock asking you?—He might have said the same.

8446. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you recollect any pa ticular vote Mr. Kellock asked you about?—No.

8447. You are sure they asked you about son voters ?—They asked my opinion concerning thei whether they were likely to go or not.

8448. (Mr. Longe.) They knew what you we doing, you were not employed to talk politics ?—Th was not my business at all, it may be I would tal something else to them than politics.

Adjourued till to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

1 Sept. 1866.

NINTH DAY.

Saturday, 1st September 1866.

Mr. Frederick John Evens, recalled and further examined.

8449. (Mr. Bere.) When you used to go to the "Seven Stars" from time to time, did you see Mr. John Heath ?—Yes ; I used to see him at times.

8450. And talked to him about what occupation you had been on ?—No. I might on some occasions say, "I think we shall be able to get so-and-so."

8451. Did you see Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds ?—Yes ; I have seen them all.

8452. And spoken to them ?—Yes.

8453. And said to them, "I have seen so-and-so, "and they are all right" ?—No.

8454. What did you say ?—I have asked them how they thought the election was going on, and they might say, "It is going all right." Nothing more than that.

8455. Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds were the managing party ?—Yes ; they were the heads.

8456. Why did not you tell them when you got a vote and secured it; they were the persons most interested ?—The gentleman whom I had seen and who employed me used to say I need not say anything to any person but to him.

8457. Did you first receive orders to say nothing about the voters from that gentleman?—Yes ; from that gentleman.

8458. Had you not to pass the door of the committee room to get to No. 13 ?—It is on the landing.

8459. You can see the door of the committee room as you go to No. 13 ?—Yes.

8460. Can you see the door of No. 13 from the committee room ?—No ; it is on another story.

8461. As you go into the Conservative committee room can you see the door of No. 13 ?—No.

8462. (Mr. Coleridge.) People can see into No. 13 from the other side of the road ?—I cannot tell you ; there is a great wide space.

8463. Used the blinds to be down when you went to this gentleman ?—The blinds were completely down.

8464. Were they kept down during the whole of the election ?—I cannot tell ; whenever I went they were pulled down close.

8465. Now, as regards Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds, did you purposely abstain from making mention of those persons ?—Yes ; I might have said, "I have "been to so-and-so," but never mentioned the money matters.

8466. Should you mention that you had been canvassing so-and-so ?—Yes.

8467. Should you mention those to whom you were going to give money, but not telling them about the money ?—I might have mentioned them.

8468. Has Mr. Kellock on any occasion said, "Well "get him if you can ; but mind, I have nothing to do with money matters" ?—He never told me anything of the kind.

8469. Has Mr. Edmonds said when you have mentioned these things, "Well, get them if you can ; but "mind, I have nothing to do with money matters' —He never said such words.

8470. He reserved those words for Mr. Screach ?—I have never heard them.

8471. You are quite sure he did not say, "Mind "wash my hands of money matters ?"—He never sa any such words.

8472. You never heard of his having money ?—No.

8473. You would take care never to mention mon to Mr. Kellock or Mr. Edmonds ?—Yes, and I did for my own safety as well.

8474. And for the safety of Mr. Kellock and M Edmonds ?—Yes.

8475. And for the safety of the seat ?—Yes, th seat as well.

8476. Is there anything else you wish to tell about the election of 1865 ?—No ; I think I have to you all I can recollect in 1865. There is one litt error I made yesterday, mentioning a man's nam whom I did not pay. I made arrangements, but did not pay him, perhaps he may be brought up by and-by and say I did not pay him. That is Willia Vallance. I did not pay him, but I arranged wit him. I sent him to the "Stars."

8477. When was it you made the arrangement wit him ; after you had the money given to you by th man at the "Stars" ?—Yes ; but I recollect h coming to me one morning and I had no money, an he said he wanted money. I told him "If you are i "such a hurry as that for the money you had bett "go to the "Stars" and see Mr. Heath." I told hi I had no money in my possession.

8478. Was that before you received the money ?—No ; but I had run short then.

8479. (Mr. Coleridge.) I do not think you hav told us how much money you had altogether at the election ?—I think I did.

8480. You gave us the sums but you did not ca them up ?—No, I have not.

8481. I would be a great convenience if you woul let us have a list of persons to whom you gave mone the sums you gave, the total sums expended, and th total sums received. If you will let us have that i the course of the inquiry we shall be glad ?—That will do.

8482. (Mr. Bere.) You had a great deal to do wit the election of 1863 ?—Yes.

8483. The election between Seymour and Dent ?—Yes.

8484. When were you first employed in that elec tion ?—I should say a fortnight over, a fortnigh before.

8485. Do you remember the election when M Dent had five votes polled for him ?—I recollect perfectly well.

8486. Had there been dealings with the boroug ng on between that election and Seymour and nt's election?—None that I am aware of.

8487. You began about a fortnight before Dent's ction?—Yes; the election between Dent and Sey- r.

8488. That took place on the 20th of January 3?—Yes.

8489. There was about a month or rather more; ut five weeks between the two elections?—Yes.

8490. When did you first hear that Lord Gifford s likely to die?—It was rumoured about a long e before he died.

8491. Before Mr. Mills died?—Yes.

8492. (Mr. Coleridge.) Upwards of a year and a f he was in a dying state?—In a dying state, sup- ed about 12 months.

8493. (Mr. Bere.) It was before you heard of his th that you began to be concerned about the elec- ?—No, I do not think it was. It must have been r his death.

8494. Do you know when he did die?—I cannot I have no notes made of the thing.

8495. He died on the 22nd December 1862; when you begin to work for the Conservatives?—The tion was in 1863.

8496. When did you begin to work?—About a night before the election.

8497. That is about the 3rd or 4th January?—Yes.

8498. Who first gave you instructions to work?— ere was a stranger came in this affair.

8499. (Mr. Coleridge.) A fortnight before the elec- ?—It might be longer.

8500. As much as three weeks before?—Scarcely e weeks, more than a fortnight.

8501. How did you become acquainted with the nger?—I was in the smoking room one evening he "Stars," and the waiter came.

8502. (Mr. Bere.) What waiter was that; Brown? es; that was Brown. He came and called me and asked me to go to No. 13, a gentleman wished me.

8503. Is that the same room that the stranger was n 1865?—That is the same room.

8504. What passed between you and the stranger? went to No. 13, knocked at the door. This tleman came forward and we passed compliments ach other.

8505. Did he ask your name?—Yes, he asked if name was Evens and I said Yes.

8506. What sort of gentleman was this?—A tallish tleman; a youngish man.

8507. What coloured hair?—Sort of brown hair.

8508. Curly hair?—Not particularly curly.

8509. What complexion?—Light complexion.

8510. In 1863?—In 1863.

8511. Is that the man nicknamed the black man? cannot tell you I am sure.

8512. How was he dressed?—He was dressed in a etable suit of black.

8513. What sort of coat?—A frock coat.

8514. A long frock coat?—A long frock coat.

8515. Was he a tall man?—He was a tallish man, a man of from 5 feet 10 to 5 feet 11.

8516. Then you passed the time of day with him he asked you your name?—He handed me a ir.

8517. (Mr. Coleridge.) Now, let us understand . You said brown hair. Could you tell whether e a wig or not?—I cannot tell you for certain.

8518. Are not you a little mistaken about his com- on. Had not he a dark complexion?—I am not aken.

8519. The blinds were always down?—The blinds e put down.

8520. What colour blinds were they?—White.

8521. Is there plenty of light when the blinds are n?—Yes, plenty of light.

8522. Are you sure about his being a light com- ed man?—I am sure.

8523. He is not the same man as Screach saw then? I cannot tell what Screach saw.

8524. You say he was a tallish man; did you see him otherwise than sitting down?—Yes; I saw him standing.

8525. Did he stoop a good deal?—No, there was no stooping about him. He stood up like a man.

8526. What age man?—I should say a young man.

8527. What about?—About 30 to 40 years.

8528. How often did you see him?—I used to see him frequently.

8529. Had he always a light complexion?—I never saw him turn.

8530. And always brown hair?—Always brown that I saw. I used to sit down with him.

8531. How did he become nicknamed the black man?—I cannot tell. I never heard it till I heard it here.

8532. Was there more than one stranger down at the election?—I cannot tell.

8538. You were in the habit of being about the "Stars," and seeing who was there?—Yes.

8534. Was there no one else?—No one; I never saw but this gentleman I speak of.

8535. I do not mean to say that you saw in that particular way in No. 13. Was not Mr. Mitchell there at that time?—I saw Mr. Mitchell in and out.

8536. Did he go in and out of No. 14?—I never saw him there.

8537. What other stranger besides Mr. Mitchell had Mr. Dent with him?—I never saw any other person but Mr. Dent with him. I might see one of the committee.

8538. Did you ever see the mysterious stranger and Mr. Dent together?—Never.

8539. And the impression on your mind is that he was a fair complexioned man?—Yes, a fair complexioned man.

8540, Had he any moustache?—No, he had no moustache.

8541. Was there anything particular about the appearance of the eyes?—Nothing at all.

8542. Any protruding?—I did not take any particular notice of the man. Most times as soon as we got to his room we had a conversation.

8543. (Mr. Bere.) You know No. 15 bedroom in the "Seven Stars?"—I think it is on the same landing.

8544. Did you go into that in 1863?—No.

8545. Never?—Never.

8546. Have you got to pass No. 15 in order to go to No. 13, or is No. 15 beyond No. 13?—No. 13 is right at the top of the stairs.

8547. Is No. 15 on beyond?—No. 15 is on beyond. You have to go to the right, straight over the stairs, to get to No. 15.

8548. There may have been a person in No. 15 whom you did not see?—There may have been.

8549. You say this stranger asked your name, what passed between you then?—We sat down, and went over the list. We had got a list.

8550. A printed list?—A printed list, and there were several names I thought I would have to do with, and the words he said to me.

8551. Did he take a printed list and you too?—No, he took a printed list, and I took a pen and a bit of paper.

8552. You wrote down all the names?—I did begin it.

8553. Did you finish it?—No.

8554. How many did you write down?—I daresay I wrote down five or six, but I should then tell you that he found I had to do with so many men that I had better take a printed list, and do the best I could; accordingly I did do it.

8555. Did he limit you to any particular sum?—He confined me rather not to go above 50*l.* just at that time.

8556. Can you tell us how many were mentioned to him as names of individuals you could influence?—I do not think I mentioned to that gentleman at the time more than six or seven before he said, "You had better

NINTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

1 Sept. 1866.

"take a list; do the best you can, and let me know what you are doing."

8557. You were the person principally employed in money matters at that election?—I think I had the principal to do at that election.

8558. Then I suppose you went out and went to see the people whose names you mentioned?—I went out and saw them; as many as I could.

8559. Did he give you any money then?—Yes; nothing more than a few pounds for the expenses.

8560. Did you see where he took it from?—He took it out of his pocket.

8561. He gave you money of course from time to time afterwards?—He gave me money from time to time afterwards.

8562. Where did you see him take the money from?—He had a nice little bag.

8563. Did you ever see him take it out of a china bowl on the bed?—No.

8564. When did you first get any money from him?—I think I first got some money about a week before the election.

8565. How much did you get then?—I think I had enough to pay two men. I think two forties. I won't be exact to the sum—a 35*l.* and a 40*l.* I think.

8566. How much had you altogether from him at that election?—I had 1,400*l.*, or 1,500*l.*

8567. Perhaps you will he good enough to make the same list with regard to 1863 as we have asked you to do with regard to 1865?—If I go over the list, perhaps I may recollect those names.

(Mr. Coleridge.) With the sum of money you gave or offered.

8568. (Mr. Bere.) Who were these men you went to? William Allen, was he one?—Yes, he was.

8569. Who is he?—He is a man who keeps a seedsman's shop in the higher part of the town.

8570. When did you go to him?—I went to him I think about four or five days before the election.

8571. Was he one of the men who had usually voted for the Conservatives?—Yes, he had usually voted for the Conservatives.

8572. He was a matter-of-course man?—He was rather over a matter-of-course man.

8573. You had to give him a little more, had you?—Yes.

8574. How much did you give him?—As far as I recollect I gave him 60*l.*

8575. How much had you offered him when you first saw him?—I offered him 40*l.*

8576. What did he say when you offered to him the 40*l.*?—He would not say. He would not take it, he might do better.

8577. Did he say that the other side had been at him and offered him more money?—He said he knew where to go and get more money, but would rather vote on his own side, he called it. He would rather vote on the Conservative side, provided he got some money.

8578. How many times did you see him?—I think three or four, or it might be five times.

8579. It was not till the fourth time that you arrived at any agreement?—It was not till the fourth time that I made an arrangement.

8580. How long was it before the election?—Four or five days.

8581. When did you pay him?—I think three days before the election.

8582. You paid him 60*l.* in gold?—I paid him 60*l.* in gold.

8583. In his house?—In his house.

8584. Now, John Briggs?—Yes.

(Mr. Coleridge.) One question, first, about Allen.

8585. In 1862 you mentioned that money was supposed to be going, although none was eventually spent in 1862?—Yes; I made many arrangements.

8586. Did you in 1862 make any arrangement with Allen?—No.

8587. You did not?—No.

8588. Was there any mysterious stranger down in 1862?—Yes, there was a stranger.

8589. Was he the one that was down in 1863?—No.

8590. What was he like?—He was a shorter man.

8591. Was he dark?—That man was dark.

8592. Very dark?—Very dark; I saw he had da[rk] hair.

8593. Was he as dark as a half-caste?—We[ll] similar.

8594. Was he about 5 feet 10, or shorter?—Shorter I think he was 5 feet 5 or 6 inches.

8595. What was it that you did with Briggs in 1863?—Sent him away for change of air.

8596. How did you get him taken away?—In a carriage.

8597. Did you take him yourself?—Yes.

8598. Where to?—Kingsbridge.

8599. Whom else did you take to Kingsbridge?—I took five altogether.

8600. Thomas Kinsman?—He was one I took aw[ay] with him.

8601. James Deane?—I took them to Kingsbridg[e] but that was after.

8602. You took Briggs and Kinsman?—Yes.

8603. Where did you take them?—To the Anch[or] hotel.

8604. How long before the election?—Seven days.

8605. Had you made a bargain with them as t[o] what they were to have for voting?—Yes.

8606. What were they to have?—Briggs was t[o] have 25*l.*

8607. What was Kinsman to have?—40*l.*

8608. This man lived next door to Foote?—H[e] lived in the same house.

8609. He had voted before for the other side?—Yes, that was the reason I got hold of him on tha[t] occasion.

8610. He came over from the other party?—Yes.

8611. Had Briggs voted for the other side?—H[e] had never voted before; the way I came to get a this man was I heard that he had been offered 20*l.* a Mr. Pender's election by his aunt in 1862, and o[n] hearing of this little grievance, and that there wa[s] another election coming on in 1863 I made it m[y] business to call on him.

8612. Had the aunt offered him money for Dent o[r] Pender?—For Pender.

8613. Who is his aunt?—Mrs. Kinsman, he wa[s] working for her at the time.

8614. Where does she live?—Opposite the Ply[-] mouth Road; Kinsman's wife, who is an out-an-ou[t] Tory, told me this.

8615. Was it with the wife you negotiated?—I di[d] more with the wife than with the man.

8616. When did you take him away?—About seve[n] days before the election. I took him in a close carriag[e] to the "Anchor" at Kingsbridge.

8617. How long did you keep him there?—Onl[y] one night.

8618. Were people after you?—Yes. I stopped ther[e] myself that night for I was tired. I agreed with the[m] that they should keep themselves quietly in a room I did not stint them as to what they should hav[e] they might have anything that was proper, I wen[t] into the smoking-room myself; I had not been ther[e] long before one of the servants came to me and sai[d] my two men had gone out, I had every confidence i[n] them, and knew they had not gone far. I took m[y] hat and walked round Kingsbridge and found the[m] getting rather intoxicated, on the way I met Mr[.] William Tucker's son, who noticed these men, and thought he was a dangerous man to know they we[re] there, the next morning I decided that I would giv[e] them a ride a little further.

8619. Where did you take them to?—To Hort[on] Gifford, to a wayside inn, between there an[d] Modbury.

8620. How long did you keep them there?—[A] week.

8621. Did you stay there all that time?—No, I g[ot] some one to watch them.

8622. Who was he?—A young man of the nam[e] mith, called Sandy Smith. I set him to watch n, they did not know where they were.

523. Did you take care that they had no money in pockets?—Yes, they had money.
524. When did you take them to the poll?—On morning of the election, I went down and fetched n myself.
525. Did you try to do anything with Briggs or sman in the election of 1862?—Not with Kins-
. I asked Briggs if he would go for us, he told he did not know, he had not promised, he was working for Mr. Frederick Distin who is a ral, he did not know exactly how he should vote. d not press him very hard, as I did not fancy they ld go to the poll.
526. Did you tell him if they did you would offer an inducement?—I did.
527. Did you mention the sum?—I told him about

528. Would that have satisfied him then?—Yes.
529. You gave him 25*l.* in 1863?—I gave him
. I agreed with him for 25*l.* in the first place, but eard that the other parties were having more, and as obliged to raise his.
530. He found out that Kinsman was getting 40*l.*?
suppose they had whispered together.
531. When did you pay them?—I paid them re I took them away. I think I gave Briggs'
25*l.*
532. Did you give Kinsman's wife anything?—I k I gave Kinsman's wife 30*l.*
533. (Mr. Coleridge.) In 1862, when you arranged
Briggs, had you had any money from the mysous stranger?—None whatever.
534. You had seen him before this?—Yes.
535. What did the stranger tell you in 1862?—
told me to go and see how many I could get.
536. What did he say would be the figure on that asion?—He told me that the men must not be ravagant, there was a little money to be spent, but heavy sum was wanted they would not go to the

537. 1862 was not so heavy as 1863?—No, they gone up in the market considerably.
538. In 1862 did you see any money in the nger's hand?—No more than what he gave me my private use.
539. What would that amount to?—Some 7*l.* or

540. You did not see any poll book?—No.
541. He gave you fully to understand that money uld be ready if it was required?—If I could have the consent of the parties to come to the poll y would have had their money.
542. (Mr. Bere.) Briggs and Kinsman were not only persons whom you carried off?—No.
543. Was James Dean another one?—Yes.
544. Was Sercombe another?—Yes.
545. And Stoyle?—I sent him away, I did not e him away.
546. Dean and Sercombe you did take away?—
s.
547. Where did you take them to?—To Kingsdge.
548. To the same place, the "Anchor" inn?—
.
549. When did you do so?—Four days before the tion.
550. Did you know then what they were to have?
Yes.
551. What was Dean to have?—20*l.*
552. What was Sercombe to have?—50*l.* Dean voted for us before.
553. Was he a matter-of-course man?—Yes; he s very feeble, and the Liberals had been teasing n by going to his house.
554. Had he any relations, or a wife?—She was roughly on our side; she told me they had made n tipsy one evening at Sawyer's.
555. Who was Sawyer?—He was a Liberal.
556. What was he?—He kept the "Castle" inn.
I remember the old lady saying that he had gone to Sawyer's and got tipsy; on the next morning his wife came to me and asked me whether I did not think that the Liberals would take away her husband; I said that I would take care they should not do that, for I would take him away myself, and I did so.

8657. Whom did you take away?—I took Dean and his wife to Kingsbridge.

8658. About what time of the day was this?—About dinner-time.

8659. How did you go?—In a carriage.

8660. You did not drive up to the door, put them into the carriage, and take them away?—They live in a place in Totnes called Pipe Alley, there is a passage or lane near where they live that comes out at the end of the Kingsbridge Road, I got him and his wife to go through the lane, and meet me with the carriage at the turnpike in the Kingsbridge Road.

8661. Then you got into the carriage and drove off with them?—Yes.

8662. Did you come back from the "Anchor" that day and leave them there?—Yes.

8663. When did you get hold of Sercombe?—Two days before the election.

8664. Did you do anything with Dean at the election of 1862?—Yes, I always paid him.

8665. How much did you pay him in 1862?—No, I did not pay him, I promised him something.

8666. How much was he to have?—He was to have 20*l.* then.

8667. That was the usual figure?—That was the usual figure.

8668. The wife's price?—The wife's price, what the wife said the man must do.

8669. Is the wife younger than he?—Yes, sir, rather.

8670. You got hold of Sercombe two days before the election?—Yes, two days I know it was.

8671. That was the first time you had got his vote?—It was; he was one of those made votes by Mr. Durant or by the duke.

8672. One of the Sharpham votes?—Yes.

8673. How did you get hold of him?—He was at Luscombe.

8674. Is that under Sharpham?—Just above Sharpham.

8675. How did you get him away?—I took him away in a carriage.

8676. On the same day that you went up to see him?—Oh, no, sir; I made arrangements with him the day I went to see him; I made arrangements that I would meet him at the barn on the Harberton Road in the morning.

8677. The next morning?—The next morning.

8678. Early in the morning?—No, in the middle of the day.

8679. Was there anybody watching you when you went to the "Seven Stars"?—Lots of them watching me, but I knew my way about the town, I would go one way and they would be going another, I would dodge them that way.

8680. Did you have a fly from the "Seven Stars"?—No.

8681. Where from?—From a man of the name of Heard.

8682. On all occasions?—Not on all occasions, on those particular occasions.

8683. Those occasions in 1863?—Yes; Mr. Heard lives up out of the town on the Kingsbridge Road.

8684. What did you do with Mr. Sercombe, did you take him to the "Anchor" in the Kingsbridge Road?—I took him and put him at the "Anchor" with Dean.

8685. Did you stay with him yourself?—No.

8686. Who watched him?—I got one of the staunch men to go with him.

8687. Who was it?—Stephen Tozer, he was a voter.

8688. Did you leave him with him?—With Dean and Sercombe and his wife.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

1 Sept. 1866.

8689. (Mr. Longe.) Who hired the carriage?—I did.

8690. (Mr. Bere.) Whom did you charge it to?—I took it out of the common fund.

8691. Out of the money given to you?—Out of the money I had in my possession.

8692. Out of the 1,400*l.* or 1,500*l.*?—Yes.

8693. Did you poll him yourself?—Yes.

8694. You brought him back?—I brought him back myself; it was hinted to me that certain young men put an oath to it that they would get at him for certain; I thought it was rather dangerous to let him remain there any longer, that was the night before the nomination.

8695. Who were the young men who swore they would have him?—One was Mr. Pulling.

8696. What is his name?—William Pulling.

8697. Does he live here?—Yes, he is a cabinet-maker, and Vasey.

8698. Which Vasey?—William Vasey.

8699. I think he is not a voter?—I do not think he was at that time, and Mr. Mitchell of Bridgetown, the butcher.

8700. George Mitchell?—George Mitchell; I heard that those men were going to take away my lame ducks, and hire them from Kingsbridge, accordingly I went to Heard and hired a trap and went to Kingsbridge at once.

8701. Did you find your ducks when you got there?—Yes, they were all right.

8702. At what time did you get there?—At about seven o'clock in the evening, while the man was putting away the horse I went up to the bar and had a glass of ale, I had not been there two minutes before those men came into the bar, Pulling, Vasey, and Mitchell; they were very kind and shook hands, that was the first time and the last time we shook hands together, we were very friendly just then.

8703. Who told you that they had sworn that they would have him?—It was about the town, we soon get hold of it if there was any danger at all. I thought I must get rid of those men by some means or other, one asked me to have a glass with him, I had a glass with him and I made a feint to go outside; I got outside and told Heard to be on the alert at the back door. I told him I was going to get them in the smoking-room and we were going to have a pipe together, and he was to take these men out at the back door and drive them up to the turnpike gate and wait for me. I got the men in the smoking-room and we sat together. In the meantime Heard was getting them out in the carriage; I rose up and told them they must excuse me as I had to go to Salcombe, and I should be back in an hour or two; instead of that I went on home. Where they went I cannot tell you.

8704. You brought the ducks down?—I brought them down.

8705. And put them in their houses?—I lodged them at the "Stars."

8706. Sercombe you gave 50*l.* to?—Yes.

8707. And Dean 30*l.*?—Yes.

8708. You say you did not take William Stoyle away?—I sent him away.

8709. Who did you send him away by?—Young William Ellis.

8710. He is the same voter you dressed up in 1865?—Yes.

8711. Where did you send him to in 1863?—To Capstow Head.

8712. To Mr. Soper's?—I think it was. I told William Ellis to take him away.

8713. Was he the only one you sent away with William Ellis?—No, three.

8714. Who were they?—Stoyle, Mogridge, and Nicholas Norrish.

8715. Did you see these men before you went and agreed what they were to have?—Yes.

8716. And paid them?—Yes.

8717. Some of it?—Most of it.

8718. Stoyle, what did you agree to give him?—30*l.*

8719. He was a matter-of-course man?—Yes.

8720. In 1862 what had you promised him?—promised him 30*l.*

8721. What made you rise him?—He rose it himself.

8722. You were obliged to come up to his mar—Yes, to his figure.

8723. Mogridge, what did you promise him?—I promised him 40*l.*, he had 50*l.* in the end.

8724. How much did you give him before you w with him?—40*l.*

8725. Who did you pay it to, to the wife?—Yes

8726. At his house?—At his house.

8727. Had Mogridge been tempted by the oth side?—I am not aware of it.

8728. Did he tell you so?—All he told me w if you do not like to give me what I ask I shall to the other side.

8729. That was the first time he voted?—I do know.

8730. Nicholas Norrish?—Yes, sir.

8731. How much did you give him?—30*l.* to h wife.

8732. He was a matter-of-course man, was not h —Yes, sir, he was a man that always voted w our own men; Mr. Willis told me he was a man th this; he was got away by the Liberals.

8733. Was he an old man?—About 60.

8734. Is he alive now?—Yes.

8735. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had you arranged w him in 1862?—No, I do not think I had anythi to say to him in 1862. I do not think he wa voter.

8736. How did you arrange with him in 1863?— I think I told him there was something going.

8737. And Mogridge?—Mogridge in 1863 w one.

8738. (Mr. Bere.) Are those all the people yo had taken away yourself in 1863?—Those are all took away.

8739. To whom else did you offer bribes wh accepted them?—I have not the list; I destroy everything.

8740. Henry Crawford?—Yes, he was offer money.

8741. Did he accept it?—He did not.

8742. Will you give us a list of men to whom yo offered money who did not accept it?—That is th only one that did not accept it.

8743. What did you give him?—I offered hi 60*l.* I must tell you I did not offer it myself; h wife is a Radical, one of those severe ones. The wa it came up was through a young man of the name Mitchell who worked with him.

8744. What Mitchell is that?—George Mitchell his name.

8745. Is he a voter?—No, he is no voter.

8746. Is he a relation of the butcher?—No, a relation at all; that is another family.

8747. You got at him through George Mitchell?—Yes. George Mitchell came to me in the evenin and told me that he thought Crawford was to b got. Well, I says, if you can get him try what yo can do, I said if you can get him at anything reason able at all, come to me and I will let you have th money. There was a confidence; there was onl me and him in the company. He says I think can get him; he says it is no use for you to g to him; I says, no I will not go near him, not fo ever so. He said I will try him.

8748. Why would you not go near him?—He wa such a Radical that if I went near him to say a wor to him he would split on me.

8749. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did he vote in 1859 —Mills and Gifford. I was afraid to trust him.

8750. Had he voted for Mr. Pender in 1862?—Ye

8751. (Mr. Bere.) He did not vote at all in 1862 —He did not. Young Mr. Mitchell went to hi and told him that he had made arrangements wit him, and he had promised him faithfully to vote fo him, insomuch that Mr. Mitchell came to me and ha to take to him, and he took the 60*l.* to him, and he meantime, so Mitchell tells me, he thought e one else had been there and offered an easier .. When Mitchell came back with the 60*l.* he ld not accept of it.

752. Did you try him again?—Oh, repeatedly.

753. How much did you authorize Mitchell to him?—I authorized him in the first place to r 60*l.*

754. After he refused the 60*l.* Mitchell went to again?—Yes.

755. You were obliged to increase the offer?—I thought he was one of those characters that ad better not have anything more to say to.

756. Did Mitchell take it to him?—He offered 40*l.*, 50*l.*, and 60*l.*, and he agreed to go for 60*l.*

757. He did not go?—No.

758. He voted against you?—He voted against and Mr. Mitchell returned me the money.

759. That is the man who had the carriage called Seymour company's coach?—Yes, that is the gentleman.

760. (Mr. Coleridge.) That is the time that he it?—That is the time that he did get it.

761. He voted for Seymour?—Yes.

762. At the last election?—For Seymour and der at the last election.

763. (Mr. Bere.) Was that the only person to m you, by your own self or by means of anybody offered a bribe who did not accept it?—That is I can think of just now.

764. Tell us of John Diggins, did you see him 863?—Yes.

765. What happened to him in 1863?—That man uld not get on with at all.

766. Did you see him?—Yes, I saw him and red him money.

767. What did you offer him?—I offered him .

768. He did not take the bribe?—He did not.

769. What did he want?—I did hear he wanted l.

770. How much did he ask you for?—He did not me; he was put off on some other party at that e.

771. Who had to arrange with him?—I rather k Mr. Screach had.

772. Old Mr. Screach?—No, the young one.

773. Did you offer him any money at all?—Not r that; I did not go near him at all.

774. How much did you offer him that time?—., and he would not hear of it.

775. He voted against you in 1865?—Yes, he . I can tell you a little of him in 1859.

776. You heard Mr. Harris say he wanted 200*l.* 1863?—I heard him say so. I do not know the ticulars about that man.

777. Had you anything to do with Diggins in 62?—No.

778. Had you been to him at all?—No.

779. Not seen him?—No.

780. John Godfrey, what did you do with him 1863?—In 1863 I paid him some money.

781. What did you pay him?—I paid him 30*l.* I ink.

782. Was he a matter-of-course man?—One of e displeased ones of the Liberal party.

783. He polled Mills and Gifford in 1859?—Yes, 1863 he voted on our side.

784. How did you get at him?—I got at him ough hearing him say himself that he should not te again for his own party for they had served him ry bad.

785. How had they served him bad?—They had mised him money and he never got it; he had a tion.

786. Did he tell you how much they gave him 1859?—No.

787. Was he alluding to the election of 1859 or 62 when he said that?—I think 1863 was the st.

788. When you heard him say he was badly used by his party, at what election had he been badly used?—1859.

789. Mills' election?—Mills' election.

790. Did he say anything about having 5*l.* from Mr. Pender in 1862?—He never told me about it.

791. You found he was dissatisfied and you thought he might be appeased?—I tried to mark him.

792. Did you go to his house and see him or his wife?—I had nothing to do with his wife. I went and saw him.

793. What is he?—A tailor by trade.

794. A master tailor or a journeyman?—I think he is working for himself now.

795. Was he working for himself then?—No, with a brother. He has been a Liberal. I had got a difficulty in getting at him.

796. You got him for 30*l.*?—Yes.

797. Did you pay him any of it before the election?—It may be 40*l.* I cannot tell to a pound or two. I can scarcely call to my recollection what I did pay him to a few pounds.

798. How many days before the election did you pay him?—I think it was the night before the election, the nomination night.

799. How many days before that had you seen him last?—I saw him, he went into the country with me one time.

8800. You took him for an airing?—Yes.

8801. Where did you take him to?—He went out to Luscombe, where Sercombe lives.

8802. What did you take him out for a week for, to keep him out of the way of the Liberals?—No, he had made up his mind so thoroughly he did not want to be kept away, I thought a little air would do him good.

8803. What became of him in 1865?—In 1865 he continued firm.

8804. He voted for Dawkins and Pim?—Yes.

8805. What did he get for doing that?—I had nothing to do with him.

8806. Who had to do with him then?—I do not know.

8807. Had you tried Godfrey in 1862?—No, I cannot recollect trying him in 1862.

8808. Thomas Mitchell of Bridgetown, what did you do to him?—I had a conversation with him and I recommended him to go to the "Stars."

8809. He was a new voter?—No, an old voter.

8810. He was the other side?—Thomas Mitchell in 1863. I had nothing to do with him in 1863.

8811. Had you in 1865?—No, nor in 1865 or 1859.

8812. In 1863 you had nothing to do with him?—No.

8813. Who managed him?—He came over from the Liberal party.

8814. To the Conservatives?—That was in 1859.

8815. No, he voted for Dunn in 1859; he split in 1859, and voted for Dent in 1863?—Yes; I tried him hard in 1859.

8816. You did not try him again?—No, there was some one else on to him.

8817. Did you hear who it was?—I heard so.

8818. Who was that?—I heard that Mr. Screach had got something to say to him.

8819. (Mr. Longe.) Which Screach?—The young man.

8820. (Mr. Bere.) John Terman Phillips, what had you got to do with him in 1863?—I paid him some money. He was always a staunch Conservative, one of those matter-of-course men; we knew pretty well what to give him.

8821. How much did you pay him?—35*l.*

8822. You did not send anybody to watch him?—He did not require anything of that sort.

8823. You told us in 1859 you sent George Mitchell down to the "Stars," whom did you send him with when you sent anybody down?—In 1859.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

1 Sept. 1866.

8824. It does not matter what year, when you say, I sent a man down to the "Stars," what do you mean by that?—I told him to go to No. 10.

8825. Did you tell anybody in 1863 and 1865 to go down to the "Stars"?—No.

8826. You had the money?—I had the money.

8827. In 1859 the money was to be had at the "Stars"?—I went with it, but the man that had got charge of it went with me.

8828. Charles Pitts, what did you do with him in 1863?—I paid him 30*l.*

8829. Was he a matter-of-course man?—He was a man that we knew would require money; if one party did not give him money, and he could get money from the other, he would take it.

8830. Was it the first time you paid him?—I cannot tell you that, that is the first time I ever had anything to do with him.

8831. How did you get at him?—Through running down the list and knowing him.

8832. Had you anything to do with him in the election for the council?—Yes.

8833. How did you find him vote then?—With the Conservatives.

8834. Always after a little money had been given him?—Yes, he would require it.

8835. Was he a person that wanted 3*l.* or 5*l.* or what?—He wanted a sovereign for a day's work.

8836. What was he?—A labouring man, working for Mr. Bennett.

8837. Did you go to his house and see him there?—I did.

8838. Did you go to him more than once?—I went once and made an agreement, I went a second time and took the money.

8839. Did you pay him then before the election?—Yes.

8840. Paid him all of it?—Yes.

8841. Did the other side try to get at him?—Yes, I believe he will tell you and will tell you of the other side.

8842. Did he mention names?—On one occasion he did mention some name.

8843. What was the name?—I think it was Mr. Parnell had been speaking to him in the cellar, some one immediately spoke of him.

8844. (Mr. Coleridge.) That was to raise the price?—No doubt.

8845. He raised it at last?—I believe it was raised.

8846. Samuel Rolstone, what did you do to him?—I paid him some money.

8847. How much did you pay him?—30*l.*

8848. Was he a matter-of-course man?—A Conservative; he called himself a Conservative.

8849. And always did receive money?—I do not know about always, that was the only time I had anything to do with him.

8850. You paid him as a matter of course?—Yes.

8851. Was he tempted by the other side?—I do not know, I never asked him the question, I asked him what he required. I was told, and there it ended.

8852. Did you ask him himself?—I asked him himself.

8853. William Shinner?—Yes, he was one of the old establishment.

8854. The old established Conservatives?—Yes.

8855. Good and true?—Yes.

8856. How much money?—I took him 30*l.* in 1863.

8857. He asked for 30*l.* and he got it?—He asked for 30*l.* and I gave it to him.

8858. William Sloggett, jun.?—He is the only one that ever dodged me, and he did do me a little bit.

8859. How did he do you?—He got 20*l.* out of me at one time.

8860. In 1863?—Yes.

8861. How did he manage that?—I agreed with him.

8862. Who is he?—He is a dyer, or was a dyer, I think he has gone to America. He was a dyer the town.

8863. He went away last Monday?—Yes.

8864. (Mr. Coleridge.) After he received t summons?—Yes; he came to me some months befo the election; we were brought up and reare together and always very friendly. He came a told me that his own party had served him ve bad.

8865. (Mr. Bere.) When did he tell you that?—I dare say it might be a month or two before.

8866. In 1862?—In the 1862 election.

8867. He voted for Pender in 1862?—I recolle this, he thought of turning over and voting for o side, he was complaining they had served him very ba he says, "Now the next time there is an election he "do not forget me." We had several conversations that sort; he lived next door to me, we used smoke a pipe together in the evening, and he wou often hold out to me, he did not intend to vote the Liberal party any more, he mentioned Mr. Cu ing, and had promised him.

8868. Which Mr. Cuming?—Frederick B. Cu ing; he never got it what they had promised, a accordingly when the election came in 1863 I we to him, and told him there was a chance for him no if he wished to be done honourably by, he had bett have something to do with me, I would let him ha what I promised him; accordingly he agreed with n to vote for our side for 150*l.*

8869. How long before the election was this?—This was four or five days. I think it was the ve evening before he came to Mr. Kellock.

8870. Had you the power to offer him 150*l.*?—By the stranger when there was anything like a go vote to pay it.

8871. (Mr. Coleridge.) A conversion?—It w as good as two votes, and I took it especially myself to give him a good bit.

8872. Did you tell the stranger you had paid him —Yes.

8873. Did he confirm your power?—He told me was quite right in what I did to any man like that I could get him. After making this agreement wi me he came to my house on the day I told him to p him. He says, I am rather in difficulties, I wa some money, can you manage to get me a few pound I said I do not think I can, I did not like the idea trusting him with the money until I could secure hi to go to the poll; I was fool enough to be led away b him, and I gave him 20*l.*

8874. And he voted against you?—He vote against us; and what was the worst of all he neve returned the money.

8875. Has he ever returned it?—No.

8876. Have you asked him for it?—I have aske him for it repeatedly.

8877. What did he get on the other side?—H must have got a good sum certainly, if he could hav got 150*l.* from me he would not have gone for the for nothing.

8878. Henry Tope, how did you deal with him i 1863?—I gave him 30*l.*

8879. Was he a matter-of-course man?—Yes, h said I should like to have the same as the rest, I trus to you; I gave him 20*l.* in 1862.

8880. He voted for Mills and Dunn in 1859?—Ye I paid him in 1859.

8881. Stephen Tozer?—He is a regular good ol fellow.

8882. You never gave him any money?—None a all; he was one who went and looked after the lam ducks.

8883. You used to pay him?—I never gave hi anything.

8884. What did he get?—He never took a half penny.

8885. Did you send him to the "Stars"?—Never he was on his own hook, he would not take money.

8886. Richard Tope, what did you do with him i 1863?—I gave him 40*l.*

8887. What is he?—He is on the railway.

8888. Is he good and true?—He likes to have a tle money when it is going.

8889. Had you dealt with him in 1862?—I think had asked him to vote for us.

8890. Arthur Venning?—He is one of the old aunch Conservatives.

8891. What does his staunchness procure him?—bout 30*l.* or 40*l.*

8892. What part did he take in 1863?—I gave m that sum in 1863.

8893. Did you promise him 20*l.* in 1862?—In 1862 called me one day in passing, and said if anything as going about I was to recommend him.

8894. You told him he would have the same as the hers?—Yes.

8895. He was a matter-of-course man?—Yes.

8896. John Westaway?—He had 30*l.*, and it was turned again, or rather he sent it to the "Stars." do not know who took it.

8897. When did you give him this money?—Four ys before the election.

8898. Had you talked to him?—Yes, to him d his wife, and made everything straight, as I ought.

8899. He was not a voter before?—He had been ving in a house belonging to Admiral Mitchell; went to his cottage on purpose to try if I could not et him, and I found they were very much pleased ith what I said.

8900. Did you mention any amount?—20*l.* He id I suppose you will give us more than that.

8901. Was Mrs. Westaway there?—I never saw em both together.

8902. Which was most anxious for money, the hus-and or the wife?—I think the wife was the most nxious.

8903. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is he the man who lives the admiral's cottage?—Yes.

8904. After this election he lost his vote?—es.

8905. He voted Liberal in 1863?—Yes, he re-urned me the money.

8906. The admiral we understand is a Liberal; ow came he to take away his vote?—That I cannot ell you.

8907. We have heard the admiral took away his ote because of his voting at the last election?—He oted for the admiral's side at that election, and eturned me the money; he said the admiral had urned him out.

8908. In 1865 he had no vote?—No.

8909. You do not know how he lost his vote?—I annot tell you.

8910. (Mr. Bere.) He did not vote for Pender n 1862?—No; I only had to do with him in 863.

8911. What sum did you at last offer him?—I ave him 30*l.*

8912. That was sent back to you?—It was sent to he "Stars."

8913. Who got that?—I do not know, I never eard to this day.

8914. How did you hear it?—His wife told me hey had sent back the money, and he as well; he ound it was not possible for him to vote for our ide.

8915. Except for their statement you do not know hat it was sent back?—That is all.

8916. They may have kept it, and have voted on he other side?—For all I know. I think they were onest in the matter.

8917. You never heard Mr. John Heath or any of hat party say it was sent back?—No.

8918. (Mr. Longe.) When did Westaway tell you e had sent it back?—He polled the very first man n the morning. I was going down the street when e was coming up. I said, Well, John, I suppose it s all right; he shook his head, and then told me he nd found it impossible to vote for our side, and that he had sent back the money. I think he told me his wife took back the money.

8919. Did you ever inquire of Mr. Heath or of the stranger whether the money had been sent back?—I never inquired anything; I thought if it was sent to the "Stars" it must be all right.

8920. It was money given to you, and you were responsible for it?—If they had not received it at the "Stars" no doubt I should have been told of it.

8921. Surely those who gave you the money would know whether it was distributed properly?—They did not know how I had distributed the money, no one in Totnes knew how I had distributed the money until this day.

8922. Did you take receipts?—No, never, from anyone.

8923. Or at any election?—Not at any election.

8924. Then this money might have been kept by Westaway or by yourself?—All that I know is that I never had it, and I believe that Westaway returned it to some one.

8925. (Mr. Bere.) Had you anything to do with Thomas Blank at the election in 1863?—Yes; I always had a little to do with him.

8926. What did you do with him in 1863?—I paid him in 1863.

8927. Was he a matter-of-course man?—No.

8928. How had he voted before, do you know?—I think I got him in 1859 as well.

8929. Had he voted before that for the Liberals?—I cannot tell you. I know nothing of any election before 1859.

8930. How much did you give him in 1863?—I gave him 60*l.*

8931. That was nearly double the usual price?—He was a man of that sort, but he would have it.

8932. At what time did you pay him that money?—I think I paid him on the night before the nomination.

8933. You knew that the contest would be a tolerably severe one?—Yes.

8934. Who had told you about that?—This gentleman whom I have spoken of.

8935. Had you seen Mr. Kellock about that?—I asked Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds about it. This gentleman had always the poll book made up, and he would be able to tell me what I required to know.

8936. Did you ever ask Mr. Kellock or Mr. Edmonds by how many votes they expected to win or expected to lose?—I think it is very likely I did say so to them.

8937. And do you remember what they then told you?—Mr. Heath told me one evening that we should win by seven or eight, or by eight or nine.

8938. And that made you believe that it would be rather a close contest?—Yes.

8939. And that every vote would be of value?—Yes, I thought so.

8940. You then got hold of Blank for 60*l.*?—I had made an arrangement with him before. You were obliged to go to him as soon as ever it was known that there was any probability of there being an election, as soon as ever anyone was authorized to go electioneering he would expect to be spoken to first.

8941. (Mr. Longe.) When Mr. Heath told you this it was after you had given him your information?—I never gave him any information.

8942. (Mr. Bere.) When did Mr. Heath tell you this?—I think either on the nomination morning or the evening before.

8943. How many times a day did you go to the "Seven Stars" during this period?—Sometimes three or four times a day, sometimes not more than twice.

8944. And used you to see Mr. Heath or Mr. George Heath, or some of the people of the house?—I always saw some one belonging to the house.

8945. Did they say to you, "How are you getting "on Evans?"—They never asked me; they never knew what I was about or what I was doing until this very day.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

1 Sept. 1866.

8946. (Mr. Coleridge.) You carried a poll book with you, did you not?—No, I generally carried it all in my head. I might sometimes have put it on a slip of paper.

8947. Then to whom did you report the success you had met with on such day?—I reported it to this gentleman in Number 13.

8948. But did you not report it to Mr. Kellock or to Mr. Edmonds?—No, I did not report anything to them. I might have said to Mr. Edmonds when I saw him, "I think so-and-so will vote for us."

8949. Did you not tell him that you had been to so-and-so, and that you had been trying him?—No, I never mentioned it. I might have said I have seen so-and-so, and I think he is rather inclined to vote for us.

8950. But what did you do in such a case as this: supposing that you had a person whom you had put down as a doubtful vote, did they not say how are you going to deal with him, what influence are you going to bring to bear upon him?—No, they never mentioned any such thing.

8951. They never said anything of that sort, or seemed to have the slightest curiosity whatever about it?—No, none whatever.

8952. But was not one of those gentlemen whose names I have just mentioned, Mr. Edmonds, the election agent for your party?—Yes, he was.

8953. (Mr. Longe.) When you spoke to Mr. Heath and he told you of the state of the poll, and so on, did not Mr. Heath know what it was that you had been engaged in previously?—He knew about this gentleman I suppose.

8954. (Mr. Coleridge.) To come back to Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds, who you say never asked you any questions as to how you had been employed, was it not necessary for Mr. Edmonds to know how things were going on?—I should fancy it was.

8955. Were you at any time present when the poll book was made up by any of the gentlemen to whom you have referred?—No, I was not.

8956. Or when the prospects of the election were gone into or discussed between them?—No, I was not. I had always plenty to do out of doors.

8957. Then your only regular reports, if you made any, were made to the stranger?—Yes, that is so.

8958. When were these matter-of-course men paid by you?—I paid them all.

8959. Did you pay them before or after the election?—I paid them before the election, every man of them.

8960. Mr. Harris in his evidence said something about money having been paid to them after the election, you say that all the matter-of-course men were paid before the election?—Yes, they were all paid before the election.

8961. And in no one instance did a man vote who was going to get money without having been first paid?—Only Sloggett.

8962. Then if Mr. Harris has said that money was sent to any of them after the election that would be a mistake altogether?—Yes, no doubt it is altogether a mistake. I do not think Mr. Harris knew anything about that.

8963. Then there are not many instances which you can tell us of in Totnes where men have taken money on one side and then voted on the other; Sloggett is the only one of that class of voters who ever got anything from you?—Yes, I believe he is the only one.

8964. Have you heard of many taking money one way and voting the other?—No.

8965. Have you heard of their taking money and returning it?—Yes.

8966. Do you know instances of men taking money from the Liberals and voting for you?—No.

8967. Or vice versâ?—No.

8968. There was a sort of honour amongst them that if they did not vote they returned the money?—It appears to be so.

8969. As to the stranger, when was the last time in the election of 1863 that you saw the stranger?—The last time I saw the stranger in 1863 was on the morning of the election.

8970. What time?—About six o'clock in the morning.

8971. Was money going all through the day of the election?—No.

8972. What was the last sum of money you paid?—20*l.*

8973. How late in the election day?—That was about eleven o'clock.

8974. Who did you pay that to?—To William Stoyle.

8975. That was the latest payment you made?—That was the very last.

8976. Did you make many payments on the nomination day?—A good many.

8977. The earliest payment was about five days before the election?—Yes, it must have been six or seven days before, because I got these men away.

8978. The last day you saw the stranger was at six o'clock on the morning of the polling day?—Yes.

8979. Do you know when he went away?—No.

8980. Have you ever seen him since?—Never.

8981. Had you ever seen him before?—No.

8982. Do you know whether from the time he came in 1863 to the time he left he was always in the town, or did he go away?—I never found him wanting.

8983. Did you see him every day?—I did not see him on Sundays.

8984. Every day except Sundays?—Yes; I may have escaped a day, some time in the evening.

8985. Now tell me, are you quite sure that this man was in Number 13 all the time?—Yes, whenever I went to the "Stars" I found him there.

8996. You never went to No. 15?—I never went to No. 15.

8987. He always paid you the money from a bag and not from a bowl?—Yes.

8988. You never saw anything of the china bowl?—No.

8989. You still say he was a man with brown hair and fair complexion?—Yes.

8990. The man in 1862, had you seen him before?—No.

8991. Never seen him since?—No.

8992. Did you see Mr. Helms in 1862?—Which Helms is that.

8993. Henry Helms, Captain Helms?—Yes, I have met him.

8994. In 1862 was he about with Mr. Dent?—I saw him talking with Mr. Dent once or twice.

8995. Did you ever see him talking to the stranger in 1862?—Never saw him.

8996. Was he about the "Stars"?—I saw him at the "Stars."

8997. Did you know of Mr. Helms fetching any money down?—No.

8998. Nor taking any away?—No.

8999. Did Captain Helms go about in 1863?—Yes.

9000. Was he canvassing?—There were rumours going about, some had faith in him, that he was doing all he could for Mr. Dent, and others were of opinion that he was well connected with Mrs. Thomas, and they were rather doubtful of him. There were rumours flying about, but I did not take much notice of them.

9001. In 1863 did you see him with the mysterious stranger?—No.

9002. He was about with Mr. Dent?—Yes, I saw him talking with Mr. Dent once or twice.

9003. He was supposed in 1862 and 1863 to be working for Mr. Dent?—He was supposed to be.

9004. Do you know of his leaving the town and coming back again?—No.

9005. You do not know of his having money in 863?—No.

9006. (Mr. Bere.) There is one man whose name I ave, Edward Shinner; did you have to do with him n 1863?—Yes.

9007. What had you to do with him in 1863?—I ave him 60*l.*

9008. Was he a matter-of-course man?—Yes.

9009. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are there any other names ou recollect that you had to do with in 1863?—erhaps there may be more.

9010. When you make out the list which you have een asked to make out, if there are any names you ave not told us to whom you offered money or gave oney, put them down?—I will.

(Mr. Bere.) Run your eye down these, because ou have not accounted for 1,400*l.* or 1,500*l.*

9011. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know of any istance of people being bribed on the other side, here people themselves have told you?—No, it is o use saying what I have heard.

9012. If you can give us the names of any which ave not been mentioned it would be useful; but if ot, it is not worth while?—How many names have mentioned in 1863?

9013. 21?—I think that is about the number.

9014. That is about all you had to do with your-lf?—Yes.

9015. When you last saw the mysterious stranger id you money to return?—Yes, I had.

9016. How much?—50*l.* or 60*l.*

9017. Did he give you that back?—No.

9018. How were you remunerated?—After that he ade me a present.

9019. When did you last see him?—The last time saw him he made me a present.

9020. Six o'clock in the morning of the polling ay?—Yes. I gave him some money. They had t hold of something which made them think that it as no use to fight the election; and the fact was, hen I went down that evening, he said, "Do not spend any more money;" he did not see that it as any good whatever.

9021. How came you to spend 20*l.* on Stoyle?—ecause I promised to give it, and I kept 20*l.* back.

9022. You returned the balance?—Yes.

9023. When you saw him the next morning what id he give you?—He gave me 50*l.*

9024. In 1862, when there was no money spent, hat did you get for your trouble then?—There was o money spent; I think I got 10*l.*

9025. From the stranger?—Yes.

9026. In addition to the 50*l.* you received in 1863 om the mysterious stranger did Edmonds or Kellock ay you anything?—No.

9027. Did you receive anything from anybody lse?—No.

9028. Nor in 1862?—No.

9029. (Mr. Bere.) When you were with the tranger in 1865 where did he take the money from?—He had got a box. I saw a box lying here similar o that.

9030. Did you see the box yourself?—Yes.

9031. Used he to go to the other side of the bed id get some money from somewhere that you did ot see, and give it to you?—The box, if I recollect ightly, was on the other side of the bed.

9032. He went on the other side and took out the ox and counted out the money?—Yes, he counted it t, and I had several little bags made for the urpose.

9033?—Who was acting with you in 1863; there as young Screach and yourself; was Heard acting?—I do not know anything about Screach.

9034. Was Heard acting in 1863?—Heard was my river.

9035. Not only your driver, but did he distribute oney?—No, not that I am aware of.

9036. He might have done so?—Yes.

9037. George Heath; might he have done so?—es, but not that I am aware of.

9038. (Mr. Coleridge.) At any time that you were with the mysterious stranger, do you recollect when you gave the names of certain people that the stranger sent something in writing to Mr. Heath to have information?—No.

9039. Not in 1862 nor 1865?—No.

9040. He never sent any writing to Mr. Heath asking for information as to their respectability?—No.

9041. He never sent anything out of the room?—No, I never saw anyone in the room.

9042. When you came in did you lock the door behind you always?—Yes.

9043. In 1862, 1863, and 1865 you went into the same room?—Yes.

9044. Always 13?—Yes; only on one occasion I went to another room.

9045. When was that?—In 1859.

9046. You never used No. 15?—No.

9047. How far is it off?—Two doors.

9048. On the same landing?—Yes, I think so.

9049. Only one door between?—Yes.

9050. (Mr. Bere.) You say in 1862 you told them money was going, did you actually pay anybody?—No, I do not recollect telling them they would be paid, but just saying if they meant to be lenient some one might stand.

9051. Was the election of 1859 for the borough the first one you had any experience of?—Yes. "Experience!" I have always been electioneering, when quite a boy.

9052. This was the first parliamentary election you took much interest in?—This was the first election I ever took any part in.

9053. What part did you take in that?—Similar to that I have mentioned to you.

9054. Just tell us how it was done then?—In a very similar way.

9055. How long before the election?—About a week or 10 days before the election.

9056. Were you sent for to the "Seven Stars"?—No, not that time. There was a man called at my shop.

9057. What name?—He introduced himself as Mr. Higgins.

9058. Had you ever seen Mr. Higgins before?—No, I never saw him before.

9059. What was Mr. Higgins like?—He was a very short man; sandy whiskers, sandy hair—very sandy.

9060. When Higgins introduced himself, what took place between you and Mr. Higgins?—He asked me to come to the "Stars" and have a glass of grog.

9061. And that was an invitation you accepted?—Yes.

9062. You went to the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

9063. Where did you go to then?—No. 10, on the other side of the house.

9064. Is that a bedroom too?—That is a sitting room.

9065. Which side of the house is No. 10?—That is the left-hand side going in.

9066. When you got to No. 10 what did you and Higgins talk about?—He told me he was come down with some money to fight this election.

9067. Was Mr. Dunn down at that time?—I think he was.

9068. How long was this before?—About 10 days before the election.

9069. Did he say how much money?—No.

9070. Did he intimate that he had a great deal?—No, he gave me to understand that I was to get those men as cheap as I could.

9071. Did he give you a list?—We called over a list.

9072. Had he a poll book?—He had one of the printed lists.

9073. He went over the list?—Yes.

9074. Did you take it down in writing?—I ticked off the names.

9075. You have not that list?—No.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. F. J. Evens.

1 Sept. 1866.

9076. (Mr. Longe.) You told us, in the case of Mitchell, of your sending him to the "Stars"?—Yes.

9077. Did you often send people there? — No, never; that was the first election I had to do with.

9078. That is the only man you ever sent to the "Stars"?—That is the only man I sent. I sent Vallance; that I corrected just now. I sent him. I told him to go to the "Stars." He was rather anxious to get his money.

9079. When you saw Higgins you went through the list and wrote down the names I suppose?—I ticked off the names.

9080. Then you went out and saw them?—Yes.

9081. Who were the people you went to in 1859; John Diggins, did you go to him?—Yes.

9082. You got him to split then, did you?—Yes, he was got in hand; there was great difficulty. That was the means of my sending Mr. Mitchell to the "Stars." I should tell you that Mr. Mitchell, Edward Turpin, and this Mr. Diggins were there together.

9083. Thomas Mitchell, Edward Randle Turpin, and John Diggins?—Yes.

9084. He lived in Bridgetown?—Yes, and what you did with one you had to do with the lot.

9085. They were a sort of company?—They stuck together.

9086. Did you negotiate with them all?—I negotiated with them all separately.

9087. How much did you get Diggins for?—I did not get him at all myself; I offered him money.

9088. How much?—60*l.*

9089. Did you offer him 60*l.* to vote for Gifford and Dunn, or Dunn only?—He gave me to understand that he could not vote a plumper; he must support the duke. He was living in the duke's house.

9090. You gave him 60*l.*?—No.

9091. You offered it to him to split his vote between the duke's candidate and the Conservative?—Yes, I offered 60*l.* each, and they would not accept it. I went four or five times. I could not come to any arrangement with them, and I told Mr. Mitchell that he had better come with me and see this Mr. Higgins himself; I could not stop beating about the bush any longer.

9092. How long before the election was this?—I should think two or three days before the election.

9093. Did you and Mitchell go to the "Stars" together?—Yes, we went to the "Stars" together.

9094. Whom did you see?—I directed him where to go.

9095. To No. 10?—Yes.

9096. Did you go with him?—No.

9097. He went to No. 10, and you suppose saw the stranger?—Yes.

9098. Did you see him when he came down?—No, I never saw him again till he polled.

9099. Did you go through the same process with Diggins as with others?—No, he managed with them.

9100. He did not succeed with Turpin?—No.

9101. Did you hear from Mitchell, Turpin, and Diggins how much they got?—No, never.

9102. Did the stranger never tell you?—No.

9103. Did you never have the curiosity to ask how he arranged with Mitchell?—No, I never had the curiosity to ask at all, because there were other names that Mitchell had to do with in the election.

9104. Whom else had Mitchell to do with in that election?—I cannot tell; I do not know, but I know there were other men he said he should have to do with to this Mr. Higgins, and I think Mr. Higgins put him on to them.

9105. (Mr. Coleridge.) Have you seen Higgins since?—Yes, I met him once.

9106. How long after?—I should think two years after.

9107. Had you any conversation then about what took place?—Merely had a laugh, and Higgins said he should like another such job to come down to Devonshire, and I told him I should not mind.

9108. That was about 1861? — About 1861 I think.

9109. You have never seen him since?—No.

9110. He has not had jobs since that?—No.

9111. Where did you meet him in London?—I am rather at a loss about that; at some tea gardens.

9112. Not Cremorne?—No.

9113. Rosherville tea gardens?—No, it was a common.

9114. Clapham Common?—No.

9115. Cricklewood?—No.

9116. East, west, north, or south?—I do not know.

9117. Which side of the river was it?—This side of the river.

9118. Vauxhall do you mean?—No.

9119. Do you mean the London side?—Yes.

9120. Where were you staying?—I was staying with my brother.

9121. Where does he live?—At Deptford.

9122. How did you get back from these tea gardens?—I went back to London Bridge in a cab. It was not gardens; it was on some heath; Hampstead—that is the place.

9123. Was Mr. John Heath with you? — In London?

9124. Yes?—No, he was not with me at that time.

9125. Did Mr. Higgins, when you had this conversation, tell you any other places that he had been to have an equally good job at?—No.

9126. Dartmouth or Ashburton?—No, he never told me.

9127. Did any of these mysterious strangers tell you where they had had similar jobs before?—Never.

9128. (Mr. Bere.) So much for Higgins, Mitchell and Turpin in 1859. Now Mr. Blank; you had the same dealings with in 1859 that you had in 1863 and 1865?—Yes.

9129. What did you give him in 1859?—40*l.*

9130. Did the other side try to get at him then?—I cannot tell you.

9131. You did not get the money then, did you?—No.

9132. Did Higgins go to him with you?—Higgins went round with me with the money at that time.

9133. Had Higgins a good many cards with names on them; had he a card or two with John Smith on it?—I did not see it.

9134. He went round with you and paid the money?—He went round with me and paid the money.

9135. This was the first time that you had been engaged in that?—Yes, the first time.

9136. You first went to each of these men and agreed with them, and came back and told Higgins and then he went and paid them?—We made an appointment a certain evening to come.

9137. You went round to their own houses separately?—Yes.

9138. John Brown is a man we have heard of before, the "Market House Inn"?—That was one of our old staunch Conservatives.

9139. What did he require as a refresher?—He had 20*l.*

9140. (Mr. Coleridge.) What had Mitchell, Turpin and Blank each?—I offered them.

9141. (Mr. Bere.) James Dean; that is the same man that you took away to Kingsbridge?—Yes.

9142. What did he get in 1859?—He had 25*l.* at that time.

9143. Samuel Hilley; what had he in 1859—Samuel Hilley of Fore Street?—I gave him 30*l.*

9144. Was he a staunch Conservative?—I think he had been on the Liberal side before.

9145. You handed him 10*l.* more?—He had 30*l.*

9146. Samuel Hilley in 1859 voted for Mills and Gifford?—I think he did.

9147. How did you get him round?—I merely offered him the temptation, and he accepted it.

9148. When did you offer him that?—About three or four days before the election.

9149. (Mr. Longe.) This was the first time you in this way. Now when you and Higgins went l were you ignorant of these men?—No, I had ng idea.

50. Had not Higgins?—Had he?
51. Did he know anything about them?—He what he was doing.
52. Had not he a book with the marks to the who were known?—I never saw any book.
ad a list of voters.
53. You commenced quite de novo?—Sir?
54. What led you to pick out certain men to go
I thought of those men I had to do with.
55. How did you get the information of those
; this was your first time?—I went to those thinking to get them, and got them. It was like
I thought money could do anything.
56. You had knowledge of some of these parties e?—I had a slight knowledge that such was the before.
57. Whom had your education been confided to;
rought you up in the way you should go in that f life?—I think I may say I am self-educated t sort of life.
58. You never assisted in the humble distance ler man in this sort of way?—Not particularly.
59. You had not been an outsider in the 1857 on at all?—No; always on the one side.
60. And you had dived into the middle of things?
the first place there used to be a great row here
e time with two bands, a Whig band and Tory; llect as boys we used to fight about it frequently which of the bands was to come out, but I was s on one side.
61. You were self-taught?—I was self-taught.
62. You and Higgins then began with no knowexcept your own ideas and views particularly?
.
63. (Mr. Coleridge.) And your local knowledge?
id my local knowledge.
64. (Mr. Bere.) Did you suggest the names, or
Mr. Higgins suggest them to you; did you say ave looked down the list, and I can do such and h a thing with so-and-so"?—Yes.
65. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you meet Mr. Higgins entally at Hampstead, or did you go with him?
met him quite accidentally.
66. Did he look the same at Hampstead as he t Totnes?—Just the same.
67. He had no disguise at Totnes?—No dis-
.
68. (Mr. Bere.) They do sometimes disguise selves, these strangers?—I have heard so, but I r found it.
69. They put on women's clothes, and so on?—I r found that.
70. Did you never know of it happening in es?—Never.
71. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever see Mr. of the 1865 election with a wig on?—I never him with a wig on.
72. (Mr. Bere.) How did you manage to get at uel Hilley in 1859?—I met him in his shoemaker's
.
73. Is he a master shoemaker?—He is a master maker.
74. Was he dissatisfied with his own party?—
as dissatisfied.
75. What had they done to disturb him in his tion?—I cannot tell you.
76. Did not he tell you?—He did not tell me;
ld me that he should not vote for them again;
ed his wife was a thorough Conservative. I think lways voted under difficulty when he did vote for Liberal party.
77. Did you get at the wife first?—No, I went ght to him.

9178. You promised him the 30*l.*?—I promised him the 30*l.*

9179. He said he would vote, and did vote for you?—Yes, he voted for us.

9180. Did you see him before the election?—Yes.

9181. Robert Morgan, you got him in 1859, did you not?—Yes.

9182. How did you manage him; he had voted for you before; was he a staunch and true man?—He was considered to be staunch and true, but he wanted the consideration.

9183. What did he get for his faithfulness?—60*l.* I gave him.

9184. That was a large sum considering that he was staunch and true?—He was a large man.

9185. Had he influence over others then?—No, he had no influence whatever over any one.

9186. Then you mean by a large man a man opening his mouth wide?—Yes.

9187. John J. Phillips, you had him too in 1859?—Yes; he was always a staunch Conservative; he was a matter of course.

9188. What did you give him?—20*l.* I think.

9189. William Stoyle 20*l.*?—Yes.

9190. And William Shinner 20*l.*?—Yes.

9191. Had you anything to do with Edward Shinner at that election of 1859?—No, I do not think I had anything to do with him.

9192. Or Nicholas Norrish?—No. Several names that Thomas Mitchell will be able to give you.

9193. Now be good enough to go through all those lists. I dare say the secretary will supply you with copies, and if you have omitted the names of anybody you bribed or offered bribes to you will just add them to the end of the lists and hand them to us on Monday?—Yes, I will do so.

9194. You were not the only person who gave bribes in 1859?—I was not aware of any one else. I know that Mitchell did.

9195. That was through you, as it were?—Yes, through me.

9196. You were the only Conservatives then in that election who were the active ones?—Yes, we were the only active Conservatives. The agent do you mean?

9197. Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds, were they agents?—Yes; they are still the agents.

9198. Were the Heaths acting at that election?—Yes, always active in that election.

9199. Had Mr. Heard anything to do with that election?—No; Heard was a very young man at that time.

9200. You took your instructions from Higgins, and no one else?—Higgins, and no one else.

9201. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did Mr. Presswell act at that election?—No, we did not see much of Mr. Presswell.

9202. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know anything of John Wright?—No.

9203. At none of the elections?—No, none.

9204. (Mr. Longe.) Was there no one else acting with Mr. Higgins besides you, and in the same capacity that you were acting?—I am not aware of any one.

9205. You know at this last election Screach was?—I did not know that Screach was, but I heard that he was.

9206. You do not know it?—I do not know it.

9207. You and Screach had communication together?—No, we never had conversation. As for Mr. Harris, I think he stated that I was a sub-agent of his; I never knew more about Harris than the greatest stranger, or Harris about me.

9208. (Mr. Bere.) Is there anything more you wish to tell us?—Nothing that I am aware of.

9209. (Mr. Longe.) Higgins had information from other persons besides you as to the character of the different voters you went to?—No doubt about that.

Mr. JOHN HEATH sworn and examined.

Mr. J. Heath.

210. (Mr. Coleridge.) You are the landlord of the even Stars" hotel I believe?—I am.

9211. How long have you been the landlord of that hotel?—Ten years last midsummer.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

9212. And ever since you have been the landlord of that hotel that has been the head-quarters of the Conservative party, has it not ?—Yes.

9213. Before you came to the "Seven Stars" who was the landlord?—There was a Mr. Harris and a Mr. Webb ; my immediate predecessor was Mr. Webb.

9214. How long have you been a voter for Totnes? —Since 1836.

9215. Have you always voted on the Conservative side?—No.

9216. When did you first vote on the Conservative side?—In 1836 I first voted on the Conservative side.

9217. There was no election in 1836. How often did you vote on the Liberal side ?—Perhaps at the election in 1837 ; I will refresh my memory ; I voted for Sir George Adams.

9218. (Mr. Bere.) That was on the 25th July 1837 ?—Yes.

9219. How often had you voted on the Liberal side before that?—I never voted before.

9220. That was the first vote ?—Yes.

9221. Ever since that have you voted on the Conservative side?—I voted for Mr. Blount because he was a son-in-law of the Duke of Somerset, and was a man I knew.

9222. Do you hold your house under the Duke of Somerset ?—No, it is my own house.

9223. The only two occasions were that first election and Mr. Blount's election, when you voted Liberal ?—Mr. Blount was the only one I voted for. He might be termed a Liberal on account of his connexion with the duke. (I voted in the council,)—that is, for a member of Parliament.

9224. On that occasion that you voted for Mr. Blount were you Conservative in principle, but for some reasons you voted for Mr. Blount?—I was.

9225. I may take it that you have been a Conservative all your life?—Yes.

9226. And ever since you have been the landlord of the "Seven Stars" hotel that has been your principle ?—Yes.

9227. I am going to take you in the first instance to the last election. Of course you all knew here a considerable time before the election that there was going to be a general election ?—Of course we did.

9228. When did you first begin here to move in the matter of looking out for a candidate ; how early in the year did you begin to move to look about for two Conservative candidates?—In 1865 ; it took place in July.

9229. July 12th, I think ?—I should think about a month before.

9230. Was that the earliest ?—I am not aware of anything prior to that.

9231. Just consider a moment ; do you know of a correspondence between Mr. Spofforth and Mr. Harris as early as the middle of May ?—I do not.

9232. Did Mr. Harris ever show you the correspondence that has been read in this court that he had with Mr. Spofforth ?—I do not know what he has read in this court ; I have not seen any correspondence that passed between Mr. Spofforth and Mr. Harris.

9233. Have you heard of a correspondence between Mr. Spofforth and Mr. Harris ?—I heard of a correspondence between Mr. Rennie and Mr. Harris.

9234. You heard of a correspondence between Mr. Rennie and Mr. Harris ; when did you hear of that correspondence ?—From time to time since Mr. Rennie first came into the borough.

9235. I am asking you as to the election of 1865. I want to know when you first heard of a correspondence between Mr. Rennie and Mr. Harris as to members for the election of 1865 ?—It is impossible that I can remember dates. It may have been a month or two before the election.

9236. Did you also at that time hear that a correspondence was going on between Mr. Harris and Mr. Spofforth ?—I did not.

9237. When did you first hear that a correspondence was going on between Mr. Harris and Mr. Spofforth as to a canditate for the election here ?—I never heard that Mr. Harris was in communication with Mr. Spofforth on the business at all.

9238. Not at all ?—Not at all.

9239. Did you ever hear he was in communication with Mr. Spofforth though not on the business ?—I did not.

9240. Then, in fact, till those letters were read in this court did you not know that there had been correspondence between Harris and Spofforth ?—I in the first place I have not read the evidence nor do I know of any letters that have been read in this court and I was not aware of any correspondence or communication between Spofforth and Harris.

9241. Then you do not know that Mr. Harris has received any letters from Mr. Spofforth at all in 1865 —I do not.

9242. Mr. Harris never showed you any letter of Spofforth's ?—He did not.

9243. Or communicated any letter ?—He did not.

9244. You knew Mr. Spofforth to be the acting solicitor for the Carlton Club ?—Yes; the solicitor for the Carlton Club.

9245. Do you know Mr. Spofforth personally ?—I do.

9246. When did you last see Mr. Spofforth ?—June prior to the election of 1865.

9247. Where did you see Mr. Spofforth ?—I saw him at his office.

9248. In Victoria Street ?—Down in Westminster I do not know the name of the street.

9249. What took you to Mr. Spofforth ?—I accompanied Captain Pim to Mr. Spofforth's office.

9250. Did you hear a conversation about the probability of Captain Pim standing for Totnes between him and Spofforth ?—I heard a short conversation, but was not present with them during the time they were together.

9251. Let us hear what the purport of that conversation was?—The conversation was to this effect that a second candidate was necessary in order to secure, to make the best of our case, and that Captain Pim would consent to become a candidate and if there was no bribery on the other side, we had not the slightest doubt that Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim would be elected.

9252. Who said that ?—I said so.

9253. Did you hear Mr. Spofforth say to Captain Pim that Totnes was a place that he would not touch with a pair of tongs ?—I do not remember hearing anything of the kind.

9254. Do you recollect Mr. Spofforth rather dissuading Captain Pim from coming forward for Totnes —Not in my presence.

9255. Was that in consequence of some persuasion on Mr. Spofforth's part that you made that statement as to the probability of Captain Pim being returned if there was no bribery on the other side ?—I made that statement to the same effect in Captain Pim's house prior to our going up to Mr. Spofforth's office.

9256. What was it that drew forth that explanation from you as to the probabilities of Totnes when you were at Mr. Spofforth's office ?—Explanation. I repeated what I had stated to Captain Pim at his own residence.

9257. Who asked you the question when you were at Mr. Spofforth's office, Mr. Spofforth or Captain Pim ?—It is impossible to say ; I do not know that such a question was put.

9258. There were present only Mr. Spofforth, Captain Pim, and yourself ?—For a short time, when I was requested to leave, and Captain Pim was left with Mr. Spofforth.

9259. Was what you have now told us the whole conversation ? Was the one speech that you made and that took place before you left the room ? Did Mr. Spofforth make no answer to that ?—He declined to have anything to say while I was present on the business.

9260. (Mr. Bere.) Mr. Spofforth did ?—Yes.

9261. (Mr. Coleridge.) Now at the time of the ersation Colonel Dawkins was already in the , was he not?—He was.

62. How long before the election was Colonel kins in the field?—I handed my books to your tary to-day.

63. What books do you wish?—Our house books, otel books.

264. I do not quite see how that will help you. n not asking you now when Colonel Dawkins came down, but how long he was known of as a idate for Totnes before the conversation held at Spofforth's office took place?—I should think e or four days.

265. Then how long had Colonel Dawkins come n here himself before the election?—I think the s will refresh my memory on the subject; it about a fortnight.

266. Before Colonel Dawkins was in the field had r candidates been talked of?—What, the same immediately or before?

267. Yes; I mean to say within two months re the election for Totnes had any other candi- s been considered about on the Conservative except Colonel Dawkins?—I do not remember.

268. You were, I suppose, in communication as ading Conservative with Mr. Edmonds, Mr. ock, and Mr. Harris, were you not?—I had ing to do with Mr. Harris in his correspondence. l nothing whatever to do with procuring candi- s. When they came to my house I treated them should treat every other person.

269. That is not an answer to my question.

Mr. Bere.) I am very sorry to hear that.

Mr. Coleridge.) Yes, after seeing Captain Pim's

269*. First you were of course made aware of the plans of the campaign of the Conservatives , not only close upon the arrival of the candi- s, but I want to know when did you first know y gentleman being likely to come forward on onservative side?—A day or two before Colonel kins arrived.

270. That was the first that you knew of any servative candidates coming forward to contest borough?—It was.

271. Had not you heard from Mr. Edmonds re that that they meant to endeavour to bring ard two candidates?—I heard Mr. Edmonds and other gentleman who had the management say—

272. Who was the other gentleman who had the agement who was consulted?—Mr. Kellock.

273. Mr. Harris?—No. That we had better two candidates than one.

274. At what period was that determination come After Colonel Dawkins was in the field.

275. Now do you know of any endeavour to get ntleman to stand for this borough before Colonel kins was in the field?—I do not remember any es at present.

276. Did you ever hear of an attempt to get Mr. nard to come forward?—Not during the year ; prior to that I did. He came down here. Kennard came here; there was another gentle- before him; I forget his name.

277. Was it Alexander?—I never heard of his e as a candidate.

278. Do you know of Colonel Alexander coming n here?—Until to-day, when I was looking at my s in the presence of the secretary, I was not re of a person of that name being in my house, we found his account, which I have produced.

279. You do not know in 1865 of a requisition ng been sent up to a Mr. Kennard to come down stand for this borough?—There was a requisition to some one, but whether to any Conservative idate or what name it was addressed to I cannot I signed some requisition.

280. Do you know of a requisition? Is that your dwriting? (handing a paper to witness.) Do know of a requisition to Mr. Macleay?—That is (referring) my handwriting to whomsoever directed.

9281. When was this requisition to Mr. Macleay sent up; the only date is 1865 at the top?—I do not know what part of the year it was forwarded.

9282. Then you do know that there was an attempt to get another Conservative candidate besides Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim in the year 1865?—Yes; but I do not remember the day at which that requisition was signed.

9283. Who brought you this requisition to sign?—I think it was brought by Mr. Harris.

9284. Then Mr. Harris was to your knowledge busying himself at that time about the election?—He was paid agent at that time on behalf of the Conservatives.

9285. Do you know that in addition to this requisition to Mr. Macleay, a correspondence took place between Mr. Harris and some one in London as to Mr. Kennard coming down?—I do not.

9286. Did you never hear the name of Kennard in any way mentioned?—Mr. Kennard has been here.

9287. When did Mr. Kennard come down here?—I think it must have been in the year 1865.

9288. Refer to your books and tells us. (The witness referred to the books.) Never mind the exact date, but do you know that some time in the year 1865 Mr. Kennard came down here?—I am not certain about the year even, but I remember Mr. Kennard being here.

9289. Did he come to your house?—He did.

9290. Whom did he come with?—I do not remember whether he had any one with him.

9291. Did Mr. Edmonds meet him at your house?—He did.

9292. By appointment?—I do not know.

9293. I mean when Mr. Kennard came was Mr. Edmonds there to meet him?—He was not to my knowledge; I am not at home half my time.

9294. How long after Mr. Kennard came down did Mr. Edmonds see him?—I saw them together, but what time elapsed I cannot say.

9295. Do you know the purpose for which Mr. Kennard came down to Totnes?—I do.

9296. What was it?—To look at the state of the register, and see whether he would like to become a candidate for the representation of the borough.

9297. Now you see we have two names you have told us, Macleay and Kennard, who did come down for the purpose of looking at the borough, and you told us just now that until Colonel Dawkins was in the field you knew of no other gentleman?—I thought you meant to say within a short time of that.

9298. I put it generally as to the whole year of 1865?—Perhaps 20 names were mentioned.

9299. Now I have Macleay and Kennard, will you tell me any other gentleman who thought of contesting the borough on the Conservative side?—Within what period?

9300. Within the year 1865?—If you mention a name and ask if such a person was here, if I ever heard it mentioned I will answer, but I do not recollect any other name.

9301. Did you ever hear of a sort of fancy list made out by Mr. Harris of the probabilities of the voting, if Mr. Macleay and Mr. Rennie stood on the Conservative side, and Mr. Seymour and Mr. Pender on the Liberal side?—No.

9302. Did you ever see it till now it is put in your hand that list (handing it to the witness)?—I do not know that I ever saw it; I might have seen it, but I do not remember seeing it.

9303. You will not swear that you have not?—No.

9304. Did you ever hear Mr. Rennie talked of as a candidate?—Yes, some years ago.

9305. But at this last election?—No.

9306. Then of the first person, Mr. Alexander, of Colonel Alexander you know nothing?—I never heard his name mentioned as a probable candidate.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

9307. By looking at your book can you tell us when it was that he did come down here; was it not between the time that Colonel Dawkins came and Captain Pim came?—He was here on the 4th of July 1865, and slept at our house, and he appears to have left again on the 5th.

9308. I do not ask you for an exact answer to this, but do you happen to know whether the time he came down was the same time as Mr. Seymour came down?—I did not know until I saw this name in the book to-day that such a gentleman had been here.

9309. Will you tell me when Colonel Dawkins first came?—There is an account opened to him on the 28th June 1865.

9310. Who came with him?—I do not know who came with him, but there are two dinners entered that day.

9311. Was Captain Charles Lane Fox his companion on that occasion?—There was a gentleman known as Captain Fox here during his sojourn, but we have no such name on the books.

9312. You do not know whether that was Captain Lane Fox or not?—No.

9313. But there are always two things charged to him, two beds, two breakfasts, and so on. You say he came on the 24th?—He came on the 28th of June.

9314. Who did?—Colonel Dawkins.

9315. And what is charged that day?—Two dinners.

9316. And two beds?—Apartments, but it does not say how many beds.

9317. Can you tell by the charge?—I should think very likely it is two beds.

9318. Colonel Dawkins had a valet with him, had not he?—I think he had.

9319. And Captain Fox?—I do not know.

9320. Can you tell by your book whether two servants' beds were charged there?—On the 30th there are three dinners charged.

9321. Can you tell whether two servants' beds are charged?—I do not see such a charge.

9322. Do you see one?—Apartments 7*s.* appears to have been charged on the 28th and 29th. That would include the sitting room and probably two bed rooms.

9323. Two gentlemen's beds, and then how would the two servants' beds be charged?—I do not know whether they were on board wages or not; I have very little to do with the house myself.

9324. After the bill we have seen before us we are curious to know, do you mean that Colonel Dawkins' sitting room and two bed rooms would be charged only 7*s.* in your house?—His own private room would not be charged more than 3*s.* for the day.

9325. His own private sitting room?—Yes, and the two beds 2*s.* each.

9326. And you mean to say that 3*s.* is the charge for one of the best sitting rooms in your house?—Yes.

9327. When a gentleman has a sitting room and two bed rooms do you always charge servant's room or not?—Certainly we do if they sleep in the house.

9328. Can you find any charge there either for the maintenance or the beds of the valets of these gentlemen? Who keeps your books?—Sometimes the barmaid and sometimes my daughter enters.

9329. Is that your own handwriting?—No.

9330. I will ask you as to your own memory without the books?—That is the better way, I had very little to do with that book.

9331. Do you recollect whether Colonel Dawkins had a valet with him or not?—I do not think he had.

9332. Do you recollect whether Captain Fox had?—I do not.

9333. But would there be two strange men servants about your house without your knowing it for a week together?—Very likely.

9334. Do you really mean seriously to state that two men servants could be staying in your house without your knowing it?—When there is such a bustle as there is at elections it is impossible to kno everybody.

9335. This was a fortnight before the election least. Do you mean, when it is a fortnight before election, you would not know whether there w two valets staying in your house. Come! M Heath?—If I knew I should give you an answer i moment, but it is useless to say that I do know wh I do not.

9336. You really do not know, you know so lit about your own house?—The indoor business.

9337. About your indoor business that you cann say whether there were two valets staying in yo house or not?—I do not know.

9338. Are you sure whether there was?—I sa one servant there.

9339. Having seen one servant there, did you see another with him?—I do not remember to h seen another.

9340. When Colonel Dawkins and Captain F came down Captain Pim was not in the field, was h —No.

9341. We will confine ourselves at present Colonel Dawkins. How many sitting rooms Colonel Dawkins take?—Himself?

9342. Yes.—I am not aware that he occupi more than one himself.

9343. What was the number of the sitting room, d you know, you will probably recollect that?—I thi it was No. 20.

9344. When Colonel Dawkins had one you put just now down to himself, what other rooms wer taken on his behalf by any one?—The gentlem who went there to do the ordinary business, and receive despatches and letters, &c., occupied ve nearly the whole of the house, all the sitting roo there.

9345. Will you tell me the rooms and bed roo occupied by these gentlemen, and then give me t names of the gentlemen?—I should have been pr pared with this evidence if I had had any notice th I was requested to produce it, but it is impossible f me to remember.

9346. I do not ask you to remember very accurate about it, but tell me. Colonel Dawkins you have to us had one private sitting room and two bed roo and had a valet, how many sitting rooms are there your house?—Ten.

9347. How many private rooms for the use of t family? Do you include the smoking room in the 1 —No.

9348. Do you include the coffee room?—Yes.

9349. That leaves nine?—That leaves nine.

9350. What else do you exclude from the 10 exce the coffee room?—None.

9351. How many private rooms are there in yo house?—Ten, nine besides the coffee room.

9352. Is there a ladies' coffee room besides t commercial room?—Yes.

9353. Do you include that?—No.

9354. Then there are nine available strange rooms?—Yes.

9355. Colonel Dawkins had one, how were t other eight employed at the time Colonel Dawki came down?—After his arrival?

9356. After his arrival?—There were several the rooms used by three gentlemen who were appoint by a committee to approve of the candidates for t election.

9357. First of all tell us what the names of the three gentlemen were?—Mr. Bentall, Mr. Gill, a Mr. Bastard.

9358. How many rooms did it take these th gentlemen to sit in?—They had one for their ow use.

9359. What number was that, you know you we frequently in and out to them, Mr. Heath?—I v frequently in and out?

9360. Were not you frequently in and out wi those gentlemen?—No, I was attending to m business that I had to do.

9361. Were not you a member of the committee ?—
).

9362. Not a member of the Conservative comittee ?—No.

9363. Those three gentlemen formed the whole mmittee ?—Yes.

9364. Who was chairman ?—I do not know.

9365. (Mr. Bere.) Do you mean to tell me that Mr. ellock and Mr. Edmonds were not on the Consertive committee ?—They have never been recognized such, they have been legal advisers.

9366. (Mr. Coleridge.) We have got to Colonel awkins' room, we have got to the second room ey asked for themselves. Were Mr. Kellock and
r. Edmonds constantly in that room with them ?—
r. Edmonds had a room to himself, where despatches re brought to him.

9367. That is No. 3. Now we have three sitting oms, now we want you to account for the other ting rooms in your house. How were they occupied that time ?—One was occupied by friends to the use who felt disposed to come to glean information om time to time.

9368. Tell us who those friends to the cause were ?
Oh, any of the voters, I do not remember any in rticular.

9369. We must have their names. Was Mr. arris one of them ?—Mr. Harris was occasionally in d out.

9370. Was Mr. Heard one of them ?—He was not,
never saw him there.

9371. Who were they ; come, you must recollect is. Was George Evans one of them ?—George ans was not at that part of the house, he had a mmunication with a gentleman in the bed room.

9372. He had another room, I want to know about se sitting rooms ?—I will tell you who was in the bit of visiting the house, that is the better way ferring to a book.)

9373. May I take it generally, while you are conlering that, that Colonel Dawkins took up the whole use ?—The greater portion of the house was cupied for the purposes of the election.

9374. Were any sitting rooms in that house, sitting oms mind, charged to anybody during the time that olonel Dawkins was there except to him ?—I cannot swer that question without referring to the cuments.

9375. It is not your handwriting and you did not ake it, so you cannot tell ?—I do not remember.

9376. Do you recollect anybody, from the time olonel Dawkins came down till the time of the ection was over, occupying a sitting room and paying r it himself ?—I do not remember that they did.

9377. Will you swear they did not ?—I will not.

9378. You do not believe that they did, the hole house was taken up with the election ?—I ould not say that, because the book may show, there the book before you, and it may show that there ere private families there occasionally during that
.

9379. Do you believe there were ?—I have not the ightest recollection.

9380. The whole time this was going on you have o recollection whether any one else came into the ouse ?—To occupy private rooms ?

9381. To occupy private rooms ?—I do not member.

9382. Would not any stranger coming to your use at such a time be looked on with some suspicion ?
No.

9383. Any single gentleman coming down with a g in his hand, and asking you for a private sitting om, you would give him it at such a time without king any questions ?—A private sitting room ! I not aware that we had any such visitor.

9384. I am only asking you if such a person came own whether you would not have regarded him with me suspicion ?—I should like to have known who was, but we do not ask people who come who they e, they bring their luggage.

9385. After that answer you cannot tell me whether any stranger came into your house and occupied a private sitting room but Colonel Dawkins ?—A private sitting room ?

9386. A private sitting room ?—There were bed rooms occupied.

9387. That we will come to presently ; but did anybody occupy or pay for a sitting room otherwise than Colonel Dawkins and his friends during the time he came down up to the time of the election ?—I do not remember.

9388. You do not remember that ?—I do not.

9389. And you will not go further than to say you do not recollect ?—That is all I know about it.

9390. Now we come to the bed rooms, who occupied No. 13 bed room at any time between Colonel Dawkins' arrival and the morning of the election ?—Do you want No. 13 in particular.

9390*. Yes ; No. 13 we will start with ?—There was a mysterious stranger who occupied a room in the house.

9391. Did he occupy No. 13 ?—I think it was No. 13.

9392. Had you been instructed at any time to get a room ready for a mysterious stranger who was expected down ?—I had not.

9393. Then when the mysterious stranger arrived and occupied this room, which we call No. 13, you did not know that he was coming ?—I did not know ; I did not have any intimation of the arrival of such a person; but a man came to the house and said he was sent from the club in London to manage this election.

9394. Did he say what club he was sent from ?—I did not ask him ; no, he did not.

9395. What did you understand by "the club" ?—Why, a club that conducts elections generally.

9396. Do you know the name of it ?—I do not know what the club is.

9397. Did not you ever hear of the Carlton Club ?—I have heard of it.

9398. Do you mean seriously that by the club he did not mean the Carlton Club ?—That is what he said, that he was sent by the club to conduct that election.

9399. Did he mention Mr. Rennie's name ?—He did not.

9400. Have you ever been to Mr. Rennie at the Carlton Club on election matters ?—I have never been to the Carlton Club.

9401. Do you know that Mr. Rennie is a member of the Carlton Club ?—He did not tell me so.

9402. He never told you so ?—No ; we are not friendly.

9403. You are not friendly now, but at any former period did not Mr. Rennie tell you he was a member of the Carlton Club ?—No.

9404. Do you mean seriously to say that by "the "club," the mysterious stranger did not mean the Carlton ?—He did not say so.

9405. Did not you know by "the Club," he meant the Carlton ?—I knew nothing but what he said.

9406. Did you think he meant the Reform Club ?—I did not think of any.

9407. Did you think he meant the Carlton Club ?—I should not imagine the Carlton Club would undertake to send messengers out to resort to the practice of bribery, for that was his commission.

9408. Do you mean to say that he told you that ?—He said that he was come down to act as agent at that election.

9409. Do you mean by that you thought it must mean to carry on bribery ?—No doubt about it.

9410. And you thought the Carlton Club would not lend itself to such a proceeding ?—I do not imagine that they would.

9411. Did not you know, on your oath, that the club he came from was the Carlton ?—No ; I did not wish to know, and would not ask any questions.

9412. But without asking questions, did not you believe in your own mind that it was the Carlton Club ?—I did not.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

9413. You seriously mean to say that you did not know he came from the Carlton Club?—I did not.

9414. Then why did you trust him?—Because he was ready to pay his account.

9415. You have been mixed up in all these political matters, why did you trust this man if you did not know what club he came from?—Because we have had other such men before who have always paid their accounts, and who have been accredited upon the same business.

9416. Then do you really mean to convey to us that the reason why you trusted this man was that you thought he would pay his account?—It was.

9417. Did not Colonel Dawkins pay it?—He did not.

9418. In what name did this man pay his account?—He was entered in as No. 13, or whatever number he occupied, and we dubbed him, as we usually do, Mr. Mum.

9419. Did he pay it in a cheque or in money?—He was only there three or four days; he paid it in cash.

9420. Then you trusted him simply because you thought he would pay his account, not because you knew where he came from?—We expect that all who come to our house are respectable people until we find out the contrary, and we treat them accordingly.

9421. Was it because former mysterious strangers had paid their accounts that you thought he would pay his account, and therefore you trusted him?—I knew that business of that description had been carried on here before, and that there must be some gentleman to do that description of work.

9422. And you knew that this gentleman had come from the Carlton Club?—I never heard him say so or any other person say so.

9423. When he said he came from the club, did you think it was the Carlton Club?—I did not ask him any questions.

9424. Then what club did you believe it to be that he came from?—There are various clubs in London.

9425. Did you think when he said "he came from "the club," that he meant the Conservative Club?—No.

9426. Or the Reform Club?—I never gave the matter any consideration.

9427. You have heard of the existence of the Carlton Club?—Yes.

9428. And you know the effect that that club has on the Conservative elections in different parts of the country, yet when this man says, "I come from the "club," you had no idea where he came from?—I simply avoided asking him any questions because I would not know.

9429. Had you a conviction that it was not the Carlton Club?—I had no conviction about it.

9430. And you believe that the Carlton Club had nothing to do with it?—I do.

9431. You think it was not the Carlton Club?—I do.

9432. Did he bring you any credentials?—None whatever.

9433. Did Mr. Edmonds mention anything about credentials to you?—Never.

9434. Or did you to Mr. Edmonds?—Not that I am aware of. Only on the next morning I told Mr. Edmonds that there was such a person who had arrived, and he was in the house.

9435. Did he ask you to tell Mr. Edmonds?—No.

9436. What made you tell him?—Because Mr. Edmonds had the conduct of the election.

9437. Did you go and tell Mr. Edmonds this because you thought he was in the confidence of the party?—That who was?

9438. The stranger?—The stranger must get his information from some one.

9439. Then not knowing that the stranger had come from the Carlton Club, who was the first person who called to see the stranger?—I was not at home to see.

9440. Do you recollect once being rather taken in by a gentleman who said that he had come from the club, and who turned out to be an impostor?—There was a person of that sort.

9441. At which election was that?—I think it was at Mr. Dunn's election.

9442. He was a spy who had been sent down?—I do not know who he was, but I believe he fleeced Mr. Dunn afterwards; that is a good many years ago.

9443. You had been imposed on once by a man who pretended to come down in your interest, but who in reality was engaged on the other side?—We had no evidence that he was on the other side. There was a man who came down without being employed, and who undertook to call on certain voters. After the election was over he threatened Mr. Dunn with proceedings if he did not pay him a certain sum, which I believe he eventually extorted from him.

9444. You had been rather taken in upon that occasion?—Yes.

9445. Then would you not be rather cautious how you received this gentleman without any credentials?—I had not the management of this election.

9446. But did you not under those circumstances feel that a certain degree of care was requisite as to who you received?—I did not take the trouble to inquire into it; the man remained there, that was the best proof to me that he must have been an accredited agent of some one who knew the party.

9447. Did not the gentleman who took you in also remain and pay his bill?—He remained one night only.

9448. And paid his bill you say?—He paid his bill.

9449. Did that give you an idea that he was an accredited agent also?—This man said he had been sent, the other came as a volunteer to assist.

9450. If you had understood that he had come from the Carlton Club that would have been sufficient primâ facie evidence. You say that you do not believe he came from the Carlton Club?—I do say so.

9451. Do you think the club he came from was the house of Messrs. Baxter, Rose, and Norton, where Mr. Spofforth is a partner?—No.

9452. Then what was the club that you imagined he came from?—The Bribery Club.

9453. Where is that held?—I believe its head quarters are in London, but where I do not know.

9454. Should you think they were at No. 6, Victoria Street?—I do not know, I never was there.

9455. At the same place where you saw Captain Pim and Mr. Spofforth on one occasion?—I had no introduction to them.

9456. Then on the supposition that he had come from a bribery club you trusted him?—Yes, I did; they generally pay their way.

9457. And that was the ground on which you trusted this stranger?—Yes.

9458. Will you tell us when the stranger arrived?—He arrived on the 7th of July. There is the book before you with his account.

9459. What time did he arrive, how long after Colonel Dawkins?—I think the day after.

9460. Did you know that he was coming down?—No.

9461. Did you not know that some one was coming for whom a bed room was to be kept?—I had no orders for a bed room.

9462. What time did he arrive?—I think he came by the late express at 11.18. I am not certain.

9463. Was there a fly of yours waiting for him at the railway station?—We send a fly or omnibus to every train except the morning mail.

9464. Had you sent a special fly to meet this train?—No.

9465. Where you in the house when he came?—I was in the house.

9466. Were you up then ?—I was.

9467. Did you see him ?—I did.

9468. Whom did he ask for ?—He asked me if he ld have a bed for that night, and he was sent by club in London to conduct the election.

9469. What did you say to him ?—That no doubt could give him a bed room.

9470. Is there a room in your house into which u show men such as this ?—Not that I am aware 9471. Then if the mysterious stranger in 1863 and mysterious stranger in 1865 occupied No. 13 it quite an accident ?—I do not think he did occupy same room. I think in reference to one of them occupied No. 13, and as to the other, No. 16.

9472. Is it not No. 13 and No. 15 ?—I think the k says it is No. 16.

9473. Will the books say whether these rooms re occupied ?—I think so.

9474. At that time of night there were in the house at other people ? Colonel Dawkins, Captain Fox, l what members of the committee were in the use at this time ?—I do not remember, I did not any of them after the arrival of the train.

9475. How late did they generally sit up about a tnight before the election ?—About twelve o'clock.

9476. Did you see them there that night ?—I did t.

9477. What did the stranger do when he got there ? He had some refreshments, a glass of grog at the , and then he went to bed.

9478. Was Mr. Harris in the house that night ?— s.

9479. Do you know whether Mr. Edmonds was re that night ?—No.

9480. Then whom did the stranger see that night ? None but our own family and the domestics.

9481. Who was your barmaid at that period ?— iss Prout.

9482. Is she with you now ?—She is.

9483. Then who was the chambermaid with you en ?—Martha Gale.

9484. Is she with you now ?—No.

9485. Miss Prout, the barmaid, you say is still th you ?—Yes.

9486. You had a man named Clarke who was the iter ?—I do not know whether he had left then.

9487. And a waiter of the name of Brown ?—He there now.

9488. Was he there at the election of 1865 ?—Yes ; arke was the assistant waiter.

9489. Was Pack the name of the porter and boots ? Yes ; he was the head porter, the boots was another an.

9490. What was the name of the boots ?—The man o was there at that time has left, I think his name s Pack.

9491. What was the name of the cook ?—I do not ow her by any other name than "cook."

9492. Is she with you still ?—She is.

9493. And the scullery maid, is she there still or t ?—I think she is the same.

9494. And there were two private servants ?—Yes.

9495. Are they with you now ?—I think one of em is gone to Cheltenham.

9496. You had three assistant waiters, do you ow their names ?—There was one a female waiter, the name of Clarke, and another, an assistant, of e name of Mary Farley.

9497. Is she with you now ?—When required, she not a permanent servant ; I do not know her me.

9438. That makes five waiters and waitresses ; at at time you would say that the house was full ?— es.

9499. And occupied by Colonel Dawkins ?—Nearly e whole ; they had the commercial room downstairs attend to.

9500. And, with the exception of that, the whole the house was occupied by Colonel Dawkins ?—The greater portion of the sitting rooms were occupied on the election account.

9501. And the whole of the private rooms ?—I do not say the whole were ; I think the greater portion of them were.

9502. Who would have showed the mysterious stranger to his room ?—I should expect the chambermaid. I did not.

9503. What was the first communication with the mysterious stranger in the morning ?—I did not see him in the morning ; not until the evening of that day.

9504. Where did he breakfast ?—In his bed room I believe.

9505. And who would be the person who would have taken his breakfast up to him ?—It is customary for the chambermaid to wait upon all who are in their bed rooms ; whether any other arrangement was made as to him I do not know.

9506. Martha Gale would have been the person to have taken up his breakfast ?—She would.

9507. About what time did you let Mr. Edmonds know that this stranger had arrived ?—I saw him during the day and said that a man had arrived.

9508. How early did you see him ?—About 10 or 11 o'clock.

9509. Where did you see him ?—He used to come to the house repeatedly every day during the election.

9510. Whom had you told of the arrival of the stranger before you told Mr. Edmonds ?—No one.

9511. Had you not told Mr. Kellock ?—I did not tell him ; I did not see him until afterwards.

9512. Did you tell Mr. Harris ?—I did not. I told Mr. Edmonds. I did not tell any other person.

9513. You are quite certain about that ?—I am.

9514. Who was the first person whom you knew of as going to the stranger ?—Late in the evening of that day I saw Mr. Frederick Evans go upstairs.

9515. Before you had seen Mr. Frederick Evans go upstairs, did you receive anything from Mr. Edmonds for the stranger ?—I do not think I received anything the first day.

9516. Can you tell us when did you first receive anything from Mr. Edmonds for the stranger ?—On the Saturday before the election I think.

9517. Was that the day after he came ?—Yes, if he had come on the Friday.

9518. What was it that you received ?—I received a bag from Mr. Edmonds.

9519. Do you mean that you received it into your own hands ?—Yes ; it was a black bag.

9520. Was it a little hand leather bag ?—Yes.

9521. Was it heavy ?—Yes ; perhaps it was some seven or eight pounds weight.

9522. From your knowledge of these transactions should you say that it contained a thousand pounds in gold ?—I have no doubt of that, or more.

9523. Has Mr. Edmonds since told you that that bag did contain a thousand pounds or more ?—He told me that the first bag contained more than that.

9524. What was the amount ?—It was 1,500*l*.

9525. Did you give it to the stranger ?—I did.

9526. Where did you give it to him ?—In the bed room.

9527. About what time did you go up to the bed room ?—I should think about 12 o'clock in the day.

9528. Were all the blinds drawn down ?—I do not know that any of them were drawn ; there was only one blind in the bed room.

9529. Was that in the bed room drawn down at that time ?—I do not think it was.

9530. Can the houses which are opposite look into that bed room ?—It is an open square.

9531. When did Mr. Edmonds next give you anything for the stranger ?—I was out of town on the Monday.

9532. Did he give you anything on the Sunday ?—No ; I was out of town on the Monday, and when I returned on the evening of Monday there was a parcel which had been left in the bar to be intrusted to me to deliver to this man.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

9533. Are you quite sure that it was on the Saturday and not on the Friday that you had this 1,500*l.* given to you by Mr. Edmonds?—I had a bag, I did not know what it contained, given to me on the Saturday.

9534. And the stranger left your house, you say, on the Saturday?—I do not know whether it was on the Saturday or the Sunday that he left; I think it was on the Sunday.

9535. How long was he away?—I should think from 12 to 18 hours.

9536. What train did he leave by on Saturday or Sunday?—I do not know.

9537. Are you sure that it was not on the Saturday night that he left, and not on the Friday night when you received this money from Mr. Edmonds?—If he had come on the Thursday, the bag containing the money, as I presume, would have been given to me on the Friday. It was in the forenoon of the day that he had the money, and during the evening of the day after he arrived here he had been round the town.

9538. On the first night he came late, and nothing could by any means have been done that night. You saw Mr. Edmonds the next day, and told Mr. Edmonds that the stranger had arrived; was that the same day on which you received the bag from Mr. Edmonds?—I am not quite clear about that.

9539. As I understood you, the stranger was out and about the town in the forenoon of the day after he arrived here late at night?—No, on the evening of that day.

9540. Then was it on the evening of the day on which you say the stranger was about the town that you received the bag from Mr. Edmonds?—I am not clear about that.

9541. You have told us that about 12 o'clock on that day you received a bag from Mr. Edmonds?—That is so.

9542. Where did you receive the bag you have been speaking of?—In a waiting room adjoining the bar.

9543. Then was it after receiving, as you say, this money from Mr. Edmonds for the stranger that he was out and about the town?—I think he had been out before that, he had been out the evening before.

9544. Then, supposing that the stranger had come down on the Thursday, and he had been out on the Friday, you would have received the bag on the Saturday?—I think so.

9545. Then you are not certain that the stranger did not come down to Totnes on the Wednesday night by the late train?—If I had my diary with me I should be able to tell you the date. I think he came on the 7th.

9546. Are you quite certain about that?—It was not sooner than that (the witness looks at a book), the 7th was the day on which he arrived.

9547. How do you know that it was on the 7th, from memory?—There is the book to prove it; the 7th was on the Friday.

9548. Then how do you know that it was on the Friday that the stranger arrived?—Only from reference to the book. I see that his account is begun on that day.

9549. He came late in the evening on the first day; is there anything that appears in his name on the Friday the 7th. What day is the glass of grog which he had in the bar charged to him?—He appears to have arrived on the 7th, and is charged a bed for that night; and then there is his breakfast on the following morning.

9550. Is the breakfast down on the 7th of July?—The breakfast is down on the 8th.

9551. You say now that the first breakfast that he was charged was on the 8th, on the Saturday, and you have told us in the former part of your evidence that Colonel Dawkins arrived here on the 28th of June, and that the stranger came the day after. Will you try and recollect when it was?—This stranger came on the 7th of July.

9552. Let us see whether there was not another stranger. You had Captain Pim there at that time?—I would wish to be correct. Colonel Dawkins' account is carried forward from the 6th of July. The first time the stranger came was on the 7th of July; that appears to have been on the Friday.

9553. When do you say that Colonel Dawkins came to your house?—On the 28th of June.

9554. Then what you have stated in the previous part of your evidence is not correct, that the stranger arrived the day after Colonel Dawkins arrived?—It might have been so.

9555. What made you make a mistake of a whole week in your calculation?—Upon reference to the account I see that one of the headings there begins on the 6th; I think that was the commencement of the account. Unless I look at the book I cannot remember the dates.

9556. I have asked you whether from your memory you would be able to give us any account of the stranger's arrival; you stated in the commencement of your evidence that he was here on the 28th, or on the day after Colonel Dawkins' arrival, and now you say this man came on the 7th; it must have been a mistake if you said that he came on the day after Colonel Dawkins?—It was a mistake if I have so stated.

9557. You certainly must perfectly well recollect how long Colonel Dawkins was in the house before the man whom you call the stranger came?—I do not recollect any more than the books refresh my memory.

9558. Then Colonel Dawkins may have been eight or nine days in the house before the stranger came?—I think he was.

9559. Did you hear the evidence of Evens, who was examined to-day?—I heard a part of it.

9560. He stated that this mysterious stranger, whom we have been talking about, was here for 10 days before the election?—I did not hear that.

9561. If he has said so, and said that he saw the stranger, he must have been mistaken?—I do not know whether he saw him or not.

9562. And that into No. 13 of your house, if it were that number, the stranger must have come and gone away again?—That is very likely.

9563. That being so, you will not swear that Mr. Mum did not come here some 10 days before the election, and may have gone away and come back again on the 7th of July?—I do not remember the date at which he first arrived.

9564. Was that the first time that you ever saw the stranger when he came back for the second time to your house on the Friday?—I saw him when he came here first.

9565. Supposing that he had come here on the day after the arrival of Colonel Dawkins, which was some ten days before the period which you have mentioned, was it on his first arrival that you brought him the bag from Mr. Edmonds you have mentioned?—It was a day or two after his arrival that I carried him the first bag, containing something from Mr. Edmonds.

9566. Then how long did he stay in your house altogether; do you think he was here a fortnight?—I cannot say of my own knowledge; the bill which you have before you shows that he was here for four days after his return.

9567. Are you able to tell us when he went away from Totnes on the first occasion, if he did go away?—That I do not know.

9568. Are you able to tell us whether it was on the Friday night or on the Saturday night when he left?—I think it was on the Sunday night when he left.

9569. That would have been the Sunday before Friday the 7th of July?—That I cannot say.

9570. I have no doubt that you are correct in what you said in the first instance, that he came down here first on the day after the arrival of Colonel Dawkins; that would be on the 29th of June. Suppose that he ne on that day in the first instance, you think that was on the Saturday following when you received e bag from Mr. Edmonds; there would be one ar day between his arrival and the receiving of e bag?—I do not think I received the bag from r. Edmonds until within four or five days of the ction.

9571. But you know that the stranger had been wn here before then, and had gone away again?—ne dates confuse me very much; I do not remember e dates; all that I know is that when he first came re I saw him.

9572. Then are you able to tell us how long you ink this mysterious stranger was in your house ogether?—I do not think he was there more than veek altogether.

9573. And out of that week he was absent for ne short period, was he not?—Yes; he was absent some few hours.

9574. (Mr. Bere.) Was this the elderly gentleman om we have heard of?—No: this was the light-ired gentleman with light whiskers.

9575. (Mr. Coleridge.) How long during the time was there was he away; two or three days?—lo not think he was away above one day.

9576. Do you mean he might have gone away to ndon by the mail from one night and come back e next night?—I do not think he was long enough ay to go to London.

9577. On the second arrival what time did he ne to the house?—I think he came once by the il train in the morning, 4.40.

9578. Was that day of his second arrival on the nday or Monday before the election?—I think it s.

9579. Can you say whether it was on the Sunday the Monday?—I do not remember. I think on e Monday.

9580. That would be on the Tuesday morning ally?—The Monday morning, 4.40.

9581. Did you hear anything about his coming wn with Mr. Pender's son?—No.

9582. On the Sunday morning before the election, d another gentleman arrive by the 4.40 train as e guest of Captain Pim?—I think there was a gen-man came, an acquaintance of his; I am not tain.

9583. Was that the same morning or the morning fore the mysterious stranger came?—I do not member.

9584. Captain Pim has sworn that his friend was e only person who came that morning in the "Seven ars" fly to your house by the mail, and there was other fly at the station except that one, and so r. Pender's son was taken by your fly to the "Sey-our Arms"?—Yes.

9585. Did you know of that circumstance?—No.

9586. You never heard of your fly taking an enemy the other camp?—An "enemy"? I do not know at we have any.

9587. Mr. Pender's son?—I am very friendly with n; and I heard that one of our men took some avy luggage across the bridge, whether with the or not I do not know.

9588. Who was the driver?—Beer.

9589. Do you recollect whether that was the Mon-y morning or the Tuesday morning?—I do not 9590. It may have been one or the other?—Yes.

9591. Cannot you say about such a thing as that, stranger coming at that time of the morning, ether one or two strangers arrived on the Sunday ght?—I was not up.

9592. You do not know?—No.

9593. It is more likely that the mysterious stranger t back on the Tuesday morning than the Monday rning at 4.40?—I think on the Monday morning.

9594. That you would not be certain about?—I certain I was out of town on Monday on my ordi-ry business, and when I returned there was a parcel, which had been waiting some time to be delivered by some trustworthy person to Mr. Mum.

9595. That was on the Monday?—Yes.

9596. What time did you get back on the Monday?—About 4 o'clock.

9597. Then you found this parcel?—Yes.

9598. Finding this parcel; was Mr. Mum there?—He was upstairs.

9599. You are quite certain of that?—Yes.

9600. Then there can be no doubt it was on the Monday morning he arrived?—Yes.

9601. Whom was the parcel left by?—Left by Mr. Edmonds. I saw Mr. Edmonds before.

9602. What sort of parcel was that?—Oh, a small parcel.

9603. Heavy?—Yes; not so heavy as the bag.

9604. We are getting to it by degrees?—Was it the second or third parcel you had received?—The second.

9605. We have got the stranger gone away and come back again; how long before that second parcel which you delivered to him was it that you had received the bag from Mr. Edmonds in the first instance; a week?—No, I do not think it was above a day.

9606. The first bag you received from Mr. Edmonds could not have been earlier than the Thursday before?—The Friday or Saturday.

9607. The stranger had gone away on the Saturday night late?—He left on the Sunday, I think, and came back on the Monday morning.

9608. You had received a bag on the Friday or Saturday and took that to the stranger?—Yes.

9609. Did he say anything when you gave it to him; did he ask where it came from?—I said Mr. Edmonds had sent it to him.

9610. That was the first instance?—Yes, the first parcel.

9611. Did he say he expected it?—I do not remember that he did.

9612. You do not think he had been in the town a couple of days before he received that?—I did not.

9613. It is only right to tell you that Mr. Evans, who was seeing him constantly, swears he was there 10 days before the election?—It must have been without my knowledge; I did not see him.

9614. You say that on his arrival you received him?—Yes, I saw him.

9615. Had he a glass of grog in the bar?—He had something.

9616. Could he have gone away twice instead of once?—He must have if he had been there many days before without my knowing it.

9617. Always in the room number 13?—Very likely he ordered that room to be kept for him.

9618. (Mr. Bere.) A "light gent" occurs long before in the book, 3rd July. You put him as "light gent;" could it be as early as Monday the 3rd July that this gentleman appeared? He is entered as "light gent"?—It may have been.

9619. (Mr. Coleridge.) If it was so would the first parcel you gave him have been a couple of days after that, and not the time you stated?—There was no parcel delivered till Friday or Saturday before the election.

9620. That was the bag?—Yes, the little bag.

9621. Then after the stranger received the parcel, and before he went away, what persons had been up to his bedroom to see him?—The only person I saw enquiring for the number was Mr. Frederick Evens.

9622. You did not see Mr. Screach?—I do not remember. Screach was constantly in and out.

9623. Did you ever see Harris?—Never.

9624. Never saw him at all?—I never knew he went to the top floor.

9625. Is that on the top floor?—Yes.

9626. When anyone went to this stranger, how did you send him up; did they come to you first?—Sometimes they would come to me.

9627. What did they ask for when they came to you; whom did they ask for?—They usually went up to the room where they had been accustomed to go.

9628. The first time Frederick Evens or anybody

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

went to the stranger who showed him the way?—I do not know. He was out in the town himself and probably called upon some one and probably gave his number.

9629. Who was the first person who asked you for mysterious stranger?—Mr. Frederick Evens.

9630. What did you tell him or what did he say? Did he say you have got a mysterious stranger?—He said, is Mr. Mum here? For several years we had called him Mr. Mum.

9631. I thought it was the black man?—Mum is the only name we have given him.

9632. Evens asked for Mr. Mum and you showed him this room?—I did.

9633. Can you recollect what day that was?—I cannot say.

9634. How long after you received the packet from Edmonds?—I think before I received any bag.

9635. Then subsequently to your receiving the bag he went up again?—Yes.

9636. And Screach also?—Yes.

9637. Harris you cannot say about?—I do not think he went there.

9638. Did either of your sons go?—Not that I know of.

9639. George and James, they are both your sons?—Yes.

9640. Did any other parcel come from Edmonds for the stranger before he went away the first time? But how often did he go away altogether?—I am not aware of his leaving but once.

9641. On the Saturday night?—Saturday or Sunday.

9642. How many parcels came before he left on the Saturday or Sunday?—I think but one parcel.

9643. You received three parcels in all from Mr. Edmonds?—Yes.

9644. When did you receive the second parcel?—The second, I think, on the Monday.

9645. What time did you receive that?—I do not exactly remember; two or three o'clock.

9646. Was the stranger in at the time?—He was in at the time I carried the parcel up.

9647. Did you take it up immediately you received it?—Yes, it was waiting there for me.

9648. You carried that up; that was No. 2. When did you give him No. 3?—I think on the Tuesday morning he had No. 3.

9649. The nomination day?—If it was the nomination day.

9650. You then took him No. 3?—Yes.

9651. Was No. 3 such a parcel as No. 2?—It was heavier than No. 2.

9651. Had you any account of the money you delivered to him?—I had not. I did not wish to know. I never asked questions till it was all over.

9653. In addition to the money offered to you to deliver to Mum, did you receive a cheque from Mr. Edmonds for 500*l.*?—I did.

9654. When did you receive that?—That was Tuesday, the nomination day.

9655. When did you cash it?—I had cash in the house to a considerable extent, and I paid it into the bank that day or the day following.

9656. Did you pay it into the bank at all before the election?—The books will prove that.

9657. You paid it in on the day of the election?—I think so.

9658. (Mr. Bere.) You had a cheque for 105*l.* on the 7th; where did you get that from?—It had nothing to do with the election.

9659. Where did you get it?—Was it a cheque or cash?

9660. Cash. Where did you get the 105*l.*?—What day?

9661. Paid into the bank the 7th July?—The ordinary business of the house; nothing to do with the election.

9662. Where was it from?—The ordinary receipts of the house. The only money I received was a 500*l.* cheque, and I gave the stranger 200*l.* at one time.

9663. What did Mr. Edmonds tell you the 500*l.* cheque was for?—He said the gentleman upstairs wanted some cash, and I was to cash that and get it for him.

9664. Had Mr. Edmonds been to see the gentleman upstairs?—Not that I am aware of.

9665. Did you see him go to his room?—Never.

9666. Nor Mr. Kellock?—No.

9667. Nor Mr. Bastard?—Not either of them.

9668. You gave him 200*l.* of it?—Yes, 200*l.* and 90*l.* during the day.

9669. The election day?—The election day. He had 290*l.* out of the 500*l.* cheque.

9670. How did you pay Edmonds the balance?—I gave him a cheque on my bankers for the balance.

9671. You gave a cheque on your bankers for everything you received except for what you paid the gentleman upstairs?—Yes.

9672. What sum of money passed through your hands individually for distribution?—At the last election?

9673. It was all at the last election. I thought you would have found that out by this time?—There was a sum of 10*l.* paid to a man named Clarke.

9674. Who paid him?—I paid him or his wife. They were in arrears of rent.

9675. Where?—In my house.

9676. What for?—They were in difficulties about the rent, and I advanced them 10*l.*

9677. At what time? What day? Nomination day?—It might have been.

9678. Was Clarke a voter?—He was.

9679. How did he vote?—He voted for Dawkins and Pim.

9680. In fact you paid him 10*l.* for the vote?—I said nothing about his vote.

9681. That is what we want to know. How came you to pay him 10*l.*?—Because they were in difficulties.

9682. Do you pay all people in Totnes who are in difficulties?—It depends upon who they are.

9683. And how they vote?—I frequently advance money to people.

9684. Was not that paid (it is no good fencing) that he might vote for Dawkins and Pim?—There was not a word said.

9685. How came they to come and ask you for the money?—Because they were in difficulties, in arrears of rent, and I paid it, knowing I should be reimbursed from the funds in hand.

9686. Knowing you would get it back from the candidates. What did they say?—The wife?

9687. Yes?—They said they were in indigent circumstances and should be glad if I could get them some cash.

9688. Did they say anything about the other party having been at them?—They did.

9689. Let us have that?—The wife said Mr. Jeffery Michelmore called and wanted them to vote for them.

9690. What did Mr. Jeffery Michelmore offer them?—I do not know. I did not go into particulars.

9691. It was a mere wink or a nod, and you understood it was something about voting. Did she say they had been about her husband's vote?—They wanted to get her to leave our house and go and wait at the other.

9692. They told you they were indigent, so you gave them 10*l.*?—Yes.

9693. And that counteracted the effect of Mr. Michelmore's blandishments?—I do not know.

9694. You got them all right?—Yes.

9695. And got repaid?—Yes.

9696. From whom?—Mr. Edmonds and I made it up.

9697. How was it put down?—"10*l.* paid to Clark."

9698. On the nomination day?—I do not know.

9699. I daresay Mr. Edmonds understood?—Oh yes.

9700. We want 157*l.* to be accounted for by you?

man named Narramore called upon me; at least, alled at the house.

701. When?—Whether on the Monday or the day or the Saturday before the election I am not ain, and he said he was negotiating with a voter.

702. What was the voter to do?—To vote for our

703. Did he say who the voter was?—He did.

704. Who was it?—A man named Thomas Dennis.

705. What did Dennis want to vote for you?—100*l.*

706. Did you give it to him?—Mr. Narramore not see Mr. Mum; he was not disengaged when alled upon him.

707. Upon Mum or Narramore?—Upon Mum.

708. You went to see him?—Yes; but he was en- ed.

709. Whom was he engaged with?—I did not go

710. Was the door locked?—I knocked at the r and that was the answer, "engaged;" and I re- ed there was a person waiting for an answer, and ent up again and saw Mr. Mum.

711. You kept Narramore waiting all the time?— went to one of the smoking rooms.

712. Then you went to Mum again and he was ngaged?—Yes.

713. Had you seen anyone come down?—No, I at supper. I went up and told him again there a report. I had not seen the man; but that an rmediate man had been there, and in consideration eceiving 100*l.* he would vote, and that he had offered on the other side.

714. Did he say by whom on the other side?—

715. Did Mum give you 100*l.*?—No; he said he ld refer to his memoranda, and if I would send ramore himself he would let him know what was e done.

716. What was done?—I went up in a quarter of our and Mum gave me a parcel for Narramore; t it contained I did not examine, but Narramore the parcel and went off.

717. There was money in the parcel?—No doubt; I did not count it.

718. (Mr. Coleridge.) Narramore got the parcel was satisfied?—Yes.

719. You believe it was 100*l.*?—I believe it was.

720. Who was the next?—A man named Roes-

721. What about him?—He was living at Bath; me and voted, and we paid the travelling expenses way. After he had voted he was about the e, he could not see the man to pay his expenses, ked him what he would be content with and he 5*l.* I thought it moderate and paid him the 5*l.*

722. Who had written to him to come and vote? do not know anything about it.

723. Who was the next?—The next was Edward er.

724. Did he come to you?—Edward Shinner e to me at the Plymouth Inn to sell some pro- y.

725. What sort of property?—He had a house garden which he wished to sell and which he ed at 400*l.*

726. Is that the house he votes upon?—Yes, and other party had offered to purchase it, but having ys voted on our side he wished our party to have

727. What did you do then; what was his price? 00*l.*

728. Was that for the property or his vote?— property; and the property might be worth ween 16*l.* and 18*l.* a year; and finding that he likely to be off that day, the Saturday prior to election, I agreed to purchase the property of at 400*l.* and paid him 40*l.* deposit, and the usual tract, if not completed within a given time the sit money to be forfeited.

729. You never did complete it?—The election lost and it was never completed.

9730. How did you charge the 40*l.* in the account?—Mr. Edmonds paid it.

9731. That makes up 157*l.*; there were some other cases?—Not that I made arrangements with.

9732. Did not you pay other money away during the election?—Not any amounts that I know of.

9733. What did you pay altogether during the election, independently of what you have told us, without your being able to go into particulars?—I do not know of any other amount, I cannot refresh my memory.

9734. What did you pay over and above the 157*l.* during the election or the fortnight before?—During the election I would have the servants bringing me down a note, "What is your opinion of A.B., is he "trustworthy for 25*l.*?"

9735. That note came from Mum?—Yes.

9736. Have you any of those curious documents of Mr. Mum?—No.

9737. You did not keep those for seven years before you destroyed them like the correspondence?—Oh,no.

9738. When they came down you stated your opinion?—If they were trustworthy to borrow 25*l.* I would say so; and if they were doubtful I would say so.

9739. Who was to borrow?—That was the form.

9740. Did you not spend a single sixpence over 157*l.*?—No.

9741. Not of your own, but anyone's?—Not anyone's.

9742. Not from the time Colonel Dawkins came till the election was over?—No.

9743. In addition to what you spent yourself, were you privy to negotiations amounting to something like 500*l.*?—I heard of them, but I did not see money pass.

9744. Never mind about money passing, tell us about those?—I had information from a voter named Edwin Shinner.

9745. That is not Edward?—No, Edwin. On the nomination day that Pender's people were offering 100*l.* a man to himself and others (Mr. Champernowne's tenantry); I was informed the amount of 100*l.* had been offered to a man named Edmonds and another man named Marks.

9746. That is 300*l.* you heard of being offered?—Yes.

9747. To those three people?—Yes.

9748. What did you do in consequence?—Nothing, we shut up.

9749. That does not account for any part of the 500*l.* you were privy to?—That is merely hearsay.

9750. Do you know of any sums of money paid to voters at the time I speak of, or offered, from the time Colonel Dawkins came down up to the day of the election over and above the 157*l.* you have spoken of?—Only from report; rumour.

9751. You were not present at any negotiations?—No.

9752. What others do you know?—Mugford had 25*l.*

9753. Who gave it?—I do not know.

9754. You know, by report, of 500*l.* being distributed on your side or on the other?—Ours; I do not know of my own knowledge.

9754*. Whom do you represent as the parties having the 500*l.* on your side; let us have the names, and the amount, and who gave it them?—I think that has been exhausted by Evens before; that is all I have heard about it.

9755. I want to know, and it is fair as you have been implicated to ask you the names of the persons and by whom paid?—I have not been present when any individual has been paid.

9756. We do not say you have, but we want to know how you were going to account for 500*l.* which you were privy to as paid on your side?—I have no particulars.

9757. Do you mean to say you have never stated that you could mention 500*l.* to which you were privy to the payment?—Never.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

9758. Do you mean to say you do not know of 500*l.* worth of offers made to people on your side?—Of offers made?

9759. Yes?—Not from my own knowledge, I have never been present or a party to it.

9760. Do not you know of it?—Only from report, therefore I do not know.

9761. I ask you from report who the persons were who had the 500*l.*, what amounts they respectively had, and by whom those amounts were supposed to be paid?—I told that gentleman to day that I had no doubt 500*l.* had been expended in our house.

9762. 500*l.* expended in your house over and above the sum obtained from Mum?—No.

9763. Do you believe this 500*l.* was all the money that was expended in your house?—Yes, that I heard anything about.

9764. You have told us Mum probably had about 3,000*l.*?—Rather over 3,000*l.*

9765. And out of that 500*l.* was paid in your house?—There might have been about 500*l.* paid there.

9766. The 500*l.* was Mum's money?—It all came from him except the 40*l.*, the 10*l.*, and the 5*l.*

9767. You mean that the whole of the 500*l.* of which you spoke was money paid without any exception to people in your house?—It was so reported.

9768. And paid in your house in addition to those sums paid to the bribers; did you see the bribed?—No, the bribers came down; I saw then occasionally.

9769. Of the 3,000*l.* the total amount, do you mean that 2,500*l.* was paid to bribers, taken away and used out of your house?—I expect the agent who was employed to pay people out of it carried it off; what sum was paid I do not know.

9770. And the 500*l.* of which you speak was the amount that was paid out of the same stock of money Mr. Mum had received but paid in your house?—Probably in the house.

9771. Of that 500*l.* that was expended in your house over and above the 157*l.* you have told me of how many cases do you know of your own knowledge?—I do not remember any.

9772. Did you hear whom the voters talked to about money in your house during the period I have referred to?—I heard a voter of the name of Diggins say on the Monday night before the election, that if he could get 40*l.* he would vote for Dawkins and Pim.

9773. Was Diggins generally on your side or on the other side?—Alternately.

9774. After he had said that, as the active agent what did you do, whom did you suggest to Diggins that he should go to?—I made no suggestion whatever. It was uncertain whether we should retire or not.

9775. Did you say anything to him?—No.

9776. Do you mean that Diggins made this offer of selling himself at the moderate price of 40*l.* and you did not see him?—We thought of retiring.

9777. Did you suggest that he might get it?—No.

9778. Nobody in your presence?—No.

9779. Did you hear of anybody saying so?—Not a soul.

9780. Nobody answered him?—He came at some party meeting.

9781. When he made this offer to sell himself at the moderate sum of 40*l.* nobody answered him; it fell flat upon the audience?—He was at some party meeting in the house.

9782. (Mr. Bere.) Diggins was one of the men who signed the requisition?—He was.

9782. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know that Diggins afterwards was paid?—I do not know.

9783. Besides this man Diggins whose observation fell so flat on his audience, whom else did you hear talk about money in your house from the time Colonel Dawkins was there till the day after the election?—I cannot give you the names, I saw no money change hands but that.

9784. You have told us over and over again that; I want to know what money you know of changing hands although you did not see it?—I cannot tel you.

9786. You said you could give information abou this 500*l.*?—I have not said so.

9787. You mean that that is a mistake?—That could give information to the effect that it might hav been paid in our premises, 500*l.*?

9788. Of what was the sum paid you know nothing but Diggins suggested 40*l.*?—No, I do not.

9789. On what day was that?—Monday.

9790. You were talking of retiring the day befor the nomination?—Well!

9791. Did things get better on the nomination day —They looked a little better at night.

9792. More money was spent?—I do not know.

9793. You gave the parcel after it came from Mr Edmonds to the stranger?—I did.

9794. You mean to say that you know of no more money that was spent?—I do not.

9795. Do you not believe that more than that give to the stranger was spent?—I have no doubt of it.

9796. How much money was there do you suppose in the parcel on the last occasion?—Mr. Edmonds ha told me the sum was 1,000*l.*

9797. You know it was all spent?—No doubt of it

9798. What do you mean by saying that you know of no more that was spent?—I do not know wh received it.

9799. Do you know of money being paid to Franci Coombes?—I do not.

9800. Did you never hear of his being paid?—Never.

9801. You know nothing at all about it?—O former elections.

9802. Did you in the election of 1865?—I never heard that he received a penny.

9803. Was he in your house during the las election?—No.

9804. After you had heard Diggins make these ob servations did he leave the room?—He was in th entry.

9805. Did you see him go away with anyone?—No, I took no notice.

9806. Frederick Evens said so?—I took no interes in the matter.

9807. Or either, in your house?—No, he gave n information.

9808. Now, do you know about Eastman?—Henr Eastman?

9809. Yes.—On the day of the election he wante to be paid, but he had none.

9810. How much did he want?—He said he woul be content with 200*l.*

9811. Whom did he ask?—It was stated publicly i the presence of three or four of the Conservatives.

9812. Who were the three or four of the Conserva tive party?—Several of the names we have just had.

9813. Who else was there?—I do not remember.

9814. Was Mr. Kellock there?—I do not remembe No, it was the smoking room.

9815. Mr. Edmonds?—No.

9816. Frederick Evens?—No.

9817. Screach?—No.

9818. Either of your sons?—No.

9819. After he had made that statement did h vote?—I suppose he did.

9820. Which way did he vote?—That I am n clear about. I think he might have voted one wa one.

9821. Eastman I am talking of?—Yes.

9822. Did you hear Coombes say he wanted money —I did not.

9823. Did he get the 20*l.*?—No, not a farthing t my knowledge.

9824. Do you know a man called Hole?—Franci Hole.

9825. What did he say he wanted?—He had be sent for by the other party, and he told me if he ha been sent to before he would have come and voted fo us.

9826. What did he say he wanted to vote for you

He did not mention any sum ; he said he had been ndsomely treated.

9827. (Mr. Bere.) What did that mean ?—The sum at was paid I suppose for coming down.

9828. (Mr. Coleridge.) What does handsome pay an at an election ?—He was a draper who had left e town ; he was living in London.

9829. Did he get a couple of hundred ?—I never ard.

9830. Should you call that handsome pay for the t election ?—I should think so.

9831. Do you know that any voter had a couple of ndred ?—I do not know.

9832. Do you know one called Lampen ?—Thomas mpen.

9833. What did he want ?—He called at my door I nk the Monday before the election, and he said he d always supported the party, and he hoped he uld be remembered upon this occasion.

9834. What did you say to him ?—I had nothing do with it till after the election was over. If any s paid he would get his share.

9835. Did he get any ?—Not a penny.

9836. For the last election ?—There were no funds.

9837. Was the mysterious stranger entirely ex-nsted ?—I expect it was by the Tuesday morning.

9838. Mugford ?—I did not see any money paid to n, but he was about the house ; the information s received that he had had 25*l.* ; for its correctness will not answer.

9839. From whom ?—From our party.

9840. Raymond ?—I know nothing about him.

9841. Did he ever ask you for anything ?—No.

9842. Pitts ?—I know nothing about him.

9843. He did not come to you and say he wanted ything ?—No.

9844. No promise made ?—No.

9845. William Stoyle ?—I know nothing about m.

9846. Shillabeer ?—I know nothing about him.

9847. Who else can, you tell us ?—I have looked er the list, and I have given you all, as far as my emory will serve me, who had anything.

9848. (Mr. Bere.) Remembering the caution I ve given you, from the information that has been ven to you, do you still adhere to the assertion that u know nothing about bribery at those elections. mes Reeves, R. Pitts, William Stoyle, and Shilla-er ; any payments of money, or negotiations for the rchase of their votes ?—I have not the slightest collection of either.

9849. You saw our secretary this morning ; did u give him some information ?—What I told him I n ready to carry out now.

9850. Did you not tell him you did know about ichard Pitts, William Stoyle, and Shillabeer ?—I did t.

9851. What paper have you got there ? (Handing some papers to the secretary.)—Perhaps I was inking of a former election of Pitt's.

9852. Do you know anything about Thomas Mat-am ?—I know him very well.

9853. What transactions had you with him at the ection of 1865 ?—During the election ?

9854. Yes.—With respect to his vote ?

9855. Yes.—Not a syllable.

9856. Did you pay him any money during the ection, or before it ?—I never saw him.

9857. Did you pay him any money ?—I did not.

9858. Did you give him a cheque for 235*l.* in his and ?—I did not.

9859. At any time ?—Never.

9860. Have you ever paid him any money ?—ever. I bought a gig of him since then.

9861. Did you give him 235*l.* for the gig ?—Oh, o.

9862. When did you buy the gig ?—Since the ection.

9863. What did you give him for it ?—I gave him l. for it.

9864. When did you see him before the election ?—Not often, not for months before.

9865. Did you see him just after ?—No.

9866. At any time had you paid him money ?—Only the purchase of the gig, it had nothing to do whatever with the election.

9867. For years past ?—For years past. Whatever transactions I have had with him were in the ordinary way of dealing. I will not say I have never bought any hay or straw of him.

9868. Did you ever give him a cheque, or place a cheque in his hand for 235*l.* ?—Never.

9869. That you swear ?—I do.

9870. John Tucker ; do you know anything about him in regard to the election of 1865 ?—The butcher you mean.

9871. I do not know his trade.—I know such a person.

9872. You know him ?—I do.

9873. What as regards him ?—He never was paid a farthing for his vote.

9874. That is another election in 1862 ; do you know three people of the name of Chamings, Drew, and Ruby ?—I do not know of Ruby.

9875. Chamings of Wild Woods ; do you not know of any negotiations as to Chamings at the election of 1865 ?—I have not spoken to him in my life.

9876. Did your son John tell you he had been over to see him ?—On the morning of the election, when Dawkins and Pim had withdrawn.

9877. How do you mean withdrawn ; they went to the poll, did they not ?—When the agent found that they had been foiled, they offered enormous sums to persons without intending to carry the cause.

9878. Were Chamings, Drew, and Ruby three of those persons ?—I never heard of those persons.

9879. Was your son John the person who offered to meet those gentlemen ?—I did not know it.

9880. From whom have you heard it ?—I never heard of those men.

9881. From whom have you heard that any offers of preposterous sums were made at any time in the day to voters ?—That heavy sums had been paid.

9882. That heavy sums and offers had been made without any intention of paying ?—On the day of the election.

9882*. I am merely putting your own information in the form of a question ?—I cannot give you them ; there may have been several, because Dawkins and Pim virtually retired on the nomination day at about two o'clock.

9883. Do you know Arthur Niner ?—I do.

9884. Did you see him on the morning of the election ?—I think I did.

9885. Did you see your son John on the morning of the election ?—During the day.

9886. Where does Chamings of Wild Woods live ?—On the old road to Torquay.

9887. How far ?—2½ miles.

9888. You know your son John and Arthur Viner went away over the bridge in that direction ?—I did not know it.

9889. You do not know it ?—No, I do not.

9890. A conveyance was taken out of your yard for it ?—I do not know.

9891. For how many conveyances did you charge Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim on that day ?—I do not know.

9892. Will you produce the bill before us on Monday ?—I will.

9893. When did Captain Pim come down ; did he come down on the night of the 8th of July ; did he come down on the Friday before the election ?—Unless I see the book to refresh my memory I cannot undertake to state. (The book was handed to the witness.)

9894. Did you send him in a bill for 110*l.* 3*s.* for five days living at your hotel ?—His proportion of the expenses of the election I did.

9895. Answer my question ?—I did.

NINTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

1 Sept. 1866.

9896. How is the bill made out?—His proportion of the expenses incurred during the election.

9897. Did you make out a general bill to Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim, and did you supply a bill to each?—I supplied a bill for each.

9898. What do you mean by his proportion of the expenses?—After Captain Pim came he went over the ground canvassing again.

9899. What do you mean by the proportionate part of the election expenses that you charged to Captain Pim?—I mean each had to bear his own charge, his proportion.

9900. What proportion?—Of the expenses incurred.

9901. In what proportion; did they pay evenly?—I believe they did.

9902. What was your bill to Colonel Dawkins?—Colonel Dawkins, 28th June to 12th July, 176*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* passed by the auditor.

9903. Passed by the auditor?—Yes.

9904. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are you aware that this 110*l.* 3*s.* is not put into the election account at all of Captain Pim?—No.

9905. (Mr. Bere.) That account cannot have been passed by the election auditor, because there was no such person?—Yes; he was appointed by their own agent in the town.

9906. Now Mr. Heath, do take care what you are saying. You are liable to be committed by us and sent to Exeter and tried for perjury if you say what is untrue?—I do not say it intentionally.

9907. You were sworn to speak the whole truth. You have, ever since you commenced your examination been keeping back?—I beg your pardon.

9908. As to Colonel Dawkins, how much do you say the expenses were?—176*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*

9909. Who paid you that?—I think William Hannaford.

9910. How was it paid?—I am not certain whether it was in cash.

9911. How much did William Hannaford pay you?—I have made an extract from the books this morning, I received in all 176*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*

9912. How much did William Hamlyn pay you?—I do not remember.

9913. Who paid you for Captain Pim?—Mr. Hamlyn.

9914. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was all the horse and carriage hire had from you by Captain Pim and Colonel Dawkins?—Yes.

9915. (Mr. Bere.) What do you mean by saying Captain Pim's proportion of the expenses is 110*l.* 3*s.* when he was there but five days, and Colonel Dawkins was only 176*l.* and he had with him Captain Fox and two valets with him from the 28th of June to the 12th of July?—That is how the bills are made up.

9916. You must explain them; it is of no use giving us such answers as this?—His expenses were very much more the last few days prior to the election day.

9917. What were the expenses?—The books will prove them. I have brought the documentary evidence.

9918. Just show me whether the books will prove it. Is there a single charge in your books except the personal expenses of Captain Pim and Colonel Dawkins?—Yes.

9919. And do they amount to anything like the sum you have mentioned. There are not figures carried out in your books, if you look at them?—There are 13 pages in this first book.

9920. How many pages are there with regard to Captain Pim with figures carried out against the items?—Four of them are the expenses incurred, or the proportion of the expenses incurred by the committee.

9921. Where are the expenses incurred by the committee?—(Referring the Commissioner to the book). You will find three or four pages.

9922. And these charges that were paid to the Conservative committee were afterwards put into Captain Pim's and Colonel Dawkins' bill?—They were included as part of the expenses incurred.

9923. That is part of the personal expenses incurred by Captain Pim and Colonel Dawkins?—His personal expenses?

9924. Yes.—They were paid by him.

9925. Were they charged in their bill as expenses incurred by them?—No; they were put in as expenses incurred by the committee.

9926. And charged separately?—The charges which were divided.

9927. Separately?—In the form in which the agent received them.

9928. They were not, as far as you know, put into the election account?—They made up the election account.

9929. Your election account; it was not the election account?—That was the whole received.

9930. (Mr. Longe.) Who paid you that?—William Hannaford paid one part and Mr. Hamlyn another.

9931. Where were these refreshments supplied to the committee, in what room?—To the voters who came there at the election; in the ball room there were a great many all day.

9932. Were the refreshments supplied from morning to night in the large room of the "Seven Stars"?—On the election day and the day before and the night too.

9933. Every day?—Almost every day; whoever came from a distance was entertained.

9934. All in the town?—Yes.

9935. In what proportion were the refreshments charged to the committee as consumed by the voters what proportion do they bear to Captain Pim's and Colonel Dawkins's own expenses?—I should think a great deal more.

9936. What is the reason that in your books in some instances the items are not carried out, and in others they are; that is, that the figures are not carried out against the items in some cases and in others they are?—I do not know what is the reason. The barmaid kept the books and kept the accounts of the refreshment; it is easily accounted for.

9937. Do you mean to say you do not from time to time look over the accounts?—Not until after the election is over.

9938. Did you take care not to look at them?—If I was in the bar when anything was entered.

9939. Do you allow the barmaid to keep the accounts and you only occasionally look over them?—My daughter brings the particular receipts every morning, I compare them with this waste book and receive the amount.

9940. Did you do that with regard to the election expenses?—I did not look into the election expenses till after it was all over.

9941. Did you know that to supply any refreshments to voters is illegal?—I have heard so.

9942. Do you know now?—I do, if it is brought to light.

9943. And you wanted it concealed?—It was not desired to be published.

(Mr. Bere.) We shall require your attendance on Monday, and I beg leave to inform you that if your answers are not more satisfactory on Monday than they have been to-day you will be required to attend here from day to day and your expenses will not be allowed.

Adjourned till Monday at half-past 11 o'clock.

TENTH DAY.

Monday, 3rd September 1866.

Mr. Robert Harris.) You asked some questions, with reference to Cambridge, in the course of examination, and Cambridge got mixed up with And I wish to make a public statement in refere to that, inasmuch as I have been to Cambridge I am now here as you see. When I got to Cambridge, instead of permitting the Conservative party there to be in any way damaged by the statements I have made here, I have relinquished the appointment I had, and consequently I am here before you to make any statement, or answer any questions you may wish to ask in the course of the inquiry.

Mr. Henry Turner Cole sworn and examined. Mr. H. T. Cole.

944. (Mr. Bere.) What are you?—A banker.
945. Where?—At the Devon and Cornwall Bank, lumpton. I am manager.
946. What were you in 1865?—Cashier at the ron and Cornwall Bank at Totnes.
947. Do you remember the election in 1865?—
948. About the middle of the election day did go to Plymouth?—Yes.
949. On the platform of the station at Plymouth you meet a boy carrying a bag?—I did not meet , I telegraphed to the bank to send the money on he station.
950. To the Devon and Cornwall Bank at Plyth?—Yes.
951. To whom did you telegraph?—To the man-
952. To Mr. Derry?—No, he was the general ager. He has nothing to do with the banking ness.
953. Did you telegraph to the manager by name o the manager of the Devon and Cornwall Bank, mouth?—I think to the manager of the Devon Cornwall Bank, Plymouth.
954. What was it for?—1,000*l.* in gold and 750*l.* paper.
955. What time in the day did you go to Plyth?—A quarter past 11. I went by that train I telegraphed before I left.
956. When you arrived at Plymouth did you a boy on the platform?—No. I found the train punctual, and as I saw no one there I took a and went up, and I found they had sent on a senger.
957. Did you get the money?—Yes.
958. What did you do with it?—Brought it to bank.
959. To whom was it paid?—To no one. It was ght to the bank.
960. For what reason were you sent for that ey?—We thought we might want the money.
961. What for?—For customers.
962. Was Mr. Pender a customer?—He had a l balance, but he did not draw anything on it er before the election or for long after. It was re small balance. He might have a few hundreds, he did not draw anything on it.
963. How much of that money was paid out that —Before I went away in the morning there was uch paid out.
964. How much?—I cannot say, we might have out perhaps 800*l.* in the morning before I left; we thought there might be a demand, but there no demand for the money afterwards, and when e back about 3 o'clock, and when we closed the , we had not used the money at all.
965. The 1,750*l.* was not used?—We did not it. I need not have gone to fetch it, as it out.
966. To whom had you paid the 800*l.* in the ?—To different customers.
967. Can you give us the names?—I cannot say. were men coming in with cheques and notes, the opinion was perhaps there will be a little extra run. The reason I went down was not that we wanted the money at the time, but we thought we might want it that day, or we might want it the next morning, and we get it all from Plymouth.
9968. It was likely for the common purposes of the bank that you would want more money on the election morning than on the other?—Not at all; it is a short distance, and we get all our money from Plymouth.
9969. You told me you thought there might be a run on the bank that morning?—Yes.
9970. Why that morning more than any other?—We had several people coming in the first thing in the morning, people with notes to be cashed, some wanted gold. They were notes and cheques of our customers.
9971. Of whom?—Of customers.
9972. What customers, Mr. Pender?—Mr. Pender had a balance of about 1,800*l.* at the bank, but we had no cheques of his. I do not think he took out a farthing of his money at the election. I think it was paid back in London. I do not think he required it here. I would not say without the books, but I do not think he required it at all.
9973. How long have you been cashier at Totnes?—11 or 12 years.
9974. You were cashier in the election of 1863?—Yes.
9975. Had you a run on the bank on the day of the election or the day of nomination in 1863?—Sometimes we have got much more money in the bank than at other times.
9976. Just answer the question, please, had you a run on the bank on the nomination day or the election day of 1863?—I think I might say we have had more people in for change, but I would not say.
9977. The nomination day or the election day?—I would not say.
9978. What will you say?—I cannot say whether we have or not had any people, but what I will say is this, on this day there was no one came in except as any person might come in on any other day to cash a note or a cheque. We knew nothing at all about it.
9979. (Mr. Longe.) It was because your former experience led you to expect you would want more money on the election day and you got this money?—People came in to cash those notes.
9980. Experience of former elections led you to suppose that you would want more money?—No, not at all. We have had other days when I have been obliged to go to Plymouth for money if we run short. We cannot tell, Plymouth is near and we get our money from there.
9981. (Mr. Bere.) Have you ever had to go to Plymouth on a nomination day or an election day for money before?—I do not think so, but we have on a great market day.
9982. How many times in the course of a year have you gone to Plymouth for money yourself? When had you gone before that day?—I cannot state the day exactly.
9983. How long before?—It may have been perhaps 12 months, because we write.

TENTH DAY.

Mr. H. T. Cole.

3 Sept, 1866.

9984. How long was it?—It might have been 12 or six months. We generally have it by post if bank notes.

9985. That is your usual course. You write and say you want money and it comes by post?—Yes.

9986. (Mr. Coleridge.) And if gold?—We send, or they send up.

9987. (Mr. Bere.) Is it usual for the cashier to go?—Yes, generally the cashier.

9988. Had you ever been to Plymouth before to get money?—Yes.

9989. When?—I have been for money for different people, for Mr. Presswell in the town if he required any.

9990. For the purposes of the bank?—Yes.

9991. When did you go to Plymouth to get money for the purposes of the bank before?—I cannot call it to my recollection. I do not frequently go because we do not as a rule have gold from Plymouth. We need not have given these people gold on that day if we did not like; we only wished to oblige them as they came in.

9992. Oblige whom?—People who came in for gold or notes; we did not know who they were, and we did not ask them any questions. A man comes with 50*l.* and he may have received a bribe, but we know nothing about it. He comes in and says will you give me gold. We need not give them gold unless we like, but we wish to oblige them if we can. We saw the money was going out and I went.

9993. What quantity of money had you got?—There may have been about 200*l.* in gold in the bank on that day.

9994. What had there been on the morning?—We might have had say 1,000*l.*, I do not know that we had so much; we do not always keep so much, it is not necessary. As a rule we take more gold than we give, but occasionally we run short, and then we send to Plymouth. It is rarely that we send to Plymouth for gold; we generally send it away. It was merely to oblige our customers; we need not have given them gold unless we liked; we had no motive except as bankers to oblige the people.

9995. Is it usual for you to have pretty nearly as much as you have to pay?—Yes; we generally do.

9996. What made you think that the election day would be an exception?—Because we found people coming in in the morning with notes to change.

9997. What notes were they?—I think Bank of England notes.

9998. Were they new ones?—I have no doubt they were; I cannot say, because I was doing other work at that time; I was not at the counter in the morning.

9999. I ask you on your oath, do not you go down to Plymouth to get the money, knowing that it would be required for the purposes of the election?—I went down to get that money thinking it might be required for banking purposes.

10,000. For banking purposes; a pressure being put on the bank in consequence of the election?—It is just likely that it might be in consequence of a great market day, just in the same way as there would be an extra demand on a great market day.

10,001. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there ever as much as 1,700*l.* drawn out of your bank on any other Tuesday that you can mention?—Yes, I should say so; I know there must have been; on a great market day I have paid more than that.

10,002. Are the great market days on Tuesdays?—Yes, the first Tuesday in the month.

10,003. Can you mention any Thursday when as much as 1,700*l.* was paid in one day?—No, I do not know that. I should mention that we did not pay away this money.

10,004. No; but you provided for it. Do you mean to say that the only time that as much as 1,700*l.* was paid out of your bank would be a great market day?—No, I do not mean to say that; sometimes it would but not as a rule, because we should take it in a pay it out.

10,005. I thought there was a confusion there wh I asked whether it was paid out; I did not me that your account stood worse at the end of the d by 1,700*l.*, but, did you pay 1,700*l.* over the coun on any day except a great market day?—I have doubt that we have, because we might have a man with a cheque for 1,000*l.*

10,006. But you would recollect if you had?—N I should not.

10,007. Is there as much as 1,000*l.* cash paid of the Totnes bank at any one time?—Frequent I do not mean cash paid over the counter, but often get a cheque.

10,008. That is not what I asked you?—Not f quently.

10,009. Can you give us any instance of 1,00 being paid over the counter on any other day exc a great market day?—Very seldom.

10,010. Was this Tuesday a great market day? Not if it was a Wednesday, certainly not.

10,011. If it was on Tuesday the 11th, that wou not be a great market day?—I was sent for gold.

10,012. Would that be a great market day?—It is the first Tuesday in the month.

10,013. It was not a first Tuesday?—Then would not.

10,014. This was not a great market day, yet found it necessary to provide as large a sum of mo as 1,750*l.* in case it was wanted?—We thought might be wanted.

10,015. Had you any earthly doubt in your mind that your providing that was for purpose the election?—I had not the slightest doubt in own mind.

10,016. (Mr. Longe.) You say it was for purpose of cashing in your business?—For conduct our business.

10,017. But you had your own views why expected this run?—I cannot say; I thought per that I had heard, you know that things were float about, but still I could not tell.

10,018. It is only with regard to your own m You as manager of the bank knew perfectly well expected that there would be cash required on election day, they knowing that it was the practic Totnes to give money on the elections?—Yes, thought—we did not think the day before at all, they came in that morning to cash cheques and n and we are bound to cash them; but for Bank England notes we need not give gold, for in this like or wish to oblige if we can, and we always we can, and we thought we would make a provisi but, as I say, it was not wanted, for the election soon over after I left.

10,019. (Mr. Bere.) What are your custom are they principally farmers who use the market?—Farmers principally, and dealers ab we have bull dealers.

10,020. Are they people who keep accounts you?—Yes.

10,021. If they bring in cheques drawn on ano bank do you cash those?—If we know the partie

10,022. If you know the person who brings th —Yes, and the drawer.

10,023. Do you know what cheques came into bank that morning, and had been paid?—N cannot say.

10,024. Can you remember any single ch that morning, who drew it, and to whom it payable?—No, I do not think I do; I do not kn I might not have been at the counter at all morning, because my duties do not lie there till 11 o'clock, and I generally post my books and th to the counter if anybody comes in.

10,025. What time is your bank opened?—10 o'clock.

10,026. What time did you go down to Plymo —11.15 I left the station.

10,027. What time did you telegraph ?—About the ne time.

10,028. When did you receive orders from the nager to go down ?—About a little before 11. He ked me "Do you think we want any more gold ; do ou think we shall run short ? " and we want to com- nce business the next day.

10,029. Who was in the bank at that time ?—I nk all were in the bank.

10,030. What customer ?—I do not think any stomer.

10,031. Is Mr. Chaster a customer of yours ?— .

10,032. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was the late Mr. Thomas chelmore ?—No.

10,033. Jeffery Michelmore ?—No.

10,034. Charles Michelmore ?—No.

10,035. Mr. Parnell ?—He is a customer, with others the gas works. No account with us.

10,036. (Mr. Bere.) Had Mr. Pender been in the nk that morning ?—Not to my knowledge.

10,037. Or young Mr. Pender ?—No ; not to my owledge.

10,038. Or a gentleman of the name of Heald, who ne down with Mr. Pender ?—No; not to my know- ge.

10,039. (Mr. Coleridge.) Within a month before election how many strangers' accounts had you ned—people not resident about here ?—Strangers' ounts ?

10,040. Such as I should call Mr. Pender, a anger ?—I think that I may say that Mr. Pender's s the only account opened.

10,041. Did Mr. Salmon open an account ? Mr. Bere.) Just take care what you are saying ; irs is the Devon and Cornwall Bank ?—Yes.

10,042. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did Mr. Salmon open an ount ?—I do not recollect the name.

10,043. Or Mr. Heald ?—No.

10,044. Or young Mr. Pender ?—No ; I think Mr. nder's was the only account opened. There was a n placed in ; I cannot say what it was ; it might 500*l.* or 1,500*l.*, but I do not think it was operated at all till at least a month after the election.

10,045. (Mr. Bere.) What is the name of your nager ?—Mr. Pearce.

10,046. Is he still manager at Totnes ?—Yes. I assure you if it was for anything at all not con- ted with business I should not hesitate a moment.

10,047. It seems an odd thing, to say nothing else, t on the morning of an election where great bribery k place you go down to Plymouth and return with 50*l.* ?—I went down purely from motives of busi- ss. We did not use it at all, there was nothing ne after 11 o'clock. If you will look you will find the books that there was no business going on ticularly after that time. It was only a few people me in and we thought there might be a run and nt some money to commence business with in the rning, but it so happened that we did not. It very en happens for instance in a business like this that frequently send, I do now, we send away money we have too much to the different branches, and get interest, they pay us for it ; that very day, instance, at Collumpton we had 1,000*l.* more than wanted and sent it to Plymouth.

10,048. (Mr. Coleridge.) It is odd that you cannot l us any other instance when you yourself went to ch so large a sum. Now, try to recollect.—I can re an instance; when I was sent down for 3,000*l.* ce from here.

10,049. When ?—It was some years ago.

10,050. During an election ?—No, for a customer.

10,051. For a special customer ?—Yes.

10,052. If it is fair may I ask who it was ?—Mr. esswell ; a lady left some money to some charities.

10,053. Can you recollect any other instance when u yourself have gone down for so much money in y day, say in the year 1865 ; was there any other y in 1865 that you went to fetch so large a sum of money as 1,700*l.* from Plymouth ?—I have frequently for a large sum in bank notes, but not gold.

10,054. Bank notes you have told us come through the post ?—Sometimes we fetch them.

10,055. Can you give any other instance in 1865 when you went yourself to fetch money from Plymouth at all ?—I do not think I could.

10,056. In reality it is not a part of your business, your business is at home and not to go about and fetch the money ?—Yes, frequently I take it over to Torquay.

10,057. But can you tell me any instance in which you have fetched money yourself from Plymouth personally ?—I have fetched money personally, but I cannot give you an instance.

10,058. How long since, this year ?—No, I do not think so.

10,059. 1865 ?—Yes, I should think very probably I might, but not in gold.

10,060. I thought you told us that notes always came through the post ?—Not always, nearly always. If we are driven up very short we go at once.

10,061. Then I may take it that you never fetched gold yourself at all ; when was it that you fetched any amount yourself from Plymouth ?—Well, say I did it once a year, I might have done it.

10,062. That would be the outside ?—Yes, I should think about ; I was not in the habit of going unless we wanted it, because sometimes we sent other people, and it came by post.

10,063. Supposing there had been no election going on at all, but there were cheques brought in on the morning of the election should you have gone to Plymouth ?—If they had asked for gold as they did.

10,064. How much gold had been asked for at the time you went down that morning ; how much had been asked for this morning before you went to Plymouth ?—I should say about 600*l.* or 700*l.*

10,065. And that was paid ?—And that was paid.

10,066. Then 600*l.* or 700*l.* having been paid out you went to Plymouth and brought with you 1,000*l.* in gold, and the rest of the sum you have mentioned in notes ?—Yes, we usually do not keep more than that in gold, sometimes we have as much as 1,500*l.* or 1,600*l.*, generally we consider 600*l.* or 700*l.* sufficient.

10,067. Was not 1,000*l.* a large amount of gold for you to have in the bank on that day ?—We frequently have 1,500*l.* or 1,600*l.*, when it is accumulating here we send it to Torquay.

10,068. (Mr. Bere.) Had you not a cheque cashed on the morning of the election by Mr. Kellock ?—I think there was.

10,069. For 1,000*l.* ?—I think so ; it was not by me.

10,070. Who cashed it ?—The manager I suppose.

10,071. Were you present ?—No.

10,072. How was it cashed ?—I do not know, you can easily see by the books.

10,073. Was there 700*l.* in gold ?—Very likely there may have been.

10,074. What time was it cashed ?—It was not cashed during banking hours.

10,075. After banking hours ?—I think so.

10,076. Late at night ?—I cannot say whether it was late at night or before banking hours.

10,077. Did you vote for Pender and Seymour at the last election ?—I always voted for the Liberals on all occasions, and at every election I have always voted early before I went to the bank, I have never varied and I hope I never may.

10,078. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you cash any other cheque for Mr. Kellock besides this one for 1,000*l.* on the nomination day ?—I do not think so ; if I had the slightest recollection of it I would tell you.

10,079. Did you cash any cheque for Mr. John Heath on the morning of the election ?—I do not think I did ; we had a cheque paid in for Mr. Heath on the morning of the election.

10,080. Who paid it in ?—I cannot tell whether it was Mr. Heath or his son.

TENTH DAY.

Mr. H. T. Cole.

3 Sept. 1866.

10,081. To what amount was it?—I think about 500*l.*

10,082. Who drew it?—It was I think a London cheque.

10,083. Was it a Mr. Smith who drew it?—I cannot say; I think it was on Messrs. Ransom the bankers.

10,084. Was it by Mr. Edmonds?—I think not, it was a London cheque.

10,085. You can tell that from your books?—Yes, we can tell everything from our books.

10,086. (Mr. Bere.) Will you go to the bank and get your books?—Yes. I wish to give you every possible information.

10,087. (Mr. Longe.) Owing to money having been drawn out it was that you wanted this money from Plymouth?—They were drawing out money during the morning, and I should not have gone to Plymouth if I had not thought it would have been wanted.

10,088. You thought there would be an extraordinary run on your bank?—Yes.

10,089. And the reason you went was that you thought you would want it for banking purposes?—Yes. If you ask me my private opinion, I suppose that it had something to do with the election.

10,090. (Mr. Coleridge.) At the time you left to Plymouth what amount of gold had you in the bank—I doubt whether we had as much as 200*l.*

10,091. And how much in notes?—Between 400*l.* and 500*l.* in notes.

10,092. You had cashed notes to the amount of 700*l.* or 800*l.* what had become of the notes you had given gold for?—I really cannot tell.

10,093. At the time you went to Plymouth there was less left in notes than you had paid out, how is that possible?—We were running very hard for cash at that time.

10,094. You had only 500*l.* or 600*l.* in notes, what had become of the other notes for which you had given the gold?—We paid out notes as well. A man might ask for change for a 50*l.* note, and might take some portion of it in notes and the rest in gold.

10,095. How much had you paid out in notes in addition to what you had paid in gold?—I cannot answer that. I do not know what we had.

10,096. Can you find that out from your books?—Yes; I will go and get them.

10,097. We want to know by whom the cheque was drawn that was paid in on the morning of the election by Mr. Heath?—That I will endeavour to ascertain for you.

Mr. J. Heath.

Mr. JOHN HEATH recalled and further examined.

10,098. (Mr. Coleridge.) I asked you on Saturday who came down with Colonel Dawkins?—Before my examination is resumed, I hope the Commissioners will permit me to make a few observations in reference to my examination on Saturday by way of explanation. I wish to inform the Commissioners as one reason for my being personally unacquainted with the whole of the business that is done at the hotel, that although it may not be known to them, it is well known in the neighbourhood, that in addition to the hotel, I am extensively engaged in another business, as an auctioneer and land and house agent, which has been established for upwards of 30 years, which together with the duties of my public offices occupy at least five days out of the six every week; consequently under those circumstances it is not probable that I should see every one who comes in and out of the house, or examine the entries which are made either by the barmaid, in whom I have the greatest confidence, as to her honesty and integrity, or by my daughter, who would be present at the time, when the business of the house was being entered in the books. And when I was asked on Saturday when Colonel Dawkins arrived, and also when Mr. Mum arrived, I was no more aware of it than the greatest stranger in this court, and if I had to repeat the answers, or go through the same examination which I did on Saturday, I can safely swear that such was the case. I have only had the books to refer to in order to be able to give an opinion at all, and relying as I did on the accuracy of the entries in the book, which is merely a waste book, I gave the information I did on Saturday, which I fear created a bad impression in the minds of the Commissioners, they believing that as I conducted a large establishment, in which many thousand pounds of capital are employed, I ought to know what was doing there, to know who were my customers, and also the strangers who were visiting them. I beg most distinctly to assure the Commissioners that although my house is now full, and every bed room in it engaged to the extent of 39 rooms, with the exception of a nobleman who has just left, I do not know the name of any one of the customers who slept there last night. I hope this may be considered by the Commissioners a satisfactory explanation of any apparent discrepancies or inaccuracies which appeared in my evidence on Saturday. I wish to add that if there were any discrepancies from which I incurred the censure or disapprobation of the court, it was not intentional on my part, but what I stated was to the best of my knowledge. I was also asked what other candidates I knew of that had been here; what I understood by the interrogatory was whether candidates may have been here just prior to the election I was not aware that the question asked by the learned counsel related to what had transpired between the former election and the one now under consideration, and I scarcely did know the name of Mr. Kennard till it was asked me, when I immediately acknowledged it. There was not only that gentleman but I believe Mr. Macleay, and when it was said I was flatly contradicting my evidence, I was so confused at it and so vexed to think that I had made any statements that might be considered intentionally wrong, that I scarcely knew what answers in future to give. That was the reason that in my evidence I was rather confused, and sorry that it should have been given in the way in which it was. I had no object in withholding such evidence as that, as my point was to be gained by it, and consequently, if you asked me at once, "Do you know of Mr. Macleay" "and Mr. Kennard," I should have replied that I had seen them in the interim, especially in a place where bribery is going on just as thick as selling cattle in the market. I should not have hesitated to state the particulars, for we have not only the sleek well fed bull, but the half-starved yearlings in the market I have seen the report, and that is what I know with respect to the inquiry now before you. There was one question put to me with regard to Captain Pim's and Colonel Dawkins' bills. The way in which those accounts are made out is as follows:—The whole expenses during the election were made out from the first to the last, five days it was Captain Pim had been in the house, and there was a house full; we had really almost open house for the last three days. Captain Pim said, "Give the fellows what they want, do not "let them go away, charge me for more than my "share;" hence the reason why Captain Pim's bill for the short period of time appeared in excess of that of the gallant Colonel Dawkins; but I beg to inform the court that supposing those bills amounted to more than 300*l.* within the fortnight, distributed over the whole fortnight, the house was really occupied by the election people, and no one else. I can show this by the books, during the race week we have not had so much trouble, and the books will show that we did in the house as much as 400*l.*

10,099. (Mr. Bere.) You do acknowledge that your house was taken up by the Conservative party?—It was.

10,100. And the effect of that was to put a stop to all other business?—I need not explain that now

. Matcham's cheque was under consideration, and ant to set myself right with the public as well he court. On Saturday I gave to your Secretary w minutes before we came into this court, when as up stairs with him for a short period, some rmation, upon which your Secretary made some noranda on his brief for the information of the court, nterrogate me upon. We had three poll books there re us at the time, and in the confusion between three poll books interrogatories were put together h some confusion, as had been caused before, and re was some doubt about my giving accurate wers about them; but I was so confused, and ing to implicate some of the voters at one tion, with whom I knew there had been some ery transactions at another, that was the reason
I would not venture to give an opinion. I was edingly glad when the matter drew to a close.
d a very short notice on Friday evening of my g wanted at the court on the following day, I did consequently go through the poll book. I made accurate calculation of names nor particulars to t the court as I ought to have done, and I was prepared to give the information that I now have.
e that time I have investigated the whole of the unts to refresh my memory, to give all the inforion I possibly could from the poll books themes. After the last election was over, and the unts were being closed, there was a lot of chers and memoranda put into the waste paper et. I have endeavoured to find everything as far could.

),101. (Mr. Bere.) What is your explanation as to Matcham's cheque?—I was asked if I had any-g to do with Mr. Thomas Matcham as to giving a cheque; in this case I will give you a full lanation.

),102. What is the explanation that you now give Mr. James Matcham's cheque for 235*l.* on the day
r the election?—I do not think it was the day
r, it was payable the day after.

),103. No, it is drawn the day after?—If my y is there it is in error. I will tell you the cir-stance.

0,104. (Mr. Coleridge.) "No. 13," the day after election?—I will tell you the whole circumstance.

0,105. (Mr. Bere.) Just look at the counterfoil
65?—A few days before the election old Mr.
cham came to me to say that his son was away,
he could not show to vote with the Conservatives.
wished to vote, but he could not face his creditors, in order to do so he wanted to raise a sum of
. I said, "What security will you give?" He
, "I have a lot of cider in store, cider casks and arious things, but here is a particular store. I m ready to give security upon that, and, further,
n of mine will be another security.

0,106. Was old Mr. Matcham John Matcham?— old James.

0,107. Thomas Matcham was to be the collateral urity?—James Matcham.

0,108. What is Thomas Matcham, the son?—He been an innkeeper in Totnes.

0,109. What inn?—The "South Devon" inn.

0,110. Where was he at this time?—I think in neighbourhood of Plymouth. The other brother living at Torquay; the brother became a colral security for him.

0,111. Did he give you a bill of sale?—I had a of the goods that were there in the store not far n here, but I do not hesitate to say there was an derstood thing that if old Matcham and the son ie and voted as desired, he should be free from his ditors. I informed Mr. Kellock, our mayor, of at had transpired, and he said, "Do not carry out he contract; take my advice, if it is known it vill invalidate the election; you had better countermand the payment of the cheque." I gave ice to Mr. James Matcham at Torquay that it uld not be carried out, and accordingly I said so to
. James Matcham, the holder of the cheque pro tem., and he came to my house and destroyed it. That is what was done about the time the cheque was destroyed. These are the facts connected with the transaction. I came on Saturday to give you all I did know, and I do it now, and I regret that in consequence of the confusion between the various books no preparation had been made to furnish the desired information.

10,112. (Mr. Bere.) On the same day did you pay two cheques to Mr. Edmonds' favour with the balance of monies you received from him; one cheque for 207*l.* 10*s.*?—There is one for 217*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* also.

10,113. No, not that?—I do not remember, only that 207*l.* changed hands.

10,114. Look at that cheque (handing the counterfoil to the witness). Did you draw that?—To the best of my belief I did.

10,115. Look at the next counterfoil; what is that?—That is the amount.

10,116. Was that the same Mr. Edmonds?—The same Mr. Edmonds. That was the amount due from Mr. Please to Mr. Edmonds.

10,117. Who is Mr. Please?—A voter; he passed through the Insolvency Court at one time.

10,118. How did he vote?—For the Conservatives.

10,119. You paid to Please, who voted for the Conservatives, 4*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.*?—I think that will be shown.

10,120. You paid the money on the counterfoil for Mr. Please?—It was part of it. I think I must give you a further explanation as to Mr. Please.

10,121. Have you done?—I have explained all that is necessary. I wish to set myself right as to what evidence I may have given unintentionally.

10,122. (Mr. Coleridge.) I hope you will try and recollect a little better. You told me on Saturday that Colonel Dawkins came down with Captain Fox and a valet; you were not sure whether there was more than one valet. Did anybody else come?—I do not know.

10,123. What gentleman was it?—Was any gentleman here, do you mean?

10,124. Yes, at your house, previous to Colonel Dawkins coming down on the matters of the election?—Any gentleman connected with the conduct of the election?

10,125. Yes?—Not to my knowledge.

10,126. To your knowledge nobody came with Colonel Dawkins but Captain Fox and one valet, or there may be two?—There was not to the best of my belief.

10,127. You said he had a London solicitor, but Mr. Edmonds acted for him?—If I said so I said it in error. Mr. Smith was there the whole time. If I said it it was inadvertently; it was not intentionally to conceal anything.

10,128. Mr. Smith was there?—He was.

10,129. When did he come?—I do not know whether he came with Colonel Dawkins or before.

10,130. Mr. Smith was there acting with Colonel Dawkins in the house?—He was.

10,131. Can you undertake to say that Mr. Smith did not come down with Colonel Dawkins?—I cannot undertake to say so. I think it probable he may have done so.

10,132. Where used Mr. Smith to have his meals? You never told me that Mr. Smith was there, though I asked you?—It was not intentional.

10,133. Try to understand the questions before you answer them. Had Mr. Smith been there?—Mr. Smith, his attorney, was here the whole time.

10,134. With whom did he have his meals?—I think he had them with Colonel Dawkins.

10,135. And Captain Fox, I suppose?—And any other visitors Colonel Dawkins had there.

10,136. Do you know what Mr. Smith brought down with him; be careful now?—Do I know what he brought with him?

10,137. Yes?—I do not know.

10,138. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Smith, Mr. Edmonds, or Mr. Kellock after Mr. Smith came about what was to be done with the voters?—What was to be done with them?

10,139. What was to be done in the way of bribery?—To what extent it would be required?

10,140. What amount of money would be wanted?—That was dependent upon whether there was bribery on the other side.

10,141. Did you have a conversation?—I did with Mr. Edmonds.

10,142. When was the conversation?—It was during the whole conduct of the election.

10,143. Was it after Mr. Smith was down?—I should think before and after, long before.

10,144. What did you give as your opinion of the sum that would be required?—It would depend on what the others did, but if the others spent 5,000*l.* we could win with 4,000*l.*

10,145. You have said that when Mr. Mum came down you had no account of his coming, and did not know anything about him except that he came from the club; was that so?—Yes.

10,146. You told me that all you trusted Mr. Mum for was because he said he came from the club. Answer my question. Did you say that?—On Saturday?

10,147. Yes. I asked you the reason how you came to trust the stranger, and you said it was because he came from the club. Is that so?—I stated that on Saturday.

10,148. Is that the reason now why you put confidence in Mr. Mum? Have you any explanation to give me why you said that. I must have an answer?—Although I had no intimation that Mr. Mum was there, when he came Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Smith were in the house.

10,149. Exactly so. Now tell us something about that. You say it was not upon the mere representation of Mr. Mum coming down from the club that you trusted him?—He paid his own account.

10,150. Pray do not fence in that way. You know I did not mean you trusted him for the eggs and butter, but you trusted him in the matter of the election. Did you come to Mr. Smith and say that Mr. Mum had come?—I did not.

10,151. Did you tell anybody that Mr. Mum had come, and ask him to convey it to Mr. Smith?—The only person I mentioned it to was Mr. Edmonds.

10,152. Did Mr. Smith give you to understand that Mr. Mum was all right?—I do not think so.

10,153. When did you have any conversation with Mr. Smith about the election, first?—After he was in the house.

10,154. Was it before or after Colonel Dawkins came?—After.

10,155. Now tell me what was the first conversation you had with Mr. Smith about the election?—That we were certain to win.

10,156. Did you tell him how you were to win?—I will not conceal anything from you that is desired to be brought out.

10,157. Was your first conversation with Mr. Smith before Mr. Mum came?—I think long before that.

10,158. Did Mr. Smith tell you this person would come down from London at the same time?—I do not remember it.

10,159. Did Mr. Edmonds tell you that?—Mr. Edmonds told me that there would be a person.

10,160. You told us on Saturday that you had no reason to expect anybody; did you except a person from London in consequence of what Mr. Edmonds told you?—It was more to be presumed than anything else. Mr. Edmonds said, if we fought this election it must be with a person to do the dirty work.

10,161. When did Mr. Edmonds tell you that, how long before the election?—I think a week before.

10,162. When did a person from London first come down?—On the 7th of July.

10,163. Was that the person who came down late at night and came into the bar and had a glass of grog?—I think it was.

10,164. Was that the occasion upon which he first said he was come from the club?—That was.

10,165. It was not because he said he came from the club, but because Mr. Edmonds told you to expect him that you thought he was the right person?—I do not know that I expected to see him that particular day.

10,166. You knew a person was coming down from some club in London, when he said he came from a club you knew what it was?—I suspected immediately; I have no object in concealing it.

10,167. You said just now that you trusted the man because Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Smith were in the house, what had Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Smith being in the house to do with you—finding out that this was the person you expected when he first came?—What had that to do with it?

10,168. You said just now because Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Smith were in the house you trusted this man, what had their being in the house to do with that?—My communication was with Mr. Edmonds; he said carry this bag to that man in such a room.

10,169. When that man came down did you give him anything that night, a bag?—No, sir.

10,170. When was the last occasion on which you ever gave him anything?—The following day.

10,171. That would be the 8th?—It was the 8th.

10,172. Do you know where the bag came from that Mr. Edmonds gave you?—Mr. Edmonds gave it to me, I do not know wherefrom.

10,173. Do you know whether Mr. Smith brought that bag down with him?—I do not.

10,174. After you had given this stranger the bag what conversation had you with him about setting money going?—What had I to do with him.

10,175. What conversation had you with the stranger about setting money going?—I had very little conversation with him on the business.

10,176. What did you do, did you give him a list of names?—I did not.

10,177. Did you obtain a list of names?—I did not; he asked my opinion.

10,178. Who did?—The man himself asked me my opinion of some of the names.

10,179. Who obtained the list?—He had a list.

10,180. Did you give him the list of names that Harris had given you?—I did not.

10,181. What conversation had you with Mr. Smith at this time about it?—Nothing much.

10,182. Nothing more?—Just as I have stated to you before.

10,183. Do you mean the 8th?—Yes.

10,184. I mean after you had given this bag of money to the stranger or just before, what conversation had you with Mr. Smith about it?—I do not remember what it might have been, if you put a direct question I will answer it in a moment.

10,185. I cannot invent your conversation; what was the conversation you had with Mr. Smith about setting money going?—I had my conversation with Mr. Edmonds entirely.

10,186. Was Mr. Smith present?—No.

10,187. Have you ever had any conversation with Mr. Smith about setting money going?—When he was present?

10,188. No, when there was nobody present?—I had not; Colonel Dawkins said the money should be immediately paid.

10,189. Had you any conversation with him at all about setting the money going?—I had a chat with Mr. Edmonds.

10,190. I am asking about Mr. Smith; do confine your mind to Mr. Smith, or to anything that you may have said to him on the subject of money; had you any conversation with Mr. Smith about setting money going?—I think it is probable.

10,191. Can you tell me as an old electioneerer what was your advice upon that occasion?—I was advised by Mr. Edmonds as to the amounts.

10,192. What did you advise about the matter?—I do not know that he should ask my advice.

10,193. Did he ask your advice?—He frequently nsulted me as to what amount would be required to rry the election.

10,194. What did you tell him?—I told him about ,000*l.*

10,195. What did Mr. Smith say was the length of e purse he could go to?—He said he could go to ,000*l.* Colonel Dawkins had no objection.

10,196. Was this before Mr. Mum came down?—o, about the following day.

10,197. After you had given the money to Mr. um when did he want any more money from you?—I think it was on Saturday night, I think they began despair on Saturday night.

10,198. Mr. Smith saw Mr. Mum the day he came wn?—I do not think so; I never saw them gether.

10,199. Do you know whether Mr. Smith ever saw r. Mum at all?—I do not.

10,200. Did not every conversation upon the subct of money that passed go through your hands? ere you not the person who carried every message Mr. Mum upon the subject of money?—I was t.

10,201. You were not the person. If Mr. Mum d spent all the money, whom did he ask for more?—When I was at home he would send a note down to e; when I was at home I was generally consulted.

10,202. If you were at home he consulted you?—es.

10,203. When was this 1,500*l.* given to Mum on e 8th all gone?—Yes.

10,204. Did he send down to you to say he wanted ore?—No; on the Saturday night I found he was wn in the entry talking with the voters.

10,205. How was the note signed?—I do not now; No. 13 I think.

10,206. Was it signed by the name of Snell?—I o not think there was any signature to it.

10,207. Did you know Mr. Snell?—I did know im a few years.

10,208. Was he down at the election of 1865?—Not the same Mr. Snell.

10,209. Was he down at the election of 1863?—do not think he has been here since Dunn's election.

10,210. Mr. George Snell?—I do not know what e is.

10,211. A gentleman who is tolerably intimate with ou?—Is he?

10,212. I do not know if people write to you geneally "Dear Heath," but were you not pretty intimate ith him at Dunn's election, was that the last time eorge Snell was at Totnes?—I am sure of it.

10,213. Mr. Thomas George Snell?—Yes, very kely there was a man of that name here.

10,214. And he has not been here since?—He was ot employed; I have never seen him concerned.

10,215. Not at all?—Not at all. I have never een him since, to my knowledge, I assure you.

10,216. On the Saturday night you got this note rom No. 13, asking for money for the election, what as in the note? Can you recollect what the words ere?—"I want to see you."

10,217. Did you go up and see him?—I said to he maid that came down "send him down, I am busy."

10,218. Did he come down?—He came down in he entry, and went into the smoke room and smoked pipe.

10,219. There was a light in the room?—Oh, yes.

10,220. Did you see him frequently before the lection?—In the smoke room.

10,221. Can you tell what sort of a person he was?—About 45.

10,222. Tall or short, or about the medium height?—A medium.

10,223. Was his hair dark hair or light hair?—Dark hair and light whiskers.

10,224. Did you ever see him with a wig on?—I do not know whether he had a wig; his hair was darker han his whiskers.

10,225. Did you see whether the dark hair was not a wig?—I do not know.

10,226. Did he have different disguises?—No, he was pretty much dressed the same; he was not different by day or by night.

10,227. Have you seen him since?—I have not.

10,228. Do you know where he came from?—Merely from a club in London.

10,229. Did he say who sent him?—No, he did not.

10,230. On the Saturday night that he came to the smoking room were there any other people there?—30 or 40.

10,231. Did he speak to you about money there in that public room?—What was required; I was sitting by his side.

10,232. What did he say to you was wanted?—He said he was run short, the runs upon his bank had been so heavy that he had none left.

10,233. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Smith upon it?—I saw Mr. Edmonds constantly in and out.

10,234. Did Mr. Edmonds get you a cheque?—No, not until the Tuesday.

10,235. When did you next receive any money for Mr. Mum, when was the second time?—I think it was the Monday.

10,236. Was that a parcel too?—The Monday evening, or the afternoon, there was a parcel.

10,237. On Saturday you had a conversation with Mr. Edmonds after you saw Mr. Mum?—I did; he was constantly in and out.

10,238. Do you know where the 1,000*l.* came from?—Do I know?

10,239. Yes?—I know it from hearsay evidence; I know it came by a cheque.

10,240. Do you know whose cheque it was?—I only know from hearsay.

10,241. Do you know who went to get the cheque cashed of your own knowledge?—Not of my own knowledge, but I have heard it.

10,242. When was the next conversation that Mum had with you about money?—He was down in the entry on the nomination day with the voters, talking to several of them, and he said he was short.

10,243. Do you know the amount of the second sum that you gave to Mr. Mum?—I do not, not of my own knowledge.

10,244. You do not know it was 1,300*l.*?—I do not.

10,245. Did Mr. Mum or Mr. Edmonds tell you it was 1,300*l.*?—Mr. Edmonds told me it was 1,000*l.*

10,246. Do you know of a cheque of Captain Pim's being cashed at that time?—I do not.

10,247. Are you sure there was not a second lot of money given into your own hands, and not left at the bar?—I saw Mr. Edmonds go to the bar. I had another parcel in the bar, which confused me. I was to see Mr. Edmonds instead of it being left in the bar.

10,248. When you returned on the Monday you had a message to go and see Mr. Edmonds?—He left word that as soon as I came he wanted to see me.

10,249. What did you do then?—I gave him a parcel, and said this is for Mr. Mum.

10,250. At what part of the house?—In the top of the house, No. 13. He gave it me in the room adjoining the bar.

10,251. In the little room used by Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds?—They used an upstairs room; this was, to the best of my knowledge, a little room adjoining the bar.

10,252. What is the little room Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds used?—No. 8.

10,253. Was not a sum of money given to you by Mr. Edmonds in that very room?—I do not remember; it might have been.

10,254. This second parcel?—I cannot say.

10,255. Was Mr. Kellock or not there when there was any subject of cash mentioned?—No.

10,256. Are you certain he was not there at the

TENTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

3 Sept. 1866.

time you handed the parcel?—I do not believe that he was.

10,257. Will you swear he was not?—I think I can safely do so.

10,258. Were you told when he was to come?—No, I was not.

10,259. Then how did you know he was the man?—From his own introduction; there is a great deal presumed at such times that we do not want to know.

10,260. You said you trusted him because Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Smith were in the house at the time?—I did not mean to give such evidence as that.

10,261. You have said so at all events?—There is no because in it.

10,262. How would you know that he was the right man. If there was any communication between him and Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Smith that would prove it?—That they might have done between themselves.

10,263. Do you believe that this man went to bed that night without some communication with Colonel Dawkins or Mr. Smith?—I do not think it is likely that he did; but I did not see it. Mr. Smith, Colonel Dawkins' solicitor, was there.

10,264. When Mr. Mum came what did he say to you about them?—He asked if the candidates had arrived.

10,265. Did he ask for Mr. Smith?—I am certain he did not ask for Mr. Smith at that time.

10,266. Did he ask you which was Colonel Dawkins' or Mr. Smith's room?—Not that night; he never asked me about them. They were gone to bed; it was half-past eleven.

10,267. You do believe that some communication took place between one or other of these gentlemen and Mr. Mum before he went to bed?—It is very possible; I have no means of knowing it.

10,268. (Mr. Bere.) Have you the least doubt about it?—I have not the least doubt that one of these men knew he was in the house.

10,269. (Mr. Longe.) Then one of those two gentlemen would have the means of identifying the stranger?—Yes.

10,270. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever hear Mr. Mum say that he had met Mr. Smith in London?—No.

10,271. When first did you see Mr. Mum and Mr. Smith together?—I never saw them together.

10,272. Not the whole time?—No.

10,273. In any part of the house?—No.

10,274. Or outside the house?—No.

10,275. Had Mr. Mum given you a receipt for the first 1,500*l.* which he received?—He did not count it. I left the bag as it was.

10,276. Did he not give you a receipt?—I do not think he did.

10,277. Try and recollect?—I had a memorandum from him.

10,278. Did not Mr. Mum give you a receipt for the 1,500*l.* which you had given him from Mr. Edmonds?—I do not remember; he might have done so.

10,279. Did he not give you a receipt for the bag which was left for you?—There was a note sent down within a quarter of an hour or half an hour to me containing some reference to the amount which I had handed to him from Mr. Edmonds.

10,280. Was that not an acknowledgment for this 1,500*l.*?—It was an acknowledgment to Mr. Edmonds that I had passed it.

10,281. And the sum was 1,500*l.*?—To the best of my knowledge it was.

10,282. This was a receipt given by Mr. Mum to Mr. Edmonds for what you had given to Mr. Mum?—Yes. I did not go into the room, and I did not stop to count it.

(Mr. Bere.) Then why do you not answer the question at once; you were asked a very simple question whether Mr. Mum had not given you a receipt.

10,283. (Mr. Coleridge.) As to the second sum did you also have a receipt for that?—There was a memorandum of the acceptance of each lot.

10,284. Was that a memorandum for 1,300*l.*—No for 1,000*l.*

10,285. Did you about the same time give Mr Mum a sum of 300*l.*?—I do not remember that I did 10,286. Do you recollect receiving a memorandum for 300*l.* in addition to the 1,000*l.*?—I do not.

10,287. Did you give these memorandums to Mr. Edmonds in the presence of any one else?—No.

10,288. Where did you give it to him?—Either in the entry or in his own room, No. 8.

10,289. Most of your transactions with Mr. Edmonds took place in No. 8?—Yes, unless he was in and out.

10,290. Who was in the room besides Mr. Edmonds?—Scarcely any one else.

10,291. Who was the scarcely?—I have seen Mr Smith in that room.

10,292. Have you seen Colonel Dawkins there?—I do not remember seeing him.

10,293. Have you seen Mr. Kellock there?—Occasionally with Mr. Edmonds.

10,294. Who else?—Lots of the voters would run in and out.

10,295. Have you seen Screach there?—I have.

10,296. And William Evans?—Not William Evans. George Evans.

10,297. Have you seen Mr. Harris there?—I think I have seen Mr. Harris there.

10,298. Have you seen them there when Mr. Kellock has been present?—I do not remember to have seen any of them with Mr. Kellock.

10,299. You cannot say you have not?—I cannot.

10,300. When did Mr. Mum next tell you that he wanted money?—He walked about our entry for some time and said he was running short and that the voters were draining him heavily.

10,301. When did he next complain of his money running short?—I think on Monday evening.

10,302. Were you not incorrect on Saturday when you said you were out as late as four o'clock?—I was out till four.

10,303. And very shortly after you gave this money to him?—I did.

10,304. On that evening he told you he was running short?—He said these men who had been out negotiating the business had made such heavy drains on him that he was running short, and unless he had more money he could not stop.

10,305. Did he tell you who those men were?—I did not ask him. I knew Screach and Evans were in communication with him.

10,306. When did you next get him any money?—I think on the Tuesday morning.

10,307. To whom did you communicate that the money was running short?—To Mr. Edmonds.

10,308. Where?—In the house.

10,309. On the same night?—I think so.

10,310. Was it very late?—I think it was.

10,311. Was he in No. 8 late that night?—It is probable he was; the last three days he was there very late.

10,312. He was there when you communicated this to him?—I communicated this to him downstairs as he was going home.

10,313. I mean when you told him that the third lot would be wanted?—It was early in the evening that the man came down and saw a lot of voters about the entry; he said the thousand pounds had lasted a very little while; this was when several voters were standing by waiting to be paid.

10,314. This 1,000*l.* had been got rid of between four and six o'clock in the evening?—Long before; it was mortgaged, I dare say.

10,315. How came the voters to be at your house at this time?—I expect by his appointment or by that of the runners.

10,316. Seeing you there the voters asked you about it?—Many of them asked me.

10,317. Can you give me the names of any one ho asked you when they were to be paid at this last ection?—A man of the name of Allery.

10,318. On the Monday evening when Mr. Mum oke to you, and told you that the 1,000*l.* had not ne very far who were the voters who then asked n about money?—You must not confine me to that ening in particular.

10,319. Will you mention one of their names—A an named Allery.

10,320. What did he say to you?—I have been sent r to come here to receive some money.

10,321. What did you say to him?—I asked him ho had made the arrangement; he said they told m he was to have 40*l.*

10,322. Did he say who told him?—No.

10,323. What did you say to him?—This man was se by my side; he had had intelligence that that as this man's price, and he asked me in some cases identify the voters.

10,324. Did he take Allery upstairs and give him e 40*l.*?—He paid one man in the open entry out of ittle bag of money.

10,325. Who was that?—I think it was Allery.

10,326. You saw him paid?—I saw him hand the an the bag.

10,327. Did you see him take any receipt?—I did t.

10,328. Mogridge, is he another?—I know nothing out him.

10,329. John Chapple?—He either came on the turday or the Monday; he told me that he had en arranged with, but to receive what sum I do not ow. There was the man, Mr. Mum, waiting at the or to see several of them.

10,330. Did you see Mr. Mum pay Chapple?—I nk that I had the bag containing what they had anged for Chapple to receive, and I gave it to him.

10,331. And he took it bag and all?—It was in a all cash bag; it had been evidently all arranged fore.

10,332. In whose district was Chapple; in that of reach or Evans?—I do not know.

10,333. Had not your son, George Heath, a great al to do with it?—He has got a few names, I believe; t he will be able to answer for himself.

10,334. And your son, Mr. John Heath, is he here o?—I do not think he had anything to do with it; is now in London, but he will be ready to come wn here at a moment's notice.

10,335. Do you know what Heard did at the last ction?—No.

10,336. Thomas Gillham?—He said he had offered l. on the other side; he came to me at the door by me appointment about the same time on the Satur- y, and said I do not see why I should vote for thing on our side, and I am not going to vote less I get the same amount as they give on the er side I shall vote against you.

10,337. Did you send him to Mr. Mum?—He was ere in the entry, and I said to Mr. Mum, this is : Gillham, you hear what he says, and Gillham had ag also.

10,338. Who gave Gillham the bag?—Either Mr. m or myself, I identified several of them.

10,339. John Godfrey?—He was employed as a nner, he had something, but what I do not know.

10,340. Did you give it to him?—I do not remem- r, it is probable I did.

10,341. Had he a bag also?—They had all bags; ey had their prices evidently chalked out by some e beforehand.

10,342. You took it from Mr. Mum, without owing what the amount was?—I did not know hat the sum was, I knew it was money.

10,342*. George Griffis?—There had been an ap- intment for him to come down to our house on nday morning; Mr. Mum came down smoking his ar in the entry, and he said to me he had made an pointment to meet some voters there, amongst the mber was Griffis; he had evidently seen him the re before. I then saw Griffis' wife coming across, and she said her husband could not come, she was to come for the money. I said to Mr. Mum, Griffis is a doubtful card, he is under the thumb of some of the people on the other side, and I would not advise you to pay him.

10,343. What did Mr. Mum say?—He said, "We "have made it all right, I can rely on her," and the woman came over and in my presence the bag containing whatever sum they had arranged for was handed to her.

10,344. By you or by Mr. Mum?—I think by himself.

10,345. Do you know anything of John Fox Green?—No.

10,346. Samuel Heard?—About him I was interrogated on Saturday, and I had no recollection about him, but my sons have brought to my recollection that he was employed on the last day or two, and that he was paid something for hire and vote, what I do not know.

10,347. Was that in a bag?—I think so.

10,348. By you or Mum?—By one of us.

10,349. In your presence?—I was cognizant of it.

10,350. Now Lombardini?—His wife came to negotiate.

10,351. Do you recollect when?—I do not know.

10,362. Saturday or Monday?—I do not know, but she negotiated for her husband and son-in-law, and she told Mum in my presence unless they got 50*l.* they would not vote.

10,353. Who was the son-in-law?—Tozer.

10,354. Did she get 50*l.*?—She got two bags, one for Tozer, and one for her her husband.

10,355. Who gave them?—Mum.

10,356. (Mr. Bere.) How much do you suppose they got?—I do not know.

10,357. You say the sums varied from 25*l.* to 50*l.*?—Yes.

10,358. (Mr. Coleridge.) They varied in weight?—Yes.

10,359. Robert Mogridge?—That was settled on Saturday.

10,360. Now William Mitchell, Fore Street?—He always voted for the Conservatives, and I expected he would not want any assistance, or anything in the shape of bribery.

10,361. Did he?—Yes.

10,362. When did he come to you?—I think on the Monday.

10,363. Did he say he wanted something?—Yes, he said they had threatened to make him leave his house, would I try to get him another house; and he said they had offered him something on the other side, and he would like to have something if I could get it.

10,364. Tell us the transaction?—I think Mum was in the smoking room at the time.

10,365. Did he have any money?—Yes.

10,366. Who gave it to him?—I do not know, but he had some.

10,367. Was anything done about his house?—He had another house. He was threatened to have his house taken, and some consideration offered.

10,368. Did you get a house?—My son did.

10,369. Richard Mortimer?—Nothing to do with him.

10,370. Thomas Matcham?—I explained that.

10,371. Narramore?—That was given on Saturday.

10,372. Richard Norrish?—I think he is one of the men who had an intimation to come on Saturday night.

10,373. (Mr. Bere.) Narramore is Bryett's clerk?—Yes.

10,374. What did he get?—He negotiated something with Dennis.

10,375. Tell us about Richard Norrish?—He came on the Saturday by appointment, he had a bribe.

10,376. Did you or Mum give it to him?—I do not know; it was in my presence; I was cognizant of it.

10,377. John Jerman Phillips, you have not told us about him?—No.

TENTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

3 Sept. 1866.

10,378. What had he?—20*l.* in my presence.

10,379. From whom?—Mum was at the door and he said he did not want to have anything to do with strangers, and I handed him the bag.

10,380. How did you know it was 20*l.*?—I did not stop to see it counted.

10,381. Who said it was 20*l.*?—Phillips himself said so.

10,382. Are you sure this is John Jerman Phillips?—Yes.

10,383. Are you sure it was John Tozer, son-in-law to Mrs. Lombardini?—Yes; he voted against us.

10,384. And returned the money?—Yes, his mother-in-law returned the money.

10,385. John Jerman Phillips had already paid him 40*l.*?—No.

10,386. (Mr. Coleridge.) George Please, what did he have?—I do not know.

10,387. Do you recollect his coming to your house?—No.

10,388. You do not recollect any bag being given to him, do you recollect ever hearing that some offer was made to him?—I have not Please's name down.

10,389. Samuel Rolstone?—He was the man who came from Bath and had his expenses paid.

10,390. Henry Richards?—I believe he had some, but I do not know the particulars.

10,391. Did you or Mum give it to him?—I did not, I think it was Mum.

10,392. In your presence?—It was not given in my presence.

10,393. Edward Shinner you have told us about?—Yes.

10,394. Robert Smaridge; did he come to your house?—He did; that was by appointment. I was out on the Monday and met him on the road.

10,395. What did he say to you?—I canvassed him and asked him if he was not going to give us a shot. He voted against us before, and he said he would not vote unless he got 60*l.* I said I would not make a promise but when he came to the town he was to call at my house.

10,396. Did he call?—I do not know, but I know the money passed, what amount I do not know.

10,397. Do you know who gave it to him?—I do not know whether Mum or his father-in-law.

10,398. Who is his father-in-law?—Shillabeer.

10,399. James Tozer?—I know nothing about him.

10,400. I think you made a mistake about Phillips when you said John?—He was the son-in-law of Lombardini.

10,401. John Henry Tope?—He came to our house and received a bag from Mr. Mum.

10,402. I only asked you before up to Monday night. When did you give the third sum of money to Mr. Mum?—I think it was the Monday in the course of the day.

10,403. No, that was the second lot?—Then on the Tuesday I think.

10,404. From whom did you get that money?—From Mr. Edmonds.

10,405. Did he give you the parcel?—Yes.

10,406. Where?—At the bar door.

10,407. You took that to Mum?—Yes.

10,408. Did you get a receipt or a memorandum of acceptance?—Yes; I got it eventually it was all right.

10,409. When did you next get any money?—During the same day Mr. Edmonds gave me a cheque for 500*l.*, which I explained on Saturday.

10,410. There was a balance to be given back?—Yes.

10,411. Do you know where the 1,000*l.* given on the Tuesday to Mum came from?—I do not know.

10,412. You do not know how it was obtained?—No.

10,413. Mr. Edmonds gave you the money?—Yes, he gave me a parcel containing money.

10,414. (Mr. Bere.) From the time Mum came to your house till he finally left did he go away and return?—I think he left on the Saturday night and came back on the Monday morning.

10,415. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have told us about these transactions that occurred after Mr. Mum came into the town, do you know of any money going before the first 1,500*l.* which you gave to Mum?—I do not.

10,416. I suppose requests had been made for money by voters before?—No.

10,417. Had you not been asked to remember then if money was going?—Yes many times.

10,418. Before Mum came?—Yes, if there was a contest.

10,419. Have you not given instructions to Screac and Evans and Harris to say that if any mentio of money was made that money would be likely t come?—I never gave instructions to either of them.

10,420. Did you mention the fact that money wa likely to come in their presence?—I do not think ever did; but the witnesses will come before yo themselves.

10,421. What did you do with the 500*l.* cheq did you get it cashed?—I had some money in th house, and I carried up 200*l.* on the Tuesday mornin to Mum first of all, the balance was paid afterwards

10,422. What did you make the whole amount money you gave to Mum in all?—3,700*l.* something.

10,423. As far as you can recollect it was 1,00 and not 1,300*l.* on the second occasion?—Yes.

10,424. Do you recollect 300*l.* being taken o of a cheque of Captain Pims and given to Mum?—No, I do not remember.

10,425. You cannot tell that it may not have be 1,300*l.*?—No.

10,426. (Mr. Bere.) Had you not something do with a man named James Wherry?—No.

10,427. Did not you see him and offer him so money to vote for Colonel Dawkins and Captain P and he refused?—There were several people, so spies and some not, who came to our quarters.

10,428. Did Wherry come to your quarters?—saw Wherry, but I do not remember what took pla with Wherry, but he said there was a deal passing the other side.

10,429. 50*l.*?—It is very likely I said there the same resources on both sides if you have any d position to support the cause.

10,430. William Reeve?—No.

10,431. Did you not see Mrs. William Reeve duri the election?—No.

10,432. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

10,433. Edward Tucker?—I never saw him the subject.

10,434. (Mr. Coleridge.) Now two or three m questions about that mysterious stranger. You h a mysterious stranger at every election that you h been connected with have not you?—I have.

10,435. Was this man ever at a former election I have never seen him here before.

10,436. Have you seen him elsewhere?—Never

10,437. You never saw him before?—Nor since.

10,438. Do you know when he left the town I do not.

10,439. When did he leave your house?—I only collect from the books, but I think he left house on the election day.

10,440. When there was no more money for coming he left the house. Will you try to recoll You put him down as coming on the 7th or 8th J are you quite sure that it was not on the morning the 3rd?—I am, unless he came and went a again. I had no intimation of his coming in capacity till the 7th.

10,441. Who gave you the information of coming in that capacity?—Himself.

10,442. You say you had no intimation as to coming in that capacity till the 7th. Who gave the intimation of his coming in that capacity Himself, that he came in that capacity; I had no vious intimation.

10,443. Was there a fly waiting for him at ation?—There is a fly there to meet every train xcept the mail train. I had no special fly ordered y him or for him.

10,444. Is it possible that he may have come on ie morning of the 3rd very early and you knew othing about it?—It is; but then he must have one into the public room, either the coffee room or ie commercial room.

10,445. You got very intimate with him in the ourse of the election. I mean to say you knew his ice as well as I know yours?—Yes.

10,446. Have you any recollection of seeing him efore then?—I have not.

10,447. None whatever?—Not the slightest.

10,448. Since Saturday, when you were rather ague on the subject, can you tell us how often he ft your house and slept at your house during the me he was here, assuming that he came on the 7th?—I do not think during the time that he left more an once.

10,449. Can you now, after considering the matter, ve us the day on which he left?—Only from the ooks.

10,450. From the books you have told us that you ought he left on the Saturday or Sunday night?—He came back on the Sunday.

10,451. He left on the Saturday and came back the Sunday?—Yes, I think the books show that left on the Sunday and came back on the Monday. he books show that he left on the Sunday and slept on the Saturday night.

10,452. Do the books say what will explain that?—He slept in on Saturday night, left on the Sunday, nd returned on the Monday morning.

10,453. What time?—4.40.

10,454. He left on Sunday and returned by the ail train. You know of nothing being done of what e may call election business on the Sunday?—No.

10,455. It was the sacred day?—Yes, the sacred ay.

10,456. You do not know whether he was in the use or not on the Sunday?—I did not see him on nday.

10,457. Did anybody come for him on Sunday?—am not aware that they did. The voters were conantly in and out.

10,458. Were they on the Sunday, they did not ep the day in the same way?—No.

10,459. Were they in and out?—They were in d out.

10,460. You know the train book by heart to Lonn?—Not by heart, I know it pretty well.

10,461. What train could he go by, sleeping in on turday, going out on Sunday, get to London on the nday?—I do not know.

10,462. What time could he have gone to London, rting at the earliest time in the morning, to have ached London that evening?—He must have gone the first train 7.25.

10,463. When would he have got down?—I think out eight in the evening.

10,464. Then to have got back by the mail train the Sunday night he must have left town by the 0 train. You are quite certain you saw him on Monday?—Saw him on the Monday?

10,465. Yes.—During the day?

10,466. During the day.—Yes.

10,467. So that it is quite impossible that he could ve gone to town, mind, on Sunday, and got back the mail train on Sunday night?—Not to do any siness there.

10,468. He could not have got there?—Only to ddington and back; no.

10,469. Then you saw him on the Saturday?—aw him on the Saturday. The Saturday evening was there with a lot of the voters.

10,470. How late did you see him on Saturday ?—I should think long after the mail train had 10,471. Are you pretty certain of that?—Yes.

10,472. What time does the mail train go?—8.20.

10,473. And you feel pretty well convinced in your own mind that you saw him later?—I think so. He was in the smoking room on Monday night.

10,474. You have put your knowledge rather on his sleeping in on Saturday?—It was only the book. I have no other means of recollection.

10,475. Try and recollect about Saturday and Monday. Can you undertake to say that you saw him too late for him to go by the mail train on Saturday night?—No.

10,476. But he may, except for what you collect from your book?—That is all I go from.

10,477. Supposing a customer is going away by the mail train on Saturday, and he is coming back on the Sunday, and he says, "Keep my bed room," would it be booked as if it had been slept in?—Yes.

10,478. So far as your knowledge from the book goes?—Yes, exactly so; he may have gone.

10,479. So that really beyond the fact of the book's saying "slept in" you have no other thing to fix your memory on his having been in the house?—I have not.

10,480. Saturday night is a latish night?—Yes.

10,481. Do you recollect his being inquired for and not found latish?—No; on the Saturday he did a good deal of business.

10,482. You do not recollect his doing anything late at night?—No.

10,483. Therefore it is perfectly possible for him to have gone away on Saturday night and returned in the middle of Sunday?—It is without my knowing it.

10,484. When was the last time that a gentleman of the name of Snell was in your house?—To my knowledge he has not been there since Mr. Dunn's election. I do not remember him.

10,485. Do you know any other Mr. Snell?—A great many others; commercial men.

10,486. Do you know Thomas George Snell?—Not by the christian name.

10,487. Do you know the Mr. Snell who lives at 30, Sackville Street?—I do not know any such person by that address.

10,488. What other Mr. Snell besides the gentleman down at the election of 1863 do you know intimately enough to write to you as "Dear Heath"?—I do not know.

10,489. Would the gentleman down in 1863 be intimate enough?—Not very likely, because he was never employed by Mr. Dunn. He went out and associated with some voters, and I am told that he sued Mr. Dunn for some expenses.

10,490. Who was with Mr. Snell?—I never saw him but on that occasion that I know of.

10,491. Was he a sort of Mr. Mum?—Yes; he professed to carry on that business.

10,492. You do not know any man of the name of Snell who was intimate enough with you to write to you "Dear Heath," or if he was Thomas George Snell?—There are several gentlemen who use our house as commercial gentlemen as well as visitors regularly.

10,493. But you know all your commercial customers by name?—No, I do not.

10,494. Do you know Thomas George Snell who writes from 30, Sackville Street, and writes to you as "Dear Heath"?—I do not remember.

10,495. Just look at that letter (handing a letter to the witness), and tell me if you know that handwriting?—(After looking at it) No.

10,496. You do not know the handwriting?—No.

10,497. You do not know what it means except that he has lost his night shirt?—I do not know what it means. I think it may be ordinary business.

10,498. Now, it is a singular thing, but here is the name of Snell occurs on the 4th July, the day after I have asked you whether Mr. Mum did not arrive at your house. "Snell, dinner, so and so, and so and "so." Now, as you have told us you do not know of any Snell by name since Dunn's election, you cannot tell us who the Mr. Snell is who appears on the 4th July in your books?—I do not know, unless he may have come and offered his services. I do not know what he did.

TENTH DAY.
Mr. J. Heath.
3 Sept. 1866.

10,499. Do you know anything of an entry on the 3rd July in your book for 1865 of "Light gent." Was Mr. Mum known by the name of "Light gent."?—He was described as "Light gent." when he came to my knowledge.

10,500. Who described him as "Light gent."?—I expect the young woman in the bar who saw him come in.

10,501. Was he called all through as "Light gent."?—I believe he had but one account, and is described as "Light gent.," July 3rd.

10,501*. Have you any doubt that he came to your house on July 3rd?—I do not know that he did, and have not the slightest knowledge.

10,502. You see in your book appears "Light gent., July 3rd;" may that have been Mr. Mum?—It may have been; I cannot say. They might be described so every day.

10,503. Come, come!—I give you my word. I do not want to take up the time of the court unnecessarily.

(Mr. Bere.) They are described from time to time as "Light gent."

10,504. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you know that on July 3rd Mr. Edmonds had received a telegram saying that a gentleman was coming down by the mail train that night?—I do not remember a word about it; I might.

10,505. Do you know that Mr. Edmonds received a telegram on the 3rd July saying that there was a gentleman coming down that night?—I do not remember. If he told me so it must have slipped my memory.

10,506. If Mr. Edmonds expected a gentleman, we may assume that it was on the business of the election, as it comes from Mr. Spofforth, Victoria Street, to Mr. Edmunds. Would you have been the person to whom he communicated it?—If a bed had been ordered at our house he would be sure to.

10,507. I may say that if a gentleman was expected to come from Mr. Spofforth by the mail train, that a bedroom would have been ordered by Mr. Edmonds?—Yes; most probably.

10,508. Tell me whether you can fix the date of Mr. Mum's coming as rather earlier than the 7th July?—Not to my knowledge.

10,509. Who would be likely to know most about it?—The barmaid I should think if she saw him.

10,510. You are quite certain. I do not know by what you test your memory that you did not see him in your house between the 3rd and the 7th of July?—Yes.

10,511. When you saw him that night that he came down and had his glass of grog in the bar he was a stranger to you?—Yes, quite so.

10,512. And as regards Snell, although Mr. Snell's name appears on the 4th, as far as you know he was not the Mr. Snell who was down on the Dunn election?—No.

10,513. Nor can you give us any notion to which Mr. Snell this referred to?—No.

10,514. Were there more than one Mr. Mum in 1865?—No; not to my knowledge.

10,515. How many in 1863?—Only one in 1863.

10,516. Was not there a dark and a light Mr. Mum in 1863?—No, he had ginger whiskers, flaxen hair.

10,517. The "black man" had not any whiskers, had he?—In Dent's time?

10,518. Yes; the black man?—Are you talking of Dent's or Dunn's election?

10,519. Dent's?—Oh, no.

10,520. There were two Mr. Mums in 1863, were not there, and one in 1865?—One in 1865.

10,521. And if these entries are correct it applies to some person that left your house twice?—The 1865 man may have gone without my knowledge.

10,522. (Mr. Bere.) Were you ever in the room with Mr. Mum when he paid money?—No. 13?

10,523. No. 13?—No, never.

10,524. You never saw him pay money at all in No. 13?—No.

10,525. Was there a china bowl in No. 13?—I do not remember to have seen it.

10,526. Had there been one there in 1863?—During Mr. Dent's time?

10,527. During Mr. Dent's time?—I never saw it.

10,528. Tell us about the poll-book belonging to Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore, that you saw in your house?—Yes, on the Sunday night before the election; what information do you want?

10,529. In the first place, did you see a poll-book made up by Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore?—I saw his poll-book, whoever made it up; it was his poll-book.

10,530. Who showed it to you?—Himself.

10,531. In your house?—In the smoking-room.

10,532. Did you see an entry there opposite Harris's name?—Yes.

10,533. What was the entry opposite Harris's name?—That he was going to vote for them.

10,534. And was the reason why he was going to vote for them put opposite his name?—I reported the following day.

10,535. You have been taxed with it since, whether what was written meant situation, but there was "sit" and a little "n" on the top?—Yes, something like that.

10,536. Have you seen that poll-book since?—No.

10,537. It has been stolen Mr. Michelmore says?—I do not know anything about it, I have not seen or heard of it since that time.

10,538. Did you see many notes in it?—Many.

10,539. Can you give us any?—Some were with respect to some voters we had down for us.

10,540. Was there a "D" to them?—Yes, "doubtful."

10,541. You say there were some known men who were going to vote for you?—Yes.

10,542. What notes were those?—They were not exactly notes, but they were carried out to vote for them that were calculated to vote for us.

10,543. Can you remember any of those people?—One was Griffis; he was going to vote for one, and the result proved that the book was correct.

10,544. Anybody else?—There were a few others which I communicated to Mr. Edmonds at the time, but if you will ask me any names—

10,545. From your memory were the names those of persons who signed the requisition to Mr. Macleay?—I think Mr. Diggins was one, and I think there may have been others whom we calculated upon who signed that requisition.

10,546. Was Byne one?—I do not remember, I think Byne is put down as one and one.

10,547. Blank?—Blank was one I think they reckoned on.

10,548. Did you see any figures put down opposite the names?—I do not remember that.

10,549. Not 50*l.* or 100*l.*, or anything of that sort?—No, I do not remember; yes, I do, there was one.

10,550. What did he do with this poll-book when he had shown it to you?—Put it in his pocket.

10,551. James Edmonds, election 1865, did you see Screach about James Edmonds?—He was frequently in and out of my house, and if he asked my opinion in the absence of Mr. Edmonds, our solicitor, I should give him advice.

10,552. I dare say you have seen what Screach has said?—No, I have never read it or heard a word of it till this morning.

10,553. We have heard that you lent a gig out to Screach and that Screach was authorized by you to offer Edmonds 200*l.*?—I do not remember giving any such authority at all.

10,554. Is it an unlikely thing that you should do such a thing at all?—Yes, "Get him in by all means, "get him here."

10,555. Supposing that Mr. Screach said, "I will "give him 200*l.*," and you said, "Yes, you may offer "him what you like"?—Very likely, if the other side offered 200*l.*, I might say, "Get him here if you "can."

10,556. Suppose if Screach and Evans could not see the stranger, they would make their reports to you?—It is very likely they would, but I was not authorized by any one to arrange with them, they had their instructions. I do not think Screach did at all, Evans did occasionally when he wanted to get out of town.

10,557. But when he wanted a horse and gig, or anything of that sort, did not he come to you and say I want a horse and gig for a particular purpose?—He did.

10,558. And then you would ask him what the purpose was, and he would tell you, and he has told us that he gave John Diggins 50*l.* at the last election?—Yes.

10,559. And that Diggins returned that 50*l.* to you, is that the case?—I never saw John Diggins on business after the election.

10,560. Not that John Diggins gave you the 50*l.*, did you receive any money from Screach?—I did not.

10,561. None at all?—None at all. I think he brought back intelligence that some voter had returned his money, and offered it to me; I had nothing to do with it.

10,562. He offered it to you?—Yes.

10,563. And you said you would have nothing to do with it?—I would have nothing to do with it, to keep it till the accounts are settled.

10,564. Did you give him his retaining fee?—I had no such power.

10,565. And did he offer you a certain sum of money?—I think so.

10,566. And you said keep it till the accounts are settled?—Yes, keep it till the accounts are settled. It is very probable that was 50*l.*, I do not know what Edmonds was arranging for.

10,567. We heard of two men, William Foote and William Stoyle, were taken to your hotel and kept in a bed-room there, were they kept there without your knowledge, in your house?—I saw Mr. Foote in the ball-room during the election, the night before.

10,568. Do you know he was kept at one time in a bed-room in your house?—I never knew he went into a bed-room, I saw him in the ball-room taking some supper.

10,569. Did you see Stoyle in your bed-room?—No.

10,570. Do you remember seeing him in your house at all?—I do not remember seeing William Stoyle. There was a great crowd in the ball-room, eating and drinking.

10,571. Do you mean to say that two people could be in your house without your knowing anything about them?—Oh, yes.

10,572. Do you know a man named John Watson?—Yes.

10,573. Does he keep the "Oxford Arms"?—He is my tenant.

10,574. He voted all right?—Yes, he did.

10,575. Did you give him anything for his vote?—Nothing, I think some of the watchers were allowed to go there and get their refreshment and the bill was paid.

10,576. Have you anything more to tell us about the election of 1865?—No.

10,577. (Mr. Longe.) There was one room in your house, I think No. 2, used by Mr. Bentall, Mr. Gill, and Mr. Bastard?—Yes, when they came in they used that room generally.

10,578. Was that room the head committee room?—That was the room for those three gentlemen in particular, who were looked up to to fix upon candidates.

10,579. Then there is another room, No. 3, that was assigned to Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Kellock?—No. 8 was Mr. Edmonds' room.

10,580. And who else occupied No. 8?—Mr. Edmonds had it under his control entirely; whoever wanted to see him must go there if he was in the house.

10,581. Which was Mr. Kellock's room?—He had no room in particular.

10,582. But there were other rooms used by the Conservative committee?—Yes, three rooms.

10,583. Which room would Mr. Kellock appear in?—Mr. Kellock's room was occupied after Captain Pim came down, I think he had No. 9.

10,584. To which of those rooms had Mr. Mum access?—He could not have had access to No. 9, because it is the other side of the house and across the entry, you go up another staircase.

10,585. We have heard from Captain Pim, at least he believes he was present with the mysterious stranger on various occasions, I want to know in what rooms he would be likely to meet Mr. Mum?—No. 13 was Mr. Mum's room. Do you mean sitting-room?

10,586. Yes, in which sitting-room would Captain Pim for instance be likely to meet Mr. Mum?—Captain Pim could have invited Mum, or had interviews with him, in his own sitting-room, unless with Colonel Dawkins in No. 20.

10,587. Do you mean to say that Mr. Mum never appeared in a room in the house but No. 13?—He was in all the public rooms.

10,588. Where did Mr. Mum get his dinner?—That I do not know.

10,589. In the coffee-room?—I think he grubbed in the coffee-room occasionally, in the commercial room occasionally, and he went out and about to see the voters in the town. The accounts is a department I do not supervise.

10,590. Do you mean really to say that Mr. Mum had not the entrée, was he in the habit of going to Mr. Edmonds' room or No. 2, where Mr. Bentall, Mr. Gill, and Mr. Bastard were, and into all those committee rooms?—He could have gone into them any hour of the day.

10,591. Have not you seen him?—I do not remember seeing him in any.

10,592. But you believe he was?—He may have been; there is sometimes 50 in what is called the committee room where there was refreshment.

10,593. Where was that?—It was a public room open to all voters who came in from town and country, every minute of the day, to get a glass of wine or refreshment.

10,594. That was the general room?—The general room for all.

(Mr. Bere.) We will leave the election of 1865 and go to the election of 1863, at which Alfred Seymour and Dent were candidates.

10,595. How long before the election took place of the 20th January did Mr. Dent come down to your house?—That I can only guess on the books; I should think 10 days.

10,596. From your memory you can tell us?—I cannot indeed.

10,597. You think about 10 days?—It may have been a fortnight.

10,598. He had been down when Mr. Pender was elected in 1862?—Yes.

10,599. Do you know how the Conservatives came to get Mr. Dent as a candidate in their interest?—I do not know.

10,600. Were not you consulted?—I do not remember.

10,601. You must have been consulted?—Very likely I was.

10,602. Can you remember?—If you give me anything to refresh my memory as to who was likely to have written to me or said anything on the subject, I will answer in a moment.

10,603. Do you remember at the time that Mr. Pender was elected Lord Gifford was supposed to be dying, and when the news came down that there was a vacancy in Totnes, supposed to be in consequence of Lord Gifford's death, it turned out unexpectedly to be Mr. Mills. Can you remember any negotiations going on with Mr. Dent before that time, inthe course of September 1862 ?—I do not remember. I know Mr. Mitchell came down.

TENTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

3 Sept. 1866.

10,604. Had he been down with you before September 1862 ?—I do not think he made his appearance in the town till he and Mr. Pender met in this hall to address the electors.

10,605. That was before the election of 1862 ?—Before the election of 1862, after the death of Mr. Mills.

10,606. As far as you remember you cannot say that Mr. Dent was introduced to the electors of Totnes before Mr. Mills died ?—No; I never heard that he was.

10,607. Now, from the time of the election in 1862 till January 1863, was there any expectation of there being a vacancy, and in consequence of that expectation were the Conservatives acting in order to get the seat ?—They were.

10,608. And were you actively employed on the Conservative part ?—Just as usual. I must not be considered as employed, because I volunteered my assistance. It was through my zeal in the cause, because I never was employed.

10,609. But I suppose the volunteering produced a good deal at the "Seven Stars" which is not unprofitable ?—That is a part which I must not admit.

10,610. You do not admit it ?—No; because if you compare the returns at the time of the two visits of Mr. Dent to the town with the corresponding time of other seasons, I find the balance is in favour of the private trade.

10,611. And are you one of the few persons in Totnes who receive no consideration for their interest in the election or their votes ?—I have no interest whatever, and I can prove this statement; and as the reporters are here I hope they will make mention that I would rather see the elections done away with, and the place disfranchised, for the good of the town.

10,612. You think Mr. Dent came down before the election of 1863 ?—It might be a fortnight.

10,613. Did somebody come down with him ?—I think Mr. Mitchell came.

10,614. Mr. Mitchell acted as a sort of secretary ?—As private secretary I think.

10,615. Did they occupy a private sitting room ?—"No. 20 suite of rooms."

10,616. How long after Mr. Dent came down did the mysterious stranger appear from London ?—That I can only show by the books. I do not remember the times. Be kind enough to give me that waste book of 1863. A neighbour here who voted on the other side has just refreshed my memory, that there is a gentleman named Snell who uses our house. He comes periodically, about once in three months, and answers to that address. Therefore I do not want to be mixed up as the dear friend with this briber and Mr. Snell who robbed Mr. Dunn.

10,617. What is he, a wood engraver ?—Yes; he is the man in all probability who wrote that letter. I am very glad that my friend Mr. Godfrey has refreshed my memory on that matter. I am very anxious to have the truth, and nothing but the truth, out in this court.

10,618. (Mr. Bere.) You remember that a mysterious stranger did come down ?—Yes.

10,619. Was he No. 13 ?—No. 16. I think the books prove it.

10,620. It does not much matter when he came, but did you have some communication with him ?—I do not remember that I did. I generally understood that a man was coming.

10,621. Who told you that ?—It is very probable Edmonds.

10,622. Had you talked to Mr. Dent and Mr. Mitchell about the election ?—Yes.

10,623. And had you told them what you thought it would cost ?—I do not remember. I may have given my opinion as well as other people.

10,624. What was your opinion at that time that a single-handed contest would cost Totnes ?—I thought that if they had fought Pender's election instead of Seymour's we could have carried it for 2,000*l.*

10,625. If Pender had been a candidate instead of Seymour ?—Yes; if Dent had stood for that first election, all expenses, legal or otherwise, would have been covered by 2,000*l.*

10,626. When Pender came to stand against Seymour, what did you estimate that contest at ?—I think 1,000*l.* more.

10,627. 3,000*l.* ?—3,000*l.*

10,628. What in your opinion made the difference in the costs of the two candidates ?—The duke had a little more interest, and some of his tenantry, who would have voted for us in Pender's time, would not have voted in the other, and the result proved that.

10,629. It costs 1,000*l.* more to counteract the duke's interest than to fight the position between two parties ?—Yes, single handed; the tenants of the duke who were Conservative in principle would always support one of the candidates prior to that election.

10,630. Had any turning out taken place prior to your time of people who had voted one Conservative and one Liberal ?—I do not know about one Conservative and one Liberal. I was turned out in 1857.

10,631. Was that in consequence of your voting for Mackenzie and Mr. Gregory ?—I think it was. I have not the books before me, but Mr. Michelmore called on me. It was all the Duke's land. I tenanted the rectory house; altogether about 100*l.* a year, land and house; and he came, and I asked what the reason was, and he said, "Because of your voting "against us."

10,632. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he give that reason ?—He gave that reason about a week or 10 days after the election.

10,633. And you mean that Mr. Michelmore made no sort of concealment of it, that people who voted against the Duke were turned out ?—Not the least, and I asked if his Grace knew it, and he said "Yes."

10,634. You split your vote for Baldwin and Seymour, and you voted for Mackenzie and Gregory in 1857 ?—Yes, that was during the time there was an understanding between the Duke and Baldwin, but between those two periods the Duke came down to be re-elected, having accepted some office under the Government, and the Liberals called on the Tories and proposed to them in my presence and many of them there that if they would consent to vote at a future general election for any Liberal they put up they promised their support to any Conservative who was put up and would kick the Duke overboard, but which terms were rejected, because we were under an arrangement with the Duke, and which arrangement was faithfully carried out by the Conservatives till Mills first came.

10,635. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell when the mysterious stranger first arrived in 1863 from that book ?—"No. 16; gent.; 17th January 1863." The account goes on 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, and his account amounts to 8*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*

10,636. Do you know he paid that himself, or it was paid for him ?—I think it was paid for him in the general expenses.

10,637. When did you first in 1863 have anything to do with the distribution of money ?—Dunn's time.

10,638. No, 1863, Dent's time ?—In the election of Dent and Seymour; I should think a fortnight before the election I advanced on my own account to a man called Louis Dufort 10*l.*

10,639. What did you advance that for ?—He was in difficulties, and he said if the election—that was before the vacancy occurred through the death of Lord Gifford — when the election came he would vote, and if he could get any "sugar" he would repay.

,640. It was called "sugar" at that election and ." afterwards?—Yes.

,641. Does "sugar" mean an influence to divert er and "sub." an influence to keep him steady? lo not know; they are synonymous.

,642. Is "paint" one of your expressions here? ver heard that. Dufort was a confectioner, and plied to him particularly.

,643. After giving this 10*l.* were you repaid by rt?—Yes, I was; he received something after, ık 25*l.*, and he gave me back the 10*l.*

644. Whom did he receive that from?—I think r I asked to be intrusted myself with it.

645. What was the first sum of money you received from the stranger at that election?—I t know. I have looked over these names.

646. Did the stranger bring the money with r did you supply him?—I had nothing what- o do with the money in 1863.

647. Did the stranger himself bring it down? annot tell you.

648. Do you know at all how you got to him? o not know.

649. Was Henry Helms here at the time?— g in the town?

650. Living in the town. Did you ever see Helms and a stranger together?—No, I saw Helms frequently come in and out of the

651. Did you ever see Henry Helms go up the se and into the bedroom?—I lost sight of him; quently went up and down.

652. He may have gone to the stranger, and ave taken him money?—Yes, he may have.

653. You yourself did not do what you did at ction of 1865; you did not take the money?—

654. What sort of looking person was the er of 1863?—He had rather a dark complexion.

655. Tall?—Rather tall.

656. What colour hair?—I think dark hair.

657. Was it curly hair?—I think not; I did ke particular notice of him.

658. What age should you suppose?—40 or 50, haps.

659. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was he very dark in- —No. Excuse me mentioning it, but he was a larker than that gentleman there (Mr. Longe) at oft.

660. He had not an almost gipsy-coloured skin?

661. Was he a tall man?—He was a man about et nine.

662. And slouched a good deal in his walk?— ot remember.

663. Had you anyone in your house at that time risp black hair, very dark complexioned, and a an with a slouching gait?—I do not remember anyone who answered to that description.

664. Was this man called by any other name? y are all Mr. Mum.

665. We have had very different accounts of om Screach and Evens; could there have been Mr. Mums?—There was one who had very whiskers; whether that was the first or the time of Mr. Dent's being here I cannot say.

666. Can you recollect there being two Mr. here together?—There were only two; I with one occasionally.

667. Was it the same Mr. Mum who was there hole time of the election?—I never saw but

668. Tell us the people with whom you dealt on casion; had you anything to do with Blackler?

669. Or with Browse?—No, Bartlett is the first I never saw him; his wife came down.

670. Had there been some intimation sent by ssage for people to come to the "Seven Stars"? ould expect so. I saw about half-a-dozen.

671. Used the stranger to come down as Mr. Mum; did he in 1865?—He would sit in the smoking room or walk about the town, as I understood, and call upon the voters. Mrs. Bartlett came down the night before the election to say that she was afraid her husband would vote on the wrong side.

10,672. How had he voted before?—He had always voted for the Conservatives; some one had been up there to see him.

10,673. Did she say who it was?—It was their Mr. Mum, and that I had better send some one to see about it. That was settled some way or other. I do not know by whom, but I know it was put to rights and he voted right.

10,674. Who were employed as Conservative distributors in 1863?—I think Screach and Evans.

10,675. What had your two sons to do with it?—They had to settle with some; they will answer for themselves. They were not employed as runners or messengers; they were out canvassing for the good of the cause. In certain cases where others could not do business I believe one of my sons succeeded, but he will answer for himself.

10,676. James Clark?—He was living at Plymouth at the time.

10,677. Was he a waiter of yours then?—He lived at the house before I had it, and he was there for some years afterwards.

10,678. Was he living in your house at this time?—No, he was at the "Royal" at Plymouth, and I called there either on purpose or that I had some business there. He said he would not come away without he had 5*l.* to pay his expenses. When he came up what was done with him I do not remember. He was paid.

10,679. You do not know what he got?—No.

10,680. Francis Coombes?—He is a tenant of mine and does not vote at all.

10,681. What influence was used to prevent him?—He did not wish to vote. I had canvassed him, and had exerted all the moral influence that I could command to get him to vote for our side. He said that he was under obligations to the other side, and that he was not in a condition to go against them.

10,682. (Mr. Longe.) Did he ask 500*l.* from you?—He never said a word about that. He said he owed a person on the other side 200*l.*, and unless the security was transferred he should not think of voting.

10,683. (Mr. Bere.) Was the security transferred?—No.

10,684. Then what happened about him?—Nothing was done in the matter; he did not vote at all.

10,685. Did you try to negotiate the matter of the transfer?—I mentioned the subject. I do not think that 200*l.* was an acceptable sum, they did not feel disposed to give that which would have been the effect of it; although the voter did not demand it, and talked of a different rate of interest, he promised to come to our house, but he never came, and did not vote.

10,686. Did you give him any reason to believe that you would try and negotiate the loan for him?—I did; and that if possible the loan should be at a different rate of interest, in consideration of his vote.

10,687. He could not get the loan?—No, he did not.

10,688. John Diggins of Bridgetown?—I had nothing whatever to do with him; he was a person of whom I spoke in the other election. John Diggins of Bridgetown, not John Diggins of Totnes. On the occasion of Mr. Dent's election I had nothing to do with him. The next is William Henry Johns; he was employed as an assistant for several days; what he was paid I do not know.

10,689. Was he paid in your presence?—I do not know. I do not remember.

10,690. How was the settlement of matters made in 1863; used they to receive the money from Screach and Evans direct, or used they to come to your house to see Mr. Mum?—Screach and Evans paid some; as to the others, Mr. Mum, I think, did the whole of the business.

TENTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

3 Sept. 1866.

10,691. Did he not pay the persons in your presence ?—No.

10,692. He wanted some guarantee as to the identity of some of the voters ?—I think he went out and made the acquaintance of nearly all the voters. I believe he went round the town daily and nightly.

10,693. Who is your next ?—George Evens and Lombardini had some consideration, I do not remember what.

10,694. How much do you suppose ; what was the price ?—I should think 20*l.*

10,695. Were you at all cognizant of that ?—I was cognizant of their having something. I do not remember the amount.

10,696. How was it paid ?—I expect that Mr. Mum paid it at the inn. I reported the men who had been employed.

10,697. Were you present ?—I rather think I was present when they were paid.

10,698. Is Lombardini any relation of Evans' ?—He is his father-in-law. The next on my list is Lake; he came on the morning of the election about nine o'clock ; he was a tenant of the Duke of Somerset's ; he had been paid something before. Mr. Mum came down into the smoking-room where these men were, and whatever arrangement had been made previously with Lombardini was carried out by Mr. Mum, and he voted.

10,699. Do you mean carried out by payment of money in a bag, as was done in 1865 ?—I am not certain about that. He was talking to several others at the same time, and they were counting out money on the table in the smoking-room, where there were some half-dozen of them. I do not know what was paid.

10,700. Then Richard Pengilley ?—He always had something. I do not know what it was at that election.

10,701. You yourself had no money to distribute at that election ?—None at all. I had nothing whatever to do with it ; the stranger did the whole. I was privy to many things that were contracted for which I have mentioned, and he asked my opinion as to their identity and so on.

10,702. And you used to say yes or no, as the case might be ?—Yes.

10,703. Charles Pitts ?—Charles Pitts was at our house one night, and when he was just leaving he was sent for by the other party. He was retained, and arranged with in my presence.

10,704. What was the arrangement ?—I do not know.

10,705. He was paid a good sum ?—I do not know ; I should think not very much.

10,706. Who sent for him ?—As he was leaving the smoking room there was a suspicion that he was deserting, and that a sharp look-out ought to be kept regarding him.

10,707. Who were the watchers ?—There were several runners about, I do not remember who they were, but he was brought back and squared with.

10,708. You do not remember for how much ?—I do not.

10,709. Was it 40*l.* or 50*l.* ?—Perhaps 30*l.*

10,710. James Raymond ?—He had some consideration ; I do not know what.

10,711. Was he a man who usually voted for you ?—He always voted for us.

10,712. You put him down as a matter-of course man ?—Yes ; whatever the others were offering he would vote for, or perhaps a little less.

10,713. George Sercombe ?—He was sent away and brought back on the morning of the election and arranged with 10,714. He was taken down to your house and kept there ?—I do not think he was taken there until the morning of the election.

10,715. We have been told that he was taken to the "Anchor Inn" at Kingsbridge, and from th to your house ?—He would be quite safe there.

10,716. William Shinner ?—I think he was pai the house ; I saw him in the house.

10,717. Did you see him talking to Mr. Mum ?- is very probable I did.

10,718. Was he in the smoking room ?—Yes, often, and in the entry, and also in some of the o rooms where they were feeding, many of them grubbing for some two or three days.

10,719. They got their living free at that time Yes ; there was open house for them for three da

10,720. He was an old Conservative, good and t —He generally has voted with the Conservatives.

10,721. William Farley, jun. ?—I saw him in smoking room sitting by the side of Mr. Mum heard a conversation. I believe that the other had offered him a great deal ; what was done w him I do not know ; very probably there was a arrangement.

10,722. He voted for you eventually ?—He did

10,723. Whatever sum had been offered to hi the other side, more must have been given to hi your side ?—If William Farley had anything, I s think less ; he generally voted with the Conserva as a rule, and he would not have voted for the o side unless he had got a better price. I think Mum called upon him himself and also on sever the voters.

10,724. Was there any distinction as to the v who Evens and Screach had to operate upon and t who Mr. Mum had to see himself ?—I know o arrangement as to where they were to see the vo

10,725. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was Harris employe this election ?—I do not think he was ; he has employed as an agent for some years.

10,726. Was he about your house the sam Screach and Evans ?—I saw him frequently.

10,727. And with Mr. Mum ?—I do not remem ever having seen him with Mr. Mum.

10,728. On the occasion of the election of 186 Mr. Mum come down and go away again as he d 1865, or was he there continuously ?—I think jud from the book he was there continuously.

10,729. You were not a go-between in m matters on the occasion of 1863 ?—No.

10,730. Who managed the election for the servatives ?—Mr. Edmonds.

10,731. Who was the London solicitor who down here then ?—I do not know ; I do not there was any one but Mr. Mitchell.

10,732. Was not Mr. Cameron here ?—He was in Mr. Dunn's time.

10,733. In 1863 who came down here with Dent ?—Mr. Mitchell ; I think he had his c William Dent, with him.

10,734. The William Dent who was asked to here was not the cousin who had been down b but a brother of Mr. John Dent's ?—I do not kn

10,735. (Mr. Bere.) You took an active part i election of 1863 and went about canvassing fluencing voters ?—I scarcely ever went out o house.

10,736. Then you canvassed them in your house ?—Yes.

10,737. James Edmonds, what did you do him in 1863 ?—I do not think I ever spoke to h money matters in 1863. I think Screach brough there, and my advice to them was to keep him would remain, and endeavour to make arrange with him by means of an interview with Mr. M

10,738. Did you see Edmonds in your hou 1863 ?—I saw him there in 1863 and in 1865.

10,739. Had you any negotiations with him self in 1863 ?—Whatever was said to him by m said in the presence of Screech in my house a came.

10,740. Did you not believe in 1863 that would have any money ?—I think Edmonds sa he could have whatever he liked on the othe some 200*l.* or 300*l.*, and I said, "Do not vote u have seen Mr. Mum, we shall not be outbid." as a question of l. s. d.

,741. In the election of 1862 did not Mr. Dent down to stand?—Yes.

,742. But he did not go to the poll?—No.

,743. Was there any mysterious stranger came n then?—I do not remember what was done then. oney passed.

,744. Was there any promise of money; were not authorized to say to any voter who asked the tion whether money was forthcoming, that it d be to be had though not at that moment?—It ry likely that the question might have been d of me, and no doubt I said so.

,745. What was the reason that Mr. Dent did go to the poll then; did not the slippery com- hold out for too high a figure?—I do not think was the reason.

,746. Then what was the reason?—I do not Mr. Mitchell wished him to go to the poll.

,747. Upon what ground?—Upon some private nds according to the information we received. r Mr. Dent had been down here the first time he back to London; there was some negotiations g on between the Reform Club and the Carlton which altered their plans. If they had gone on n they first came down he would have won in a , because there was no opposition.

,748. Was Mr. Dent down in 1862 before Mr. ler came?—No.

,749. Was not Mr. Pender spending money before Dent came into the field?—It was reported cer- y that an offer had been made by Mr. Pender.

,750. And the constituency of Totnes was so , that if Mr. Pender had bribed there would have a contest?—It was reported that Mr. Pender ready for bribery, but Mr. Dent would not n.

,751. Was not the reason that he would not go iat he would not spend the money which it would to contest the borough?—I was present when the book was made up, and a majority could have polled in his favour if the promises that had given were to be relied on.

,752. When was the poll book made up?—It was t 12 o'clock on the night before the election. ording to the promises which had been given we ld have had a majority of three.

,753. Had those promises been obtained by the ling out of certain inducements to those who had nised when they were canvassed?—There is no t of it.

,754. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there a Mr. Mum n here on that occasion?—I am not so clear about ; I think there was.

,755. Was it the same man who had come down he next occasion?—I am not clear about that; it robable there was; I do not know that anything done.

,756. (Mr. Bere.) Do not you know that Mr. ms brought down money for Mr. Dunn at the tion of 1862, but that as it was not wanted they it back again?—I have heard so.

,757. What was your bill against Mr. Dent on occasion of that election?—I do not remember; I get the bill; I know it was satisfactory to Mr. t.

,758. Was the house kept open as it was in 1863 1865?—For the last two or three days it was, and much more extensive scale; on the last day in ticular all the gentry in the neighbourhood partook most magnificent lunch there.

,759. What do you mean by the gentry?—There e various classes. There was a certain room for aristocracy and the gentry; another room for the liocrity and those whom they had to look after and a third for the runners and such like; all grubbed there.

,760. And there they partook of "all nations"? never heard of that phrase before I heard it in room.

10,761. What is the peculiar compound that you give to your voters in order to gain their confidence?—I have asked some of our men, and they say there are more hogsheads in one of the cellars, where the bottoms of various casks are put together to fine down, and the continued additions which are made to it cause it to become tolerably strong. The men in the yard drink it; whether it is fit to drink I cannot say.

10,762. And that is called "all nations"?—It has been during this inquiry.

10,763. Was not your bill against Mr. Dent upon that occasion some 700*l.* or 800*l.*?—On both occasions I do not think it was above one-third of that; I will turn to the books and see; I do not think that 200*l.* was spent, including open house and everything.

10,764. At this time was there a company the name of which was the slippery company?—There was no such company in existence then; there has been a slippery company since then.

10,765. And did not the chairman of that company, Jacob Searle, call at your house and say that he and his friends would not vote under 1,000*l.*?—Searle visited the house two or three times, and mingled with the company, and said that a few friends of his who had always voted on the other side might be prevailed upon to vote for the other candidate for a consideration.

10,766. Did he mention that it was a consideration of 1,000*l.*?—No.

10,767. How much did he say?—He could not tell; he would not say anything definite.

10,768. Did he give you the names of the men?—I think he said there were six or seven of them.

10,769. Did you have that in writing?—Not from him. I made a memorandum of the names at the time.

10,770. Have you got that memorandum?—No; I have looked for it since this inquiry has been going on.

10,771. And you have not found it?—No; there was no such thing in existence, he never put it in writing.

10,772. Did you canvass at all in 1862?—No; I never went out of my house.

10,773. Did you see a number of people who came to your house?—Yes, frequently.

10,774. Were there not a great many who were certain of voting in 1862 who wanted a particular inducement before they voted?—From the general tone of the poll I have no doubt that Mr. Dent would have been elected in 1862, but we capitulated the night before the election.

10,775. Why did you do that?—Because Mr. Mitchell would not go on.

10,776. Was that not because you had such a large number of votes to buy that Mr. Dent would not incur the expense of a contest?—No, it was not indeed. I understood that he was ready to have spent any money.

10,777. Then what was the reason?—Mr. Mitchell never would consent to the contest being fought after he went to London. There was some communication between these two great clubs in London to the effect that Mr. Dent should be elected at one time without opposition, and Mr. Pender the other time. They were in London for some two or three days, and on their return I remember Mr. Dent would not stand. There had been some proposals made, and Mr. Pender would not consent to the terms.

10,778. Were those terms communicated to Mr. Pender?—Everything was regularly communicated from London by telegram. I expect Mr. Pender and Mr. Dent and their solicitors on each side knew all of what was going on.

10,779. Were there any but the local solicitors employed in 1862?—I do not remember any one but Mr. Edmonds.

10,780. (Mr. Coleridge.) Then how came Mr. Dent to go to the poll?—He did not go to the poll. The notice was given to the other side between 12 and

TENTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

3 Sept. 1866.

1 o'clock at night, and Mr. Kellock and myself and Mr. Dent went across to the "Seymour Armr," and there saw Mr. Cuming the agent.

10,781. But how comes it that there seems to have been a poll, Mr. Dent polled five votes?—The other side thought fit to go to the poll if it were only to show their strength, and some said they would vote notwithstanding.

10,782. In whose favour was the show of hands?—In favour of Mr. Dent.

10,783. And then Mr. Pender demanded a poll, I suppose?—Yes.

10,784. (Mr. Bere.) At that election 171 voted for Mr. Pender?—Yes.

10,785. And there were 169 who did not poll?—There were several who voted for Pender who made a merit of necessity, but who otherwise would have voted for Dent.

10,786. Could you give us the names of any who did so on that occasion if you were to look over your list?—I might probably do so.

10,787. (Mr. Longe.) Had any money been spent by the Liberals before that time?—It had been promised. I cannot say that it had been spent.

10,788. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you find in 1863 that the fact of your having promised money in 1862 and not paid them, acted injuriously upon the Conservative interest?—No.

10,789. Nothing about broken promises was thrown in your teeth?—No, I do not think it was.

10,790. Had that any effect on Mr. Dent's election in 1863?—Possibly it might have; having once enlisted under your banner they do not like to turn.

10,791. The fact of their having been promised and not having got anything was not made a matter of reproach by the other side?—I do not think it was.

10,792. Did Mr. Dent pay his bill here daily while he stayed at your house?—I think I may say with certainty that he did not.

10,793. Did he not have it sent in day by day?—Not to my knowledge.

10,794. (Mr. Longe.) Going back to the general election of 1859, you then had for candidates Lord Gifford, Mr. Mills, and Mr. Dunn?—Yes.

10,795. Whom had you staying at the "Seven Stars" hotel on that occasion?—We had Mr. Dunn there.

10,796. Had you Mr. Cameron there at the same time?—Yes.

10,797. Was there any one else there with Mr. Dunn at that time?—There were several visitors; for instance, Admiral Keppel came there occasionally.

10,798. Was there any one there with Mr. Dunn who was taking an active part?—Not any one but Mr. Cameron who I can remember.

10,797. Who was Mr. Cameron?—He was a solicitor in London.

10,800. Had you a Mr. Mum down here on that occasion?—There was a person down here of the name of Phipps, who was an acquaintance of Mr. Cameron's.

10,801. Was there a Mr. Mum down here then?—Yes.

10,802. And was not that the occasion when you had another person down here who we have called the spurious Mr. Mum?—Yes, there was this man down here who has been called Snell; he was a volunteer, and I think he afterwards sued Mr. Dunn for some 50*l.*

10,803. Was he at your house for only one night?—I think he was not there for more than one night.

10,804. How long before the election did the real Mr. Mum come down here?—I should think that he came down here within a week, but I have no very strong recollection of it.

10,805. Was this election conducted in much the same way as the last two elections had been?—Not the last, but the one before that, when Mr. Mum was the principal man and did all the business.

10,806. It was not conducted like the last elect —No.

10,807. What was different?—Mum paid ev body.

10,808. On this occasion in 1859 Mum took a important part?—Nobody would be mixed up it. He went out and saw the voters himself arranged with them, and certain ones came to house.

10,809. In Gifford's time 3*l.* was spent on side?—Was there then?

10,810. So the town clerk said?—I have not my calculated.

10,811. Do you mean that there was no mo paid at the "Seven Stars" at that time?—Not to knowledge a single case; Mum did the whole of 10,812. There were the same agents, Mr. Kell and Mr. Edmonds?—Yes, I think Mr. Edmonds w I am almost certain he was.

10,813. You were a member of the commit then?—If there was a committee at all I might considered one of them.

10,814. You were recognized by the party?—Y

10,815. Mr. Harris gave us several names of Conservative committee?—They are a self-constit committee; there is no actual committee.

10,816. You acted as one of the committee Yes.

10,817. At that election did you yourself take part in negotiating for Mr. Dunn?—I do not member a single instance.

10,818. Or rather for Mr. Dunn's agent?—I not think any one in the town did.

10,819. Who were the runners; how did Mr. M get at the electors?—They adopted a different p He called upon the electors and got the informat He must have got the information from some He knew who was open to do business.

10,820. You were a member of the committee Yes, but he would not mix up with us. They w not so open as they have been since.

10,821. Do you remember when this man first ca Mum?—I should think a week before the electi within a few days.

10,822. That was not the first time a Mum come to your house?—What date was that?

10,823. 1859.—There was a general election 1857, but I do not know that there was any mo spent. I have no recollection. I do not think th was much done, not with my knowledge.

10,824. In 1859, do you remember Mum's com then?—Yes, it was a strange man then.

10,825. Is Dunn alive?—No; he died crossing Red Sea.

10,826. A stranger came before that election Yes.

10,827. Who told you of his arrival or inten arrival?—I think very likely Cameron; that the was to have a private room.

10,828. Cameron and Dunn were at the "Se Stars" at the time?—Yes.

10,829. Now, perhaps you can remember, was the first time you had anything to do with Mum To my knowledge I do not think there was any here at Gregory's time.

10,830. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is that private room speak of No. 10?—No. 9.

10,831. What part of the house is that?—T west end.

10,832. Towards the town?—Yes.

10,833. On the same floor as the room No. 13 No; the floor below, and no communication.

10,834. Was it a bedroom or a sitting room?—sitting room, there is a bedroom adjoining.

10,835. Do you know how the money came on t occasion?—No.

10,836. (Mr. Longe.) Who used to visit Mum that occasion; who were the runners?—I do remember who they were, that was in 1859.

10,837. Who before Evens and Screach?—I do think there was any one in that capacity only sc d porters who would direct those men where to go . He negotiated the business himself, and I saw some ters come to the house and inquire for him.

10,838. Had you committee rooms in the "Seven ars" at that time?—Yes.

10,839. Who were the legal assistants to the mmittee?—I think Mr. Edmonds was the principal an.

10,840. Mr. Kellock, did he take any part in it?— e has always taken part in the elections for the nservative interest.

10,841. Had Kellock and Edmonds a room toge- r?—I think Mr. Edmonds had a room, but we had tle to do with it; Mr. Cameron took the principal rt.

10,842. Mr. Cameron must have had some local rson to represent him?—Yes, and I think in meron's room the solicitors of the town visited him l communicated with him.

10,843. The solicitors of the town generally?—Yes, that side.

10,844. Who besides Mr. Edmonds?—Mr. Bryett think was engaged in one election, when Mr. ldwin was turned out. It is possible that Mr. Bryett, o has always been on the Conservative side, may ve had some communication with that gentleman.

10,835. Where did Cameron get his information m?—I cannot give it to you, I had scarcely any- ing to do with it then.

10,846. (Mr. Bere.) There was plenty of money ing about at that election?—Dunn's election, I ould not think much.

10,847. Not much?—No, I have no idea, but I ould not think above 1,000*l.*

10,848. (Mr. Coleridge.) Not on the Liberal side? There has always been some, but Dunn had not uch.

10,849. I thought he had Australia at his back?— e had his father out there.

10,850. (Mr. Bere.) Did not Mr. Dent say, when was proposed in 1863 or in some of his speeches, at he was a capital candidate, that he had China at s back?—No. "We do not bring you a needy man, but here is a gentleman with millions at his back."

10,851. As to Mr. Dunn, what expenses did he pay u for?—I furnished the secretary with the par- ulars, but I do not remember. It was not very uch.

10,852. You have furnished Mr. Dunn's bill?—If quired I will furnish it.

10,853. Do you remember the figure?—No, but I ould not think it was above 100*l.*

10,854. Was it the same system as the election of 65, the candidate paying the expenses in the house?— Yes.

10,855. A general system on both sides?—Yes.

10,856. You never recollect an election in which eating did not take place?—No, and if the bills do pear large to the court and to the public, they are ally not out of the way, not equal to private trade.

10,857. Was there ever a petition on the ground treating here?—No.

10,858. Was not there a petition in 1852?—At hose election.

10,859. Mills and Seymour against Baldwin?— es, that is the time they had the close run. The rties were running on together at half-past 9 o'clock. ome had voted for Dunn who were not expected to so. It was communicated to Mr. Mills, who ap- ared to be a little alarmed about the prospect of ings, and I heard it stated that Mills said of it, "Is it too late to win now?" "Probably it may be, means being resorted." "Then it must be won," aid Mills.

10,860. And it was won?—Yes, but I do not know majority. That was Mills, Gifford, and Baldwin. he first time the duke shifted after he had made e agreement.

10,861. In 1857 what part did you take then?— Who were the candidates.

10,862. The candidates were Mackenzie and Gregory?—I took no active part more than voting.

19,863. Were they in your house?—Yes, they always put up at the house; it is a recognized thing, one side of the bridge one interest, and the other the other at election times.

10,864. Who brought them down?—I do not know. I think Gregory had a relation of the same name who was a lawyer.

10,865. Gregory and Faulkener?—I do not know, there were two Gregorys.

10,866. Gregory, Skirrow, and Rowcliffe?—I do not know.

10,867. (Mr. Longe.) It was in 1862 when you seconded the candidate?—Which candidate was that.

10,868. John Dent?—Yes, I seconded John Dent.

10,869. In previous elections you had taken a leading part?—No part in public affairs till 1859.

10,870. When did you have the "Seven Stars"?—In 1856.

10,871. This was soon after you took the "Seven Stars"?—Three or four years I was pressed to be a candidate for the council and refused, and they said they would put me up. I was called upon by Alderman Bentall, the late mayor, and Mr. Edmonds; they said if you do not stand we will put you up without your consent. Since then I have taken an active part.

10,872. In the case of Mackenzie and Gregory, was the commencement of their coming on your having a requisition signed, do not you remember?—I do not remember.

10,873. Mackenzie had stood before?—Yes.

10,874. (Mr. Bere.) With regard to the election of 1859, do you know of a man named Thomas Mitchell coming to your house?—From London?

10,875. No, one of the voters; a man open to conviction in all cases?—No doubt of it.

10,876. Coming down and seeing Mr. Mum and being paid 60*l.*?—I do not remember, it might have been; he was often there.

10,877. Did not Mr. Mum in 1859 give different names; did not he call himself Mr. Higgins?—I do not know; he was not recognized by the party by that name. He might have called himself Higgins or Smith.

10,878. Did he go out and introduce himself to the different electors by different names?—I do not know; Mum was the name that we knew him by.

10,879. Did you see money pass on that occasion?—No.

10,880. Did you see Mum come out of your house with a bag, as far as you could judge containing money?—Things were done very privately; he conducted the whole thing.

10,881. You yourself had nothing to do with it?—No.

10,882. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did Mr. Kellock first mix himself up with elections?—Since he has been in business in the town.

10,883. Was he engaged in the 1857 election?—When Cameron was here?

10,884. Yes.—I do not think he took a retainer.

10,885. Did he take a retainer from Colonel Dawkins on the last election?—I do not know.

10,886. Did he mix himself up in the same way in the early elections as in the last one?—I do not think he took so active a part till the last few years.

10,887. In 1863 did he for Dent?—He worked for Dent.

10,888. In 1859 did he work for Dunn?—I do not remember; I do not think he did. He always voted for the Conservatives.

10,889. (Mr. Longe.) Were you in the town before you took the "Seven Stars"?—Yes, all my lifetime, except two years in London.

10,890. (Mr. Bere.) When did you become a candidate for the council?—In 1859. They proposed me as a candidate against my will.

10,891. Was it in consequence of your activity in the election for the borough that you were thought to be a good Conservative candidate for the council?—I do not know.

10,892. Were you not actively engaged telling the people what to do, and how to do, in Dunn's election?—Very likely I may have done.

10,893. Did not you begin to take an active part in the borough politics for the election of member in 1859?—Not more than I had before.

10,894. Then you had been active in 1857?—Every one in his sphere in life does a little for the good of the cause.

10,895. Did you do more in 1865 than in 1859?—A hundred times.

10,896. More in 1863 than in 1859?—Yes.

10,897. Then you were progressive?—I hope so.

10,898. We have heard of the votes made on the "Seymour Arms," how many votes do the "Seven Stars" make?—One. Although the house is rated higher than any house in the town, I make one.

10,899. You have not got a meadow that can be subdivided into five?—Not of my own.

10,900. On the "Seymour Arms" there is a meadow by which they make five votes?—I have heard of various things, but they do manufacture votes, and that is the way they swamp us.

10,901. Who is the landlord of the "Seven Stars"?—Your humble servant.

10,902. When you talked about being a tenant of the duke, that is for land?—Yes.

10,903. Was it the duke's house?—No, I bought it of my predecessor, Mr. Webb. I was a tenant of the rectory house and ground and resided there, and we had a few closes of land from the duke, about 100*l.* a year.

10,904. (Mr. Bere.) Although you have not been able to get voters by getting land, you have got two or three retainers generally vote for you, Mr. Brown and Mr. Clarke, the waiters?—My own staff.

10,905. They are always pretty steady as Conservatives?—On one occasion, the first election that took place after I occupied the "Seven Stars," the night prior to the election one of the men came in and said, "Master, you have not told us how to vote "to-morrow." I said, "I shall vote for so-and-so, you "may do as you please."

10,906. If they had voted the other way would they have driven another horse of yours?—Yes; and as a proof of it, I have had two or three tenants vote against me; Blackler, Bennett, and Stranger, and I never gave them notice.

10,907. Bennett and Stranger did not vote till late in the election of 1865?—No.

10,908. You had been to feel them, and see if they would not vote for you?—I had not been.

10,909. Had you sent anybody down?—No.

10,910. What did your election of the council cost you?—That depends on the amount of opposition.

10,911. Are you a member of the council now?—Yes.

10,912. When you have been opposed? What did it cost you in 1863?—About 50*l.*

10,913. How many times have you had a contest?—I think about thrice.

10,914. Did it cost you 50*l.*?—At least; one was a single-handed contest.

10,915. What did that cost you, more?—Working voters about half-a-crown a day before I was proposed; afterwards another candidate was proposed.

10,916. Who was that?—Mr. Bowden, the cyder and corn merchant. I did not do any canvassing, but the others had three or four solicitors, and there was the duke's agent canvassing, and when they found they could not carry it in that way the price rose from half-a-crown to 5*s.*, 10*s.*, and as much as 1*l.* Information was brought to our quarters to that effect.

10,917. And you were obliged to follow suit?—Yes. "We are not going to be beaten on this ground," I said, "we shall fight it out."

10,918. How much did that cost you?—100*l.*

10,919. Was that the time that some of them got 5*l.* a piece?—No.

10,920. Whom did you employ on that occasion?—I do not remember who the runners were.

10,921. Was Evens one of your runners?—I think so.

10,922. And young Screach or old Screach?—I do not think so; they were old volunteers.

10,923. They had some little consideration, had they not, afterwards?—Every labourer is worthy of his hire.

10,924. (Mr. Coleridge.) Look here. You have told us about Mr. Mum in 1863, do you know his name?—I do not.

10,925. Do you know a gentleman named Edward Cooke?—Yes.

10,926. What is he?—A running agent; a highly respectable man.

10,927. Was he one of the Mums in 1863?—No.

10,928. What is the meaning of this letter; but is Mr. Cooke a native of this place?—Not a resident.

10,929. How long has he been in London?—Ten or a dozen years.

10,930. The letter is,—

"Mr. John Heath, 75, Old Broad Street,
"Dear Sir, London, February 10, 1863.

"A letter from Mr. Ash informs me that I have received some money on his account from you, and that Mr. Edmonds was his authority for saying so. There must be some mistake about this. On your authority I did promise Mr. A. that he was not forgotten, and I understood that his name had been put down for 30*l.* I shall be glad to hear from you on this subject. In the meantime please refrain from taking any steps with regard to placing my name on the registrar. I have obvious reasons for this which may be explained when I have the pleasure of seeing you again. I hope in the event of your coming to town you will not fail to call on me, and if you will take up your abode at my domicile, a bed will be at your service. With kind regards,

"I am, dear Sir,
"Yours truly,
"Edwd. Cooke.

"P.S.—Does Dent intend to come forward again."

Did you put this gentleman on the register although living in London?—He might be put on as joint tenant with his father. But what is the date of that?

10,931. The 10th of February 1863, soon after the election. What was the cause of the letter being written?—He was here at an annual dinner at our house, which it is customary for tradesmen to have.

10,932. Interested on the Conservative side?—Yes.

10,933. And paid for by the gentlemen at the next election?—No, there are men here who pay their own shot; and this gentleman expressed a wish when here to be put upon the register in some way.

10,934. What did you suggest about his vote that he said you should refrain?—He had left instructions to Mr. Edmonds to request him to make him a vote.

10,935. You were looking out for a vote for him?—They promised to give him the qualification very likely.

10,936. I suppose you were perfectly aware that it could not be a good qualification if he was residing in London?—I did not know much about the laws.

10,937. You knew it was a bad vote and a misdemeanor to vote?—It would be a manufactured vote.

10,938. But a bad vote if he lived in London? Then there are plenty of bad votes.

10,939. Never mind that. Did not you know that this would be an illegal vote?—Unless he sent his family here it would be.

10,940. Did not you know that the proposed vote would be an illegal vote?—I did not make the vote.

10,941. If he habitually resided in London, and had a residence here, it would be illegal?—Yes.

10,942. That is done constantly?—Yes.

10,943. There are so many on each side, neither of them take the trouble to strike them off then? The men on the register come and make statements and the barristers allow them. There are about 200 non-residents on the register now, people who have interest in the town, and not a head of cattle to it on the land which they are supposed to occupy. hat is the way we are swamped.

10,944. (Mr. Bere.) Most of them are within ven miles?—Yes. I will give you an instance like is. Mr. Durant has a residence in London and nother here, and if this gentlemean could keep a untry house, which I am told he could afford, that ould do.

10,945. But he was not like Mr. Durant; he was t going to buy a place and occupy it?—I do not ow.

10,946. It was a faggot rate?—Manufactured.

10,947. (Mr. Coleridge.) Here is another letter,—

DEAR SIR, Holwell, July 19, 1863.

"HAVING considered the proposal you made to me e other day, of becoming a voter for the borough of otnes, I think on the whole I would rather decline it.

"I am, dear Sir,

"Yours truly,

"HENRY G. HARE."

-That is not to me; it must be to one of my sons.

10,948. Where does he live?—He lives in the wn.

10,949. He has no vote?—My son has a vote, but are has no vote. Hare lives about six miles off.

10,950. Then there is a letter from Mr. Rennie—

"1, Elm Court, Inner Temple,

DEAR SIR, February 19.

"I HAVE heard from Mr. Mitchell respecting the pse wood, &c., which I had thought was long ago settled. am sorry you have had so much trouble about it. Will u see Mr. Harris and write jointly to me and let me ow all about it, and why you have not had it.

"Yours obediently,

"C. G. COLLETON RENNIE."

your son Mr. Dent's steward?—Yes.

10,951. What is he steward of?—Some land he nts here; 600*l.* or 700*l.* a year, but he will answer at.

10,952. (Mr. Bere.) One word about Mr. Cooke; hat is the meaning of this letter:—

"MR. JOHN HEATH, 75, Old Broad Street,

DEAR SIR, London, February 13, 1863.

"YOUR letter with cheque 30*l.* on account of r. Ash is duly to hand. He ought I am sure to be rateful to you for it. I will advise him of having received ; but I am almost too busy to-day, it being our fortnightly ttlement.

"I am, dear Sir,

"Yours truly,

"EDWD. COOKE."

nd I want to call your attention to the letter that llows:—

"75, Old Broad Street,

MY DEAR SIR, London, February 14, 1863.

"I THINK it would be quite as well not to advise r. Ash of the amount you sent me unless you have eady done so.

"By this post I have sent him 5*l.* on account, with a rong injunction not to commit himself in the course of y casual conversation on the subject of election matters. vonport, you perceive, has been more fortunate than we re. I am inclined to believe that apart from the filthy cre, Dent does not possess a single qualification requisite r a political man. I wish I could arrive at a more favour- le conclusion with regard to his abilities.

"I am, dear Sir,

"Yours very truly,

"Mr. John Heath. EDWD. COOKE."

hat 30*l.* you sent to Cooke on behalf of Ash, had t that a great deal to do with election matters?—think it is very probable that that was to go to Ash consideration of his vote. I think it is very kely.

10,953. Who is Puttiger?—I do not know.

10,954. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you agree in the stimate of Mr. Dent's qualification?—I do not know. am not a competent judge.

10,955. Who is W. M. Wood?—I do not know.

10,956. He wrote you this letter:—

"I have been using your house for the past seven years regularly every three months or near. I am the one "whose daughter was in an ill state of health 12 months "since, a long protracted illness, and if I may mention "perhaps Mr. Dunn's election may bring me more vividly "before you."

What connexion had there been with you?—I do not know. I think he went to some ball, and danced and kicked up a row.

10,957. Then he goes on to say:—

"I should be most happy to pay you interest for the "same."

—He wanted some money.

10,958. (Mr. Longe.) You had land for which you paid 100*l.* a year?—Yes.

10,959. When was that, when did you first occupy for the duke?—Without referring to any books I cannot say. I should think for the last 20 years, till I had notice to quit; 20 years ago from this.

10,960. Did you occupy 20 years?—No, about 20 years ago I first had possession.

10,961. When you first took the land were you given to understand that you must vote for the duke's candidate?—Not a syllable said.

10,962. Who was the agent then?—The late Mr. Thomas Michelmore.

10,963. During that time how did you vote?—I voted one vote for the duke while Lord Seymour, prior to the death of his father.

10,964. A few years back you had notice to quit?—Yes.

10,965. Did you vote for Gregory and Mackenzie?—Yes.

10,966. Before the polling day was any intimation given to you of the consequence of your voting for the Conservatives?—No.

10,967. Did you know of any person acting for the duke giving information to the occupiers of land previous to the polling day?—No, I have not heard of it.

10,968. The consequence is well known?—Yes.

10,969. (Mr. Bere.) How far back can you speak of political matters in Totnes?—I voted for Sir George Adams in 1836 or 1837.

10,970. Will your memory enable you to give us information about this, do you remember when the first vote on the Linney qualification was put on the register?—I think subsequent to Sir George Adams' election.

10,971. Was that by the duke?—On his property.

10,972. Do you think the duke knew of what was going on from that time to the present?—Mr. Michelmore was speaking to me about it, and I said, "A peer of the realm has no right to interfere in "those things;" we got a bit warm, and he left my office.

10,973. Did Mr. Michelmore intimate that the duke knew?—Yes, he did nothing without the duke's knowledge.

10,974. (Mr. Longe.) The land which you occupied and for which you paid 100*l.* a year, how is that occupied now. Is it a little more?—No; I think it is about the same rental.

10,975. Does it give more than one vote?—Yes.

10,976. It only gave one vote when you had it?—Yes.

10,977. How many does it give now?—I should think four or it may be more.

10,978. (Mr. Coleridge.) As a land agent you can tell us, is the borough pretty well filled up, or how many more of those fictitious votes could be made if you had people to put into them?—If all the Conservative land was subdivided into 10*l.* holdings 70 or 80 more votes could be put in.

10,979. In that land you include Gerston which the duke has bought?—No.

10,980. You could increase the register by 70 or 80 votes?—Yes, if the land was permitted to be cut up.

10,981. Not with 10*l.* households?—No Linney votes. 5*s.* a year the worth of the building.

TENTH DAY.

Mr. J. Heath.

3 Sept. 1866.

10,982. How many more votes could the duke make out of Gerston than at present?—I am no well acquainted with the register, but I should think he could make more than eight or ten.

10,983. How many more could you make out of Bridgetown?—I do not know how Bridgetown is situated.

10,984. Votes are not manufactured up to the hilt; there is still room for some?—As every tenant leaves if they raise the rent from 16*l.* to 20*l.* that will make two votes instead of one.

10,985. What is the memorandum in the hands of Miss Tracey?—I never read it; but on the evening of Mr. Teed and the Hon. Edward Petre resigning, when there was a walk over by Seymour and Baldwin, when the memorandum was signed by Michelmore in the presence of the duke, it was a general understanding that there was to be a give and take.

10,986. I want to know, because we have a little confusion, are you sure it was at that election when Teed and Petre resigned and not when Samson Ricardo stood?—I am certain of it.

10,987. Then that was carried out in Samson Ricardo's election?—Yes, and subsequently.

10,988. In 1852 it was broken through?—Yes.

10,989. Are you sure the memorandum was in 1841, and not in the time of Samson Ricardo in 1847?—I suppose that was the first time this was acted upon.

10,990. Are you sure it was 1841 and not in 1847. We are told that Ricardo was thrown over at the last moment by this arrangement?—It was in 1841.

10,991. Samson Ricardo could not have been told of this arrangement?—No.

10,992. In 1852 it was broken in favour of Mills. The duke threw it over?—Yes. At three o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Moffatt, the member for Ashburton, came here and it was ascertained that it was in the duke's power to return the Liberals if he chose, although I believe most of the Conservatives had voted for Lord Seymour and Mr. Baldwin up to a given time, about three o'clock, then they brought this to bear upon the present duke, who gave way, and consented to the voting for Mills instead of Baldwin.

10,993. Is your opinion the same as we have had expressed by many people in this room, that supposing there to be no bribery on the side of those who fight a single-handed contest, that you can actually return a member without bribery?—It depends on whether the other side resort to bribery.

10,994. Supposing the duke not to support a second Liberal candidate, but to put forward one of his own family and not to use any bribery, can you return a member against the party using bribery?—Two candidates?

10,995. Two on each side, and the duke not giving any assistance to the second Liberal, can he without any bribery still return a member; is the duke strong enough?—Unless he gets assistance from the Liberals he cannot.

10,996. Without getting any assistance?—No.

10,997. Supposing there is no understanding to pay expenses?—And the Conservatives using their means.

10,998. The duke cannot?—No.

10,999. We have heard it said that the duke's power is sufficient for that?—Upon the present register he can, because there have been 43 put on. Upon the present register I do not doubt he could.

11,000. He could return both upon the present register?—He would have the co-operation of the Liberals, and I suppose they are 40 better off, just the number which they have by that decision of the Court of Common Pleas is the difference between the relative strength of the parties.

11,001. (Mr. Bere.) How many voters in the borough of Totnes are accessible to the influence of bribery, taking the matter-of-course men, men of conviction, and men who want situations, and men who are open to temptation?—I have heard that every man has his price, 50*l.*, 100*l.*, or 500*l.*

11,002. They are equally distributed on both sides?—Yes; there are respectable men on the Liberal side. I think the Conservatives on the other side have about 100 that cannot he moved on any terms.

11,003. How many do you consider can be moved?—I think there are about 400 on the register.

11,004. Are there 365 who can?—I think 365.

11,005. Those are amenable to bribery?—From what we have seen of this investigation I have no doubt they would be.

11,006. You think the best thing that can happen to the borough would be to disfranchise it?—Yes, I do, unless it be extended and they give us 2,000 voters, and give them the ballot. I am for electoral districts and the ballot.

(Mr. Bere.) Your evidence to-day has been more satisfactory than it was on Saturday.

(The witness.) If you will take my apology, if I may so call it, for the inadvertency which arose from a confusion and misapprehension of what occurred at the time, I shall be much obliged.

11,007. (Mr. Bere.) Will you make a search to see if you can find any letters relating to the 1865 and 1863 elections, and as to the hotel expenses at the elections of 1865, 1863, 1862, and 1859?—(The witness.) That shall be supplied to you. With regard to the letter touching the 1865 election, as soon as the election was over Mr. Edmonds was at my house and a lot of waste paper was destroyed which we found in the house relating in any way to the election. I will see that the court shall be supplied with what I have.

Col. W. G. Dawkins.

Colonel William Gregory Dawkins sworn and examined.

11,008. (Mr. Bere.) You are retired?—I am on half-pay.

11,009. You were in the Guards?—Yes.

11,010. How long have you been on half-pay?—Since the 1st of June 1865, or thereabouts.

11,011. Where are you residing?—At No. 12, Arlington Street.

11,012. In the beginning of 1865 did you enter into some negotiations with regard to standing for this borough?—Yes, I did.

11,013. When did you begin, and with whom did you begin them?—I began with Mr. Spofforth, and I think I may say almost the very day week only before I came down here.

11,014. Had you no communication with Mr. Spofforth about standing for the boroughs before?—I think I had, but only a short time before I came to Totnes was it mentioned.

11,015. What other borough did you contemplate standing for?—I do not think I contemplated standing for any one in particular.

11,016. Was this the only election in regard to which you had conversations with Mr. Spofforth?—I had seen him with regard to elections in general this was a special one.

11,017. Was it the election of 1865 on which you alone had seen him?—Yes, I never saw him before.

11,018. Have you ever stood for a borough or county before?—No, never; I anticipated being in Parliament, my family having been in Parliament for four generations.

11,019. Had you known Mr. Spofforth personally before that when you went to him specially?—No, I had not.

11,020. Who sent you to him?—I called on him. I cannot remember who sent me.

11,021. Was it Colonel T——?—No, it was not.

11,022. Are you a member of the Carlton?—No, I am not.

11,023. Your solicitor is Mr. Smith?—Smith at Guscotte.

11,024. Did he send you to Mr. Spofforth?

think he may have suggested it, but with my other friends I may have talked it over.

11,025. Will you tell me what passed between you and Mr. Spofforth when you first saw him?—I had a wish particularly to be in Parliament to expose the disgraceful accusations made by Lord Hartington in regard to my case. I asked if he could name any place where I was likely to come in.

11,026. What places did he name upon that?—I think there was a place in the midland counties; I forget exactly whether it was Leominster or thereabouts; a place that Mr. White came in for or was rejected.

11,027. Kidderminster?—Yes, I think that was it.

11,028. Was Totnes mentioned?—Yes; I at the first time rejected it, but being anxious to get in I took it.

11,029. Did he tell you a good deal of money would be wanted to stand for Totnes?—If I would stand, 2,000*l.*

11,030. Did you understand that that was to be spent in the local expenses?—I never asked him, or was told the particulars; I understood it was to be spent in purchasing votes.

11,031. From Mr. Spofforth?—No, not from him. I did not receive any information whatever upon that subject, not at the election.

11,032. Can you fix the day on which you saw Mr. Spofforth?—I cannot, but I could on referring to my journal.

11,033. Have you got it down with you?—No, it is in London. When I first saw Mr. Spofforth it must have been three weeks or a month before I came here, I had seen him for the second time. I came down shortly afterwards.

11,034. At the time did he suggest to you to find somebody else as a candidate with yourself?—Yes, he suggested that it would be very desirable that two Conservatives should stand together.

11,035. Did you look about to see if you could find some friend of your own to come down?—No, I do not think I had much time.

11,036. How many times did you seek Mr. Spofforth between the first interview and the time that you came down here?—I think only twice or three times at the most altogether.

11,037. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Spofforth was not so candid on that score with you as he was with Captain Pim?—I cannot say.

11,038. He did not give it such a bad character?—I do not think he did. I understood I would be expected to pay 2,000*l.*, and that I was told was, to the best of my recollection, about the sum.

11,039. (Mr. Bere.) That was before you saw Mr. Spofforth?—I cannot remember.

11,040. Did you know anything about the borough of Totnes before you saw Mr. Spofforth?—I heard it was one of the most difficult places to get into without money.

11,041. Had you any idea of standing for the borough before you saw Mr. Spofforth?—Yes, it was not suggested.

11,042. Do you remember who named it to you before you saw Mr. Spofforth?—I think in talking it over with my friends as to what boroughs were then not provided with members, it being then rather late in the election, I think Totnes was suggested to me. I think Mr. Guscotte had talked it over to me.

11,043. Did he mention it?—I rather think he suggested Totnes.

11,044. You went to Mr. Spofforth with the understanding that if you were to stand for Totnes it would cost money?—Yes.

11,045. When did you come down here?—I am not provided with dates.

11,046. Was it the 28th of June?—I came down to commence the canvass a week or somewhere about that before the election. I may be corrected by [illegible] here almost.

11,047. A fortnight?—Perhaps it was.

11,048. Did Mr. Smith come before you?—No, I think he came with me.

11,049. Did Colonel Alexander come with you?—No.

11,050. Captain Lane Fox?—No, he joined me afterwards.

11,051. When you got down here who were the first persons you saw?—It is very difficult to remember.

11,052. You went to the "Seven Stars"?—Yes, I did.

11,053. Did you bring any money down with you?—10*l.* to 20*l.* I had with me, or Mr. Smith had with me that sort of sum.

11,054. What arrangements had you made with your bankers or Mr. Smith for providing you with any money?—I had made no particular arrangements; Mr. Smith made the arrangements.

11,055. Who were your bankers?—Coutts and Co.

11,056. Who were Mr. Smith's?—Ransome and Sons.

11,057. Had any sum been paid in by you to the credit of Mr. Smith before the election?—No.

11,058. What was the arrangement?—I had an arrangement with Mr. Smith. It was not necessary to make any arrangements as to that; it was understood at first that 2,000*l.* would be the expense.

11,059. You came down to Totnes believing you would have to spend 2,000*l.*, and 2,000*l.* only?—Yes, I did not intend at first to spend any more.

11,060. When did you first see Mr. Kellock?—When I got to Totnes.

11,061. Did you learn from him that 2,000*l.* was not enough?—No; in the evening I understood there had been a meeting of three or four of the leading inhabitants at the "Seven Stars," and I then learned it from Mr. Smith, who first saw me and told me the political position. I had afterwards an interview with Mr. Smith, and I found there was some difficulty as to the money, and Mr. Smith came and told me I must go beyond that sum, to which I agreed.

11,062. To what sum did you agree to go?—I do not think he specified any particular sum, but it was not to be very much beyond that at that time.

11,063. Did you see Mr. John Heath?—Yes.

11,064. Did you talk to him about the election?—Yes.

11,065. Did he convey to you his opinions as to what the sum of money required would be?—I do not think he mentioned any.

11,066. Nor Mr. Edmonds?—No, I do not think I had any conversation about money.

11,067. When did you first see Mr. Heath?—I cannot remember. I think it was early during my canvass.

11,068. Did he suggest to you that it would take a good deal more than 2,000*l.*?—No, I do not think I had any conversation with him.

11,069. You went to canvass the electors, and did you find there was a good deal of reluctance to promise votes?—I did most certainly.

11,070. Did you put that reluctance down to the feeling that they wanted an inducement?—It was explained to me that this very general reluctance was a certain difficulty in making up their opinions owing to other matters appearing to be practised so generally; and it was intimated to me they must make up their minds later, after they had seen the other parties.

11,071. That they must find out what the other party would be likely to give, and then to see if you would give more?—I dare say that was what they thought.

11,072. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had the other party been appealed to?—I came the next day or two days after.

11,073. When did Colonel Alexander come down?—He came with Captain Lane Fox or very shortly after.

11,074. Did he come down as a second candidate?—I think with that sort of view; I had no committee;

TENTH DAY.

Col. W. G. Dawkins.

3 Sept. 1866.

he was coming he informed me, and he was thinking rather of standing.

11,075. He came down, and do you believe he expected to get the constituency?—No.

11,076. Was he told he would have to spend a great deal of money?—Very likely he was.

11,077. Did you say to him he would have to spend a great deal of money if he stood?—Probably so.

11,078. He did not stay 24 hours here?—Perhaps two nights.

11,079. When were you first informed it was necessary that money should begin to be distributed among the electors?—I was never informed it was necessary.

11,080. Never directly?—No.

11,081. When did you learn that from the necessity of things money was wanted?—Before I came down here.

11,082. After you came down?—I think to the best of my recollection I heard it in the evening after I came here. We arrived early in the morning, and the next day I was told by Mr. Smith the expenses would be what I had anticipated, and I must consent to pay more.

11,083. There was no money as far as you know of yours in the borough?—No.

11,084. You do not know if Mr. Smith had brought any?—I brought only the small sum I mentioned; I do not know that Mr. Smith had any more.

11,085. Did you give any cheque to Mr. Smith at all?—No.

11,086. Or to anybody else?—No.

11,087. All the expenses passed through Mr. Smith's hands?—Yes.

11,088. Were you not told after you came here the first time that it was necessary that a person should come down from London to manage the money business of the election?—No, I was not told so, Mr. Smith was to manage everything of that sort for me.

11,089. You were to preserve a discreet ignorance?—I did not ask any questions. I was told it.

11,090. Do you know of any person that came down from London?—I know a Mr. Smith came. I do not know that anybody else came.

11,091. Did you hear of a person called Mum?—I only heard of it being in the papers.

11,092. Did you see a person come down on the 4th or 5th of July?—He was a stranger to me, for I was not aware there was such a man till I saw it in the papers. I may have seen him, but I was not aware of it.

11,093. Did Mr. Smith ever ask you whether any money would be here?—No, only in the form in which I have told you.

11,094. Only that small amount?—Only that the expenses would be heavier.

11,095. Did you give him leave to spend as much money as he thought fit?—There was a certain rather vague excess of the 2,000*l.* which was represented to me, and I really cannot at this moment state to what extent; but I agreed to it, and it was rather during the election time.

11,096. How was the money to be provided?—Mr. Smith was to pay it, and I should repay him afterwards. I am not sure at this moment that he had no money of mine in his hands; he manages my affairs, and it is very possible he may have had some.

11,097. Does he receive your rent?—No, he does not.

11,098. You do not know that he had any specific money of yours in his hands at the time?—No; but I think it is possible he may have had some. I did not give him any. I did not put any in his hands for the purposes of the election.

11,099. The arrangement between you and Mr. Smith was that he should spend what sum he seemed to think fit, and then that you should repay him after the election?—Yes, if I had information of what the sum was to be.

11,100. Supposing it was not to be as much money as ever he chose to spend?—No.

11,101. He intimated it was to be about 4,000*l.*?—He did; in fact I should say as far as I recollect about the evening or a day or so before the election I was told it must be 4,000*l.* or over 4,000*l.*; in fact I think almost 5,000*l.* I am not sure it was so much as that.

11,102. What did it amount to, may I ask?—Here it is. These are the different items of expense: headed Election, July 1st, paid Mr. Kellock (agent) 100*l.*; July 6th, paid for you 1,500*l.*

11,103. Does it say to whom?—No. July 17th, ditto, ditto, 1,000*l.*

11,104. Are you sure there is nothing between July 6th and 17th?—No. I wish you would copy it at at once. July 17th, ditto, ditto, 1,000*l.*; another ditto, ditto, 1,000*l.*, that is 2,000*l.*

11,105. 2,500*l.* on the 17th?—Yes, there is the 500*l.* I am coming to; September 12th, paid F. H. Edmunds to pay election expenses 364*l.* 8*s.*, and paid Harris 25*l.*; paid waiter at the "Seven Stars" hotel 1*l.*; to amount of disbursements, railway bill, &c., 69*l.* 8*s.*; total 4,559*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*

11,106. That was without the election petition?—Yes.

11,107. When you went round to canvass did you find, besides giving you to understand that they wanted money, there were some people who wanted other inducements so vote, for instance, a situation or a loan of money?—I think there were inducements, but nothing distinctly said before me to enable me to answer the question in the affirmative; certainly not.

11,108. Can you tell me whether you saw a person at the "Seven Stars" with dark hair and lighter whiskers, an oldish man with rather a spare face who was with you and Captain Pim and Mr. Harris in the sitting-room of the "Seven Stars" at one time?—No, I do not know who it could have been, excepting Mr. Murchison; he rather answers the description of Mr. Mum.

11,109. (Mr. Coleridge.) He does not answer to Colonel Lane Fox's description?—No.

11,110. (Mr. Bere.) When did Captain Pim come down?—I think he must have been here a week or thereabouts. We were rather in despair of getting another candidate.

11,111. Were you consulted by the Conservative party here as to Captain Pim coming down?—No, I do not think I knew of his coming till he came.

11,112. Were you consulted from time to time with regard to the others?—No, I was not consulted I think somebody else was consulted, I forget the name at this moment.

11,113. Was it after?—No, before; I think I heard that somebody had been down and went away without my seeing him.

11,114. Was it the name of Alexander?—No.

11,115. Lane?—No.

11,116. Rennie?—I think not.

11,117. When Captain Pim came down here, did you and he make common cause together?—We agreed to make common cause so far as this, that was to be the Conservative candidate if one came in and that he was not to stand in my way as I was to bear the expenses, having been the first in the field.

11,118. Then he was not to find any money at all?—He was to pay his own expenses. He did not tell me his money arrangements; I was rather in the dark about them, but that was a conclusion of my own.

11,119. Did you go out canvassing with him?—No I had in fact almost completed my canvass when Captain Pim came down here.

11,120. Did you and he go and canvass the Reverend Mr. James together?—I think we did. My impression is that I must have seen the Reverend Mr. James twice.

11,121. Will you tell us what passed between you and the Reverend Mr. James when you first saw him; that is when you were alone?—I do not think I can; I will tell you as well as I can remember. I think we conversed a good deal upon general subjects sked him for his vote, and I am under the impres-n that he stood in the doorway as I was going out, d he gave me to understand, either on that occasion on the second time when I called, that he would t vote against me, or words to that effect.

11,122. When Captain Pim was present with you d Mr. James given you any account of his pecuniary ficulties ?—I do not remember the conversation.

11,123. We have been told by Captain Pim that he s the chief speaker on that occasion ?—That is ry likely indeed.

11,124. Did you see another person of the name of tland ?—Yes, a clergyman.

11,125. Did he in the conversation which you had th him give you to understand that he was anxious procure a situation for his son ?—I cannot remem- exactly that he did say so, I think it is quite ssible that he might, we had a great deal of conver- ion, but there were some persons talking at the ndow in one part of the room and other persons in ther part of the room.

11,126. Then you cannot be sure of what passed ? I remember that he afterwards made a somewhat gry allusion to a very handsome bracelet which he d had been given on a former occasion to the wife one of the voters.

11,127. Did he mention the name of the fortunate ipient ?—No ; he did not mention her name.

11,128. Then the impression upon your mind was t Mr. Butland would vote for you, was that so, that he would vote against you, or not at all ?—I s in hopes that he would, that he would vote for , but I cannot say that I felt very confident.

11,129. As you continued your canvass of the vn did your promises of support increase ?—No ; lo not think they increased, they were about the ne throughout.

11,130. You said that they exhibited a great re- tance when you first went round to make any omises at all, did they on the second occasion make greater promises to you ?—I did not visit many them the second time.

11,131. Then did you trust the canvassing of them the second occasion to your agent ?—I am not sure at many of them were visited a second time by any e. As regards those who required much pressure, was generally the custom when there was much sitation for the gentleman who accompanied me to that he would see them again.

11,132. Who was it that accompanied you most equently ?—I think Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Kellock, th of them went round with me ; it was Mr. Ed- nds chiefly.

11,133. Did Mr. Harris go round with you at all ? I do not recollect that he did.

11,134. Then you did not see Evans or Screach ring the election ?—I did not personally have any terview with them. I cannot swear that I ever saw em ; I recollect canvassing Screach, who, I think, eps a public house somewhere in Bridgetown. I ink he is the man who gave evidence before the mmittee of the House of Commons.

11,135. You canvassed him for his father's vote ? -Yes.

11,136. Had Screach and Evens been pointed out you as persons who were working actively on your half ?—No ; I do not think I knew Evens by sight.

11,137. Mr. John Heath I should suppose you saw equently ?—Yes, I was staying at his hotel at the me.

11,138. Did he communicate to you what he thought ere your prospects from time to time ?—No, only in ry general terms.

11,139. Then who told you what was the result of e canvass upon each of these days that you went t ?—As I canvassed myself I must have known retty well.

11,140. Did you make up your own poll book ?— o ; I think Mr. Edmonds did that, as well as I re- member.

11,141. Then used he to bring it to you from day to day to show you what advances had been made by your party ?—No ; I did not receive quite so much information upon that point as I should have wished to receive.

11,142. Did you think there was a likelihood of there being a small majority in your favour ?—I was informed there would be a majority in our favour.

11,143. That if the election was a pure election the Conservatives would have a majority of at least 20 ; were you so told ?—I came down here on the understanding, which I think was fully borne out by subsequent events, that in all probability the Conservatives would have some small majority, and I think what was found out afterwards was quite true, that a very large sum having been expended, as we afterwards discovered, in reference to those who had signed the Conservative requisition was a matter of unexpected surprise to us which had not been taken into our calculation.

11,144. Then so far as you had been able to judge from your canvass if no money had been spent the Conservatives at that time would have had a majority of from 15 to 20?—I think so, as far as I could judge.

11,145. I do not mean to say if you had spent 2,000*l.*, and the other side had spent nothing ; but supposing that no one had spent any money, you think the Conservatives whose candidate you were would have had a majority of from 15 to 20 ?—I may not have taken that into consideration. There are so many in this town who are quite undecided with regard to their political opinions that it is hardly fair to say what would have been the result or the contrary.

11,146. Were you told in what sort of a way this 2,000*l.* would have been spent, that it would go amongst certain persons who expected money for their votes although they were Conservatives ?—No.

11,147. You were not told that there were certain different classes of voters some of whom wanted money as a matter of course, and others who had to be convinced by it, so as to come away from the Liberals and vote for you ?—I do not recollect any communication of that sort having been made to me.

11,148. But you have now no doubt that some of the money which was spent on your behalf was expended in bribery ?—I should consider that if any person spends 2,000*l.* at an election in a place like this, that some of it must have been so spent ; for myself I should have been very glad to know how it was spent.

11,149. Then if that applies to 2,000*l.*, when it came to 4,000*l.* the conviction on your mind in that respect would be still stronger I should suppose ?—Yes ; no doubt.

11,150. When did you leave Totnes ?—On the evening of the nomination day I think.

11,151. With regard to the hotel bill, did you pay that from day to day ?—No, I never paid it, I think it was paid by Mr. Smith. I cannot tell what it was, if I ever did know, but I do not think I ever did.

11,152. Your money matters passed through Mr. Smith's hands ?—Yes.

11,153. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you in the course of the election call on Mrs. William Reeve ?—I do not remember.

11,154. With one of the Heaths ?—I cannot say, perhaps I did.

11,155. Which of the Heaths was it you were canvassing with, John Heath the landlord or his son ? —I do not know, I am not sure that I canvassed with any, but perhaps I did with the eldest son.

11,156. Do you recollect as to this Mrs. William Reeve (when you were out with one of the Heaths and calling on her), Mr. Heath saying in your presence if it is money you want your husband shall have it, and your saying, "Yes, it is all right" ?—No, I am certain that could not have taken place.

11,156*. You have no recollection of canvassing the woman, and that that never took place ?—No, I have no recollection whatever, and I think it is impossible that that should have occurred, or I should have remembered it.

TENTH DAY.
Col. W. G. Dawkins.
3 Sept. 1866.

11,157. One or two questions about your election expenses. I see by looking at your accounts it is not likely that Mr. Smith and Guscotte had any balance in their hands?—Very likely.

11,158. Then it is very likely that they were to advance?—Yes.

11,159. Then I imagine that they expended money for you, and that you had periodical settlements with them?—Yes, sometimes the money was paid in, and sometimes there was a balance one way and sometimes the other.

11,160. By that bill it appears that you had a little balance, in fact it was an advance?—Perhaps it was.

11,161. Now was this 4,559*l.* 15*s.* 9*d.* the whole of the expenses of the election?—Yes.

11,162. Have you paid nothing to anybody else?—No, I have not.

11,163. Nothing to Mr. Spofforth?—No, I am not sure by-the-by, but I think that is connected with the petition.

11,164. We will come to that by-and-bye. Have you got his account?—No.

11,165. Have you paid it?—Mr. Smith has paid it.

11,166. Then Mr. Smith will bring it down?—Yes.

11,167. When you saw Mr. Spofforth and told him about the borough of Totnes and the sort of place it was, did he say anything about sending any one to manage apart from your own private list?—No.

11,168. Did you know that he sent anybody down?—I am not aware that he did.

11,169. You are not aware that a telegram came from Mr. Spofforth to Edmonds stating that a man was coming down by late train on the 3rd or 4th July?—Not unless it related to myself.

11,170. But you were not coming then, you are not aware that a telegram was sent, saying a gentleman would arrive by the mail train?—No.

11,171. Were you expecting any gentleman?—No, not unless it was Mr. Fox.

11,172. This is the 3rd July, and you came on the 28th, and Captain Fox came a couple of days afterwards?—Yes, I suppose so.

11,173. What was Captain Fox to do?—He was a friend of mine staying with me.

11,174. Merely a friend?—Yes.

11,175. Did he go out canvassing with you?—Yes.

11,176. Was he present when matters were talked about with your agents?—I think not.

11,177. Did he stay up to the polling day?—I think he stayed till the nomination day, and he went away the same day as I did.

11,178. He came and stayed as your friend, not to assist you in the election?—No, not at all, except to assist me in canvassing.

11,179. You do not know that he took any part with Mr. Smith beyond canvassing?—No; but he might have talked to Mr. Smith about the money I should spend.

11,180. Is Captain Fox in England now?—Yes.

11,180*. Where?—At Cranton Lodge, but he would not be able to give you any information.

11,181. (Mr. Longe.) You have no vouchers for this except Mr. Smith's entry?—No; nothing more than that.

11,182. You did not know at that time in what way the money was being spent?—I did not know.

11,183. You did not know of Mr. Mum?—No; I never heard of him till I saw it in the papers.

11,184. You did not know there was a person acting his part?—No.

11,185. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you never come downstairs when there was an eager lot of people standing around to see some gentleman come down?—There were always a quantity of people around the hotel.

11,186. On the Saturday before the election?—Very likely, but not that I am aware of.

11,187. Did you happen to go out on the Saturday after the election into the streets?—Yes, ever evening.

11,188. Did you see a gentleman in the lobby lik the description we have had given?—Very likely.

11,189. And a number of people, electors, there —Possibly.

11,190. And Mr. Heath there?—Possibly.

11,191. You did not inquire who they were?— They were people about the hotel talking about th election.

11,192. Did you ever hear any one ask for mon in your presence whilst you were canvassing?—I a trying to recollect. I cannot at this moment say th they did.

11,193. They knew their business too well to it?—Just about that.

11,194. Were you ever in the room No. 13 in t hotel, a bedroom?—I do not know; I dare say.

11,195. In the room occupied by this mysterio Mr. Mum?—I think it was No. 13 that was occupi by Mr. Smith, my solicitor, but I am not certain. so I was in the room, and I wonder whether M Smith will turn out to be Mr. Mum.

11,196. Were you ever in the room No. 8, M Edmonds' and Mr. Kellock's room?—I think I kn the room, and I think I was in it the last day.

11,197. Were you ever in when Mr. Heath ca and asked for assistance?—No, not to my recollecti I went there once to ask how it was going on think.

11,198. (Mr. Longe.) When Mr. Smith told y that money ran short, did not you ask the means which it was being got rid of?—No, I did n but I understood it pretty well.

11,199. (Mr. Bere.) On the day when the inf mation was given to you that it was running sh was that the Saturday or the Monday?—I can recollect.

11,200. The election was Wednesday, and the no nation day Tuesday, therefore Monday or Satur are the days I wish to call your attention to?— appears to me that the last time it was much discus and it was represented that more money would required was on the day before.

11,201. Do you mean the day before the nom tion day?—No, the election on the Tuesday, w the sum of 5000*l.* was mentioned as possible.

11,202. Can you tell me whether Mr. Smith the hotel at any time after he came down?—To out of the town.

11,203. No, to get away from Totnes?—He d once to Torquay, I think.

11,204. Do you recollect the day that was?—N

11,205. Was that before the first application have an increased sum of money?—No; the first when I came here.

11,206. The increased sum I mean?—Yes, was the first day that I came.

11,207. Before the second one?—I think it certainly.

11,208. (Mr. Longe.) I think you canvassed s time with Mr. Kellock?—To the best of my re lection I think with both Mr. Kellocks; but Edmonds was chief canvasser.

11,209. When you came to a hesitating el did they make a mark and put them down?—I not see them do that, but very often they said would call again.

11,210. You understood that?—Yes, by degr came to understand that.

11,211. (Mr. Bere.) What sort of person was Smith's clerk?—He had two, Daw was the nam one, I forget the name of the other, but I think it Lind.

11,212. You have told us about Mr. Smith dri to Torquay with one of his clerks; was that day before the election?—No; I think several before.

11,213. Do you recollect Mr. Fox comin

Torquay, and taking a train there and going away?—No; he left here and went straight away.

11,214. But during the time he was here did he leave for a day and night and come back again?—Mr. Charles Fox and Mr. Kellock I have driven on part of the way to Lord Cranstoun's, somewhere in that direction, and Mr. Kellock proposed to Mr. Fox to go to Torquay with him, and they got back I think in time for dinner.

11,215. Did they drive back?—I think so.

11,216. Do you know what their errand to Torquay was?—I suspect now pretty well; well, I may say I know now.

11,217. Did you know that Mr. Kellock went to cash a 1,000*l.* cheque?—No, I do not know it, but from what I recollect I believe he did get some money now; I cannot swear it, but my impression is that he did.

11,218. Do you know what Mr. Kellock wanted with Mr. Fox to cash the cheque?—I do not know what he should want with Mr. Fox.

11,219. Was it to protect him in bringing back the money?—I do not know.

11,220. Was Mr. Smith away between the day before the election and the election itself?—I cannot say whether it was or not.

11,221. (Mr. Coleridge.) What sort of looking man is Mr. Smith?—About 50, I suppose, and rather bald, with whiskers.

11,222. Tall?—Neither tall nor short.

11,223. Was Mr. Guscotte down here at all?—No, I do not think he came at all, but he did at the petition.

11,224. I was going to ask you about the petition; have you received an account of the petition yet?—No, we have not received the accounts of it, but my solicitors have, and they tell me it would be about 1,400*l.*

11,225. You do not know whether any expenses from the election are carried into the election petition account?—No, but I believe they are not.

11,226. Your solicitor will bring them with him?—Yes.

11,227. (Mr. Bere.) You did not make any return of your election expenses?—No.

11,228. You left them to Mr. Smith?—Yes; I do not recollect signing anything.

11,229. Do you know anything of the items mentioned in the account there?—No.

11,230. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you first determine to petition against Seymour and Pender's return?—I may say that it was resolved upon on the hustings.

11,231. When did you first begin to take any steps in the matter?—As early as possible, to the best of my recollection.

11,232. Had you any application made by the Liberal party to withdraw your petition on the payment of a sum of money?—I cannot say that I had, but will you allow me to look at the notes that I made to assist my memory?

11,233. What did you make the notes from?—From my memory a day or two ago. The subject of the petition being withdrawn was certainly mooted between me and my friends; and Mr. Guscotte, to the best of my recollection, told me that he heard that the Liberals, or Mr. Pender, I forget which, would give a large sum to have it withdrawn.

11,234. Was any particular sum mentioned?—I do not think any particular sum.

11,235. Did you ever receive a telegram from Mr. Smith or Mr. Guscotte asking you to consent to a sum?—I think not; any specific sum do you mean?

11,236. Any particular sum?—No.

11,237. Did you receive a telegram asking you to accept of a specific sum?—No telegram.

11,238. Did you receive any letter?—No.

11,239. Did you send any telegram refusing, saying you would go on and fight?—I am not sure about a telegram. I may have telegraphed that I would not accept any money. I thought of it, and that I would not withdraw for any money. I will mention what did occur. I received no direct offer, I believe some one sounded the other party. I did not receive any offer, and I intimated to a friend connected with the Liberal party that if I were to withdraw the petition.—I heard both parties were anxious that it should be so.

11,240. Do you mind mentioning the name of the party?—Yes, I do, because he is not in Parliament now; that if I was to withdraw the petition my expenses must be paid, and the deprivation of my commission in the army must be investigated by the House of Commons, intending thereby that I should be re-instated, or at any rate that I should no longer be denied the right of trial by evidence on oath.

11,241. Was any such sum as 20,000*l.* mentioned?—No; I first heard of such a sum in the papers.

11,242. What was a fair sum?—I do not know.

11,243. You had no conversation as to what would be a fair sum to take?—I think we talked over the sum, but I decided that I would not withdraw.

11,244. Was it 10,000*l.* or 12,000*l.*?—It might have been 5,000*l.*

11,245. You never heard of 20,000*l.* as stated here?—No.

11,246. Did you know Mr. Pender?—I made his acquaintance a little while he was here.

11,247. Had you any intimation from him?—No.

11,248. Did the Carlton Club say this petition should be set off against the other petition?—No.

11,249. Or did Mr. Spofforth say so?—No.

11,250. (Mr. Bere.) Was the person in the Liberal interest a friend of Mr. Pender's?—No.

11,251. Was he an acquaintance?—No.

11,252. Did you give him any reason to believe you would withdraw the petition for a certain sum?—No. When pressure was being put on me, and I heard both sides were anxious, and that the Liberals would give a large sum if it were withdrawn, I intimated that if I withdrew it would only be on my expenses being paid, and there should be an investigation into my case,—which was one of gross and unheard of injustice,—by the House of Commons.

11,253. Your expenses would be about 5,000*l.*?—I imagine about 5,000*l.*

11,254. When was this?—Just before the petition.

11,255. A great part of your expenses had been incurred?—I really do not know.

11,256. The witnesses had been summoned?—I do not know what expenses were incurred.

11,257. Did you give your friend any power to negotiate with the other side?—I do not know about any power; it was almost amounting to power in a negotiation, I should say it was.

11,258. Did he go to the other side?—No; I imagine he did not; he may have mentioned it; I cannot say.

11,259. Are you certain he did not go?—I cannot be certain, from his letters I should say he did not.

11,260. Was he a friend of Mr. Drake's the Reform parliamentary agent?—I do not know whether he is or not.

11,261. Had he been in Parliament before?—Yes.

11,262. For some time?—Yes.

11,263. And was likely to be intimate with persons managing parliamentary matters for the Liberals?—He was a Liberal, possibly he might.

11,264. It may have been the case that he might have gone to Mr. Drake and have said, if you will withdraw the petition 5,000*l.* will be paid?—From the answer he gave me by letter I have reason to suppose he would not do a thing of that sort, I cannot say he did not.

11,265. Is there an understanding between you and Captain Pim, that Captain Pim should share the expenses of the petition?—I entered on the petition without his being bound to do so, I entirely bore them myself, but I believe he would be good enough, he has said so, I think, probably under certain contingencies.

11,266. Is that a contingency or a speculation

TENTH DAY.

Col. W. G. Dawkins.

3 Sept. 1866.

that this turns out profitably?—I do not know, but he has intimated as much.

11,267. Have you got any memorandum with regard to the election that you can furnish us with not only of previous matters; would not your journal show some of your movements?—Yes, but I am sorry to say that it is in London.

11,268. Could you not get it?—I am afraid I cannot without going up; it could not be much use I think.

11,269. (Mr. Coleridge.) You say the terms on which you would have withdrawn from the inquiry in the house of Commons were that you were to have an inquiry, how could that be made part of the terms of the petition?—Because the Liberals were then in power.

11,270. Was Mr. Pender to have undertaken that as part of his business?—No.

11,271. How was it to effect the withdrawal of the petition, who was to be guarantee for that?—The Government.

11,272. By the Government, do you mean the Liberal agent was to have undertaken that it was to be done?—No, I mean the Minister of War for instance.

11,273. Was he to be a party to the compromise of the petition?—I do not know anything more than I have told you.

11,274. I want to see the practical effect of it, the expenses were to be paid and the inquiry carried out?—It may seem an extraordinary proposal, but I was justified in supposing that the ministry who would effect the ruin of an officer by direct falsehood and gross misrepresentation would possibly agree to anything.

11,275. You think they would have lent themselves to a compromise of the petition in order to give you the inquiry?—It was quite worth proposing to such a ministry as they were.

11,276. (Mr. Bere.) We will not ask you to mention the name of your friend in public, just write the name and give it to us?—I think I must decline that; it may be disagreeable.

11,277. I think I must press you?—Will you allow me to consult my lawyer.

11,278. Yes, and I think your lawyer will tell you that you have no power to refuse?—Then I cannot help it.

11,279. We are anxious to have the name, but we will keep it secret if it can be done. It may so happen that it may come out through another quarter?—I do not think you will find there is much in it.

Adjourned till 11 o'clock to-morrow.

ELEVENTH DAY.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Tuesday, 4th September 1866.

Mr. W. D. Narramore.

4 Sept. 1866.

Mr. William Daniel Narramore sworn and examined.

11,280. (Mr. Bere.) Are you clerk to Mr. Bryett?—Yes.

11,281. Is he registrar of the county court?—Yes.

11,282. At the last election of 1865 was he actively employed on the part of the Conservative interest?—No.

11,283. What did he do?—I do not think Mr. Byrett accepted but one retainer since he has been in Totnes.

11,284. When did he accept a retainer?—I think in Mackenzie's election.

11,285. He has not accepted a retainer since?—I believe not.

11,286. Did he go about canvassing for Colonel Dawkins and Pim?—No, that I am aware of. I am almost certain he did not.

11,287. How long have you lived in Totnes?—20 years.

11,288. How long have you been engaged in election matters?—Since 1857.

11,289. What was your first commencement? Was it an election for member of Parliament or for the council?—For the council.

11,290. Has Mr. Bryett taken a partner lately?—Yes.

(Mr. Bere.) We will take Mr. Smith now as he is here.

Mr. F. Smith.

Mr. Frederick Smith sworn and examined.

11,291. (Mr. Bere.) Are you a partner of the firm of Smith & Guscotte?—Yes.

11,292. Attorneys in Essex Street, London?—19, Essex Street.

11,293. Have you been concerned as Colonel Dawkins' professional adviser for some years?—Yes.

11,294. For how long?—I think since the end of the year 1858 or the beginning of the year 1859.

11,295. Had you yourself any connexion with this borough?—Only by being a native of this county.

11,296. And Mr. Guscotte?—He is also a Devonshire man.

11,297. From what part do you come?—Crediton I came from.

11,298. Had you any connexion either by intimate acquaintance or in any other way with the people of this borough?—Only by knowing one or two of the influential men.

11,299. Are you agent for any solicitor here?—No, I am not.

11,300. Did Colonel Dawkins communicate to you his wish to go into Parliament before the general election 1865?—Yes.

11,301. Did you suggest that this was a place that he might represent?—No, he suggested it himself.

11,302. How long before the election was that?—I think I saw Colonel Dawkins on the 26th June.

11,303. Was that by a personal interview or by letter?—By letter.

11,304. Have you got that letter?—Yes. (The letter was handed in.)

11,305. That was not the first intimation that you had received of Colonel Dawkins' intention to stand for Totnes, was it?—I believe it was.

11,306. Had you not seen him before that time when he had communicated his intention to you?—Only generally.

11,307. Did not you know he had had an interview with Mr. Spofforth before that?—Not, I think, till afterwards. I think I saw Mr. Spofforth before he came here with Colonel Dawkins.

11,308. After the receipt of this letter did you and Colonel Dawkins go to Mr. Spofforth?—No, I think not.

11,309. Then did you go to Mr. Spofforth for the purpose of inquiring generally with regard to the lection and not particularly with regard to Totnes?—Quite so.

11,310. How long before the date of this letter was that the interview took place with Mr. Spofforth?—I cannot fix the date. It must have been a day or wo before.

11,311. What passed between you, Colonel Dawkins, and Mr. Spofforth?—Nothing whatever. The nterview was simply between Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Spofforth.

11,312. You were not present?—I was present.

11,313. You heard what passed?—The interview ook place in the outer room, and I cannot recollect vhat took place.

11,314. Was the borough of Totnes mentioned?—I annot recollect.

11,315. The next communication you received on he subject was this letter?—I think it was.

11,316. Had you no understanding before you reeived this letter that Colonel Dawkins was going to place where money would be required?—Certainly ot.

11,317. When you got that letter did you see olonel Dawkins upon it?—Yes; I saw him either nat day or the day after.

11,318. Did you see Mr. Spofforth also?—No, I hink not.

11,319. Did you go with Colonel Dawkins to Totnes the next day?—Yes, or that night; I forget hich.

11,320. Did you learn from Colonel Dawkins before ou went down that a sum of money amounting to bout 2,000*l.* would be required for the expenses f the borough?—I always heard it was a great place or bribery, but I cannot fix any sum.

11,321. Did Colonel Dawkins ever intimate any articular sum?—Not that time.

11,322. When did he first intimate any particular um?—During his canvass.

11,323. Did you come down here knowing that a um was to be spent, but not knowing what sum was o be spent?—Quite so.

11,324. Had you formed any idea from conversaon with others as to what sum would be required?—Not the least. It is the first election I was ever ixed up with, and I was not au fait in those atters.

11,325. You had not formed an opinion of any um?—No. I heard people talking about Totnes, nd formed in my mind some opinion.

11,326. What opinion did you form?—That money ould be required.

11,327. To what amount?—I cannot fix any sum.

11,328. Had you had any interview with Mr. pofforth except the one you have mentioned to us efore you came down?—In reference to the election?

11,329. Had you an interview with Mr. Spofforth xcept the one you have spoken to?—I believe that as the only one in connexion with the election.

11,330. You had seen him on other matters?—ince, I have.

11,331. Before you came down and between the me on which you first saw him and Colonel Dawkins?—I only saw him once before the election.

11,332. Whom did you see when you first came to Totnes?—I first of all called upon Mr. Turner, of Dawlish.

11,333. The registrar of the Probate Court?—Yes, nd he kindly accompanied me to Totnes.

11,334. He went with you?—Yes, from Dawlish.

11,335. Did you go down to the "Seven Stars"?—He accompanied me to Mr. Bryett's office, or whether went to the "Stars" first I do not recollect, but Mr. Bryett joined us.

11,336. Did Mr. Turner lead you to believe that a arge sum of money would be required?—I think not. was with him only an hour.

11,337. Did you come by train?—Yes.

11,338. Did you converse on the subject of the lection?—I think not.

11,339. Had you known Mr. Bryett before?—I think I recollect him when I was quite a boy at Exeter. He was in Mr. Turner's office at that time.

11,340. He knew Mr. Bryett?—Yes.

11,341. Were you personally acquainted with Mr. Bryett?—I could not say I was personally acquainted with Mr. Bryett, because I asked Mr. Turner to introduce me to him, but as a boy I recollect him.

11,342. You were introduced by Mr. Turner to Mr. Bryett?—Yes.

11,343. That was the 27th or 28th of June?—Yes.

11,344. Have you a journal?—I have not a journal of that.

11,345. Did not you keep it?—I did not come professionally.

11,346. In what capacity?—As Colonel Dawkins' friend.

11,347. (Mr. Coleridge.) To take a general superintendence of the election as his friend?—Nothing at all. I had nothing whatever to do with the election, except as seeing his agents.

11,348. Seriously, do you say you had nothing to do with the election?—I did not canvass.

11,349. Nothing to do with supplying the funds?—Yes, I had.

11,350. (Mr. Bere.) Then you saw Mr. Bryett and had a conversation with him?—Yes.

11,351. Did Mr. Bryett enlighten you?—No. He said that the Conservatives had a chance, but no sum of money was mentioned, to the best of my belief.

11,352. When did you see Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Kellock?—I think on the day I arrived.

11,353. Did you see Mr. Bentall, Mr. Bastard, and Mr. Gill?—I recollect those names, but I do not think I should know them.

11,354. Was there a committee room at the "Seven Stars" of the Conservatives?—Yes.

11,355. Were you in constant communication with the members of that committee?—Yes.

11,356. When did you first learn from the members of that committee that money would be wanted for the purposes of bribery in Totnes?—I can tell you; I have brought my cheque book with me.

11,357. You keep an account with Ransome & Company?—I have one account there.

11,358. Have you an account anywhere else?—Yes, several; at Hanbury's, Barnett, Hoare's, and the Birmingham Bank. I never draw a cheque except for trust account on the Birmingham Bank.

11,359. (Mr. Coleridge.) Which is your private account?—I have two, one at Ransome's and one at Hanbury's.

11,360. Did you draw your cheques during the election on your private account or your business account?—All except one cheque on the business account.

11,361. (Mr. Bere.) Had you a double account at Ransome's?—Yes, I had.

11,362. Is Ransome's the account of the firm?—It is the description of the firm.

11,363. Do you sign your cheques drawn on the business account Smith and Guscotte or Smith only?—Simply Smith, P.A.

11,364. Private account?—Private account.

11,365. What do you sign when drawn on the business account?—Smith and Guscotte.

11,366. Do I understand that you had two accounts at Ransome's, one of Smith and Guscotte and the other your own private account?—Yes.

11,367. Did you draw any cheque on your account during the election?—With the exception of one cheque drawn on the business account; one I paid into Hanbury and Company.

11,368. When did you learn from anybody in Totnes that money would be required for purposes of the election?—I can tell by the dates of the cheques. I should say about the 1st July.

11,369. Just hand in your cheques. Have you your pass book here?—Yes.

11,370. The first cheque I see you put before us is drawn by Smith and Guscotte on your business

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. F. Smith.

4 Sept. 1866.

account at Ransome's, and payable to Leigh and Pemberton?—Quite so.

11,371. What had they to do with this matter?—It was to the account of Mr. Kellock.

11,372. Are they Mr. Kellock's agents?—I believe so.

11,373. When did you draw this cheque?—You will observe the date.

11,374. You drew it the day it bears date?—Certainly.

11,375. To whom did you give it?—At least it was not drawn by myself; you will find by the writing; but my partner in London, I instructed him to pay 100*l.* to Leigh and Pemberton's account.

11,376. Is this signature of Smith and Guscotte in Mr. Guscotte's handwriting?—Yes.

11,377. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who told you to make it to the order of Leigh and Pemberton?—From the instructions of Mr. Kellock.

11,378. Did he give you those instructions himself?—Yes.

11,379. Personally or by letter?—Personally.

11,380. (Mr. Bere.) When did Mr. Kellock give you those instructions?—I should say the day before the cheque was drawn.

11,381. Had Mr. Kellock asked you for money?—Yes, he wished me to pay 100*l.* on his account.

11,382. For his own private use?—In connexion with the expenses down here.

11,383. Which he himself was going to incur?—Or had incurred. I cannot tell which.

11,384. Was Mr. Kellock the first person who told you that money would be wanted for the purpose of the election at Totnes?—I cannot tell whether it was Mr. Kellock or Mr. Edmonds, but one of the two.

11,385. Then do I understand you to say, this being paid into the account of Leigh and Pemberton must have been endorsed by them?—Yes, quite so. I think you will find the indorsement on the back.

11,386. I should not think it was in the handwriting of either of the partners. After you had given instructions for this 100*l.* Mr. Guscotte had drawn this 100*l.* in favour of Leigh and Pemberton, Mr. Kellock's agents; when was it that you next learned that money would be wanted?—According to the date of the cheques.

11,387. 5th July?—I think about that time.

11,388. Would it be before or about that day that you learned it?—About that date.

11,389. From whom?—From Mr. Edmonds.

11,390. (Mr. Coleridge.) What is the meaning of another 1,500*l.* with your signature [handing a cheque]?—I paid 1,500*l.* from my account at Ransome's into my account at Hanbury's.

11,391. This is "Pay G. A. S. B." What does that mean?—I do not know.

11,392. Whom did that mean to represent?—I do not know at all, no one.

11,393. It is like "Smith or Bearer"?—Quite so.

11,394. (Mr. Bere.) Is that drawn by you [handing another cheque]. It is a business cheque?—Yes.

11,395. To whom was that given?—It was cashed by myself.

11,396. Where?—In London.

11,397. Did you then go up to London?—I was in London at the time.

11,398. Then after you came down on the 28th June how long did you stay?—I cannot tell exactly. I was away perhaps four or five days.

11,399. I do not want accurately to a day. Did you draw that first cheque of the 1st July in London? It was drawn by my partner.

11,400. Therefore in all probability you were down here?—I have no doubt I instructed him to do so. I said I should go up on business for three or four days in town.

11,401. Was that business connected with this election?—Nothing whatever.

11,402. Did you hear before you went up to London what money would be required?—I arranged, I think to bring 1,500*l.* with me.

11,403. Was that all the money that Mr. Edmonds or Mr. Kellock told you would be wanted?—At the time that was all.

11,404. Where did Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Kellock tell you this. Had they a private room, No. 8?—I never saw them in a private room except when they came to mine.

11,405. What was your room?—No. 15 bed room, and the sitting room was with Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Lane Fox.

11,406. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did you bring that 1,500*l.* down?—In gold.

11,407. In sovereigns?—In sovereigns.

11,408. In a bag?—Yes.

11,409. What sort of bag?—To the best of my recollection it was in three bags of 500*l.* each.

11,410. Was it in leather bags?—Yes, as bankers use.

11,411. They gave you the bags?—They gave you the bags.

11,412. (Mr. Bere.) Did you hand that over to Mr. Edmonds?—I did, I should say, or to his order.

11,413. What did you do with the bag then after you brought it to Totnes?—I brought three bags.

11,414. Did you bring the three bags in another bag?—No; they were common bags bankers use. I cannot describe them.

11,415. You did not carry three bags containing 500*l.* each openly in your hand?—No, in a portmanteau or carpet bag.

11,416. Was that taken up to your bed room?—Certainly.

11,417. Was it from your bed room that you took these three canvass bags?—Certainly.

11,418. Did you give them to Mr. Edmonds in your bed room?—I think 500*l.*; but my clerk was here, and he had instructions to act, special orders.

11,419. What was the name of your clerk?—Lind.

11,420. And was there not another clerk of yours here?—Yes, Daw.

11,421. What bed room did Mr. Lind occupy?—I do not know.

11,422. Was it near yours?—I should think not. I have not the least idea where his room was.

11,423. Did you never ask him?—Never.

11,424. Then I understand that you may have handed over 500*l.* of this money yourself to Mr. Edmonds, but your clerk, Mr. Lind, took the other 1,000*l.*?—Yes, he may have come to me for instructions with regard to these two other bags, but I cannot recollect.

11,425. As you came into the town as a friend, and not as a professional adviser, what made you bring your clerks?—I thought they might assist me down here in case they were wanted, but we never interfered in any way in the election, except to canvass one elector.

11,426. What do you mean by your clerks assisting you?—If I wanted them to do anything in connexion with the election.

11,427. What had they to do if you took no part in the election?—Nothing at all, but I wanted them to come down.

11,428. You thought they were wanted to help you to do nothing, if you came down to take no part, and they were to help you?—Quite so.

11,429. (Mr. Coleridge.) Before you leave the cheque, tell me when you came down the first time Mr. Kellock told you that money would be wanted and in consequence of that you brought down 1,500*l.*?—I do not think it was Mr. Kellock. I think it was Mr. Edmonds.

11,430. At the same time did Mr. Edmonds tell you that a man would be wanted down from London?—Certainly not.

11,431. Did not somebody tell you that a man would be wanted to do the dirty work?—Certainly not.

11,432. You had no communication with anybody here on the subject?—Not the least. Somebody did call to see me, but I had nothing to do with him.

11,433. When was that?—It must have been previous to the election. Mr. Heath told me that he was in the house, and I went into a room and saw him he told me what he wanted, and I said, "I will e nothing to do with you."

1,434. That was Mr. Mum ?—Well, I have read n the newspapers.

1,435. (Mr. Bere.) When was it that Mr. Heath you ?—It must have been a few days before the tion.

1,436. (Mr. Coleridge.) Were not you aware when brought down that 1,500*l.* that some stranger was ing from London to manipulate it?—Certainly

1,437. How did you know that money was going e distributed?—I thought some persons were to appointed by Mr. Edmonds.

1,438. The recognised agent, Mr. Edmonds, going istribute money in Totnes?—I certainly thought he was.

1,439. You say it was the first election you were r concerned in. Did you never hear that persons e brought down at most elections for the purpose istributing money?—I might have heard so, but d not had much practice at elections.

1,440. Do I understand you to say that Mr. Heath wed you this person?—He did.

1,440*. Where did you see him?—Close to the bar he "Seven Stars." He was in a small room.

1,441. The smoking room ?—I cannot tell.

1,442. Is it a darkish room ?—I was never in the m but once, and on that occasion——

1,443. What time of day ?—It was between 10 11, I think.

1,444. (Mr. Coleridge.) If Mr. Edmonds is under impression that he communicated the fact of nting a man to you it must be a mistake on his t?—Certainly.

1,445. Had you any communication with Mr. offorth about the necessity of having somebody wn ?—No.

1,446. Or with anybody in Mr. Spofforth's office ? No, certainly not.

1,447. How long were your two clerks down here ? I dare say two or three days.

1,448. During that time do you mean to say they k no part whatever ?—I should say not. I am not are.

1,449. Their expenses were charged to Colonel wkins ?—Yes, the expenses out of pocket.

1,450. (Mr. Bere.) Your clerk, Mr. Lind, was constant communication with Mr. Edmonds ?—I nk only twice.

1,451. And what did Daw do ?—I do not think he anything here.

1,452. Is he still in your employment ?—They are, h of them.

1,453. You brought down 1,500*l.*, and gave 500*l.* Mr. Edmonds, and the other 1,000*l.* passed through hands of your clerks for Mr. Edmonds?—Yes.

1,454. Do you know what became of that 1,500*l.*? I do not know at all.

1,455. Did you ask how it was used ?—No.

1,456. When did you next learn that more money s wanted?—According to the date of the cheque day before the election.

1,457. There are two cheques, drawn on the 10th July, which was drawn first?—I cannot tell—they both of the same date.

1,458. You cannot say which was given first?—I not.

1,459. Have you any doubt that the cheque which s last drawn was cashed at Torquay on that day ?—annot tell.

1,460. Who told you that more money was wanted ? Mr. Edmonds.

1,461. Did you ask him how the other money had en spent ?—No, certainly not.

1,462. You said nothing to him about it ?—Nothing atever.

1,463. You knew how it had been spent ?—I knew thing whatever about it; I had simply instructions m Colonel Dawkins to go as far as 5,000*l.*

11,464. When did he give you that limit?—Some time during the election.

11,465. Did he not at first say he would not go beyond 2,000*l.*?—I think he did.

11,466. When was it Colonel Dawkins gave you the power to draw for 5,000*l.*?—During the election, I cannot positively say when.

11,467. To whom did you give these cheques?—To Mr. Edmonds.

11,468. Did you find any more gold than the 1,500*l.* you brought down ?—No, certainly not.

11,469. You gave cheques for the rest?—Only cheques.

11,470. On the same day when you were told that more money was wanted did you give another cheque for 1,000*l.*?—No doubt of it.

11,471. Which was cashed at Messrs. Vivian's Bank at Torquay?—I know nothing of the cheques after they left my hands.

11,472. You do not know who cashed it?—No.

11,473. You drew your two first cheques from your regular cheque book; why did you not draw the other two from your cheque book?—I cannot say the reason.

11,474. Was it not that there should be no counterfoil?—There is a counterfoil.

11,475. Not to these two in my hand?—I felt it more convenient to draw them in that way.

11,476. Here are two or three on plain paper, and you had a cheque book at the time of Ransome & Co.?—Yes.

11,477. You have paid the legitimate expenses of the election by a printed cheque, the others are drawn on plain paper?—I had not my cheque book here.

11,478. You did not bring your cheque book with you?—No.

11,479. Had you accidentally left it behind or omitted to bring it purposely?—I did not know it would be wanted; I do not carry it with me.

11,480. You afterwards knew that more than 1,500*l.* would be necessary?—I cannot say; I handed Mr. Edmonds money as he wanted it.

11,481. You knew that you would have to give money?—Certainly.

11,482. You did not think you had done with it when you brought down the 1,500*l.*?—I thought that would have covered everything.

11,483. Had you not the slightest idea that more money would be wanted?—I cannot say.

11,484. Why did you not bring your cheque book?—I do not carry it with me.

11,485. Then if you draw cheques in the country you draw them on plain paper?—Yes.

11,486. The two cheques taken from the book are drawn to order, those on blank paper are payable to bearer; who did you make that difference?—I cannot say.

11,487. Was not the reason that it would be paid to some particular individual who would have to endorse the cheque?—No, certainly not.

11,488. Did Mr. Edmonds tell you the purpose for which these two sums were wanted?—I can only assume what they were required for.

11,489. Do you believe that 3,000*l.* would have been wanted in a place like Totnes unless bribery had been practised?—I have no doubt about bribery having been practised.

11,490. (Mr. Coleridge.) Were you not asked by one of the persons acting for Colonel Dawkins to draw the cheque to bearer, and not to order?—I cannot say.

11,491. Do not you recollect Mr. Kellock, or some one else, saying that?—No, I do not.

11,492. (Mr. Longe.) You knew that money was about to be used; do not you think it was likely that you used caution in drawing the cheque?—Certainly not; I had nothing whatever to do with the election, I simply handed over a sum of money to Mr. Edmonds as he wanted it.

11,493. (Mr. Bere.) People may have different opinions as to whether you had anything to do with

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. F. Smith.

Sept. 1866.

the election or not?—I came here merely as Colonel Dawkins' friend.

11,494. How came you to draw the first cheque in favour of Leigh & Pemberton?—Mr. Kellock requested me to pay 100*l.* to his account, and I wrote to my partner to that effect.

11,495. The first cheque you paid to Mr. Edmonds?—Yes.

11,496. Did you not hand a cheque to Mr. Kellock?—No.

11,497. Did you never hand a cheque to Mr. Kellock at all?—None whatever.

11,498. They all passed through Mr. Edmonds's hands?—Yes.

11,499. At what time of the day did you give this second cheque?—I cannot recollect.

11,500. Was it in the afternoon?—I do not remember.

11,501. Was it after you had received some information from Mr. Edmonds?—No doubt.

11,502. Did you see Captain Pim in the afternoon of Monday?—I cannot say, it is very likely I did.

11,503. Did you tell Captain Pim that more money was wanted?—I do not think I did.

11,504. Captain Pim has stated that you did say so?—Then that statement is untrue.

11,505. But he has stated so upon his oath?—I am on my oath also.

11,506. You did not tell Captain Pim that?—I have no recollection of it whatever.

11,507. What time on the nomination day did you give the cheque for 500*l.*?—I cannot say when it was.

11,508. Was it in the morning or in the afternoon?—I should say that it was the day after the election.

11,509. It was drawn on the nomination day?—I cannot say at what time.

11,510. (Mr. Coleridge.) When you gave this cheque did you say to the person to whom you gave it to tell Mr. Mum that he must not have any more?—I never knew anything about Mr. Mum until about five weeks ago.

11,511. But you knew that some one was spending this money?—I only knew of Mr. Edmonds.

11,512. Did you not say that that was the last they could have?—No, certainly not.

11,513. (Mr. Longe.) You have already told us that Mr. Heath told you there was a person in this place who was spending the money?—A man came to me and asked me to employ him, but I told him that I would have nothing whatever to do with him; he was there only some four or five hours.

11,514. Have you not already stated that Mr. Heath pointed out the man and said, "That is the man who is spending the money?"—Certainly not.

11,515. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he not point out a man without telling you what he was here for?—He told me that a person wanted to see me; I went into a small room behind the bar and asked the man what was his business, and he said, "Can I be of any use to you during the election?" and I said I would have nothing to do with him.

11,516. Was he a man whom you had ever seen before?—No, never.

11,517. Have you ever seen this man since?—No.

11,518. Did he say that he had come down from London?—He said something about the election being a strong contest, but I would have nothing to say to him.

11,519. Did you ask him who had sent him down to Totnes?—No, I did not.

11,520. Then did you look upon him as being a mere volunteer in the matter of the election?—I did not look upon him as a friend; he was only a common man.

11,521. Did you take any particular notice of him; we have already had a great many descriptions of him; can you tell us what sort of a looking man he was?—No, I cannot recollect; I only saw him for about a minute or so; directly he opened his mouth I turned away from him.

11,522. Will you tell us whether you would know him again if you were to see him?—No; certainly not.

11,523. (Mr. Bere.) How long before you drew the first cheque?—I cannot say now.

11,524. Was it between the time that you first came down with Colonel Dawkins, and the time you went back to London, or after you came down with the 1,500*l.*?—The second time.

11,525. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did it first cross you that you were committing bribery, the first or second time?—I always imagined that Mr. Edmonds was using it for the election.

11,526. When did it first come into your mind that you were actively using bribery in the borough of Totnes?—I simply acted for Colonel Dawkins.

11,527. When did it first occur to you that you were committing bribery in Totnes, when you gave the 1,000*l.* or the 1,500*l.*?—I do not consider that I committed bribery at all.

11,528. Do you mean for one moment you thought the money was being legitimately expended?—I cannot answer the question.

11,529. You imagined this 5,000*l.* was to be legitimately expended, and you were not, you say, cognizant of the bribery carried on?—I knew nothing of the bribery.

11,530. At the time of the election you seriously say you did not know there was bribery being carried on?—Oh, yes, I knew it was carried on largely.

11,531. You did know of bribery being carried on?—I did not know of any voter being paid whatever.

11,532. You were not told that, but had you the slightest doubt in your own mind?—Is that a fair question to put to me.

11,533. Perfectly fair; we shall have to make a list of the bribers and the bribed?—I thought that Mr. Edmonds was acting for Colonel Dawkins as his agent here, and he paid the money according to instructions.

11,534. You handed over to him large sums of ready money; did you imagine that they could be spent legitimately?—I assumed it was to be spent.

11,535. You being the fountain-head from which the bribery sprang, you say it is not a fair question to ask whether you carried on bribery in the borough of Totnes?—I did not consider that I committed any act of bribery whatever. If Colonel Dawkins' instructions were to pay over sums of money, I did it.

11,536. You were an innocent agent in the doing of it?—I never paid any single voter here.

11,537. (Mr. Longe.) You do not consider you committed any bribery, you say; but if you know a man steals a purse and he gives it to you to carry, you knowing it is stolen, you think you take no part in the act of stealing?—I acted as Colonel Dawkins' solicitor.

11,538. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you mean that your privilege as a solicitor absolves you from all guilt in the matter?—I think so.

11,539. You told us you were acting as Colonel Dawkins' friend?—I was.

11,540. If there was nothing but your privilege as a solicitor to absolve you from the guilt, what is the privilege beyond that which you might have claimed as a solicitor?—I knew money was spent, but I knew of no case of bribery.

11,541. Mr. Edmonds was a voter, was not he, and he voted for Colonel Dawkins?—I suppose he is.

11,542. You gave Mr. Edmonds, he being a voter, something like 5,000*l.* during the election?—4,100*l.* was paid to his account.

11,543. Suppose he had kept it all, he voting for Colonel Dawkins, would that not have been bribery on your part?—It was not in that capacity.

11,544. Suppose he had kept the 4,000*l.*, would that have been bribery on your part?—I should think not if I had money in hand.

11,545. If he distributed it among 100 voters, and they voted for Colonel Dawkins, do you or do you not consider that you would constructively commit bribery?—Certainly not.

11,546. (Mr. Bere.) Whilst the election was going u were in constant communication with Colonel kins ?—I was in his room.

547. What instructions did he give you in regard e conduct of the election from time to time ?—, except paying over the money.

548. What instructions ?—He told me to go to ondon bankers for 500*l.*

549. Do you mean to say that during the whole you were down here and that you were in con- communication with Colonel Dawkins the whole nothing passed as to how the election was to be ged ?—Certainly not.

550. You were not acting as his agent, but as his l ?—I came down in that capacity, and I never any professional charge.

551. Did you continue in that capacity ?—Yes.

552. (Mr. Longe.) When Mr. Heath told you person wished to speak to you, what took place een you and Mr. Heath afterwards ?—He said one wished to see me, and sent him into the

553. Who was present ?—No one whatever.

554. Not Mr. Heath ?—I think not ; I am almost ied he was not.

555. When you left the little room had you met Heath then ?—I do not think I had ; I have no lection of it.

556. Nothing passed between you and Mr. Heath? rtainly not.

557. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you make any demur ese large sums that you were asked for ?—No.

558. No observation at all ?—None whatever.

559. Beyond signing your name to a bit of paper did nothing in the matter ?—Nothing whatever.

560. What became of the paper you have not lightest notion ?—Not the least.

561. (Mr. Bere.) I will read you an answer you some little time ago, if you please :—"Some- dy did call and see me, but I had nothing to do th him. Question : When was it, previous to the ection ? Answer : Mr. Heath told me he was in house, and I went into the room and saw him, d he told me what he wanted, and I said I had thing to do with it ;" what did he ask you ?— ther he would be of any use during the election.

562. That is all ?—Yes.

563. Did he intimate how he could be of use ?—

564. What did you understand ?—I fancied he a man that had been mixed up in elections.

565. Did he bring down any credentials ?—None ever.

566. Did he say where he came from ?—No.

567. Did he say that he came from a club, or —No, certainly not.

568. You seem to have had a sort of instinctive that he was an improper person to have anything with ?—Certainly.

569. Did that not arise from your knowing that ad come down to distribute the money ?—No, inly not.

570. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever take the le to ask the clerks whether they had seen him they came to you ?—I should say certainly not.

571. Do you mean that when the mysterious ger came to you and asked you to employ him clerks did not see him ?—My clerks would not nyone without instructions from me.

572. Have you not taken the trouble to ask her they have endeavoured to get hold of him ?— ver heard from them that they saw him.

573. It did not excite your mind that he might been a spy from the enemy's camp ?—No ; I do know where he came from.

574. He having come down to be employed in a mission as that, did you give him those large of money and never ask him where he came ?—Certainly not. I believe he left the house two hours after I saw him.

575. On what day was this ?—I cannot say.

11,576. How long before the election ?—Three or four days before the election.

11,577. You believe that he left the house very shortly afterwards ?—I heard he left within two hours.

11,578. Might it not have been on the Saturday ? You ought to know. That would be three or four days before the election ?—I forget the day of the election.

11,579. How do you know he left the house very shortly afterwards ?—I think I heard Mr. Heath say he did.

11,580. When was that ?—The Sunday morning. No, it was on the Friday or the Saturday.

11,581. Did Mr. Heath ever tell you that he came back again ?—No ; I have never seen him since. I should not know him if I saw him again.

11,582. Why did Mr. Heath tell you he had gone away ?—It was in conversation ; I asked Mr. Heath whether the man was gone away.

11,583. Mr. Heath was present during your conversation with him ?—No, not to the best of my recollection.

11,584. Did you go and tell Mr. Heath that the man had been with you ?—Mr. Heath may have said to me, "Do you know that man ?" Mr. Heath told me that some one wanted to see me. I went down ; I was standing close outside the door ; I went into the room.

11,585. Had you seen this man by yourself ?—Yes, certainly. He evidently wished to be connected with the election. I would have nothing whatever to do with him.

11,586. Who left the room ?—I did.

11,587. When did you ask Mr. Heath what had become of the man you saw in the room ?—I think a few minutes afterwards.

11,588. How did you describe the man to Mr. Heath ?—I did not describe him at all ; he told me somebody wanted to see me.

11,589. How did it come about that he had gone away ?—In general conversation he asked me if I knew the man.

11,590. Did he volunteer to tell you that the man had gone away ?—I heard it from the waiter or Mr. Heath, I do not know which.

11,591. You made inquiries and were told that he had gone away ?—I did not make any inquiries.

11,592. It was a mere casual observation of Mr. Heath's that the man who wanted to see you had gone away ?—Yes.

11,593. It never occurred to you to ask whether he had been dealing with anybody else ?—Certainly not.

11,594. Did you not mention it to Mr. Edmonds ? —I cannot tell.

11,595. As a lawyer and as Colonel Dawkins' friend, if there was a mysterious stranger about the place, would not Mr. Edmonds, his agent, be the first person that you would mention it to ?—I should think so certainly.

11,596. You cannot recollect it ? If Mr. Edmonds at such an election had such a conversation, it has escaped your mind altogether ?—Quite so.

11,597. (Mr. Bere.) Did not Mr. Heath come to you and say the man from London had come down ?—No.

11,598. Did he not come to you and tell you the man from London had come down ?—Not that ; somebody wanted to see me.

11,599. You did not say to him it would be all right ?—No, certainly not.

11,600. Were you about the hotel on the Saturday before the election ?—I think very probably I was.

11,601. On the Saturday evening ?—I was staying in the hotel.

11,602. Were you in the lobby, as they call it ?—I think not.

11,603. Do you know what time you dined on the Saturday ?—I never went out after 7 o'clock.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. F. Smith.

4 Sept. 1866.

11,604. Did you stay up in Colonel Dawkins' sitting room ?—Yes, always.

11,605. Did you ever go into the big room of the "Seven Stars ?"—I was there at a public meeting.

11,606. Were you there from time to time while the affairs of the election were going on ?—Only those times.

11,607. Were there people in the room ?—The room was full. Colonel Dawkins addressed them.

11,608. Had you heard that at other times, when no public meeting was going on, a good many people were present ?—Certainly not.

11,609. At no time ?—At no time, to my recollection ; I never recollect, except at the meeting.

11,610. Did you never see people in the room drinking ?—I cannot say they did not. I have never been there except at the meeting.

11,611. Did you ever see people in the room drinking ?—I am inclined to think I have.

11,612. For a considerable portion of the time before the election ?—I think it was only on one occasion.

11,613. Did you see on the evening of the Saturday a number of people round the door of the hotel ?—No, not to my recollection. I have no recollection whatever of it.

11,614. You do not know where your clerks slept ?—I have do doubt they slept at the "Seven Stars ;" where I do not know.

11,615. Were their bills charged in Colonel Dawkins' bill ?—I should say they were.

11,616. Have you got Colonel Dawkins' bill—I have not.

11,617. Have you got it at home ?—I think there is a bill, the amount of the money and the election expenses, you mean ?

11,618. Yes ?—I have them.

11,619. (Mr. Coleridge.) Colonel Dawkins' bill is not in the election expenses ?—I do not know what he paid.

11,620. Did he pay his own bill ?—I assume he did ; I did not.

11,621. Did he pay your bill as a friend ?—Yes ; I should say he did.

11,622. And also the clerks' ?—Very likely.

11,623. There would be no charge made by you for that sort of thing ?—I should say not.

11,624. Therefore there would be no charge made in your professional account ?—There would be certain disbursements for journeys backwards and forwards, 110*l.* altogether. I am inclined to think that was separate.

11,625. How many journeys backwards and forwards did you make ?—Twice, I think.

11,626. How often did your clerks go backwards and forwards ?—They remained here.

11,627. How do you make out 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* as the amount of your disbursements, written out in the name of the firm, consisting of railway bills, hotel bills, and sundry other payments during the election, sent in to Colonel Dawkins ?—I cannot tell, unless I have the advertisements and papers, and things of that kind. I cannot explain it at all.

11,628. I will read over to you the legitimate expenses. You have got the bills that were sent in before this was printed : "Proportion of the returning "officer's expenses, 15*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.* ; professional assist- "ance, 50*l.* ; committee room, 31*l.* 10*s.*" ?—I do not think I ever heard those items before.

11,629. (Mr. Bere.) Have you got your letter book here ?—Yes.

11,630. (Mr. Coleridge.) "Horse and carriage hire, "46*l.* 2*s.* ; advertising, telegrams, and messenger, "61*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.* ; reporting, 4*l.* 4*s.* ; printing and sta- "tionery, 30*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* ; bill poster, 17*s.* 6*d.* ; poll "and committee clerks, 14*s.* 10*d.* ; messages, "3*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* ; cleaning Guildhall, 1*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* ; agent "for election expenses, fee, 20*l.*" That, coupled with Colonel Dawkins paying his own hotel charges, was all that could be legitimately incurred ?—Certainly.

11,631. You, not acting as a solicitor but as friend here, what is the item charged by the firm Colonel Dawkins for this 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* ?—My countant will explain that. I cannot.

11,632. Have you got the account ?—No, I have n

11,633. Do you mean that is a private matter tween you and the captain ? Did you put it throu your account ?—I estimated what my expenses we I never made any professional charge against Colo Dawkins.

11,634. What is the item of 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* compos of ?—Our disbursements.

11,635. Have you brought it with you here ?—I not know. Colonel Dawkins very likely has it.

11,636. "Advertisements, telegrams, messenge "61*l.* 14*s.* 8*d*," have you got the particulars of tha —I have no particulars of any telegram whatev merely election expenses.

11,637. (Mr. Bere.) How do you make out th amount ?—That is the amount I received from M Edmonds.

11,638. You made out the account that was sen to the election agent ?—Mr. Edmonds.

11,639. From your instructions ?—He was ac as Colonel Dawkins' agent here.

11,640. Did you give him any instructions to as him in coming to the amount of the legitimate penses ?—I have no recollection whatever.

11,641. Mr. Edmonds, being his agent, made all Colonel Dawkins' expenses, except his own p portion of the expenses, which he paid himself ? should say he did. I have no recollection of Edmonds receiving anything.

11,642. Cannot you give me any idea of what items were of the bill of your firm, 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* ? cannot, except disbursing out of pocket.

11,643. What sort of disbursements did you m out of pocket whilst here ?—I think I may have for one or two carriages.

11,644. That would not go very far ; two jour yourself, one journey of your clerks ; what els there to make up the 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* ?—I cannot tell now.

11,645. Do you not know that the carriages all charged in the hotel bill ?—I was not aware o

11,646. "Horse and carriage hire, 46*l.* 2*s.*" cannot tell you.

11,647. Can you recollect whether you ever for a single carriage yourself ?—I cannot now.

11,648. Cannot you recollect whether you paid hotel bill whatever whilst you were here ?—I hav recollection of it whatever.

11,649. There was never any hotel bill charg you at all ?—I think not.

11,650. It was all to Colonel Dawkins ?—Y believe so.

11,651. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is this item charg Colonel Dawkins in error ?—I should say, certainly 11,652. Did you return your own clerks' ra bills to Mr. Edmonds to go into the expenses put that to Colonel Dawkins' private account.

11,653. You mean the account with your firm My firm.

11,654. You did not charge to Mr. Edmonds e the expenses incurred by yourself or your cler coming down and remaining here ?—I believe n

11,655. All the explanation you can give o 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* is the two journeys of yourself, an clerks' journeys ?—And my hotel expenses in to 11,656. Have you any means, in London or where, of getting at the items of the 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d* should think we had.

11,657. Will you endeavour to tell us by graphing up for them to-day, and let us have t —Yes.

11,658. (Mr. Bere.) Will you also have your down here on Thursday morning ?—Yes.

11,659. Who is that person of the name of H —Is there a name of John Healey ?

11,660. Yes ?—He is an accountant at N Bedford Row.

1,661. Did he come down here?—Not to my wledge.

1,662. Were you down in Totnes on the 7th of ?—I should fancy I was.

1,663. Did you draw a cheque for 6*l.* 10*s.* the day started?—The day before I started.

1,664. Did you get the 1,500*l.* from Ransome's? rom Hanbury's.

1,665. What is the meaning of this letter? "My ear sir. I have been talking over the subject atter of your communication with Mr. Smith as the desirability of you in your position entering n electioneering matters, and he has left it to me arrange with you as to whether or not you go. have so arranged matters to-day as to avoid any convenience arising to Mr. Smith by your not ing, so please to do whatever you think best. I all be happy to talk it over with you in the morning. you are this way, kindly let me hear from you, and en in the morning I will come up if more convenient you on hearing." That is written by your partner, Guscotte. What is the meaning of that letter on 7th of July 1865?—Allow me to look at it; I no doubt it is an application from Mr. Healey.

1,666. Was not the man you saw in the bar Mr. ley?—Certainly not.

1,667. Did you never hear that he had been here? o, never.

1,668. What is the meaning of the letter?—Mr. ley may have applied, hearing that I was coming n to Totnes, to see if he could be of any use to he is a man I employ in my firm.

1,669. What sort of looking man is he?—He is a dle-aged man; I cannot describe him except that ooks a thorough man of business.

1,670. Is he stout?—Not stouter than I am.

1,671. With grey whiskers?—I think not, to my wledge.

1,672. (Mr. Coleridye.) Here is an item here, a ge to Colonel Dawkins, 304*l.* 8*s.* paid by cheque, down here for election expenses?—Those were, I erstood, the election expenses.

1,673. Where is the account upon which you gave cheque?—I think I have it, and I will hand you py of it.

1,674. You are returned to the election account l. 7*s.* 6*d.*?—Mr. Edmonds can explain that.

1,675. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know that out of the cheque for 500*l.* that you gave to Mr. Edmonds eceived back the sum of 207*l.* 10*s.*?—No.

1,676. Did he ever account to you for 207*l.* 10*s.* he received?—

1,677. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Edmonds sent you in gular account with everything put down in it, I ose, did he not; and the account you send in for election is 364*l.* 8*s.*?—No, not so.

1,678. (Mr. Bere.) Have you got a letter from Edmonds asking for payment of his account?—I ot recollect.

1,679. What made you pay it on the 1st of Sepber?—It would be in consequence of some comication from him from Totnes.

1,680. From whom did the communication come? rom Mr. Edmonds, no doubt.

1,681. (Mr. Coleridge.) The printed sum that has sed through the election agent is 279*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, the unt you paid Mr. Edmonds is 364*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.*; how ou get at the difference?—Mr. Edmonds will no bt explain that; I cannot recollect.

1,682. We want to know how it was you paid it ll?—I understood it was the election expenses.

1,683. You must have been told that; is that your ature, or is it the drawing of your accountant?—ould say my own.

1,684. Whose writing is it in?—I do not know at all.

1,685. (Mr. Bere.) You must have given that que in consequence of something you had heard Mr. Edmonds?—I did not hear.

1,686. You have been served with a subpœna to ng all the letters in the case bearing upon the tion. There is one, the 13th of September, 1865; have you not got a letter that you received at the beginning of July?—I think nothing bearing upon the election.

11,687. We should like to see them, and be our own judges of that?—

11,688. (Mr. Coleridge.) How came you, after receiving through the election auditor a bill for 424*l.* 14*s.*, written by Mr. Hannaford, and sent to you, how came you to send only a cheque for 364*l.*?—I cannot tell.

11,689. There must have been some demur to this amount of 424*l.*, as the published account is 279*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, and you paid 364*l.*, which does not tally with either of those accounts?—I cannot imagine how it is; no doubt Mr. Edmonds will tell you that.

11,690. It must have been to cut them down to 364*l.*; there must have been a demur to some of these charges?—I think not. I have no recollection of it.

11,691. Just look at that bill, and say whether it might not be that the 69*l.* was taken off the bill by your firm, and the bill reduced by the amount of the sum charged to your firm?—I should think not.

11,692. How do you get it reduced to 364*l.*?—I cannot imagine how it is.

11,693. Do you recollect having any correspondence; there might have been some remonstrance about the bill, was not there?—I have no recollection of it whatever.

11,694. There is no credit given for any money paid on account, or anything of that sort?—

11,695. (Mr. Bere.) Who keeps the accounts of your firm?—Mr. Lind.

11,696. (Mr. Coleridge.) What was Mr. Kellock's fee at the election?—I think it was 25*l.*

11,697. (Mr. Bere.) We must have something more accurate regarding your communication with Mr. Healey; when did the conversation take place?—I have no recollection whatever of talking with Mr. Healey. There is the letter.

11,698. "I have been talking over the subject matter "of your communication with Mr. Smith," there is a letter written by your partner, Mr. Guscotte, when did the conversation take place?—I should say ulterior to the election.

11,699. Was it while you were in London do you remember seeing him?—It must have been. I never saw him anywhere else but in London.

11,700. Do you remember seeing him while you were in London when you came up from Totnes?—I have no recollection of it.

11,701. Do you not keep an appointment book?—I keep a call book and a letter book.

11,702. Have you got the call book here?—I have not.

11,703. Did Mr. Healey come down to your office and see you there?—I have no recollection of it whatever.

11,704. Did you not see Mr. Healey, and did you not talk with him about the money he was going to take down to Totnes?—Certainly not.

11,705. You cannot give any explanation of this letter at all?—Simply Mr. Healey may have heard I was mixed up with the election, and asked if he could be of any use.

11,706. Any use, in what way?—I cannot tell you.

11,707. You were down here as Colonel Dawkins' friend, not as his professional adviser. You were doing nothing in the election, and you had two clerks to help you to do nothing; what made you bring Mr. Healey down to help the clerks and yourself?—I never thought of bringing him down. I think that letter is written by my partner.

11,708. Did he volunteer. The letter says that there was a conversation between you and Mr. Healey, at which the subject of Mr. Healey coming down to Totnes was discussed?—I have no recollection whatever of seeing Mr. Healey.

11,709. Did you write to him?—I have no recollection of doing so; if so the letter is here.

11,710. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is not the real truth of this matter that at the time you were doing that, you were thinking of conducting Colonel Dawkins' election,

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. F. Smith.

4 Sept. 1866.

but afterwards you thought you had better not be professionally mixed up with it?—No, I believe not.

11,711. At no period before the election had you a thought of conducting it professionally for Colonel Dawkins?—I say certainly not.

11,712. When he came to consult you it was merely as his friend?—Quite so.

11,713. Tell me the period of time at which you thought of taking the matter up professionally?—I had not thought of it; I had no experience.

11,714. You could afford to give up a few days of your time?—I am perfectly independent, I take my own pleasure.

11,715. Mr. Guscotte attends to the business?—Yes.

11,716. Colonel Dawkins came down without any professional attendant at any time?—Quite so.

11,717. What occasion was there for sending for the clerks?—I cannot speak now to that.

11,718. Try and recollect what made you send for them?—I like to have my clerks about me when I am away.

11,719. Did you bring any servant with you?—No.

11,720. Do you mean really there was no other reason than that you like to have the association of your clerks around you?—I thought they might be of some use.

11,721. How were they to be of some use?—I cannot imagine. I know nothing about electioneering business.

11,722. You must have had some thought in your mind as to what sort of use they would be to you; what do you mean that they were to do?—I cannot imagine. They may have brought papers to me.

11,723. Did you ever see a letter from Mr. Spofforth asking that a steady clerk might be sent down to telegraph the state of the poll every hour?—Certainly not.

11,724. It was not to assist Mr. Spofforth that they came?—No, certainly not.

11,725. Try and suggest some use for them?—I cannot imagine.

11,726. (Mr. Bere.) How long did you keep them down here?—Four or five days.

11,727. (Mr. Coleridge.) How do you mean, when you go to stay with a friend in the country, do you take your clerks with you for the sake of association?—No, certainly not. I cannot give you any more explanation. My clerks can explain.

11,728. (Mr. Bere.) Just take that letter and read it carefully, and let your memory be refreshed in reading it?—I see the conversation took place with Mr. Guscotte and Mr. Healey.

11,729. That is not the interpretation the letter bears. The words are, "I have been talking over "the subject matter of your communication with "Mr. Smith." Then Mr. Guscotte must have talked upon the subject of the communication between Mr. Healey and you, and so there must have been a conversation between you and Mr. Healey?—I have no doubt Mr. Guscotte did speak to him; but I have no recollection of it.

11,730. Now having read that, do you say some arrangement was to be made between you and Mr. Healey?—I am not aware of any arrangement whatever.

11,731. What did Mr. Guscotte tell you about it?—I cannot tell you, except in general conversation.

11,732. General conversation about a particular person, what do you mean?—Mr. Healey may have heard of the Totnes election and he may have applied to Mr. Guscotte to see if he could be of any assistance.

11,733. Did you contemplate he might be?—I did not.

11,734. Not from the letter?—As far as I recollect not.

11,735. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had Mr. Healey had any experience at elections?—I cannot tell you, he is an active business man.

11,736. (Mr. Bere.) Explain these words "I have so arranged matters to-day as to avoid any inconvenience arising to Mr. Smith by you not going;" what does that mean?—I cannot speak to that, my partner can explain it.

11,737. Does that not mean if Mr. Healey did not go somebody else would?—Certainly not.

11,738. What does it mean?—I cannot explain it.

11,739. What inconvenience was there caused you by Mr. Healey not going?—I cannot imagine. I do not know why Mr. Guscotte wrote the letter.

11,740. Have you got a private letter book?—No.

11,741. Is this the only letter book you kept?—That is the only one except as to the charities that I am connected with.

Col. W. G. Dawkins.

COLONEL DAWKINS recalled and further examined.

11,742. (Mr. Coleridge.) When you settled with Mr. Smith you saw the lump sum which you had to pay?—I saw no more details than those I have given you.

11,743. You never saw this bill of Mr. Hannaford's the election agent?—No.

11,744. Can you explain this, that the amount sent by the election agent to your solicitor is 424*l.* 14*s.*, the amount paid by your solicitor is 364*l.* 8*s.*, and the amount charged here in the published account which by law it is necessary should be advertised is 279*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*?—It is the first time that I knew there were any discrepancies.

11,745. It is clear that from the published account you have over paid Mr. Smith on that item alone between 80*l.* and 90*l.*; that is what was sent in by the election agent and tallies with the particulars?—What expenses are those supposed to be?

11,746. They are rather peculiar?—Are they what are called legitimate election expenses?

(Mr. Bere.) All except the hotel bill.

11,747. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Heath's hotel expenses 176*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.*?—That is amongst them.

11,748. That will account for the difference between the printed statement and the other one. How do you account for the difference between the 364*l.* which you are charged and the 424*l.* 14*s.*?—Am I not charged with that, I must have paid that somehow.

11,749. How did you pay your hotel bill?—I never paid it nor do I know the amount.

11,750. It is put down in the list I have here but not in the printed list?—I cannot explain that. I think Mr. Guscotte will be able to give you more information on this than Mr. Smith.

11,751. The addition of the 69*l.* odd would not bring the figures right?—I suppose those things should be the same. Is the published one more or less?

11,752. The published one is a great deal less, is your hotel bill left out of it?—I am sorry that I am unable to explain that.

11,753. Did you pay your hotel bill separately?—I did not pay the hotel bill at all.

11,754. You gave some 10*l.* to the servants?—I afterwards sent something to the waiter. I did not know what they had received.

11,755. (Mr. Bere.) There are some little matters in your evidence of yesterday that you wish to correct?—Yes; I understand that the Rev. James is under the conviction that I did not call on him with Captain Pim. I wish to state that what I said yesterday was only an impression to that effect. I recollect very little about it; I took very little notice of the visit to him among so many and my evidence must only be taken for what it is worth. I cannot say distinctly that I called twice, my impression is that I did so, but I may be mistaken. I wish to try and define more accurately what I said yesterday as to whether I considered there would be a Conservative majority if there was no purchase es. From the reception I met with during my vass, also from the reception my opponents met h on the hustings, and from the general un-ularity of the duke, I thought there would be a jority for the Conservatives. If the votes are paid I cannot say whether there would be such a jority or not.

1,756. Or how many would stay away if they e not paid to come?—That I cannot say. There another matter on which I wish to say a word, ether we had made up our minds what would be itting sum to be given to me to withdraw the ition. I believe my friends and myself considered, far as I recollect, that if I was to withdraw, which not decided upon at all, that the money should paid which we spent, and which would be about 00*l.*—Nothing was decided on.

1,757. It appears that Captain Pim took a more ve part in the idea of a compromise than he has l us, had you much conversation with him?—I do know what he may have given you to understand ut that.

1,758. He said he knew nothing about it?—There nothing transacted to know much about, we had sulted about it.

1,759. Had you rather left the arrangement of it im?—I had to a certain extent at one time. I not say that any arrangement was made.

1,760. Was he in communication with the gentle-n whose name you have handed to us?—No, tainly not.

1,761. You did not ask him to go there?—No; I not think he ever saw him.

1,762. When the 176*l.* was paid for the hotel bill, you imagine that it included your own expenses, ptain Fox's expenses, Mr. Smith's, and those of his clerks?—Yes; I was not aware that any par-ular sum had been paid. I certainly expected that those expenses would be charged to my account.

1,763. Having paid the hotel bill, and things of t kind were you not surprised that the firm of which . Smith was a member should have put down this m of 69*l.*?—I cannot say I was surprised, I never ked into the figures. I was not aware until now t there was any discrepancy. I am confident that . Guscotte who manages the account will explain very satisfactorily.

1,764. Did you ever hear either of those names ich are on that piece of paper mentioned in con-xion with the compromise?—Yes, I have.

1,765. Both of them or only one of them?—I ve heard that there were two persons of that name, as to the Christian name I will not be tain.

1,766. You have heard what Mr. Smith has said re, did you regard him as your friend or your icitor?—He has always been my solicitor. I derstood that he came down here on the terms he s mentioned.

1,767. Did you know anything of his clerks being t for?—No; I was rather surprised to see them re, I did not see any necessity for them.

1,768. You were rather astonished that as he ne down in a non-professional capacity he could t do without two clerks?—Although he came as friend I considered I should have his advice and istance.

1,769. Captain Fox did not bring any clerks with n?—No.

1,770. (Mr. Longe.) You trusted to Mr. Smith see to the disposal of your money for you, that is to t rid of the money which you were prepared to end?—He was to undertake the money part of it. fore I came down here I considered that the money ich was going from me was to go into Mr. Smith's nds, and it was therefore I considered he had so uch to do with the election.

1,771. He was a person in whom you had entire fidence as to the spending of your money?—Yes.

1,772. Did you ever hear of a Mr. Healey?—I have heard the name. I did not know his name in connexion with this election, I think he has something to do with Messrs. Smith and Guscotte.

1,773. Did Mr. Smith at all communicate with you as the time of the election went on?—I certainly considered that if any money arrangements were being made he was acting for me here, in fact I had committed the matter to him before I came down to Totnes.

1,774. And the money which was in his hands was coming to him as your professional adviser was it not?—I hardly know whether it was so or not, because if he had not been my solicitor and had come down here in the mere capacity of a friend of mine, acting as he did without being paid, my money would equally have come into his hands.

1,775. Supposing that you had asked Captain Fox to act in his place you would have paid a sum of money to Captain Fox's account which you would not have had to do in the case of Mr. Smith?—Yes, exactly so.

1,776. Mr. Smith being a professional man you did not treat him as if he had been a perfectly independent friend of yours?—I hardly know the difference.

1,777. But you would not have expected Captain Fox to do it on his own footing without first placing a certain sum of money to his account at your bankers?—I do not know that. If he had happened to have the amount which was required it would have been just the same between two persons who were friends. I might either have placed it there in the first instance or have paid him afterwards.

1,778. Then was it not the fact that it was owing to Mr. Smith having been employed by you as your solicitor that you were induced to place this money in his hands?—I suppose it was on that account that he had managed my monetary affairs.

1,779. Then how came he down here on this occasion in what may be called somewhat of a mixed capacity, that of your solicitor and your friend?—I really cannot say more than this that I was not at all sure that he would not in the end be paid for his services. I should have been very happy to pay him, he is an old friend of mine, one whom I have known for a great many years.

1,780. (Mr. Longe.) Do you remember any conversation between you and Mr. Smith while the election was going on, in which he explained to you who were the persons with whom you would have to deal, or in what way the money would be distributed?—No, he took care, of course, not to tell me how the money had been parted with.

1,781. Then you were under the impression yourself that he knew what was being done with it?—Yes. If I trust any man with my money I am under the impression that he knows how he parts with it.

1,782. And you would look to him to account for the distribution of this money of yours?—I can hardly go to that extent. I do not know that I ever should have called him to account for the distribution of it.

1,783. Then he was the man to whom you trusted your money?—Yes, there can be no doubt of that, that he was the man to whom the money was entrusted.

1,784. Did you ever understand from him that he had left the matter entirely in the hands of Mr. Edmonds?—No, I did not know that.

1,785. That he was keeping his fingers quite clear of it himself, and that you, having given him the management of it, he had entrusted it to Mr. Edmonds?—No, he never told me anything about that.

1,786. He never told you that he had passed over his own personal responsibility to Mr. Edmonds?—No, there was no communication of that sort reached me either one way or the other. I have no recollection of any such thing.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. F. Smith.

4 Sept. 1866.

Mr. Frederick Smith recalled and further examined.

11,787. (Mr. Bere.) Have you got the letters?—There are the letters referring to the election [letters handed in.]

(Mr. Coleridge.) Referring to the election or the election petition.

11,788. Where are the letters referring to the election?—I cannot find any.

11,789. Have you none from Mr. Spofforth?—No.

11,790. Give us all the letters from the 20th of June to the end of July.—They are all there. I do not think I had any letters during the election.

11,791. (Mr. Bere.) There are none here before the 19th of August?—I believe not.

11,792. You must have letters at the end of June or the beginning of July referring to this matter?—I have no recollection of seeing the letters. If so, my letter-book would show it.

11,793. Is your recollection improved with regard to the letter I handed to you?—No, I cannot recollect anything about it.

11,794. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you keep a private letter-book in addition to the letter-book of the office?—No.

11,795. Do you keep any diary, in which you enter letters that you write?—No, I do not.

11,796. Do not you keep a Letts' Diary, in which you dot down matters?—I have a diary in which I sometimes dot down business.

11,797. Have you that?—No.

11,798. If accidentally you should write a business letter in private hours at home, you would enter it in that diary?—No, I should not.

11,799. Would you make a memorandum to enter it up?—All my letters are copied.

11,800. Those are business letters of the firm?—I have no other business letters.

11,801. Does not it occur occasionally to you, as to every one, that when you get home you have got a quasi business letter to write, and you would do it?—No, I do not recollect.

11,802. Not to Colonel Dawkins?—No.

11,803. Not even business of this delicate nature?—No.

11,804. (Mr. Bere.) At present we shall not trouble you further; but you must remain in Totnes till your clerks are examined, and Mr. Guscotte.

(Witness.) Can I meet them here on Thursday?

11,805. Yes, telegraph to them to come down?—I have written to my partner to come down to-morrow.

11,806. Write to the clerks as well.

(Mr. Coleridge) I think you had better hear Mr. Edmonds' examination, it may be important.—I shall.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

Mr. Thomas Hunt Edmonds sworn and examined.

11,807. (Mr. Coleridge.) I am not going to examine you generally now, but I want a few things explained, which it is difficult for us to get on without. You were the recognized agent for Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim at the last election?—For Colonel Dawkins.

11,808. Had Captain Pim a separate agent?—Yes; it was kept separate, but I was considered to be the leader of the party.

11,809. Was Mr. Kellock associated with you for Colonel Dawkins?—No. Mr. Kellock and Mr. Hare were concerned for Captain Pim, and Mr. Frederick Kellock with me for Colonel Dawkins.

11,810. Are they brothers?—Yes.

11,811. It was a mere nominal division?—Yes, we had the same object in view.

11,812. When did you first hear of Colonel Dawkins coming down?—I received a letter informing me that he was coming from Mr. Spofforth (Mr. Bowen has the letter), that was the first intimation I had.

11,813. When did you first receive an intimation that Mr. Smith, as his friend, was coming down with him?—I had a letter from Smith and Guscotte, in which they informed me (that is in Mr. Bowen's possession) that their client, Colonel Dawkins, was desirous of parliamentary honours, and asking me about the expense. And in reply to that letter I wrote and stated that I was in communication with Mr. Spofforth, who was endeavouring to get us a candidate, and therefore I could not entertain his application.

11,814. Now can you tell us what sort of a candidate you were asking Mr. Spofforth to supply you with?—One with plenty of money.

11,815. Colonel Dawkins did come down?—He did.

11,816. And after Colonel Dawkins came down, as we have heard, Mr. Smith came down?—I do not know whether he came down with him or came afterwards; I think he came with him.

11,817. When Mr. Smith came down, what position did Mr. Smith tell you he held as regarded Colonel Dawkins?—I presumed he was his solicitor.

11,818. Did you understand Mr. Smith to be his London solicitor?—Yes.

11,819. You imagined he was down here professionally?—I understood so.

11,820. I am not going into that now.—I think I heard Mr. Smith say, after the election was over that he came down more as a friend than as a professional man, and that he had made no charge for his services.

11,821. That was after the election, and after a good deal of money had passed through Mr. Smith's hands?—Yes.

11,822. You sent in, I suppose, Colonel Dawkins's expenses?—Yes; they were brought to me, and I forwarded them to London.

11,823. You, as his agent, were the person to inquire into that?—They were sent to me by the various tradespeople and others to whom they were due.

11,824. They were sent by the various tradesmen, and then what did you do with them?—I forwarded them to Smith and Guscotte, for their approval.

11,825. Did you receive any communication disapproving of any part of the charges?—Yes, I think there was a claim of 50*l.*, made by Mr. Robert Harris disputed, and also, I think the ringers were not allowed. The ringers came to me.

11,826. Who disputed that claim?—I think I stated that the ringers were not entitled to be paid because they came to me and asked whether they were to ring, and I said, provided Dawkins won, not otherwise; when he has been returned, I said, you may ring as much as you like.

11,827. As to the dispute about Mr. Harris?—It was a question whether he had been employed regularly as an agent.

11,828. That is in your handwriting [referring to a document]?—No, that is Mr. Hannaford's writing, the election agent.

11,829. After those objections had been taken by Messrs. Smith and Guscotte, did you send the account to the election auditor, as he is called; Mr. Hannaford?—Yes; I sent them all, I think.

11,830. I do not know how Mr. Hannaford seems to have copied it, but he has copied it with Mr. Harris's charged sum in it; just glance your eye over it?—Yes.

11,831. These accounts, as produced by Mr. Smith, were by Act of Parliament sent by the election agent to Mr. Smith as representing Colonel Dawkins?—Yes; I think the bills were sent up, and then the account was prepared afterwards by Mr. Hannaford.

11,832. I believe the usual course is, that the election agent for the party should pay the account; is not that so?—It is so.

11,833. So that unless Colonel Dawkins had a solicitor down here with him from London, you would ave sent these straight to Colonel Dawkins for his pproval?—Yes, undoubtedly.

11,834. They would have paid it?—Yes.

11,835. It would have been paid by your cheque nd not Smith's cheque?—Or Colonel Dawkins' heque.

11,836. You regarded yourself as the agent in the atter?—Quite so.

11,837. After the remonstrance from Smith and uscotte, what form did the account take, the items ill remain?—I think 3 guineas for the ringers is npaid.

11,838. Ringing 6 guineas, charged here?—Was iat paid?

11,839. This is the account sent after the remonrance to Colonel Dawkins' solicitor, in London, but ie ringers remain in at 6 guineas?—The ringers nt in a bill and I think I wrote on the face of it objected to."

11,840. Subsequently to that it is clear from this ing in Hannaford's handwriting, and Mr. Smith oducing them, that they went to Colonel Dawkins?—I presume so.

11,841. From whose bill would this be copied, ould this be copied from a bill made out by you?—o, certainly not. I think the bills were handed to annaford and that he prepared the statement. I ink it was done in that way.

11,842. Before preparing that statement and sending to Messrs. Smith and Guscotte, he would have subitted them to you, I suppose?—I think it is very kely, but I cannot say.

11,843. Do you recollect Col. Dawkins' expenses eing submitted to you?—I know the bills were sent me but I do not think there was any tabular atement such as that; I do not think there was.

11,844. With reference to the charges that are sent o you know by Act of Parliament it is the election gent's duty to pay them?—Yes.

11,845. This bill having been sent for 424*l.* 14*s.* o Smith and Guscotte, can you account for Smith and uscotte sending a cheque for 364*l.* 8*s.* instead of ending a cheque for 424*l.*?—I apprehend it is Harris' ccount and the ringers' account.

11,846. Will that make it?—I do not know, but you ill find the ringers were not paid.

11,847. That is the way the reduction was made?—I presume so.

11,848. I see in that account there is Mr. John Ieath's bill; hotel expenses 176*l.* 6*s.* 6*d*?—Yes, uite so.

11,849. That was returned to you as the whole of 'olonel Dawkins liability to Mr. Heath for himself nd friends during the election?—I presume so.

11,850. And that included the carriages, and that ort of thing?—Yes.

11,851. Except some 3*l.* odd?—Yes; those bills ere sent to me, and without specially looking them hrough, I sent them to Smith and Guscotte, because did not know whether the items were correct or not.

11,852. (Mr. Longe.) Whom did you send that to?—Smith and Guscotte. I printed them together and ent them in a parcel to Smith and Guscotte for their pproval, for them to say whether they thought anyhing objectionable, then I handed them over to Mr. Iannaford.

11,853. (Mr. Coleridge.) You had by the Act of 'arliament to publish these expenses in the newspaper?—That would rest with the election agent.

11,854. Do you know how it came that a different ccount, a much smaller, was advertised in the paper han the sum received?—The bills as they were made ut in the first instance included the hotel bill, and I hink as advertised for some reason or other, I could ot account for it, the hotel bill was struck out comletely. I do not know the reason, but I understand t was so with Captain Pim's and also with Mr. 'ender's and Mr. Seymour's.

11,855. (Mr. Longe.) That is the view the election gents here take as to their duty?—Yes; I observed afterwards it was a less amount and could not think how it could have been done.

11,856. The distinction between the published sum and that which appears on the bill paid by Colonel Dawkins solicitor, is the difference of the hotel bill?—I think so; I think you will find that is so.

11,857. Have you got the hotel bill?—I think not. It was handed over to the election agent. I have not seen it since.

11,858. Can you recollect whether that included all the charges for Messrs. Smith and Messrs. Smith's clerks?—I do not know; I did not look through the bill; I thought the items were such as I could not tell whether they were correct or not, but I sent up to Smith and Guscotte to let them be able to judge for themselves, and they made no objection.

11,859. That is the way these accounts are reconciled?—Yes.

11,860. What was the object of striking the hotel charge out of the bill?—I cannot tell; it was not done by me; Mr. Hannaford may explain it. I thought they ought not to have been struck out.

11,861. Do you know whom it was done by?—I have not the least idea.

11,862. Not by you?—Decidedly not. I am not quite sure, but I rather think I heard at the time that Mr. Phillips considered it was not a bill intended to be carried in to the election agent.

11,863. It was generally done?—I think you will find it was.

11,864. The hotel expenses struck out of each bill, but out of the hotel expenses must have been taken the expenses of carriages and that sort of thing, because in Pender's bill it is 23*l.* 13*s.* 7*d.*; then in Seymour's bill, carriage hire, 20*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.*?—It occurred to me that the bill ought not to be struck out, but ought to have been paid and carried to the account.

11,865. Then the published amount of 279*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* does not come right when you come to take the carriage hire from the bill?—I do not know anything about that; I had nothing to do with it.

11,866. It was not done under your instructions?—No.

11,867. How do you imagine it was done; by Mr. Hannaford's notion of his duty as election agent?—Yes; he had not instructions from me.

11,868. You gave no instructions about it?—Decidedly not.

11,869. (Mr. Bere.) There is an item of 61*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.* for advertising, telegrams, and messengers; have you the items of that account?—I have not.

11,870. Were they ever sent in to you?—I presume they were.

11,871. "Advertising, telegrams, and messages," who sent that?—I do not know how this is made out; I cannot tell you.

11,872. Where did you get the account from?—I did not make out this account. I had nothing to do with paying these bills or making out the accounts.

11,873. You received the account?—Yes.

11,874. Did you hand the bills over to the election agent at once?—Yes.

11,875. You only sent the amounts up?—Yes, and sent the bills themselves.

11,876. To Smith and Guscotte?—Yes.

11,877. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was not it the duty of whoever was constituted the agent of the election under the Act of Parliament to pay those bills?—Undoubtedly the election agent appointed under the Act of Parliament.

11,878. It was your duty?—Not my duty.

11,879. It was your duty as agent to Colonel Dawkins to get the bills in, was not it?—No, I do not think it was; they were sent to me; or some may have been sent to Mr. Hannaford, and he brought them to me; I do not know.

11,880. They were in your custody at some time?—Yes, I got them altogether and sent them to Messrs. Smith and Guscotte without taking upon myself any responsibility.

11,881. What acknowledgement did you get from

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

4 Sept. 1866.

Smith and Guscotte; have you got their letter?—No doubt I have.

11,882. I wish you would let us have it?—I think I had no acknowledgment; I think they sent them back again a few days afterwards. I presume they looked them over, and I think about a fortnight afterwards they sent back the bills with a cheque for the amount.

11,883. For 364*l.*, deducting 50*l.* which you did not approve of?—Yes.

11,884. Do you know how those items you did not approve of were subsequently paid?—I do not think the ringers were ever paid. With respect to the 50*l.* claimed by Harris, Mr. Smith sent a cheque for 25*l.* which he desired me to hand over. It was forwarded by Colonel Dawkins' request because he had made himself useful.

11,885. Although he was not appointed agent he had done a great deal of work?—No doubt he had made himself exceedingly useful.

11,886. I want to know when you first knew that a man was coming down to help Mr. Smith to distribute the cheque?—I think on the Saturday morning.

11,887. The Saturday before the election?—Yes.

11,888. Did you know of anybody having been before in that capacity?—I was not aware of it.

11,889. You are now?—I am now, since I have seen it in the papers.

11,890. Saturday was the earliest information you had of it?—Yes.

11,891. When did you receive information of his intention to come down; say before he came?—I had no information.

11,892. Did you ever tell Mr. Smith it would be necessary to have some one down?—Yes, I think I did.

11,893. What time was it that you told Smith that it would be necessary to have some one down to do this kind of work?—After he came the first time.

11,894. That would be in June?—He came the latter part of June and then went away again.

11,895. Was it upon that occasion that you told Smith it would be necessary to have some one down?—I think I did.

11,896. As nearly as you can tell us what you said?—I said that You know upon these occasions, inasmuch as there is money to be spent, it is necessary there should be a man in the moon to distribute the money, and I think you had better arrange while in London to get some one down.

11,897. What did Mr. Smith say to that?—I do not know that he made any reply particularly.

11,898. A nod and a wink?—I suppose so.

11,899. You knew at the time you said that to Mr. Smith that he was going back to town?—Yes, I must have been aware of it.

11,900. Had any money come down then?—Not that I am aware of.

11,901. Before Mr. Smith brought down his bag?—No.

11,902. After that Mr. Smith did go back to town?—Yes.

11,903. What communication did you receive whilst in town?—None whatever.

11,904. No telegraph about anyone coming down?—None whatever.

11,905. Without putting it to Mr. Smith, did not you receive a telegraph saying a gentleman would be down about the 3rd of July; that a gentleman would leave town by the mail train?—I think I did receive a telegram, but it had nothing to do with the man in the moon.

11,906. From whom?—From Mr. Spofforth.

11,907. Did it seem impossible that a telegram should come from Mr. Spofforth about the man in the moon?—I do not know about that.

11,908. Whom was it about?—I think Colonel Alexander.

11,909. You did not think that had anything to do with the man in the moon?—Certainly not.

11,910. When you did see Mr. Smith had he made arrangements about the man in the moon?—I do not know.

11,911. Did you ask him?—No.

11,912. You gave him credit for understanding and thought some one would appear?—Yes, that was my impression.

11,913. And you understood that you were acting in some sense for Colonel Dawkins under Mr. Smith?—To a certain extent, because my local knowledge rendered it necessary.

11,914. Mr. Smith was the paymaster and had command of the money?—Yes, it depended on him and Colonel Dawkins how much would be spent.

11,915. How long after this was it that the man came?—I do not know when he came down. The first information I had of his being here was on Saturday morning.

11,916. Who gave you the information?—Mr. Heath.

11,917. What did he say?—He said, "I suppose you "are aware that the man in the moon has arrived, "or Mr. Mum." "No," I said, "I am not aware of "it." He said, "He has, then, and it is high time "that something should be done to secure the doubt-"ful voters.

11,918. When you were told that Mr. Mum had arrived, did you go and see him?—No, I did not, I had not seen him at all, I kept myself aloof from that; I had never seen this one.

11,919. Who has seen Mr. Mum besides Mr. Heath?—I do not know.

11,920. Mr. Smith has seen him?—Has he?

11,921. Yes, he says so. You never saw Mr. Mum?—Not to my knowledge. I never saw the man described as the black man, nor Mr. Mum.

11,922. When you heard Mum had come did you go the "Stars?"—I heard it at the "Stars," I was there.

11,923. Mr. Heath thought it was high time something should be done?—I thought so too.

11,924. In consequence of that, did you go to Mr. Smith?—I did.

11,925. What did you obtain from Mr. Smith?—I obtained altogether——

11,926. I mean on the first occasion; on the Saturday?—I obtained from him, a portion of it from his clerk, on the same morning, 1,500*l.*

11,927. How much did you obtain from Mr. Smith himself; and how much from his clerk?—I am not quite sure.

11,928. It was done up in bags?—Yes; I received 500*l.* from Mr. Smith and the rest from the clerk; or, 500*l.* from the clerk and the rest from Mr. Smith.

11,929. What was the name of the clerk; Lind or Daw?—I do not know; I saw one once or twice; the clerk was down assisting.

11,930. In distributing this money?—He certainly had a hand in it.

11,931. What did you do with any money when you received it?—I put it in a little black bag belonging to me, and handed it over to Mr. Heath, and requested that he would take it up to his friend Mr. Mum.

11,932. He took it up to Mr. Mum as we have heard, and he handed a receipt back to you?—I think a little time afterwards I had an envelope in which there was a memorandum "Mr. Mum begs to acknow-"ledge the receipt of 1,500*l.*"

11,933. What did you do with that receipt?—I tore it up at once.

11,934. You did not give it to Mr. Smith?—No.

11,935. Did you tell Mr. Smith you had received a receipt?—No, I think not.

11,936. Did he make any inquiries as to how far you knew the money would go in the right direction?—No, he was prudent and cautious on that point, and did not ask me anything; he left it entirely to me.

11,937. Then you had some messages from Mr. Mum after that?—On the Monday morning.

11,938. Was nothing done on the Sunday?—No.

11,939. It was a dies non?—Yes.

11,940. Was there no electioneering going on on ie Sunday?—Not that I know of. At least I did ot take any part; there may have been a little doing.

11,941. On the Monday morning Mr. Heath came you, and told you that more money was wanted?—He did. He said that Mum had told him to come id say that the money was going very fast, and that ey were offering a very high price on the other de, and that we should lose the election unless more oney was provided.

11,942. What did you do when he told you that?—saw Mr. Smith.

11,943. What did you say to Mr. Smith?—That had seen Mr. Heath, and that he said that he must ave more money.

11,944. Who said that there must be more money?—Mr. Heath.

11,945. And did you tell Mr. Smith that Mr. Heath id that Mum said there must be more money?—I not think I did.

11,946. You merely mentioned Mr. Heath's name?—Yes; and I asked him whether he was going to do ything further, or whether we should shut up and tire. "Well," he said, "Do you think we stand a chance? Mr. Pender is evidently, from information brought in by our scouts, determined to carry this at any cost; still we may manage to carry one."

11,947. That occurred between you and Mr. Smith?—Yes.

11,948. You have no doubt about that?—I have doubt about that.

11,949. Nobody else present?—Nobody else present.

11,950. Mr. Kellock was not, was he?—No, I do ot think he was.

11,951. Are you quite sure?—I am certain he was ot.

11,952. This conversation occurred about Mr. Pen-er, and then Mr. Smith asked you whether you ould carry one seat, and then what did Mr. Smith ive you?—A cheque for 1,000*l.*

11,953. Did you ask him how to draw that cheque. o you recollect asking him to draw it on blank aper?—No. I think I suggested that it should be ayable to bearer for the convenience of getting it ashed, and that no name should appear. I think I d suggest that.

11,954. So he drew it in certain cabalistic signs, or earer?—He did.

11,955. It was not "Mr. Edmonds or bearer?"—o, that would not do at all.

11,956. Did Mr. Smith say anything about you ust not come on that occasion, you had had enough?—Well, I think he rather grumbled at the expenditure.

11,957. What did he say?—I forget now what it as. He did not seem to like it. I must confess I lt rather disgusted myself.

11,958. You felt rather ashamed of asking for this econd instalment?—I did.

11,959. What was done with that second cheque?—I gave it to Mr. Thomas Kellock.

11,960. I believe Mr. Kellock took it to the Tor-uay bank?—Yes.

11,961. The Devon and Cornwall Bank, Torquay?—No, I think he took it to the Torquay Bank. The rst was cashed I rather think at Torquay, and the econd at the Devon and Cornwall.

11,962. When he got it cashed, do you know that e went with Mr. Fox?—No, I do not know that he ent with him.

11,963. Do you know that he started off with olonel Dawkins and Captain Fox?—I do not know.

11,964. When did Mr. Kellock give you the pro-eeds?—The same evening.

11,965. About what time?—I should think about or 6 o'clock.

11,966. Where?—In my room.

11,967. Who else was present?—No one.

11,968. No one else was present?—No one else was resent.

11,969. He gave it to you, and you as usual I suppose handed it to Mr. Heath?—I made it up in a newspaper parcel, and went down stairs and gave it.

11,970. Did you give it into his hands, or leave it in the bar?—No. I went to the bar and inquired for him, and I could not find him down there.

11,971. You did not leave the parcel?—I did not like to exactly.

11,972. You waited till you saw him, and then gave it to him?—Yes.

11,973. When did Mr. Heath next tell you that more money was wanted?—I think it was late the same evening.

11,974. Can you tell us anything about,—in addition to the cheque for 1,000*l.* cashed by Mr. Kellock,—a cheque for 300*l.* of Captain Pim's was added to it, making 1,300*l.*?—That is how it was done. Mr. Kellock cashed Captain Pim's cheque I suppose at the same time at Torquay, and handed over the 1,300*l.*

11,975. (Mr. Bere.) Was that gold?—Partly gold, and partly notes.

11,976. Were the notes afterwards changed at the Devon and Cornwall bank?—No. I should think about 400*l.* gold, and the rest notes.

11,977. (Mr. Coleridge.) What size notes?—They were fives. Whether there may have been some tens I do not know.

11,978. Were they subsequently cashed at the Devon and Cornwall Bank?—No, I think not. I do not know about that.

11,979. Were they country bank notes or Bank of England?—Bank of England.

11,980. New notes?—I am hardly prepared to say, I daresay they were.

11,981. Did you that same evening get an intimation from Mr. Heath that more money was required?—Yes.

11,982. Where was it given to you?—In my room.

11,983. In your little room, No. 8?—In No. 8.

11,984. What did he tell you?—He said that more money was wanted.

11,985. Did you remonstrate with him?—I said, I had got so disgusted that I wished I had had nothing to do with the matter.

11,986. Did you tell him you did not like to go and see Mr. Smith?—Yes, I did.

11,987. Did you say he was rather rusty about it, or something to that effect?—Something of that sort.

11,988. This was late in the evening was not it?—Yes, late in the evening.

11,989. Where was Mr. Smith?—I do not know. I think I saw him in his bed room.

11,990. What number is that?—It is one at the top of the stairs.

11,991. No. 13?—15 I think is immediately at the head of the stairs.

11,992. Was he gone to bed?—He was not gone to bed.

11,993. What did you say to him?—I said, "I am "ashamed to come to you again, but they are spending "their money on the other side at such a fearful "pace that unless we spend more, it is quite impos-"sible we can win."

11,994. Did Mr. Smith seem rather excited at that information?—He did not relish it at all evidently.

11,995. What did he say?—He hesitated a great deal at first.

11,996. During his hesitation what did he say?—I do not think he made any particular remark. He seemed to think about it.

11,997. Did he say you must not come again?—No, I do not think he said that. He said, "I hope "you won't have occasion to come again," and I said "I hope not."

11,998. You felt this third draw rather an unpleasant matter?—I must confess that I felt it a most unpleasant business altogether.

11,999. What did you ask him for. How much did you say was necessary then?—He said, "Will 500*l.* "do?" I said, "We may just as well have 1,000*l.* "while we are about it. It is no use doing things "by halves."

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

4 Sept. 1866.

12,000. You did not anticipate that this was the end of all things?—I could not tell, things had grown up so.

12,001. Did Mr. Smith say anything about a limit?—I do not think he mentioned any limit.

12,002. He thought it better not to let you know there was a limit?—He did not say there was anything about it.

12,003. Did he give you a cheque?—He did.

12,004. Was that drawn in the same peculiar manner?—I believe it was.

12,005. And payable to bearer?—Yes.

12,006. Where was that cashed?—My friend Mr. Kellock came to my aid again, and I let him have it.

12,007. Then was it after banking hours a good deal?—It was not cashed till the next morning.

12,008. Do you know where he got it cashed?—I have heard the Devon and Cornwall bank.

12,009. Do you know what time Mr. Kellock cashed this cheque at Torquay?—I do not know.

12,010. You do not know whether in or out of banking hours?—I never heard.

12,011. (Mr. Bere.) What time was the cheque given?—On the Monday morning.

12,012. So it may have been cashed in banking hours?—It may have been, but whether it was I do not know.

12,013. (Mr. Coleridge.) Then this second cheque was cashed and the proceeds brought to you all in gold?—Notes and gold as well.

12,014. Fives?—Yes.

12,015. Bank of England notes?—Bank of England notes.

12,016. (Mr. Bere.) Was the cash for Pim's cheque got at the Devon and Cornwall?—I do not know.

12,017. (Mr. Coleridge.) If Captain Pim did cash a cheque that is the one to which it refers?—Yes.

12,018. (Mr. Bere.) On that day?—Yes, on that day.

12,019. (Mr. Coleridge.) That is, the nomination day. You handed that as usual to Mr. Heath?—I did.

12,020. And so it got to Mr. Mum?—Yes.

12,021. What account did Mr. Heath give you at this time of the way things were going on when you handed him that money?—He said, "We shall be beaten." He said again, "There must be some more money had."

12,022. (Mr. Bere.) Are you quite sure that the money from that second 1,000*l.* cheque was paid to you on the day of the nomination?—I think I had the cheque the evening before.

12,023. You had the cheque the evening before?—I think so.

12,024. The evening of the nomination day?—No, the Monday evening. I think the 10th. They are both drawn the same day.

12,025. You gave it to Mr. Kellock on the 11th?—I gave it to him on the 11th, or whether I may have given it to him on the same evening I cannot tell.

12,026. (Mr. Coleridge.) He may have got it cashed that same night after banking hours?—He may have done so for aught that I know. I do not know about that.

12,027. Between the cheque that was given to Mr. Kellock, and which he got cashed at Torquay, and the one you are now speaking of, did any other sum of money pass through your hands besides?—No.

12,028. Quite certain?—Quite certain.

12,029. No other cheque from anybody else but Mr. Smith?—No.

12,030. Then this was cashed and it went to Mr. Mum?—Yes.

12,031. When did you see Mr. Smith again after you got this cheque cashed?—I think about the middle of the day. I must have seen him several times.

12,032. To have conversation?—Yes.

12,033. Up in your own little room?—Yes. I do not know whether in my own room.

12,034. What did you tell him was going on at the nomination?—I think I mentioned that some farmers on the Darlington property had been offered as much as 100*l.* each for a single vote for Pender, which would give him some idea as to the price of a vote, and as to the prosperity of Totnes.

12,035. What did he say to that. Did he say he would not have anything more to do with it?—Well, he was dreadfully disgusted.

12,036. What did he say?—I am sure I cannot recollect the conversation that took place.

12,037. Was he very excited?—Not particularly; he seemed very much annoyed.

12,038. Was he an eager partizan?—He showed his anxiety. He did exhibit it particularly.

12,039. Did he say he must consult Colonel Dawkins before he went any further?—I do not think he did.

12,040. When was the next occasion on which you went to Mr. Smith for money?—That was after the nomination; about 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the nomination day.

12,041. Was that the occasion you are speaking of when you told him this?—Yes.

12,042. What did you ask him for then?—I said I had been informed that it was necessary for more money. I was ashamed to ask him for any more.

12,043. Did he ask you who had informed you?—I think I told him Mr. Heath; all the communications came from Mr. Heath.

12,044. Did you tell him anything about Mr. Mum?—I do not know whether I mentioned Mr. Mum's name at all.

12,045. In all these cases did it never occur to you or Mr. Smith to consider whether Mr. Mum was dealing honestly with your money. Did you have no conversation about it?—I never had a thought myself. I knew that at Dent's election there was a very heavy expenditure; therefore I was not very much surprised that it should be so on this occasion.

12,046. After you got over Mr. Smith's vexation, what did he do to show that he had recovered from his vexation?—He gave me another cheque for 500*l.*

12,047. When did you get that cashed?—I handed that over to Mr. Heath, and I said, "You go and get "this cashed, and you must not come to me again, for "I will not advise Mr. Smith to pay another six-"pence."

12,048. Was that the last attempt you made to get money out of Mr. Smith?—Yes. The next morning, when things were found to be going against us, Mr. Smith offered voluntary some more.

12,049. What did he offer on that occasion?—He would have given a thousand more.

12,050. You thought it was throwing good money after bad?—I knew that we were beaten. I saw certain names that we anticipated would vote for us had voted on the other side, and we saw that the thing was all up.

12,051. So you would not advise him to spend the other 1,000?—I would not advise him to spend the other 1,000*l.*

12,052. That is all you got out of Mr. Smith?—That is all.

12,053. Did you get any from anybody else?—No.

12,054. None from Captain Pim?—No.

12,055. As regards the dealings between you and Mr. Mum, that is all you know on that occasion?—That is all.

12,056. You never saw him yourself?—I never saw him myself.

12,057. You told us that for the first sum of 1,500*l.* you had a memorandum. Did you get a memorandum for money received in other cases?—It was only as to the first. I never had a memorandum after.

12,058. So that you in fact entirely confided in Mr. Heath?—Quite so.

12,059. And what became of the money you did not know?—I thought it better not to inquire.

12,060. That is 4300*l.* altogether. What do you believe was actually expended amongst the electors?—All, with the exception of the amount paid through the election agent. I presume so. I should tell you, that after the election was over, on the following day, Mr. Heath brought me a cheque for 270*l.* odd shillings.

12,061. I want to know something about that. How was it that more was not wanted, and you did not like to ask, and Mr. Heath had that amount to return?—I had no further application after the 500*l.*

12,062. Mr. Heath did not apply?—No; I told him that it was no use to come again.

12,063. I suppose Mr. Heath thought as you did, that it was throwing good money after bad?—Yes; I think he said something about it.

12,064. Can you tell us about money going before the arrival of Mr. Mum?—No; I never heard there was any. I do not think it is at all likely.

12,065. Then you did not know that any money was going on your side except through the agency of Mum and Heath?—No.

12,066. In fact, every sum, as far as you know, went into Mr. Mum's hands through Mr. Heath's, yours, and Mr. Smith's?—Yes.

12,067. And so on through Mr. Mum it was distributed?—Yes.

12,068. (Mr. Bere.) What name would you call Mr. Mum by when you spoke about him to Mr. Smith?—I do not recollect that I ever mentioned his name to Mr. Smith. I have no recollection of it.

12,069. You gave Mr. Smith to understand that there was a person distributing money?—I thought he understood it as a matter of course.

12,070. You imagined that he had sent down a person who had assisted at that time?—Yes, I thought so.

12,071. You did not know who did if he did not?—No.

12,072. (Mr. Longe.) That was the first time that you told Mr. Smith that you wanted a man?—Yes.

12,073. Did you tell anyone else?—No.

12,074. Was there any other means of bringing a man down except through Mr. Smith, as far as you know?—No.

12,075. You never had any communication with anyone on the subject?—No.

12,076. You never said to anyone else that a man was wanted?—Never.

12,077. You did mention it to Mr. Smith before he went to London?—Yes, I am quite sure I said something to him about it, "We must have some stranger "to distribute this money;" but I am bound to say that Mr. Smith has stated since I saw him in London some six weeks ago that he knew nothing about this man, and did not send him down.

12,078. When Mr. Heath came to you to tell you of the arrival of Mr. Mum, you remember the time; I think we have it?—I think it was the Saturday morning.

12,079. What did Mr. Heath say?—I think I have already stated that. He said, "I suppose you are aware that the stranger has arrived," or whether he said that Mr. Mum had arrived I do not know; one or the other.

12,080. How could you or Heath possibly know he was the right man?—I trusted entirely to Mr. Heath for his shrewdness; he was a very intelligent, shrewd man, and not only that, but I thought the man had been sent down by Mr. Smith; therefore I took it for granted that he was the right man, and I did not trouble myself more about the matter.

12,081. You did not ask Mr. Smith any questions to identify the man?—No.

12,082. You took it on trust that he was the man from what he said?—Yes.

12,083. Was it the morning after the stranger arrived? Do you remember what Mr. Heath said as to that?—I do not know when he came down; whether Friday, Thursday, or the evening of Wednesday, I do not know.

12,084. All you were told was that he had arrived?—Yes, just so; there was another came down I think on the Saturday evening.

12,085. Was anyone else on the Conservative side besides you authorized to send any man of the kind?—Not that I know of.

12,086. Do you think it is likely that anyone else could have taken that part upon himself?—Well, there are many in the town who might have done such a thing; they might have taken on themselves such a task as that, but at the same time I do not think it probable.

12,087. You could not explain it, except through the agency of Mr. Smith, that a man was brought down?—No.

12,088. (Mr. Bere.) Give us shortly an account of your conversations with Mr. Smith during the time of the election. What was the nature of them?—I had very little indeed to say to Mr. Smith, except when I went to him for money.

12,089. Did you go to him from time to time to tell him what the state of the poll books was?—I think he asked me now and then how things were going on, whether they were going on satisfactorily.

12,090. You used to receive reports from persons engaged in the affairs of the election, and communicated the result to Mr. Smith?—I did not particularly; in fact he told me that he did not wish me to communicate to him very much about the matter. He left it entirely to me, and did not wish to know more than he could help about it.

Mr. Frederick Smith recalled.

Mr. F. Smith

12,091. (Mr. Bere.) I think you had better read that letter again?—I assure you I cannot throw any more light on it.

12,092. Not strengthened by Mr. Edmonds's evidence?—No.

12,093. Did you go with John Heath to Mr. Bryett's office?—I think not; I have no recollection of it.

12,094. Did you ever hear anything of a voter named Edward Shinner?—No.

12,095. Did not you go with Mr. John Heath to Mr. Bryett's office and call upon him to prepare a contract for the purchase of Edward Shinner's mortgage for 400*l.*—I have no recollection of Mr. Heath going with me, but I called on Mr. Bryett for the purpose of purchasing property for 400*l.*, but the name of the person I do not recollect.

12,096. You did go for the purpose of purchasing property for 400*l.*?—I did.

12,097. Did Mr. Bryett intimate that he could not prepare the conveyance?—No.

12,098. What happened about that?—I never heard anything more about it from that time to this.

12,099. The purchase never has been completed?—I have never heard anything of it from that day.

12,100. (Mr. Longe.) Do you know that Mr Heath denies ever seeing you and the stranger together; the stranger who is recognised by Mr. Heath as being Mr. Mum?—Certainly; I never heard there was such a person till five weeks ago.

12,101. You told us that Mr. Heath introduced you?—To that man that I saw, yes; Mr. Heath told me there was a person waiting to see me. I cannot add anything more to my evidence.

12,102. He told you that a man wanted to see you?—Yes, he did.

12,103. On what business?—I have no doubt he mentioned about the election.

12,104. Do you mean to say that Mr. Heath when he spoke to you merely said that a man wanted to see you?—Quite so.

12,105. A man wanted to see you?—Quite so.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. F. Smith.

4 Sept. 1866.

12,106. And then you went to see him?—Yes.

12,107. What did he tell you?—From his manner and appearance I imagined he came down about the election.

12,108. You were not afraid of speaking to anyone who came down about the election. What led you to suppose the business of this man?—As far as I recollect he said he could be very useful at the election.

12,109. Did you suppose that this stranger when he spoke to you, that he intended or wished to make himself useful in the way of distributing money?—I do not know whether money or not; I know nothing about elections.

12,110. Do not you mean that when he spoke to you you thought he meant to take part in the distributing of money?—I cannot say I did.

12,111. Then why were you so indignant?—Because he was a perfect stranger.

12,112. Surely you went a little more into the matter of what was the business he came on?—I did not.

12,113. You being at the "Seven Stars" as the active man for Col. Dawkins are sent for to speak to a stranger, and you thrust him off by saying you will not speak to him?—I did.

12,114. How do you account for it?—I said on my oath it was so; I never knew who it was sent him down.

12,115. I ask you what you believed as to that man's purpose, what you thought he had come here for?—I presume he meant to be employed for the purpose of the election.

12,116. Then why not give him a hearing?—Because I had nothing to do with it; Mr. Edmonds managed everything.

12,117. Did you turn him off and state that he was not authorized to come?—No.

12,118. Do you mean to say that you knew he was the right man and that you would not have anything to do with him?—I never knew who sent him down.

12,119. Do you mean to say you intended to send that man back to London about his business and have nothing to do with him?—All I said was "I have "nothing to do with this matter."

12,120. Do you mean when you spoke to that man from what he told you he came about, did you give him to understand that he was not authorized to come, and was not wanted and must go?—Certainly; something to that effect.

12,121. And you believe that the man did go?—I have certainly heard that he did leave.

12,122. But how did you identify that man?—I heard from Mr. Heath I suppose, the man who first came to see me.

12,123. When did you speak about him again?—I do not suppose I have ever spoken of him since.

12,124. Then how did you hear he had left?—I suppose in general conversation at the hotel.

12,125. Do you believe that this man whom Mr. Heath introduced you to or showed you to was not the individual that afterwards acted as Mr. Mum; you must have some theory about it?—I never heard that there had been a person of that description at Totnes till five or six weeks ago. I had not the least suspicion of anything of the kind.

12,126. You have heard Mr. Edmonds' evidence?—I have.

12,127. Now did Mr. Edmonds tell you that a man of that kind would be wanted?—I have no recollection of it whatever, not the least.

12,128. Do you mean to say on your oath you deny it?—Certainly.

12,129. That he ever mentioned to you that fact that a man of that kind would be wanted?—Certainly; I have not the least recollection of it; in fact election business is not in my way at all.

(Mr. Bere.) So much the more reason why you should remember it, Mr. Smith.

12,130. (Mr. Longe.) Do you swear that when you went back to London you took no step whatever to mention it to Mr. Guscotte or anybody else that a man of that kind would be wanted?—Certainly; I have not the least recollection.

12,131. Will you swear it?—I will swear I have no recollection of anything of the kind.

12,132. But you must remember whether you said anything of the kind?—I cannot recollect anything.

12,133. Do you mean to say now; you say until you came here you had never taken any part in an election before, that you do not remember whether or not you desired to have Mr. Mum, or a professional man down here to bribe?—Certainly; I told you before that I had no recollection of anyone being here of the kind, or who sent him down, till six weeks ago.

12,134. You do not remember whether you took any step in it or not?—Certainly.

12,135. You swear that you did not?—I swear that I did not.

12,136. (Mr. Bere.) We may take these facts as admitted, that Mr. Edmonds suggested to you the employment of a person from London; that you yourself after that suggestion went up to London; and that a person after you came back from London came down here from London?—It looks extremely suspicious, but it had nothing at all to do with it.

12,137. And coupling those facts with that letter which was written, have you any doubt, though you cannot remember, that you did speak to Mr. Guscotte on the matter, and that Mr. Guscotte found a person to come down?—I cannot say; Mr. Guscotte can explain that.

12,138. You cannot remember, and perhaps there may be reasons why?—I have no recollection.

12,139. Have you any doubt that you did speak to Mr. Guscotte about a man, and that Mr. Guscotte was the person who sent him down?—I have no recollection whatever, but Mr. Guscotte will explain that.

12,140. (Mr. Longe.) You have already said that you took no part in the business of the election; will you swear that you did not speak to Mr. Guscotte on the subject?—I have no recollection of it whatever; if I had done so I think I should recollect it.

12,141. But it is quite possible after all that you did speak to Mr. Guscotte, and that it was through you and Mr. Guscotte that that man came down?—I think not, I had not any suspicion of anyone being here of that kind.

12,142. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you first hear that one of your clerks was assisting in this monetary business?—I am not aware that my clerks did anything except come down here.

12,143. Did you tell one of your clerks to deliver some money to Mr. Edmonds?—Yes, I did.

12,144. Then the reason for having your clerks here was not merely for the sake of the pleasant association of having them around you, but for some service?—I was a perfect novice in election matters, I thought they would be useful.

12,145. Then you meant to be useful yourself?—No, I took no part whatever.

12,146. Do you mean really to say that you did not consider they would make themselves useful in distributing this money?—Certainly not.

12,147. Do you suppose you were injuring Col. Dawkins in doing it?—No.

12,148. What did you suppose you were doing when you distributed this money. Did you suppose it was for Colonel Dawkins' benefit or his injury?—For his benefit.

12,149. Then you did think you were making yourself useful to Colonel Dawkins when you distributed this money?—Yes.

12,150. And you did think your clerks were making themselves useful in helping you?—We did not distribute any, it all passed through Mr. Edmonds' hands.

12,151. It eventually got to the right hands, you believe that?—I do not know.

12,152. But you believe it did?—It is my impression.

12,153. Would you have given that money if you did not believe it would?—I left everything to Mr. Edmonds.

12,154. Do you mean that you would have given one of those cheques but for the purpose of securing Colonel Dawkins' election?—Certainly I should not.

12,155. And you knew that the way in which it was to secure his election was by buying votes?—I cannot say for buying votes, election expenses.

12,156. You know those that have passed through an election agent, the whole amount was but 300*l.* odd; and do you mean that you did not know perfectly well that the way in which that expenditure would be useful to Colonel Dawkins was eventually to buy votes?—The money remitted from town was given just in the same way as I did the cheques to Mr. Edmonds.

12,157. Should you have remitted it just in the same way if you did not know that it was going to be used for the purposes of Colonel Dawkins' election?—Certainly not.

12,158. Would you have remitted that if you did not know that it was to be spent in the purchase of votes for Colonel Dawkins?—I presumed the money was spent in that way.

12,159. And if you had not assumed that you would never have sent the money down or given it?—Certainly.

12,160. Now as you admit you were useful to Colonel Dawkins in being the go-between and buying votes, were not your clerks useful to you in assisting you to do the same thing?—I think not, excepting to see Mr. Edmonds.

12,161. If you were useful in handing money to Mr. Edmonds, was not your clerk useful in handing money to Mr. Edmonds also?—No doubt.

12,162. Then your clerk was down here assisting you about the election?—In that respect he was.

12,163. Then why could not you have said so before?—I did not understand the question.

12,164. (Mr. Bere.) When you saw that man in the room at the "Seven Stars" did not you perfectly well know why he had come, and was not it really from motives of prudence that you refused to have anything to do with him?—I was not aware of anyone of the kind coming, and when he said what he wanted I said I would not have anything to do with him.

12,165. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you first know that he had come?—About half past 10 in the morning.

12,166. Who told you that he had come?—Mr. Heath.

12,167. (Mr. Bere.) I want a direct answer to my question. Was not it from motives of prudence that you dismissed that man and would have nothing to do with him?—Certainly not.

12,169. What was the reason?—He was an entire stranger to me, and I did not know how these elections were conducted. I have stated everything I know about the matter; I have nothing to conceal.

12,169. (Mr. Coleridge.) In spite of the letter of Mr. Guscotte in which he refers to a conversation with you, you have no notion that you considered a stranger was necessary to part in a Totnes election?—I do not know that I did.

12,170. But did you?—I knew nothing at all about elections. Mr. Guscotte will explain.

12,171. You came down here with the Judas money bags, and you must have had a certain knowledge what those money bags were going to be done with; now, coupled with that letter which has been read, did not you perfectly well know that it was necessary to have some stranger to distribute that?—I think not.

12,172. If necessary, why could not you and your clerks distribute this?—Because we employed an agent here who understood election business.

12,173. Did he employ one of your clerks?—Never.

12,174. Should you have been surprised if he had?—Yes, I should have been surprised.

12,175. Should you have been annoyed if he had?—Certainly.

12,176. Then in fact your objection is not to the distribution of money, but to its being done through your clerks?—Yes.

12,177. It is a personal matter as regards your clerks, and not as to the immorality of distributing the money?—I treated Mr. Edmonds as agent and passed all the money to him.

12,178. Did you imagine that he dealt with the money himself?—I had not the least idea; I made no inquiry.

12,179. You had not the slightest notion that some stranger might be wanted down?—Certainly.

12,180. What had you said to Mr. Spofforth about the election before you came down?—I think I only saw him once.

12,181. Did you hear him say it would be necessary for you to have a man?—Never; I was only with him a few minutes.

12,182. And in your experience you did not know that a stranger would be wanted to distribute the money?—Yes.

12,183. You have read about the election committees, and from that you would know it was usual to have a stranger?—I did not.

12,184. Did you never know about the man at Wakefield?—I never heard of the man.

12,185. You never had the curiosity when the Wakefield, the Gloucester, and the Berwick committees were going on to go into the committe room or read about them?—I took no interest whatever.

12,186. You came down perfectly innocent?—I know now.

12,187. You know now exactly; but you were consulted as the most innocent person to do the money matters, is that what you wish us to understand, because you knew so little?—I would not undertake an election, it is not my province; I employed whom I thought the best person down here.

12,188. You were considered the proper person because you knew so little?—I came down as Colonel Dawkins' friend, and having his account in my hands I could advance what was wanted.

12,189. But being his solicitor you advanced it from your private resources?—I had a balance in my hands.

12,190. According to his account given in to us it appears that you had a sum of between 400*l.* and 500*l.* at that time?—I cannot tell without the books.

12,191. Did you advance that from your own private account or the account of the firm?—The firm's account.

12,192. Then acting as Smith and Guscotte the solicitors, and not as Mr. Smith, you advanced this money out of your firm?—Yes.

12,193. And after that you say you were acting merely as his friend?—Quite so.

12,194. (Mr. Bere.) I hope, Mr. Smith, that a conversation with Mr. Guscotte will refresh your memory.

(The Witness.) Allow me say that I have nothing at all to do with accounts in London.

(Mr. Bere.) But perhaps a conversation with Mr. Guscotte on the subject of this letter will refresh your memory with regard to the facts, and I hope when next we meet to find you are clear about these matters. We shall want Mr. Guscotte and your clerks on Thursday.

Wm. Daniel Narramore recalled.

12,195. (Mr. Bere.) Was there any negotiation between Mr. Hare and Mr. Bryett with respect to Mr. Hare becoming a partner?—Mr. Hare was with Mr. Bryett about 12 months before the partnership commenced.

12,196. Was he an articled clerk of Mr. Bryett's?—No.

12,197. But he was with Mr. Bryett?—Yes.

12,198. Was he managing clerk?—No, nothing of that kind. I think it was after he had served his

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. W. D. Narramore.

4 Sept. 1866.

articles at Plymouth; he was home with his father for some time, and then through Mr. Bryett being friendly with the Rev. Mr. Hare and the Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Diptford, he came to read up again and to do Mr. Bryett's conveyancing work.

12,199. Was he being employed in Mr. Bryett's office at the time of the election?—Yes.

12,200. Do you know that he received a retainer from Captain Pim?—Yes.

12,201. Was he actively engaged on the Conservative side of the election?—He was.

12,202. You say you began by being interested in the affairs of the council; when did you first begin to take an interest in those affairs?—I think at the first contested election after 1857, the same year. I forget the year there was a contested election.

12,203. Was it 1859?—I think so.

12,204. And were you employed on the Conservative side at that election?—Nothing more than a Conservative who was trying to get votes.

12,205. And you did try, and did you find you had to offer inducements?—Yes.

12,206. What did you find the price was in 1859 for the council?—Some you could get for 5*s.*, others not for 2*l.*

12,207. That was about the price?—Yes.

12,208. Did you find that the price had increased in 1863, and that some could not be got for 5*l.* then?—Yes; I think I met with instances where they wanted 6*l.*

12,209. Did you yourself know of any person who asked such a quantity of money?—I have known voters who required between 2*l.* and 3*l.*

12,210. Were any of the persons who wanted money at a municipal election voters in the parliamentary list?—Some of them.

12,211. Any number?—No, I think not.

12,212. Can you mention any men who wanted bribes for the municipal election who were voters for members of Parliament?—I could only mention those I have already heard given in evidence.

12,213. If they have already been given you may mention them again, because we have never heard of anybody who was bribed at a municipal election who was also a voter at a parliamentary election?—Charles Pitts.

12,214. Was he a voter at a municipal election?—Yes.

12,215. And did he want any inducement to vote?—Nothing more than I have heard in this court from other witnesses.

12,216. You were employed in the election of 1865 by the Conservatives?—Not employed.

12,217. Did you take an interest in it and do it without being employed?—Yes.

12,218. And did you canvass the interest of certain voters? Who were the persons to whom you applied your inducement?—A person of the name of Dennis.

12,219. Was that Thomas Dennis?—Yes.

12,220. Did you go to him?—Yes; I met him on the bridge. I saw him coming along by the "Seymour" hotel, and went over to him and asked him whom he was going to vote for, and he said he had not made up his mind; so I found that he was waiting, like almost all the Totnes people do, for money before they vote. I offered him a sum of money, and at last it ended in my paying him 100*l.*

12,221. How did you give it to him?—In 5*l.* notes.

12,222. From whom did you get that?—Mr. John Heath.

12,223. Had you been down to Mr. John Heath and asked him for it, or had he given you a sum of money?—I mentioned John Heath that a voter was to be had for a sum of money.

12,224. That Mr. Dennis was to be had?—Yes.

12,225. Where did you mention it?—Near the bar of the "Seven Stars" hotel.

12,226. And after you mentioned it did he go upstairs?—He went upstairs and brought it down to me.

12,227. In bank notes?—Yes.

12,228. Bank of England notes?—Bank of England notes.

12,229. And you paid it over to Dennis?—Yes.

12,230. Did you take his I.O.U.?—Yes.

12,231. Have you got it?—Yes. (The witness produced it.)

12,232. Was that signed in your presence?—Yes.

12,233. At his house?—No; at the "Oxford Arms," in Fore Street.

12,234. Who keeps that?—Mr. Goodman.

12,235. Did Dennis tell you that the other side had been trying to get him?—He told me that Mr. Chaster had been to him.

12,236. Had Chaster offered him any money?—He did not tell me directly that Mr. Chaster had offered him money, but that he had been to him, and he led me to suppose so. In fact I tried him first of all at a lower sum, but he would not hear of it.

12,237. What did you offer him?—I offered him 40*l.*

12,238. What did he say?—No, he said, they offered 60*l.* on the other side.

12,239. How long was that before the election?—I think the first interview I had with him was on the Sunday previous to the election.

12,240. When did you pay him the 100*l.*?—On the nomination day, the 11th July; I think it was the nomination day.

12,241. When did he vote?—He promised me that he would go to the poll the first thing in the morning, and he did not poll till something like half-past 3.

12,242. Were you one of the poll clerks?—Not at that election.

12,243. Then why did not you go down to him yourself?—I went to his house twice.

12,244. Where was he; out?—The first time I went he was abed.

12,245. What time?—About half-past 8.

12,246. Did you request him to get up and come to the poll?—I saw Mrs. Dennis, and she said he would come down after he had had his breakfast.

12,247. When did you go to him again?—I went again about 11 o'clock, and his wife said that he was gone out.

12,248. Did you ever hear anything more of him?—No.

12,249. Do you know whether the Liberals had been trying to get at him during the election?—I cannot tell. I should think not. It was generally known then that the election was all over; I myself had known it some time before.

12,250. He did not vote until half-past 3 o'clock?—No.

12,251. Did you know George Penny?—Yes, I knew him.

12,252. Did you offer him some money?—Yes. I offered him 350*l.*

12,253. About what time was that?—I think on the morning of the election or on the nomination day.

12,254. Was it after 9 o'clock?—About 9 o'clock on the day of the poll.

12,255. Who had authorized you to offer him 350*l.*?—I was authorized to do so by Captain Pim.

12,256. Where had you seen Captain Pim so as that he could have authorized you to do this?—I had been up the whole of the night with him.

12,257. Where was that?—At the "Seven Stars" hotel; he had a private room to himself there.

12,258. What was the number of the room in which you saw him at the "Seven Stars?"—I think it was No. 7.

12,259. Was Colonel Dawkins present at the time you are speaking of?—He was not present.

12,260. What time in the morning was it when Captain Pim, as you say, gave you these instructions?—Between half-past 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning.

12,261. Did he mention any voters to you at that time, or did you to him?—We went through the poll book together and suggested a number of names.

12,262. Will you mention any of them?—I offered George Cole 500*l.* for a pig.

.263. How was it that you did not get the pig? seemed rather astonished when I first made him ffer. You should understand that I began at a lower figure than that, and at last got up to

,264. I suppose he thought that it was all chaff on part?—He promised me that he would meet me e "Stars" field; he had to go to Newton mar- and I believe a telegram had been sent there that ing stating that it was all up with the election on ide, and I suppose Cole must have heard of that, e came back earlier than I expected him.

,265. I suppose that you never meant to give him money?—Never.

,266. Did the same thing take place with regard oggett?—I had previously offered him 200*l.*; and ould have had it.

,267. In reality should you have given any of men these large sums?—I certainly should have Sloggett the 200*l.*

.268. Should you have given Penny the 350*l.*? ptain Pim told me that if I could get him up on For I might keep the 150*l.* and give him 200*l.*

,269. Did you think there was any chance of ng the 150*l.*?—No.

.270. What was Sloggett that you offered him large sum? Was he a valuable person or not?— vas a member of what has been called the Slippery pany.

,271. Why was his vote worth so much more than ne else? Had he any influence over the mem- of the company?—The elections in Totnes as a have generally depended upon such men as these.

,272. But we have heard that the common price not more than 40*l.* or 50*l.*; why should this man gett have been worth four times as much as any non man?—He was looked upon as a doubtful r; the Liberals had put him down as a matter-of- se man.

,273. Then do you think that he had received so h as a douceur from their side?—There can be no t of that.

,274. Where did you offer him this 200*l.*?—Out- the "Seven Stars." He promised to meet me on day of the nomination.

2,275. About what time was this?—Between 6 7 in the evening. He promised to meet me that ing at 9 o'clock at the "Seven Stars."

2,276. Did he come to the "Seven Stars?"—No; went to the "Seymour" hotel, and I think he ained there.

2,277. Did you ever hear from Sloggett what he got from the Liberals for his vote?—No.

2,278. John Elford; what did you try to do with ?—I think I offered him 200*l.* or 300*l.*

2,279. Was that on the morning of the election?—

2,280. And was that done at the suggestion of tain Pim?—Yes.

2,281. Did you at the suggestion of Captain Pim r these various sums to these persons in the way of ke?—We went through the poll book together; we heard that the election was lost.

2,282. Did you make up the poll book at half-past 'clock in the morning?—The poll was made up ween 12 and 1 o'clock. I think Mr. Edmonds had that he knew the election was gone, and that he told Captain Pim so; and Captain Pim's object elling me and Willis to offer these large sums was make the Liberals pay dearer for their votes.

2,283. Then supposing that one of these gentlemen said yes, what would you have done?—We made our mind if we could have got them down to the Seven Stars," we would have put them into one of cellars there and kept them.

12,284. Was that a suggestion of Captain Pim's? That was a suggestion of the whole of us, I believe.

12,285. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had Mr. Heath handed the key of the cellar for that purpose?—I think should have been able to have got the key.

12,286. Should you say that was where the "all nations" was kept?—Yes.

12,287. (Mr. Bere.) William Cole; does the same story apply to him?—We drove to his yard, but we were afraid to go in on account of the sheep dog.

12,288. You did not think you would be able to bribe him?—Then we went to Shinner's and asked him to try and make some arrangement.

12,289. He knew the sheep dog, I suppose; perhaps he would not allow you to come inside the gate?—No, he would not.

12,290. Is that all that you know about the election of 1865?—Yes.

12,291. You were examined before the Committee of the House of Commons?—Yes.

12,292. (Mr. Longe.) Before the election of 1865 how soon were the Liberal party active in the matter?—It was a general election that was expected, and both parties were on the move for a long time previous to the election.

12,293. And there was an expectation of your having candidates down on your side?—Yes; it was the general topic throughout the town. More than one half of the voters were praying for an election.

12,294. (Mr. Bere.) Did you on one occasion see a poll book of Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore's?—Yes.

12,295. And did you see any entries in that poll book?—I saw several entries.

12,296. Was there an entry against the name of Mr. Harris?—There was.

12,297. Can you tell us what it was?—"To be had "for a situation."

12,298. Do you remember whether the word "situation" was written at full length or not, or whether it was abbreviated?—I think it was "sit.," an abbreviation.

12,299. What other names did you see there?—The names of the two Matchums were braced together, "to be had for 200*l.*"

12,300. Do you remember any others?—Joseph Hannaford, "to be had for 100*l.*"

12,301. Were there any other names that you remember?—I gave the whole of the information which I had received next morning to Captain Veitch, and he put all these memoranda against the different voters in his own poll book which he had made up on behalf of Captain Pim.

12,302. Then you saw opposite a great many names certain figures?—Yes.

12,303. Do you remember what they were; how they varied; from what to what. Was there anything higher than 200*l.*?—No, I think not.

12,304. Or anything lower than 50*l.*?—I cannot say exactly about the figures. I remember such words as these, "Leave this man to so and so."

12,305. There were figures opposite to many of the voters' names?—There were some.

12,306. Do you know Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore's handwriting?—Very well, indeed.

12,307. Were the words "to be had for a situation" in his handwriting?—They were.

12,308. And where the figures in his handwriting?—The whole of the marginal notes were in his own handwriting. As to the poll book, I do not know in whose handwriting that was. I should know it if I were to see it again.

12,309. Do you know what has become of that poll book?—I do not.

12,310. Mr. Michelmore says it has been stolen. I suppose you do not know whether it ever fell into the Conservative hands?—Not that I am aware of.

12,311. What was the day on which you got the poll book?—On the Sunday night previous to the election.

12,312. Mr. Michelmore, as we understand, came into the "Seven Stars?"—Yes, he came into the "Seven Stars," and sat between me and Mr. John Heath.

12,313. Where was he sitting?—In the smoking room.

12,314. Was he smoking himself?—No.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. W. D. Narramore.

4 Sept. 1866.

12,315. Was he taking a glass of brandy and water?—I think it was gin and water that he was taking.

12,316. (Mr. Longe.) When did you first speak to Mr. Michelmore as to whether there would be a sub?—About a month previous to the election.

12,317. What did you mean by asking if there would be a sub?—We were talking of the election, and I said to Mr. Michelmore, "Is there any chance "of a sub?"

12,318. Why did you say that to him?—I cannot give any reason for it.

12,319. How should he know anything about that; he was a Liberal?—We were upon friendly terms. I made use of the expression, but I do not know that I had any motive for doing so.

12,320. Did you say anything about what you were going to do?—I expected if there was a contest that there would be plenty of money spent. I did not know anything about it at the time.

12,321. Neither did Mr. Michelmore, I suppose?—He did not.

12,322. (Mr. Coleridge.) You are not old enough to recollect any contest at Totnes without some money being spent?—At the whole of the elections which I do recollect there has been plenty of money spent. Being connected with the county court we find a difference in our summonses and bankruptcy matters.

12,323. (Mr. Longe.) You met him again and had some more conversation with him at the "Castle" inn?—Yes; that was the day of the tea meeting, when the foundation stone was laid of a school which is being erected by Mr. Pender.

12,324. What took place on that occasion?—We had a general conversation about the election. I said to Mr. Michelmore, "It is no joke now."

12,325. You told him your candidate was there?—Yes; that was Mr. Kennard.

12,326. At that time were the other party canvassing at all?—No, there was no one canvassing.

12,327. That was the time when you made a bet of ten shillings, was it not?—Yes.

12,328. On the 9th July, that would be on the Sunday?—Yes.

12,329. Did you meet him on that day?—He came into the smoking room at the "Seven Stars" hotel.

12,330. What took place on that occasion?—I did not see the poll book in the "Seven Stars" hotel myself. I had it to myself over at the "Seymour" hotel.

12,331. Was that after he had been to the "Seven Stars?"—Yes, after he had been to the "Seven Stars."

12,332. He came there on the evening of the 9th?—Yes. Mr. Michelmore's object in going into the "Seven Stars" hotel was to know whether the Conservative party intended to employ a lot of non-electors to watch the voters at night. There were a lot of municipal voters waiting to be hired so as to be employed at night. It is a privilege which they look for, to be employed to watch the voters at night. They look to be engaged in that way. If they are not so employed, when a municipal contest takes place they get annoyed and are up to all sorts of things. There was a large party of these men waiting to be hired. Mr. Michelmore's object in coming to the "Seven Stars" hotel was to know whether the Conservative party intended to hire a lot of these men, because if so they would have to do so on the other side.

12,333. About what time was this?—I should think it was between 9 and 10 on the Sunday evening.

12,334. Did he ask you to come out with him?—He first of all asked me to go with him to Mr. Owen's to have a tooth taken out. I refused to go, and then he went with Mr. Niner. When he came back he said he had had his tooth taken out. The parties who were in the room did not like his coming there, and thought he had come there merely as a spy. When we left the room we went outside the "Seven Stars," and he asked me to go to the "Seymour" hotel with him. I refused to go at first, but at length I did so, and on our way he said, "You will vote "us, Narramore." I said, "No." He said, "N "sense, you will," and he then offered me 100*l.*

12,335. Had he ever spoken to you before ab any particular sum?—Yes; about a month previo to the election I asked him if there was any chan a sub, and he said "If 50*l.* would be of any use to "I can get that sum for you." That I refused, and then offered me 100*l.*, and after that he offered 200*l.*, which I also refused. Then he said, "Woul "situation be of any use to you?" I asked him w sort of a situation. He said, "Would you like to "into a shop?" I think, as I stated before the Co mittee, he mentioned the names of some large drap in Manchester, and then he asked me if I would and see Mr. Pender. I refused. Then after so time he said, "Never mind, we will go in." We th entered the house and went into a sitting room ourselves.

12,336. You did not see Mr. Pender that night? I told Mr. Michelmore if he introduced me to Pender that I would not go into the hotel.

12,337. What took place after that?—We stayed that room together for some time, and I had a gl of grog, and he ordered some very extravagant ciga some eightpenny cigars, and we did things in respectable way.

12,338. What did you do after smoking your ciga —I did not smoke mine; I put it in my pocket.

12,339. What did you do then?—Mr. Michelm took out his poll book and said, "It is all nonsen "you will vote for us. I will show you what is "probable chance of Colonel Dawkins and Capt "Pim." Then we had some general talk about election. First of all I refused to see his poll boo because I thought that it would be unfair in me look at it, but he insisted on my reading over different names.

12,340. You have told all that you know ab that?—Yes; I have from my recollection. Capt Veitch will be able, no doubt, to tell you some of names which I have really forgotten, but those nam which I have given you are impressed on my memo There were others as to whom I gave information at the election was over, which information has sin turned out to be true.

12,341. You then left Mr. Michelmore and we back to the "Seven Stars?"—Me and Mr. Michelm were going down the steps when young Mr. Winde called Mr. Michelmore back, and after thanking said that he would see Mr. Michelmore home. I thoug as we had both to go towards the top of the town our homes that we might go over the bridge togeth

12,342. You went back again yourself to the "Sev Stars?"—Yes; and under the porch of the "Sev Stars" I saw Mr. Francis Kellock, and told him wh had taken place.

12,343. Upon the next day did you again see M Michelmore?—I saw him again the next morni about 10 o'clock; at that time he was canvassi with Mr. Pender.

12,344. Was there anyone else with him?—I thi the late Mr. Windeatt was with him.

12,345. Where was it that you saw him?—I thi that it was in Mr. Morgan's shop. Mr. Michelm did not go in, but Mr. Pender and Mr. Windeatt we into Mr. Morgan's shop. In the printed evidence is put as "Willis," but it was in Mr. Morgan's shop

12,346. Did Mr. Michelmore then again speak you?—He spoke to me, and asked me if I had co sidered the matter, and wanted to introduce me Mr. Pender. I told him that if he did he would ha a worse chance of getting me to the poll. I kn that he would never have my vote.

12,347. Had you told anything about this matter the other side?—Yes.

12,348. After the election did you again see M Michelmore?—Yes; on the Saturday after election.

12,349. Where was it that you saw him?—I s him outside our office in Fore Street.

2,350. Was it in a shop, or where was it that you him?—No; in the street.

2,351. Who were present at that time?—Some or five of us were present.

2,352. What did he say?—He had been talking it the blacklegs on both sides of the question.

2,353. Who were those whom you termed the acklegs?"—Those were men like old Matcham, persons of that class, who on the day of the ination stood beside Captain Pim and our party he hustings when we had the rotten eggs and r things thrown at us, and pretended to be our orters, but who the next morning went and d against us.

2,354. Are there any other names of that class h you can give us?—Yes; if you were to go the individual cases I might perhaps find a lred, or more.

2,355. Then will you give us some more names? o you mean of the different voters?

2,356. Yes; of those men whom you say took ey from the one side and afterwards voted on ther?—I did not intend to say that there would hundred of that sort.

2,357. How many do you think there would be of sort?—Well, there was Byne.

2,358. And Griffis?—No; that was wrong h was said about Griffis.

2,359. And Diggins, was he another of those? es.

2,360. Diggins was the man who had the money, as we understood afterwards sent it back?—He to have received a large sum of money for voting Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim. I went over Screach's, at Bridgetown, to know what time ins was coming to the poll. We had to go to back premises, from whence we could see the es who were coming down the Exeter Road. ach had arranged with Diggins for so much y, and instead of coming down Fore Street I Screach must have gone the other way, for he met Diggins he told him that the election over, and that he could not part with the money; iggins did not get anything.

2,361. We understood from Screech that he did he money, and that he handed it back again?—might have been in the 1863 election. I mean Screach, not young Screach.

2,362. (Mr. Longe.) You were speaking of the when you saw Mr. Michelmore again?—Yes; I then reminded him of his having once offered bribe. We did not then consider ourselves n, because, if I remember correctly, I had heard el Dawkins say that he should petition.

2,363. Was that the time when he made the statement that you were a damned fool for not taking it?—I reminded him, of his once having offered me a , and he said, "Yes, you were a damned fool that did not accept it."

2,364. (Mr. Bere.) When you were at the Seymour Arms" with Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore, did you go into a private room?—I did.

2,365. Did you pass near to the large room?—No, I did not.

2,366. Did you hear any noise going on there as number of people were present in that room?—I on that night.

2,367. Had you been in the "Seymour Arms" e that night, either on the Saturday or the ay, when you could have noticed the large room? o.

2,368. Had you not observed people going in and of that room; that there were lights in the lows, and persons in and out of that room constantly?—You could not see the large room.

2,369. But you can see the windows of the large from the bridge?—True; I did not take any [illegible].

2,370. You told Mr. Kellock about what had been to you. Used you from time to time make reports to Mr. Kellock?—To Mr. Kellock, Mr. Edmonds, and all the rest of them.

12,371. Whomever you saw first you spoke to about it?—Yes.

12,372. What other voters can you say that you told them about?—I do not know of any others in particular. As regards those who we thought doubtful voters, they were taken care of, supplied with meat and drink, and we put some of them to bed.

12,373. Do you remember the Saturday night before the election?—Yes.

12,374. Were you at the "Seven Stars" that night?—I was.

12,375. Did you see a large number of voters standing about in the neighbourhood of the door?—I think there was a grog meeting on that night.

12,376. Did you yourself attend that grog meeting?—I did.

12,377. Was it a pleasant agreeable sort of meeting?—It was a free and easy sort of thing; the people had tickets given to them to pay for their grog.

12,378. Where did they get the tickets from, do you know?—I think from the waiters at the "Stars," Mr. John Heath, and others.

12,379. From Brown and Clarke, and the other persons who were there?—I think Brown gave me my ticket.

12,380. For how many grogs did you have a ticket?—I think I could have had as many as I liked.

12,381. What did the tickets usually carry?—I should suppose it would have been worth sixpence; but I do not think there was any limit given.

12,382. The ticket was a free admission, and then they had as much grog as they liked?—I think first of all each voter had two tickets given to him; there were a lot of voters there with their friends who were non-electors.

12,383. Did you ever see Mr. Mum there?—I do not know anything of Mr. Mum.

12,384. Did you see a gentleman standing in the lobby at the bottom of the stairs?—No.

12,385. And did you see Mr. John Heath walking about between that gentleman and a number of voters who were there?—I saw Mr. John Heath about there repeatedly.

12,386. Did you see Mr. John Heath give any money to any one of them; or did you see anything pass from the hands of Mr. John Heath to the hands of any voter?—No.

12,387. Anything in the shape of a bag?—No.

12,388. You did not see him hand money or a bag to any one of the voters who were there?—No.

12,389. Did you ever go into room Number 13 at the "Stars?"—I do not know where that room is.

12,390. Where the mysterious stranger is said to have been?—No.

12,391. From whom did you ever receive any money?—I never received any, only in that one particular instance.

12,392. Was that the only voter whom you successfully bribed?—That was the only one during that election.

12,393. Had you anything to do with taking the men away from the town in 1865?—No.

12,394. Do you know anything about Griffis. You were going to tell us something about him?—I was sent to him to try and make some arrangement with him.

12,395. Why did they select you to try and make any arrangement with him?—I do not know; but I was sent to him to know about his voting.

12,396. Had you, or where you supposed to have, any particular influence over him; or how was it you were chosen to go to him?—I do not know that I had.

12,397. Had he been a client of Mr. Bryett's?—He has passed through the Bankruptcy Court, and I think we made up his schedule for him. I have known him ever since he has been in Totnes.

12,398. How long before the election was it that

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. W. D. Narramore.

4 Sept. 1866.

he passed through the Court?—I think it was about two years previous to the election.

12,399. Is he in business now, do you know?—Yes; he was turned out for voting against the Liberals by the Duke of Somerset; they put in a distress, and I think Mr. Bryett paid the rent for him.

12,400. When was that done?—I think it was some time previous to Mr. Dent's election.

12,401. Was it between 1862 and 1863?—I think so.

12,402. Do you think the distress was put in for the rent which would have been due at Christmas 1862?—That I really cannot tell you.

12,403. Do you know what was the amount of the rent?—I think it was some 30*l.* odd, which Mr. Bryett paid for him.

12,404. And who repaid that to Mr. Bryett, can you tell us?—It has never been repaid.

12,405. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know anything of Mr. Michelmore having offered Griffis as much as 50*l.*?—I do not know anything at all about that. I have asked him about his having had money from the Liberal side. I do not think he denies having had money from the Conservative side; but I do not believe that he had money from both sides.

12,406. (Mr. Bere.) Since the election, in conversations which you may have had with different people, have you heard them say what money they have received for voting?—No; as a rule they do not split upon those matters.

12,407. But have you heard since the election any persons say that they had received money for their votes?—No, I have not. I have since the Commission has been sitting.

12,408. Who have you heard make any such statements since the Commission. Give us their names?—I have heard Joseph Hannaford and others say so, who would be obliged to admit it.

12,409. Putting aside those, have you heard any others say anything of that sort who you think would not be obliged to admit it?—No.

12,410. Do you remember anything about the transaction regarding Edward Shinner in Mr. Bryett's office?—Yes.

12,411. Did Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore instruct Mr. Bryett to prepare a contract for the purchase of Shinner's house?—I have been informed that he did.

12,412. You were not the conveyancing clerk in the office of Mr. Bryett at that time?—No.

12,413. It was a Mr. Hare who was the conveyancing clerk at that time?—Yes.

12,414. But there was no contract prepared by him?—No; Mr. Bryett told me that Mr. Charles Frederick Michelmore had asked him to draw up a contract.

12,415. For what sum; do you know?—For 400*l.*

12,416. Did you hear from Mr. Bryett whether he had communicated that to Mr. Smith?—No; on the Saturday before the election Edward Shinner and his brother from Torquay and Mr. John Heath and Mr. Smith called on Mr. Bryett between 3 and 4 o'clock, and asked if Mr. Bryett would prepare a contract for them for 400*l.* Mr. Bryett, having previously been instructed by Mr. Michelmore to prepare the contract, would not have had anything to do with it. Mr. Bryett had left his office before that.

12,417. Is that all that you know about it?—I have heard that 400*l.* was paid. I think that Mr. Shinner was nicely served in that transaction.

12,418. But Mr. Shinner got his 400*l.*?—Perhaps he would have had more for his vote.

12,419. Have you told us all that you know about the election of 1865?—Yes, I think I have; I do not remember anything more.

12,420. Do you know anything about the election of 1863?—I believe very little.

12,421. What do you know about the election of 1863?—I recollect being sent to Torquay by Mr. Edmonds to try and see a man of the name of James Fosbrooke.

12,422. Why were you sent to him? Was he a relation of yours?—No, he was not any relation; had been very friendly.

12,423. What was this man?—He had lived London for some years, and, as I understood, h accumulated some money. He came down here a purchased some property, which he afterwards turn into an hotel, called the "Dart" hotel.

12,424. Then had you been in the habit of f quenting that hotel?—Yes, I had.

12,425. And you knew him in consequence?—Ye he had been a client of Mr. Bryett's.

12,426. And you had made his acquaintance?—Yes.

12,427. You say that he had left Totnes and go to live at Torquay?—Yes, he had gone to Torquay

12,428. And it was considered that you would the best person to go there and see him?—Yes.

12,429. Did Mr. Edmonds tell you what you w to say to him?—He told me that I was to go to hi and to make the best bargain that I could with hi

12,430. And will you be good enough to tell what arrangement you did make with him?—T arrangement that I made with him was, that he w to have 50*l.*

12,431. Was that 50*l.* given to you?—No; I t him that if he would come over to Totnes the nig before the polling day, and sleep at the "Seven Star hotel, that he would receive his money.

12,432. And did he come over to Totnes?—He d

12,433. And do you know whether he got t money which you had promised to him?—I belie that Mr. George Heath paid him.

12,434. He had voted all right for their party?—Yes.

12,435. When you came back from Torquay d you report to anyone that you had been sucsess with him?—I did; but I think not on the sa night.

12,436. Did you receive any money during election in 1863 yourself?—I was not a voter then 12,437. I mean did you receive any money your services?—I am sorry to say that I have b out of pocket by politics.

12,438. But you have exercised your influence the good of the cause in getting the votes of othe —Yes, and in paying his rates to get Mr. Ha returned for the Burial Board.

12,439. Do you know anything about Dent Pender in 1862?—No; I recollect the occasion w Dent would not go to the contest, seeing the wo with baskets at the "Seven Stars" ready to take money.

12,440. Was that the day of the election?—night previous to the polling.

12,441. Is that when Mr. Kellock had gone to "Seymour Arms" to see Mr. Cuming?—I do know whether he went to the "Seymour Arms," I recollect an occasion when there was a talk ab it, and it was said if Mr. Dent did not oppose Pender then, when Lord Gifford died, at the n election he was to come in, but Mr. Cuming w not hear of it.

12,442. If he did not oppose Mr. Pender he wa be returned when Lord Gifford died?—Yes.

12,443. But Mr. Cuming refused that?—Yes.

12,444. There was a great deal of expectation disappointment?—Yes; fairly disappointed.

12,445. (Mr. Longe.) What number of women w there down at the "Seven Stars"?—I should t five or six. The voters were lying about in all di tions waiting for money.

12,446. (Mr. Bere.) Only five or six women Yes.

12,447. The noise chiefly proceeded from five or six women?—I do not know.

12,448. How many were there altogether?—haps 40.

12,449. (Mr. Coleridge.) The women make most noise?—Yes, the women put the husband bed.

2,450. Probably drunk?—We cannot get the unless we have the wives. The money is paid most instances to the wife.
2,451. Did Mr. Bryett ever object to this way of r spending your time at the election?—What I e done has been generally after office hours.
2,452. I suppose Mr. Bryett knew what you were ut?—He would not interfere with me.
2,453. He knew what you were doing?—I do not w; I did not mention it.
2,454. Did he tell you of it?—He has told me
e that I ought not to have forgotten myself.
2,455. But has he at the time?—No.
2,456. Has he asked you what sort of luck you ?—No. At the different elections I used to make a poll book.
2,457. Have you got it?—No.
2,458. You used to talk to Mr. Bryett about this?
Sometimes.
2,459. Mr. Bryett did not object to your doing
?—No.
2,460. He thought you a useful member of the ough?—He is a strong Conservative; no doubt ut that.
2,461. Mr. Hare knew what you were about?—
doubt.
2,462. (Mr. Longe.) Who acted on the Liberal e besides Charles Frederick Michelmore?—Mr. indeatt and Mr. Michelmore at Newton.
2,463. Who took the principal part in operating n the voters on the other side, the Liberal side?
There were several, Mr. Parnell and others; you ve heard the names?

12,464. Yes; but those most prominent to your knowledge?—I cannot give you any other names; you have already got them.

12,465. Who do you think yourself was the person who did most in arranging the prices?—I should think Mr. Thomas Jacob Searle and Mr. Parnell, and several others.

12,466. (Mr Bere.) You said before the Committee that you told Mr. Michelmore that if there was no contest you had better order fifty bankruptcy petition stamps?—I did.

12,467. It makes a great deal of difference to you?—Yes, a great difference in one's salary.

12,468. An election is not a profitable business for you?—No; I would rather not have any.

12,469. Have you anything more to say?—No; but I should mention one fact, that when in London, at Baxter, Rose, and Norton's, Mr. Spofforth said that 15,000*l.* had been offered for a compromise. I do not know where he got the information from.

12,470. Who did he mention it to?—To me and Mr. Bryett. We went to Baxter, Rose, and Norton's, and Mr. Spofforth said, "By the bye, we have been "offered 15,000*l.* from the other side for a compro-"mise."

12,471. Did he say where he had it from?—No.

12,472. You are not mistaking 15,000*l.* for 5,000*l.*?—No, I am certain it was 15,000*l.*

12,473. You thought that ought to have been accepted?—No, I did not.

12,474. You would not, like Mr. Harris, have a share of the 15,000*l.*?—No.

Mr. GEORGE HEATH sworn and examined. Mr. G. Heath.

12,475. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you begin ctioneering?—At Mr. Dent's second election. I s at home and saw that scene which Mr. Narramore s described.
12,476. 1863 began your experience?—Yes.
12,477. Now, first of all, about 1865, do you recol-ct Mr. Mum coming to your house in 1865?—No.
12,478. You knew there was a mysterious stranger?
I knew there was, but I had nothing to do with it.
12,479. You knew there was such a person?—I new there was, but I knew nothing of him.
12,480. On the last occasion, during 1863, did you now of him?—I only knew from what I heard.
12,481. Who told you about there being a Mum;
ur father?—I should think father or Mr. Edmonds.
12,482. Did Mr. Smith ever tell you?—No; I do t know that I had any conversation with him.
12,483. We have heard that the first start is to ear the bills off?—Yes, that is the first.
12,484. What had you to do with Mr. Harris' bill?
He came to me at the 1865 election and told me ere were about 55*l.*, between 55*l.* and 56*l.*, I will t be certain which, due to different tradesmen hom he had ordered to make 7*l.* or 8*l.* houses into 10*l.*
uses by laying out a certain sum of money. When stated the amount I went to see my father or Mr. dmonds, and got 56*l.* Whether Mr. Harris gave me
y change, or whether he kept the 56*l.*, I do not know.
12,485. Was it your father or Mr. Edmonds?—I ould not be sure, but to the best of my belief I ould say my father.
12,486. How long was that before the election?—
think on the nomination day.
12,487. Was it as late as that?—I think it was.
12,488. Are you sure that it was; was it not rlier?—No, I think not.
12,489. This was in 1865?—Yes.
12,490. Did you take Mr. Harris' I.O.U.?—I ink I took his receipt; a stamped receipt.
12,491. This is it; "Received from Mr. Edmonds the sum of 55*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* Robert Harris." Is that e receipt you took from him?—Yes.
12,492. There is a man named Coombes; had you nything to do with him?—Not at that election.
ou are confusing 1865 and 1863.

12,493. Do you know anything of Francis Coombes; about some offer having been made to him?—Not in 1865.

12,494. You know anything of Nicholas Browse in 1865?—I understood that Browse would vote for Dawkins and Seymour; he was disgusted with Mr. Pender.

12,495. Why was he disgusted?—I do not know; he was disgusted, and I understood an offer was made to him that if he would vote for Colonel Dawkins and vote for the duke's man, being a tenant of his, he would have 50*l.*

12,496. Did you offer the 50*l.*?—No.

12,497. You were canvassing?—Not much.

12,498. What was your department?—Only to pay what we call the watchers.

12,499. They were not electors but municipal voters?—Yes.

12,500. How much have you paid them?—I have paid them between 22*l.* and 23*l.*

12,501. Are these municipal voters or watchers always selected?—Yes.

12,502. I will ask you about the municipal voters afterwards?—I can give you a great deal of information.

12,503. Are you sure that it was in 1863 that this took place about Francis Coombes?—Yes.

12,504. John Diggins?—He was at the "Stars" the night before in terrible consternation.

12,505. What had consternated him?—He looked excited.

12,506. Had he been drinking?—No; but he came in the night before the polling day and gave me to understand that he would vote for 25*l.* for Colonel Dawkins, one vote.

12,507. Did you tell him you would get him the 25*l.*?—No; I knew the shop was shut.

12,508. Were there any more that were manipulated in the election of 1865?—I do not think that I have missed any, and I have been over them carefully.

12,509. In 1865?—Yes; I think I gave a man called Barker 15*l.*, who works for Mr. Bentall.

12,510. Did you take his I.O.U.?—Yes.

12,511. In a regular businesslike form?—Yes.

12,512. And that is the I.O.U.?—Yes.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. G. Heath.

4 Sept. 1866.

12,513. How did Barker vote?—I understood he voted right.

12,514. Where did you get the 15*l.* from?—From my father.

12,515. Who else was there?—I think there were two others on recollection to whom I paid 20*l.* each. They were engaged for a week before the election, and I paid them about 20*l.* each, and took an I.O.U. Samuel Saunders, the shoemaker, and Samuel Hilley, a shoemaker; they were both engaged, and I did not consider 20*l.* out of the way.

12,516. And they voted all right?—Yes; they were employed beforehand.

12,517. When was it that they had their money?—I am not exactly certain.

12,518. Early in the election or late?—Whether they had it after they had voted or not I do not know.

12,519. If they were paid after they voted they would come under the category of matter-of-course men?—Not Barker, but Saunders and Hilley were employed in the election for a week beforehand to run errands, and so on, and they were paid about 20*l.*

12,520. What would have been a fair remuneration; a guinea?—About a guinea a day in election times, I should consider.

12,521. That would be about five guineas and 15*l.* bribe?—Yes; perhaps about that.

12,522. Did you see incessant treating going on? Not at my house.

12,523. At your father's house?—Yes.

12,524. Do you keep a public house?—No; I should hope not.

12,525. You are an auctioneer?—Yes.

12,526. But you were in and out frequently?—Yes.

12,527. And you saw unlimited treating?—Yes; but I do not interfere much; I am married now.

12,528. (Mr. Bere.) Is Mrs. Heath a Liberal?—She is a Liberal as all Conservatives are.

12,529. Do you agree with your father that you want the ballot and electoral districts?—Yes, I do; I think it would be better.

12,530. (Mr. Coleridge.) What do you know about money; did not Edward Woodley distribute any in 1865?—I do not know that he distributed any.

12,531. In 1863?—I understood that in 1863 he paid two or three parties whose names I do not know.

12,532. Do you know what Heard did in 1865?—No.

12,533. (Mr. Bere.) What would be your definition of a Totnes Conservative; a man who is opposed to the Duke of Somerset? Would not that be a good definition?—Yes, I think it would; I think there are many who vote for the Conservatives on account of the duke's tyranny.

12,534. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was not Woodley a distributor of money in 1865?—I do not know; I know little about it.

12,535. Do you not know of cases?—No.

12,536. Nor have heard of any?—No.

12,537. Do you in 1863?—Yes; I believe he paid two or three men.

12,538. Have you anything more to say about 1865?—I do not know of anything except the watchers.

12,539. And those three men?—Yes; and I paid Harris.

12,540. Is that all that you had to do with it in 1865?—Yes.

12,541. In 1863 you were more active, were you not?—Yes, I was.

12,542. In 1863 did you go about canvassing?—I used to go out with the candidates.

12,543. How long before the election did you begin operations in 1863?—I think not more than a week or ten days.

12,544. Did you take any particular part of the town, or did you go about everywhere?—I went to particular voters.

12,545. Those whom you thought you had some influence with?—Yes; those whom I thought I could influence.

12,546. As to William Byne?—I paid 80*l.* for his vote.

12,547. Why did you give him so much as that?—He was a Rad.

12,548. And had turned round?—Yes; and he was a tenant of the duke's.

12,549. And had turned round?—Yes.

12,550. Did he vote all right?—Yes; he took some land belonging to Mr. Dent at a valuation of Mr. Page's, the land surveyor, here.

12,551. At rather a lower valuation, I should suppose?—No; the highest valuation of the two. Mr. Henry Hamlyn, the agent of the owner, valued the estate for the landlord, and Mr. Page for Mr. Dent; and it so happened that Mr. Page's valuation was higher than Mr. Hamlyn's, the tenant's higher than the landlord's; and he agreed to take it at the lowest valuation.

12,552. As to Byne, did you pay him at once?—I handed him the money, and he handed me back 40*l.* as part security for the first 12 months' rent.

12,553. Did you hand it to him in gold and take his I.O.U.?—Yes.

12,554. Where did you get the money from?—From Mr. Edmonds.

12,555. From Mr. Edmonds direct?—Yes; I never had any from anyone else.

12,556. Was there a Mr. Mum then?—Yes; I did not see him.

12,557. Where you living at that time, in 1863, in your father's house, at the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

12,558. Can you recollect whether there were two Mr. Mums?—I do not know anything of Mr. Mum in 1863, or in 1865, or at any time; I went to Mr. Edmonds direct, and he went upstairs and got it.

12,559. Blackler what did you give to him?—I think 50*l.* to the wife; she was a great drunkard; she is since dead; she was then lying in bed, she wanted 20*l.* for herself for drink, that I paid her making 70*l.*; he had 50*l.*, and she had 20*l.* for drink.

12,560. Did you take his receipt also?—I do not know that I did.

12,561. Did you take his wife's receipt?—I did not take his receipt.

12,562. His wife's?—No; it was an understood thing; she was ill in bed, tight as she could be.

12,563. William Ellis?—He would have been turned out of the duke's land if he had voted for the Conservatives, and I let him three or four meadows at 1*l.* or 2*l.* under Mr. Page's valuation.

12,564. A pound or two upon the meadows, or a pound or two an acre?—On the land itself. Supposing the value of it was 33*l.* a year I let it to him at 30*l.* a year; whether I gave him 30*l.* or 40*l.* I really do not know.

12,565. You did not get his receipt?—No.

12,566. There is a man named Mitchell rather a high figure. Did you give Mitchell 80*l.*?—No.

12,567. What did you give him in 1863?—I think 3*l.* at one time and 22*l.* at another.

12,568. 25*l.* in all?—Yes.

12,569. Did he vote all right?—I gave it to his brother to carry to the voter.

12,570. What was Mitchell's christian name?—William.

12,571. The other was not a voter?—No.

12,572. Did the brother or the voter give you a receipt?—No.

12,573. He voted all right?—Yes.

12,574. Marks?—I think he is a matter-of-course man, and he might have 20*l.* or 25*l.*

12,575. After the election?—No; I think before he voted.

12,576. As to the "matter-of-course" men, we have heard contradictory statements; do you know that they vote as a matter of course, and then the money is sent?—No, I do not think so. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" is the motto of the Totnes men, and I do not think three out of the lot would vote without the money beforehand.

12,577. If they vote before they are matter-of-course men?—I do not think there are any.

,578. Mr. Gill?—I do not know anything about

,579. Did you not give him 5*l.*?—I recollect ng a man called Gill, but whether it was to a g gentleman for paying some expenses I do not ; he was not a voter.

,580. Richard Tilley?—I would not be positive t him, but I think I paid him 20*l.*

,581. Before or after?—Before.

,582. You got all this from Edmonds?—Yes, I a mistake; I paid a man named Fitzpatrick; Narramore called my attention to it.

,583. Williams, of the "Waterman's Arms"?—r 25*l.*

,584. A matter-of-course man?—He always l right.

,585. Those names were given to you by Mr. onds?—Not all to me at once; he would give single name at a time.

,586. And you go to Mr. Edmonds and say, I I can do so and so?—No; the rest were all

,587. Where did Mr. Edmonds get his informa-?—Edmonds knows a good deal; he is up to the with regard to Totnes people.

,588. He does not want any teaching from you y one else?—He is an older hand than I am.

,589. Bowden?—He is a man who keeps an inn, I believe I paid him 15*l.* or 20*l.*, to include an int running up at his house. He is a man who s votes right.

.590. Who else?—Farley, New Passage.

.591. Did you pay him?—Yes.

.592. There is another Mitchell down here, 25*l.* l.?—It is the same man.

.593. There is a name before Bowden?—That is ses, 4*l.*

.594. Those are your own?—Yes.

.595. Did you pay a Mr. Crocker a tavern ac-?—Not for the borough election, I think.

.596. That was for the municipal?—Yes.

,597. Is there anything else you want to tell us 1863?—I do not know that there is.

,598. About Mr. Woodley?—I cannot tell you. ieve Mr. Woodley paid one or two men; but he ome forward and state it.

.599. Do you know what Heard did?—No, I knew of Heard's name being so prominently ht forward as now.

,600. Do you know John Briggs?—Yes.

601. Did he have money?—Perhaps Mr. Screach s.

602. Now about 1862?—That is the scene that n described. There was one man saying, en are they going to begin?" I remember I ust gone through an examination at Cirencester ge, and I came home to vote for Mr. Dent. I letter from my father to say I was to come . It was excessively inconvenient. I came on the nomination morning, or the morning e. Very few people about at that time knew me, I had been away for some time.

.603. You were not Mr. Mum?—No. I did ng in the election. I was sitting on the stairs. recognised me, and there were few I recognised; heard one wife say to her husband, "Mind, not han 100*l.*," and one man said, "When are they to begin?"

,604. Was Mr. Edmonds there?—No.

,605. Nor Mr. Kellock?—No.

.606. Screach?—No; they kept out of the way. saw it was hopeless to begin, and it was the laughable affair I ever saw.

.607. Do you know that Mrs. Hannaford had offer at an election of 100*l.*?—I do not know. aps it may have been she who said to her d, "Not less than 100*l.*"

.608. When did you begin as treasurer of the ipal elections and master of the ceremonies?— the Conservative party began to contest it. There were 15 Liberals in the Council and one Conservative.

12,609. (Mr. Bere) When was it that the Conservative party began?—I should think five or six years ago. I believe Mr. Edmonds won the first battle. No money was spent on either side.

12,610. When was that?—1857 or 1858. No money was spent on either side at that time.

12,611. Were there four candidates on each side?—Yes. Three conservatives were carried, and one Liberal got in over the lowest Conservative, Mr. Bastard.

12,612. Was that the time that Mr. Mitchell stood?—No; Mr. Hannaford, Mr. Bentall, and Mr. Edmonds, and Mr. Bastard stood on the Conservative side. Mr. Fogwell was the one who was elected on the Liberal side. Who the others were I do not know.

12,613. No money went about?—No. The expenses of our four candidates were about 4*l.* or 5*l.* each.

12,614. It was confined to the half-crown and the breakfast?—No breakfast, only the half-crown.

12,615. Then came the contest?—Yes; that was the time when there was a dead heat between Bovey and Huxham, and the mayor gave his casting vote.

12,616. When was the next? In 1863?—I think the greatest battle I recollect, and the one I was most concerned in was when Mr. Kellock, Mr. Bastard, Dr. Owen, and my father fought. I had of Mr. Bastard before the election 40*l.*, and from my father 20*l.* and 30*l.* I am not certain about Mr. Kellock, what I had from him.

12,617. Something like the same sort of sum?—I do not think I had from him or Dr. Owen. I advanced sufficient to carry on the election out of my own pocket beyond what I received, and afterwards I handed the accounts to the auditor.

12,618. How did you spend it?—In bribery.

12,619. To whom?—The first I gave to was John Light; he never voted without money; he voted one way at one time, and another the other. Then Worthy, a runner, up at the top of the steps, he would take 5*l.* or 6*l.*, or anything he could get. I secured him for 4*l.*, and took him up to the poll.

12,620. Did you buy John Sandford Screach for 40*s.*?—No; I used to give him money to go to pay to others, and for refreshment at different houses.

12,621. And at Screach's father's house?—Yes.

12,622. In 1859 what did it cost?—I think it cost us 200*l.* and odd then. Father's must have been the most expensive, I daresay 150*l.*

12,623. Can any election be carried at all in Totnes without money?—If it is fought without money the Conservatives would have a majority; if it is fought with money they go at one time on one side and at another on the other. They are brought to the poll in a state of intoxication to the polling booths, and they do not know who they vote for.

12,624. Who makes out the papers?—Generally the partizans. I met a man at this door with a Conservative paper in his hand, and a Liberal paper was put in his hand, and he voted that way. I have given 1*l.* and 30*s.* each, that is the most with the exception of Light's. The borough voters are also municipal voters.

12,625. Do they take money as well as the lower class voters?—They do.

12,626. It is a usual thing?—Yes.

12,627. At the election of 1863 who did you get the money from?—I took everything from Mr. Edmonds.

12,628. You saw nobody else?—Nobody else.

12,629. Before you began to work the Liberals were in a majority?—They had 15 out of 18; the Conservatives let everything go by the run.

12,630. There had been no bribery at that time?—There had before; I think in Mills' time.

12,631. When the Liberals were in the majority there was no bribery?—They had money and we had not; they always have money; they had Mills' and Bastards'.

12,632. Had there been any contests for the council

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. G. Heath.

4 Sept. 1866.

seats before this?—Oh, yes, the Conservatives at one time had it, when they had a member; when Mr. Baldwin was member; they also a majority when the Liberals had a member.

12,633. It was not till 1852 that Totnes lost Mr. Baldwin?—I believe the moment they lost Mr. Baldwin they lost the majority.

12,634. Between 1852 and 1857; you say in 1857 there was no money spent?—No.

12,635. Do you remember any contest between 1852 and 1857?—I do not remember that; that is before I can remember.

12,636. Is this the sort of account you used to have rendered to you: "John Croker, tavern account; "Master G. had 5*l.*; Joseph Shinner, 1*l.*; James "Timewell, 1*l.*; James Holman, 10*s.*; beer for "men, 1*l.* 19*s.* 0*d.*; turnpikes, 1*s.*?—Yes, that is the "sort of account."

12,637. Who is Master G.?—That is me.

12,638. Was that 5*l.* given to you?—Given to me.

12,639. How, is that an account opened with you?—Supposing I was short of cash and wanted 5*l.*, they would let me have it.

12,640. John Briggs, was he a voter?—Yes.

12,641. A borough voter as well as a municipal voter?—Yes.

12,642. Are all these names that are mentioned as bought by you; first, John Briggs?—No.

12,643. John Reynolds?—No.

12,644. William Baker?—No.

12,645. John Butcher?—No.

12,646. Robert Mogridge?—Yes.

12,647. Samuel Chidley?—He was not.

12,648. Winsor?—No.

12,649. Edward Shinner?—I polled him.

12,650. In what position of life was Chidley?—runner; he deserved all he had, he worked hard.

12,651. Edward wanted 2*l.* for his vote; Willi only got 1*l.* 10*s.*?—No.

12,652. Blank was a moderate one, he want 1*l.*?—Last time he had more.

12,653. Were you one of the party who went out 1865 to Chamings, Drew, and Ruby?—I do not kn where they lived.

12,654. To his brother John?—I never went Chamings.

12,655. Did you go after the election to see Willi Byne, after the 1865 election?—No, sir.

12,656. After the petition?—Oh, yes; I believe did.

12,657. Did you offer to buy a rick of hay?—No.

12,658. It was known there was going to be petition; did you go and see William Byne?—N sir, I do not recollect; I may have offered to buy rick of hay he had, but he offered me the hay first.

12,659. What was it worth?—About 30*l.*

12,660. Did you not offer him a good deal more? I do not think I did.

12,661. Did you recommend him at the same ti to tell the truth?—Yes, he came to my house, an says, "I shall out with the whole truth; I shall it all out;" that is just my remark.

12,662. Is there anything you want to tell us m than you have told us?—No, I think you have ask me all I know about the municipal elections.

12,663. You, of course, cannot tell when the syst of creating votes was first adopted?—No; but I kn it is adopted now to a great extent; there are scarc half of them real and bonâ fide votes.

12,664. Have you looked after the registratio all?—No.

Mr. G. R. Stone.

GEORGE ROBINS STONE sworn and examined.

12,665. (Mr. Longe.) When did you first take part in an election here?—I always felt a great interest in it from a boy.

12,666. What are you?—I am a shoemaker.

12,667. A master shoemaker?—Yes.

12,668. How long have you had a vote?—Since 1860; that was the first time I was on the poll list.

12,669. What was the first election at which you voted?—I first voted in the council election of 1861.

12,670. At what borough election did you vote?—In 1862; I was one of the five who voted for Mr. Dent.

12,671. Did you get anything for that?—No, sir.

12,672. Were you asked by either side?—Yes.

12,673. Were you offered any sum?—Yes.

12,674. On which side?—On the Liberal side.

12,675. Who offered it to you?—A stranger; a man whom I do not know tapped me on the back as I was standing looking over the bridge. He said, "Is "your name Stone?" I said, "Yes, it is." He said, "How are you going to vote?" I said, "I promised "Mr. Dent, and I intend to stick to my promise;" he said, "Would 100*l.* be of any use to you to vote for "Mr. Pender?" I said, "No, nor yet 200*l.*"

12,676. Was anyone with you; how did he know you?—I do not know; I suppose I had been seen standing on the bridge; there were always lots of people at election times standing on the bridge.

12,677. (Mr. Bere.) Can you give us a description of the man?—No, it was dark.

12,678. (Mr. Longe.) How could he know you?—Very likely a runner told him.

12,679. Had he been down some time?—I never saw him before or since. That was the only offer I had at an election.

12,680. Did you take any part for the Conservative side in the election?—No, I did not.

12,681. At the next election, 1863, what part did you take then?—I took no part beyond voting.

12,682. At the election were you canvassed by either side?—Yes; I first signed a requisition to Mr. Dent to come forward again after Earl Gifford died.

12,683. Who asked you to sign it?—I was aske sign it.

12,684. Who by?—Mr. Harris. I was pass down the street, and Mr. Harris went into Woodl house, and asked me to sign, and I did.

12,685. Were you canvassed by anyone else Afterwards, before Mr. Dent came down, Mr. Gill and Mr. Edmonds called on me and asked me would support Mr. Dent. I said, "Yes, certai "I signed the requisition and I consider myself in "bound to support him, and I will do so."

12,686. You never asked for any money?—certainly not.

12,687. Had you any money offered you?—Yes

12,688. Did anyone offer you anything on Conservative side?—Yes, they gave me 20*l.*

12,689. You had never asked for it?—No.

12,690. How was that?—I will tell you why I the vote. They sent me 20*l.*, Frederick E brought the money; if I omitted to state this it unintentionally. I told you I voted in 1861; I v for the Conservatives, and I did so because I had the tyrannical way in which the Duke of Some agents had driven the voters to the poll; I felt gusted at it, and I determined the first time I h vote they should find out they could not depend me. I should tell you I was put on the muni register before I was entitled to go on, they thi I was a Liberal man.

12,691. Who were acting in that way to put on?—The overseers for the parish of Berry Pon manufacture a list of voters there as they proper.

12,692. They make up the lists of voters?—and hand them to the town clerk.

12,693. For the manor of Bridgetown?—Yes.

12,694. (Mr. Bere.) If you do not choose, a not object to be put on it is your own fault i came before the barrister?—Yes; I had see Conservative agent before that, and gave hi information that I was on the list, and he to at if I was objected to, it would be their own fault.

12,695. (Mr Longe.) You voted?—Yes.

12,696. Was any offer made to you by the other de?—In 1863?

12,697. Yes?—No; they did not canvass me in 1863 all.

12,698. Did you act then for the Conservative arty?—No, I did not.

12,699. Did you not?—Oh, yes, I sent one of my pprentices; quite as a joke. Someone next door to e called Farley I asked to come out to me; I said my apprentice, I am going to have a bit of fun ith old Farley. I called on him one morning and I id, "Farley, how are you going to vote?" He said, You know I live in the duke's house; I am bound to support the duke." I said, "Well, look here now, will 200*l.* be of any use to you to vote for Mr. Dent?" ie said, "I cannot tell you now, I will see you again."

12,700. (Mr. Coleridge.) Bribery is rather a rious and dangerous experiment to joke on in otnes?—I daresay it is.

12,701. (Mr Bere.) You may very easily let a man with an offer of a bribe?—I do not know that; he es not consider it a job till he has got the money.

12,702. (Mr. Coleridge.) Till his hand is closed?—That is it.

12,703. (Mr. Longe.) In 1865 you were employed y the Conservative committee?—No, I was not employed; I volunteered my services.

12,704. They were accepted and you acted?—Yes.

12,705. Who did you volunteer your services to?—volunteered them to Mr. Harris.

12,706. Who did you communicate with; only Mr. Harris?—Only with Mr. Harris.

12,707. Throughout the time you were acting?—Oh, no; I was asked to do various things many times.

12,708. Afterwards who did you deal with? Who were the persons?—I principally distributed the bills nd circulars for the electors and the addresses.

12,709. That sort of general electioneering business?—Yes.

12,710. You saw Mr. Mum?—Yes, twice.

12,711. At the "Seven Stars?"—Yes.

12,712. Where was he?—In the lobby. I should ay the Saturday before the election was the first time saw him.

12,713. Let us have your description of him?—They have given a truthful description of the gentleman, with black hair and light whiskers.

12,714. Old or young?—A middle-aged man.

12,715. Can you tell whether his hair was natural?—I believe it was a wig.

12,716. You were sent to him by whom?—No one.

12,717. It was accidental?—Yes, quite; somebody old him my name was Stone.

12,718. He knew who you were?—Yes; I was about there all day long.

12,719. What did you do under his direction?—He said, "Do you know a man named Kellow; are you friendly with him?" I said, "Yes." He said, "Can he be got?" I said, "I do not know; I think he can." He said, "Go and offer him a tidy sum of money; put a sticker into him." I said, "What do you mean?" He said, "Offer him 150*l.*; go to that." I did so.

12,720. On the Saturday?—Yes, before the election.

12,721. Did you get him?—No.

12,722. How was that?—He said he would consider of it and see me again.

12,723. (Mr. Bere.) Is that person an eating-house keeper who works for Mr. Condy?—That is the man.

12,724. That is a rather large sum for him?—It was considered that as he was working for Mr. Condy and Mr. Condy being a member of the Liberal committee, he would get money on the other side, and if he was got he was worth two.

12,725. (Mr. Longe.) You failed?—Yes.

12,726. He did not accept it?—No.

12,727. Did you see him on the morning of the election? Did you see him more than once?—Yes, on the morning of the nomination.

12,728. What did he tell you then?—He would see me again, but he did not.

12,729. Did he intimate that offers had been made by the other side?—No, he did not.

12,730. Did he say anything about being afraid of Mr. Condy?—No.

12,731. Did you see him in his own house?—No, in the street both times.

12,732. To whom did you communicate that?—To Mr. Mum.

12,733. No one else?—Yes.

12,734. Did you see Mr. John Heath down on Saturday night in the lobby?—No, I went home early that night.

12,735. At what time was it Mr. Mum spoke to you?—At about 6 o'clock in the evening.

12,736. Do you know Mr. Smith by sight?—Yes; I saw him in the ball room the night of the public meeting, the night after the volunteer meeting.

12,737. (Mr. Bere.) Was there a little drinking going on after the public meeting?—Yes.

12,738. Did Mr. Smith stay at the meeting?—I do not know. He addressed the meeting. I do not if he stayed long.

12,739. Did you see him in the lobby with Mr. Mum?—No, I did not.

12,740. (Mr. Longe.) There was another man of the name of Crawford?—Yes.

12,741. What did you offer him?—I offered him 30*l.*

12,742. On the nomination day?—Yes.

12,743. Who sent you to him?—The same man.

12,744. You did not succeed with him?—No.

12,745. You saw him?—Yes.

12,746. You went twice or once?—I went once, in the afternoon of the nomination day.

12,747. Did he give you a reason for not accepting your offer?—He said he was offered 200*l.* on the other side, and if he could not get it he would be there in an hour at the "Stars."

12,748. I suppose he got it?—I suppose so.

12,749. He did not say who offered it to him?—No.

12,750. (Mr. Bere.) Did you ever yourself receive money from Mr. Mum?—No.

12,751. You were only promised it?—No.

12,752. You never paid any yourself?—Never a farthing in my life.

12,753. Who should you have looked to for it if it had been accepted by the voters?—I should have gone back and tried to see the man again.

12,754. Not Mr. Edmunds?—No.

12,755. (Mr. Longe.) Are those the only cases you were employed to deal with at all?—Those are all.

12,756. The last time you were distributing circulars?—Yes.

12,757. (Mr. Bere.) Had you ever been employed at any election before in distributing money?—No, I never paid a farthing for a vote.

12,758. You were paid for your services?—I was not.

12,759. In 1863 you got 20*l.*?—Yes.

12,760. Not in 1865?—No.

12,761. (Mr. Coleridge.) You did not treat it as matter-of-course money?—No, I did not.

12,762. We have been told that the 1863 election was all over, and Mr. Dent withdrew the night before; how came you to vote?—I voted directly the poll opened.

12,763. How long afterwards did you hear that he had withdrawn?—Half an hour afterwards I saw Mr. Kellock. He was standing at the "Stars" door, and I heard him say, "Stop the votes; the election is "over, and it is not worth while to keep the poll "open."

12,764. They kept voting for Pender to make a show?—Yes.

12,765. How long did it go on?—All the day.

12,766. Where is your house now?—In Victoria Street, Totnes.

ELEVENTH DAY.

Mr. G. R. Stone.

4 Sept. 1866.

12,767. You did live at Bridgetown?—Yes, I did; they came in an underhanded way and got me out.

12,768. How did they get you out?—I lived in a house belonging to a lady called Gilbert, and she held the house during her life. After her death it came to her sister, a Mrs. Honey, and her husband was a strong Liberal, and to get me out someone connected with the Seymour interest, I believe, came forward.

12,769. Do you know who that someone was?—I can produce the notice to quit, which is one of the duke's notices.

(The witness handed in the following document:)

"To Mr. George Robins Stone.

"I hereby give you notice to quit and deliver up, on or before the 25th day of March next ensuing the date hereof, or at the expiration of the current year of your tenancy, the possession of all that dwelling-house and garden, with the appurtenances thereto belonging, which you now hold under me, situate at Bridgetown, in the parish of Berry Pomeroy, in the county of Devon; and in failure thereof I shall require and insist upon your paying thenceforth for the same double the yearly value thereof for so long time as you shall keep possession of the said premises after the expiration of the said notice, according to the form of the statute in such case made and provided.

"Dated this twenty-seventh day of September 1864.

"Thomas Honey."

12,770. It is one of the printed forms?—Yes.

12,771. You have seen some of the duke's notices?—Yes, I have, I compared it with the notice in this room. In fact Mr. Honey had told me that the duke's agent had bought the life interest of him on purpose to get me out of it, and then to put two or three cottages together in the rear of the premises to complete the two, and make votes of the whole.

12,772. That has not been done?—There is only one vote there now; the cottages have not been put together.

12,773. (Mr. Longe.) When you say the tyranny of the duke, you do not mean the former landlords have used the land and filled it up with votes for the particular party?—Yes, I do.

12,774. That is not what is meant by tyranny; what do you mean?—I mean at the council election of 1859. I was most particularly struck with this; I was coming across the bridge on the morning of the poll, on the 1st of November, and I saw Mr. Callard and Mr. Elliott and 30 or 40 men driving them up to the poll. I thought to myself, "These men call themselves Liberals; this does not look much like it."

12,775. How do you mean that two managed to drive 30 or 40?—They had taken them down to breakfast, and I daresay they had had some of "all nations." They walked up very comfortably; those two were obliged to go with them, for fear of passing the "Stars," and some of the ducks in the flock should desert.

12,776. Do you know who was employed to distribute money in 1865 on the Conservative side?—I do not know more than the others, 12,777. Frederick Evens?—Yes.

12,778. Screach?—Yes.

12,779. George Evens?—Yes, I have heard so.

12,780. John Heath and George Heath?—I do not know, only what I have heard.

12,781. As far as you know, was it distributed on the Liberal side?—I saw that John Sandford Screach was always in the business.

12,782. Where did you catch him?—I did not see him going anywhere in particular; he saw I was looking after him.

12,783. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had he that peculiar downcast look that Mr. Harris has described as belonging to the Liberal party generally?—I do not wish to abuse anyone.

12,784. Had he?—He would skulk along with his hands in his pockets, and he looked as if he did not want to be looked after.

12,785. Parnell?—Yes.

12,786. You saw him in 1865?—Yes.

12,787. Do you give him the same description? Yes.

12,788. John Elliott?—He was busy looking after John Fox Green.

12,789. The man that went off to Plymouth?—Yes.

12,790. He was offered 150*l.*?—I have heard so.

12,791. Do you know anything about Mr. Mitchell?—Yes.

12,792. What was he doing?—About canvassing.

12,793. Do you know anything about a man called Samuel Goodman?—That was in 1863. I have heard that he was at the "Oxford Arms," in Goodman's house, on the morning of the poll, and John Heath, jun., went and told him off somewhere; no more than that. I heard that Mitchell was tampering with him. Goodman will tell you.

12,794. Charles Pengilley do you know?—No more than that he was employed as a messenger.

12,795. Charles Michelmore?—I only saw him about with other people.

12,796. Did he ever say anything to you about the election?—No.

12,797. (Mr. Bere.) Have you told us all you know about 1863 and 1865?—Yes.

12,798. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you know Captain Helms in 1863?—No.

12,799. Did you see the mysterious stranger in 1863?—I cannot say; I was not mixed up with that election.

12,800. You have no recollection if any mysterious stranger had a private room?—No.

12,801. You cannot tell anything about the china bowl?—No.

12,802. (Mr. Bere.) Can you give us a definition of a Totnes Conservative?—I believe there are some men in Totnes that vote conscientiously; very few.

12,803. How many; a dozen?—That is drawing the line rather sharp.

12,804. Do you put it as high as 20?—Oh, yes; as high as 50.

12,805. (Mr. Bere.) I do not mean with regard to bribery; I mean men who have any real political feeling. Is it not a question of dislike to the duke?—Yes, principally.

12,806. Supposing the duke were a Conservative, would there not be a great many Liberal?—Yes, I would myself. If he was to go on in that way, I would now turn round and vote against him.

12,807. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are you, like Mr. Heath, for the ballot and electoral districts?—No; I was once.

Adjourned till Thursday, at 11 o'clock.

TWELFTH DAY.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. J. Guscotte.

6 Sept. 1866.

Thursday, 6th September 1866.

Mr. John Guscotte sworn and examined.

12,808. (Mr. Bere.) Are you a partner in the firm of Smith and Guscotte?—Yes.

12,809. Carrying on business in Essex Street, London?—Yes.

12,810. Have you been concerned professionally for some years past for Colonel Dawkins?—Yes.

12,811. In June 1865 did Colonel Dawkins become anxious to go into Parliament?—Yes, I think about the of May, about the 30th of May, Colonel Dawkins placed on half-pay, and immediately afterwards thought he should like to go to Parliament to ress what he considered an injustice at the Horse rds.

2,812. Did he consult you as to what constituency should become a candidate?—It was discussed. had several interviews from time to time, and I k Kidderminster was spoken of, I think Totnes spoken of, and I think Beverley; and we mately decided on Totnes.

2,813. Had you then any personal acquaintance n the borough?—I had always known Totnes.

2,814. Mr. Smith has told us that you are a ve of Devonshire?—Yes.

2,815. What part?—Crediton.

2,816. Did you know people in Totnes personally the general reputation of the borough?—The eral reputation of the borough.

2,817. That was not a very good one?—I knew as a place where the candidates generally pur-sed their seats.

2,818. Did you intimate that to Colonel Dawkins he time?—I think I first saw Mr. Wescomb, or I k I wrote a private note.

2,819. Mr. Charles Wescomb of Exeter?—Yes.

2,820. What made you write to Mr. Wescomb?—new he was the editor of the Conservative paper Devonshire.

2,821. Had you known him in other matters?—. I always took his paper, for instance; I had wn him in Exeter. I was once in Exeter and uently saw Mr. Wescomb.

2,822. Were you in partnership then?—No, I a short time with Mr. Barton.

2,823. Have you known anything of Mr. Wescomb ommercial matters, such as mining?—I had some perty in Devonshire, and I have met Mr. Wescomb several occasions.

2,824. You wrote to Mr. Wescomb about Totnes? es.

2,825. Did you get an answer from him?—Yes, I t have had an answer from him.

2,826. Have you the answer now?—No; I have graphed to my clerk to look out every letter. I not sure whether I got an answer or he called at ex Street; I cannot recollect.

2,827. Have you got the letter you wrote to him he letter book?—I do not think it was taken off. ink it was private; I do not like to swear. I do know whether I wrote or telegraphed, I think I graphed.

2,828. You would hardly telegraph about the racter of Totnes?—No; whether I wrote or tele-hed it would be—How much money would he re?

2,829. We want to know what the terms of the mmunication were?—Here is a letter (referring to r book) would you like to read it. This is a r in answer to him. The previous letter must e been private, and of that I kept no copy.

2,830. Can you remember the terms of the letter? think it would be simply asking what sum would required to carry a candidate.

2,831. Do you remember what answer you got?—o not recollect now; I fancy he thought about 0*l.* or 3,000*l.*, I think he said about 3,000*l.* When ote him that letter I think I said it was too large m. I suggested whether Exeter would not do, I think he replied Exeter would not do, that Mr. ridge would carry that.

2,832. The answer you wrote is—ar Sir, 20th June, 1865.

I am afraid that the sum would be rather too much, that our client has a conscience rather tender.

It has occurred to me that Exeter might want a second ervative, for if Mr. Gard retires, as I believe he does, I ascended that Lord Courtenay and Mr. Coleridge ld walk over the course.

Why not carry two Conservatives? Exeter is Conservative enough for anything. Our client is open to spend about 1,000*l.* or 1,500*l.*

"Yours very truly,

"JAS. GUSCOTTE,

"C. Wescomb, Esq. for Smith and Guscotte."

What answer did you receive to that, do you remember?—I do not think he wrote any reply. I think he came to town, in fact I am almost certain he did.

12,833. He came on purpose to see you?—I do not know that he came on purpose, but he did see me while in town.

12,834. Did he see you at your office?—I think he must.

12,835. Do you recollect what passed between you then?—I think he talked of Totnes, and thought a Conservative would be carried if 2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.* was spent. He did not think it was any use to go to Totnes unless he was prepared to spend that.

12,836. Did he give you to understand that he knew Totnes?—No; but I knew he must know about Totnes. I had frequently a reference to Totnes and the politics of Totnes in his paper.

12,837. Is that all the communication you had with Mr. Wescomb?—I think after that I said I would see Colonel Dawkins, and Colonel Dawkins seemed to think it was too high, too much money. His object was to get into Parliament for a purpose having reference to the Horse Guards, and I think he thought that was too much. However it went on for some time and I think I heard from Mr. Wescomb by-and-bye.

12,838. When did you first see Mr. Spofforth?—Not till after the election.

12,839. Had you any communication with Mr. Spofforth before Colonel Dawkins came to Totnes?—I think not.

12,840. You know Mr. Smith, your partner, saw Mr. Spofforth in Colonel Dawkins' presence?—I did not think he did.

12,841. I do not know that he had a conversation with him, but there was a conversation between Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Spofforth?—I never knew of that; I may tell you this, I was busy at the time, had a great deal to do, and after what had taken place Colonel Dawkins, I think, saw Mr. Spofforth himself. I think he was recommended to see him by some friends of his who told him that he had interest with the Carlton Club, and I think he saw him without either Mr. Smith or myself being present, then I think Colonel Dawkins decided with Mr. Spofforth; and I think I wrote to Mr. Edmonds a letter about that time (I daresay in my letter book you would find it), asking him whether any candidate was in the field for Totnes. And Mr. Edmonds replied that Totnes would be represented through the Carlton.

12,842. When you went to see Mr. Spofforth did you see none of the firm of Baxter, Rose, and Norton about the matter?—No.

12,843. Or any of the managing clerks?—No, I never went to their office.

12,844. Did the clerks come to you?—No; I had no communication with the office, clerks, or partners previous to the election.

12,845. Do you know a person named W. H. Oldrey?—I might say I know him from meeting him in the committee rooms of the House of Commons. No more than this, that when I went to register my vote for Middlesex I had seen him in the clerk's office.

12,846. Is he clerk to Mr. Henry Smith?—Yes, and I think I was surprised to hear that he knew me. He knew me from calling on me for an account for Mr. Wescomb's paper.

12,847. Is he Mr. Wescomb's agent?—No; but I think he had a brother who was a clerk at Mr. Wescomb's. I recollect that in the committee room he spoke to me; that is the first time I saw him with reference to any election matter.

12,848. What sort of looking man is W. H. Oldrey?—I do not think I ever saw him in my life but

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr —— J. Guscotte.

6 Sept. 1866.

on those occasions. I think he was rather dark, with black eyes.

12,849. Is he tall or short?—I do not think he is either one or the other; about 5 feet 7 or 8.

12,850. What colour beard?—I do not think he has any.

12,851. (Mr. Coleridge.) What age man?—I should think he is 8 or 9 and 20 or 30.

12,852. (Mr. Bere.) Was he at all haggard, his face worn?—No, I should say not; he has rather a swarthy complexion; but I do not think he is at all haggard or worn.

12,853. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know how old his brother who is in Mr. Wescomb's office is?—No; I do not think I ever saw him.

12,854. (Mr. Bere.) Was what you have told us all you had to do with Colonel Dawkins going down to Totnes before he did go down?—Yes; I do not think I had anything further to do with it.

12,855. Did you make any arrangements before he went down as to how the money that was wanted was to be supplied?—I made no arrangement with regard to money before he went.

12,856. Had you arrived at any idea what money would be wanted?—I think that he must have felt that he would spend 2,000*l.* when he went down, for I think he must have heard the cost. The least would be 2,000*l.*

12,857. Had Mr. Wescomb told you that the cost would be between 2,000*l.* and 3,000*l.*?—I do not recollect the exact figures, but I think that was it.

12,858. Did Mr. Smith go down with Colonel Dawkins also?—Yes. Mr. Smith, I think, knew some Totnes people, and Colonel Dawkins wrote him a private note asking him to go down with him, and he went down with him. I was at Colonel Dawkins' house in Arlington Street, and he asked me, and I told him I could not go, I was so busy; and I told him that Mr. Smith knew some Totnes people.

12,859. In what capacity did he go down with Colonel Dawkins?—I should say he came down as a friend. Of course I saw what was reported, but it had never occurred to me, till I saw that in the newspaper, in what capacity he went. I think Colonel Dawkins regarded him as much as a friend as a solicitor; he regarded him in that light I think.

12,860. As much a friend as a solicitor; I do not quite understand that?—It is very difficult for a man who is a solicitor to throw off the character.

12,861. As a solicitor he would charge, as a friend he would not?—I do not think he had any intention of making a charge.

12,862. When did Mr. Smith come back again?—He went down, I think, on the 27th June; I was refreshing my memory about that this morning.

12,863. Have you a diary or journal?—I have not a journal; I keep a diary in which I make notes, and I telegraphed to a clerk to bring that also. You would not find much in that, I think only the date Mr. Smith went to Totnes.

12,864. What time did he come back?—I think he was away a week; I think the 27th was a Tuesday, and I think he came back on the following Tuesday.

12,865. Had any clerks gone down to him?—No; on the first occasion he did not take a clerk, but he went with Colonel Dawkins.

12,866. What brought Mr. Smith back to London?—I recollect his writing to me to say that he had a dinner party and must come home. I think he had some private matters and also matters of business to attend to.

12,867. How long did he stay in London then?—Two or three or four days, I think.

12,868. When did he first intimate to you that he should want to take down some money?—I rather think when he came from Totnes first; he went to his residence at Finchley, and I do not think I saw him again that day. I should think it was the day before he left he said he wanted to take 1,500*l.*

12,869. In sovereigns, did he say?—I will not be certain; at all events I know that he did take it in sovereigns.

12,870. It was at that time that he wished to take somebody else down with him?—Yes, he did.

12,871. Who?—Mr. Lind, who is one of our managing clerks. Mr. Lind, who has been in the office a great many years, has always been in the habit of going with Mr. Smith.

12,872. Did he give you any reason why he wished a clerk to go with him?—His chief reason was, he said, first, he should like to have somebody with him, and I said at first it would not be any use, and we were very busy, and it would be awkward for a clerk to go; but Mr. Smith said he did not like to go by himself with 1,500*l.* in gold.

12,873. Who did go with him eventually?—Then Mr. Lind could not go, at least it was very inconvenient for him to have gone; then it was thought that Mr. Henson, I think of the Temple, happened to call and Mr. Smith suggested that he would be a very good man to go.

12,874. He was clerk to Mr. Edy and is now clerk to Sir Robert Collier?—Yes. Mr. Henson said he did not much like it and would rather not go; in fact, he declined to go; he said he did not know much about electioneering. Mr. Smith told him he would have nothing to do but to go down with him.

12,875. At that time was Mr. Healy mentioned —I think after that Mr. Mason of Victoria Street who is a solicitor and parliamentary agent, called, believe, on some other matters.

12,876. Where does he live?—I do not know; his office is at No. 4, Victoria Street. I must tell you that he has done some parliamentary work for us.

12,877. Was it suggested that he should go down —Mr. Smith asked him if he would go and he would have gone, I think, but I suggested that it should be left open. It occurred to me there was no necessity for it, and it would be only a useless expense.

12,878. Did Mr. Smith explain to you why he wanted a clerk to go down with him, except for the purpose of taking care of the money?—I quite understood for no other purpose whatever, he simply wanted a clerk to go with him. Mr. Smith met with a railway accident some time ago, and he does not like much to travel alone; he said to me he did not like taking this money.

12,879. Are you quite certain that Mr. Mason did not come down?—I am not quite sure, but I am sure we never asked him to come down after that. You can see him and you will find that he did not come; he did not to my knowledge. I suggested to Mr. Smith that it should be left open, and we took no further notice and never wrote to him afterwards.

12,880. Did Mr. Mason come down with Mr. Smith?—I think I might say there was no further communication with Mr. Mason after. Then Mr. Healy called.

12,881. Who is Mr. Healy?—He is an accountant and surveyor in Bedford Row, and he does business for us.

12,882. Was he calling at your office on other business?—I am not quite certain about that; I rather think he was calling on other business. He frequently calls, if he has any property to sell, about the particulars. I must tell you I think he was on one occasion secretary to an hospital of which Mr. Smith was honorary secretary.

12,883. (Mr. Coleridge.) What hospital was that —The Great Northern.

12,884. Did Mr. Mason suggest any person who would be good to go instead of himself?—He did not; I think I can swear that.

12,885. (Mr. Bere.) I understand that Mr. Henson, Mr. Mason, and Mr. Healy were the only persons you saw about this matter?—Yes; I have no recollection to two or three who called; it might have been mentioned to others.

12,886. When you spoke to these gentlemen, did you intimate it to either of them that they would have to stay at Totnes some time?—No, I do not think 12,887. Was it intimated to them that they were go with Mr. Smith to take care of the money and en come back immediately?—I do not think there as any intimation of the sort one way or the other; do not think there was anything said as to their ming back.

12,888. Do I understand, then, that it was simply r. Smith's reluctance to travel alone by railway that used him to wish to have a companion?—I think so understood it; I never understood any other ason.

12,889. Mr. Smith has told us that he had the oney in a portmanteau, and I suppose the portmanau went into the van?—No, I think that is very probable, I should think it was put into the carage with them.

12,890. Then it was to take care of Mr. Smith and e money?—I must tell you that Mr. Smith invably takes a clerk with him even in London, to ceive dividends, and Mr. Lind has always been a rt of factotum of his, and he wished him to go ith him.

12,891. None of those three men did go?—No.

12,892. Mr. Healy seemed anxious to comply with r. Smith's request; I want to call your attention a letter you wrote?—I will explain it. Mr. Healey emed disposed to go, but after he left he was to let know whether his engagements would admit of it. fter he left I said to Mr. Smith, "Really there is no necessity for taking him, there will be nothing to do, and he will be of no use; I think you had better not take him." Mr. Smith said, "Having asked him we must wait for his answer at all events." said, "We had better write him a letter that he is not to go, and tell him we have made another arrangement;" and then, I think he suggested king Mr. Daw.

12,893. That does not explain your letter; just read . Here is a letter from you to Mr. Edmonds stating ie fact that you had been negotiating with Mr. Wesomb and mentioning Colonel Dawkins' name?—That is very probable.

12,894. Do you remember the date of that?—No have never seen that letter since I wrote it.

11,895. Just look at that letter and read it over to ourself, that is not an order to Mr. Healy not to go?—That is not putting him off entirely.

12,896. In consequence of that letter did Mr. Healy ome and see you the next morning?—I do not rellect that; he said if he had not received that letter e should not have gone.

12,897. What do you mean by the words "do not care to have anything to do with it?"—He said he ould not have gone if it had not been for my letter, e would rather not have anything to do with eleconeering.

12,898. Was he to receive payment for it?—There as not a word said about that.

12,899. Would he have gone down to Totnes on an ncertain mission without being paid?—I believe if e had asked him he would, but of course if he had one he would have been paid.

12,900. What do you mean by this passage, "I have so arranged matters to-day to avoid an inconvenience arising to Mr. Smith by your not going, so please to do whatever you think best." What rrangements had you made?—That Mr. Daw should o for that day, and that Mr. Lind should then go own to Mr. Smith, and that when one went down the ther should come back.

12,901. What age is Mr. Lind?—About 36 or 37.

12,902. Has he been some time with you?—He has been in the office longer than either of us, he has been here for the last 20 years.

12,903. When Mr. Smith came back to London did e mention to you any conversation he had had with Mr. Edmonds?—No, he never said anything of it.

12,904. That Mr. Edmonds had suggested to Mr. Smith that it would be necessary to employ a stranger from London for the purpose of distributing the money?—I am perfectly certain that Mr. Smith never mentioned that to me.

12,905. Did he tell you how the 1,500*l.* was to be spent?—No. I always understood that it would be handed over to the local agents. We know nothing about electioneering, and had never had anything to do with it before.

12,906. Are you certain that Mr. Smith never told you to bring a man from London for the purpose of distributing the money?—I am perfectly certain of that.

12,907. (Mr. Coleridge.) When one of your clerks went down the one who had gone with Mr. Smith was to return?—I understood that when Mr. Lind went down Mr. Daw would come back. I could not so well spare Mr. Lind as Mr. Daw.

12,908. What caused Mr. Smith to want anyone down here? I can understand his wanting some one to go with him when he had the money in his charge, but why did he want anyone here?—I do not know why he kept them here.

12,909. If Mr. Daw went down why did he want Mr. Lind at all?—He wished Mr. Lind to go with him in the first instance, but he could not go that day, so the arrangement was that Mr. Daw should go with Mr. Smith and then Mr. Lind should follow.

12,910. I suppose you would imagine that when Mr. Smith kept them here he had found something for them to do?—That is a matter which never entered into my mind; I was very busy at that time.

12,911. Did you not think he had found something for them to do?—It would seem rather strange that he should keep them there without their having something to do.

12,912. When he not only kept Mr. Lind but Mr. Daw down here, did it never occur to you that he had found something for them to do?—Until after the election I never heard of it. I considered that they were doing something.

12,913. Did you write to Mr. Smith to remonstrate with him about keeping them down here so long?—Certainly not. I did not know anything about the arrangements of the election. It might have occurred to him that they would be exceedingly useful.

12,914. (Mr. Bere.) What was Mr. Lind in your office at this time—was he your managing clerk?—He was our managing clerk.

12,915. The managing clerk of the whole business of the office?—No; he more particularly attended to the common law and to the books; he was a very important clerk.

12,916. What did Mr. Daw do—what was his department?—The conveyancing department more particularly.

12,917. How many clerks do you keep?—Eleven or 12.

12,018. This was during the time of the London sittings and the sittings of the Court of Chancery, a most busy time of the year for you?—Yes; we were particularly busy before they went, and it was very inconvenient to me for them to be down here.

12,919. Do you know what time it was that Mr. Lind went down?—I am not quite sure whether it was the day after or two days after Mr. Smith went down.

12,920. Did he go down in the middle of the day or by a late train?—I do not know.

12,921. Did you see him in the office on the morning of the day he went down?—I really cannot tell you that; I rather think he went down in the after part of the day; I am not sure of that.

12,922. The arrangement was that Mr. Smith should go down with Mr. Daw, and that Mr. Lind should follow. Was there any communication received by you from Mr. Smith desiring that Mr. Lind should come down also?—I do not think there was any communication to that effect, it was understood that Mr. Lind should go down.

12,923. And that being so, you then thought that Mr. Daw would come up?—I thought so.

12,924. Would such a communication have been made through you, or would it have been made by Mr. Smith directly to Mr. Lind?—I think that Mr. Smith would have written to me; he might have written to Mr. Lind at the same time.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. J. Guscotte.

6 Sept. 1866.

12,925. Is Mr. Daw a person with light whiskers?—Yes, he is a man of light complexion.

12,926. What height should you say he is?—About five feet nine or ten.

12,927. And about what age would he be?—About 22 or 23. He will be coming down here to-morrow.

12,928. How long did Mr. Smith and the two clerks stay away?—I think Mr. Smith came back on the night of the election. He did not come to the office; he wrote me a note from the "Great Western" hotel, saying he had arrived and had gone home to Finchley.

12,929. Did you receive any communication from Mr. Smith, Mr. Lind, or Mr. Daw during their absence?—No doubt I did, but I never kept any of those communications.

12,930. Were you not aware that a good deal more money would be wanted than you have mentioned to us?—I was not aware of that at the time.

12,931. At the time when Mr. Smith went to Totnes was it agreed between you and him on which account he should draw if money was wanted?—There was no agreement made about it.

12,932. Did you draw on the partnership account with Ransom and Bouverie?—Yes.

12,933. It was necessary for you to know what cheques were drawn on that account, was it not?—Mr. Smith was at liberty to draw what cheques he liked, of course.

12,934. Must you not have communicated with him and said you know the account is not to be overdrawn?—No; we should know pretty well about that.

12,935. Was Mr. Smith then drawing heavy sums, because there were two cheques of 1,000*l.* and one of 500*l.*?—No; we had a very large sum of money at our bankers at that time.

12,936. You had?—We had. I think I saw a letter or read a letter in which it was said we had not any money of Colonel Dawkins. I may tell you we had 9,000*l.* or 10,000*l.* at the time of his election The book shows the receipt of 9,500*l.* on the 4th of July.

12,937. I do not think it does?—I think you will find it does. I will go and get the ledger and show it to you.

12,938. (Mr. Coleridge.) From the time Mr. Lind came down to Totnes to the time when Mr. Smith returned from Totnes, on the occasion that Mr. Lind returned to town for a short time, you did not see him?—I did not see him.

12,939. You did not see Mr. Lind from the time he was away till the time he came home?—He did not return to the office, that is my impression. I never heard of that or anything like it.

12,940. (Mr. Bere.) Have you now got the book, and can you tell us what Colonel Dawkins' account was at that time?—I see on July 10th, received 9,500*l.* from Colonel Dawkins.

12,941. How is it that Mr. Smith could not have known that you had received that, because it was before he drew those two cheques for 1,000*l.* each, which were drawn upon the very day it was paid in?—No, he drew on the 17th.

12,942. No, the 10th?—They are entered in the books on the 10th.

12,943. Did you receive any communication of the drawing of them till the 17th?—No, until I saw them as being paid in the bank book.

12,944. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know of any large cheque being drawn by Mr. Smith on the 17th besides this?—I have it. "You at Totnes, 6*l.*;" the same day, "You, 1,000*l.*;" "You, 100*l.*" "You, "500*l.*" They are drawn at Totnes and entered in our books as drawn on the 17th.

12,945. It must have been the clearing between the country bankers and the agents?—Those are the cheques.

12,946. They are the 10th?—Then they would be the same.

12,947. Just go back to your account and see what was the last large cheque you drew before that?—1,500*l.*; that was drawn on the 6th. The 7th, I suppose, would be the day it was paid, when Mr. Smith came to Totnes.

12,948. Do I understand you as to what you heard. What communications did you receive from Mr. Smith during the time?—If I received many I very likely should know. If I received anything like an important communication I should remember it. This is not important. I may have heard they were spending a good deal of money, and as to the chances of Colonel Dawkins getting in, nothing more.

12,949. Who came back first, Mr. Smith or Mr. Lind?—Mr. Smith and Mr. Daw; he is a Devonshire man, and he went to see some friends, and I think he took Mr. Lind down with him.

12,950. When did he come back again?—In three or four days.

12,951. Did you have any talk with him when he came back about what had happened in Totnes?—I never entered on the subject very much; I might have had some general conversation.

12,952. Did you say you were surprised at Lind and Daw going down together?—I might have said so to him.

12,953. Did you not remark that?—I daresay something of the kind passed. I think I asked why they stayed, and they said Mr. Smith did not tell them to go back, and so they stayed.

12,954. Did they tell you how they employed themselves while down here?—I understood them to say that they had nothing to do but to walk about the place seeing the people and voters, and what was going on. I think on one or two occasions they went over to the "Seymour Arms."

12,955. Did they tell you what they did when they saw the voters?—No, I never had any conversation. I may tell you I asked the question whether they paid anything to the voters, and they told me distinctly not.

12,956. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Smith told us the money was paid by one of the clerks to Mr. Edmonds?—That is very possible.

12,957. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell us distinctly the day when Mr. Lind came back?—I do not see how I could. I think he would know better than me, but if I had my diary here there might be a note of it. I think the Monday morning after the election was the last time he came to the office; I am not sure.

12,958. Did you have a note from him on the day of the election?—I think he said he should not come in for a few days unless he was particularly wanted.

12,959. Did he happen to be particularly wanted for the next few days?—No. I do not think that he did come in till the Monday following.

12,960. When you saw him did you speak to him about the Totnes election?—I do not recollect any conversation I had with him about it.

12,961. Did you ask him how it had been lost?—Yes, I suppose I did; and I think he told me a lot of Totnes voters who had signed the requisition to Colonel Dawkins went and voted the other way.

12,962. Did he tell you how much had been spent?—I think he told me what cheques had been drawn. I have no doubt he did.

12,963. Did he tell you how the money was got rid of, to whom he had given the money?—No, he did not at that time. I have since heard at the time of the petition that he had paid it to Mr. Edmonds.

12,964. Before Colonel Dawkins went down do you know whether any communication about money matters had taken place between you and Mr. Spofforth?—I do not know.

12,965. Or the Carlton Club?—I do not know.

12,966. Do you know that any money had been romised him by the Carlton?—No, I never heard it.

12,967. (Mr. Coleridge.) You never heard that the arlton were going to stand so much money?—No.

12,968. (Mr. Bere.) Did you have any communiation with the Carlton Club during the time of the ection?—I interfered with it very little. I was xcessively busy, and I had a great deal to do at that me.

12,969. When was the next time you saw Colonel Dawkins?—I think he went to Plymouth on the aturday night, and I wrote to him at Plymouth. I o not know when I next saw him.

12,970. That would be after the election, would it ot?—Yes, I should think so.

12,971. Were the letters copied?—I do not know, rather think they would be. I think the purport of y letter was, that I understood Mr. Gathorne Hardy as elected for Oxford as well as Leominster, and I hought there would be a vacancy at Leominster if he elt disposed to try.

12,972. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know whether any emand regarding this election had been made against Colonel Dawkins besides the sums communicated by Mr. Smith at the time of the election, and in the ccounts sent in by Mr. Hannaford?—I was speaking o Mr. Edmonds about the account last night, and I hink I heard that Mr. Robert Harris wanted 50*l.*

12,973. He had the regulars?—He had the regulars.

12,974. Did nobody demand any sum of money of Colonel Dawkins excepting the election account?—No, I do not recollect.

12,975. (Mr. Bere.) Here is a letter of the 16th of July. "Dear sir,—When you return to town I shall e glad to see you as early as possible to-day." Was hat before or after?—I think that is one of the letters.

12,976. You say in this letter, "I would suggest, on ' your standing, not to spend more than a few hun- ' dreds beyond any sum the Carlton may be disposed ' to pay." At that time had you any reason to believe that the Carlton would advance money if he stood for Leominster?—I really cannot tell you. I suppose I must have heard something from some one about it.

12,977. Did you see Mr. Spofforth about Leominster?—I rather think I did. I fancy I saw Mr. Spofforth at Westminster, after hearing that Leominster would be vacant. That is the first time.

12,978. In this communication that passed, you ntimated to Colonel Dawkins as he had spent so much t Totnes, and had been unsuccessful, that it would be nfair to spend money at Leominster?—I think so. There may be something of that kind, that as he had pent so much money at Totnes he ought not to pay he expenses.

12,979. Did he say he would do it?—I think not. I think I said the contrary. I did not know what the Club would do.

12,980. You had some communication from Mr. Edmunds afterwards?—Yes.

12,981. In regard to the payment of the bills?—I was in North Wales at the time, and I do not think I had anything to do with it.

12,982. When did you leave London?—I left London on the 21st of August.

12,983. And you were away for some time?—I was away a month or six weeks.

12,984. Who made out the account?—The election account.

12,985. With regard to the election?—We had nothing to do with that; no doubt Mr. Edmonds did.

12,986. Who made out the 69*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* that was charged to Mr. Smith's disbursements?—That is my account; I made that up entirely.

12,987. Out of what materials?—We did not intend to charge Colonel Dawkins anything professionally. We drew another draft, and made out the disbursements thus, 8*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* paid to Mr. Smith. The way we managed was, when he was going he drew upon the firm for it; he drew 8*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* for his first journey, and 19*l.* 5*s.* for the second. I do not know how that sum was made up. I think that it was of sums drawn as expenses. The clerks drew 15*l.* odd for theirs. Then I find my own expenses in London, cabs to various places before any place was decided on, telegraphed to different places, and there were various disbursements taken out of the petty disbursements book, and they made up 10*l.* or 11*l.* I think I put down a round sum of 25*l.* to cover all sorts of petty disbursements of that kind; that is all we charged. I am able to take about 8*l.* or 9*l.* out of that, out of my petty cash book. That is how it was made up at the time, and was charged to cash account as our disbursements.

12,988. You charged the expenses of the clerks?—Yes.

12,989. Though you never knew what they did?—When they came back they drew their expenses from the office.

12,990. The hotel bills?—I am sure I do not know anything about it.

12,991. Mr. Smith's hotel expenses came from Colonel Dawkins?—I do not know how that might have transpired. I know nothing more than that Mr. Smith drew that sum as expenses. I fancy it was spent in railway fares; and he once paid Colonel Dawkins' railway fare as well as his own.

12,992. (Mr. Coleridge.) Taking the fact that those clerks were useful in London, you would charge Colonel Dawkins for their expenses?—I was not there. I never saw anything of them.

12,993. No doubt they were of some service?—I should assume they were doing something. I have heard them say that they did nothing. Of course you can ask them.

12,994. (Mr. Bere.) Did you receive that letter from Mr. Bryett (handing a letter to the witness)?—I think I have seen that before. It was to Mr. Smith.

12,995. Do you know whether in consequence of that letter the sum of money mentioned was sent down?—I rather think I gave Mr. Harris 25*l.* after that letter.

12,996. Did you receive communications from any person in Totnes with the exception of Mr. Edmonds?—No, I do not think I did. I do not recollect having any communication.

12,997. Did you write, during the time Mr. Smith was in Totnes, to Mr. Edmonds?—I have no doubt I did.

12,998. Can you tell me the purport of those letters?—No, I have not the least recollection. I am almost certain I had not any communication with him in regard to the election, but on general matters I had.

12,999. When did you first hear of the election petition?—I think after the election Colonel Dawkins returned to London, and told me he should like to present a petition, and I think we wrote to Mr. Edmonds that he had better get up what evidence he could to see if there was a chance. Mr. Edmonds got up some evidence, and sent it up to me. I read it through, and sent it on to Mr. Spofforth.

13,000. Was there any intention on Colonel Dawkins' part to claim the seat?—Yes, I think at one time he thought about it.

13,001. You very soon undeceived him?—I told him it was of no use, he was tainted in the same way, and it was clear that the petition would show there was bribery on both sides, and it was a useless case.

13,002. Look at that letter from Mr. Spofforth; was that the first letter you received from Mr. Spofforth on the subject of the election petition?—I cannot tell you whether this is the first letter I received.

13,003. Just look at that (handing another letter to the witness)?—I should think that letter had reference to it.

13,004. In consequence of that did you go and see Mr. Spofforth?—I think that either Mr. Smith or myself went to see him. I know we had an interview with him upon it, and I think the matter slept until January.

13,005. Just look at that letter. Who is Mr. Tomlinson?—I never heard the name before.

13,006. Read the letter down, and perhaps it may

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. J. Guscotte.

6 Sept. 1866.

refresh your memory?—I did not know his name was Tomlinson; I have no doubt that is Mr. Spofforth's private secretary, I see it is his handwriting; Mr. Spofforth's shorthand writer, or his private secretary.

13,007. That is as far as you can remember the first letter you received?—Yes, I think it was the 18th of January 1866.

13,008. "Private and confidential.—6, Victoria "Street, Westminster Abbey, S.W. Dear sirs,—I "have had a letter from Mr. Edmonds to say that he "has now got his evidence as perfect as possible, and "proposes to come and lay it in its present state be- "fore me. I have written to him appointing next "Tuesday the 23rd, at 11 o'clock, for this purpose, "and shall ask Mr. Cooke, Q.C., to attend the con- "sultation. Commander Pim came in whilst I was "writing the letter, and I told him of it. He has "written to Colonel Dawkins, suggesting that at 11.30 "on Wednesday the 24th, Colonel Dawkins, he, and "yourselves shall have a meeting here finally to de- "cide on the course to be taken and the nature of the "petition to be presented to the House. Will you "tell me if this appointment will suit you? I am, "dear sirs, yours faithfully, M. SPOFFORTH.—Messrs. "Smith and Guscotte, Essex Street, Strand"?—Yes, I received that.

13,009. In consequence of that did you see Capt. Pim and Col. Dawkins at Mr. Spofforth's?—I think Mr. Smith attended.

13,010. When did you first begin to take any trouble about the election petition?—I think the next I heard of it was that Mr. Spofforth sent to me to know if we had determined to go on with it.

13,011. Did you not see Commander Pim and Col. Dawkins?—Not at that time. I knew there was something almost immediately after.

13,012. When did you first see Capt. Pim and Col. Dawkins upon the matter together?—The first time I saw them together was at Mr. Spofforth's.

13,013. How long after the 24th of January?—I think it must have been at that interview; I do not think there could have been two interviews.

13,014. Can you remember what passed on the part of Capt. Pim?—Yes. I think Capt. Pim seemed quite certain that we ought not to withdraw, but that we ought to go on; he felt certain that Mr. Pender would resign his seat.

13,015. Had he any reason for thinking that?—He said he had very good gronnds for thinking that; he was not certain.

13,016. Do you now know whether Capt. Pim is mixed up with the mercantile people to whom Mr. Pender is related?—I do not know; I think it is highly probable that he is.

13,017. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know if it is with the Whitworth ordnance or the electric telegraph?—I do not know. I know he has a good many speculations and things of that sort; it is just possible, but I do not know.

13,018. (Mr. Bere.) Did Capt. Pim bring a friend with him?—To attend to the election?

13,019. Yes?—Now I know that he had.

13,020. Did you ever see any person on Capt. Pim's behalf; just look at that name and do not mention it, you will know it when I refer to him again (showing a signature to a letter to the witness)?—I have not seen him.

13,021. If I ask you a question about Capt. Pim's friend I mean that person?—All right.

13,022. You saw Capt. Pim and he was of opinion that Mr. Pender would retire?—Yes.

13,023. He did not give any certain reasons?—I rather gleaned from his manner that he had his reasons for thinking so.

13,024. Was any negotiation entered into with Mr. Pender before the petition was presented?—Not through me.

13,025. Through anybody?—The first I heard was from Mr. Spofforth, as I told you. Mr. Spofforth said to me he would like to see me; I think he said, "Did "the Colonel intend to go on with the petition?"

13,026. When was that?—It must have been at the end of January; it was after the interview he said he was anxious to have it withdrawn. I gleaned from his manner that if this was withdrawn three or four others would probably be withdrawn as a set-off against it.

13,027. That there must be a set-off?—It was probable.

13,028. You understood what I said?—I considered that he asked that.

13,029. Did Mr. Spofforth give you any idea at the time of negotiations having been carried on between the two parties?—No, he did not.

13,030. Then this person; was it the name of that person I have just shown to you?—Not at that time. The first time I heard that name mentioned in connexion with this matter was by Capt. Pim himself.

13,031. Did Capt. Pim give you to understand this person had negotiations with another of the same name?—I do not think he mentioned the name so early but later.

13,032. At that time did you understand that the petition from Totnes was to be set off against others, but money was to be paid for the withdrawal of it?—After I saw Mr. Spofforth, he said the best thing is to telegraph to Col. Dawkins. He was at Brackley, hunting, and I telegraphed to him and he came up. I telegraphed to Mr. Edmonds and he also came, and Capt. Pim.

13,033. What passed then?—We first went through the evidence, and then Mr. Spofforth said, "Having "gone through the evidence, is there sufficient case to "go on with?" Everybody was of opinion that there was, and everybody was desirous to go on. He said, "Are you able to go on? I think if you with- "draw the petition now the expenses up to this time "will be paid."

13,034. Was Mr. William Henry Cooke present at the conversations?—I think he was.

13,035. As counsel?—I am not certain; I do not think he was present at the time.

13,036. Before the petition came on how many consultations were you present at when Mr. Cooke was there?—I think two.

13,037. Two times before that?—I think we had only one some time before; I think we had one when Mr. Cooke was there to give an opinion.

13,038. Were the other counsel in the case there?—No; at that time they had not briefs.

13,039. Mr. Cooke was generally advising you?—He was to attend and go through the evidence; he heard it, and said he thought there was a good case; he pointed out two or three strong cases from the evidence. Col. Dawkins said he did not feel disposed, and he did not think he ought to be expected to withdraw the petition on the expenses being paid unless the whole of the expenses were paid. Mr. Spofforth said, "What is that?" He said, "5,000*l.* altogether." Mr. Spofforth said it would not be legal for you to compromise the petition like that. I think he said he would consider it, and he went away. Some little time afterwards he decided he would go on unless they brought forward his own case with a view of getting a commission of inquiry.

13,040. Was a communication made by you to Col. Dawkins, or do you know that he communicated with a person that had been a Liberal member of Parliament?—Yes, I think he did.

13,041. The petition went on, did it?—Yes. I must tell you that Col. Dawkins wrote up from the country; I was to telegraph to him to come up again. I did not consider it quite settled; I thought before entering into the matter of the expenses it would be better to put it before him. He said, "I do not see "the use of my coming; I have quite decided to "come in should Mr. Pender give up his seat."

13,042. When did the witnesses first come up to London?—I think the night before the petition was coming on.

13,043. Whom had you employed besides Mr. Edmonds to get up the evidence; did you not employ

Tucker, of Ashburton?—No, he is on the other

044. (Mr. Coleridge.) Mr. Spofforth merely as the parliamentary agent?—Yes, he had no- to do with it; there were no briefs.

045. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know the day the esses came to London?—They came up the night e the petition.

046. When did you first see Mr. Harris?—On iorning of the petition; he went to Westminster me.

047. Did he come down to your office?—Yes, Mr. Narramore.

048. Do you remember any conversation taking about the compromise?—Yes, I do. I recollect, it his: Mr. Narramore had received a threatening from some person in Totnes; he was very an- about it, and it had reference to Charles erick Michelmore. I was taking him down, and Narramore was talking to Mr. Harris, and I think s Mr. Narramore said, although I am not certain, eard the other side had offered 10,000*l.* to com- mise it." I said, "Indeed." He said, "I believe . Pender would give anything to get it with- wn." That is all that passed.

049. Was anything at that interview mentioned your having communicated with Col. Dawkins gard to the same?—No. I saw that Mr. Harris omething about it, and I am certain that was a ke; he must have misunderstood what I said to Dawkins before we decided to go on at the last nt.

050. Had you ever heard of an offer made by ther side?—No, I never heard of any distinct only in a general way.

051. What did you hear about Mr. Pender? you hear, excepting in a general way, that Mr. r would give a good deal to compromise?—I ever heard it distinctly. He said he was sure e had good reasons for knowing that Mr. Pen- ould give any sum.

052. Did you hear of any sum of 15,000*l.*?—I ill last night. I felt quite satisfied that the sum oned in my notice was not 15,000*l.* I am not n.

053. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was there something hat mentioned?—I think it was; that is at the iew that Mr. Harris referred to.

054. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know that negotia- had gone on between your side and Mr. Pender's that a sum of money had been mentioned, and 'ender refused to give that sum of money?—I heard of it. I cannot fancy it ever took place. iid it must have been with Mr. Spofforth.

055. The petition was fought?—Yes, the on was fought.

056. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you hear it was to ne on with in order to get this inquiry?—No. k he told me that Mr. Pender had made some rks on the hustings that he did not like, and he letermined to carry on the petition.

057. Had any communications been made or ing said, or did they infer that a Royal Com- on would be appointed, and was that given as a n for withdrawing the petition?—I never heard ing of that. I think it was suspected.

058. Have you heard that he said it was of no or the thing to go on, because there probably l be a Royal Commission?—I do not recollect I do not think that anything of the sort was I think I might have said Totnes was too well n. I do not recollect anything about it.

059. When the negotiations were taking place Ir. Healy to go down, was it not understood that urpose for which he was to go down was to dis- te the money?—I will take my oath that it cer- y was not. There was not the slightest idea of ng him for that purpose.

060. However it might have been concealed, not that the purpose for which he was to go ?—I never heard a word about it, and I think Mr. Healy would have been the last man to do anything of that kind. He is a highly respectable man in a good way of business, and it would be absurd to ask him.

13,061. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is Mr. Mason a more likely man to do anything of that kind?—He is quite as unlikely; he is a solicitor, though he practises as a parliamentary agent.

13,062. (Mr. Longe.) Was there no conversation as to the manner in which this money was to be distributed?—No. I quite understood, and I think Mr. Smith did so, too, that the money would be paid over to Mr. Edmonds, who would distribute it.

13,063. (Mr. Coleridge.) Has any stranger made any claim upon you for doing such services as these?—No. I am perfectly certain that no such person has ever been paid by our firm. I have asked our clerks about it since I saw the accounts in the papers, and they both of them say they never saw such a man, and I never heard of such a person.

13,064. (Mr. Longe.) Have you any reasons for saying positively that your own clerks are not the men who did this?—Yes; they have told me they knew nothing about it. I came up from Brighton myself the day before yesterday, and we talked about what we had seen in the papers as to Mr. Mum, and I said to them, "Do you know anything of this man?" and from what they said I am quite certain they never saw the man or took any part in it.

13,065. (Mr. Bere.) Did you see Mr. Rennie as to any of these transactions?—No, I never saw him.

13,066. Had you any communication from him in writing?—I merely know him by name.

13,067. He came down here intending to stand on the Conservative interest and did not stand?—I never had any communication with him.

13,068. (Mr. Coleridge.) In getting up the evidence down here I suppose there is nothing you learnt about the other party which Mr. Edmonds cannot tell us?—I think not; I saw no one but those he introduced to me. I think he can give you all the information except as to the 50*l.* note.

13,069. Let us hear about that?—I think Mr. Edmonds can tell you all about that.

13,070. Have you got the note?—No; I think it was handed over to Mr. Edmonds after the election. I suppose he passed it away.

13,071. Can you describe that note?—I think it will be found described in our brief.

13,072. (Mr. Bere.) Did you see Mr. Oldrey while you were getting up the petition?—No, not except in the committee room.

13,073. Had you any conversation with him?—I think, while we were waiting for the decision, he came up and spoke to me. I met him one day in the Strand.

13,074. Did he tell you anything about Totnes, from his knowledge of it?—No; he told me that he had started for himself as an election agent.

13,075. (Mr. Longe.) Did you ever understand from Mr. Lind that he was to act according to Mr. Edmonds' instructions?—I think Mr. Lind understood that Mr. Edmonds was conducting the election, and that he would have to act under his instructions.

13,076. Did you send or receive any message to or from Mr. Smith while he was away?—I do not recollect any telegram.

13,077. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember that the 50*l.* note was number 05843?—I think that was it.

13,078. And dated July 9th, 1865?—I think so.

13,079. And the 100*l.* note number 22828?—Yes.

13,080. And dated April 10th, 1865?—Yes.

13,081. Was the 50*l.* note endorsed "Pengilley"?—Yes, that was the ear mark of the note. That was the reason why it was kept.

13,082. (Mr. Longe.) Can you tell us any conversation that passed between you and your clerks when they came back?—The election was lost, and there was an end of it.

13,083. Then how came you to ask them any ques-

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. J. Guscotte.

6 Sept. 1866.

tions ?—From pure curiosity I asked them what had taken place at Totnes generally.

13,084. Which of them was it who spoke to you about it ?—I do not recollect; most probably it was Mr. Lind.

13,085. You cannot tell us any of the conversation ?—No; I never made any note of it. It never occurred to me that it was of importance. When they came to the office in the morning in all probability I should ask them a question about it. I did not go into details.

13,086. (Mr. Bere.) Since the Commission have you received any communication from Mr. Spofforth or from Colonel Taylor ?—I have not received any from Colonel Taylor.

13,087. From Mr. Spofforth ?—I think I have had one letter from Mr. Spofforth, a private letter.

13,088. Have you got that letter ?—No, I think not. I do not know whether it is amongst the other letters.

13,089. Was it on the subject of the Commission ?—It was stating that Colonel Dawkins was away, and that he said he could not come back until after the second day.

13,090. Stating that Colonel Dawkins had gone to Boulogne, and would not be back by a certain time ?—That he would not be back on that day in particular.

13,091. Did you ever have any conversation with Colonel Dawkins as to the expense of contesting Totnes ?—Yes; I have no doubt many times.

13,092. And you communicated the knowledge you had acquired from others to him ?—Yes.

13,093. What expense did he seem willing to go to ?—I think when he came to Totnes he had no idea of going beyond 2,000*l.* or 2,500*l.*

13,094. Do you remember at this time what balance was in your hands belonging to Colonel Dawkins, about the 10th July for instance ?—We knew a fortnight before that of this 9,500*l.* coming. I think Mr. Smith would have known of that.

13,095. (Mr. Coleridge.) Had Colonel Dawkins asked you to provide the money ?—No.

13,096. Have you your banker's pass book here ?—Yes, here it is (handing it to the Commissioners). We had a general cash account with Col. Dawkins.

13,097. Most of these cheques were drawn on Mr. Smith's private account ?—I think only one of them.

13,098. I suppose that either of you sign cheques "Smith & Guscotte"?—Yes.

13,099. Have you anyone besides yourselves, anybody in the situation of a cashier, who is empowered by you to sign on behalf of the firm ?—No. With regard to what I said just now about the 50*l.* note, I may mention that after Mr. Edmonds had sent up the particulars of the 50*l.* note I saw Mr. Spofforth, and he arranged to write to the Bank of England to know to whom these notes had been paid, saying that it was necessary to the ends of justice that such information should be obtained. They informed him that on that day 2,000*l.* had been paid by the Bank of England to the Consolidated Bank.

13,100. And that this note formed part of the money ?—Yes, and that it had been paid to the account of a Mr. Salmon. We found out that he had drawn this out of the bank, and that this same note had been paid over to Mr. Salmon, and formed part of a sum of 2,000*l.* drawn out of the bank by him that day in notes.

Mr. S. Brown.

SAMUEL BROWN sworn and examined.

13,101. Are you a waiter at the "Seven Stars" hotel ?—I am.

13,102. Were you acting as waiter in July 1865 ?—Yes.

(Mr. Guscotte.) There is one thing I wish to correct. I am told that I had the 50*l.* note from Mr. Edmonds, but I did not recollect the circumstance. I think I paid it into our bankers, and gave him a cheque for it after the matter was over.

13,103. (Mr. Bere.) You received the note from Mr. Edmonds ?—Yes, I think so, and I gave him a cheque instead.

13,104. Could it be got back ?—I should suspect it is gone back to the Bank of England.

Mr. S. Brown.

Examination of SAMUEL BROWN continued.

13,105. (Mr. Bere.) How long have you been acting as waiter at the "Seven Stars ?"—Nearly six years.

13,106. (Mr. Coleridge.) During how many elections have you been waiter, three or four ?—From Mr. Dunn's to Col. Dawkins' and Capt. Pim's.

13,107. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember Col. Dawkins coming down to your hotel ?—I do.

13,108. What room did he occupy ?—No. 20.

13,109. Sitting-room ?—Yes.

13,110. What bedroom ?—A bedroom adjoining the sitting-room on one floor.

13,111. Did you wait upon him ?—Yes.

13,112. Who came with him ?—I think Capt. Fox.

13,113. Did Capt. Fox come the same day ?—I rather think he did, to the best of my recollection.

13,114. You have seen Mr. Smith; did not Mr. Smith come with Col. Dawkins the first day ?—I think so.

13,115. Did Col. Dawkins bring any servant ?—He brought his valet.

13,116. What sort of man is his valet ?—Tall, rather dark, with sallow complexion.

13,117. Old or young ?—Between 20 and 30.

13,118. Then Capt. Fox came down ?—Yes.

13,119. Did he dine in the same room with Col. Dawkins ?—Yes.

13,120. Do you remember Col. Alexander ?—Yes.

13,121. Did he have his meals with Col. Dawkins ?—Yes.

13,122. What is the largest number of people you saw at breakfast or dinner in Col. Dawkins's room ?—I can hardly tell you.

13,123. Have you seen more than four dine there ?—Yes, I have.

13,124. Have you seen Mr. Edmonds dining there ?—Yes.

13,125. And Mr. Kellock ?—Yes.

13,126. And Mr. Smith ?—Yes.

13,127. Mr. Harris did not dine there ?—He has dined there.

13,128. Did Col. Dawkins ?—I think so.

13,129. Have you seen him there ?—Yes.

13,130. Do you remember Capt. Pim coming down ?—Yes.

13,131. About the same time that Capt. Pim came down, do you remember a gentleman coming down who occupied a bedroom at the top of the house ?—I remember a gentleman coming down with Capt. Pim or soon afterwards, a friend of his.

13,132. Do you remember where he went; what bedroom he had ?—No, I do not.

13,133. You have heard of this mysterious stranger; did you ever see him ?—Yes.

13,134. Will you give us a description of him ?—He was a man about middle height, dark hair, rather light complexion.

13,135. (Mr. Coleridge.) Where did he have his meals, in his bedroom ?—I never took him any meals in the bedroom, occasionally in the coffee-room. I have known him dine in the commercial-room.

13,136. Never with Col. Dawkins ?—Never with Col. Dawkins.

13,137. How long did he stay there ?—He was there several days.

13,138. Two or three days?—I cannot tell to a day two.

13,139. Did you ever have any talk with him?—.

13,140. Do you know the exact time when he came wn?—No, I do not. I do not remember the day, t I believe he came by the mail train in the morning.

13,141. Were you up?—No, I was not.

13,142. Martha Gale was up that night?—I do not nk Martha Gale was there then.

13,143. Who were the servants in the house?—The ne servants as we have now, with the exception of e boots.

13,144. Who was the boots then?—Thomas Pack.

13,145. Where is he now?—At the "Globe" hotel Newton; he is boots there.

13,146. Can you tell when he went away, this man? No, I cannot.

13,147. Had you many strangers about the house at that time?—Yes, we had several there.

13,148. Did you know the names of any of them?—No, I could not remember.

13,149. Can you give us the name of any stranger down here?—No, I cannot.

13,150. Did you see two persons with whom Mr. Smith was often in communication?—The two clerks, I remember them, that is all.

13,151. Where did they sleep?—I rather think 15 or 16 bedroom.

13,152. Where did they have their meals?—No. 6 sitting-room.

13,153. Whose sitting-room was that?—It was what they used themselves. Mr. Smith was occasionally there, but he did not dine with them.

13,154. Did they dine by themselves?—Yes.

Mr. John Guscotte recalled.

Mr. J. Guscotte.

13,155. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have heard the name Henson, the name of the late Solicitor-General's rk?—Yes.

13,156. What was he wanted to come down for?—ecisely the same as a clerk. If he had come the rks would not have come. Mr. Smith wanted some e.

13,157. Do you know Mr. Henson?—Yes, I know him well. He was Mr. Edy's clerk, our pleader, and I have frequently seen him.

13,158. He was to come in the same capacity as your own clerks?—Yes. Mr. Smith wanted some one, and he thought Henson would do.

Samuel Brown recalled and further examined.

Mr. S. Brown.

13,159. (Mr. Bere.) When first had you any communication with this mysterious stranger?—I never d any communication.

13,160. Did he never send you to fetch any person him?—I remember his sending me on one occasion.

13,161. When?—I cannot tell the date.

13,162. Yes you can?—No, I cannot.

13,163. How long after he had come?—I have not e slightest recollection.

13,164. How long after he had come?—I really do t know.

13,165. What time of the day?—I believe in the ning.

13,166. On the evening of the day that he came?—, I believe not.

13,167. You say he came by the mail train?—Yes.

13,168. In the morning?—Yes.

13,169. Was it on the evening of the day that he ne by the mail train?—I think not.

13,170. The day after?—It may have been; I do t know.

13,171. Where did you see him?—Upstairs.

13,172. In his bedroom?—No, on the landing.

13,173. Near his bedroom?—No, the second floor.

13,174. That is the bedroom floor?—No, it is not.

13,175. (Mr. Coleridge.) What number was his lroom?—Thirteen.

13,176. Did you ever see him in his bedroom?—, I never went to it.

13,177. Did he ever have any meals in the bedm?—I never took him any. I do not know whether had any.

13,178. Who would attend to him?—The chamberid.

13,179. What is her name?—She was the same as have now.

13,180. What is her name?—Maria Pomeroy.

13,181. (Mr. Longe.) Do you know that he slept No. 13?—I could not swear to it. I know he was ying there.

13,182. (Mr. Bere.) You saw him on the landing? Yes.

13,183. Near the committee-room?—On the same or.

13,184. How far from the committee-room?—I do know.

13,185. Was the door open?—I do not know.

13,186. Did you see where he came from?—Upirs.

13,187. What did he say?—He told me to go and call Mr. Evens from the smoking-room.

13,188. Was that the first time you had ever talked to him?—I believe it is.

13,189. Had you ever spoken to him about Mr. Edmonds before?—No.

13,190. He told you to go and call Mr. Evens?—Yes.

13,191. Did you go?—Yes.

13,192. Did you give him Evens' christian name?—No.

13,193. Where was Evens?—In the smoking-room.

13,194. What Evens was it?—Mr. Frederick Evens.

13,195. Did you go and call him?—I did.

13,196. Did Frederick Evens go upstairs?—I believe he did.

13,197. Did you see him?—I did not; I left directly.

13,198. Did not you go in and say to Mr. Evens, "This is the gentleman that wants you," and point the stranger out to him?—I do not remember.

13,199. Are you sure you did not?—I do not believe I did.

13,200. Did not Evens and you go upstairs together?—I showed Mr. Evens up stairs; but I did not introduce him.

13,201. Did not you and Evens go up stairs together?—I do not recollect that I did.

13,202. Did you see the stranger again that night?—I did not.

13,203. (Mr. Coleridge.) Where did the stranger tell you to send Evens to?—Upstairs.

13,204. To 13?—Yes.

13,205. Did you tell Evens to go to No. 13?—Yes.

13,206. And you went to show him where the room was?—No, I did not.

13,207. Before you got to the room did not you and Evens meet the stranger?—I did not.

13,208. Are you sure you did not point him out as the person?—I do not remember that I did.

13,209. You may have done so?—Yes; but I do not remember it.

13,210. (Mr. Bere.) Did the stranger tell Evens to come up to 13, or come up to where he slept?—I did not see him speak to him.

13,211. When he told you, what did he tell you?—He told me to call Mr. Evens.

13,212. And to give Mr. Evens what message?—To tell him to come to 13. The gentleman was standing on the landing.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. S. Brown.

6 Sept. 1866.

13,213. Did you do nothing with Screach ?—No.

13,214. With regard to the stranger and Screach, did you not introduce Screach to the stranger ?—No.

13,215. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you send Screach to the stranger ?—No.

13,216. Did the stranger ask you to send Screach to him ?—No.

13,217. Did you hear the stranger mention Screach's name ?—Never.

13,218. Did you ever fetch anyone from the Bridge to the stranger ?—No.

13,219. (Mr. Bere.) You had better take care. Do you know what Screach has sworn ?—Yes, I have read it.

13,220. (Mr. Longe.) You know the evidence he gave ?—Yes.

13,221. You deny it ?—I do deny it.

13,222. (Mr. Bere.) What is it you deny ?—That I fetched Screach from the Bridge.

13,223. Where did you fetch him from ?—I never fetched him at all.

13,224. Did you talk to him about the stranger ?—I do not know that I did.

13,225. Take care. When did you talk to Screach about the stranger, and where did you talk to him ?—I do not remember ever talking to Screach about the stranger.

13,226. Did Screach talk to you about him ?—I do not remember an instance.

13,227. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you ever talk to anybody else about the stranger in Screach's presence ?—I may have heard remarks about Mr. Mum.

13,228. Let us hear what you said to anybody else in Screach's presence ?—I do not remember.

13,229. You say you may have made remarks ?—Yes.

13,230. What remarks ?—I might hear about Mr. Mum.

13,231. Did not you contribute your quota as to what you knew about Mr. Mum ?—No, not in the least.

13,232. Had you been told to hold your tongue ? Be careful ?—No.

13,233. Did not John Heath tell you to be careful what you said ?—No.

13,234. Never about the election ?—No, never.

13,235. Has anybody else ?—No.

13,236. Had you any caution from anybody about what you said at the election ?—None whatever.

13,237. Did you ever see Screach and the stranger together ?—I did not.

13,238. Did you see Screach go to 13 ?—I have seen him go upstairs.

13,239. Towards 13 ?—I think he must have been going there.

13,240. Was 13 the only room occupied as a sitting-room on that floor ?—It is a bedroom.

13,241. But the stranger sat in 13. Was any other room occupied like that ?—Not that I am aware of.

13,242. Then if Screach was going upstairs he must have been going to 13 ?—He may have been, and I have no doubt he was.

13,243. (Mr. Longe.) Numbers 15, 16, and 13 are on the same floor ?—Yes.

13,244. No. 14 between them ?—Yes.

13,245. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know the names of Mr. Smith's clerks ?—No.

13,246. Was one named Lind, and the other Daw ?—I have heard their names mentioned.

13,247. Do you know them by sight ?—I think so ; I would not swear.

13,248. Come, come, you say you saw them ?—Yes; but I do not know that I should know them again.

13,249. You saw them here ?—Yes.

13,250. You knew they were about as Mr. Smith's clerks ?—Yes.

13,251. Did you see them going to No. 13 ?—No.

13,252. They slept in 15 ?—Yes.

13,253. How far is that apart from 13 ?—Two doors.

13,254. Did you see them going towards 13 ?—never saw them at 13.

(Mr. Bere.) You were not asked that, you know.

13,255. (Mr. Coleridge.) Going towards it ?—No.

13,256. Must you pass 13 to get to 15 ?—No.

13,257. Must you 15 to get to 13 ?—Yes.

13,258. Have you seen them going towards 15 ?—Yes ; 15 is just at the top of the stairs.

13,259. You have seen them going towards 15, and never towards 13 ?—I never did.

13,260. You have never seen them pass 14 to go to 13 ?—No.

13,261. You have seen them going the way that would lead to 13 ?—The stairs would lead them.

13,262. You have seen them going towards 15 ?—Yes.

13,263. And never seen them going to 13 ?—No.

13,264. (Mr. Longe.) Did they sleep in one room ?—I do not know that.

13,265. When did they come ?—I believe one with Mr. Smith, and one the day after.

13,266. (Mr. Coleridge.) When did you last see the stranger ?—I do not know.

13,267. Come, be careful. Who paid the stranger's bill ?—The stranger paid his own.

13,268. Did he pay you ?—I believe he did.

13,269. What amount did he pay ?—I cannot tell.

13,270. About ? What did he give you for yourself ?—He is charged that.

13,271. How much ?—I cannot recollect.

13,272. Was it a week ?—I do not know.

13,273. Was he down more than once ?—I do not recollect.

13,274. Do you recollect his going away ?—I cannot say I do.

13,275. Do you not recollect ?—I do not.

13,276. Be careful. Do you recollect the stranger leaving your house in the morning ?—I had missed him nearly the whole of the day.

13,277. Tell me the day you missed him ?—I cannot tell you.

13,278. Was it the Sunday before the election ?—I may have been ; I cannot tell.

13,279. Was it the Monday before the election ?—I cannot tell.

13,280. Was it the Monday before the election ?—I cannot tell.

13,281. The Saturday ?—It may have been.

13,282. Was it before or after the election ?—Before I think.

13,283. You have got so far. How much before it ?—I cannot tell.

13,284. Nonsense. We must have it ?—I cannot tell.

13,285. How came you to recollect that you missed him a whole day ?—Because he did not have any meals.

13,286. What day was it ?—I cannot answer. I am sure.

13,287. Do you recollect what time he came back when he returned ?—I cannot.

13,288. You missed him a whole day ?—Yes.

13,289. What time did you miss him ?—I believe he went after breakfast.

13,290. When did you see him again ?—I do not know. Not till the next morning.

13,291. What time ?—I think in the morning.

13,292. Are you sure ?—I am not sure.

13,293. Did you see him again till the Monday morning ?—I cannot recollect.

13,294. When did you miss him again ?—I do not know.

13,295. Who brushed his coat—the boots ?—I suppose so.

13,296. Where did you attend him ?—He sometimes had his meals in the coffee-room.

13,297. Had he them regularly in the coffee-room ?—I do not know.

13,298. Did you look at his bill before you took it up ?—I cannot remember.

13,299. Do you look at bills before you take them ?—Occasionally.

13,300. Did you see what meals were charged for his bedroom ?—No; I do not remember it.

(Mr. Bere.) If you go on in this way we shall take e same course with you as we did with regard to r. Heath, and perhaps that may have the same effect on your memory as it did upon his.

13,301. (Mr. Longe.) You say you do not know e day when the stranger and the two clerks arrived ? I do not know.

13,302. What made you say he came by the mail ain ?—I remember a gentleman coming by the mail ain, and his bedroom was No. 13.

13,303. (Mr. Coleridge.) In whose handwriting as the bill made out ?—I do not know.

13,304. You know the handwriting of the barmaid? I might if I saw it.

13,305. (Mr. Bere.) Who gave you the bill ?—I do t know.

13,306. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know the handriting of the barmaid ?—Yes.

13,307. Do you know Mr. John Heath's handwrit-g ?—No.

13,308. Do you know whether the bill was made t in the handwriting of the barmaid ?—I do not ow.

13,309. In whose handwriting was it made out ?— lo not know.

13,310. Who usually makes out the bills ?—Some-nes Miss Heath and sometimes Miss Prout.

13,311. Is it always Miss Heath or the barmaid ?— es.

13,312. Do you know Miss Heath's handwriting ? Yes.

13,313. In whose handwriting was the bill ?—I annot remember.

13,314. At what time did the stranger ask you for e bill ?—I believe in the morning.

13,315. What day ?—I do not remember.

13,316. Before or after the election ?—I think fore.

13,317. How much before ?—I do not really know.

13,318. Will you swear it was not the election day? I could not swear, but I do not believe it was.

13,319. Will you swear it was not the day after the ection ?—It may have been.

13,320. Do not you know perfectly well it was the ay after ?—No.

13,321. You do not believe it was the election day? No.

13,322. Nor the nomination day ?—No.

13,323. How did he pay you your bill ; gold, notes, what ?—I forget. It was not much of a bill, I ink. In fact sometimes he paid for what he had.

13,324. Everything he had was not charged in that ill ?—Everything he had, I think.

13,325. Then what do you mean by saying he some-mes paid ?—Sometimes what he had he paid for.

13,326. He would pay for a meal in the coffee room ? Yes.

13,327. You took him this bill and he paid it ?— es.

13,328. Did you get it receipted ?—I do not remem-er that I did.

13,329. Don't you usually ?—If it is a large mount.

13,330. Do you receipt bills yourself ?—No.

13,331. Who receipts them ?—I take them to the ar.

13,332. Was it Miss Heath or Miss Prout ?—I annot recollect.

13,333. What time did the stranger go away after e got his bill ?—I do not remember.

13,334. How long after the stranger paid his bill id you see him again ?—I do not remember.

13,335. (Mr. Bere.) The last time you saw him was when he paid his bill ?—To the best of my tion.

13,336. What time ?—I cannot say.

13,337. Night or morning ?—I believe morning.

13,338. Do not you know it was the morning after the election ?—I do not know.

13,339. The morning of the election ?—I believe it was the day after.

13,340. You know perfectly well it must have been ? —I do not, and if I knew I would answer.

13,341. Did not you see the stranger on the morning of the election ?—I do not think I did.

13,342. Did not you see him on the evening of the nomination day ?—I could not swear.

13,343. Will you swear you did not see him on the day of the election ?—I will not.

13,344. (Mr. Longe.) You say you remember the two clerks coming and this person, the stranger, coming ?—Yes.

13,345. Who came first ?—I think the stranger came first.

13,346. What is your reason for thinking that ?—I fancy so, to the best of my knowledge.

13,347. Did you ever see the stranger in conversation with Mr. Heath ?—I do not remember that I ever did, except once I think I did near the smoking room door.

13,348. Where were you in the habit of seeing him? —Only when he had his meals, that is all. I might pass him occasionally, but I cannot remember exactly.

13,349. Several times you saw him about the house? —Yes, I have seen him walking about in the evening.

13,350. Did you ever see him in conversation with Mr. Edmonds ?—Never.

13,351. Did you ever see him in conversation with Mr. Smith ?—Never.

13,352. Did you ever see him in conversation with Mr. Lind ?—I do not know him.

13,353. Either of Mr. Smith's clerks ?—No, never.

13,354. Do you remember the Saturday night before the election ?—I remember the Saturday.

13,355. Did you see Mr. Heath constantly in the lobby of the "Seven Stars" on the evening of that day ?—No doubt I did.

13,356. Did you see a number of people outside the door ?—Yes.

13,357. Did you see Mr. Heath? We have had this from Mr. Heath, and you need not at all be afraid of saying it ?—I am not at all afraid.

13,358. Did you see Mr. Heath hand anything to the people near the door ?—I did not.

13,359. Did you see the stranger in the lobby at the time ?—I do not remember.

13,360. Yes, you do ?—I do not. I may have.

13,361. Will you swear you did not see him ?—I will not.

13,362. Were refreshments being supplied in the large room at that time ?—I do not know. They were at other elections.

13,363. Anybody who came in got a ticket and got what he wanted ?—I think so.

13,364. Were not you the person who executed the orders ?—For dinners.

13,365. But for grogs ?—No.

13,366. Who did that ?—Either of the assistants.

13,367. Who are they ?—The servants that are kept.

13,368. Who are they ?—They are changed now.

13,369. Who were they at the election ?—I think a girl named Heath was my assistant ; I think she was there at the election.

13,370. Who else ?—Thomason.

13,371. Who were the other assistants ?—There was the under-boots.

13,372. Who is the under-boots ?—They have changed.

13,373. (Mr. Coleridge.) Was his name Clarke ?— That is the waiter.

13,374. What is the name of the under-boots ?—I will remember presently.

13,375. (Mr. Bere.) Were dinners served in the large room ?—Yes.

13,376. How many dinners were ever served in one day in the large room ?—I cannot tell.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. S. Brown.

6 Sept. 1866.

13,377. Did the stranger ever take his dinner in the large room?—I never saw him.

13,378. When the stranger had anything from you and did not pay, how did you describe him to the barmaid?—I do not know whether I entered him as "13" or "light gent."

13,379. (Mr. Longe.) You waited on the two clerks?—Yes, occasionally.

13,380. How did you enter things for them?—As "No. 6" or "Mr. Smith's clerks."

13,381. How did you distinguish them?—They were entered together.

13,382. Do you mean you kept an account for those two?—Yes.

13,383. Do you swear that?—Yes.

13,384. Did you enter things to Mr. Smith's clerks without specifying which?—Yes.

13,385. Whatever they had?—Yes.

13,386. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did that go to Colonel Dawkins's account?—I do not know.

13,387. (Mr. Bere.) When this stranger told you to go and fetch Evens what did you suspect you wanted him for?—I did not suspect at all.

13,388. You really mean us to believe that?—I did not know his business.

13,389. I did not ask you that. Did not you suspect what his business was?—Certainly I did.

13,390. What did you suspect was his business?—To see about voters, to get voters, to buy voters.

13,391. (Mr. Coleridge.) How often during the time the stranger was in the house did you take messages or notes to Mr. Heath?—On one or two occasions.

13,392. More than that. Try and recollect?—I cannot recollect; it is impossible.

13,393. Did you take several bits of paper?—I think one or two.

13,394. Did you take messages by word of mouth?—I do not remember that I did.

13,395. When you took those did Mr. Heath go up to No. 13?—I believe he did. I would give the message and leave directly. I had a great deal to do; other business families in the house.

13,396. (Mr. Longe.) Mr. Smith's clerks were in the house how long?—I think two or three days.

13,397. Did you have any conversation with them with regard to the election?—No.

13,398. Did you have a private conversation with them?—Never.

13,399. No chaff?—Not the least to my recollection. I merely gave them what they asked, and left the room directly.

13,400. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are you a voter?—Yes.

13,401. (Mr. Longe.) Were Mr. Smith's clerks always in their room?—No.

13,402. Did you have any conversation, ordinary conversation with them?—I may have spoken to them, but I cannot tell what passed.

13,403. You have had a conversation with them?—Yes, I suppose I have spoken to them.

13,404. You had a conversation with them?—Yes.

13,405. Several times?—Yes.

13,406. Where?—In the room No. 6, in the sitting-room.

13,407. Nowhere else?—Not to my recollection.

13,408. Did they never stop in the lobby or hall and talk to you?—I never remember any such thing.

13,409. Do you know where they came from?—I do not know. I thought they came from London.

13,410. Were there any other strangers in the house?—Not that I am aware of. There may have been commercial gentlemen in. I do not know of anyone else.

13,411. You would not swear there were not strangers in the house except the clerks?—I could not swear; I cannot remember.

13,412. (Mr. Bere.) Where did you think the stranger came from?—I never thought at all.

13,413. (Mr. Longe.) Do you swear that you did not know the names of the clerks?—Not till to-day.

13,414. You never heard the names mentioned?—I do not remember.

13,415. Did not you see the luggage?—I have nothing to do with that; that is for the porter.

13,416. Is not it an unusual thing for persons to be in conversation and for you not to know their names?—It is seldom I know them.

13,417. After staying a week in the house?—I do not know.

13,418. (Mr. Bere.) You took care not to ask their names?—I never asked them.

13,419. (Mr. Longe.) You knew their names were not to be known?—No.

13,420. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you keep a stranger book?—No.

13,421. Do you ask people not at elections for their names?—No.

13,422. You do not ask how to make out their bill?—No.

13,423. What qualification do you vote upon?—Orchard and buildings.

13,424. Where are they?—In the direction of South Street.

13,425. Have you ever seen them yourself?—I should think I had.

13,426. What do you do with the orchard and buildings? how do you use the buildings?—I keep pigs and poultry.

13,427. How many pigs?—Two.

13,428. How large is the orchard?—I should think three parts of an acre.

13,429. Of whom do you rent it?—Miss Emma Taylor.

13,430. What do you pay for it?—11*l.* a year.

13,431. Do you pay your own rent?—Yes.

13,432. What does Mr. Heath do with it?—I should like Mr. Heath to pay it, but he will not.

13,433. Do you make it pay?—Yes; but I keep it more for a hobby. But I have several buildings on it.

13,434. One for pigs?—Yes; one poultry and another pigeons.

13,435. Who canvassed you?—Captain Pim and Colonel Dawkins.

13,436. Who else canvassed you?—Nobody.

13,437. What did you get?—Nothing.

13,438. What did you get?—I never asked, and never got anything.

13,439. What did you get afterwards?—Something for my labour.

13,440. How much?—A sovereign.

13,441. Did Evens send you anything?—No.

13,442. Did Screach?—No, nothing at all.

13,443. It is a mistake to put you down as a matter-of-course man?—That is Mr. Harris's mistake.

13,444. You never got 10*l.* or 20*l.* after the election?—No.

13,445. You have only been paid for what you have done?—I have not been paid properly.

(Mr. Bere.) We are going to adjourn, and we shall require you to attend when we meet again, and we hope your memory will be a little fresher.

(Witness.) I hope it will. I have given you the best information I can remember.

M. Pomeroy.

MARIA POMEROY sworn and examined.

13,446. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are you chambermaid at the "Seven Stars" hotel?—Yes.

13,447. How long have you been there?—Six years on the 28th October.

13,448. You have been there through three elections?—Yes.

13,449. Do you recollect the last election?—Yes, quite well.

3,450. The house was quite full, I suppose?—y full, indeed.

3,451. How many beds do you make up there? cannot tell exactly.

3,452. Just think a moment; how many bed-ns do you make up?—Seventeen; 16 bedrooms 17 beds.

3,453. Which is the double-bedded room?—No.

3,454. Do you recollect Colonel Dawkins and Smith coming down about 10 days before the last tion?—I cannot tell you how long before.

3,455. About?—I cannot recollect the time they e.

3,456. What room had Colonel Dawkins?—No.

3,457. I suppose you gave him the post of honour? Ie chose to have it.

3,458. You had a very good looking young tleman, Captain Fox, where did he inhabit?— 4.

3,459. In which room did Mr. Smith sleep?— 15.

3,460. Was it Mr. Smith, or Mr. Smith's clerk, o slept in No. 15?—Mr. Smith.

3,461. Mr. Smith himself slept in No. 15?— s.

3,462. Colonel Dawkins' and Captain Fox's rooms re on the first floor, the sitting-room floor?—Yes.

3,463. Not on the same floor as No. 15?—No.

3,464. What other bedrooms were there on the t floor, the same floor as Colonel Dawkins and ptain Fox?—Captain Fox's bed room was between at we call the coffee-room and sitting-room No. 9, l the other room which has not been built a great ny years, Colonel Dawkins had that.

3,465. How many bedrooms are there on the t floor?—Four.

3,466. Colonel Dawkins had one?—Yes.

3,467. Captain Fox another?—Yes.

3,468. Who had the other two?—I cannot tell u. I do not remember in the least who had them. ather think commercials had them.

3,469. Not any of Colonel Dawkins's party?—

3,470. Mr. Smith came down with a clerk, did not ?—That I do not know.

3,471. Was there another gentleman with Mr. Smith ides Colonel Dawkins?—I do not know. I think . Smith had two clerks.

3,472. He had after a day or two?—Yes.

3,473. Mr. Smith had No. 15; did he sleep there all time?—Yes.

3,474. Where did the two clerks sleep?—I do not ow exactly; we were very full, and I do not re-mber in the least where they slept.

3,475. Just recollect where those two clerks pt. Have you a double-bedded room?—Yes.

3,476. That is No. 17?—That is No. 17.

3,477. Did they sleep in No. 17?— I do not think y did.

3,478. They had two single rooms?—I think so.

3,479. Just try and recollect where they were? I do not know. I can ask that question.

3,480. They were on the same floor as No. 13, at events?—I think they were.

3,481. Can you tell us at all what rooms they upied. The waiter said No. 15, but that seems to ve been a mistake?—No; that was Mr. Smith's om I am certain, but I cannot recollect where they pt.

3,482. If the house was so full what rooms were t for them to sleep in? Did any of them sleep in . 13?—I do not know; there was a gentleman in . 13.

3,483. In No. 13?—Yes, a gentleman.

3,484. Was that one of Mr. Smith's clerks?—I do t know at all.

3,485. You must try and recollect that?—I have d you as far as I can recollect; I do not wish to tell ls- about it.

13,486. Without telling falsehoods, we want you to tell us all you know, not all we ask you only?—I do not remember.

13,487. Who slept in No. 13?—A gentleman, I know. I know I made his bed, and I know he had a small black bag.

13,488. Anything else?—I cannot remember.

13,489. I want to know where the two gentlemen, called Mr. Smith's clerks, were put?—I do not remember. I should know them if I saw them, perhaps.

13,490. You knew them at that time?—I think I did.

1,3491. Did you ever hear either of their names?—No; I only made their beds, and that is all I know about it.

13,492. Do not gentlemen sometimes require meals in their bedrooms?—Yes, sometimes they require meals in their bedrooms.

13,493. Whose business would it be to take it up to them?—Mine.

13,494. Supposing a gentleman in No. 13 required anything you would take it?—Yes.

13,495. Did the gentleman in No. 13 require anything?—I never carried anything up during the whole time he was there; he always slept there.

13,496. Then the waiter must be under a misapprehension if he thinks he had anything in his room?—He never had anything in his room.

13,497. Not even brandy and seltzer?—Nothing at all.

13,498. Not even a cup of tea in the morning?—No.

13,499. Not Mr. Smith; did not he have a cup of tea in the morning?—I never carried Mr. Smith a cup of tea in his life.

13,500. You never carried anything into his bedroom?—I made his bed.

13,501. Not his bath?—He never had no bath.

13,502. You must know something more about this. Of all the gentlemen staying in the house at that time, how many had anything in their bedrooms?—None. I never carried up anything.

13,503. You mean from a fortnight before up to the time of the election you never carried up anything?—Never.

13,504. Neither a cup of tea, a bottle of soda water, or anything else?—Nothing.

13,505. Have you any assistant under you?—I do the whole myself.

13,506. You do the whole thing?—Yes, I do all.

13,507. What! all these 17 rooms?—Yes.

13,508. You have no one to help you?—No woman to help me whatever.

13,509. But, generally, have you had a man to help you?—No.

13,510. Are you sure?—No one put a hand to anything unless it was myself.

13,511. Had you never a waiter to help you?—No, I never saw a waiter upstairs.

13,512. I suppose the boots went into the bedrooms?—Not that I know of.

13,513. He did not take their clothes to brush?—No; very likely they brushed them themselves.

13,514. You mean of all these gentlemen none had their clothes brushed?—No; Captain Fox had his, and Colonel Dawkins', they had a valet.

13,515. Colonel Dawkins's valet brushed Captain Fox's things?—Yes, he looked after them both.

13,516. What was the valet's name?—Thomas Marshall he was called.

13,517. Had he been a soldier?—I think he had. I do not think he was out of his time when he came here.

13,518. I daresay you became very intimate before he went away?—No; he was not a young man I should like exactly.

13,519. Who brushed Mr. Smith's things?—I do not know. I should not think they were brushed at all but what he done himself.

13,520. Who cleaned his boots?—The boots.

13,521. Then the boots went into his room?—He might have carried them up to the door.

TWELFTH DAY.

M. Pomeroy.

6 Sept. 1866.

13,522. And the gentleman would come to the door and take them in?—Yes.

13,523. Who took the hot water up in the morning?—Very likely I did.

13,524. You told us just now that you never carried up anything?—I took it up to the door.

13,525. You may have carried it in?—Just outside the door.

13,526. You did not take it in?—I do not think I did. Mr. Smith came to the door and took it in.

13,527. Did that stranger at No. 13 come to the door?—I do not know; I never carried any hot water up all the time he was there.

13,528. Did that gentleman shave with cold water? Do you mean seriously to say that you never took any hot water up to No. 13?—No, I never went to No. 13 till the gentleman was out of the room. I made the beds after the gentleman went down.

13,529. Then when you came into the room he went out as you came in?—He was gone before I went in.

13,530. You never saw the gentleman who was in No. 13?—Yes; if he came up just as I had finished I might.

13,531. Did you ever see what was in that black bag?—Never.

13,532. The bag was left in the bedroom?—Yes.

13,533. In making the bed did you dust the bedroom?—Yes, and filled the jugs.

13,534. Had you ever occasion to move that little black bag?—Never.

13,535. It was always on a chair at the foot of the bed?—Yes, it was always there when I made the bed.

13,536. Was there not a chair at each side of the bed?—Nothing at all.

13,537. You never saw anything but the little black bag?—No.

13,538. You had no occasion to move that bag?—No. I do not know that I put my hand to it.

13,539. When you did how did it feel?—I did not.

13,540. You said you did not know that you had put your hand to it?—Never.

13,541. You cannot tell us what it felt like?—No.

13,542. Did you always make the beds after those two gentlemen came down?—Yes, because there was no one else there.

13,543. Where were they sleeping?—I do not know the numbers exactly.

13,544. Between three or four rooms tell us where they must have been?—They did not sleep in the double bedroom but the numbers of the bedrooms I cannot tell you.

13,545. In what numbers could they have slept?—I cannot say.

13,546. Tell us all you know of as occupying rooms in the house at that time?—I cannot tell them all.

13,547. We have Colonel Dawkins one; Captain Fox two; Mr. Smith three; the mysterious stranger four?—There was Captain Pim.

13,548. Yes, that is five; where was Captain Pim?—No. 16.

13,549. We have 15 and 16 occupied. Who was in 14?—I could not tell.

13,550. Try?—I do not recollect the number.

13,551. How is it you recollect the number of these other gentlemen?—Because I saw them much more often.

13,552. Do you mean that you saw Mr. Smith more than his clerks?—He and Colonel Dawkins and Mr. Fox were there a fortnight, I think.

13,553. And Captain Pim?—Yes, and Captain Pim.

13,554. Do you recollect Captain Pim telling you that a gentleman was coming down in the middle of the night? Do not you recollect Mr. Murchison coming down?—I do not remember anything of the gentleman, else I should have got up to make a bed for him.

13,555. Do you recollect Mr. Murchison, a friend of Captain Pim's, coming down?—I do not recollect the name at all.

13,556. How were the other beds? Was the house filled at all?—Just the same as at other times, I suppose.

13,557. Then Mr. Heath may be incorrect. He has told us that the whole house, except, perhaps, a chance commercial, was taken up by Colonel Dawkins's friends. Who else?—I do not know who they were or where they came from.

13,558. And you cannot tell us at all where the two clerks of Mr. Smith's were?—No; I heard he had two.

13,559. You know now that they slept in the house?—Yes.

13,560. But you do not know where?—No.

13,561. You would not know them if you saw them?—I do not know that I should.

13,562. Are we to understand that you cannot tell us at all where these two gentlemen slept?—No.

13,563. Try?—If I tried ever so much I could not tell you.

13,564. Here were gentlemen who were staying for a considerable time in the house, a week or 10 days together. Was anybody staying 10 days in the house not connected with the election?—Not that I remember.

13,565. These two gentlemen, you can suggest no others, must they have been two of the gentlemen connected with the election?—I do not know; I remember Colonel Dawkins quite plain.

13,566. Come, you must recollect this. Tell me do you recollect one other gentleman besides Colonel Dawkins, Captain Pim, Captain Fox, and Mr. Smith who stayed for 10 days together in your house at that time?—I do not think there was.

13,567. You do not think there was?—No, I do not.

13,568. Do you think anybody stayed a week?—I do not think there was. I do not remember making a bed up for so long.

13,569. Except those four gentlemen I have mentioned, can you tell me anybody who stayed at the house four days?—I cannot remember.

13,570. Do you think there was anybody stayed as long as four days at that time?—I do not think there was.

13,571. It may altogether be a mistake that I may have heard about these gentlemen being here at this time?—It may have been.

13,572. Do you remember any instance of a gentleman at that time staying in the house changing his room?—I do not.

13,573. If anybody had changed his room, or complained about the noise, or anything, you would have known it?—Yes.

13,574. You can swear, then, that no gentleman did change his room?—Yes.

13,575. Without going away and coming back again?—Yes.

13,576. If a gentleman did go away and come back, he might possibly go to a fresh room?—Yes.

13,577. Do you recollect the gentleman who lived in No. 13, and had the black bag, having a name given to him?—No. I never recollect the name of Mr. Mum before now.

13,578. Did not you have any other name?—No.

13,579. What used Mr. Heath to call him?—I do not know what Mr. Heath used to call him.

13,580. You never heard Mr. Heath call him any name?—Never heard Mr. Heath call him anything.

13,581. Was the gentleman in No. 13 in the habit of staying a good deal in his room in the daytime?—I do not know that he was.

13,582. You never found anyone there and found the door locked?—No.

13,583. You have given your evidence very carefully, I can see. There was no one else there but himself?—No.

13,584. We must have it all out of you, it is clear?—Yes.

13,585. How often did you go to this gentleman's room in the course of the day after you had made his bed?—I generally would make his bed and empty the slops about 12 o'clock, and fill the jugs.

13,586. When again?—And, generally, in the evening I went to turn the beds down.

13,587. What time?—Sometimes 6 or 7, or half-half-past 7.

13,588. I suppose you went into No. 13 on those occasions?—Yes.

13,589. You never found the door was locked all the time?—No.

13,590. It is a mistake, then, of Mr. Heath's, if he has said so?—Yes, it is a mistake.

13,591. And Mr. Edmonds must be mistaken?—Very likely.

13,592. Screach and Evens must be entirely mistaken, because they said they were constantly up there and found the door was locked?—Yes, I never did.

13,593. Had you told the stranger the usual time that you came to the room?—No; he never asked me to go to the room to do it, or anything of the kind.

13,594. Did you ever go into the room and find him there with the door unlocked?—I never found him in the room in my life.

13,595. What time did you call him in the morning?—I do not know whether he was called at all.

13,596. He was a wide-awake gentleman?—A great many gentlemen call themselves.

13,597. When you used to go and make No. 13 bed, used that bed always to have been slept in during that time the gentleman was there?—I do not know. If the house was full, the bedroom was sure to be used.

13,598. You cannot tell whether anybody slept in it or not?—No, I cannot. I do not know whether I made up the bed the same night or not.

13,599. Can you tell whether the bed was slept on or not?—Sir?

13,600. Can you tell whether the bedroom was slept in or not?—Certainly I can.

13,601. You said just now you could not?—Perhaps I did not understand what you said.

13,602. You can tell whether one or two have slept in it?—Yes, I think I can.

13,603. Was that bed slept in at all every night the gentleman was supposed to be occupying it?—Yes.

13,604. There was no night at all in which the bedroom was not occupied by this gentleman from the time he came until the time he went away?—I never found it so.

13,605. How long do you think the gentleman in No. 13 had been there before the election?—I do not remember the gentleman being there a day before the election who had anything to do with the election.

13,606. I did not ask you that. I am asking you about the gentleman with the black bag. How many nights had he been there before the election?—I do not know.

13,607. How many nights do you think?—I cannot tell whether more than one night; I do not remember one night.

13,608. You have just told me that you knew all the nights he was there you knew the bed was occupied?—I did not say by the same gentleman.

13,609. Not by the gentleman with the black bag?—No; I did not mean to say the same gentleman.

13,610. How long was he there?—I cannot say.

13,611. When did you first see him?—I do not remember the time, what day of the month.

13,612. I do not ask you that. How long before the election?—I cannot say.

13,613. I want to know how long before the election you first saw the gentleman with the black bag?—I do not know.

13,614. Was it 10 days?—I do not know.

13,615. Was it a fortnight?—I do not know at all.

13,616. Was it a month?—I do not know.

13,617. Will you swear it was a month?—I cannot swear to anything.

13,618. Was it a week?—No.

13,619. A fortnight?—No.

13,620. You must tell us this, because you must know?—I do not know.

13,621. You know perfectly well when the gentleman with the black bag was there. Was it 10 days before the election?—I do not know.

13,622. Was it before or after Mr. Smith came down?—After Mr. Smith, I think; I mean before.

13,623. Mr. Smith came down and went away again, did he not?—I do not recollect.

13,624. Do not you recollect Mr. Smith coming down with Colonel Dawkins, and then going away two or three days?—No.

13,625. Then, I suppose, when Mr. Smith went away, if he did not go away not to come back, he would keep his room all through, No. 15?—Yes.

13,626. Did you make the beds in No. 15 from the first day Colonel Dawkins came down till the election was over, always in No. 15?—Yes.

13,627. Was it always made for the same gentleman?—Yes.

13,628. You can swear that?—Yes; because if it is not the same gentleman——

13,629. You would change the sheets?—Yes.

13,630–1. Will you swear, on your oath, that it was occupied every night from the time Colonel Dawkins came down till the time of the election?—As far as I can remember.

13,632. You have sworn that you never changed the sheets, and you can recollect one thing as well as another. Was the bed occupied?—Yes, as far as I remember.

13,633. Will you swear that every single night, from the time Colonel Dawkins came down till the election was over, that room was occupied?—As far as I remember.

13,634. You emptied the slops every morning?—Yes.

13,635. If Mr. Smith has told us that he went away three days and slept in another bed it must be a mistake?—I should think it must. I do not remember his doing so.

13,636. Your memory is not very good?—It is not.

13,637. We will go back to No. 13. How many days did the same gentleman occupy the bed?—I do not remember.

13,638. How do you remember Mr. Smith occupying it all this time, and yet cannot tell us about the gentleman in No. 13?—Because I did not know him so well as Mr. Smith. I do not think he was in the house so long. If he was I think I should have known him.

13,639. How much shorter time had he been in the house, do you think, than Mr. Smith?—I do not know.

13,640. Do you think he was in the house 10 days?—I should think not.

13,641. You can always recollect about changing the sheets. How often did you change the sheets of No. 13, from the fortnight before the election till the election day?—I think I changed them after the first night.

13,642. You think you changed them after the first night?—I think I did.

13,643. When was the first night?—I do not remember the night.

13,644. Was it a fortnight before the election?—I could not tell.

13,645. Was it a week?—I could not tell.

13,646. Was it a day?—I could not tell.

13,647. You really cannot expect us to believe that. You have told us that you recollect all about Mr. Smith and his sheets, and his absence from the bath, and you cannot tell us that. Come, try and brush up your memory?—I cannot remember that.

13,648. Is No. 13 the only room you cannot

TWELFTH DAY.

M. Pomeroy.

6 Sept. 1866.

recollect about?—I do not recollect about anything else.

13,649. Where did Colonel Dawkins sleep?—At No. 20.

13,650. On the first floor?—On the first floor.

13,651. Did Colonel Dawkins sleep in his bed every night from the time he came?—Yes.

13,652. You never changed the sheets?—I changed them at the week's end.

13,653. Colonel Dawkins had a bath?—Yes, in the room, every night.

13,654. And you emptied the slops, and all that?—Yes.

13,655. You recollect Colonel Dawkins?—Yes, quite well.

13,656. Did Captain Fox sleep in his room every night?—Yes.

13,657. He never went away a night?—He never went away a night.

13,658. And he had a bath?—I am not quite sure. Yes, I think he had.

13,659. You remember about Mr. Smith, Captain Fox, and Colonel Dawkins; cannot you recollect something about No. 13?—No, I cannot remember in the least.

13,660. Not No. 13 at all?—No.

13,661. Who slept in No. 14?—That I cannot remember.

13,662. That is another of the mysterious rooms?—Yes.

13,663. What made you say just now that you never went to the room when I did not ask you anything about it?—You asked me whether I went there and found that the door was locked.

13,664. You have heard about No. 13 being locked?—Yes, since this stir is up.

13,665. You have had a great deal of talk with Mrs. Heath?—She never talked to me about it in my life.

13,666. Who has talked with you?—Only what I have heard from other people, 13,667. Who talked to you—Brown?—No, I read the paper.

13,668. And did not you hear about the stranger in No. 13 at the time they were up in London on the petition?—No.

13,669. You have applied your mind particularly to No. 13 and locking the door?—I never locked the door in my life.

13,670. You have applied your mind particularly to No. 13 and the locking of the door. What makes you remember so much?—I do not remember, except from reading the paper and people saying that the door was locked.

13,671. And you have been thinking about it, and you do not think the door was locked?—No, I do not think so.

13,672. Then Mr. Heath must have been very much mistaken?—Very likely he was.

13,673. You do not agree with him, but think he was mistaken?—I think he was mistaken.

13,674. Did you ever find the blinds down?—Never.

13,675. Screach says the blinds were always down?—It was always just as I left it.

13,676. Did you leave it so?—No, except when the sun was coming in in the day.

13,677. Then you always kept the blinds down?—Yes.

13,678. From the opposite side of the street you can see into No. 13, can you not?—I think they can.

13,679. Did Colonel Dawkins always keep his blinds down?—No.

13,680. You never saw Colonel Dawkins' blinds down?—No.

13,681. Or Captain Fox's?—No.

13,682. How comes that?—I do not know.

13,683. No. 13; they were always up. Did Mr. Smith keep his blinds down.—I do not know; I might pull them down in the day.

13,684. Did you pull down the blind in Colonel Dawkins's room?—No; we do not get the sun there.

13,685. Try and tell us when the gentleman in No. 13 first came?—I cannot.

13,686. Do you recollect some gentleman coming down and occupying No. 13, and leaving and coming back at any time?—I do not remember it.

13,687. Do you recollect any gentleman shortly before the election going away and saying, "Keep "my room, I shall be back to-morrow night, but "shall not to-night?"—I do not remember anyone in connexion with the election.

13,688. You do not recollect any occasion in which No. 13 bed was not slept in?—No.

13,689. What sort of a looking gentleman was it who slept in No. 13?—I do not remember.

13,690. You have seen him?—I have, once.

13,691. What sort of gentleman is Colonel Dawkins?—He is is very tall, and with a dark complexion.

13,692. Moustache?—Yes.

13,693. What sort of gentleman is Captain Fox?—I think he is rather a light complexion.

13,694. Fair?—As well as I can remember.

13,695. Moustache?—I do not know.

13,696. Good looking?—I do not know.

13,697. You are not a judge, perhaps. You have told us about Colonel Dawkins and Captain Fox, now tell us something about the stranger in No. 13?—I cannot tell you the least about him; I have not heard the least about him.

13,698. There is a sort of mystery about No. 13, the blinds, and the stranger, and the bed, all equally confused. You cannot remember anything about it?—No.

13,699. You seriously mean to say that you can recollect everything else you have told us, and cannot recollect about No. 13?—Yes; and I do not remember No. 13.

13,700. (Mr. Longe.) As I understand, until you heard of Mr. Mum just now, you did not know of anyone of the kind being in the house, a mysterious stranger, or anyone of that kind; you had no notion?—No.

13,701. You had not?—No.

13,702. You did not know this person, whoever he was?—No.

13,703. You did not know there was a mysterious stranger come down to do the clandestine work?—No, I never heard anything at all about it.

13,704. You do not know but that he was one of Mr. Smith's clerks?—No; I did not know that he was.

13,705. You did not know that he was?—I did not know anything about it; I did not know that he had anything to do with it.

13,706. You do not know that the person who slept in No. 13, whose bed you made from day to day, was not one of Mr. Smith's clerks?—I cannot say he was not.

13,707. It was never whispered amongst you that there was a mysterious stranger in the house?—No.

13,708. You never heard there was some one in the house who was occupied in passing over money. You never heard there was a mysterious stranger, apart from the people, moving about the house from day to day?—I never heard anything about it.

13,709. You never heard any orders to treat No. 13 in any other way than you did other bedrooms?—No.

13,710. There were no injunctions given you not to walk in at any time of the day?—No.

13,711. It may have been one of Mr. Smith's clerks who was living in No. 13, for aught you know?—It may have been.

13,712. (Mr. Coleridge.) Now to resume my cross-examination. You particularly observed about this black bag?—Yes.

13,713. What made you recollect him with the black bag. It was always at the foot of the bed, you know?—It was there as long as he was there.

13,714. It was always on a chair at the foot of the bed?—Yes.

13,715. How many days?—I do not remember.

13,716. Eight or 10 days?—I do not remember.

13,717. You are on your oath?—I would tell you if knew, but I do not know it.

13,718. Tell me whether he was there two or ten?—I do not think it was more than one.

13,719. You do not think it was more than one?—o, I do not.

13,720. What size bag was it?—A very small black g.

13,721. What a gentleman generally carries his ggage in?—Yes.

13,722. Was it not a small one?—Sometimes I have en smaller.

13,723. What was other luggage?—I saw nothing e.

13,724. Do you mean that that was all this gentlean carried about?—Never saw anything else in the droom.

13,725. Or outside the bedroom?—No.

13,726. (Mr. Bere.) It lasted him a week?—I do t know; I do not know how long he was there.

13,727. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you mean really to ll us that you do not recollect any other luggage?—o.

13,728. You will not swear that he was not there a eek?—No, nor that he was.

13,729. Will you swear that that little bag was not ere a whole week?—No.

13,730. Or a fortnight?—I will not swear anything out it.

13,731. What can you swear? Will you swear it as not there a month?—I will swear.

13,732. Will you swear it was not there three weeks?—I will not be certain; that I cannot be certain of.

13,733. You recollect about a month?—If he had een in the house a month I should have known him.

13,734. But if he had been in the house three eeks you would not. Is that what I am to underand?—I think I should three weeks.

13,735. You can say it was not there for three eeks?—Yes, I think I could.

13,736. Can you swear it was not there a fortnight?—No.

13,737. Is not a fortnight sufficient time to know a entleman?—Very likely it is, if you see him often ough.

13,738. He was sleeping in his bed every night you ave told us?—Yes.

13,739. Do you mean to tell us that that bag was ere a fortnight?—I cannot swear at all.

13,740. How often did you see the black bag; how any different times?—I saw it every time I went to the room, perhaps.

13,741. How many different days at different times?—I could not swear to it.

13,742. Give us a guess. Can you say you saw three or four different times?—I do not know.

13,743. May you have seen it?—I do not think I ight have.

13,744. You do not think you did?—No.

13,745. Do you think you saw it three or four times n succession?—I do not think I did.

13,746. Three or four times you might not have een it, might you have seen it two or three times?—I do not think I did; I do not think I ever saw he bag but that once in that day.

13,747. How often did you see the gentleman?—I o not remember seeing the gentleman more than one norning. I remember he came into his room as I was oming out, and had finished the room.

13,748. He was the gentleman who came by the ail train, was he not?—I do not recollect.

13,749. Do you recollect a gentleman coming down n Saturday or Sunday night before the election by he mail train?—No.

13,750. How do you arrange about being up at the 'Seven Stars?"—At what time?

13,751. The mail train?—We do not stay up.

13,752. If you know a gentleman is coming, how do you manage about keeping a bed ready?—If he writes and orders we keep it, but no one stays up.

13,753. Is there always "Seven Stars" fly at the station?—No, not the mail train.

13,754. It arrives at 10 minutes past four, does it not?—Yes; not unless it is ordered.

13,755. Supposing there was a fly on the night I mention, and it brought a gentleman to the house, it must be presumed that his bed would have been ordered?—His bed would have been ordered.

13,756. Do you recollect, on either Saturday or Sunday night before the election, No. 13 being left vacant for a gentleman coming by the mail train?—I do not recollect.

13,757. If a gentleman's bed was ordered, who would be the person to tell him his bedroom?—The under-boots.

13,758. What was the boots' name?—William Screach.

13,759. Any relation of the celebrated Mr. Screach?—What Mr. Screach.

13,760. John Sandford Screach?—I think he is; I think they are cousins.

13,761. Was the boots up on that night?—I do not know whether he was up or not; we keep a bed in the room downstairs, where he sleeps in case anyone should come.

13,762. Is it always the under-boots who lets them in?—I think it is.

13,763. Then the under-boots would know what room such a gentleman went to?—Yes.

13,764. Do you recollect a gentleman suddenly appearing in bedroom No. 13?—No; I do not recollect anything about it.

13,765. You are quite determined you will not tell us anything about No. 13?—I would if I knew. There are several rooms I do not know who slept in them.

13,766. You really mean to tell us that you do not remember who slept in No. 13?—No; and several rooms else I could not tell you anything about.

13,767. You are quite certain that the gentleman who had the black bag had no other luggage?—Yes; I could swear to it.

13,768. You could not say how long he stayed in the house?—No.

13,769. You are sure he never took his meals in the room?—I never took anything upstairs during the time of the election.

13,770. We have got you as far as a fortnight, but you will not swear to a week?—I do not remember his staying; I did not know how long.

13,771. You told us you could not recollect changing the sheets for a week?—I do not say that.

13,772. How often did you change the sheets in No. 13?—I told you just now I thought the day after, because I thought he was going on——

13,773. What was that day?—I cannot recollect about the day.

13,774. You recollect his coming and going?—If I see a gentleman's things packed up I always change them if he is going on.

13,775. Do you think he came down on the Friday before the election?—I do not know.

13,776. You seem to think, and probably you are correct, that he was only there one day; and do not you think he came down on the Thursday or Friday night, and went away on the Saturday?—I do not remember.

13,777. The gentleman who slept in No. 13 and had the little black bag you only recollect seeing once?—Only once.

13,778. You do not recollect seeing the little black bag more than once?—Not more than once.

13,779. What was the next time he came?—I do not know of his coming.

13,780. You do not recollect his coming?—No.

13,781. Nothing about his coming back again?—No.

13,782. Come, come?—I do not remember anything about it.

13,783. You must try and recollect this, or we must say the same to you as to Mr. Heath and the

TWELFTH DAY.

M. Pomeroy.

6 Sept. 1866.

waiter; you will be kept here in attendance till you do. I do not remember. It is quite impossible for me to recollect.

13,784. (Mr. Bere.) Was there a woman named Martha Gale acting as chambermaid some time ago?—She has left a long time now.

13,785. When did she leave?—Two years in last June.

13,786. She was not acting at this time?—No.

13,787. Was anybody else chambermaid besides you?—No.

13,788. What are you, upper chambermaid?—I do everything.

13,789. You are the only chambermaid in the house?—The only chamber maid at the "Seven Stars."

13,790. You had no assistance whatever?—No assistance whatever.

Miss C. Heath.

Miss CHRISTIANA HEATH sworn and examined.

13,791. (Mr. Bere.) You and Miss Prout keep the books at the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

13,792. Are your initials C. H.?—Yes.

13,793. And are those the initials which most commonly appear in this book (referring to a book]?—Yes; when I receive any money I sign my name.

13,794. Suppose a person has supper; who comes and tells you about that?—The waiter.

13,795. Do you know what bedroom a person occupies?—No, I do not know the room.

13,796. How do you describe the people in your books you do not know by name?—By sometimes "strange gent," and sometimes "dark gent."

13,797. Suppose the number of the bedroom is given, do you describe them by the number of the bed room?—We occasionally do.

13,798. Do you make out the bills generally?—Usually.

13,799. Do you give the bills to the waiter, and does he get them paid?—Yes.

13,800. And does he bring the money to you?—Yes, if I am there.

13,801. If not, to Miss Prout?—Yes.

13,802. And then do you receipt the bills?—Yes, if I am there.

13,803. You do if you are there?—If I am there.

13,804. There is an entry here I want to ask you about. Do you remember the time of the election?—Yes, I remember the time of the election.

13,805. You were at home at that time?—Yes, I was at home at that time.

13,806. There are a good many entries at that time in your handwriting?—I think so.

13,807. Will you come here and look at this book (the witness inspected the book). This is your handwriting, is it not, and that Miss Prout's?—The first is mine, and that is Miss Prout's writing. I entered all the carriages.

13,808. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did anybody else make entries excepting you and Miss Prout?—Yes, if anybody was in the bar.

13,809. Who would that be?—I do not know. Mrs. Heath, perhaps.

13,810. Has your father entered anything?—No, I think not.

(The witness explained the entries in the book to the learned Commissioners).

13,811. Supposing a person took his dinner in the commercial room, would not you charge him commercial prices?—Yes.

13,812. Then he might not have been a commercial, although you charged him commercial prices?—If they go into the commercial room, we generally charge them commercial prices.

13,813. Do you remember at the time of the election whether you had any commercial men about?—You can see by the entries. All the commercials would be entered into the other book, the summary book.

13,814. Did you transfer your accounts from this waste book to the ledger?—Yes, from this waste book to that one.

13,815. Is this 181?—Colonel Dawkins is not entered. If paid by a cheque it would not be put in.

13,816. I see opposite Colonel Dawkins' bill "181;" does not that mean the page in your ledger?—I do not think so.

13,817. What does the "181" mean in the waste book?—I can tell you if I see it. (The witness further explained.)

13,818. Now, would solicitors' clerks be allowed to go into the commercial room?—I think not. They usually find out who they are.

13,819. Do you find out their names?—No; we find out by their luggage whether they are commercials.

13,820. Do you think from the fact of a person coming with a small amount of luggage in a small bag about election time, that you should consider him to be a commercial?—No; the servants would find this out. The chambermaid would see, I suppose. Sometimes the commercials do not have all their luggage.

13,821. (Mr. Longe.) When a customer comes to the "Seven Stars," what is the rule; how is it arranged what bed he should take? I suppose he does not walk straight up into a bedroom?—He goes to the chambermaid, and whatever one she has prepared she gives him.

13,822. Do you mean that any person, with or without luggage, coming to your hotel, is immediately shown up to a bedroom?—Yes.

13,823. With or without luggage?—Yes; we have been cheated sometimes by their going away.

13,824. What is the rule? We have heard there are bedrooms on different floors. Is there no choice of bedrooms? Would you send all your customers to the same rooms without making any difference at all—Private gentlemen we should give the best rooms to if they are disengaged. If they had a private sitting room we should give them a better bedroom.

13,825. Who is to decide what bedroom any gentleman is to take, if a gentleman asked for a private sitting room?—The chambermaid would give a bedroom close to it.

13,826. Supposing he only asked for a bedroom—Then we should give him the best.

13,827. To a person in Colonel Dawkins' position—The best we had.

13,828. Who would decide that?—The chambermaid.

13,829. You mean it is left entirely to the chambermaid to decide whether to give a person the best or worst bedroom?—Yes, quite.

13,830. What is the custom; take commercial travellers; is there a particular set of bedrooms set apart for them generally?—No.

13,831. Would you ever put a commercial gentleman in any of these numbers on the first floor?—not otherwise required, we give the best bedroom we have, but not if engaged.

13,832. (Mr. Coleridge.) What sort of room is No. 13?—Not a very large room.

13,833. Looking out of the front, is not it?—Yes.

13,834. Just over the door?—Yes.

13,835. (Mr. Bere.) Did you see any gentlemen about No. 13 during the time of the election?—No, we never go that side of the house.

13,836. You do not live that side of the house?—No.

13,837. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you see any strangers constantly about the house whom you did not know by any name during the time of the election?—Not one in particular.

13,838. How many did you see?—I cannot tell at all.

13,839. You know pretty well all the Conservative people in Totnes who were likely to be in your house during the election, besides Colonel Dawkins, Captain

TWELFTH DAY.

Miss C. Heath.

6 Sept. 1866.

x, and Mr. Smith. How many other strangers ides those did you constantly see about the house that time?—I did not notice any in particular.

13,840. Did you notice two or three people with ange faces constantly about the house at that time? I think not. I should be very likely not to see them.

13,841. Did you notice one?—No.

13,842. Do you recollect ever seeing Mr. Smith and stranger in the bar together?—No; Mr. Smith dom came into the bar.

13,843. You have seen him in the bar?—I think I ve with Colonel Dawkins.

13,844. Do you recollect ever seeing him with some e else?—Never.

13,845. You have a little room at the back of the r?—No.

13,846. Or the side of the bar?—Yes, we have.

13,847. Do you recollect seeing Mr. Smith and a anger in a room at the side of the bar?—No; they ght go in there without my seeing them.

13,848. Could they go in without passing through e bar?—Yes.

13,849. There is a door at the back?—There is a separate door.

13,850. (Mr. Longe.) You remember the election of 1863?—Yes.

13,851. There was a good deal of excitement then at the "Seven Stars"?—Yes, very much.

13,852. Very much the same as at this time?—Yes.

13,853. De you remember then that there was a Mr. Mum there?—No.

13,854. You remember hearing?—I was young then, and did not know so much about it.

13,855. Do not you remember that there was a person answering to the description of Mr. Mum whom Mr. Heath spoke of as Mr. Mum then?—No.

13,856. You do not know anything at all about it?—No.

13,857. (Mr. Bere.) Did not you hear from time to time talk going on at the bar about a gentleman coming down from London whose name you did not know?—No.

13,858. Did you know Mr. Smith's clerks?—Not by sight.

Miss MARY ANN PROUT sworn and examined.

Miss M. A. Prout.

13,859. (Mr. Bere.). You keep the books, do not u, at the "Seven Stars" when Miss Heath does t?—Yes; if I am in the bar, and anything is taken vay and not paid for I enter it.

13,860. Who gives you information as to what to ter?—The waiter, or anybody assisting him at the ne.

13,861. Supposing any person applied for anything his bedroom, the chambermaid, I suppose, would the person?—We should know it in the bar.

13,862. The chambermaid would be the person to tch it, and give you the information?—Yes.

13,863. Will you come here and look at the books? ou see there is an entry "No. 6, gent." That is our handwriting?—No, I think "bread and tea" is.

13,864. Is not "No. 6, gent." ?—No.

13,865. Is that Mrs. Heath's?—Yes.

13,866. Can you tell who reported to you about the der?—I cannot tell now; it may have been the iarwoman or the servant who assisted.

13,867. Can you tell what servants were in the ouse at that time?—Who there was, who is not iere now?

13,868. We can find out that if you tell us their ames?—I do not know their names.

13,869. There is Thomason Heath, she assisted, rown has told us so?—Not at Colonel Dawkins' ection, she was kitchen-maid at that time.

13,870. He has told us that she did assist?—Of ourse she assisted.

13,871. I mean she helped to take the grog, and ings of that sort, up into the room?—She might ave done so, I do not remember it.

13,872. You do not?—No.

13,873. (Mr. Coleridge.) Who has the control of ne servants in the house generally; who engages iem?—Mrs. Heath.

13,874. That is her entry, is not it, "No. 6"?—Yes.

13,875. Whose is that; yours?—Yes.

13,876. Can you remember anything about that. That would be a sitting-room would not it?—Yes, a itting-room.

13,877. These would be the four persons who had ea?—Yes.

13,878. Can you remember if it is the sitting-room hich Mr. Smith's clerks occupied?—I think they id.

13,879. Did they ever have their meals in the coffee-oom?—I do not know at all.

13,880. These are all in your handwriting?—Mr. Smith's clerks would not be entered like that.

13,881. How would they be entered?—Altogether, ll the time they were there (referring to the book). They are not entered, I think.

13,882. Why not? That is exactly what I want to know. Those are the people who would have come in at this time when the room was occupied by the two clerks?—All the time it would be.

13,883. Where is Mr. Smith's accountant?—It is all entered.

13,884. Show me any item in Colonel Dawkins' account which will be what was supplied to Mr. Smith's clerks?—I cannot tell you.

13,885. (Mr. Coleridge.) It is all up together?—Not up together.

13,886. Would you charge the same luncheons to Mr. Smith's clerks?—Yes.

13,887. You would?—Exactly the same. Perhaps we were not told at the time that they were Mr. Smith's clerks. I do not see any entry for them.

13,888. (Mr. Longe.) How would the order be brought to you?—"Enter so many luncheons to "Colonel Dawkins."

13,889. That is in Colonel Dawkins' own room. You would not enter persons staying in another sitting room, to Colonel Dawkins' own account?—That is for the waiter.

13,890. How would the waiter bring the order to you. Look at that entry; is that your handwriting?—"Mr. Smith's friend."

13,891. Who is he?—Of course I do not know every individual man.

13,892. Just see if you can.

(The witness examined the books.)

13,893. This bill to which you have called our attention was not paid by Mr. Smith?—No, it was entered to Colonel Dawkins' friend. If you go through the ledger I do not expect that you will find the names of any parties entered there who come under the description you are alluding to; they are persons who pay their bill when they leave the house.

13,894. But Colonel Dawkins' bill was not paid for more than two months afterwards; how is it that that was not posted into the ledger?—That I cannot tell.

13,895. Is it not your business to know that?—No.

13,896. Then whose business is it to know that; can you tell us?—Either Miss Heath or some member of the family; I have nothing whatever to do with making out the accounts. My business is to sit in the bar, and if anything is taken from the bar and not paid for, then I enter it in the waste book.

13,897. Can you tell us how many beds you make up at the "Seven Stars"?—They sometimes make up many more than at other times.

13,898. How many can they make up?—They can make up as many as forty, I believe.

13,899. We have been told by the chambermaid that they can only make up 17?—But they have spare beds which they can put into some of the rooms and make them double-bedded rooms.

13,900. And you could also fill all the sitting-rooms

TWELFTH DAY.

Miss M. A. Prout.

6 Sept. 1866.

if it were required?—Yes; but that is the business of the chambermaid, not mine.

13,901. Then would you charge the same to two persons who slept in a double-bedded room as if they had had a bed-room to themselves?—That would depend upon circumstances; sometimes we do, sometimes we do not.

13,902. What sort of circumstances are those to which you allude?—I do not know; it is not my business to attend to that. You have the books here and you can see for yourselves what it is that we do charge; it is sometimes two shillings, sometimes three shillings, and even four shillings for a double-bedded room.

13,903. That is a matter, I fear, as to which we shall get no explanation from the books?—If two persons sleep in a double-bedded room they are often charged three shillings, sometimes two shillings. If one gentleman sleeps in a double-bedded room perhaps they charge him only for one bed.

13,904. We have heard from the chambermaid that there is only one double-bedded room; how many do you say there are?—I do not know; I did not go through the rooms. I think No. 17 is a double-bedded room, and No. 20 is a double-bedded room, at least so far as I know; I think it was the last time I was there.

13,905. Are there any others which you know of?—That is not so constantly.

13,906. But is it so usually?—It is not so usually.

13,907. Then you have only two double-bedded rooms usually?—There are Nos. 17 and 20, so far as I know the last time I was there.

13,908. (Mr. Coleridge.) Then at the periods such as those we have been speaking of, at election times, you would be able to make up more beds?—I do not know anything about that.

13,909. Then the only way in which you would be able to get at your charges as to the beds would be from what the chambermaid may have told you?—We put down so many beds at so much.

13,910. May I ask what is your charge for a single bed-room?—That would depend on who it is.

13,911. I do not mean to what are called commercial gentlemen; take for instance an ordinary person?—We should charge two shillings.

13,912. And if the chambermaid were to bring you down word that it was a double-bedded room you would charge for two persons?—The chambermaid would bring down word of the number of beds the people have occupied.

13,913. Then how are we able to know the charge that was made, and able to tell how many double-bedded rooms were occupied on the occasion of the last election?—You can look at the waste book and see for yourselves.

13,914. But you are the persons who would know much better than we do?—And so we ought.

13,915. Were the whole of these sums charged to the committee in a lump?—No, they were not charged in a lump at all.

13,916. Then will you be good enough to show us how they are entered. I understand that the entries here are not the same sums as were charged to the Conservative committee?—I do not know; I cannot say. I did not make out the bill.

13,917. Then in what book shall we find the things entered which were charged to the Conservative committee?—In this book.

13,918. Will you be good enough to point them out?—(The witness having looked over the book). I cannot find that there are any beds charged.

13,919. Then did they never go to bed?—I do not know; I suppose they did.

13,920. But there are no beds mentioned here in this book?—No.

13,921. We do not wish to bother you about the book, but is it not the practice that the Conservative committee, or the member, whoever he may be, on such an occasion as this, takes the whole of the house, and you put it down to him in that way?—We have no member, we have only a candidate.

13,922. I am much obliged to you for the correction. Then is it not the fact that one of the candidates take the house for the time?—No, they do not.

13,923. Can you show us where these beds are charged?—If you look through the book you will see what number slept in the house during the election.

13,924. Cannot you point out to us the rooms which were entered to Colonel Dawkins, or if you like to Mr. Smith?—I think you will see that "apartments" are entered there.

13,925. Have you any entry as to Mr. Smith?—I think Mr. Smith's name is not in the book; I think it is "Mr. Smith's friend."

13,926. Or is it not "friends"?—I do not know, I think it is only "friend."

13,927. How are his two clerks entered there?—I do not know.

13,928. (Mr. Bere.) Can you tell us this: who made out the hotel bill that was sent in to Colonel Dawkins for his expenses here?—Either Miss Heath or her father.

13,929. You had nothing to do with it yourself?—Nothing at all.

13,930. You do not know how that would be made up?—No; I never saw it.

13,931. Would that bill be made out from the entries which are to be found in this book?—I expect it would; of course it would.

13,932. (Mr. Longe.) There was no other account kept during the time that Colonel Dawkins was in the house of the different charges that were made?—Nothing that I know of; that is the only book that we have kept in the bar.

13,933. That does not purport to contain all the accounts of the various things that were had from the bar by persons who were in the house during the time of the election. You do not believe that it does?—Yes, I do; I think you will find that it is accurate.

13,934. (Mr. Coleridge.) If there were any other books kept in the house you must know of it?—I can swear that there is no other book kept by anybody in the bar.

13,935. Then everything which is there is kept there under your entire responsibility?—Yes.

13,936. (Mr. Bere.) The amount of the bill which we have seen comes to very nearly 300*l.*; from what you known of these accounts do you think there are items amounting to 300*l.* set out in that book?—I do not know, I have never calculated the amount.

13,937. Cannot you form some idea of what it may be?—I cannot.

13,938. I am afraid that you give yourself credit for less ability than you possess?—All that I can say is that I only enter what is taken away from the bar and not paid for. I do not know anything more; if I am not paid for the things as they are taken from the bar then I enter them in this book.

13,939. If you are paid for such things as are taken from the bar where do you put the money?—I put it in the till of course.

13,940. And then I suppose you enter it in the cash book?—No.

13,941. (Mr. Longe.) When the waiter has brought an order to you from different persons in the house whose expenses were supposed to have been paid by Colonel Dawkins how did you enter it?—I entered it to Colonel Dawkins.

13,942. Did you do so when they were brought to you in the first instance?—Yes.

13,943. Whomever it was for,—if it was not for Colonel Dawkins or those who were in his room, or who were his own personal friends,—if they were staying in the house and were in any way connected with the election, did you enter these matters simply as for Colonel Dawkins?—Simply for Colonel Dawkins.

13,944. And the waiter would give you the order in that way?—Yes.

13,945. What were the orders which you had from Mr. Heath in that respect?—None, Mr. Heath never gave me any orders.

13,946. Then do you mean that you and the waiter would put down anything that was ordered by any-

e who came into the bar at that time to Colonel wkins?—No, certainly not unless he or his friends l it. I suppose that Colonel Dawkins would know o were his friends. No one but those who were ends of his would think of entering into Colonel wkins' private apartments, at least I should think not.

13,947. Then you had no instructions at all from . Heath what persons you were to recognize as lonel Dawkins' friends and what charges you were put down in his bill?—None whatever. Mr. Heath ver mentioned the names of Colonel Dawkins and ptain Pim to me during the election, or told me at I was to enter to the account of anyone.

13,948. Then if anyone came to the bar and gave an order for something which they required you uld put it down to the account of Colonel Dawkins? No, certainly not; the waiter would know who y were.

13,949. Do you mean to say that the waiter would ow whether those persons had been authorized to arge what they were partaking of to Colonel Daws' account?—He would certainly know whether y were friends of Colonel Dawkins or not.

13,950. Then did you trust entirely to the waiter? Most certainly we did, and we are bound to do so.

13,951. You would not trust to anyone?—I should ke inquiries for myself and find out whether it was rect or not.

13,952. Was it by no means an uncommon thing to r a person ask for a bottle of champagne, or a glass soda-water and brandy, or anything of that kind, l then say, "Put it down to Colonel Dawkins"? I never remember doing any such thing as that.

13,953. Did not the waiter bring any orders of that d?—He used to take it to Colonel Dawkins' private rtments.

13,954. Then anything ordered from No. 6 would taken to his room?—Nos 5, 6, and 7 were his rooms.

13,955. All the orders that the waiter brought to for Colonel Dawkins were for Colonel Dawkins his private friends who were living in these three oms?—Certainly they were.

13,956. Orders for Mr. Smith or for Mr. Smith's clerks, or for the persons who were staying in the house, the Conservative committee?—The committee had a separate account.

13,957. Was there a separate account in your book as regards Mr. Smith and his clerks?—No.

13,958. Then how were the orders as regards Mr. Smith and his clerks put down in that book?—They were put down as Colonel Dawkins' friends.

13,959. You mean both Mr. Smith and his clerks?—Yes.

13,960. (Mr. Bere.) That cannot be so?—If you know better than I do why do you ask me.

13,961. Do not answer in that way, we are not at all disposed to question what you say?—But you doubt my word.

13,962. We do not doubt your word, we doubt your accuracy. Here is an entry in this book "Sitting-room 5*s.*" that will not include three sitting-rooms?—That is No. 20 apartment, that would be his private room.

13,963. Then on the other side of the book there are these words "Coffee, gents. No. 6," who were those, were they not the people in No. 6?—I cannot remember now.

13,964. For a day sitting-room, 5*s.*?—That was No. 20 sitting-room.

13,965. Where do you find throughout the account Nos. 5, 6, and 7 charged to Colonel Dawkins?—I think if you look through the book you will be able to find them.

13,966. It is your business to look through the accounts not ours?—I think you will see "Rooms, a "guinea," put down there.

13,967. Then will you have the goodness to look through the book and see if you can find the entry to which you have been referring?—(The witness having looked over the book) I can only find one entry of a guinea.

13,968. And how many days does that refer to?—That I think refers only to three days.

(Mr. Bere.) You will be good enough to leave the book and we will not trouble you any further.

Mr. Thomas Hunt Edmonds recalled and further examined.

13,969. (Mr. Bere.) How long have you practised a solicitor in Totnes?—For some 15 or 16 years.

13,970. And always on your own account?—Yes, ways on my own account; I have never had a rtner.

13,971. Do you remember Mr. Charles Edwards? When I was under articles.

13,972. At that time was he acting on the part of e Conservatives?—I have heard so, but that was be-re I had anything to do with electioneering matters.

13,973. When did you first have anything to do th the Conservative cause as their legal adviser?—hink it was at Mr. Mackenzie's election in 1857.

13,974. Whom did you succeed as their legal viser?—Mr. Bryett.

13,975. Do you mean the present Mr. Bryett?—Yes.

13,976. Did he resign?—Yes, he did resign, and I ceeded him.

13,977. Were you associated with Mr. Kellock at t time?—No, we always acted together, but I was nsidered to be the chief.

13,978. Was Mr. Charles Edwards then dead?—s.

13,979. And Mr. Bryett had succeeded him?—I lieve he did, and I succeeded Mr. Bryett after Mr. nn's election in 1859.

13,980. Did Mr. Bryett act for Mr. Mackenzie at t time?—Yes, he did, he was the chief at Mr. nn's election.

13,981. Were you acting under him on those two asions?—I was. I was concerned for Mr. Gregory Mr. Mackenzie's election, and Mr. Bryett and Mr. llock for the other candidate.

13,982. Did you know anything of Mr. Gregory? Nothing.

13,983. What was he?—I understood that he was army agent.

13,984. Was he any relation of the Messrs. Gregory in Bedford Row?—I never heard that he was.

13,985. Then you took an active part for the first time in the election of 1862?—Yes.

13,986. And in 1863 and 1865 you were the recognized Conservative legal adviser we have been told?—Just so.

13,987. You have already given us an account of the communication you had with Mr. Spofforth with regard to the election of 1865; when did Colonel Dawkins come down here?—I think in the latter part of June, the 27th or 28th of June.

13,988. Did he bring any letter from Mr. Spofforth to you?—Yes, he did; he brought a letter from Mr. Spofforth introducing Colonel Dawkins to me, which I think is in the possession of the secretary.

13,989. Do you remember being asked on Tuesday last whether you had not mentioned to Mr. Smith that a person would be required from London to distribute the money; we are to understand that you did mention that to Mr. Smith?—I did, most decidedly.

13,990. Do you know whether Mr. Kellock was present when you mentioned this to Mr. Smith?—Yes, he was.

13,991. Do you remember about when it was that you mentioned it to Mr. Smith?—I think he was just going to London, at all events he told me so; Mr. Kellock was present at the same time, and upon my speaking of it Mr. Kellock reminded me of it last evening.

13,992. Then after that you have very little doubt that some man would come down from London to distribute the money?—I certainly thought so.

13,993. How long before the election of 1865 did you first begin to act on behalf of the Conservatives?—It was immediately after Colonel Dawkins came down here, when I think he was introduced to the committee, Mr. Bastard, Mr. Gill, and Mr. Bentall.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. T.H. Edmonds.

6 Sept. 1866.

13,994. Were they deputed to receive him on the part of the Conservative committee?—There was a special sub-committee for that purpose.

13,995. Are the names which you have given to us correct?—They are.

13,996. And did you hold your committee meetings in the large room with the bow window at the "Seven "Stars"?—Yes, we did generally.

13,997. Had you and Mr. Kellock a room in that hotel, No. 8, in which you transacted your own business?—I think it was No. 8, it is the small room on the landing, we had that room to ourselves.

13,998. And I suppose people came from time to time to consult you who knew that you were occupying that room?—Just so, and reports were brought there to us by persons who were employed as scouts, and so on.

13,999. You had the appointment of all the persons who were employed as under officials?—No, I think not.

14,000. Then did you appoint what may be called the upper officials?—With regard to the runners or watchers, as they were called, I think they were appointed by Mr. George Heath.

14,001. I suppose that was because he had been entrusted with the management of the municipal elections and knew the people who had been concerned in them?—Yes.

14,002. Did you appoint Harris, Screach, and Evens?—No, I did not; they, however, brought me reports from time to time of what was going on.

14,003. How came they to bring reports of what was going on to you?—They knew that I was the principal agent engaged; sometimes they brought reports to Mr. Kellock as well as to myself.

14,004. Had you spoken to them at all about anything of the kind?—No, I had not.

14,005. Still they did from time to time bring you reports of what was going on?—They did occasionally.

14,006. Were you Colonel Dawkins' special legal adviser?—I was considered to be his special legal adviser in conjunction with Mr. Frederick Kellock.

14,007. You knew perfectly well that money would be required to bribe the electors, and knowing that, you did everything you could to keep yourself aloof from it?—I was perfectly aware that it was useless to fight this place without spending money.

14,008. You never saw this man who has been called Mr. Mum, and had no personal communication with him?—Never.

14,009. All the communications which you had with him passed through Mr. Heath?—Yes, they all passed through Mr. Heath.

14,010. But I suppose you have no doubt that there was such a person as Mr. Mum?—I have no doubt of it at all.

14,011. You have no doubt there was some one who came down from London who acted in the distribution of the money?—Yes, that is my impression.

14,012. Then, as far as you know anything of it, the transaction was this, that the money was given to you by Mr. Smith, was taken from you by Mr. John Heath, given by Mr. John Heath to this individual, and by that individual distributed?—Just so.

14,013. With regard to the first 1,500*l.*, did you get the whole of that from Mr. Smith, or did you not get two sums of 500*l.* from one of Mr. Smith's clerks? I think I got two sums of 500*l.* from the taller of the two clerks.

14,014. Do you know the name of that gentleman?—I think his name was Lind.

14,015. (Mr. Coleridge.) From what you have stated you have no doubt that there was a Mr. Mum down here on that occasion, in addition to the two clerks?—Just so.

14,016. You do not think that either of those two clerks was Mr. Mum?—I think not.

14,017. You have said that you had some conversation with Mr. Smith as to bringing some one down?—Yes, I think I did. I told him that as it would be necessary for us to spend money in order to gain the election, when he came down again he had better bring the money with him, and that I thought it was necessary there should be some person to distribute the money; or, I think my expression was, to do the dirty work.

14,018. Was that at the time you have spoken of, before Mr. Smith went back to London?—Yes; and Mr. Kellock heard the conversation.

14,019. (Mr. Longe.) Have you any reason for not thinking that it was one of Mr. Smith's clerks who took this active part?—I have no particular reason for thinking so.

14,020. You know of no fact inconsistent with it, why it should not be so?—Certainly not; but the description which has been given of him here by the various witnesses differs so very materially from that of these clerks that they could hardly be one and the same person.

14,021. You know of nothing beyond what has come out in the evidence before this Commission?—No, certainly not.

14,022. (Mr. Bere.) From time to time did you see Mr. Smith's clerks?—I saw Mr. Lind two or three times, and Mr. Smith told me if I could make him in any way useful that I was to do so, and I believe that I did employ him some two or three times to go to the printer's. I do not think they were very much at the hotel; one day I know they went over to Torquay.

14,023. Did you have any conversation with them on the subject of the election?—No, I did not.

14,024. You do not know whether they were concerned in the management of the election in any way?—I do not.

14,025. Then was your curiosity ever excited to ask the question why it was that Mr. Smith had brought them down here?—No, it was not. I certainly thought it somewhat strange that Mr. Smith should have brought them down here, because they were perfectly useless, but I did not say anything, and thought nothing more of it.

14,026. (Mr. Longe.) Did you not hear Mr. Guscotte say that Mr. Smith had told Mr. Lind he was to act according to Mr. Edmonds' instructions?—Mr Smith told me that I was to employ him if I had anything for him to do. I remember that I did send him up to the printer's once or twice, and on another occasion I sent him up to my office for a register of voters.

14,027. Did you ever see him employed in such a way as to render it certain to your mind that he was the man who was distributing the money, that he might have been the person who had handed the money to Mr. Heath?—I do not know at all.

14,028. You do not remember employing him at any particular time when the circumstance of his being so employed would render it impossible that they could have been one and the same person?—No, I do not. I do not recollect it. According to the best of my remembrance I only employed him twice, once, I think, was to go to my office and once to the printer's. He really had nothing whatever to do with the election so far as I know. That was on the Monday or Tuesday.

14,029. (Mr. Bere.) You never made use of Mr Lind as a distributor of money on this occasion?—Certainly not.

14,030. Very soon after what you have been telling us you went about to canvass the voters?—I did.

14,031. Had you the poll book with you?—I had.

14,032. And did you put down from time to time the way in which you thought people would vote as you had canvassed them?—Yes; I put down the way in which I thought they would vote from the information which had been brought to me.

14,033. I see the letter D. opposite some of the names, what does that mean?—That means doubtful. I put the letter D. against the names of some of those men, who, if they had voted for us, were men who would have required to be paid; they were men who would vote for that side which would pay them best.

14,034. I see the letter R. against several other names, what does that mean?—That means those who had signed the requisition.

14,035. You mean the requisition which we have en told Harris had taken round and got certain ople to sign?—Yes.

14,036. And you naturally thought that those ople who had signed the requisition would support u?—Just so.

14,037. You had no doubt they would have required me money for supporting you?—Yes; I thought me of them would certainly.

14,038. May I ask you, had you formed any opinion to how many there would have been?—I consider ere were about 15 or 16 on the poll book who were re inclined to the Liberal side, and about eight on e Conservative side; that they were about evenly vided.

14,039. And, I suppose, we may take it that Screach d Evens knew these men perfectly well?—Yes.

14,040. Did you see Screach from time to time, d did he report to you not only what he had done th regard to those men, but also with reference to her voters?—I do not think that he brought me any rticular report until the day of the nomination.

14,041. Will you allow me to ask you this general estion? As your canvass went on from time to ne, what did you yourself think of the chance of ccess of Colonel Dawkins?—Up to the Saturday I nsidered his success to be almost certain.

14,042. Can you tell us at all when you made up e final poll book; was that made up by you on the aturday?—That was made up on the Saturday.

14,043. And according to your calculation that ould have given Colonel Dawkins a majority of five tes over Mr. Seymour?—It would have given him re than that, because several alterations were afterrds made in that. This poll book was originally ade up before Colonel Dawkins came down, and at shows him to be 20 ahead of Pender or Seymour.

14,044. You thought he would poll 211; the second nservative 186; the highest Liberal 191, and Mr. ender 184?—That is so.

14,045. That was made up on the Saturday night?—Yes.

14,046. (Mr. Coleridge.) On the supposition of eir spending money and you spending none?—No; pending money equally.

14,047. If you were outbid you were done?—Yes.

14,048. (Mr. Bere.) On Saturday night you came the conclusion that you would not be able to win. ou say that you made up this poll book on the aturday?—I did not consider it was all up until uesday afternoon. Further reports were brought in, d I made up another poll. The next day I found e figures to be as they are shown on the paper you ve there.

14,049. How near would they have approximated em?—To something very near.

14,050. You got the show of hands?—Yes. I then ade up my mind it was all over.

14,051. (Mr. Coleridge.) There were more defalcaons that you expected?—Yes; when the election ok place there were a great many more.

14,052. (Mr. Bere.) In the 191 you credited Dawins with, can you tell how many of the requisitionists ou included?—I can hardly tell you without going rough the book.

14,053. Had you included more than the eight hom you mentioned?—No.

14,054. Had you any reason to believe, from what ou have heard from your scouts, that any of the ther seven whom you put down to the Liberals had anged their minds?—No, we could not manage em at all.

14,055. We have heard that besides the requisiionists and persons wavering on the Liberal side ere were persons described as matter-of-course men?—I did not trouble myself about them.

14,056. Did you canvass them?—Yes.

14,057. And they promised their votes?—Yes.

14,058. And you put them down?—Yes.

14,059. If you did not find a person at home would ou take the poll books of the two or three former lections and judge of their politics from them?—Yes.

14,060. So that without canvassing you might put a person down as to what way he would vote from the way he voted in Dent and Dunn's election?—Yes.

14,061. If you found he voted for Dunn and Dent you would put him down as to vote for Colonel Dawkins?—Yes, as a matter of course.

14,062. When did you see Evens or Screach?—I saw them during the election, but no special interview, so as to ascertain what they were doing. I saw Evens on the morning of the nomination and Screach in the afternoon.

14,063. Where did you see Evens?—Down in the entry.

14,064. The entry of the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

14,065. Did you see him in room No. 8?—Yes.

14,066. Had he a canvass book?—No book or paper at all.

14,067. Had you got your canvass book?—Yes.

14,068. Did you begin to ask him questions about doubtful men?—There were 15 or 16 I had ticked off and I was anxious to know whether they were secured.

14,069. Did you make a list of the 15 or 16?—No. I never had a separate list.

14,070. Did your clerk?—No, he had nothing to do with the election.

14,071. Do you know how Mum came to get the names of the requisitionists?—I presume from Screach or Evens.

14,072. What we want to know is this; when Screach and Evens went to the room of the stranger he had a poll book in his hand and they went through the list together; sometimes he had a separate list with the names written on it. You never supplied any such list?—I never supplied him with any list at all.

14,073. Had you given instructions as to what people he was to see?—No, I did not.

14,074. I do not mean what individuals, but what class of persons he was to see?—No, I never gave him instructions.

14,075. He knew pretty well?—Yes.

14,076. He had been employed in former elections?—Yes.

14,077. They were the same class of people he went to in 1865 as at other elections?—Yes.

14,078. And nearly the same individuals?—As near as possible.

14,079. Who did you ask about when you got to No. 8?—I asked him about William Allen, there was nothing about him; and Thomas Blank.

14,080. What did he say about him?—He said he had not been able to make music out of him at all; not able to manage him. He had tried him very hard and could not manage him.

14,081. You knew what that meant?—Yes.

14,082. Are you quite sure he did not know anything about William Allen?—Yes; I found afterwards that he was under Screach's charge; I asked him about Crawford, and he said he would not go near such a scamp as he was, therefore he had nothing to do with him. I asked him about William Foote, and he said he had quite made up his mind to vote for the Conservatives. I did not ask him what inducement he had had, but I knew pretty well.

14,083. You knew there was an inducement?—Yes. I asked him about John Fox Green, and he said that he meant to vote, but he did not know what had become of him; he thought he was at the "Seymour Hotel."

14,084. Did Evens tell you that he had got Foote all right, making a motion as to where he had got him all right?—No.

14,085. He did not say that Foote was safely disposed of at the "Seven Stars"?—No, but I have heard since that was so.

14,086. Did he tell you anything about William Sloggett, jun.?—Yes, he said that man had swindled him on a previous occasion; that he had tried him hard, but could make no music out of him; he understood that he was gone over to the "Seymour Hotel." These were doubtful men as far as he was concerned. I afterwards saw Screach later in the day and he told me Allen was all right.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. T.H. Edmonds.

6 Sept. 1866.

14,087. And Baker ?—Baker, he thought, had quite made up his mind to vote for the Conservatives.

14,088. Did he tell you he had some others who had not made up their minds ?—Yes; he said he had tried William Crook very hard, and he could not get him. John Drew and James Edmonds he considered had treated him in a shabby and disgraceful manner.

14,089. Did you see Screach in No. 8 too ?—Yes. John Light he mentioned he was afraid would go against us.

14,090. John Diggins ?—John Diggins also was a very slippery customer.

14,091. Did he at any time tell you what amount of temptation was put before these people ?—He did not, and I did not wish to know. I wished to keep myself aloof from it.

14,092. Were those the only two occasions that you saw him and Screach on that day ?—I did not see them afterwards.

14,093. Did not they come and make a report to you again in the evening ?—No, certainly not; I made up the poll about eight o'clock in the evening.

14,094. The evening of the nomination day ?—Yes, and I was assisted by Kellock and Heath, and others from whom I got information.

14,095. Heath and Kellock got information from Screach ?—I do not know.

14,096. Was Mr. Kellock in No. 8 then ?—No.

14,097. What sources have you received information from besides Screach and Evens ?—Every Conservative and their sons who take an interest in it were constantly in and out bringing me information, sometimes absurd rumours.

14,098. I suppose John Heath gave you a good deal of information ?—Yes.

14,099. George Heath ?—Yes.

14,100. Young John ?—He had very little to do with the last election.

14,101. What had James Heath to do with it ?—I think he canvassed with Captain Pim ; I think he was devoted to Captain Pim during the whole time ; Captain Pim took a fancy to him and wished him to go with him.

14,102. Had not George Heath a great deal to do with the last election ?—I think not ; he did not take nearly so active a part as at the previous election.

14,103. Which son was it that took an active part in the election of 1865 ?—George took the most active part, but his principal business was to look after the watchers.

14,104. Did he go about as a sort of spy upon the watchers ?—I think he went to see that they were at their post ; but that was not under my management. I gave directions that they should watch certain men, such as Jacob Thomas Searle, Samuel Parnell, and Elliott. George Pengilley, Charles Pengilley, Prout, and Callard, Mr. Holman, Mr. Chaster, Mr. Jenkins, and a person called Worthy were very active, and also John Pengilley was very active. Those I directed should be watched, and I told Mr. George Heath if he saw any of those fellows going into the houses of the voters to tell a couple of men to go in with them and stay with them, and see that they were not tempted.

14,105. Is that what you consider the general superintendence on the Conservative side ?—Yes it was.

14,106. We have heard the story about the money, is there anything you wish to add further ?—I do not think I can add anything further.

14,107. With regard to " Mum," had you reminded Mr. Smith of his conversation before he gave his evidence on Tuesday ?—Yes, I did in the morning before he came up ; we were talking about the matter, and after saying that he could not think who " Mr. Mum " was, I said, " I thought you had sent him down;" and Mr. Smith said, " I know you said something about " it, but I never did it." I was very much surprised when I heard what he stated that I had not given him such information.

14,108. You took a considerable part in managing the election on the Conservative side ; what part did Mr. Kellock take ?—He assisted me generally. I do not know whether he canvassed with Captain Pim or not ; that would be a part of his duty.

14,109. He did not go with Colonel Dawkins at all ?—No.

14,110. Did not he go about and see the voters ?—I do not know that he did ; I daresay he might have done so.

14,111. Did he make a poll book ?—I daresay he kept one.

14,112. Did you compare your poll books together ?—I think we have made up our figures. I have had my poll book and gone through it, and called over the names generally, and said, " I think so-and-so will vote."

14,113. He has had a similar book to you ?—I think he must have had, but I do not recollect seeing it.

14,114. Was there generally some person in No. 8 with you and him ?—No, I generally locked the door when I came out; I had papers and things lying about there.

14,115. Had Mr. Kellock a key ?—No, he could not go there unless I was there. It was considered to be my special room.

14,116. Did you ever see Screach or Evens in conversation together with Mr. Kellock ?—No, I do not think I ever did.

14,117. You received, I believe, a cheque for 1,000*l.* from Mr. Smith ?—Yes, I did.

14,118. Did you give it to Mr. Kellock ?—Yes.

14,119. And he took it to the Devon and Cornwall bank ?—Yes.

14,120. Do you know that he got that cashed with Capt. Pim ?—Yes.

14,121. And the other was cashed at the Torquay bank ?—Yes.

14,122. Which was first ?—That at the Torquay bank, I think.

14,123. The entry is the election day when it was cashed at the Devon and Cornwall bank ?—It may have been so. If so it must have been cashed after banking hours. I was under the impression that it was cashed on the Tuesday.

14,124. How did he bring the money ; in gold or in notes, or all in gold ?—Partly notes and partly gold.

14,125. Did you know that he had five 100*l.* notes at Torquay, and cashed those for gold at the Devon and Cornwall bank in the course of that day ?—I was not aware of that. The parcel he brought to me, I think, was partly in notes and partly in gold.

14,126. 5*l.* notes ?—Yes.

14,127. The Torquay Bank has no private issue. It issues Bank of England notes ?—I do not know that.

14,128. Were there not two men named George Evens and Evan Evens who had to do with the Conservative party ?—There was a man named George Evens but I do not think he was employed.

14,129. Was he not paid ?—I am not aware that he was. He was never paid by me ; he was not a man I should like.

14,130. Had he been uncertain in former elections ? I think he had been.

14,131. Was not there a man called Gilbert ?—I do not think he took any part in the election. I think he was in London at the time.

14,132. Did you never hear the name in connexion with a man called Hardin ?—No.

14,133. Do you know whether Hardin did act or not ?—I am not aware that he did.

14,134. Did you pay any of these men yourself ?—No, I never paid any one. I omitted to state that Mr. Harris had 6*l.* ; he asked me to let him go up to see a man called Samuel Rolstone, and to pay his travelling expenses.

14,135. He was the gardener of Colonel Willoughby ?—Yes. We found he was coming down to vote. I knew his qualification was a bad one, and I thought we might get Rolstone to counterbalance him. There was also a party named Mark at Dartington had 5*l.* to send up to his brother who had left the neighbourhood to pay his expenses.

14,136. Evan Evens, had he anything to do with the election ?—No, not since Dunn's election.

14,137. Did you pay Frederick Evens and Screach?—I did not.

14,138. Did you know anything about a man named ephens?—I heard of him being exceedingly active the other side; he is a tailor.

14,139. Is he one of the three whose names were ven to the watchers in order to be looked after?—annot say.

14,140. Was George Stoyle another?—He was other.

14,141. You found on the night of the nomination at on making up the poll there was not much chance success?—I considered our chance was gone.

14,142. Did you communicate that at once to lonel Dawkins and Captain Pim?—I mentioned it Mr. Smith.

14,143. When did you first learn that there was no re chance?—I think they were aware of it the ening before, and we were in a desperate state. lo not recollect that I communicated it to them, I y have done so.

14,144. Was there any idea of retiring during the rse of the election day on the part of the candites?—I think not the last occasion.

14,145. It was kept up to a certain extent to enable e Liberal party to spend more money?—The very xt morning a lot of our young fellows went there d offered fabulous prices, with a view of raising the ce of votes.

14,146. Without any intention of paying it?—I do t think there was.

14,147. They would have found themselves in a ficulty if the sums had been accepted?—I do not ow what they would have done then; they would t have got it.

14,148. We have heard the door was closed at nine lock on the polling day, and no more money was thcoming; had the candidates heard anything about at?—I do not know that they had. I had very tle communication with the candidates. Mr. Smith the morning of the election offered me an additional n of money, I told him it was all up.

14,149. Whatever you knew Mr. Kellock knew ?—Yes, I think so.

14,150. He knew how the money was spent?—ndoubtedly he did; I do not know that he ever ew to whom it was paid, he knew it was being ent. We both kept ourselves aloof from that part it.

14,151. Had you before the election taken the uble to find out what was the state of the Convative party in Totnes before the election began, fore you had Colonel Dawkins at all?—Oh yes, we l a meeting. I went very carefully through the l book and made up the numbers just as I have ntioned now.

14,152. You thought you should carry it by 20?—s.

14,153. (Mr. Coleridge.) About the requisition, l these names that you have given us as having ned the requisition to Colonel Dawkins, did you ow those were people not to be depended on at the ne they signed the requisition?—I thought any n who would sign a requisition would certainly te for the Conservative party; I considered at the ne time that there were some on the list who would nsider they should have a little money.

14,154. Did it ever occur to you that a good many l signed the requisition in order to set the money ing, and in order to get a candidate?—That did t occur to me.

14,155. You thought there would be no contest, l you meant to put forward those who signed the quisition?—There are a certain number of men who ned it for the express purpose of getting bribes.

14,156. How many who signed it had voted against u at the previous election?—I can hardly tell thout looking through the book. I think only ree.

14,157. (Mr. Bere.) Diggins, J. Parnell Searle, ggett, and Helms?—Those are the four.

14,158. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did not those four names having voted against you at the previous election put you on your guard against these requisitionists?—To a certain exteut; there was nothing said about the matter at the time.

14,159. Those men having voted against you before the signing the requisition, those would be the ones that would expect money on your side?—I was rather suspicious of those men.

14,160. Were you not suspicious in the event of their being offered money on the other side?—Yes, I was.

14,161. In your calculations with Colonel Dawkins, did you take credit for all the requisitionists?—I did.

14,162. Did you not tell him about your doubts as to the requisitionists?—In the letter I wrote to Mr. Spofforth when trying to get the candidates, I stated I considered we could show a majority of 10 or 12. I cut off eight names, because I thought they were not to be depended on.

14,163. In your letter to Mr. Spofforth, you did not take credit for those four doubtful requisitionists?—No, for eight.

14,164. How came it about that these requisitionists made such a tremendous difference in the election; how many voted against you after all?—Four.

14,165. No more than that. Every one voted against you, I think. How many voted against you. Crawford?—No.

14,166. He did not sign the requisition?—No.

14,167. How many were there who signed the requisition?—Twelve.

14,168. How many voted against you?—Diggins; Edmonds.

14,169. (Mr. Bere.) They all voted against you?—They all did; the 12 voted against us.

14,170. (Mr. Coleridge.) In first making up the poll, giving to Colonel Dawkins a majority of 20, they would appear?—Yes, they would.

14,171. Did you consider that the requisitionists carried a certain amount of weight which was over and above themselves in point of numbers?—Only in their votes.

14,172. As soon as you found the requisitionists were going to vote against you, you thought the whole thing was up?—I considered so.

14,173. That did not give you the best description at all of the state of things?—It did not.

14,174. Did you hear of their going over in a party, or first by one and then another?—First one and then another.

14,175. Who did you hear of as having been tampered with?—I only had that in this way; the information was brought in to me, but no particular names were mentioned as to those who had dealt with them; it had been done secretly.

14,176. Had it been done for the most part by the monetary influence of Mr. Pender and the influence of the Duke of Somerset?—The monetary influence of Mr. Pender, nothing else could have done it.

14,177. It was no part of the influence of the duke that would have affected those voters?—No, certainly not.

14,178. You got a more moderate view in 1865 of the costs of the election than you had in 1863?—No.

14,179. Had you not told Colonel Dawkins after the withdrawal it would cost him 12,000*l.* or 14,000*l.*?—No. I told him that at least 4,000*l.* or 5,000*l.* would carry him triumphantly, particularly as Mr. Seymour was a poor man.

14,180. You never put a higher sum to Mr. Dent than to Colonel Dawkins on that occasion?—The first sum mentioned to Colonel Dawkins was 2,000*l.*

14,181. And subsequently it got higher?—It would cost more provided it was spent freely on the other side.

14,182. (Mr. Bere.) Do you know whether the information was given that those who signed the requisition would be obliged to vote?—No.

14,183. How have you got Thomas Blackler down?—As voting for the Conservatives.

TWELFTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

6 Sept. 1866.

14,184. Henry Eastman?—Yes; his name was on the poll made up before the election as voting for both Conservatives.

14,185. William Farley, jun.?—Both Conservatives.

14,186. George Griffis?—The same.

14,187. Samuel Hill, jun.?—As voting for Mr. Pender only.

14,188. Richard Harris?—As voting for Dent and Seymour.

14,189. John Michelmore?—As voting for both Conservatives.

14,190. Edward Shinner?—Both Conservatives.

14,191. Out of those who split between Pender and Dawkins, you expected six to vote Dawkins and Pim?—Quite so.

14,192. (Mr. Coleridge.) One question upon the telegrams. You say there was a telegram you received from Mr. Spofforth of the 5th July?—I daresay I received one from him.

14,193. Did you give it to the secretary?—I cannot tell you.

14,194. Do you recollect on one day, the week before the election, receiving two telegrams from Mr. Spofforth?—I may have done so.

14,195. (Mr. Bere.) With regard to the names I asked you about, from whom did you receive information in regard to them which made you enter those six names as going to vote for both the Conservatives, was it from their speeches to you, or from an account supplied?—Partly from information they supplied to me themselves, and from the canvass of Colonel Dawkins, and from information Mr. Kellock had brought.

14,196. Can you give us information as to any one of those persons about whom Mr. Kellock gave information?—I do not know, particularly; we went through the lists together, and it would be from information he supplied me.

14,197. What sort of information was it, that he had seen them himself?—I think he said he had seen John Michelmore, and he stated he should vote for both Conservatives.

14,198. Had he seen any others, Shinner, Farley, Blackler, and Eastman?—No.

14,199. Had you seen them yourself?—No.

14,200. Have you any doubt that they were induced to vote for the Liberal side by means of bribery?—I strongly expected it; I cannot prove it. Taking into consideration the fact of the information offered to me on the nomination day, that certain Dartington farmers had been offered a sum of 100*l.* each to give one single vote for Mr. Pender, that may have had some influence upon it.

14,201. Can you say, the day before the day of election, you considered them staunch?—I considered them staunch up to the morning of the election. I was utterly surprised that they voted against us. We had made up the poll, and put down everyone we considered doubtful against us.

14,202. They seem to have voted so very late, that it was not from the polling early in the morning?—They polled early in the morning.

14,203. Not a single one of these men?—I have got here the paper upon which the election was generally put, showing the losses and the gains as the election went on. I find the first man who voted against us is Thomas Blank, then John P. Searle promised to vote; then Thomas and James Matcham, both of whom had promised; John Tozer, William Pengilley; we had no idea he was going against us. On the following day he returned the 50*l.* he had for his vote. Robert Jackson, we thought he would have voted for us, but he was under the Cranstoun influence.

14,204. (Mr. Coleridge.) Those who voted against you were not all as honest as Mr. Pengilley?—That is the only case I know of. I believe there is a sort of honour.

14,205. (Mr. Bere.) John Diggins returned the money?—Yes; and Tozer.

14,206. He gave it back to Screach, and he brought it to Mr. Heath, and having brought it to Mr. Heath, he kept it?—I understand Diggins kept the money in Dent's election. It was Pengilley who returned it at this election.

14,207. Was it ever accounted for to you?—No.

14,208. What became of the money Pengilley returned?—I have heard Screach had it for his services, and kept it.

14,209. Who authorized him to keep it?—I did not, certainly.

14,210. No account was taken. You were not responsible for any of the money that was passed through your hands?—No; I naturally kept myself aloof. I knew nothing about the matter. I considered the account had been delivered in London, and it came on through the agent.

14,211. Was that one of the reasons why a stranger was wanted, in order to see that the money was not wasted, and in order that no person connected with Totnes should be able to say that it was given?—That was one of the principal reasons.

14,212. There was a sum of 207*l.* returned to you by Mr. Harris, we believe you wish to account for that?—I paid Mr. Harris 6*l.*; Marks, 5*l.*; for telegrams 7*s.* 6*d.* I sent up to Page, a clerk in Mr. Bryett's office, 5*l.*, to pay his expenses down and back; and watchers, 23*l.* 14*s.*, through George Heath.

14,213. How many watchers had you?—I do not know. I had nothing to employ them but general instructions as to what they should do. I had a journey to London to see about the candidates' expenses, two days, 10*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; postages and so on, 1*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*; registration expenses, 27*l.*; Tozer, 13*l.*; and Hannaford, 10*l.*

14,214. How much does that come to altogether?—I was out of pocket for the registration expenses myself. This is for altering buildings in order to bring them up to 10*l.* a year.

14,215. This is the bill paid to Mr. Harris?—Yes.

14,216. It was paid out of the 207*l.* 10*s.*?—I think there was something in addition. Mr. Heath paid Mr. Harris a part of that, and I paid the remainder.

14,217. It was part of the 207*l.*?—No, it was not; he got it from his father. That makes a total; with the registration expenses, I am out of pocket, 185*l.* I spoke to Mr. Smith when he came down first. It was 300*l.* we were out of pocket in connexion with the registration. It was usual for the candidate to pay this. He said he was quite willing to do so, and I believe that this money has come back. I told him that these expenses were to be paid; he said, "Let "me know what it is and I will send a cheque."

14,218. Had you any further money besides that?—Nothing more than the 185*l.* which came down some few months after.

14,219. (Mr. Bere.) As a retaining fee?—Yes, I got it as a retaining fee.

14,220. I suppose you took it because your professional brethren thought you ought to take it?—Yes. Mr. Smith offered me 100 guineas on the morning on which he left, and I told him I did not desire it.

14,221. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have got the telegrams. I see a telegram from Mr. Spofforth to Mr. Edmonds of the 5th July; telegram from you to Mr. Spofforth of the 11th July; do you know what the object of the telegram to him was? The answer is, "Does Colonel A "go to the poll? Telegraph back immediately"?—That meant Colonel Alexander.

14,222. Did you receive those telegrams at the time of the election?—I do not know that I did.

14,223. There is another of the 25th July, Mr. Spofforth to you?—I do not know that I had any more. I told my clerk to make a search for it; I have not got it.

14,224. A telegram from Mr. Spofforth to you on the 5th, and two from you to him on the 5th; do you know what they were about?—I cannot recollect. They must have been about getting a candidate.

14,225. Another from you to Mr. Spofforth on the 4th?—Entirely about getting a second candidate. This will cause a greater search to be made. I know that he has done it very carefully, for he made two searches

4,226. (Mr. Bere.) Do you remember the circum-ce whether you were told that 100*l.* had been ed to Mrs. Champernowne's tenant?—Mr. Heath me. He said he had seen Edward Shinner.

4,227. That was on the nomination day?—That on the nomination day, and Edward Shinner had him that Mr. Pender had offered the Dartington ies 100*l.* each to give a vote for him and give the r to Colonel Dawkins. He says, "If you will not ıy them, you may depend on it they will go against ou."

4,228. How many tenants were there?—Three or I think four. Shinner was one, Marks, Nathaniel ıonds——

4,229. And which of the Coles?—William Cole.

4,230. (Mr. Longe.) You have no particulars as other who was paid?—Mr. Heath was my infor-t; he sent it.

4,231. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know Brown, the er at the "Stars"?—Yes.

4,232. Was his qualification a bonâ fide one or one ıe made votes?—I cannot tell you. Mr. Harris is principal man; he had the registration.

4,233. Was there any building in Totnes like that h 11*l.* a year?—I do not know; they would e it worth 11*l.* no doubt.

4,234. (Mr. Bere.) How long has Brown been in ession of it?—I do not know. I knew nothing it until I heard it mentioned just now.

4,235. I suppose you saw that Mr. Heath was very re at the last election; what did he get paid?—hing at all, decidedly not. I do not think he ld take anything, and I do not think that either of his sons would take any consideration for their services.

14,236. They were not paid as agents?—No; they did the work voluntarily.

14,237. You saw eating and drinking going on at the "Seven Stars"?—I heard there was.

14,238. Did you never go into the great room?—I looked into it once. There were a great many people in it, and speeches were being made.

14,239. Did you ever know how those expenses were to be paid?—I suppose they were put down to the candidate.

14,240. They were entered in Mr. Heath's book to the Conservative candidate?—I gave no orders for them; on the contrary, it was my wish that there should be no treating.

14,241. How long have you conducted the registration for the Conservatives?—From the time of Mr. Dent's election.

14,242. During that time, with the exception of the Broomborough votes, have the Conservatives tried to put on any fictitious votes?—I think not.

14,243. Have any votes been tried to be put on by the Hayfield party?—I think I did hear of something of the kind; it was said that they had put them on the register.

14,244. Were you present when a vote was put on at Hayfield when the occupation was obtained by sending up a horse and cart to stay in a barn during the night?—It was mentioned I believe. I did not hear of it.

14,245. But the vote was not allowed?—The vote was not allowed.

JAMES CLARKE sworn and examined. J. Clarke.

4,246. (Mr. Bere.) At the last election of 1865 were a waiter at the "Seven Stars"?—I assisted e.

4,247. Where were you living then?—No. 3, New k.

4,248. At what time did you go to the "Seven tars" in the morning, and what time did you leave he evening?—I left at 12 or 1 o'clock.

4,249. At what time did you go in the morning?—bout 7.

4,250. What were your duties?—Merely as a ter generally.

4,251. Did you take orders from the regular er?—No. What was ordered from me, I gave orders and took it to the different rooms.

4,252. (Mr. Longe.) Did you wait on Colonel kins?—I did.

4,253. Did you wait on Mr. Smith?—I did not.

4,254. You knew Mr. Smith?—I could not say I

4,255. You said you did not wait on him?—I did know who Mr. Smith was. I did not take any icular notice one from the other. I knew there e parties connected with the election stopping he hotel. It was never pointed out to me who Smith was.

4,256. You said you did not wait on Mr. Smith?—ot that I am aware of, unless he joined Colonel kins and Mr. Pim during the dinner time.

4,257. Do you mean you did not know him?—Not onally. I was only there as an assistant to the er.

4,258. (Mr. Bere.) Did you attend to some one in 6 sitting room?—No.

4,259. (Mr. Longe.) You attended generally?—

4,260. Which was the room you were most fre-ntly in?—Sometimes the commercial room and a n downstairs.

4,261. Where was the room where the eating was g on?—I never attended to that general room.

4,262. Who was there?—I do not know. I was required to go there.

4,263. You were the waiter, were you not?—I

14,264. (Mr. Bere.) Did not Mr. Heath pay your rent for you at that election?—He advanced me 10*l.* for my services, which he agreed to pay me.

14,265. How often were you there?—A fortnight.

14,266. (Mr. Longe.) Did you hear of the mysterious stranger being there?—I knew some one was there.

14,267. What do you mean by that?—I know there was a good deal of money passing.

14,268. What did this some one do?—He was there in a private room to himself. I was not allowed to go to him; I never waited on him.

14,269. I am not asking you what you know now, but what you knew at the time?—I knew there was a party there, and that was all.

14,270. What do you mean by that, you "knew "there was a party there"?—In the room at the "Seven Stars."

14,271. Do you know that room?—I ought to know it.

14,272. What room was it?—I think it was No. 9.

14,273. What do you mean by "knowing there was "a party" in No. 9?—There was a party there; I did not go there.

14,274. What was the party doing in No. 9?—I do not know what he was doing. He was there for a purpose I could not tell you. I never went near him; I supposed he was there to distribute the money to the voters; that was my conclusion.

14,275. He was in No. 9?—Yes, across the house.

14,276. What is No. 9?—A sitting room.

14,277. What leads you to think it was in No. 9?—Because I saw the parties going up in that direction to the other side of the house.

14,278. You say you had orders not to go to No. 9?—I had no orders not to go, but I never went there.

14,279. You waited generally?—I did not go there, I was not allowed to go there.

14,280. How do you know there was anybody in No. 9?—I only know the parties going to and fro there.

14,281. Did you see him go into No. 9?—I saw him going up and down stairs. I know he went up and down stairs.

TWELFTH DAY.

J. Clarke.

6 Sept. 1866.

14,282. Is No. 9 near No. 15?—No, on the other side of the lobby.

14,283. But in going up to No. 15 would you go near to No. 9?—No.

14,284. Up a different staircase?—Certainly.

14,285. Do you know who was in No. 15?—That I cannot say.

14,286. Were there various people on the landing?—No. I do not think I went up at the time I was there. Not on the other side, I do not believe there was.

14,287. You do not know who was in 15 and 16?—I could not say.

14,288. No. 9 is the only room you know about?—Yes.

14,289. You understood there was a mysterious stranger there distributing money?—I did; where he came from I do not know.

14,290. You never said anything at all about it to anybody?—Certainly, I did not.

14,291. (Mr. Bere.) Whom did you ever see coming downstairs, tell us his name, what sort of person? Do you know Frederick Evens?—Oh, yes, sir.

14,292. Did you ever see him going there?—Yes.

14,293. Do you know John Sandford Screach?—Yes.

14,294. Did you ever see him go up there?—Many times.

14,295. Do you know Robert Harris, did you ever see him?—I would not say.

14,296. Screach and Evens you did see about?—Yes.

14,297. Did you see them go up with empty hands and come down with full ones?—No, I never suspected it.

14,298. (Mr. Coleridge.) Do you know of any one in No. 13 at the last election?—No, I do not.

14,299. Did you ever take anything up to No. 13?—I never did.

14,300. Do you recollect Mr. Smith?—I do not recognize him at all.

14,301. Do you know No. 6 sitting room?—No. 8?

14,302. No. 6; there were two clerks of Mr. Smith occupying No. 6 sitting room?—That was a sitting room, and they have converted it into a bedroom on the same landing. There is a communication between them from the other staircase.

14,303. No. 8 was a small room occupied by Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Kellock?—I do not know.

14,304. Do you recollect about No. 6?—I do not recollect.

14,305. Do you recollect about two clerks of Mr. Smith being there?—I did not interfere with it all. I only went where I was told to go.

14,306. (Mr. Longe.) You remember about the lame ducks?—No, I do not.

14,307. You know about their being up in the house?—Oh, no, I did not trouble myself about such matters at all.

14,308. Did you hear about George Stoyle?—Mr. Edmonds had got him at his own house dressed up in his uniform. I saw him up there at one time, that is all I know about him.

14,309. Had many persons offered you bribes on that occasion for your vote?—No one but Mr. Heath.

14,310. What did he offer you?—50*l.*

14,311. Did you take it?—I have not got a farthing.

14,312. You voted all right?—Yes.

14,313. You expected it?—He promised it.

14,314. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is 5*l.* a week your usual charge for going out as an extra waiter?—No, sir, 5*s.* a day, and 7*s.* 6*d.* if I go into the country.

14,315. 10*l.* for a fortnight was excessive pay?—I could have got it in Plymouth.

14,316. (Mr. Longe.) Did you give your orders in at the bar when you had them from gentlemen in the house?—I booked it to the number; sometimes "light "gent," and sometimes "dark gent;" they book them any way down there.

14,317. How is a person known?—They are booked by their names.

14,318. What do you do?—I ask them their names, otherwise they are not booked.

14,319. Did you ever give an order into the bar from any one you did not know?—No doubt about it, as I should not know them personally.

14,320. When you give an order you know the person that gives it to you?—Of course; a dinner or a luncheon, whatever it may be, they book it to the number of the sitting room; or, if he has been booked before, they refer to the book and book it to him.

14,321. You never gave an order without knowing the person in some way to identify him?—Certainly not.

14,322. I want to know how you identify them, not knowing their names, I mean Mr. Smith and his two clerks?—I never had anything to book to them; it was booked to the number. I was not supposed to know who the gentlemen were by their names. If it was No. 5, I booked to the number.

14,323. Taking those two facts together, you would not have given any order from anyone you did not know? Did you ever take an order from Mr. Smith or his clerk?—Not that I am aware of; I might have done so.

14,324. (Mr. Bere.) When you book an order for the first time from a man whose name you did not know, did you give a description of the gentleman to the barmaid?—Refer to the books.

14,325. But if his name is not there?—If not we book him afresh.

14,326. Then you described him. Suppose it is in the coffee-room?—Described him in the book accordingly.

14,327. Did you describe him the first time as the light gent? Used the barmaid to take the orders from you? Was not she told to put down to the persons you told to her?—Certainly.

14,328. With regard to the offer John Heath made to you, at what time was that?—In June.

14,329. Did you not tell Captain Pim about it?—Yes.

14,330. When?—The day of the election.

14,331. What did you say about it?—Before Mr. Edmonds and Mr. John Heath, in No. 7 sitting room. I said I expected he would pay it, and I should get the money.

14,332. Did Captain Pim tell you where to go for it?—No.

14,333. You never had it?—No, not a farthing.

14,334. (Mr. Longe.) Did you ever give any order from Colonel Dawkins to the bar?—I went when the dinners were on.

14,335. You waited?—I did.

14,336. Did you ever give any for Colonel Dawkins' account from anyone else, when anyone else wanted anything?—No, sir; none except those that came from Colonel Dawkins and his room. When they dined together it was booked accordingly to Colonel Dawkins, or he joined with Lord Cranstoun.

14,337. Did you ever know when you were there that there were any gentlemen in the house authorized to put down what they wanted to Colonel Dawkins' account through you?—I cannot say; I do not know.

14,338. Do you remember whether any gentleman told you to get "soda water" and put it down to Colonel Dawkins?—No one. Mr. Edmonds, when he had a lunch, paid for it himself.

14,339. Did you ever put these things down to the Conservative committee?—In the sitting room?

14,340. (Mr. Bere.) Used Mr. Kellock to pay for his lunch?—I never received an order from him.

14,341. Did you ever see Mr. Kellock?—He would go and dine with them.

14,342. He did not lunch in the middle of the day—I do not recollect; once he might have done it.

14,343. Did you give the names to Miss Prout and say, "Mr. Smith's friend"?—Not to my knowledge.

14,344. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did anybody on the other side ever offer you anything?—No.

14,345. At any election?—No.

14,346. In any election?—No.

14,347. Were you at the election of 1863?—Yes.

348. Were you offered anything then?—No.
349. On either side?—No.
350. Which way did you vote in 1863?—For Mr.

351. What did you get for your vote then?—50*l.*
352. Who paid you?—Mr. John Heath.
353. You expected that Mr. John Heath having sed you 50*l.* in 1865 would have kept faith with —He did not do it.
354. You voted in 1862 for Dent and Pender? did not go to the poll.
355. What were you promised if you voted?— ame.
356. Who promised you?—John Heath.
357. In 1859 did you vote?—I voted for Dunn.
358. What did you get?—Nothing.
359. Were you not promised?—No.
360. There was no money going?—Yes, plenty.
361. Did you get anything?—No.
362. Who canvassed you?—Mr. Dunn.
363. How came they to give you nothing that —I was living there then at the "Seven Stars."
364. You were a matter-of-course man?—Yes.
365. Did he give you something after the elec- —Not a fraction. He left a gold toothpick i him.
366. Is that all you got?—He left it on the ey-piece, and he says, "Keep that for yourself, ke."
367. Did you vote in 1857?—At Mackenzie's n? He did not stand; he went away.
368. Mackenzie and Gregory?—I voted for enzie and Gregory.
369. What did you get then?—Nothing.
370. Anything after the election?—Not a frac-

371. The first time you had the luck to get any- was in 1863?—In Dent's election.
372. Then you would have had 50*l.* in 1862 if he one to the poll, and you ought to have had in 1865, only you got out of it?—I did.
373. (Mr. Bere.) Though you had no offer from ther side, then did not some one tell you you have had money if you voted for Mr. Pender? doubt.
374. Who did you hear that from?—Mr. Jeffery lmore. He gave me a poke in the side in the of the confusion.
375. What did he say?—He wanted me to go o the "Seymour Arms." I did not go. I had ed my word, and my word is my bond.
376. If you had known how John Heath was to serve you?—I might have had it.
377. Was Jeffery Michelmore the only Liberal who offered anything to you?—Young Mr. Pender came in.

14,378. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did he venture into the "Seven Stars"?—They both came in; they brought a message for Mr. Kellock from Lord Cranstoun, stating he withdrew his services.

14,379. Mr. Jeffery Michelmore and Mr. Pender came to tell him that Lord Cranstoun had turned round?—He thought of sending a voter over with the vote to Mr. Kellock and Mr. Edmonds, but he brought it over himself to see me, and he did see me. There was a hue and cry that they were going over.

14,380. Had money been paid before that?—That was the nomination night.

14,381. (Mr. Bere.) It was at the "Seven Stars" Mr. Pender and Mr. Michelmore suggested that?—He gave me a poke in the side, and said, "Come "along with me."

14,382. (Mr. Coleridge.) Anybody in 1863?—No.

14,383. That was the first time the Liberals tried you?—In 1863.

14,384. What did they offer you?—Nothing.

14,385. Merely canvassed you?—They did.

14,386. Did they not tell you money would be going?—Nothing.

14,387. Did Mr. Pender offer you a butler's place? —No, he knew my principles before that; I told him.

14,388. In 1865 they did try you; how was it they did not know your principles so well then?—I do not know.

14,389. (Mr. Bere.) Are there any people in Totnes who have the same complaint as you, that they have been promised money by John Heath and have not been paid?—Yes.

14,390. How many?—Barker, the baker.

14,391. What did he complain about?—Because he had not got the money.

14,392. (Mr. Coleridge.) What did Barker say he had been promised?—He did not say what.

14,393. He had been promised by John Heath?—Yes.

14,394. Who else?—A man named Tilley.

14,395. Who did you say promised him money?—John Heath.

14,396. Who else?—I could not say any more.

14,397. They are all in the same boat?—There is a man named Pengilley.

14,398. Which?—The broker.

14,399. They all complained of John Heath?—I believe they did.

14,400. Was there a sympathising feeling amongst you about that?—Not the slightest. I kept myself aloof from it.

14,401. Had it reached Tilley?—I do not recollect.

Adjourned till to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Friday, 7th September 1866.

Mr. Thomas Hunt Edmonds recalled and further examined.

402. (Mr. Bere.) Among the other people who employed on behalf of the Conservatives in was not Mr. Heard employed?—I recollect two occasions employing him myself; on the ay I think I asked him to go and see a man l Smaridge.
403. Is he the brother-in-law of May?—He ther-in-law of Shillabeer. I told him to go ndeavour to bring him to the "Stars." I do ink I saw him afterwards, but from the result aridge voting for the Conservatives no doubt de it all right.
404. What other instance was there?—I asked him to go and endeavour to find John Fox Green, but he was unsuccessful, he had been taken to Plymouth.

14,405. You pretty well know what he was to do?—To bring them to the "Stars" no doubt, and introduce them to Screach or Evens. I have been told this morning that I stated here yesterday that Mr. Thomas Kellock had not canvassed with Colonel Dawkins. I never meant to state such a thing, and I do not recollect that I did so. No doubt Mr. Kellock did canvass with Colonel Dawkins, particularly before Captain Pim came down.

14,406. I think you stated it inferentially. I asked

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

7 Sept. 1866.

you whether Mr. Kellock canvassed, and I think you said he canvassed with Captain Pim, or ought to have done so, and the inference was that he did not canvass with Colonel Dawkins ?—He did.

14,407. Do you remember, in the course of the canvass with Colonel Dawkins, calling upon the Rev. William James ?—I do.

14,408. Was that at an interview when Captain Pim was present, or when you and Colonel Dawkins were alone ?—When I and Colonel Dawkins and Frederick Kellock were present.

14,409. Will you tell us what passed ?—We went with the object of canvassing him, and he said he had not promised his votes ; at the same time he liked Mr. Pender exceedingly, and probably he should vote for him. Colonel Dawkins asked him to vote for him, and he said I cannot promise you at present. It must have been the Thursday or Friday before the election.

14,410. At that time Mr. James had borrowed a a sum of money from you ?—Yes.

14,411. How much ?—230*l.*

14,412. Had he deposited any security ?—Yes ; the scrip of the National Discount Company and a promissory note.

14,413. How long before the election had you lent him that money ?—I think in the month of November 1864.

14,414. Had he paid the interest regularly ?—It was a loan for three months. At the end of the three months I met him in the street, and he said I am sorry I have not been able to repay you that money, but the shares in the Discount Company are down, and it would be the ruination of me to be obliged to sell them at the present time, and he would be glad if I would let it stand over for a short period, and I agreed to let it stand over. At the end of six months he paid the interest, and I said the money ought to have been repaid, as I had told my client it was only a temporary affair, and I had really become responsible.

14,415. It was not your own money ?—No, a client's money. I had become responsible to my client in making the advance, because it was not such a security as I could advise my client to advance upon. I said upon that occasion I should like the money to be repaid, particularly as I told my client it would be. He said, " Well, those shares are still " very low, and if you can let the matter stand over " I shall be very glad indeed. I feel you have been " a friend in need, and if I can return you a favour " I shall be glad to do it." The matter did stand over, I did not like to press him then, because ill-natured people would have said I was putting the screw on, and nothing was said about demanding the money until after the election ; I think about a week after.

14,416. Was not that the morning of the election ?—On the morning of the election I simply wrote this letter :—

" My dear Sir, Totnes, July 12, 1865.

" Being especially interested in the result of this election, I would ask you as a favour of the most deeply personal kind not to vote against Col. Dawkins, but, if possible, to give him your support.

" Yours very truly,

" The Rev. W. H. James, T. H. Edmonds.
" Totnes."

14,417. Was that the only letter you wrote on the day of the election or the day before the election ?—The only letter I wrote at the election.

14,418. Had there been at any time, by writing or by word of mouth, an intention to press him for the money before the election ?—Decidedly not.

14,419. (Mr. Coleridge.) You only asked him for one vote ?—Yes. My letter I understood to mean this, that if he voted at all he would not plump for Mr. Pender or vote for Seymour and Pender, so as not to vote against Colonel Dawkins.

14,420. He always had voted Liberally ?—It was the first time he had voted.

14,421. His family are Liberals ?—That I do n know.

14,422. Did you see him after that interview wi Captain Pim and Colonel Dawkins ; were you prese when Captain Pim was there ?—I was not.

14,423. (Mr. Bere.) What was the impression l on your mind at the end of the interview betwe Colonel Dawkins and Mr. James ; that he wou vote or not vote against you ?—My impression w that he would give one vote to Colonel Dawkins a the other to Mr. Pender, and it was the impressi of Colonel Dawkins at the same time, also of M Frederick Kellock.

14,424. Did you make an entry opposite his nam in the poll book ?—I think I did.

14,425. Will you look at the poll book ?—I am n sure whether I did or not, I considered he w doubtful. I find I made an entry that he wou probably vote for Mr. Pender and Colonel Dawkin

14,426. Dawkins and Pender ?—Yes.

14,427. Can you tell at what time you came to t conclusion that he would not vote for Colonel Daw kins, but for Seymour ; it must have been after y wrote that letter ?—Yes, it was.

14,428. Did he return any answer to that letter ?— No ; it was written early in the morning, I thi between 6 and 7 o'clock, and I sent it by a messeng but I do not know who took it. I have heard h he has since complained that it was put under t door, but I never knew anything of it at the time.

14,429. When did you first, after the election, pre Mr. James for the money he owed you ?—I wrote note on the 18th of July, this letter :—

" Dear Sir, Totnes, July 18, 1865

" I shall be glad if in the course of a few da you will repay the temporary loan which I made to you l year.

" Yours faithfully,

" The Rev. W. H. James, T. H. Edmonds
" Totnes."

14,430. Did Mr. James vote at the election ?—Y

14,431. He voted for Pender and Seymour ?—Y

14,432. Had that anything to do with your press him for the money ?—Not in the slightest degree.

14,433. Did you get an answer to that ?—I did. wrote an answer, saying he would pay it in the cou of a short time.

14,434. When did he pay it ?—He repaid it on 24th July 1865.

14,435. Six days after your application ?—Yes.

14,436. And the securities were handed back Yes.

14,437. How was it repaid, by cheque ?—No, no There was a 50*l.* note.

14,438. Do you remember the number of the note ?—I entered it in my diary at the time, 058 50*l.*, dated London, 9th June 1865.

14,439. Any endorsement on it ?—George P gilley. Mrs. James brought it to me, and im diately after she left I was turning over the not count them and see if they were all right, and attention was called to the name of George Pengi on the back of it. I immediately went downstair my clerk and said, " Do you know this writin " Yes, I do very well, it is the man who makes " boots and shoes." I said, " Have you any bill " letters at home, so that we may compare the " nature ?" And he said, " Yes, I have several." said, " Will you go home and bring them down ?" before he went I took the precaution to take numbers of the notes in his presence.

14,440. There was one note for 100*l.* ?— 22,828, 100*l.*, 10th April 1865, London.

14,441. Do you know any of the others ?—I not give you the whole of them.

14,442. Perhaps you will be kind enough to g list to the secretary ?—Yes.

14,443. Perhaps you will read them out ?— first is a bank post bill,—

6846, 10*l.*, May 13, 1865, London.
99676, 5*l.*, March 1, 1865, do.

52420, 5*l.*, Nov. 11, 1863, Plymouth.
70806, 5*l.*, June 1, 1864, Bristol.
57146, 5*l.*, April 29, 1864, Birmingham.
25192, 5*l.*, do. do. do.
83707, 5*l.*, do. do. do.
98521, 5*l.*, Jan. 2, 1864, Manchester.
69393, 5*l.*, July 18, 1865, London.
87719, 5*l.*, May 3, 1865, do.
48602, 5*l.*, April 5, 1865, do.
95077, 5*l.*, Nov. 11, 1863, Plymouth.
55199, 5*l.*, do. do. do.
61672, 5*l.*, do. do. do.
20625, 5*l.*, April 2, 1861, London.
05843, 50*l.*, June 9, 1865, do.

14,444. What did you do with that 50*l.* note?—As soon as my clerk came back with these bills I compared the signatures, and saw without doubt that it was the signature of George Pengilley, they were so exactly alike. Then I gave him the two notes, one for 50*l.* and the other for 100*l.* and requested them to take them up to Mr. James, in order that he might place his signature on the back of them. I may say I had not the slightest idea of Mr. James having received them as a bribe, I considered he was a man quite above anything of that sort, and my object was to be able to identify the notes as having been paid by him to me, that I might trace them.

14,445. Had you heard that George Pengilley had received money from either side?—I had heard that he had been employed as agent, and he appears on the books as having been so employed in the accounts.

14,446. What led you first to take the numbers?—From the fact of George Pengilley's name being on the back of it.

14,447. That was the first thing that suggested it to you?—Yes, I thought it was desirable to be cautious in a matter of that kind, and I purposely took the number in order to trace the note.

14,448. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is Mr. James a clergyman of the Church of England?—He is.

14,449. Here or in Wales?—He is living here.

14,450. Has he a living here?—No, he is living privately.

14,451. Has he held any preferment in this part of the country?—I am not aware that he has.

14,452. Was your clerk's name John Diggins?—Yes.

14,453. Did he, as far as you know, take the notes up to Mr. James?—Yes.

14,454. Did he bring them back to you with Mr. James' signature endorsed?—He did.

14,455. Then what did you do with them?—I kept the notes from that time till the petition. Of course I supplied Mr. Spofforth with the necessary information, and Smith and Guscotte with the necessary particulars. I never parted with it from that time till the day of the petition.

14,456. (Mr. Bere.) I suppose you found that both those notes, the 50*l.* and the 100*l.*, formed a portion of the money which had been drawn out of the Consolidated Bank on Mr. Pender's behalf?—The 50*l.* only, not the 100*l.* note.

14,457. Are you sure the 100*l.* was not?—I think you will find it so; I compared the numbers yesterday.

14,458. The 50*l.* was certainly?—The 50*l.* was certainly, there is not the slightest doubt of it.

14,459. Then at the time of the petition that note was produced, was not it?—It was.

14,460. It was then handed over to Mr. Guscotte by you?—He gave me a cheque for it. I remained in town a short time longer, and I did not like to keep a note for 50*l.* about me.

14,461. (Mr. Coleridge.) What has become of it now?—Mr. Guscotte told me that he had circulated it in the way of business; what has become of it I cannot conceive.

14,462. (Mr. Bere.) This note for 50*l.* had been given to George Pengilley long before it came into your hands. How did you find out that it came from the Consolidated Bank?—Mr. Spofforth's clerk went to the Bank of England first.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmond

7 Sept. 1866.

14,463. Is that Mr. Tomlinson?—I do not know his name at all. He went to the Bank of England and inquired to whom the note had been issued, and they said the Consolidated Bank. He then went to the Consolidated Bank and inquired to whom they had been paid, and found they had been paid to Mr. Percy Salmon, Mr. Pender's secretary.

14,464. Do you know how they came into Mr. Pengilley's possession?—I have heard it was paid to a man named William Kellow. Pengilley is not a voter I think, I think it likely that George Pengilley was employed to go to the bank to get smaller money.

14,465. (Mr. Coleridge.) You do not think it was sent by Pengilley to Kellow, or anything of that sort?—It may have been.

14,466. Can you fix the time when Mr. Smith gave you a cheque for that 50*l.*?—It was on the day after the petition.

14,467. After you suspected that there would be a Commission?—Quite so. The petition was over, it had been heard.

14,468. And it was certain that in the course of events there would be a Commission?—We did not think much about it at that time.

14,469. At the time you handed over the note to Mr. Guscotte you knew pretty well there would be a Commission?—I never gave the thing thought.

14,470. You are aware that there has never been a report of a committee on a petition of that kind without a Commission following it?—I never gave it a thought.

14,471. (Mr. Bere.) Do I understand that this note had been paid into one of the banks here by Mr. Pengilley?—When in London Mr. Pearce, the manager of the Devon and Cornwall Bank, was summoned there on behalf of the petitioners, and he stated that this 50*l.* note had been paid into the bank by George Pengilley, that he had forgotten to put his name on the back of it, and that he had taken the number of the note and given him smaller monies for it, and he recognized George Pengilley there.

14,472. Did Mr. Pearce inform you how it got into Mr. James' hands?—He said he believed it had been paid to John Bowden.

14,473. Do you know when it was paid in by George Pengilley?—I think they can supply you with that at the bank, but I did not ascertain the date.

14,474. You did not get it cashed at that time?—I got it afterwards. There was a report circulated at the time that Mr. Pearce had taken this note of George Pengilley, put his signature on the back of it, and then handed it over to me, that I might use it for the petition; but that is quite untrue. I never saw Mr. Pearce or spoke to him on the subject; it is a pure invention. Mr. Tucker of Ashburton told several people that that had been done, but since that he has admitted that he did Mr. Pearce an injustice.

14,475. I will just ask you this question, are you perfectly certain that when that 50*l.* note came into your office it had the signature of George Pengilley on it?—I am perfectly certain.

14,476. Is there any foundation for the charge made against you that the name of George Pengilley was written on that note after it came to your office?—Decidedly not; it is utterly false and untrue.

14,477. (Mr. Coleridge.) On a former occasion you have stated that you told Mr. Smith, on the Saturday before the election, that it would be necessary to have a man down here, who was unknown, to distribute the money, upon reflection are you satisfied that you made such a statement to him?—I am perfectly certain of it, or to that effect.

14,478. You do not recollect Mr. Smith's making any answer to that?—I do not recollect what answer he made. I think he may have said, Very well.

14,479. And when he left you I suppose you were

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

7 Sept. 1866.

under the impression that he had arranged for some one to come down?—Undoubtedly.

14,480. And when some one did come down you fully believed that he had carried out your suggestions?—Yes.

14,481. And you were very much surprised to hear him say that he knew nothing of the matter?—I certainly was.

14,482. Have you had any conversation with Mr. Smith on the subject since he gave his evidence here?—No.

14,483. You are under the impression that this man did come down in consequence of what you said?—Yes.

14,484. Was that before or after Mr. Smith's second clerk, Mr. Lind, had come down?—I cannot tell that, I do not know when the man came down. The first intimation of his being here was on the Saturday morning.

14,485. When did you tell Mr. Smith it would be necessary to have a man down?—That was before he went to London.

14,486. Before he went to London in the first instance no second clerk had come down here?—No.

14,487. It was before he went to London that you had this conversation with him, and after he came back that the second clerk joined him?—I think he came the next day.

14,488. Do you imagine that the person who was upstairs could have possibly been the second clerk, Mr. Lind?—I fancy not, I think he went away for one day.

14,489. Did you at any time when you were sending messages through Mr. John Heath and receiving them from the man upstairs see Mr. Lind about the house engaged in anything else?—I frequently saw him about the house.

14,490. You do not recollect whether at the time this man was upstairs you saw Mr. Lind otherwise engaged?—I do not recollect. I saw Screach and Evans and others going up and down stairs; there was one day when he was away at Torquay.

14,491. When who was away?—Mr. Lind.

14,492. You mean that at that time you saw these people going to the man who was upstairs as you supposed for money?—I suppose so.

14,493. If that were so Mr. Lind and this man could not possibly be the same person?—Certainly not.

14,494. Then your conviction is that there were two clerks and a third person down here?—I have little doubt of it.

14,495. (Mr. Longe.) But you do not know positively that that is so?—No. I never saw the man, and it is not possible for me to speak about him from any personal knowledge.

14,496. (Mr. Bere.) Amongst other people whom you canvassed did you canvass the Rev. Mr. Butland?—I did.

14,497. You called on him with Colonel Dawkins?—Yes, with Colonel Dawkins and Mr. F. Kellock.

14,498. Were you the usual trio who went out canvassing?—Yes, during the first part of the time.

14,499. Will you tell us what passed between you and Mr. Butland?—Colonel Dawkins asked him for his vote, and he said he did not know, he did not think he should ever vote for the Tories again, he had voted for Mr. Dent at his election, and he said "My son was promised a situation at that time, and "it was not given him, and I was 150*l.* out of "pocket on account of it."

14,500. Have you any correspondence which passed between you and the Rev. Mr. Butland as to that matter?—No.

14,501. Did you leave that gentleman with an idea that if a situation could be got for his son he would vote for you?—Not exactly at that time.

14,502. Did you see him again?—I did not.

14,503. Did you hear from Captain Pim any account of his interview with him?—Captain Pim said that he had seen him, and he thought that if a situation could be obtained for his son he would vote for the Conservative party. That was spoken of on the nomination day.

14,504. Is that all that you know about the Rev. Mr. Butland?—Yes; he was at the same time very impertinent to me, and he hinted that I had been bribed at Mr. Dent's election. The fact is that I did not make any charge for my services on that occasion, and about three weeks after Mr. Dent sent down to my wife a bracelet, and the Rev. Mr. Butland seemed to fancy that his wife ought to have had one as well, and seemed bitterly disappointed at it.

14,505. How did he vote eventually?—He voted against us; he went to the "Seymour Hotel" and dined with Mr. Pender, and when I was making up the final poll I put him down as against us. I have got the letter here which Mr. Dent wrote to Mrs. Edmonds with the bracelet if you would like to see it (hands the letter to the Commissioners).

14,506. That was between 1862 and 1863?—Some time after 1862, before 1863. I may mention that after the petition I received a letter from Mr. C. H. James, a solicitor at Merthyr Tydvil in Wales, who is a brother of the Rev. Mr. James of Totnes, to this effect:—

"Sir, Merthyr Tydvil, April 19, 1866.

"What my brother means to say is this, that you sent a note to him to be indorsed by him which he had not paid to you, and that you used such note before the committee. It will be well to have the matter well aired and that if possible before the bill for re-distribution of seats is gone on with, so that we may, if possible, get rid of those places that are such a stigma to the English name. You can send me any process.

"Yours obediently

"T. H. Edmonds, Esq., Chas. H. James.
"Solicitor, Totnes."

14,507. Are you quite certain that the note which you received from Mr. James was the note you afterwards sent by your clerk to Mr. James to have his indorsement put upon it?—I am quite certain of it; within a minute or two afterwards I went down to my clerk and showed him the note.

14,508. (Mr. Coleridge.) The amount of money which went through your hands was about 4,700*l.*?—Yes, about 4,000*l.* and the election expenses; and there were 25*l.* paid to Mr. Harris. There were two cheques for about 2,500*l.* and another cheque for 1,000*l.*

14,509. Did you deduct the 300*l.* odd for the election expenses?—Mr. Kellock I believe deducted it.

14,510. At what amount do you put the money actually received by those who were bribed?—I cannot tell you; I do not know any of the amounts except from the evidence which has been given here.

14,511. Then you cannot tell what stuck to the hands of the bribers?—I cannot.

14,512. You believe that a great deal of it did?—That I cannot say.

14,513. It was not all absolutely distributed?—It is probable that the gentlemen who were employed helped themselves.

14,514. How much did Mr. John Heath distribute?—He did not receive any money at all from me.

14,515. (Mr. Longe.) Can you tell us what was the arrangement as to the committee meetings at the "Seven Stars"?—I said in the committee room I hoped there would be no treating, as it would invalidate the election; that nothing should be done in the way of treating. I mentioned it generally, there were a good many there, and I hoped there would be nothing in the way of treating.

14,516. At what time was that?—On the previous occasions the different inns had been opened, the agents were running about, I considered it illegal, and I hoped nothing of the kind would be done on this occasion.

14,517. The Conservative committee rooms were full of different people?—Yes.

14,518. What was Mr. Heath authorized to put down?—I never authorized him to put down anything in that way.

14,519. Was it supposed that Mr. Kellock and Mr. Bastard would pay it all.—No, I considered that Colonel Dawkins would pay it all.

14,520. Two separate accounts were kept?—There seem to have been.

14,521. Ultimately it was all paid by Colonel Dawkins?—It was all paid by Colonel Dawkins.

14,522. You do not understand two accounts being kept?—I do not; certainly the committee did not hold themselves responsible for any of the drink.

14,523. Nor had the committee anything to do with the dining in the common room?—They may have dined there occasionally at Colonel Dawkins' or Captain Pim's request if he invited them.

14,524. Did you ever dine there yourself?—I may have done so once or twice.

14,525. There was a dinner and any one could go and dine there?—There was a dinner ordered for so many and they invited their friends in.

14,526. Who would have given the order, Colonel Dawkins or Captain Pim?—Decidedly I should not have done it, neither I nor the committee would take on themselves the responsibility of that.

14,527. (Mr. Coleridge.) The responsibility was of another nature?—Quite so.

14,528. There was some stress laid on the requisition to Mr. Macleay. Was the first idea of the requisition in consequence of a letter of Mr. Mitchell to Mr. Harris? (This is the 27th of April, when you were talking about the members.) "Dear Sir, I have your note of the 20th."

"69, South Audley Street,
Grosvenor Square, London,
April 22, 1864.

"MR. HARRIS,
DEAR SIR,

"I HAVE your note of the 20th inst., and in reply have only to say that I am quite unable to assist you in any way towards the object in view; as far as Mr. Dent and his advisers are concerned, let it be clearly understood that he will never return to Totnes unless upon a requisition in which some of the more prominent electors on the other side shall concur, such men as Mr. Bowden, Mr. Chaster, &c. &c., whose high personal character place their motives beyond suspicion.

"I am, Sir,
"Your faithful servant,
"W. H. MITCHELL."

Was it in consequence of that letter that there was such a great effort made to get some one on the other side to sign the requisition?—No, I think that was not the idea at all. The first idea of the thing occurred in this way: Mr. Macleay came down here and saw the Conservative committee, and he said he would be disposed to come down provided he could get a good requisition signed; consequently it was got up and sent to him.

14,529. It was not Mr. Dent who started it?—Not at all; we tried to get Mr. Dent; we thought he was a good card to run and had plenty of money.

14,530. You tried to get Mr. Dent?—It was thought he might do something. He was talked of.

14,531. (Mr. Bere.) That is all you have to tell us with regard to the election of 1865?—I believe it is.

14,532. You were actively engaged as the manager for the Conservatives at the elections of 1862 and 1863?—I was.

14,533. When did you first have any communication with Mr. Dent about standing for the borough of Totnes?—Mr. Mitchell came to my office.

14,534. When was that?—Very soon after, a few days after Mr. Mills' death.

14,535. Had you heard anything of Mr. Dent before Mr. Mills' time?—No, I had not.

14,536. Had there been any negotiations going on in Totnes in consequence of the expected death of Earl Gifford before?—I think Mr. Colleton Rennie came down.

14,537. Was that the time that Lord Gifford was supposed to be dying?—I think it was.

14,538. Mr. Colleton Rennie came down in 1861?—He must have come down about that time. I do not think I had negotiations with any other person.

14,539. Was he the only person that had been down?—Not at that time.

14,540. Had you any communication with Mr. Spofforth or with the Conservatives about any candidate before Mr. Mitchell came down?—I do not think I had. He brought a letter to me from Mr. Mitchell; I forget whether it was a letter or a telegram.

14,541. From whom?—Mr. Spofforth.

14,542. After Mr. Mitchell's death did you put yourself in communication with Mr. Spofforth?—I think I did. The last communication I had was from him, in which he stated himself that Mr. Mitchell was coming down.

14,543. Did you have any communication with Mr. Spofforth before that?—I think I may have, but I do not recollect.

14,544. Did you know him personally before Mr. Mitchell came down; did you know Mr. Spofforth personally?—I think I had seen him. I recollect I saw him before I went up about Dunn's election. I was requested by the committee, as Mr. Bryett said he could not go, they requested me to go up and see about a candidate.

15,545. Did Mr. Mitchell bring down an introduction from Mr. Spofforth to you?—I think he brought a note from Mr. Spofforth.

14,546. Or a telegram?—I think it was a letter.

15,547. How long was it before the election?—I can hardly tell you; a little above a week after Mr. Mills' death.

15,548. What is Mr. Mitchell's name?—William Henry.

14,549. What did he describe himself as?—A personal friend of Mr. Dent's; he seemed to act as his secretary.

14,550. Did he describe Mr. Dent to you in a financial point of view?—He told me he was an exceedingly rich man, and would be able to do a great deal of good for the place, and he was in a position to fill that.

14,551. Did you discuss the amount that would be required?—We went into the register first. I had had the list made up, and I told him the numbers were very evenly balanced; indeed I thought that, provided no money was spent on either side, we could hardly tell which would win. If money was spent on the other side we must do the same, and the one who spent the most money would most likely win.

14,552. That was the first election at which you had been actively employed as the legal adviser?—In Dunn's election I was engaged, but Mr. Bryett was the principal.

14,553. Was it from the knowledge you acquired during Dunn's election that you formed your opinion of the amount of money that would be wanted if Mr. Dent was to put up in 1862?—Yes, just so.

15,554. Was Mr. Pender in the field before Mr. Dent?—Yes.

14,555. Was he living down at the "Seymour Arms" some day or two before Mr. Mitchell came down?—He was down canvassing the place 10 days before Mr. Dent came down; quite that.

14,556. Did Mr. Mitchell continue his stay at Totnes?—No, he went back.

14,557. You saw him, and you knew Mr. Dent?—Quite so.

14,558. Did you receive any communication from him or Mr. Dent before Mr. Dent came down?—I do not recollect that I did.

14,559. How long after Mr. Mitchell went; when did he go away?—The same day.

14,560. How long after that did Mr. Dent come down?—He was here about a week before the election.

14,561. Did you hear that Mr. Dent was coming down before he arrived?—I think I did; I had a communication from Mr. Spofforth.

14,562. Was it in writing?—I expect it was; I am not quite certain about it. I may have had a telegram.

14,563. Did Dent and Macleay come down too?—They did.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Mr. T. H. Edmonds.

7 Sept. 1866.

14,564. Did Mr. Dent bring any London solicitor with him?—He did not.

14,565. You and Mr. Kellock had been appointed his legal advisers at that time?—We had.

14,566. Was Mr. Mitchell a commercial man or a lawyer?—I believe a lawyer, a barrister; he had been a police commissioner or a magistrate at Hong Kong, in China.

14,567. What age man is he?—I think about 50.

14,568. When Mr. Dent and Mr. Mitchell came down, did you see them early after their arrival?—I saw them immediately afterwards.

14,569. Had they been canvassing with Mr. Kellock before that?—This is the 1863 election?

14,570. 1862?—We did not canvass till he came down; we did canvass previously in 1863.

14,571. When he came down in 1862 and 1863, after he came down did you go and canvass with him?—Yes, I did.

14,572. What did you find the disposition of the voters to be then; were they hesitating?—Just the same as they always have been in Totnes.

14,573. They wanted to know how much was to be given?—They did not ask me that question or the candidate.

14,574. Did Mr. Mitchell tell you how much money he had brought down with him?—3,000*l.*

14,575. Was Captain Helms at that time a resident in Totnes?—He was.

14,576. Do you know whether he had anything to do with bringing the money down?—He said he had got the money; I never heard one way or the other how.

14,577. He did not show it to you?—He did not show it to me.

15,578. Mr. Dent withdrew upon that occasion?—He did.

14,579. Late at night or the evening of the nomination day?—He did.

14,580. Had you had a show of hands on the nomination?—We had.

14,581. Did he withdraw in consequence of your advice?—My advice, as well as Mr. Kellock's and a few other friends there.

14,582. What was the reason?—I think it was on the advice of Mr. Mitchell principally. We made a report to him, and the report was to this effect:—In the evening I could not look to make a majority. No money had been spent on either side. He said if we spend money could I guarantee it. I said, "I "cannot do that." I said I would not advise him to go to the poll.

14,583. Did you mention the names of those whom you thought were to be had for money?—No, I did not.

14,584. Or the number of votes to be had for money?—I did not.

14,585. It was merely uncertain, general information that it was uncertain, that money must be spent, and that you could not tell even if it were spent which way the result would be?—Just so.

14,586. At that time had they been spending money on the other side?—I do not know that.

14,587. Do you know now?—I have heard since large sums of money have been paid.

14,588. Had you heard anything at that time of the "slippery company"?—Yes, I had.

14,589. What did you hear about them?—I heard there was a "slippery company." I think Mr. Heath told me, and that they might be had for 1,000*l.* I mentioned that to Mr. Mitchell.

14,590. Had you heard of any specific instances in which before the election of 1862 the other side had spent money?—Before the election of 1862?

14,591. Before the election of 1862?—I had not.

14,592. I put that to you for this purpose, whether it is true or not that 1,000*l.* was afterwards spent by Mr. Pender in the town in consequence of no money having been given by him at the election?—I heard about it and I asked Mr. Kellock if it was really true, and he said yes, it was so; that Mr. Pender had stated that he would give 1,000*l.* to the town.

14,593. Had you heard of any sum of money having been spent on the other side before this information?—No.

14,594. I do not mean whether you heard it before; had you heard of any money spent before that in your hearing that you may have heard of since that time?—No, I do not recollect, except that 1,000*l.*; I never heard anything to that effect.

14,595. At the election of 1862 there were various men employed upon your side I believe; Frederick Evens and Screach?—And Harris; he was employed.

14,596. Just as on other occasions. Have you any reason to doubt the accuracy of what Evens and Screach have told us, that they went to men and promised money, and they did not vote?—I have no reason to doubt it.

14,597. Had you anything to do with any particular people at that election?—No, I had not.

14,598. Do you remember the scene at the "Seven Stars" when the announcement was made that Mr. Dent was not going to stand?—I recollect it perfectly well.

14,599. There was a good deal of clamour?—A great many people, with their wives and daughters, with baskets ready to take away the money. John Heath was the only man who had the courage to tell them it was all over.

14,600. (Mr. Coleridge.) There were a great many bankruptcies, were there not, in consequence of the disappointment?—I do not recollect.

14,601. (Mr. Bere.) What was the arrangement as to the payment of money?—There was a man down upon that occasion. I never made it a rule to see the interesting stranger.

14,602. At that time you intimated to somebody such a man would be wanted?—It was well known that.

14,603. It was true then a man was brought down?—Oh, yes, I told Mr. Mitchell he must bring down a man.

14,604. You do not know whether a man did come down?—I am not sure; I never saw him.

14,605. He did not go about the town?—I do not know. I think there was a man down upon that occasion. I told Mr. Mitchell he must bring a man down.

14,606. (Mr. Coleridge.) Can you tell us anything about Pender's Mr. Mum at the "Seymour Arms"?—I do not know anything of him; he was supposed to be a man with a white hat and black band on it.

14,607. Have you ever seen him?—He was pointed out to me on the Plains.

14,608. He was quite a stranger?—Quite a stranger.

14,609. What sort of a looking man?—A man who seemed about 55 or 60, with grey whiskers and grey hair.

14,610. A tall man?—A tall thin man.

14,611. Did you ever see him in company with young Mr. Pender?—I do not think I ever did.

14,612. You know Mr. Heald, he is a different man?—I do not know him.

14,613. You do not know whether the white hat man that came with Mr. Pender was the same?—I do not.

14,614. You did not know Mr. Heald?—I never heard of him till this morning.

14,615. There was another stranger down; was not Mr. Salmon down?—I do not know, I did not hear at the time.

14,616. You have no information to give us as to Mr. Pender's proceedings?—I am sorry to say I cannot.

14,617. (Mr. Bere.) Was Mr. Jack down with Mr. Pender?—I never heard so; I tried to find out when I was getting up the petition who the man with a white hat was.

14,618. Did you find out?—I could not, they were close over at the "Seymour" hotel that I could not anything out of them.

14,619. (Mr. Coleridge.) You have not got the entrée of the "Seymour" hotel?—No, not at election times.

SAMUEL HEARD sworn and examined.

14,620. (Mr. Bere.) How long have you lived in tnes?—20 years.

14,621. Were you born here?—No, sir.

14,622. What have you been, living at Totnes?—years I have been a fly proprietor.

14,623. Have you always been interested in poli-l matters?—No, never.

14,624. You never troubled yourself about them? No, sir, never.

14,625. You had nothing to do with the election 1865?—Not on my own account in 1865. I beg ır pardon.

14,626. You had something to do then?—Yes.

14,627. You were employed by the Conservative ty?—By Mr. Edmonds.

14,628. Then it was in 1865 he employed you to and look after Robert Smaridge?—Yes.

14,629. What did you do with him?—I could do hing with him.

14,630. What did you try to do?—I tried to get n into the "Seven Stars."

14,631. Did you offer him a temptation to get him o the "Seven Stars".?—No, nothing

14,632. Did you inform him something might be l if he came down?—I told him I had seen some them that had got money and made it all right.

14,633. Have you always been a Conservative?—ways.

14,634. You are not a person of easily turned ıvictions?—No.

14,635. Have you changed your politics?—No, I vays was a Conservative, and always voted for em at the municipal. I never was a voter for the rough before the last election.

14,636. You have not received gratuities, you are natter-of-course man?—No, I am not.

14,637. Was the matter-of-course test produced to u?—What do you mean.

14,638. How much money did you get for your te last time?—Nothing.

14,639. Were you paid 20*l.* by Mr. John Heath?—ss.

14,640. What were you paid that for?—For the uble I had taken.

14,641. Were you paid for your fly besides?—For e fly?

14,642. Was that the fly you took to King's idge?—That was another time.

14,643. That was in 1865, was it not?—No.

14,644. 1863 then?—Yes, sir.

14,645. You went with Frederick Evens?—It was 1863, Dent's election.

14,646. You had only one fly paid for this time?—ly one.

14,647. Where did the fly take you to?—It went different places. I did not go with it myself.

14,648. Did you send your man?—Yes.

14,649. How many days were you employed?—was engaged for the election by Frederick Evens.

14,650. Where is the election supposed to begin d where to end?—It began on the Sunday, that as the first time.

14,651. Your man drove him?—I drove it myself e first time.

14,652. Where did you go?—I went to Corn-orthy.

14,653. What did you go to Cornworthy for?—I not know.

14,654. Who did you take to Cornworthy?—derick Evens.

14,655. And William Willis?—I think it was John d one or two others, I cannot say; perhaps if I ard them I could tell.

14,656. Was a man called Tozer one of them?—o.

14,657. You took Evens and John Willis, where did you take them up to?—To the public house.

14,658. Who were there before you came?—No one.

14,659. Were there not some people you knew there?—No, there was no one there, I think, then; it was in the afternoon, all the people were gone to church.

14,660. Whom did you leave behind?—I did not leave any one behind me. I suppose it was for an excursion and airing.

14,661. Was it Eastman and Tucker, and did Evens see them?—No, I do not think he did, neither one of them; I rather think he waited to see Eastman.

14,662. Was he living at Cornworthy?—Yes.

14,663. How much did you get paid for this; you were out the Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday?—I almost forget now, Mr. Heath paid me.

14,664. What do you charge for a day?—It all depends on the journey.

14,665. What do you charge a mile at election times?—1*s.* 6*d.* a mile.

14,666. Two horses or one?—One; 1*s.* a mile forward and 6*d.* back.

14,667. Anything for the driver?—The driver charges for himself.

14,668. When you are the driver do you charge?—I put in mine at 5*s.* It depends on where you go to.

14,669. (Mr. Coleridge.) And on what business you are going on?—Yes.

14,670. You are better paid at election times than other times?—I never charge any different. If they go two or three miles in the country and keep me five or six hours waiting, I charge more.

14,671. (Mr. Bere.) You got paid 7*l.* or 8*l.* for the fly?—I cannot tell you, 4*l.* or 5*l.*

14,672. When did you get the 20*l.* from Mr. John Heath?—The polling day.

14,673. After the election was lost?—After the election was lost.

14,674. Where did you get it?—In the lobby.

14,675. The lobby of the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

14,676. Did any other people get money besides you?—There was no person there but me and Mr. Heath.

14,677. What did you get it in, sovereigns or notes?—In sovereigns.

14,678. He said, "That is for your services"?—Yes.

14,679. (Mr. Coleridge.) What were your services besides driving the fly?—Do you mean in 1865?

14,680. Yes, how do you make out 20*l.*?—I did not charge 20*l.*

14,681. You got 20*l.*?—Yes; I never asked him for a farthing.

14,682. You are a voter, are you not?—Yes.

14,683. You voted for the Conservatives?—Yes.

14,684. What were the services that entitled you to 20*l.*?—I do not know I was entitled to that.

14,685. That is 20*l.* for your vote?—No, they never promised me.

14,686. What did you get it for?—As a present.

14,687. As a present for voting for the Conservatives, was it not?—I suppose if I voted for the other side he would not have given it to me.

14,688. You were bribed with 20*l.*?—For the work I had done.

14,689. How much for the work and how much for your vote?—At an electioneering time I should deserve 20*l.*

14,690. How many days did you work?—Three days.

14,691. You think in addition to being paid for

THIRTEENTH DAY.

S. Heard.

7 Sept. 1866.

your work your services are worth 20*l.* for three days?—I should think they were from what I have heard in this court.

14,692. I want to know what you did for the 20*l.*?—I used to work night and day running about.

14,693. (Mr. Bere.) You earned your 20*l.* the first week by seeing Smaridge?—Good part, I suppose.

14,694. How much do you put down to Smaridge?—I found he had come and voted for them, but not through me; somebody else had been before me.

14,695. You got paid for nothing?—I did not.

14,696. John Fox Green, did you go to him?—No.

14,697. You tried?—I tried.

14,698. Did you see Mrs. Green?—No.

14,699. What do you know about John Fox Green?—I saw his brother-in-law.

14,700. Who is he?—Willcocks.

14,701. (Mr. Coleridge.) How much did you put down for seeing the brother-in-law?—It cost me five or six glasses of grog.

14,702. Did you find the brother-in-law communicative?—No, I could not find him at all, not with the brother-in-law.

14,703. The brother-in-law would not let out where he was?—He told me he guessed, but did not know for certain.

14,704. Did you go to Plymouth?—No.

14,705. Where did you think he was?—At Bridgetown; he happened to be there.

14,706. Where?—At Mr. Elliott's.

14,707. Locked up in a room?—I do not know that he was locked up; he was there.

14,708. Did Elliott bring him up to vote?—He did, I saw him do it.

14,709. Did you see Crook?—Yes.

14,710. And did you have some talk with him?—Yes, I did.

14,711. What did Crook say about the money?—When I was looking out for Green I kept myself pretty near where he was stationed, at the "Bridge-house" inn. I stayed myself there for many hours. On the nomination day in the afternoon I happened to meet with Crook. I asked him for whom he was going to vote; he said, "You know which way." I asked him if any consideration would induce him to vote for the Conservatives; he said it must be a good one, for he would have one on the other side. I asked if 60*l.* would do; he said no, he could get a great deal more than that. I did not say any more to him then. I stopped there till some time in the evening, and when I found I could not find Fox Green I went back and reported, I think it was to Mr. Heath or to Mr. Edmonds, that I had seen Crook and he was to be had for a certain sum. They asked me to go again and see him again. I went to his house late in the evening; it so happened he was not at home; I saw his wife and she told me she did not think he would vote for the Conservatives unless they gave him 100*l.*, because if he voted for the Conservatives he would be sure to lose his situation. I went back again, and when I came back to the "Seven Stars" I told Mr. Heath; he said it is of no use, you will lose the election, it is all up.

14,712. Had Mr. Heath given you power to offer Crook 100*l.*, or did he leave it to your discretion to do the best you could?—I did not offer him any.

14,713. At that time did you not see somebody else besides Mr. Heath; did you not see a gentleman you had not seen before?—No.

14,714. You did see a stranger there once?—Yes.

14,715. When did you see him?—In the morning at half-past three, or that to four o'clock.

14,716. On the morning of the election?—Yes.

14,717. Where did you see him?—Upstairs.

14,718. In his bed room?—No; I think it was the under-boots went and told him I was come.

14,719. Was it William Screach?—I do not know his name; he called me at half-past three in the morning.

14,720. Where were you then?—In the evening I told Mr. Heath about the man Crook; he told me it was of no use, the election was all up, and he would not pay another halfpenny. I sat in the smoking room, and I had two or three glasses of grog; I went to bed, and at half-past three I was called up by young Mr. Screach, and he said I must come down to Captain Pim directly. So I went down and he went up stairs before me; I stopped at the front door and spoke to young Mr. James Heath. At that time young Mr. Screach was gone into the room; as I was going up over the stairs I made a stop and he asked me if I had not been about Crook. I told him yes. I told him I saw the wife the evening before, and I told him what she told me; he said, "Will you go "immediately and see if you can see him and get "him to the 'Seven Stars,' and offer him any money "you like?" I said, "Yes." He said, "Offer him 150*l.*"

14,721. Did you see Captain Pim?—He was in the room, the door was half open.

14,722. He was in the room out of which this strange gentleman came?—I suppose he was.

14,723. Have you seen Mr. Smith here?—Yes.

14,724. Was that the gentleman?—Oh, no.

14,725. What was the gentleman like?—Just like you, like Mr. Mum, as they call him.

14,726. What sort of man, what was his description?—A middling height man; he had got lightish whiskers and a thin face.

14,727. What age?—I do not know what age. I think between 40 and 50.

14,728. (Mr. Coleridge.) When you say grey whiskers, where they white or grey?—Light.

14,729. Was his hair dark?—I did not take particular notice. The only time I ever saw him he had a light coat on; no hat.

14,730. A slight man?—Not particularly slight.

14,731. (Mr. Bere.) Are you quite sure Captain Pim was in the room out of which this person came?—I did not see him come out. I saw the door opened and I saw Captain Pim inside; he was sitting down at the table.

14,732. Who else was in the room?—I could not tell you.

14,733. (Mr. Coleridge.) You would know him well if you saw him again?—Yes, I would.

14,734. (Mr. Bere.) Did you go to Crook?—Yes.

14,735. Did you offer him 150*l.*?—Yes.

14,736. What did he say to you?—He said he would not take it.

14,737. When were you to meet him to pay it?—He promised to meet me on the bridge at eight in the morning,

14,738. Did you go to the bridge?—I did.

14,739. Did he come?—Oh, no, sir.

14,740. Did you see anything of Farley at the "Bridge" inn?—Yes.

14,741. What did you see of him?—When I went on to the bridge I waited for Crook. I walked up and down 20 minutes. I thought I would go to Mr. Farley's and have a glass of something or a bottle of ginger beer; the old gentleman was cleaning up, and he said, "What do you do over the bridge?" I said I wanted to find out where Fox Green was; he said, "Are you after money?" I said, "Yes." He says, "Can I do anything for you?" I says, "If you "can do it, all the better." He said, "Which side "are you going to vote for?" I said, "I do not "know that I have made up my mind yet." He says "I have been told of 200*l.* Would you like to vote "for 150*l.*?" I says, "Where is the money?" "Oh," he says, "the money is all right enough." I said "Where can I go?" He said, "You will have to go "over to John Elliott and wait till Mr. Prout comes." I said, "I shall not have to be there all to myself?" He says, "No, there is Elliott and Green over there." "I shall have company," I said; "make sure if "see Green I will see if I cannot make 200*l.* or "of it." And so I went away again. He said, "I "think 150*l.* is about the market price for a Conservative man," and he said, "If you go down there "and wait, you will have plenty to come to you."

14,742. Did you go to Mr. Elliott?—No.

14,743. Why?—Because I did not want to. I nted to find out where Green was.

14,744. (Mr. Coleridge.) Where did you go to see r. Pender?—I did not go.

14,745. Had you not been to see Mr. Pender?—, he canvassed me.

14,746. When did he canvass you?—Two or three ys before the election.

14,747. Who was with him?—He came two or ree times.

14,748. Who was with him at either time?—He me by himself; no one was with him.

14,749. (Mr. Longe.) Are you quite sure that it s Captain Pim that the boots told you wanted to e you?—He will answer for himself.

14,750. Did you ever see Captain Pim before?—es, many a time.

14,751. Did you drive him about?—Yes, many nes at the election; during the election.

14,752. (Mr. Coleridge.) At any of the times Mr. nder canvassed you did he ever say anything more out it?—No, sir.

14,753. About a situation or anything?—No.

14,754. Did anybody come with him?—He always me by himself. I told him I had signed the requi-ion to vote for Colonel Dawkins and Captain Pim, d I should like to carry out my wish.

14,755. He was a good paymaster?—I never had a thing from him.

14,756. Did you tell him a good many who signed e requisition were going to vote for him?—No, ver.

14,757. When did you first know that some of the quisitionists were going to vote against them?—hen I saw them voting.

14,758. You never took a bribe?—No.

14,759. (Mr. Bere.) When Mr. Edmonds told you go and see what you could do with Smaridge, did give you any money?—Yes, half-a-sovereign.

14,760. What were you to do for him?—Pay the penses.

14,761. Did you have any little presents beyond is?—Yes, the next day when I went to see Fox reen a sovereign.

14,762. Was that all you had?—Yes.

14,763. You made 22*l.* out of the transaction?—I not know that I did; I spent the two sovereigns ry quick.

14,764. In 1863 you had a good deal to do, not rsonally, did you not, with the fly to the "Anchor," Kingsbridge?—Yes.

14,765. And bring the lame ducks home?—Yes.

14,766. Was that all you did in 1863?—I went ith Frederick Evens.

14,767. Was that all you did?—Yes, that is the ly place I went to, we took them out in the evening om the "Anchor."

14,768. And brought them down to the "Seven ars"?—No, I took them away towards Modbury.

14,769. Did you not bring some back the same ght?—No, not the same night; I went to Kings-idge three different times.

14,770. Do you remember taking Sercombe?—Yes; d Dean and Tozer; I took them over separately.

14,771. From the "Anchor" inn?—Yes.

14,772. Where to?—The "Seven Stars."

14,773. It was Stoyle and Kinsman you took to ingsbridge?—Yes.

14,774. You got your full pay?—I got my full ay.

14,775. What did you get for your services on that ccasion?—Nothing.

14,776. You were not a voter?—No.

14,777. You had a vote in the council, had you ot?—Yes.

14,778. How long had you had a vote for the ouncil?—All the while I have been in Totnes.

14,779. How much have you had for that vote?—Never the price of a glass of beer in my life; I was always out of pocket.

14,780. Did you never have a breakfast?—I believe I once had a breakfast; what they call a breakfast.

14,781. You were employed by Mr. George Heath in the municipal elections?—No; I never took any interest in it except voting.

14,782. You seem to have exercised a good deal of supervision over the Liberals; who were most active in 1865?—There were a lot of them.

14,783. Can you give us their names?—It would take some time to mention them all. Prout, Holman, Elliott, Thomas Searle, Worthy; I know all those.

14,784. And Callard?—He was one of the leading hands.

14,785. Did you see these men going in and out of Elliott's house when Fox Green was there?—No.

14,786. Whom did you see going in and out of that house?—No one.

14,787. Did you see Mr. Chaster about a good deal?—No; I only saw him at the hustings.

14,788. Did you come across these men at the houses of voters whom you were going to; were they there before you, or were you first in the field?—I do not know what you mean.

14,789. Did you find some one had been to Smaridge's before you?—No; he said a man belonging to the Conservative party had been treating with him, and that he had made up his mind to walk into the "Seven Stars."

14,790. Did he say that he had seen any of the Liberal party?—No.

14,791. Did Crook tell you whom he had seen?—No.

14,792. You saw these men canvassing and active?—Yes.

14,793. Did you see Mr. Jenkins?—I saw him walking about; he was not active.

14,794. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you find that the price of votes rose as the election was coming on?—I cannot say.

14,795. You heard what had been offered on both sides?—Yes.

14,796. Did you hear that more money had been offered on the nomination day than had been offered before?—No.

14,797. What was the largest sum you heard of as having been offered for any vote?—200*l.* was the largest sum I heard of; I heard that that had been offered to Blank.

14,798. Did you hear who offered it to him?—I did not at that time.

14,799. Did you take the same sort of interest in the election of 1859 that you did in that of 1865?—No; I did not take any interest in it at all; I was never asked.

14,800. Did you attend to the driving business in 1859?—Yes.

14,801. Which side did you drive for?—The Conservative side always.

14,802. Did you get anything for your services?—No.

14,803. You were only employed as a fly man?—That is all.

14,804. And what would be the amount of your bill?—Something between 5*l.* and 6*l.*; I used to charge 5*s.* for myself.

14,805. Which was the best election; when was your bill the largest?—At Mr. Dent's election.

14,806. What did it amount to then?—Some 6*l.* or 7*l.* Sometimes Mr. Frederick Evens would pay it to me without looking at it.

14,807. Did you go out with Willis to Mr. Soper's?—No.

14,808. Or your man?—No.

14,809. Do you know the man who had that job?—I rather think it was George Beer of the "Seven Stars."

14,810. A man who was the postboy there?—Yes.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Capt. H. Helms.

7 Sept. 1866.

Captain Henry Helms sworn and examined.

14,811. (Mr. Bere.) Are you an old friend of Mr. John Dent?—Yes.

14,812. Were you employed by him as captain of one of his vessels?—For some years; but latterly I have been on shore as their agent.

14,813. Where?—At Amoy.

14,814. When did you leave Amoy?—In 1854.

14,815. Are you a native of Totnes?—The neighbourhood.

14,816. Did you come in 1854 to live in Totnes?—In the neighbourhood. I came in 1857 to live here.

14,817. Before Mr. Dent came here in 1862 did you have any communication with him on the subject of coming?—None whatever.

14,818. Did you learn that he was coming down?—Yes.

14,819. When did you learn that, and from whom?—I learned it the day after Mr. Pender addressed the electors.

14,820. How did you hear it?—Mr. Mitchell, a friend of his, informed me.

14,821. Was he down then?—He came the previous evening, and came to see me in the morning.

14,822. Who is Mr. Mitchell?—At the time I knew him in China he was police magistrate at Hong Kong, a clever and astute man.

14,823. Was he a friend of Mr. Dent's in China?—Yes.

14,824. Did he come home with Mr. Dent?—No.

14,825. What position does he occupy now with regard to Mr. Dent?—I do not think he occupies any position. He has passed his examination for the bar, and is now practising in Hong Kong as a barrister.

14,826. Was he not a barrister when he was a police magistrate?—No; he has passed since.

14,827. He is practising now as a barrister?—Yes. He came home; he was ill.

14,828. What age man is he do you suppose?—I should think between 40 and 50.

14,829. How long had he been down here before he came to see you?—He only came the previous evening.

14,830. He came to see you amongst the first persons he came to see in Totnes?—Yes.

14,831. Will you tell us what the name of the firm is? What is the description?—Messrs. Dent and Company.

14,832. Dent and Palmer?—No. Dent and Palmer is a separate firm in London.

14,833. What is Dent, Mackellick, and Company?—The Hong Kong firm I was attached to was Dent and Company.

14,834. (Mr. Coleridge.) Is there a Mr. William Dent?—There are two William Dents, father and son.

14,835. Which was the William Dent that was asked to come here as a candidate?—That must have been the one in our house in China.

14,836. The son or father? What age man is William Dent?—I should think about 30.

14,837. Between 30 and 40?—Yes, somewhere thereabouts; nearer 30 than 40.

14,838. Is he out of the house now?—Yes.

14,839. That is the one they wanted to come as member here?—Yes, so I have heard. I do not know it as a fact.

14,840. (Mr. Bere.) John Dent is a partner in the house of Dent and Company, Hong Kong?—The senior partner.

14,841. Anything to do with the firm of Dent, Palmer, and Company, London?—I do not think he is any partner with them.

14,842. Are they correspondents of Dent and Company at Hong Kong?—Yes.

14,843. Any communication addressed to John Dent should be addressed to them?—In writing to the firm in China I address direct.

14,844. When did John Dent leave England last?—I should think 12 months ago.

14,845. Have you heard from him since?—I have heard from him.

14,846. When did you hear from him last?—About the time he arrived out.

14,847. Eight or ten months ago?—I think as long ago as that.

14,848. Have you heard since, or had any word from the house, as to whether there was any information when John Dent would be likely to come back again?—No.

14,849. Have you heard that he would be likely to be home?—No, but I think he is not likely to come home in a hurry.

14,850. What made him go out?—I think he was tired and disgusted with England.

14,851. With Totnes?—I do not know about Totnes altogether. It is a different life from here altogether.

14,852. (Mr. Coleridge.) He would have had to stay here if he had got in for Totnes?—Yes, that might be.

14,853. (Mr. Bere.) How soon did you become a voter for Totnes?—I was put on the list in due course after 1857.

14,854. Did you vote in the election for Mills, Gifford, Mackenzie, and Gregory?—No; I was not in Totnes then.

14,855. The first election at which you voted was the election of 1859?—I was absent from Totnes then.

14,856. In fact you had not voted then?—I have never voted more than once; that was for Mr. Dent in 1863, the only vote I have recorded.

14,857. (Mr. Coleridge.) You are a Liberal at heart, and it was a matter of friendship to Mr. Dent?—It was a matter of friendship. I would not care what politics he was.

14,858. You are a Liberal at heart?—I do not trouble myself about it.

14,859. It was for Mr. Dent's own sake?—Yes.

14,860. (Mr. Bere.) Did you know what the state of political parties were at the time that Mr. Mitchell came to see you?—Yes.

14,861. What was your opinion as to the predominant interest?—I thought the Liberal interest predominated on account of the territorial influence exercised by the Duke of Somerset.

14,862. Did you tell Mr. Mitchell that?—Yes; told him what I thought was a correct state of affairs.

14,863. Had you heard that a great deal of money had been spent in the elections between Blount and Baldwin and the elections in which Mr. Mills had stood?—Yes.

14,864. Did you communicate that fact to Mr. Mitchell?—Yes.

14,865. What did Mitchell tell you when you told him money would be wanted?—That he had not made up his mind, and he thought he would go back again.

14,866. Did he not intimate that he had got the money down with him at that time?—No.

14,867. He rather thought he would go back and advise Mr. Dent to have nothing to do with it?—Yes.

14,868. Do you know whether he did go back?—He did not.

14,869. Mr. Dent came?—Yes. I think he took other counsel which overawed mine.

14,870. Do you know whose counsel it was?—No.

14,871. (Mr. Coleridge). Was it Mr. Kellock's?—I cannot say.

14,872. Did he come down?—Yes.

14,873. How long after you had had that talk ith Mr. Mitchell?—He did not come down for some me.

14,874. How soon after you came down did you see im?—I saw him the same evening.

14,875. Did you communicate to him what you ad communicated to Mr. Mitchell?—I cannot recolect that we had any conversation whatever about olitics.

14,876. Not about his chances in the borough?—I o not know.

14,877. Had you told Mr. Mitchell what your pinion was, not only with regard to the particular ontest, but with regard to the Conservative position enerally here?—Yes, I had.

14,878. What had you told him?—I told him this, hat I thought the Liberals preponderated.

14,879. Did you tell him that no Conservative had chance, and that the bringing a Conservative was a here swindle to get money out of his pocket?—Not ust then.

14,880. Did you tell him that at any time?—I did ot tell Mr. Mitchell that.

14,881. Was that your opinion at the time?—At hat time there was a better chance than since.

14,882. Then if it was your opinion then it is still nore your opinion now?—It was my opinion and is ow.

14,883. When did you first speak to Mr. Dent bout his chances in the borough?—On the day of he nomination.

14,884. Had you to canvass with him?—No.

14,885. Had you made up any poll book?—Nothing n connexion with him.

14,886. Had you made up a poll book for your own musement?—Yes.

14,887. Have you got it?—No, not now.

14,888. Have you got it at home?—No.

14,889. When you talked to Dent about his prosects did you tell him that he must spend money?—At that time I laid the list before him.

14,890. What was that list?—I had marked off he different parties according to my opinion.

14,891. Had you divided them into particular lasses?—Yes, I had made a tabulated form.

14,892. Can you remember what your classes vere?—Of course I took the staunch Tories first and marked them off.

14,893. Can you recollect how many you put as taunch Tories?—I think about 50 or 60.

14,894. Then I suppose you might take staunch Liberals?—Yes.

14,895. How many did you put down as staunch Liberals?—No more than those who had a sheer love of party.

14,896. About 50 or 60 each?—Yes.

14,897. (Mr. Coleridge.) Are you sure you have ost the list?—Yes, not lost it, destroyed it.

14,898. Do you recollect destroying it?—I generally destroy most of the papers.

14,899. Have you looked for it since this inquiry as been going on?—I did not think it was any use. I burn up all my papers once a year.

14,900. Do you think you may have this by you?—I have not that list I know.

14,901. Have you got any copy of the list?—I do not think I have.

14,902. Do you keep a diary?—Yes.

14,903. Did you enter the results of the lists in the diary?—No. My diary is merely what I do in the day myself; just a little matter.

14,904. Have you got any entries in your diary about Dent's election?—There might have been about going to London to see him.

14,905. (Mr. Bere.) We should like you to let the secretary look at that. We have got the two classes of voters, the staunch Conservatives and staunch Liberals. What was the next class?—Those that were bound to those parties.

14,906. On either side?—Yes.

14,907. Persons like the tenants of the duke or Mr. Baldwin?—Yes. Then there were two other classes, those of course would vote without money.

14,908. Did you have a class that would vote for money?—Yes, either side.

14,909. Conservatives that would vote for a less sum for their party?—Yes.

14,910. And so also on the other side with the Liberals?—Yes.

14,911. Did you head the table with any name to it?—Yes.

14,912. What did you call them in your tabulated statement?—I almost forget.

14,913. Were they venal Tories and venal Whigs?—Something of that sort.

14,914. Can you remember the numbers you put down belonging to those two parties?—I cannot recollect.

14,915. About; I do not want to one or two?—If I had the list I could tell you the exact number.

14,916. What was your last class?—The last class were parties open to either side.

14,917. Did you call them marketable voters?—Yes.

14,918. Did you ever give a copy of the list to anybody?—I never copied it.

14,919. Did you let anybody take a copy?—Mr. Dent saw it.

14,920. Did he take a copy?—No; but he saw the original.

14,921. Did you show it to Mr. Edmonds?—No.

14,922. Mr. Kellock?—No; I never had any conversation on politics.

14,923. When you showed Mr. Dent this was Mr. Mitchell present?—He was not. No one was present.

14,924. Did Mr. Dent make any remark as to the several classes?—He said it coincided with the observations he had made himself.

14,925. Had you put any figures at how much they might be bought for?—It was pretty generally understood.

14,926. How much did the marketable men want?—From 50*l.* to 150*l.* on the average. Some as low as 25*l.*, but the marketable men would not go so low.

14,927. Did Mr. Dent say he had plenty of money with him?—He did not say anything about money.

14,928. Did Mitchell tell you about money?—No. He said Mr. Dent would have to spend money go where he would.

14,929. Did not Mr. Mitchell tell you he had brought money with him at any time?—I cannot say he did.

14,930. (Mr. Coleridge.) Did you know there was money in the place?—I knew afterwards.

14,931. Did you at the time?—No, I knew nothing about money.

14,932. Did you tell him how much it would take altogether to buy up those voters? Did you tell him how much you thought it would take for the election?—He could form his own opinion.

14,933. Did you tell him?—I do not think I mentioned any gross sum.

14,934. (Mr. Bere.) Did you say about how much it would be?—I said it would take 5,000*l.* at least.

14,935. Did he intimate that he would be ready to spend 5,000*l.*?—No, he did not; but I told him spend what he would he could not make sure.

14,936. Was that the only conversation you had with him before he retired?—Yes.

14,937. After he retired had you reason to know that money had been brought down?—Yes.

14,938. How did you come to know that?—It had to go back.

14,939. You had got the bag?—Yes.

14,940. Where did you take it to?—A place in London where I was directed.

14,941. Where was the place?—I think Austin Friars, No. 3.

14,942. Dent and Mackellick's office?—That is not their office.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

Capt. H. Helms.

7 Sept. 1866.

14,943. Whom did you take it to at 3, Austin Friars?—I think Mr. Alexander.

14,944. Do you know how much you took back?—I should think 1,500*l.*

14,945. In sovereigns?—Yes.

14,946. Who is Mr. Alexander?—He is connected with the company in some way or other.

14,947. Do you know what became of the other 300*l.*?—Absorbed in the necessary expenses perhaps.

14,948. Of an uncontested election?—Just so.

14,949. Did you ever hear how any portion of it was spent?—No.

14,950. Did neither Mr. Mitchell or Mr. Dent tell you anything about it?—No.

14,951. Not a word?—No.

14,952. Were not you curious enough to know how that 1,500*l.* went?—I do not know much.

14,953. Did not Mr. Mitchell ever tell you that he brought down 3,000*l.*?—I am sure he never told me.

14,954. How was it that you came to take the money back, where was it given to you?—In the "Seven Stars," when they were declaring the state of the poll, of course it drew attention to the polling booth, and during that interval I had a conversation with Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. Mitchell gave me the money.

14,955. What conversation had you with Mr. Mitchell?—No more than he pointed out where the money was to be taken.

14,956. Did he point out where it was?—He gave me it into my own hands himself.

14,957. What was it in?—A black bag.

14,958. A black leather bag?—Yes.

14,959. And you took it up by train and took it to Austin Friars yourself?—Yes.

14,960. You did so?—Yes.

14,961. Did you receive anything from Mr. Dent for that service?—I should think not.

14,962. (Mr. Coleridge.) How did you take this up? Was it in a bag?—Yes, in one of those courier bags.

14,963. Did you carry it in your hand by the train or in a portemanteau?—I had a bag round my neck, a small bag, and I had to go twice, I found this courier bag was very inconvenient, and I used a small bag I use myself.

14,964. You went twice to the "Seven Stars"?—Yes.

14,965. Did you put it into your own bag?—Yes.

14,966. Was it given to you in loose money?—No, I never saw the colour of it.

14,967. How was it put into your bag?—I took out the small canvas bags of different sizes.

14,968. Small canvas bags were given to you and you put them into your own little courier bag, and that was not big enough to carry the whole lot at once?—They gave me the courier bag, and I took it up and came down a second time.

14,969. What did you do with the courier bag?—I emptied it out.

12,970. What then?—I put it in my own bag.

14,971. And then went back and got the rest?—Yes.

14,972. You took it up in your own bag?—Yes.

14,973. Did you put it into a portmanteau in order to carry it while travelling?—No, I put one bag round my neck and one I had in my hand.

14,974. All the way to London?—Yes, on the seat of the carriage.

14,975. When you got to London did you go straight to Austin Friars?—I did not, I did not get there till 9 or 10 o'clock.

14,976. Where did you go to?—Lodgings.

14,977. The next day you took it to Austin Friars?—Yes.

14,978. You asked for Mr. Alexander?—Yes, I knew him.

14,979. You gave it into his hands?—Yes.

14,980. Did you receive any receipt for it?—I think I received a slight memorandum in pencil.

14,981. Have you that?—No, I gave it to Mr. Mitchell.

14,982. (Mr. Bere.) Where did you see Mr. Mitchell to give him that memorandum?—He had returned to London before I left.

14,983. Then you saw him in London?—Yes, I saw him in London.

14,984. Is that happened about the election of 1862?—That is all I remember.

14,985. Before the election of 1863 did you receive a letter from Mr. Mitchell?—Yes, I did.

14,986. After Lord Gifford's death?—Yes, after his death.

14,987. I dare say you will only be too glad to clear this up. Did you get any information as to the Liberal party from Mrs. Thomas in 1862?—No, never at any time, nor she from me.

14,988. You never gave her any information as to what you were doing?—No, never.

14,989. Nor anything from her?—No.

14,990. Was it in consequence of what she said to you as to how the Liberals were going on that you thought Mr. Dent had no chance?—No, I should not pay attention to what anybody said.

1,991. You formed your own opinion from your own observation that he would have a hard run of it and not from what Mrs. Thomas told you?—No, Mrs. Thomas and me never had any conversation, she is the other side of politics altogether.

14,992. (Mr. Coleridge.) She is a Liberal?—Yes.

14,993. (Mr. Bere.) Did you receive a letter from Mr. Mitchell before the letter of 1863?—Yes.

14,994. Do you happen to have that letter with you?—No.

14,995. Did you destroy that?—Oh, yes.

14,996. Can you remember what the contents of that letter were?—It was merely to ask what my opinion was about the state of affairs in Totnes, whether they were the same as before.

14,997. Did you answer it?—He wanted other information as well, which I thought I could best give by a presonal interview.

14,998. Can you remember what the other information was?—He wanted to know the state of parties, and I put it just in a tabular form as I did before to refresh my memory.

14,999. And you thought a personal interview best to explain it to him?—Yes.

15,000. Did you go up to London?—Yes.

15,001. Did you see him?—I saw Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Dent together.

15,002. Where did you see them?—At Mr. Dent's lodgings.

15,003. Where were they?—I think in Bond Street; he was merely living in rooms then, I think so.

15,004. Did you see them alone then?—Yes.

15,005. You had a table similar to the one you had before?—Yes, with some slight alterations which experience had led me to make.

15,006. Are you quite certain you have not that list any where?—I am quite certain.

15,007. Did Mr Mitchell keep that list?—Yes, I think he did, I do not recollect bringing it away. It was merely figures on which I explained the context.

15,008. Was that list which you showed to Mr. Mitchell essentially different from the one you showed Mr. Dent in 1862?—No.

15,009. Much the same?—Much the same.

15,010. Was the qualification the same?—The qualification might have been nearly the same, but still it was the number and which way they would vote.

15,011. And the number of people to be bought?—Yes.

15,012. And the number of people who must be paid?—Yes.

15,013. As far as you remember which way was the majority then?—The majority was with the Liberals.

